The latest attack was voiced by the Chinese Communist mouth-organ PEOPLE'S DAILY accusing Reagan as insincere and of violating the Peiping-U.S. joint communique. The newspaper's authoritative commentary said that Reagan's statement of October 6 on the arms sales for the Republic of China is absolutely unacceptable to the Red Chinese people. It said that his statement "cannot but make one doubt the U.S. Government's sincerity in implementing the communique and promoting Red Chinese-American relations on this basis." The commentary also noted that no prerequisite should or could be attached to reducing and ending arms sales to Taiwan.

The attack followed a previous attack by the HSINHUA NEWS AGENCY accusing Reagan of violating the recent joint communique. Both attacks did not mince words and both mentioned the U.S. President by name. The fact that Peiping launched these attacks openly against Reagan while engaging in bilateral talks with the Soviets in Peiping aimed at normalization of relations between Peiping and Moscow shows its sinister maneuvers of blackmailing the United States into yielding to its demands.

President Reagan reiterated his support of the Republic of China on October 6 and his determination to stand by commitments to the defense of the government in Taiwan in answer to a question raised by Gary Arnold, one of the Republican hopefuls for election at the November 2 election. But Reagan also noted at the White House that production of U.S. arms sales to the ROC depends on Red China's peaceful intentions for reunification with Taiwan.

The Chinese Communists are truly ungrateful for Reagan's willingness to reduce arms sales to the Republic of China on conditions of Peiping's peaceful intentions which constitutes a violation of the Taiwan Relations Act. The attacks against Reagan were therefore unwarranted and constitute a distinct slap on the face for Reagan's accommodation of the Peiping's demands.

It is clear that no amount of appeasement will ever please the Peiping regime which is determined to play the America card against the Soviets and the Soviet card against the United States. It is high time for the United States to wake up from playing the international card games and return to the normal diplomacy of keeping its friends and allies instead of seeking advantages from its potential enemies. He should stick to his promise made at the White House statement that "Our Taiwan friends are going to continue to get everything they need".

In view of Peiping "Foreign Minister" Huang Hua's recent statement at the United Nations threatening to use force against Taiwan, President Reagan should retract his commitments made in the Peiping-U.S. joint communique. Such a retraction would reassure U.S. congressional leaders that there will be no violation of the Taiwan Relations Act at the expense of the Republic of China and its self-defense requirements.

In view of the great misgivings expressed by many congressional leaders, a timely nullification of the Peiping-U.S. joint communique would enhance Reagan's public opinion support in the November election. President Reagan should realize that his handling of the China policy is one of the main reasons for his low public opinion poll ratings as reflected by the latest NEWSWEEK poll. This has been amply proven by the observance of October 10 as the Republic of China day by five states and seven cities in the United States in spite of the lack of official relations between our two countries.

In view of the incessant power struggle on the Chinese mainland and the shaky control of Teng Hsiao-ping, especially over the economy and the military, Reagan has not a reliable friend to work with on the Chinese mainland. He has only a blackmailer and double-crosser as a partner who may turn against the United States at any time upon reaching a compromise with the Soviets.

ENVOY COMMENTS ON PRC DEFECTOR, AIRCRAFT IN ROK

OW201025 Taipei CNA in English 0954 GMT 20 Oct 82

[Text] Taipei, Oct 20 (CNA) -- Carl Liu, spokesman for the Embassy of the Republic of China in Seoul, said Tuesday that Wu Jung-ken, the freedom seeker who flew a Chinese Communist MIG-19 from mainland China to South Korea last Saturday, is in good condition physically and is well taken care of by Korean authorities. His aircraft, now in custody at an air base near Seoul, suffered no damage at all, according to a CNA report from Korea.

Liu said Korean authorities have already confirmed officially the defection of Wu. The ROC Embassy in Seoul has been instructed to transfer the ROC Government's deep concern about the case and is keeping close contact with Korean authorities concerning the pilot's future.

ROC Ambassador Ding Mou-shih Tuesday afternnon called on Yi Pom-sok, Korea's foreign minister, to exchange views about Wu's defection.

PREMIER REJECTS FORMATION OF NEW PARTIES

OW210656 Taipei CHINA POST in English 16 Oct 82 p 12

[Text] In answering Legislator Hsu Jung-shu's interpellation on the relative level of democracy that now exists in the ROC under the rule of the leading party, Premier Sun Yun-hsuan said democracy must be based on constitution and that the Republic of China's Constitution was written by experts selected by all Chinese people. It represents the views and ideals of all walks of life, and should thus be abided by all Chinese people, he said.

Non-partisan legislators yesterday challenged the Executive Yuan (Cabinet) with repeated interpellations on such issues as an entire renewal of the Legislative Yuan and the Control Yuan, revocation of martial law, and the permission to organize new parties.

The propositions, some of the most sensitive in recent Legislative Yuan meetings, attracted numerous citizens and packed the observers' section.

Hsu claimed that the leading party which has emphasized that it will uphold democracy has in fact upheld martial law and frozen the constitution for the past 30 years.

The premier stated that martial law now in effect is actually aimed at halting communist infiltration, as well as protecting the interests and security of 18 million Chinese people on Taiwan. It does not bother any resident on the island, he said.

He told Hsu that there is no "Taiwan issue" but only a "China issue." "Only when people here and abroad unite and work together can they really enjoy happiness and peace," Premier Sun said, adding that "any disruptive ideas or Taiwan independence views only damage the national security." Hsu said that although the government here claims to represent the whole of China, most other countries recognize the communist regime's "legitimacy" over China, and that the ROC's insistence on sovereignty over all of China only wins jeers from other countries. She asked whether such insistence is good or not.

Sun noted that Taiwan and China have an inseparable relationship. "If we only stress 'the retaining of Taiwan' without mentioning 'unification of China,' we can never save Taiwan but endanger it," the premier emphasized.

Legislator Kang Ninghsiang also criticized the continued implementation of martial law, stating that it serves to strengthen the power of the leading party and undermine democracy and constitutional rule here. He said the forming of new parties is a process of political development.

Legislator Fei Hsi-ping supported Kang's suggestion on the organization of new parties. He said there will be no damage done to the goal of national recovery by forming new parties, and that the authorities should not interfere. "In a country where democracy is practiced, it is a natural process to form new parties and there should not be any interference," Fei said.

Legislator Su Cheng-chiu called on the Executive Yuan to consider a renewal of membership of the congress, saying that there are 380 legislators in the Legislative Yuan, but only 70 legislators regularly attend the sessions. It would be good for both the Legislative Yuan and the public to have an energetic law-making body, where every legislator can represent the rights of the public.

Legislators Lin Ko-chi, Liu Tzu-peng, Hsu Han-hao, Li Kung-chuan, Tung Wei and Hsieh Hsueh-hsien jointly stated that martial law in Taiwan is not carried out in full force. Except for organizing public meetings, which require permission from the policy authorities, there are no restrictions on people's lives here. Therefore, the martial law should continue, they stated. They urged the government to communicate with the public on certain ideas in policy making.

TZU LI WAN PAO EDITORIAL SUPPORTS NONPARTY STAND

OW110249 Taipei TZU LI WAN PAO in Chinese 4 Oct 82 p 1

[Editorial: "The Great China Doctrine Based on 18 Million People -- On the Six-Point National Affairs Proposal by Nonparty Personages"]

[Text] In the six-point national affairs proposal issued by political figures without party affiliations at a meeting on 28 September, the first point is that Taiwan's future should be determined according to the common aspirations of the 18 million people. As far as we know, this stand was expressed repeatedly by four nonparty public representatives at the central level when they visited the United States on various occasions -- including contacts with U.S. officials and members of Congress -- as the strongest and most concrete current stand voiced by nonparty political figures here for the consumption of international political circles. It has won wide international recognition and support. As human rights have become the universally accepted principle in the appraisal of practical political problems, no one can oppose this point.

The expression of this stand was indeed the decisive factor contributing to the great success of the trip of the four central-level nonparty public representatives abroad. The stand that Taiwan's future should be determined according to the common desire of its 18 million people is obviously of help in the country's present situation. Since the beginning of the 1970's, the CPC's attempt to isolate Taiwan through the development of relations with the United States, and even finally invading and seizing Taiwan with U.S. assistance, began to turn into concrete actions. While the United States still recognized the Government of the Republic of China as the sole legitimate government of China, the Chinese Communists sought so-called "normalization" of relations with the United States and, during the period when Sino-U.S. relations continued, did not hesitate to take the initiative in asking for the mutual establishment of "liaison offices" with the U.S. Government.

Thus, a "two Chinas" situation was effected. When, in 1979, the United States severed diplomatic relations with us and recognized the Chinese Communist regime, the Chinese Communists moved further and demanded that the United States recognize the communist regime as the sole legitimate government of China and tried to force the United States to acknowledge that Taiwan is a part of the territory under its sovereign control. On 17 August this year, the Chinese Communists induced the United States to issue a second joint communique with them. Although their scheme has not been carried out completely, the United States again made a compromising concession on the military sales issue -- indeed on the issue of Taiwan's ultimate status. Precisely because of this, the Chinese Communists are not satisfied with the three promises on military sales but have proceeded to demand continued talks on completely ending military sales and revising or abolishing the Taiwan Relations Act.

The stand that Taiwan's future should be determined according to the common desire of the 18 million people put forward at this time by the nonparty political figures is indeed of positive and practical significance. First, it directly refutes the Chinese Communist policy goal to "unify Taiwan," because not a single person among the 18 million people now residing in Taiwan wants to be unified under the communist totalitarian slavery system. Second, it shows the whole world the unshakable position of Taiwan's 18 million people and blocks the way for the Chinese Communists to seize Taiwan through their international united front.

Of course, Taiwan's 18 million people are not so selfish and shortsighted as to seek only Taiwan's freedom and security and ignore the suffering of the whole nation under more than 30 years of communist rule and the crisis confronting the country and the nation. The traditional Chinese scientific way of doing things is to distinguish between the fundamental and the incidental, the important and the less important, the urgent and the less urgent. The present situation indicates that the survival of Taiwan as the base for national recovery is being seriously challenged. It is imperative first to safeguard the security and interests of Taiwan's 18 million people and make sure that Taiwan is not in danger of being "unified" and sold out. Only after this is done can we continue to dedicate our efforts to rebuilding a democratic China.

Because of this, we do not think that the proposal by nonparty political figures has a so-called separatist meaning. As a nonparty, independent, privately operated newspaper, we have always embraced the Great China doctrine, based on Taiwan's 18 million people. We follow the ancient teaching that "the superior man concentrates on the essentials and when the essentials are established the way is clearly seen." This is completely in keeping with the principle repeatedly mentioned by President Chiang that the people's desire and interests should be the guidance of the administration. We believe that only when the three principles of the people are completely realized in Taiwan will it be possible to accomplish the great cause of reunifying China with the three principles. As far as we see it, the six-point national affairs proposal put forward by the nonparty political figures at the meeting on 28 September is by no means at variance with this belief.

PREMIER ANSWERS QUESTIONS IN LEGISLATIVE YUAN

OW140437 Taipei CHINA POST in English 9 Oct 82 p 12

[Text] A supervisory board to coordinate the work of government offices in foreign areas has been established by the cabinet with the aim of further promoting friendly relations between the Republic of China and other nations, Premier Sun Yun-hsuan reported yesterday.

The supervisory board will regularly summon officials at various government offices in foreign areas for coordination and close contact so that the policies of the government can be carried out effectively. The premier said when answering an interpellation from Legislator Huang Ho-ching on the Legislative Yuan floor yesterday.

Air Flights to Europe

The board is also to coordinate the efforts of all government organs and the public alike in advancing the overall diplomatic activities of the nation, he cited.

The premier further reported that the government is now contacting certain European countries for opening direct air flights between Taipei and Europe. Air flights from Taipei to Luxembourg have been opened and they are expected to be expanded to two or three other European nations within next year, he said.

"Black Officials"

Replying to a question about the so-called "black officials," persons who are employed by the government without having passed the usual examinations, Premier Sun said the cabinet is working with the Examination Yuan to adjust the examinations for government functionaries and increase the number of political affairs officials in the government.

The country is now facing emergencies in the local economy and industry so the cabinet is considering broadening the channels now open to the government to recruit much needed talent to meet the demand, Sun noted.

Rights and Responsibilities

Answering a question about rights and responsibilities between the cabinet and its subordinate ministries from Legislator Huang Chih-ta, the premier said the cabinet has already made detailed measures to determine the exact scope of rights and responsibilities and that important policies and issues common to all ministries should be decided by the cabinet.

Sun also said the political, economic, and cultural progress of the country in past years is the result of the implementation of the three principles of the people.

NO GENERAL ELECTION OF NATIONAL LEGISLATORS

OW200446 Taipei TZU LI WAN PAO in Chinese 15 Oct 82 p 1

In reply to inquiries by Legislator Hsu Che-nan and others, Interior Minister Lin Yang-kang said on 15 October: The constitution is to be applied under normal conditions and in a time of peace. In view of the present separation between Taiwan and the mainland, there should be expedient interpretation of the constitution. There is no doubt that the originally elected National Assembly members and legislators and those elected additionally can jointly exercise the functions and powers.

Minister Lin said: At the time of promulgation, the constitution was to be applied to the 35 provinces and 2 special administrative districts, not taking into consideration that the communist bandits' seizure of the mainland in 1949 would last for more than 30 years. Therefore, although most of the stipulations in the constitution have been reinforced, it is necessary to adopt some expedient measures for the sake of national security.

He said: An overall election of National Assembly members and legislators at this time will not represent the Republic of China and can only have undesirable influence on the international circles and overseas Chinese, thus debasing ourselves by having a Legislative Yuan, Control Yuan and National Assembly content to exercise sovereignty over a part of the country. For this reason, it is a reasonable and expedient decision by the government to let the first-term National Assembly members and legislators elected on the mainland jointly exercise functions and powers with the members and legislators additionally elected in the Taiwan area.

During the Legislative Yuan interpellation on the morning of 15 October, Legislators Hsu Che-nan and Su Chiu-chen said that since the constitution is the basis of our legally constituted authority, it is necessary to consider a reelection of National Assembly members and legislators so that the people can more effectively supervise the government.

CHUNG YANG JIH PAO DENOUNCES PRC MISSILE TEST

OW201231 Taipei CHUNG YANG JIH PAO in Chinese 15 Oct 82 p 1

[Editorial: "Expose the Chinese Communists' Hideous Bellicose Features"]

[Text] A few days ago the Chinese Communists threatened that a missile would be launched as scheduled. Judging from the predetermined time and target area, this is obviously a threat of force and a provocation against the Republic of China.

As for the timing, the communist bandits threatened that it will be "between 7 and 26 October," Our October celebration period -- the Double Ten National Day and Taiwan Restoration Day -- falls precisely during those 20 days.

As for the target area, as announced by the communist bandits, it covers an area 100 km east of the Cheking coast and 300 km north of Taiwan.

The communist bandits have asked foreign aircraft and ships to "stay far clear of the firing zone" between 0900 and 1700 daily during this period. This is a wanton violation of the high seas and international airspace. It is most unusual for the communist bandits unilaterally to ask that the ships and aircraft of all countries "stay far clear" from busy international traffic routes for as long as 20 days.

The communist bandits have been using Lop Nur in Sinkiang Province as their missile test-firing center. However, in view of the sensitivity of the target area, it is very possible that the test firing will be carried out from a submarine along the Po Hai Bay. Furthermore, because the communist bandits had failed in test firing a missile toward open waters north of Australia in May 2 years ago, the test firing this time may possibly involve the use of a guidance system never before tested.

We must rightly point out that regardless of the outcome of this test firing by the communist bandits, their selection of the time and target area obviously amounts to extortion and blackmail. It is a return to the practice of "using war in order to force a surrender" after their slanderous lies of "peaceful united front work" were smashed.

Therefore, we solemnly declare to the people of the world that:

1. The Chinese Communist missile test firing is in fact a threat of war. World public opinion and world public sentiment will naturally not tolerate it if they use nuclear weapons to provoke war. With the exception of the United States, which had no choice but to bomb Nagasaki and Hiroshima in the final days of World War II in order to put an end to a total war, any other country would risk universal condemnation if it used such a weapon of total destruction. If the Chinese Communists dare to use some of their nuclear warheads to threaten the 18 million compatriots in Taiwan, Penghu and Matsu, we can say with certainty that they will immediately invoke upon themselves the force of nuclear weapons 10 times or even 100 times greater in magnitude! This would make our compatriots on the mainland tremble with fear. We believe that, as thickheaded as they are, they will not be that crazy -- even they do not want to dig their own graves. The compatriots on the mainland would rise up to overthrow the tyrannical regime in order to eliminate the root of their trouble permanently.

2. If what the communist bandits launch is just an ordinary rocket and if they continue to use conventional warfare to threaten us, our best answer would be to remind them of the air and sea engagements in the Taiwan Strait over the past years, the great victory in Quemoy and the artillery duel that followed. The outcome of the 23 August artillery duel was one of the main reasons for the bandit Mao's loss of power. If the communist bandits dare to start a fight again, not only will they encounter staggering blows from the national army in the battlefield, they will also be faced with new sudden changes due to the devious power struggle from within.

We appeal to the compatriots at home and abroad to see through the cunning of the communist bandits and their changeable and wolfish ambition; remain vigilant in time of peace; devote steadfast and persevering efforts to achieve success; strengthen internal unity; teach the people the ways of war so they can defend the national honor; to be ready for battle and to stand ready at all times. As long as we take firm steps to make ourselves well-prepared in advance and to be invincible, we will foil the communist bandits threat and blackmail and make them a laughing stock.

The plot now being carried out against us by the communist bandits is that of so-called "dual tactics" -- interchangeably talking war and peace. On the surface, they want to expand peace talks and united front work with us in an attempt to numb our will and to disintegrate our unity. Deep down, however, they are intensifying their military threats in a vain attempt to seize the base of national rejuvenation by force. In the light of this situation, we must sharpen our awareness of possible misery and hardship, teach the people the ways of war so they can defend the national honor, unite and strive to become stronger, take an invincible stand and map out plans for sure victory.

On the other hand, we must sternly warn the Chinese Communists: The true solution to the China question is to see who can really save China and the Chinese people. What we would like to reemphasize is that what can really solve the China question is the three principles of the people, which seek China's freedom and equality and the welfare of the Chinese people -- this and not the evil communist force that stops at nothing to slaughter and oppress the people. By attempting to intimidate and blackmail us with their test firing, the communist bandits have precisely exposed their ugly and cheap trick, which we should not fear.

TAIPEI VIEWS ROC-NETHERLANDS RELATIONS

OW180011 Taipei International Service in English 0100 GMT 16 Oct 82

[Text] Foreign affairs observers in Taipei says charges in the Dutch Government following the resignation of Prime Minister Andreas van Agt should not affect the Dutch decision to sell two submarines to the Republic of China. Mr van Agt, who has also been serving as foreign minister, is to be replaced as leader of the Dutch Christian Democratic Party by Rudolph Lubbers.

Foreign affairs observers in Taipei note that negotiations are currently underway for the creation of a new cabinet which will be formed under the Christian Democrats in coalition with either the rightist Liberal Party or the central-left Democrats-66.

The Republic of China and the Netherlands do not have formal diplomatic relations but both sides have established semiofficial commercial organizations. Substantive relations between the two countries have increased tremendously since Prime Minister van Agt decided to sell two submarines to the Republic of China in spite of Chinese Communist opposition.

Foreign affairs observers feel the formation of a new Dutch cabinet will in no way affect ROC-Dutch relations.

LI XIANNIAN TO BE PROPOSED AS PRC HEAD OF STATE

HK210929 Hong Kong PAI HSING in Chinese No 34, 16 Oct 82 p 7

["Secret Document -- Choice of State Chairman Has Initially Been Decided"]

[Text] This periodical has learned from reliable sources that, after detailed studies and discussions, the CPC leading circles have unanimously agreed to propose to the NPC, after the ratification of the new constitution, that Li Xiannian take the post of chairman of the PRC. There will be two vice chairmen but the choice of persons has not yet been decided. Deng Yingchao, Xi Zhongxun and Liao Chengzhi have been nominated to the posts but Deng Yingchao has modestly declined the offer. Liao Chengzhi will probably be one of the two vice chairmen because of the important mission he has been given of reunification with Taiwan, Hong Kong and Macao.

With respect to Li Xiannian taking the post of state chairman, we can gain an inkling of the matter from the list of the six members of the Standing Committee of the Political Bureau elected by the 12th CPC Congress. Five of the six Standing Committee members have other posts. Deng Xiaoping is chairman of the Advisory Commission and Military Commission of the CPC Central Committee; Ye Jianying is chairman of the NPC and vice chairman of the Military Commission of the CPC Central Committee; Chen Yun is first secretary of the CPC Central Commission for Discipline Inspection; Hu Yaobang is general secretary of the CPC Central Committee; and Zhao Ziyang is premier of the State Council. Only Li Xiannian has not been identified as holding any other post.

PLA SEEKS TO ELIMINATE LEFTIST INFLUENCE

HK200817 Hong Kong TA KUNG PAO in Chinese 20 Oct 82 p 2

["Political Talk" column by Shih Chun-yu [2457 0689 3768]: "The PLA Is Eliminating Pernicious Influence of 'Leftism'"]

[Text] General Logistics Department Holds Meeting To Unify Understanding

Yesterday, on its front page, RENMIN RIBAO prominently carried a detailed report of 6,000-characters on the enlarged meeting of the CPC Committee of the PLA General Logistics Department.

The one-line general headline of the report -- "Unify Our Understanding of the Party's Program" -- shows that there is a gap between the thinking and understanding of a small number of people (cadres) in the PLA and the party's program.

The introduction to this report also pointed to this problem. It said that at the meeting, "the problem of keeping political and ideological unanimity between the cadres attending this meeting and the CPC Central Committee will be further solved."

After JIEFANGJUN BAO carried an article written by its editorial board to criticize former Chief Editor Zhao Yiya, the General Logistics Department held this meeting and RENMIN RIBAO published the report. All this seems to be of special significance.

Understanding Should Be Unified Before Implementation

The 12th CPC National Congress was a success. It formulated the correct line for creating a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization, striving to quadruple annual industrial and agricultural output and making the people's material and cultural life comparatively well off within 20 years.

The correct line needs to be implemented. Otherwise, the goal cannot be realized. In this respect, the seventh and eighth CPC Congresses have provided us with both positive and negative experiences.

Both of these congresses formulated correct programs and lines. When the people's understanding was unified at the seventh congress, China was liberated within 4 years. However, lacking sufficient ideological preparation, the line of the eighth congress was not implemented. On the contrary, exactly the opposite things were done. As a result, serious "leftist" errors occurred and a tortuous path was followed.

The program issued by the 12th congress is a summary of the historical experiences gained over more than 30 years of socialist construction. It is also a summary of the new experiences gained in the 3 years since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee. Whether people can acquire a unified understanding of this program is the crucial question for the realization of the goal of construction.

Since Economic Construction Is the Central Task, It Is Not Correct To Stress Putting Politics in Command Again

Zhao Yiya's article obviously doubted the line and policies which the CPC has adopted over the past few years. The publication of his article and its concurrent publication by a Shanghai paper show that there are a number of people who hold the same view.

This was specially mentioned at the meeting held by the General Logistics Department. The meeting also pointed out that it is necessary to maintain firm political and ideological unanimity with the CPC Central Committee and continue correctly to carry out the two-line ideological struggle against both the "leftist" and rightist tendencies. At present, since the "leftist" error is the main danger, it is not correct to underestimate its influence.

The relationship between politics and economics seems to be a subject for "leftist" attacks. Some people hold that it is not appropriate to talk about economic construction without mentioning the command of politics.

At this meeting, someone gave the answer: Politics should be put in command in the struggle to seize and maintain state power. However, when the focus of work has been shifted to economic construction, it is necessary to take economic construction as the central task. Putting politics in command should not be stressed again. If anyone insists that politics should be put in command at all times and in all places, he is sure to make mistakes.

Refuting the Fallacy of Neglecting Culture

One of the main points of Zhao Yiya's article is its neglect of the important role of culture in the building of socialist spiritual civilization. This is why the author deliberately cut out what Deng Xiaoping had said about "culture." This erroneous viewpoint was criticized at the meeting.

The participants pointed out at the meeting that it is of great importance to treasure and train talented people in creating a new situation. It is necessary to select and promote those who have good political, military and professional qualities and the necessary cultural and scientific knowledge. There are not too many capable people now. Rather, we are greatly in want of such people. "However, some people are advocating that, in building spiritual civilization, cultural knowledge is not necessary. This is not only absurd in theory but harmful in practice."

The recent successful launching of the submarine-based carrier rocket is an example. Without cultural knowledge, how can modernization of national defense be realized?

Only 3 days after RENMIN RIBAO carried on its front page a report on cadres of the Chengdu PLA units eliminating "leftist" influence in study, it gave wide coverage to the report of the discussion within the PLA General Logistics Department. This shows that it attaches great importance to the matter.

FANG WEIZHONG OUTLINES STATE ECONOMIC TASKS

HK180600 Hong Kong WEN WEI PO in Chinese 18 Oct 82 p 3

["Dispatch" from Beijing Correspondent Cheng Hsiang [4453 5046]: "State Planning Commission Sets Tasks for 10 Years"]

[Text] Fang Weizhong, vice minister of the State Planning Commission, recently delivered a speech on the calculations and tentative plans of the State Planning Commission on quadrupling the output value of industry and agriculture by the end of the century. He said: During the Sixth and Seventh 5-Year Plans, it is necessary to do preparatory work in seven areas for the 1990's. To date, this is the most detailed talk on attaining a four-fold increase in the total output value of industry and agriculture by the State Planning Commission. Fang Weizhong said: The preliminary calculations and tentative plan of the State Planning Commission are:

1. By 2000, the total output of energy resources and the output of steel, cement, chemical fertilizer, cotton, paper and other important means of production should increase by 100 percent over 1980. The generation of electricity should be synchronized with the speed of industry. The main products and output of machine industry should be increased by 300 to 400 percent.

2. Due to advanced technology and low consumption, the quality of products and depth of processing have improved. We must strive to increase the value by 100 percent with the same amount of energy resources and raw material.

3. Some newly developed industries such as electronic, nuclear energy, information devices, petrochemical industry, new materials and so on will be rapidly developed. This will also give great impetus to raising the value and increasing output in industry.

Fang Weizhong continued: In order to realize this plan, in the first 10 years we must do preparatory work in the following seven areas for the final 10 years:

1. Expand the scale of the construction of energy resources. The focal point for the coal mining industry is to exploit the coalfields of Shanxi, the northeast, western Henan, Jiangsu, Shangdong, Anhui and Guizhou. In petroleum, we must strive to attain rich reserves in land exploitation and, by 1990, get a certain amount of output from sea exploitation. They key point for water and electricity is to open up the upper reaches of the Huang He, the tributaries of the upper-middle reaches of the Chang Jiang and the water resources of flooded rivers.

2. The key for communication and transportation is to strengthen the capability of transporting Shanxi coal to the outside provinces. The handling capacity of seaports and the carrying capacity of the main channel of the Chang Jiang must be increased several fold.

3. The reorganization and technical transformation of the machinery industry must take the lead and by 1990 strive to reach the level of the early 1980's of the advanced industrial countries in machine instruments and meters, the manufacture of primary equipment and the key devices and basic workpieces of the electronics industry.

4. As for agriculture, energy resources, communication, raw materials and light and textile industries, we must build reserves in a number of projects and strive to prepare well for preliminary construction work. With all conditions prepared, we will then begin construction in the final 10 years.

5. Formulate plans for the development of all trades and economic zones and for various exploitation.

6. Formulate plans for the development of science and technology for the final 10 years.

7. Speed up the training of personnel, enlarge our scientific and technological ranks and raise the level of various economic management personnel. Fang Weizhong said: If the above work is done well, we can surely achieve results in the final 10 years.

SOUTH CHINA SEA OIL TALKS HELD IN HONG KONG

HK170852 Hong Kong WEN WEI PO in Chinese 16 Oct 82 p 8

[Report by correspondents Chou Meng-yin and Hsieh Chin-yeh: "China Will Sign Contracts With Many Hong Kong Enterprises When Exploiting the South China Sea Oilfield Next Year"]

[Excerpts] The preparatory work for exploiting the South China Sea oilfield in the second phase has entered the last stage and various tasks are being extensively carried out. The South China Sea Oil Joint Service Company is also strengthening its contacts with the outside world to carry out a series of consultations on rear services cooperation for oil companies. It is expected that a number of contracts will be successively concluded by the end of November.

A delegation of the South China Sea Oil Joint Service Company, headed by General Manager Chen Lizhong, recently visited Singapore and Hong Kong. When the delegation was visiting Hong Kong, its members revealed the above-mentioned news when interviewed by reporters.

When the delegation was staying in Hong Kong, it held consultations with the China Petroleum Co Ltd, formed by the China Resources Company, Bank of China, China Merchants Steam Navigations Co Ltd and the Chinese Petroleum Ministry in the hope that the latter would play a role when the work of exploiting the South China Sea oilfield was fully carried out in order to promote coordination and cooperation work in Hong Kong. China's Off-Shore Oil Co Ltd will shoulder some of the tasks which the South China Sea Oil Joint Service Company is not able to handle.

Apart from that, this delegation was also busily engaged in talks with some Hong Kong companies, with the latter showing great interest in the future business of providing rear services for the South China Sea oilfield.

At present, although final agreements have not been reached with these companies, some letters of intent have been signed and talks were smoothly conducted. To meet the needs of the full-scale development of the South China Sea oilfield in the second phase in April next year, it is expected that by the end of November the companies concerned will sign contracts in Guangzhou with the South China Sea Oil Joint Service Company and a joint venture company might be established to provide rear services for foreign oil companies which are exploring and exploiting the South China Sea oilfield. Not long ago, the Mei Shi Li Da Company reached agreement with the South China Sea Oil Joint Service Company on providing daily life services for the French residential area in Zhanjiang.

When staying in Singapore, apart from visiting oil bases, the delegation also held business talks with local companies and signed memorandum with the Hua Chang International on the establishment of a joint venture shipping company which will provide shipping and other relevant services. The delegation also signed letters of intent with the Hsin I and Sussbat companies on cooperation in supplying China with aviation, shipping and daily life services.

Chen Lizhong added: Hong Kong lacks experience in the international exploration of offshore oilfields. However, because it is located in the front part of the South China Sea and its commercial activities are brisk, it can still provide relevant services, including imports of basic necessities, transit of goods, consultations, arrange talks, raise funds and so forth.

The delegation of the company which visited Hong Kong and Singapore this time was led by Chen Lizhong. Other members included deputy head Li Fei, adviser Li Weiying and others.

FBIS DAILY REPORT CONTENTS

China

Vol I No 205

22 October 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

L'HUMANITE: Hu Yaobang on PRC-USSR Ties [18 Oct] A 1
Marchais Visit, PRC-USSR Relations Examined A 2
UN Delegate Urges Change in World Economics A 3
Bo Yibo Says PRC Will Trade With All Countries A 4
Taiwan, Hong Kong Scholars Invited to Symposium A 4

UNITED STATES

New Shipping Route to Eastern U.S. Opened B 1
Briefs: Heilongjiang Delegation to U.S.; B 1
U.S. Firm Establishes Office

SOVIET UNION

KYODO: PRC-USSR Talks End Without Agreement C 1
AFP Report C 1
Brezhnev Meets Warsaw Pact Foreign Ministers C 2
Geologist Attends USSR Mineral Deposits Meeting C 2

NORTHEAST ASIA

Japanese Petition For Return of N. Territories D 1
Liao Chengzhi Meets Japanese Cultural Group D 1
Gu Mu Meets Japanese Chang Jiang Study Group D 1
Briefs: DPRK Delegation in Liaoning; D 2
Japanese Delegation in Gansu

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

Hong Kong Forum Commemorates 1911 Revolution E 1
Peng Chong Meets Thai Delegation 20 Oct E 1

SOUTH ASIA

Deng Xiaoping Discusses Relations With India F 1
Pakistani President Haq Pays Visit to Guilin F 1
Bangladesh Envoy Presents Credentials to Ulanhu F 1
AAF Cites Russian Captive on Chemical Warfare F 2

WESTERN EUROPE

Marchais Delivers Speech at Fudan University G 1
PRC, France Sign Pact Covering Wheat Purchase G 3
[CHINA DAILY 22 Oct]

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

Foreign Ministry Statement on Talks With Angola I 1
Ni Zhifu Meets Libyan Trade Union Delegation I 1
Ni Zhifu Meets Mali Workers' Union Group I 1

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Hu Yaobang Speech at 12th CPC Central Committee K 1
Hu Yaobang Addresses Shaanxi Cadre Meeting K 4
Leaders Attend Xie Beiyi Memorial Service K 6
Editorial on Policy Toward Intellectuals K 7
[RENMIN RIBAO 21 Oct]
Cultural Workers To Study Marxist Theory K 9
[RENMIN RIBAO 20 Oct]
RENMIN RIBAO Urges Maintaining Political Unity K 11
[20 Oct]
Formalities Simplified for Foreign Tourists K 13
National Conference on Foreign Trade Held K 14
PRC Delegate Addresses China-Europe Symposium K 15
Official Cited on Transportation Shortcomings K 16
[CHINA DAILY 22 Oct]
Plans To Boost Production of Computers Revealed K 16
[CHINA DAILY 22 Oct]
Cadres, Experts Pledge To Develop Hydropower K 18

TAIWAN

Government Asked To Contact Korea on Defector V 1
Interior Minister Rejects Multiparty System V 1
[CHUNG YANG JIH PAO 16 Oct]
Nonparty Figure Calls for Promoting Democracy V 2
[TZU LI WAN PAO 15 Oct]
CHINA POST: 3 Parties 'Enough at Present' [17 Oct] V 2
Overseas Chinese Day Marked in Taipei 21 Oct V 3
CNA Reports on Jet Fighter Crashes in PRC V 4
Trade, Tourism, Commerce Talks With Japan V 4

HONG KONG MEDIA ON CHINA

Hong Kong Fisherman Killed by PRC Forces W 1
[SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST 22 Oct]
MING PAO on Purge of 'Ultraleftist' Huang Guang W 2
[22 Oct]
TA KUNG PAO: Prices To Be Allowed To Fluctuate W 3
[21 Oct]
TA KUNG PAO on Foreign Exchange, Gold Reserves W 3
[21 Oct]
Official Writes on PRC Electronics Industry W 4
[SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST 7 Oct]
TA KUNG PAO Reports Petroleum Firm's Charter W 6
[7 Oct]

L'HUMANITE: HU YAOBANG ON PRC-USSR TIES

PM210921 Paris L'HUMANITE in French 18 Oct 82 p 10

[Jean-Emile Vidal dispatch: "Developing Franco-Chinese Cooperation"]

[Text] Beijing -- CPC General Secretary Hu Yaobang gave a press conference reserved for French journalists Sunday morning [17 October]. "We are very happy to see relations restored between the CPC and the PCF," he said. "We are convinced that, in keeping with the principles strictly agreed by both sides, namely independence, complete equality, mutual noninterference in internal affairs, relations of cooperation and friendship between our two parties will develop in good conditions."

A journalist asked whether that meant that a party which had good relations with the CPSU could also have good relations with the CPC, Hu Yaobang replied: "We have a principle: Never to interfere in any other party's internal affairs. Any party can thus maintain good relations with us provided it pursues a policy of friendship with China."

Questioned on the left's accession to power in France and on the Communists' participation in government, Hu Yaobang said that was the result of the French people's choice and that he had no opinion to express on the subject.

As for relations between France and China, Hu Yaobang stated: "We fervently hope that relations between our two countries will be developed in good conditions. Indeed, on the political, economic, scientific and cultural levels there are broad prospects for cooperation between China and France. France was one of the first countries to recognize China, we are on the whole happy with the evolution and development of relations between our two countries, and we hope that they will be further improved."

With regard to the preliminary negotiations now taking place between China and Soviet Union, the CPC general secretary said that consultations are now being pursued in Beijing between the two countries' deputy foreign ministers.

"Both sides have agreed that the tenor of those consulatations will not be revealed. Therefore I apologize, but I cannot give you any information. The talks will be held in Beijing and Moscow alternately, by joint agreement."

"I would like to add," Hu Yaobang continued, "that we sincerely hope it will be possible to remove all the obstacles preventing the normalization of interstate relations with the USSR and that relations between the two countries will adopt the course of sound development. That is our wish."

With regard to Poland, Hu Yaobang recalled that the CPC has stated several times that it hopes that "the Polish people will be able to solve their internal problems by means of internal consultations and opposing any foreign intervention."

The CPC general secretary then made a brief statement to the journalists on the situation in China. The situation has been stable for the past 6 years, he said in substance. "I can assure the journalists that the situation will be increasingly stable as the years go by. Look, I am prepared to sign a 10-year contract with you, at least to begin with, in the spirit of the contracts which our peasants are now signing in the rural districts. I can tell you that that contract on our country's stability is stronger and safer than the speculations which some journalists are spreading in foreign countries."

Hu Yaobang then rejoined the PCF delegation which had just arrived for the final session of talks.

MARCHAIS VISIT, PRC-USSR RELATIONS EXAMINED

OW211435 Beijing in Russian to the USSR 1800 GMT 20 Oct 82

[Commentary by station correspondent (Xian Po): "A New Page in the History of Relations Between the CPC and the French Communist Party"]

[Text] A delegation of the Central Committee of the French Communist Party [PCF] headed by General Secretary Georges Marchais, is now visiting China at the invitation of the CPC Central Committee. The leaders of the two parties held three rounds of talks in a sincere, frank, friendly and comradely atmosphere. On 17 October the talks were successfully concluded. Both sides unanimously agreed on the official restoration of relations between the CPC and the PCF. The PCF delegation has now left Beijing to visit other Chinese regions.

Georges Marchais, general secretary of the PCF, told Zhao Ziyang, premier of the State Council of the PRC, in connection with his visit: We have already turned the old pages concerning the relations between the two parties, now we have to turn a new page.

In the past the CPC and the PCF (gave?) each other support and assistance. However, from the middle of the 1960's the relations between the two parties deteriorated. At the beginning of this year the two parties again established friendly contacts and intercourse. Chinese Ambassador to France Yao Guang was invited to attend the 24th congress of the PCF. Soon after that Grimet, member of the PCF Central Committee Politburo, visited China as head of a PCF delegation and made preparations for the official establishment of relations between the two parties. Now, with the arrival of the PCF delegation headed personally by General Secretary Georges Marchais, relations between the two parties, interrupted since 1965, have been officially restored, thus successfully advancing the relations of friendship and cooperation between the two parties. This is naturally a significant event in the history of relations between the CPC and the PCF and is attracting great attention from the world public.

Hu Yaobang, general secretary of the CPC Central Committee, in his speech at the 12th CPC National Congress noted: Our party is firmly for the development of relations with all communist and other friendly parties of the working class on the basis of Marxism and in accordance with the principles of independence, complete equality, mutual respect and noninterference in each other's internal affairs. Precisely by following these principles, the CPC has established and developed relations with some of the communist p rties in Western Europe.

During the visit of General Secretary Georges Marchais to China the leaders of the two parties elucidated in their talks their basic theoretical stance on socialist revolution and socialist construction as well as on the line, course and political aims currently pursued in both countries and in the international arena. In addition, the two sides expressed their positions on the general international situation and on some important problems and fully exchanged views on these issues without concealing their intentions or imposing their views on each other.

Although the Chinese and French parties maintain different positions and differ in opinion on some issues, the two sides unanimously agreed that these contradictions will not interfere with the comradely and friendly cooperation between the two parties. As a result of the talks between the two parties, the two sides unanimously agreed to begin developing a concrete plan for cooperation.

General Secretary Hu Yaobang, on behalf of the CPC Central Committee, accepted the invitation from General Secretary Georges Marchais to visit France.

General Secretary Georges Marchais' visit to China will play an important role in the development of friendly relations between the parties of both countries.

In addition, the visit indicates that the CPC is ready to restore and develop relations with other communist and workers parties on the basis of the principles of independence, complete equality, mutual respect and mutual noninterference in each other's internal affairs. This was confirmed when Hu Yaobang replied to a French correspondent's question if the normalization of relations between the Chinese and French Communist Parties meant that those parties which maintain good relations with the CPSU can establish relations with the CPC. Comrade Hu Yaobang said: We adhere to the principles of noninterference in the internal affairs of other parties; we wish to establish relations with any party whether they are workers parties, communist parties or nationalist parties if they wish to be friends with us.

During the talks the CPC leader elucidated China's foreign policy aimed at fighting hegemonism and defending peace throughout the world, explained to the French guests the CPC position on relations with the United States and the Soviet Union and on the Kampuchean and Afghan issues, and provided information on these questions. Georges Marchais elucidated his views on some international issues.

The PCF delegation is concluding its visit precisely at a time when consultations between the deputy foreign ministers of China and the USSR are taking place in Beijing. The people express great interest in what progress is made in Sino-Soviet relations. Hu Yaobang, in reply to a question of a French correspondent, said: The Chinese side sincerely wishes that the obstacles to normalizing Sino-Soviet relations will be removed so that relations between the two countries can proceed along the road of healthy development.

Georges Marchais, general secretary of the PCF, by visiting China has turned a new page in the history of relations between the CPC and the PCF. We are convinced that friendly cooperation between the two parties will be developing successfully.

UN DELEGATE URGES CHANGE IN WORLD ECONOMICS

OW220240 Beijing XINHUA in English 0225 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] United Nations, October 21 (XINHUA) -- Chinese Deputy Permanent Representative to the United Nations Mi Quojun today urged the need to restructure the international economic system.

"Only a change of the existing international economic order and the strengthening of international economic cooperation and of the South-South cooperation will facilitate the economic construction of the developing countries and conduce to the improvement of North-South relations and reactivation of the world economy," he told the Second Committee of the current U.N. General Assembly session.

The Chinese representative expressed grave concern about the seriousness of the present world economic situation. The existing inequitable international economic system must be restructured with the timely launching of global negotiations aimed at the establishment of a new international economic order and with the participation of all countries, he said. He hoped that the current session will overcome the obstacles to an early launching of global negotiations.

Mi Guojun urged the need for the developed countries to deal with the developing countries on a just and equitable basis, and for the developing countries to strengthen their economic cooperation and political solidarity, so as to enhance their individual and collective self-reliance and gradually increase their share in the world economy.

The Chinese representative criticised those who refuse to undertake obligations in U.N. multilateral cooperation endeavors.

"Economic assistance and cooperation on the basis of equality and mutual benefit and respect for state sovereignty should be encouraged and welcomed; the so-called 'assistance' which runs counter to the aforementioned basis of principle should be rejected and opposed," he said.

BO YIBO SAYS PRC WILL TRADE WITH ALL COUNTRIES

OW201752 Beijing XINHUA in English 1507 GMT 20 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 20 (XINHUA) -- China's business with foreign countries was not so balanced in the past few years and perhaps a little less than what it should have been with the European countries, said State Councillor Bo Yibo here today.

Bo made the comment at a meeting with the visiting European Management Forum (EMF) delegation here to attend the second China-Europe business leaders symposium.

Now, he said, China will do business with Western Europe, Eastern Europe, Japan, the United States and other countries. "In short, we'll do business with every country on the basis of equality and mutual benefit," he added.

China has worked out a primary long-term plan for its economic development, Bo said, adding that the plan is large and yet practical. "To carry out the plan, we must rely on our existing enterprises, and this is the base. But it won't work without cooperation with foreign countries," he said.

The Chinese state councillor stressed: "China's policy of opening to the world will not change and we will make earnest efforts to achieve something in this regard."

Professor Klaus Schwab, president of EMF and leader of the EMF delegation to the current symposium, said that after hearing the details about China's economic development in the next two decades, "the situation in China is promising."

The EMF delegation is composed of more than 50 business leaders from 12 European countries, two Middle East countries as well as the United States and the Hong Kong region.

The symposium, which opened here yesterday, is jointly sponsored by the China Enterprise Management Association and the European Management Forum. Present at the meeting were Yuan Baohua, president of the China Enterprise Management Association and vice-minister of the State Economic Commission; Ma Yi, vice-minister of the State Economic Commission; Rong Yiren, general manager of the China International Trust and Investment Corporation; Chen Zhongjing, director of the Modern International Relations Research Institute; and Wang Guangying, vice-chairman of the All-China Federation of Industry.

TAIWAN, HONG KONG SCHOLARS INVITED TO SYMPOSIUM

OW170334 Beijing Domestic Service in Mandarin 0900 GMT 16 Oct 82

[Text] The preparatory group of the 1982 national symposium on the discussion of the "Dream of the Red Chamber" recently invited scholars from Taiwan Province, Hong Kong and Macao to the symposium. Among those invited were: (Pan Zhonggui), (Gao Yang), (Feng Qi) and (Chen Mingliang).

The symposium is sponsored by the China Society on the study of the "Dream of the Red Chamber" and other units. Preparations for the symposium are almost complete and it will be held soon in Shanghai. Over 100 old, middle-aged and young scholars throughout the country will attend the symposium.

NEW SHIPPING ROUTE TO EASTERN U.S. OPENED

OW201919 Beijing XINHUA in English 1620 GMT 20 Oct 82

[Text] Tianjin, October 20 (XINHUA) -- A new container shipping route from Tianjin's new harbor, one of the largest in north China, to the east coast of the United States will be opened this month. The announcement was made today by the China Ocean Shipping Company at a ceremony for the maiden voyage of a new container ship to the U.S. east coast.

On the new shipping route, the container ship will operate once a month, berthing in China's Tianjin and Shanghai harbors and the United States' Long Beach, New York, Charleston and Houston harbors.

Last year, the China Ocean Shipping Company opened a shipping route from Chinese harbors to the United States' west coast. However, 60 percent of China's exports are destined for the east coast of the United States. Transportation of the goods overland from the west coast to eastern areas of the United States delayed the delivery and incurred extra freight.

An official of the China Ocean Shipping Company said the opening of the shipping route will promote Sino-U.S. trade.

BRIEFS

HEILONGJIANG DELEGATION TO U.S. -- At the invitation of Lee S. Dreyfus, governor of Wisconsin in the United States, the 6-member delegation of the Heilongjiang Provincial People's Government headed by Chen Lei, governor of Heilongjiang Province, left Harbin 3 October for the United States via Beijing. Governor Dreyfus had visited the province in December, 1981. During its visit to the United States, the delegation will sign a protocol on friendly relations between Wisconsin and the province and will hold discussions on developing economic cooperation, trade, scientific technology and cultural and educational exchanges. Seeing the delegation off at the airport were Chen Jianfei, deputy provincial governor, Hou Jie and other responsible comrades of departments concerned. [Harbin Heilongjiang Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 3 Oct 82 SK]

U.S. FIRM ESTABLISHES OFFICE -- A representative office of the United States company Ernst and Whinney has been set up in Beijing with the authorization of the Chinese Ministry of Finance, Leroy Herbert, the firm's executive partner, announced yesterday. The representatives office will provide accounting and auditing, tax, and consultative services to foreign concerns doing business in China. Three other similar companies are now operating in China. It will also help train Chinese accountants and auditors and provide consultative services on China's economic legislation. Ernst and Whinney is one of the top eight accounting firms in the U.S. [Text] [Beijing CHINA DAILY in English 22 Oct 82 p 2 HK]

KYODO: PRC-USSR TALKS END WITHOUT AGREEMENT

OW220618 Tokyo KYODO in English 0558 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, Oct 22 KYODO -- The Soviet Union and China wound up their first high-level talks in three years apparently without reaching any substantial agreement except to meet again, Chinese and East European sources said Friday.

Chinese Foreign Ministry sources said the talks between Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Leonid Ilichev and his Chinese counterpart Qian Qichen have ended.

The sources would not say when the secrecy-shrouded talks, which began October 5, were adjourned. But it was suggested they were suspended within the past two days.

The sources said both sides agreed to continue their discussion in Moscow at an unspecified date. Ilichev is reportedly still in Beijing, and East European sources said he would return home next week in order to attend a Pan-European security conference.

The East European sources said the Chinese and Soviet negotiators discussed the problems of normalizing relations with the Chinese outlining what they called "obstacles" to better ties between the two countries.

The Chinese negotiators cited the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, Soviet support of the Vietnamese occupation of Kampuchea and the huge Soviet military buildup near the Chinese border with the Soviet Union and Mongolia as three major blocks to improved ties, the sources said.

The Soviet team said Moscow and Beijing should open formal talks on border issue, the sources said. The Soviet and Chinese negotiators also discussed exchanges of academics and students but no specific agreement was made, the sources said.

AFP Report

OW220805 Hong Kong AFP in English 0744 GMT 22 Oct 82

[By Charles-Antoine de Nerciat]

[Excerpts] Beijing, Oct. 22 (AFP) -- China and the Soviet Union have concluded here the first round of their negotiations on relations between the two socialist giants which have been at odds for 20 years, reliable sources said today. The sources here said that Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Leonid Ilichev was to leave the capital within the next few days after winding up his talks with his Chinese counterpart Qian Qichen.

The next round of discussions is to be held in Moscow, but no dates have been given yet. The negotiations, officially called "consultations" to denote their exploratory nature, began on October 5 to end a nearly three-year break in the Sino-Soviet dialogue.

The conversations marked a resumption of the dialogue broken off by China in January 1980 following the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. Diplomatic sources said the discussions which just ended in the Chinese capital consisted of two phases.

The first phase was devoted to general exposition of the respective stands of two countries, and the second examined particular problems concerning their relations, the diplomats said.

Mr. Ilichev is to stay a few more days in China and may still have informal talks with Chinese officials, informed sources said. The date of his departure was not known.

The Soviet diplomat, who had lead his country's delegations to previous Sino-Soviet negotiations, arrived in Beijing by private plane 48 hours before the opening of discussions.

BREZHNEV MEETS WARSAW PACT FOREIGN MINISTERS

OW220721 Beijing XINHUA in English 0707 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Moscow, October 21 (XINHUA) -- Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev today met with the foreign ministers of the Warsaw Pact and condemned Washington for slowing the pace of the nuclear arms reduction talks in Geneva.

The regular annual meeting of the seven-nation Warsaw Pact opened here today to discuss problems of European and international security, including the Madrid follow-up conference on European security and cooperation, TASS reported.

Brezhnev repeated at the meeting the Soviet proposal for convening a conference on confidence-building measures and disarmament in Europe. "Despite pressure from the United States, the European countries on the whole retain their interest in detente," he said.

He confessed "difficulties" in the process of the Geneva strategic arms reduction talks and negotiations on a limitation of nuclear weapons in Europe. But he blamed the U.S. for refusing to negotiate on the basis of the principle of equality and equal security. The last Warsaw Pact ministerial meeting was held in Romania last December.

GEOLOGIST ATTENDS USSR MINERAL DEPOSITS MEETING

OW032116 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1131 GMT 28 Sep 82

[Excerpts] Moscow, 27 Sep (XINHUA) -- Professor Chen Guoda, member of the Scientific Council of the Chinese Academy of Sciences and director of its geotectonics institute in Changsha recently attended the sixth meeting of the International Association on Formation of Mineral Deposits held in Tbilisi, the USSR. The article he read at the meeting regarding the causes of composite mineral deposits as seen from the law of stratigraphic development greatly interested his counterparts at the meeting. Professor Chen Guoda is vice chairman of the Geotectonics Committee of the association.

The sixth meeting of the association opened on 6 September and closed on 12 September. After the meeting Professor Chen Guoda visited and gave lectures in Moscow and Leningrad at the invitation of the USSR Academy of Sciences.

JAPANESE PETITION FOR RETURN OF N. TERRITORIES

OW110820 Beijing XINHUA in English 0809 GMT 11 Oct 82

[Text] Tokyo, October 11 (XINHUA) -- The total number of signatories to the petition for the return of Japanese northern territories has been increasing steadily and will reach 30 million by the end of this year.

This was indicated by a survey released by the head office of the government's Northern Territories Problem Counter-Measure Association.

The survey showed that the signature campaign, which began in 1965, had enlisted more than a million people in 1973 and 4.69 million in 1981.

The expectation of an aggregate 30 million signatories, more than one fourth of Japan's population, this year is based on the drastic increases registered in the past three years which, the head office said, "served to prove that the concern of the Japanese people about the northern territories has reached to a new height."

Aiming at the return of the northern territories, the signature-collecting campaign is jointly sponsored by trade unions, women's organizations and other mass organizations.

The head office of the Northern Territories Problem Counter-Measure Association plans to capitalize on the high tide of the people's concern to carry the movement for territorial integrity to a new stage.

LIAO CHENGZHI MEETS JAPANESE CULTURAL GROUP

OW211253 Beijing XINHUA in English 1242 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 21 (XINHUA) -- Liao Chengzhi, member of the Political Bureau of the Chinese Communist Party Central Committee and president of the China-Japan Friendship Association, today met and had a friendly conversation with the visiting Japan-China Cultural Exchange Association led by Director-General Torao Miyagawa.

Present on the occasion were Xia Yan, member of the Central Advisory Commission of the Communist Party of China and vice-chairman of the China Federation of Literary and Art Circles, and Yang Hansheng, vice-chairman of the federation.

GU MU MEETS JAPANESE CHANG JIANG STUDY GROUP

OW211821 Beijing XINHUA in English 1630 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 21 (XINHUA) -- State Councillor Gu Mu met here this afternoon with a Japanese group that conducted a comprehensive study of China's Changjiang River.

Leader of the group is Atsushi Shimokobe, chairman of special Japan-China Economic Commission of the Japan-China Association on Economy and Trade. He is a specialist in natural resources. During their stay in China, the Japanese guests conducted investigations along the middle reaches of the Changjiang River.

Councillor Gu praised the Japanese guests for their investigations. He said China has already placed a priority on the comprehensive exploration of the river. China abounds in water resources and is stepping up scientific, technological and economic investigation and study to make full use of the resources, he said.

On the delegation's work, Shimokobe said fundamental changes have taken place along the banks of the river. "The Gezhouba Dam is a wonderful project, not only for harnessing the river and generating electricity, but also for expanding water transportation.

To make full use of water resources, further study should be made on the prospects for the social and economic changes and development along the river, including the growth rate of the population, the utilization of the land, the planning for industrial and agricultural production and their impact on the environment.

To harness the river in an effective way, institutions for a comprehensive study of the river should be set up so as to coordinate the efforts of the flood-diversion areas and of the central and local governments, he said.

Present at the meeting was Li Ximing, minister of urban and rural construction and environmental protection.

BRIEFS

DPRK DELEGATION IN LIAONING -- Having satisfactorily concluded its friendly visit to Liaoning Province, the DPRK North Pyongang Provincial KWP Committee delegation headed by Choe Man-kuk, secretary of the North Pyongang Provincial KWP Committee, left Dandong for home on the afternoon of 19 October. On the evening of 17 October, Zhang Xincun, secretary of the Liaoning Provincial CPC Committee, gave a banquet in the name of the provincial CPC committee to bid warm farewell to the delegation. Seeing them off at the station when they left Sheynang on the morning of 18 October were Zhang Xincun, secretary, and Luo Dingfeng, standing committee member of the provincial CPC committee; and Li Tieying, alternate member of the CPC Central Committee and secretary of the Shenyang Municipal CPC Committee. While in China, the delegation visited Shenyang, Dalian, Anshan, Liaoyang and Dandong Municipalities. The delegation also visited Beijing at the invitation of the International Liaison Department of the CPC Central Committee. [Shenyang Liaoning Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 19 Oct 82 SK]

JAPANESE DELEGATION IN GANSU -- The Dunhuang art research group of the Tokyo Arts University, Japan, headed by a noted painter arrived in Lanzhou having finished its visits to Dunhuang, Jiayuguan and Jiuquan. Ge Shiying. deputy governor of Gansu Province and director of Gansu branch of the Chinese People's Association for Friendship With Foreign Countries, received and feted the group in Lanzhou on 30 September. [Lanzhou Gansu Provincial Service in Mandarin 1125 GMT 3 Oct 82 SK]

HONG KONG FORUM COMMEMORATES 1911 REVOLUTION

OW140423 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1231 GMT 9 Oct 82

[Text] Hong Kong, 9 Oct (XINHUA) -- Over 80 well-known personages of various circles in Hong Kong held a forum on the afternoon of 8 October to commemorate the 71st anniversary of the 1911 revolution. Speakers at the forum pointed out that the best way to commemorate the 1911 revolution today is to learn from Dr Sun Yat-sen's patriotic spirit, to concern oneself with the motherland's four modernizations and to work hard to promote the reunification of the motherland. They all hoped that the Taiwan authorities would put national interests above everything else and effect cooperation between the Kuomintang and the Communist Party for the third time in order to accomplish the great cause of reunifying the motherland at an early date.

The forum was sponsored by Director Fei Yimin of TA KUNG PAO, Director Li Xisong of WEN WEI PO and Chairman Wang Kuancheng and Vice Chairman Tang Bingda of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce in Hong Kong, and presided over by Fei Yimin.

Participants included personages in industry, commerce, education, the press, trade unions, finance, real estate, literature and art, publication, shipping, sports as well as in religious, women's and other circles. Several personages, who had participated in the 1911 revolution, and their dependents also attended the forum.

Speakers at the forum included Mou Runsun, former professor of the Chinese University of Hong Kong history department; Huang Zufen of educational circles; Sun Chengzeng, vice chairman of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce; Ma Tingdong, deputy director of TA KUNG PAO; and Luo Kanglie, professor of the Chinese University of Hong Kong Chinese Literature Department.

In his speech, Luo Kanglie suggested that, in commemorating the 72d anniversary of the 1911 revolution next year, relevant scholars on both sides of the Taiwan Strait and in Hong Kong be invited to a meeting in Hong Kong in order to work together to promote the great cause of reunifying the motherland. His suggestion was endorsed by participants with applause.

At the forum, several speakers dealt with the history of the corrupt Qing government, which had been forced to sign a series of unequal treaties with foreign countries before the 1911 revolution. They voiced unanimous support for the solemn stand taken by the government of our country in not recognizing all such unequal treaties.

PENG CHONG MEETS THAI DELEGATION 20 OCT

OW201252 Beijing XINHUA in English 1249 GMT 20 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 20 (XINHUA) -- Peng Chong, vice-chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress, met here this afternoon with a Thai free people's friendship delegation led by Boonwongse Amatyakul.

Peng Chong briefed the guests on China's foreign policy. He also expressed the hope that the people of the two countries would increase contacts and make common efforts to safeguard world peace.

DENG XIAOPING DISCUSSES RELATIONS WITH INDIA

OW220918 Beijing XINHUA in English 0907 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 22 (XINHUA) -- Deng Xiaoping said today that there is no mutual threat between China and India.

Deng Xiaoping, chairman of the Central Advisory Commission of the Communist Party of China, told a visiting delegation from the Indian Council of Social Science Research that the only issue between them is the boundary question. "It is not difficult to settle so long as both sides take reasonable measures," he added.

Deng Xiaoping said both China and India are not insignificant countries in the world. "What I mean is that the two countries have a combined total of 1,700 million people, over one third of the world population. They are close neighbors. In the 1950's, we cooperated very well. We should be on friendly terms, increase exchanges and promote friendship and mutual understanding."

The delegation is led by Gopalaswami Parthasarathi, chairman of the council. He served as the Indian ambassador to China during 1958-1961.

Parthasarathi told Deng Xiaoping that he has found great changes taking place in China since he left China 21 years ago. He wished the Chinese people still greater successes in the future. Parthasarathi said further development of Indian-Chinese friendship is very important. "It is not only in the interests of the two peoples but is in the interest of peace and stability in Asia and the world over," he noted. He expressed the hope that the relations between the two countries would be as good as in the 1950's.

During the meeting, Deng Xiaoping briefed the guests on China's political and economic situation. Ma Hong, president of the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences, was present.

PAKISTANI PRESIDENT HAQ PAYS VISIT TO GUILIN

OW211818 Beijing XINHUA in English 1638 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Text] Guilin, October 21 (XINHUA) -- Pakistani President Mohammad Ziaul Haq and Begum Ziaul Haq arrived in Guilin by special plane from Xian this morning.

They were welcomed at the airport by Zhou Guangchun, vice-chairman of the People's Government of the Guangxi Zhuang Autonomous Region, and Liang Shan, mayor of Guilin City.

This afternoon, the president and his party paid a visit to Gaotian People's Commune in Yangshuo County. They were welcomed by the local peasants beating drums and gongs and performing the "lion dance". President and Begum Ziaul Haq visited peasant families and had cordial conversations with them.

The people's governments of the autonomous region and Guilin City threw a banquet for the guests in the evening. The guests also took a cruise on the beautiful Lijiang River today.

BANGLADESH ENVOY PRESENTS CREDENTIALS TO ULANHU

OW190749 Beijing XINHUA in English 0721 GMT 19 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 19 (XINHUA) -- C.M. Murshed, new Bangladesh ambassador to China, this morning presented his credentials to Ulanhu, vice-chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress. Chinese Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs Wen Yezhan was present on the occasion.

AAP CITES RUSSIAN CAPTIVE ON CHEMICAL WARFARE

OW181910 Beijing XINHUA in English 1838 GMT 18 Oct 82

[Text] Islamabad, October 18 (XINHUA) -- A captured Russian soldier named Nikolayevich Moshikov has disclosed that nine types of deadly chemical weapons are being used by Russian troops in Afghanistan.

The AGENCY AFGHAN PRESS special correspondent Mr Sur Gul Speen, reported from Afghanistan that he had an interview with the Russian soldier on October 13. Moshikov belonged to the VDV-345 air artillery parachute battalion stationed in Bamiyan Province, central Afghanistan. These chemical weapons, he said, have different effects on human beings, animals and nature. Some of them have very disastrous effect over the body and mind and can easily kill a man. Others can be used in the water for killing the living creatures. When the Russian infantry forces are unable to move forward, they would resort to the use of the chemical gases over the mojahedin's hideouts, populous areas and also in the water, foodstuff, orchards and crops, he said.

Moshikov was captured by the Afghan freedom fighters five months ago. He said he will not return to his country unless Moscow abandons its inhuman policies.

MARCHAIS DELIVERS SPEECH AT FUDAN UNIVERSITY

OW211638 Beijing XINHUA in English 1606 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Text] Shanghai, October 21 (XINHUA) -- General Secretary Georges Marchais of the French Communist Party [PCF] told teachers and students at Fudan University here today that his delegation's visit to China will improve relations between the two nations.

"The current China visit of the French Communist Party will promote cooperation and strengthen exchanges in various fields between the two peoples and two countries so as to deepen mutual understanding and enhance traditional friendship between the French and Chinese people," he said.

"The fact that I am able to speak before you teachers and students who speak French, know the French history and are familiar with the French culture, thousands of miles away from Paris, is an indication of the success scored by China on its way forward. It is also a symbol of the long-standing tradition of friendship between the two peoples, which is still developing today," he said.

Marchais said: "The talks we have held and will continue with Chinese Communist leaders and the contacts, including the contacts with you today, enable us to know directly the realities of your country. This is, doubtless, very important to us, French Communists."

He said the French Communists welcomed with enthusiasm and admiration the victory of the Chinese revolution in 1949. Since then they have followed with interest the efforts made by the Chinese people to shake off poverty and build for the future.

Marchais said: "The news that the French Communist Party Central Committee delegation would visit China aroused hope and satisfaction among the French Communists and the French people. For this will enable us better to understand your achievements made in building socialism, and the problems encountered

"We have also paid great attention to your methods for solving the problems. All this naturally will enrich our thinking."

Marchais gave an account of the French Communist Party's way of thinking and struggle. He said: "Our action aims at the building of unique socialism fully correspondent to the French history and realities, that is, socialism of the French type. As we said at our 24th congress, 'socialism will develop in a French fashion, and France will develop in socialism.'"

He said: "We love France today and France tomorrow, combining closely our strategy with the reality of our country. This is not because we are stubbornly seeking something novel or narrow chauvinism.

"This is first of all because we are members of the French Communist Party. We belong to the French people and live with them, sharing common tests and common hopes.

"This is also related to our struggle in history. In fact, great revolutionary advances in our country are all integrated with the defence of France, its independence and its freedom."

Marchais said: "Today we are still working hard to continue this struggle and ask our people to build a new society in France according to present-day conditions, that is socialism of the French type."

Speaking of the problems confronting France, Marchais said: "Within 20 or 30 years important changes will take place in France in production, productivity, consumption, education, living, labor conditions and other areas. All this will turn France into a big modern power. But these changes will occur within the framework of capitalism. The law of profit will restrict and distort these changes and even bring about adverse results.

"Today," he said, "it has become more and more clear that the capitalist system is unable to solve the most acute problems appearing in the social development nor satisfy the new demands. The French society is undergoing a profound structural crisis."

Marchais said: "It cannot be denied that the living standard in France is high but there exists extremely large unequality. A tiny minority of the privileged possesses an overwhelming portion of wealth. The maximum gap in income is more than 1:100. Among the 17.5 million wage earners, there are 2 million men, women and youths unemployed. Many poor families are in difficulty and they have to live frugally and make personal sacrifices.

"So," he said, "to solve the problems our country has encountered, it is primary to establish a society of justice and let all men and women have jobs and decent wages and enjoy the benefits and comfortable life created by the present-day process."

Marchais said that France has great economic potential. "But the capitalists today are ruining our economy sector by sector, closing down enterprises and discharging workers. They are using scientific and technological achievements not to lessen the stupendous labor of the men and women workers, but to exploit them to excess. The capitalists pay no heed to the training of the workers. Instead, they employ workers without special skill to do monotonous and sickening work. Therefore, it is necessary to set up a society in which economy serves the people and not the opposite."

He said that France grew out of the centuries-old struggle for freedom and democracy. "But the capitalists today put together all the policy-making organs and place them out of the reach of the citizens. They attempt to keep the absolute right in the enterprises, reducing the laborers to mere pawns to be disposed of at their will. Therefore, it is essential to set up a society in which all achievements of freedom in France are guaranteed, deepened and ensured of new progress.

"France has a rich and varied culture, and is well known to the world. But the rule of the bourgeoisie has turned the schools into means of practicing social segregation. Children of the poor families cannot obtain adequate education. Therefore, there must be perfect education for everyone, making culture really a wealth for everybody," said Marchais.

He said that these points are the highlights of the French Communist Party in its call on the French people to build a French-type socialism. He said that the French party doesn't base itself on a ready socialist "model" formulated elsewhere with a view to trying to make it "conform" to the French conditions. "We are doing just the opposite."

Marchais said that toward this new society, our party will respect at all times the will expressed by the majority of the people in general elections according to their definite goal and choice, a road of integrating the people's movement and struggle.

On the building of socialism in various countries, Marchais said that what he has seen in China shows that socialism is varied in form and full of vitality.

"All countries that are building socialism encounter some new problems and should meet unheardof challenges, soberly evaluate their achievements and failures, correct their mistakes and seek solutions correspondent with their stand. Such development of socialism is not an erring action, but rich and colorful. It is helpful to our thinking and will fully demonstrate that the people of each country are entitled to seek their own road to socialism," he said.

Marchais said: "We hold that there cannot be a 'model' of socialism, nor can there be a 'center' or 'guiding party' in the world for the revolutionary movement which aims at winning socialism. On the contrary, we, in accordance with developments of the world, strive for the realization of new internationalism and express support for all communist parties."

He said: "We are not worried that there exist various views on this or that issue, or even differences, among communist parties of various countries. On the contrary, we will have discussions frankly and calmly and will by no means let this deter our joint action."

"Our views on the relations between communist parties," he said, "coincide with those of the Chinese Communist Party. We have different positions on certain questions between us. With regard to this, we should conduct discussions in a friendly and frank atmosphere and should not let this affect the wishes of our two parties to strengthen cooperation for the common, great goal." Marchais said.

PRC, FRANCE SIGN PACT COVERING WHEAT PURCHASE

HK220256 Beijing CHINA DAILY in English 22 Oct 82 p 2

[Text] France has signed a credit deal with China, the first of its kind, covering the purchase of 700,000 tons of wheat, an official of the Bank of China said yesterday.

The loan of 1.3 billion francs ($170 million) is provided by two French banks, the Banque Nationale de Paris (BNP) and Credit Agricole, the second largest in France.

According to a governmental agreement between the two countries, China will buy 875,000 tons of wheat from France. But 700,000 tons will be covered by the credit arrangement, the remainder being paid for in cash.

The loan is repayable in two years and carries interest at 12 per cent. "The rate is relatively low," the official said.

This is the first time that France has agreed to sign such a credit deal, he said.

The official said, however, he does not expect any increase in purchases of French wheat in the next few years.

FOREIGN MINISTRY STATEMENT ON TALKS WITH ANGOLA

OW220804 Beijing XINHUA in English 0738 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 22 (XINHUA) -- The spokesman of the Information Department of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of China issued a statement today concerning the negotiations on the establishment of diplomatic relations between China and Angola. The statement reads:

China and Angola have recognized each other. At present, the representatives of the two governments are holding friendly discussions in Paris on the establishment of diplomatic relations between the two countries. The Chinese side has pointed out that some people abroad have spread the allegation that China is still giving aid to the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola. Such allegation is entirely groundless. In the period when the Angolan people were fighting against colonial rule, China gave assistance to the People's Movement for the Liberation of Angola, the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola and also the Angolan National Liberation Front. Since Angola won independence, China has ceased its aid to all the three organizations. It is our hope that after the establishment of official diplomatic relations, China and Angola will make concerted efforts to develop their friendly relations in accordance with the five principles of peaceful coexistence.

NI ZHIFU MEETS LIBYAN TRADE UNION DELEGATION

OW161554 Beijing XINHUA in English 1539 GMT 16 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 16 (XINHUA) -- Ni Zhifu, president of the All-China Federation of Trade Unions, met with a delegation from the Libyan General Federation of Producing Trade Unions led by its General Secretary Bashir H. Haweidi this morning.

The two discussed furthering the friendship between workers and trade unions of the two countries.

Ni Zhifu said Chinese workers firmly support the Palestinian and other Arab people in their just struggles opposing Israeli aggression and expansion, recovering their lost territory and restoring their national rights.

Ali Salah Masri [as received], member of the People's Committee for Consular Affairs of the People's Bureau of the Socialist People's Libyan Arab Jamahiriyah, was present.

The guests arrived Oct. 16 at the invitation of the All-China Federation of Trade Unions.

NI ZHIFU MEETS MALI WORKERS' UNION GROUP

OW081620 Beijing XINHUA in English 1511 GMT 8 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 8 (XINHUA) -- Ni Zhifu, president of the All-China Federation of Trade Unions, had a cordial meeting with a delegation from the National Union of Workers of Mali led by Ousmne Niare, administrative secretary of the union, here today.

Present was Liu Shi, member of the Secretariat of the host union.

The delegation arrived here yesterday at the invitation of the All-China Federation of Trade Unions.

HU YAOBANG SPEECH AT 12TH CPC CENTRAL COMMITTEE

OW220118 Beijing Domestic Service in Mandarin 2230 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Text] RENMIN RIBAO on 22 October front-pages in a prominent position the speech made by Comrade Hu Yaobang at the 1st Plenary Session of the 12th CPC Central Committee on 13 September. The text of the speech follows:

Comrades!

The sole agenda of this plenary session was to elect the central leading organs and approve the results of the election of the leading members of the Central Advisory Commission and Central Commission for Discipline Inspection. The task of the session has been completed. On behalf of the Secretariat, I would like to take the opportunity to make a few suggestions on future work for discussion by comrades, primarily the work for next year, because there are no plans to hold a Central Committee plenary session or a work meeting in the coming winter and next spring.

First, it is necessary to organize the whole party to diligently study the documents of the 12th CPC National Congress, including the report of the Central Committee, the new party constitution, Comrade Xiaoping's opening speech, the speeches by Comrades Jianying and Chen Yun and Comrade Xiannian's closing speech. The report of the Central Committee and the new party constitution were the crystallization of the collective creation and wisdom of the party. In view of the great significance in earnestly organizing the study of the 12th congress documents for future work, the Central Committee has transmitted its Propaganda Department's arrangements for studying and publicizing the documents.

In transmitting party documents in the past, we had a problem in that party organizations at various levels would wait and do what they were told by the next higher level. Some localities even put aside the documents and went their own way by making different outlines and airing their work problems. The Secretariat holds that such practices must be stopped. Party organizations at various levels must take the initiative to organize the study of the 12th congress documents instead of waiting for instructions from the next higher level. Of course, higher authorities should also offer effective and timely guidance and assistance.

In the course of study it is necessary to first grasp the basic spirit of the documents, unify the thinking in light of studying the relevant fundamental theories of Marx, Lenin and Comrade Mao Zedong, and then try to solve some practical problems that can be solved in each locality, department and unit. By paying special attention to the study of the documents for the more than six months from now until the first half of 1983, we will greatly educate and mobilize the broad masses of party members, particularly the cadres, to raise their understanding of the party's fighting goal, their ideological awareness and their confidence in our cause. At the same time we will also be able to overcome some erroneous ideas and unhealthy practices that are incompatible with the spirit of the 12th congress documents. Therefore, we must regard the study of the documents as the most important thing after the conclusion of the 12th congress and try our best to do it and cultivate a good study atmosphere.

Second, it is necessary to pay keen attention to organizational reform. The election of the central leading organs by the 12th CPC National Congress and the current plenary session is, in a broad sense, an organizational reform. It has been the most important organizational reform. In view of the readjustment of the leading bodies and organizational structure of the ministries, departments and bureaus directly under the central authorities, which has been basically completed, the organizational reform of the various departments under the party Central Committee and State Council has proceeded rather smoothly and has been fairly successful. Of course, further efforts are required in order to thoroughly complete the rotational training of cadres, the defining of powers and responsibilities of various departments, the solving of some problems in relations among various departments and other tasks in organizational reform.

In our exchanges of views with comrades of various provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions, it is the consensus that organizational reform in the provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions may, on the whole, copy the experience of the central departments. The Sixth NPC Session will be convened in May or June of next year. All localities must elect their deputies to the Sixth NPC in March, April or May. In view of the pressing time, the work of organizational reform in all provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions, as well as at prefectural and municipal levels, should be started as early as possible and not delayed. A delay will have unfavorable effects because the experience is there and no major problem is expected to appear. If the work is started this winter and completed in the first half of next year, party committees of all provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions and prefectures and municipalities under them can rely on themselves in carrying out organizational reform at county and commune levels in the winter of next year and the spring of the following year. In this way, organizational reform throughout the country, the first step in our structural reform, will be completed in the spring of 1984. When this task is achieved, we will be able to make more initiatives in our work.

As Comrade Xiaoping once said: This matter is also a revolution. If it is successfully carried out, we will be able to readjust and strengthen leading cores at various levels, streamline overstaffed organizations, promote a large number of young and capable cadres, rotationally train active duty cadres, greatly increase work efficiency and further eliminate bureaucracy. Success in this work relies mainly on the personal attention and efforts of leading comrades of all provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions.

We have suggested the sending of help to comrades of many provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions. They think this is very good because of two advantages: one, comrades sent by the central authorities can help local comrades make up their minds and speak on their behalf when a difficulty arises; two, they can help local comrades listen to opinions from broad sources and follow the mass line. The Secretariat plans to dispatch some members of the Central Committee, Central Advisory Commission and the Central Commission for Discipline inspection, as well as some retired cadres who formerly held the posts of vice minister or deputy director, to various localities, thus helping these comrades to broaden their visions and gain new experience.

Third, it is necessary to seriously think over how to take a firm hold of party consolidation. The task of party consolidation put forth by the 12th CPC National Congress had received favorable responses at home and abroad, and is deep in the hearts of the people. It is a matter of utmost importance. Since we have announced it, we must not only do it but also do it well. Of course, paying close attention to the study of the 12th congress documents, especially the study of the new party constitution article by article, the organizational reform and readjustment of cadres, and making continuous efforts to strike at economic crimes and handle in good time some major and serious cases which have already come under investigation, will give a strong impetus to changing party style. However, all of this cannot take the place of party consolidation. In view of both the positive experience and negative nessons on the question of party consolidation in our party's history, a party with its work in extensive areas and many problems accumulated in the past, the Secretariat deems it necessary to make painstaking and meticulous efforts to prepare for, guide and organize the new party consolidation which is to begin next year.

On the basis of the work conducted by both the central authorities and various provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions at selected points this winter and next spring, we should draft a good document for party consolidation. It is estimated that the document will be completed next May or June after the convening of the NPC session, or by the fall of next year at the latest, and discussed as one of the central agenda items of the 2d Plenary Session of the 12th CPC Central Committee. Party consolidation should be carried out by stages and in groups after the 2d Plenary Session of the 12th CPC Central Committee. Efforts must be made to strive to complete party consolidation throughout the country within 3 years beginning from next fall.

Fourth, economic work cannot be slackened at any time. Since the third plenary session, tremendous improvement has been made in economic work and many reforms have been carried out, thereby promoting economic development. The economic situation this year is fairly good; economic results and the rate of growth may very possibly exceed the original estimate. Of course, comrades of economic departments and provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions feel many problems still exist and that the tasks remain strenuous. For example, take the industrial and transportation front. While the potentials there are indeed tremendous, the state of affairs characterized by endless haggling and the fear of assuming responsibility has not been basically reversed. In the final analysis, the reason for this is that the people did not assiduously study many problems. Especially, they did not proceed to the frontline to obtain a thoroughly clear picture of the situation, nor did they show daring and resolution in solving problems in a practical manner. This state of affairs, it seems, has developed to a point that it has left us no choice but to change it drastically and with determination. The industrial and transportation enterprises should make continuous efforts to consolidate themselves and to conscientiously popularize the economic responsibility system in an effort to further improve economic results. Commercial enterprises should also earnestly popularize the economic responsibility system in all forms in order to further open the channel of exchange between the urban and rural areas and to develop a vast socialist market under unified planning.

In the field of agriculture, tremendous development and improvements have been made in the past several years. Many localities, communes and brigades which once lagged behind have managed to double their output value in 1 or 2 years. Even in localities with fairly poor foundations to begin with, many also doubled or tripled their output value in 3 or 4 years. What is particularly gratifying is that the increase in many counties, communes and brigades in the past 2 years was even faster. This is chiefly because these localities grasped and vigorously implemented the economic responsibility system and, at the same time, developed diversified undertakings in earnest while endeavoring to raise grain output. The problem at present is that many localities have not emancipated themselves enough ideologically and they must further widen their field of vision.

The Secretariat is of the opinion that party organizations at all levels on the agricultural front should boldly mobilize and guide the people, while first ensuring the fulfillment of the grain production task, and open all avenues for production so that they may become well-off much sooner. This should be put forth as a central idea for leading comrades at all levels, especially leading comrades engaged in rural work. With 800 million peasants becoming well-to-do sooner through their own labor, more raw materials will be made available to industry by agriculture, the market for selling industrial products will become larger, and construction funds and state revenue receipts will increase more rapidly. All this will naturally become one of the strongest motive forces in promoting the development of industry. Both industry and agriculture must call on cadres to guide the masses in paying attention to technical reform. In short, as long as we are good and conducting investigation and study and solving problems in economic work in a practical manner, economic development can certainly be achieved even better year by year. In this respect, if we can shape up things more next year and the year after, it will be possible for the central authorities and provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions, starting from the year after, that is 1984, to make concentrated efforts to study and carry out comprehensive reform step-by-step in the systems governing education, labor, wages and commodity prices. In so doing and by coupling with party consolidation in an all-round manner and putting social atmosphere and social security under comprehensive control, by 1986 -- namely, the 10th anniversary of the downfall of the gang of four -- we will be able possibly to come close to realizing the three targets of bringing about the basic improvement in economic and social life put forth by the 12th CPC National Congress. If this is the case, it is comparable to the vicissitudes of life in areas east and west of the river which changed alternately in a span of 10 years. During the 10 years of the Cultural Revolution, things went from bad to worse and are unbearable to recall; whereas in the next 10 years after the Cultrual Revolution, the course of events was reversed and the future is bright.

Lastly, I would like to stress one point. From now on and in the next 5 years, the destiny of the party and the state is closely linked with our present new central leading collective, the new fighting command. I think each and every member of this leading collective will, without exception, realize the heavy historic responsibility on his shoulders.

Can we shoulder such a heavy responsibility? We have many favorable conditions: First, we have gained much more experience in leadership, especially the successful experience of the central leading collective since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, which is intimate and harmonious and has been doing things in line with the principles of democratic centralism. The readjustment of the leading groups on the one hand, and organizational restructuring on the other, have also strengthened the fighting capacity of organs at all levels. Second, several old revolutionaries who are at the helm for us are still living and in good health. Third, it is certain that the newly established Central Advisory Commission will become a very good assistant and staff officer of the Central Committee politically; the newly-reinforced Central Commission for Discipline Inspection will certainly be able to play a bigger role in safeguarding party discipline and in straightening out the party work style. With these three factors, our present central leading collective can not only shoulder this important historic responsibility but also do a much better job than the last one.

Present here today are many newly-elected comrades to the Central Committee. As a result of the election, the work of some of these comrades has been changed somewhat. Coming in and going out and moving up and moving down are normal things in inner-party life. This is particularly true as our party undertakings develop rapidly. Regardless of personal circumstances, as long as everyone can look forward and always think of the needs of the people and our own deficiencies, we can certainly march forward continuously and make new contributions. We also wholeheartedly hope that those relatively young comrades who moved up treasure the great trust placed in them by the party and the people, and study painstakingly, are modest and prudent, work conscientiously, enhance their spirit and do a good job. We are strongly convinced of this truth: The people will make the best judgment. Therefore, let the people, the party and the army morally judge each and every one of us once more.

HU YAOBANG ADDRESSES SHAANXI CADRE MEETING

OW211901 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 0155 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Text] Xian, 21 Oct (XINHUA) -- The Shaanxi Provincial CPC Committee recently held a meeting of secretaries of prefectural and municipal party committees to discuss the guidelines for achieving the strategic goals set by the 12th party congress in light of the actual conditions in Shaanxi.

When Comrade Hu Yaobang came to Xian not long ago, he made an important speech at a meeting of responsible cadres called by the provincial party committee. In his speech, he affirmed the achievements of the provincial party committee and Shaanxi Province in work since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee and, at the same time, expressed an ardent hope that we should emancipate our minds further and carry out still bolder reforms.

He said: Attention should be paid to these two points both in achieving the four modernizations and in building the "two civilizations." Attention should be paid to further emancipating our minds in quadrupling the gross annual value of industrial and agricultural production. First, we cannot rely only on the prosperity of the state, but must rely at the same time on the prosperity of the peasants. Every household of our 800 million peasants must become well-to-do. The initiative of the state, the locality, the collective and the individual must all be brought into play.

Second, for the peasants to become well-to-do, it is impossible to rely only on grain. No effort should be spared to promote grain production, but relying only on grain production cannot lead to prosperity. It is also essential to rely on diversified undertakings. Third, we cannot rely only on the existing industries, but must strive to develop energy resources and transportation facilities. Fourth, we cannot remain at the present level of planning, economic management and science and technology, but must strive for higher levels and create new and higher labor productivity.

The comrades attending the prefectural and municipal party committee secretaries meeting discussed Comrade Hu Yaobang's speech, increased their confidence in achieving the strategic goals of national economic construction and further clarified the course ahead. The comrades pointed out that it is necessary to look at problems from a development viewpoint, and not to stick to the old concepts, conventions and methods of the past. It is necessary to really understand how to bring the local advantages into play.

The comrades felt that Shaanxi has many favorable conditions for achieving the strategic goals set by the 12th party congress. A sizable production capacity has been built in industry; a certain foundation has been laid for the light and textile industries; a fairly strong machinery processing capability is available; electric power is rather abundant; and coal, nonferrous metals and other mineral resources are relatively plentiful. Great development has been achieved in agricultural capital construction; there are the "800-Li Shaanxi plain" and the "Hanzhong Basin"; 70 percent of the province's mountainous areas have great potential for developing grain and cotton production; and possibilities are many for diversified undertakings. Industrial production has rather great potentials. If the output value per 100 yuan in fixed assets can catch up with the average national level, the provincial industrial output value will increase by 6 million yuan. In agriculture, there are more than 30,000 production brigades in the province, and the average total annual farm and sideline production value per production brigade is 160,000 yuan. According to an investigation of 10 advanced production brigades in the province, their average annual farm and sideline output value is 1.77 million yuan each. If a third of the province's production brigades can reach the average total output value of these 10 production brigades, the total provincial agricultural output will quadruple. Shaanxi has a fairly strong scientific and technological force. There are 40 universities and colleges, more than 390 research institutes and more than 300,000 intellectuals including some 180,000 scientific and technological personnel, which is the most important potential force for economic development.

Ma Wenrui, first secretary of the Shaanxi Provincial CPC Committee, spoke at the closing session of the meeting. He said: Central leading comrades recently called on us to further emancipate our minds and carry out still bolder reforms. This was said precisely wth regard to our implementation of the guidelines of the 12th party congress and drawing up plans and measures for doubling and redoubling output, and was completely in keeping with the actual conditions of our thinking and work. Since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, we have done a great deal of work and achieved tremendous successes in all fields. Marked changes have taken place in the province's political and economic situation. However, we still have quite a number of shortcomings and are lagging behind in work. Take the provincial party committee for example. In some work, particularly economic work, we have not sufficiently emancipated our minds, are not bold enough in carrying out reforms, lack initiative and fail to thoroughly implement measures. These problems call for us to earnestly find solutions.

Ma Wenrui said: Everything depends on human effort. The important thing at present is to strengthen our confidence and heighten our spirits. First, we should take the guidelines of the 12th party congress as our weapon, raise our ideological level, achieve unity in thinking, stimulate our revolutionary fighting will and carry forward the communist spirit.

Second, we must not feel content with being middling, but should go all out and aim high. Third, we should combine vigor and drive with a realistic spirit, rely on the masses, conduct investigation and study, draw up positive and reliable plans and measures and work hard for their implementation. Fourth, we should adhere to the mass line and rely on our own strength to overcome difficulties.

LEADERS ATTEND XIE BEIYI MEMORIAL SERVICE

OW210935 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1350 GMT 20 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, 20 Oct (XINHUA) -- Xie Beiyi, deputy secretary of the leading party group and vice minister of the Ministry of Urban, Rural Construction and Environmental Protection, passed away suddenly at his office as a result of a myocardial infarction. He was 62 and had given his all until his heart stopped beating. A memorial meeting for Comrade Xie Beiyi was held this afternoon at the auditorium of the Babaoshan Cemetery for Revolutionaries in Beijing.

Wreaths were presented by party and state leaders Zhao Ziyang, Li Xiannian, Peng Zhen, Wan Li, Yu Qiuli Song Renqiong, Yao Yilin, Chen Muhua, Gu Mu and Bo Yibo; the State Council; the Organization Department of the CPC Central Committee; the Ministry of Urban, Rural Construction and Environmental Protection; the State Planning Commission; the State Economic Commission; the Ministry of Machine Building Industry; and the Henan Provincial CPC Committee and people's government.

Present at the memorial meeting were Wan Li, Gu Mu, Bo Yibo, Huang Huoqing, Xiao Ke, Cheng Zihua, Du Xingyuan, Song Ping, Lu Dong, Yuan Baohua, Zeng Zhi and Duan Junyi.

Wreaths were also presented by Hosomi Takashi, governor of the Japanese Overseas Economic Cooperation Fund, and Takeuchi Michimatsu, governor of the Japanese Export and Import Bank.

Comrade Xie Beiyi was born in 1920 in Mengxian County, Henan Province. He took part in the revolution in 1937 and joined the CPC in 1938. Over the past decades, he held posts as teacher of the Marxist-Leninist research room of the Central Party School in Yanan and the research room of the Yanan Senior Party School, political commissar of the Mengdong headquarters of Mengxian County, Henan Province, director of the Organization Department of the Luoyang Municipal CPC Committee and chairman of the municipal trade union council, director of the Central-South Machine-Building Bureau, head of the machine-building group and concurrently head of the consolidated group of the Third Office under the State Council, member of the State Economic Commission and concurrently director of the Machine-Building Bureau, deputy director of the department of supplies, vice mayor of Beijing, and deputy secretary of the leading party group and vice minister in charge of the State Capital Construction Commission. He also made outstanding contributions in the war of resistance against Japan, the liberation war as well as in socialist construction.

Comrade Xie Beiyi was always loyal to the party, the people and the proletarian revolutionary cause and had strong feelings and a strong sense of responsibility toward the revolutionary cause. He studied Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong Thought diligently and implemented the party's policies and principles in great earnest. During the 10-year period of internal disorder, he resolutely fought and struggled against the perverse acts of the Lin Biao and Jiang Qing counterrevolutionary cliques. He resolutely supported the line, principles and policies of the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee and earnestly improved the readjustment in capital construction. During the preparations for the establishment of the Ministry of Urban, Rural Construction and Environmental Protection and after its founding, he worked wholeheartedly and tirelessly to bring about a new situation in the ministry's work. He always sought truth from facts, upheld principle, maintained a proper style of work and was unassuming. Though he suffered from high blood pressure and coronary thrombosis for a long time, he continued to work hard with a stubborn revolutionary will in disregard of his personal safety until he died at his post. Comrades at the ministry were deeply saddened by his untimely death.

More than 500 persons attended the memorial meeting including representatives of the Ministry of Urban, Rural Construction and Environmental Protection and Comrade Xie Beiyi's friends and relatives.

EDITORIAL ON POLICY TOWARD INTELLECTUALS

HK211040 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 21 Oct 82 p 1

[Editorial: "The Key to the Present Implementation of the Policy Toward Intellectuals"]

[Text] Viewed from the results of the recent inspections on work concerning intellectuals launched in various areas, we have made remarkable achievements in implementing the policy toward intellectuals since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee. However, there are still a small number of comrades who have not completely shaken off the "leftist" ideology and the concept of small production. An erroneous concept of despising education, science and culture and discriminating against intellectuals exists among these comrades to varying degrees. The major factor accounting for this is that certain localities, departments and units have not yet done a serious job in implementing the party's policy toward intellectuals. In the course of studying the documents of the 12th party congress, party and government cadres at all levels must better understand the status and role of education, science and culture in building socialist modernization and continue to eradicate the erroneous concept of discriminating against intellectuals. This is the key to further implementing the party's policy toward intellectuals.

Comrade Hu Yaobang in his report submitted to the 12th party congress, pointed out: "In order to create a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization, we must attach particular importance to bringing the roles of intellectuals into full play." The report clearly stated that, similar to the workers and peasants, intellectuals are a force on which we rely in building socialism; the workers, peasants and intellectuals are the three basic social forces in our country. In the course of building socialist modernization, whether in promoting material civilization or spiritual civilization, it is necessary to rely on the unity and mutual assistance of these three basic forces so that we can better master science, develop education, enrich our culture, and speed up the entire development of the socialist modernization cause. The intellectuals are shouldering heavier tasks from day to day. They are needed by state construction and by the broad masses of people. Party and government leaders at all levels must work in accordance with the series of correct principles laid down since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee and bring their roles into full play.

At present, some comrades have not yet correctly understood the status and role of intellectuals in the new era. When talking about the policy toward intellectuals, they still stick to the old slogans concerning intellectuals of "unity, education and reform" put forth in the initial stage of the founding of the country. This is an error created by the times. The above-mentioned slogans were correct in the initial stage of the founding of the country in dealing with the intellectuals. Currently, our country's intellectuals have basically been cultivated by our party under the socialist system. Those intellectuals who were brought forward from the old society have already spent several decades living, working and studying under the socialist system, and many drastic changes have taken place. Under present circumstances, if we say that we should unite the intellectuals in the same way as we unite the workers and peasants, we should educate the intellectuals in the same way as we educate the workers and peasants, and we should reform the intellectuals in the same way as we reform the workers and peasants, we should not and need not distinguish the intellectuals from the workers and peasants and solely put forth the slogan of "uniting, educating and reforming" the intellectuals.

Some comrades say that it is necessary to mention such slogans at present because the intellectuals have not reformed their world outlook. If this means reforming the world outlook of one class into the world outlook of another, the question itself is completely wrong. Everyone needs to reform one's world outlook and doing so takes a lifetime. As Comrade Zhou Enlai said: We must live, learn and reform until the day we die. No one can say that he has completely reformed his world outlook and needs no more reform. We do not mean that the world outlook of our intellectuals does not need anyone reform, but that in dealing with the question of the world outlook of intellectuals, we must deal with it in the same way as we deal with the world outlook of the workers and peasants. The crux of the matter is that certain comrades, up to now, still treat intellectuals as the petite bourgeoisie or the bourgeoisie. This is a different practice from that of the CPC Central Committee which treats intellectuals like the workers and peasants, who form a relying force of our party. A small number of comrades even go as far as to say that "the intellectuals can only be utilized but not trusted, and they must not be allowed to have power;" "When more intellectuals are admitted into the party, the party will deteriorate;" "we still can promote production without the intellectuals," and so on. They are making a great mistake.

We should continue to fight against the wrong idea of looking down on education, science and culture and discriminating against the intellectuals. We should carry out the following tasks that were put forward by Comrade Hu Yaobang in his report to the 12th party congress: We should "make efforts to implement the party's policies on intellectuals, make the whole party and the whole society understand that intellectuals, like workers and peasants, are a force that we can rely on in building socialism, and be resolute to do our best to create conditions in order to make our intellectuals happily and enthusiastically devote their strength to the people." Only in this way can our actions conform to the interests of the people of all nationalities throughout the country, the interests of the working class, the interests of the party and the interests of socialism.

There is a long-standing and deepgoing influence of "leftist" ideology and of ideas of small production in problems related to intellectuals. This influence cannot be completely eliminated through a few criticisms or a little education. The influence of this kind of idea varies with people. Some people have not broken away from the influence of the "gang of four" and fail to see that their minds are poisoned on this problem. Others fail to free themselves from the fetters of old concepts and conventions. As a result, their minds fall behind the development of the changing objective situation. Still others fail to see the main trend and essence but only see nonessentials and a few phenomena, because they have failed to have wide contact with or to fully understand intellectuals. Moreover, there are also some people who, out of their personal propensity, demand perfection of intellectuals. However, they fail to take account of the overall situation of the work of the party and state. This requires us to persistently propagate, in the course of studying the 12th congress documents and implementing the spirit of the congress, the party Central Committee's basic viewpoint on correctly treating intellectuals, a viewpoint that has been adopted since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee. It also requires us to carry out painstaking ideological work in order to help the comrades who have wrong ideas to realize their mistakes as soon as possible.

Eliminating the wrong idea about intellectuals and continuing to implement the party's policy toward intellectuals is a task for the whole party. For this, the organizational and personnel departments at all levels, being the departments in charge of intellectual affairs under the leadership of the respective party committee, should shoulder especially important responsibility.

Therefore, the comrades who work in these departments should take the lead to correcting their understanding of the position and role of intellectuals, resolutely and correctly carry out the party's policies and use their actions and results of their work to convince and influence comrades who discriminate and are prejudiced against intellectuals and guide these comrades in making their works and actions conform to the party's policies. We should be concerned about our intellectuals in all aspects, including showing them political concern and showing concern about their thoughts, work and life. Of course, in doing this work, we should also pay attention to the characteristics of the intellectuals, improve our ideological and political education among them and help them to understand the historical tasks they have been assigned and to gradually overcome their weak points. As long as we carry out this work satisfactorily, we will be able to give full play to the initiative and creativeness of our broad ranks of intellectuals in the socialist modernization, further consolidate and strengthen the close unity of the three basic social forces of the workers, the peasants and the intellectuals and mobilize them to struggle for our common goal.

CULTURAL WORKERS TO STUDY MARXIST THEORY

HK210803 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 20 Oct 82 p 5

[Commentator's article: "Literature and Art Workers Must Seriously Study Basic Marxist Theory"]

[Text] Comrade Hu Yaobang pointed out in his report at the 12th party congress: "We must step up education in Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong Thought among the masses, and first among the cadres and young people." The Central Committee and State Council recently issued a decision on the rotational training of cadres in the central party and government organs. The decision demanded that every cadre study basic theory of Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong Thought and study the party's line, principles and policies. This is an extremely important item of work in China's socialist modernization, especially in the building of socialist spiritual civilization.

Why do we lay particular stress on studying Marxism? Because Marxism is the system of truth that reveals the laws governing human development; it is a forceful ideological weapon for criticizing the old world and opening up a new world; and it represents the fundamental interests of the proletariat and the oppressed masses throughout the world. To create a new situation in socialist modernization, and build socialist spiritual civilization centered on communist ideology, we must be guided by Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong Thought. Our literature and art workers shoulder particularly important responsibilities in building socialist spiritual civilization. This requires that they enhance spontaneity in study and assiduously study Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong Thought, and first of all basic Marxist theory. At present this means that they must seriously study in depth the 12th party congress documents.

It is the party's fine tradition to study Marxism and apply theory to guide our action. Marxism was distorted and theory thrown into confusion during the 10 years of internal chaos. Since the smashing of the "gang of four," as a result of bringing order out of chaos we have restored the original features of Marxism, and theoretical work has made a certain amount of progress. However, we must soberly realize that the theoretical level of all our cadres, and especially their standard of Marxist theory, is not high and does not at all accord with the situation of rapid development of socialist modernization. Many young comrades have never studied basic Marxist theory; or, even if they have studied it, it was the distorted version. These comrades must study from the beginning.

Even those comrades who have studied basic Marxist theory need to study afresh, since they face many new things, conditions and problems in the new period of China's socialist development. Marxism is scientific truth tested by practice; the moment it is grasped by the broad masses, it is transformed into tremendous material force. To ensure that the communist movement in China can advance still more smoothly and that our cause of socialist modernization can achieve still greater development, it is very essential that we seriously and earnest study basic Marxist theory.

Basic Marxist theory must be studied not only by those engaged in theoretical work but also by comrades engaged in other work. Among our literature and art workers, comrades who deal with theory of literature and art must study it and so must those engaged in creation. Marxism has provided us with a scientific world outlook. To correctly understand, reflect and transform the world, we cannot do without guidance by basic Marxist theory. Literature and art works are reflections of objective life. A key factor in the ability of literature and art to correctly reflect life, have a positive influence on life and provide better service for the people and socialism is that writers must apply the standpoint, viewpoint and method of Marxism to observe, study and analyze all kinds of phenomena in objective life. Hosts of facts tell us: Although there are many reasons why certain works give an incorrect reflection of life, the main one is that the writers have to a certain degree run counter to Marxist dialectical and historical materialism. The success or failure in work of a person engaged in theoretical study of literature and art and in literary and artistic criticism is also closely linked to whether or not he has mastered basic Marxist theory. If one applies idealism, mechanical materialism or other non-Marxist viewpoints to study and explain phenomena in literature and art and to carry out literary and artistic criticism, one cannot make a scientific analysis and evaluation of these things and may even embark on the wrong road. Therefore, in order to achieve a new breakthrough and a big development in literature and art theoretical study and creation, literature and art workers must study basic Marxist theory in a thoroughly sound way and find from this theory the ideological weapons for solving fundamental problems in theoretical study and literature and art creation. The idea that there is no need for people engaged in literature and art creation to study Marxist-Leninist works and theory is wrong and harmful. It must be seriously overcome and corrected.

A few comrades in literature and art cirlces lack sufficient understanding of the importance of studying Marxist theory. Some comrades hold that they can create just the same without studying theory, and it does not matter much whether they study it or not. There are also certain comrades, who claim to be "unorthodox," who enthusiastically engage in studying all kinds of Western ideologies and schools to seek theory and guidance for creation from them, but are not keen on studying Marxism. These ideas are wrong. Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong thought is the guide for our actions. For several decades we have precisely relied on this guide to win victory in revolution. We could never have achieved the great successes we have today without Marxism. There could be no flourishing socialist literature and art creation without the whole series of literature and art principles and policies formulated under the guidance of Marxism. This was so in the past, it is now and it will be in the future. Our literature and art workers must profoundly understand the tremendous guiding significance of Marxist theory and take an extremely serious attitude toward it. The duty and responsibility of our literature and art workers is to persistently study basic Marxist theory and strive to practice, enrich and develop it. If people who do this are described as "orthodox," then this kind of "orthodoxy" deserves merit. We should regard this as an honorable title.

There are also some comrades who have the desire to study basic Marxist theory but still cannot get the knack of studying it. They only study a few Marxist-Leninist phrases and copy them mechanically instead of applying the standpoint, viewpoint and method of Marxism to analyze problems, observe new things and study new situations.

They cannot study well like this, and may even come to grief in practice. We should adopt the approach of linking theory with reality, regard Marxism as the guide for our actions, proceed from reality in everything, seek truth from facts, and examine and develop the truth in the course of practice. This is the study style our party advocates. Only by maintaining this study style can we truly master Marxism.

The documents of the 12th party congress are brilliant Marxist documents and products of integrating the universal truth of Marxism with the concrete practice of our country. Many basic theories of Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong Thought are vividly and scientifically expounded in these documents. For this reason our literature and art workers must first seriously study the 12th party congress documents, profoundly appreciate and master their spirit, and implement it in all work.

We are happy to see a very good momentum recently in the study of Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong Thought among cadres and young people. In literature and art circles also, the atmosphere of studying basic Marxist theory is gradually thickening, We must keep this going and turn it into common practice and into the spontaneous demand and action of every literature and art worker. We believe that, as the study of basic Marxist theory goes deeper, a brand new situation will appear in our literature and art theoretical study and literary and artistic criticism and creation.

RENMIN RIBAO URGES MAINTAINING POLITICAL UNITY

HK220536 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 20 Oct 82 p 2

[Article by Qiang Xiaochu [1730 2556 0443] "Maintaining Political Unity With the Central Committee Is the Guarantee for Creating a New Situation"]

[Text] The 12th party congress was of profound historical and practical significance. The opening speech of Comrade Deng Xiaoping, the report made by Comrade Hu Yaobang on behalf of the previous committee, and the new constitution adopted during the congress have fully mainifested the common aspiration of the party, the army and the people and was a crystallization of the wisdom of the whole party and all people throughout the country. On the basis of making a scientific summation of positive and negative historical experiences, the opening speech of the congress and the report put forth the proposal of "creating a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization" and displayed the great plan which enlightened the people. This is where the hopes of the party and the people lie. We must adapt ourselves to the new situation and the new tasks and, under the leadership of the CPC Central Committee, realize the glorious historical tasks put forth at the 12th party congress with revolutionary militant spirit and intensive work. We have to carry out an enormous amount of work which involves various fields. However, the most important work of all for party members and party cadres is to maintain political unity with the CPC Central Committee. This is the basic principle for party spirit that every party member and all party organizations should observe. At the same time, it is also an important guarantee for studying the spirit of the 12th party congress and creating a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization.

Only when the whole party progresses at the same pace can we win a victory in the revolution. Our party is a great party which leads a vast country with a population of 1 billion. It cannot do without a high degree of democracy or without a high degree of centralism on the basis of a high degree of democracy. Only by conscientiously and comprehensively implementing the party's democratic centralism can we loyally obey the correct political, ideological, organizational and operational instructions of the CPC Central Committee. As the CPC Central Committee pointed out once: "All party organizations and all party members must unconditionally maintain political unity with the CPC Central Committee. Otherwise, the unity and fighting power of the party will be undermined. "

The instructions of the CPC Central Committee always have a definite object in view. We are now situated at a historical turning point and in an era of significant development. Despite the fact that chaos has been turned to order since the smashing of the "gang of four," the party's democratic centralism has been strengthened, the party's fine traditions and work style have been restored and the party's fighting power has been greatly enhanced, due to the fact that influences of the "Great Cultural Revolution," during which there was no organizational, government and disciplinary control, have not been thoroughly eradicated, various ideologies of the exploiting class are still corrupting the minds of the people, and the questions of impure ideology inside the party, impure work style and impure organization have not been thoroughly solved. In our party and in our revolutionary force, some people who have been seriously influenced by the "leftist" things do not quite understand the line, principles and policies laid down since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, and some of them even adopt a suspicious and negative attitude toward them. The question of understanding accounts for this phenomenon among most of these people. However, a small number of them have ulterior motives and want to retain the erroneous things which existed before the third plenary session or even during the "Cultural Revolution." Thus, these people cannot maintain political unity with the CPC Central Committee and are in an antagonistic position. We must understand that the "leftist" theories, lines and policies have bound us for more than 20 years, thus forming a stubborn force of habit. It is not easy at all to completely break away from this.

We must not underestimate the remnant poison and influences of the Lin Biao and Jiang Qing counterrevolutionary cliques. In fact, there is a small minority of the partisans of the Lin Biao and Jiang Qing counterrevolutionary cliques who still hold leadership positions, waiting for an opportunity to stir up trouble, oppose the correct line, principles and policies laid down since the third plenary session, oppose the important decisions made by the CPC Central Committee and oppose the four basic principles. Among these people, some gained power by stirring up trouble during the 10 years of turmoil, and some gained power at the expense of their soul and principles during the 10 years of internal disorder. Certainly, they do not like the present line of the party and definitely oppose the militant tasks put forth during the 12th party congress. Although there is only a small number of such people, they have considerable strength. There are markets for such activities because some people are not sober Marxists and are politically apathetic and have confused ideas. They have either been captured or been made use of. Failure in understanding this point and solving the problems will definitely cause irreparable damage to stability and unity and the socialist construction cause, and we will inevitably be going astray, politically speaking, from the CPC Central Committee. This is very dangerous. Therefore, in order to maintain political unity with the CPC Central Committee, it is necessary to get rid of various disturbances and wage essential struggles.

Maintaining political unity with the CPC Central Committee is not abstract and should not be represented by shouting empty slogans. It is specific and manifested in real actions. As far as the present situation is concerned, we must conscientiously study and profoundly understand the spirit of the 12th party congress, thoroughly implement the militant guiding principles laid down during the 12th party congress and adhere to the party's ideological, political and organizational line. The 12th party congress affirmed that the party's line laid down since the third plenary session is, on the one hand, a rectification of the "Great Cultural Revolution" and the ultraleftist line and, on the other hand, a restoration of the situation preceding the "Cultural Revolution." It is a correct line which suits China's national conditions and has been verified in actual practice.

A promising situation in our country and in our province which has been seen rarely since the founding of the country, prevails at present. Agricultural development is in the ascendant, industrial output gradually goes up every year, the markets are becoming more vigorous and the people's livelihood is gradually being improved.

All this is a result of the fact that we have worked in accordance with the instructions of the CPC Central Committee to emancipate our minds, overcome the influences of the long-term "leftist" mistakes, overcome the conventions of rigid ideology and the force of habit and resolutely implement the party's line by seeking truth from facts and integrating theory with practice as advocated by Comrade Mao Zedong.

While maintaining political unity with the CPC Central Committee, we not only have to resolutely support the CPC Central Committee in ideology but must also obey the unified organizational and operational direction of the CPC Central Committee and resolutely implement the decisions and instructions of the CPC Central Committee. We must not feign compliance. We must uphold the organizational principle put down in the new constitution: The individual be subordinate to the organization, the minority be subordinate to the majority, the lower-level organizations be subordinate to the high-level organizations, all organizations of the party and all party members be subordinate to the National People's Congress and the CPC Central Committee. It is forbidden to form small gangs, promote sectarianism, factionalism or evil practices of "drawing a line between individuals," "personal loyalty" and so on. We must resolutely oppose the trend of extreme democratization. We must oppose the practice of not implementing the party's line, principles and policies because they do not cater to one's taste, the practice of spreading grievances and putting up passive resistance, the liberal practices and practices which represent no organizational or disciplinary control. The words and deeds of each party member and revolutionary cadre must not violate the party's regulations and guiding principles. If we do not maintain political unity with the CPC Central Committee, we will start from being suspicious and resentful against the party and degenerate to opposing the party and deviating from the revolution.

We must not interpret maintaining political unity with the CPC Central Committee as an affair solely concerning party workers. It is a common political and organizational principle which should be abided by all political workers, economic workers, teachers and scientists. Comrade Deng Xiaoping stressed upholding the four basic principles, and the most fundamental one among them is to uphold party leadership. Comrade Chen Yun figuratively cautioned the "experts" in various fields who are also party members: We must first remember that we are Communist Party members. Being party members, we should know and should spontaneously observe party regulations and law. It is of primary significance to know and observe party leadership and maintain political unity with the party. If we are divorced from politics and divorced from party leadership, we will become blind "experts" who have lost our political direction. Reality shows that the party's unity determines the unity among people of various nationalities. History proves that when the whole party maintains political and ideological unity, unified pace and unified actions with the CPC Central Committee, our revolutionary cause will prosper and win successive victories. On the other hand, if we are divorced from the CPC Central Committee, make our own decisions and do things our way, we will harm or even destroy our revolutionary cause. Comrades who have joined the party for a relatively long time have experienced happiness in obtaining a victory in revolution and construction, and some have also suffered from setbacks. Thus, maintaining political unity with the CPC Central Committee is an important guarantee for developing the encouraging situation, implementing the spirit of the 12th party congress, further promoting the building of material and spiritual civilization and creating a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization.

FORMALITIES SIMPLIFIED FOR FOREIGN TOURISTS

OW220850 Beijing XINHUA in English 0755 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 22 (XINHUA) -- Formalities of approval for foreigners travelling in China have been improved, according to the Ministry of Public Security.

The decision approved by the Chinese Government stipulates that foreigners travelling in China may go to the following 29 municipalities, cities and counties without a travel certificate or advance notification: Beijing, Tianjin and Shanghi Municipalities, the cities of Qinhuangdao, Taiyuan, Shenyang, Changchun, Harbin, Nanjing, Suzhou, Wuxi, Hangzhou, Jinan, Qingdao, Zhengzhou, Kaifeng, Luoyang, Wuhan, Changsha, Guangzhou, Fushan, Zhaoqing, Nanning, Guilin, Xian, Chengdu, Chongqing, Kunming, and Lunan County (stone forest).

The decision also says that foreign travellers may use their own cars only on the highway between Beijing and Tianjin.

The decision says that with China's policy of opening to the outside world, there has been an increasing number of foreigners coming to China for trade, scientific, technical and cultural exchanges or tours. This, the decision adds, is of positive significance in promoting China's modernization program and enhancing people-to-people friendly contacts. As a result, the decision concludes, the simplification of formalities for approval for foreigners travelling in China is necessary.

NATIONAL CONFERENCE ON FOREIGN TRADE HELD

OW220212 Beijing XINHUA in English 1213 GMT 20 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 20 (XINHUA) -- Export is stressed as the focus for developing China's foreign economic relations and trade in order to bring the foreign trade value up to 160,000 million U.S. dollars, four times the present, by the end of the century, disclosed a national conference on planning for the work concluded here today.

According to long-term plans, efforts will be made to better tap the country's rich natural resources for export. More crude oil will be exported with the exploitation of offshore petroleum, and also more coal when the Beijing-Qinhuangdao railway and the Yanzhou-Shijiusuo railway and the new coal harbors at Qinhuangdao in Hebei and Shijiusuo in Shandong are completed in 1985 to facilitate transport.

The export of minerals, especially non-ferrous metals, and machinery with improved quality and performance will also increase. Traditional exports such as native products, farm produce, manufactured goods and textiles will still constitute an important part of the total volume.

Quality is stressed for competitiveness on the world market. Price fluctuation is allowed for export goods, depending on their quality.

To ensure quality, new production bases and specialized plants for export commodities will be added to the original 114 bases and 94 plants and mines.

China will import more machinery and equipment, technology and techniques for its modernization program. More cement and rolled steel and other raw materials will also be imported. Foreign funds will be used chiefly to introduce up-to-date technology and import equipment for revamping existing industrial enterprises.

Trade with the Third World countries and various other nations in Europe and Latin America is encouraged.

The conference suggested that communications departments would open regular service of ocean-going freighters and adopt container transport on railways for import and export. It also asked for more state funds to build new store houses and remodel old ones with new equipment.

The conference reviewed the progress made in the field of foreign economic relations and trade in the last three years and attributed the achievements to China's open policy. Export was doubled in value, bringing it up to 20,900 million U.S. dollars in 1981. Work has also proceeded in absorbing direct foreign investment to run joint ventures and co-production projects, in contracting for engineering projects and providing labor services abroad and in aiding other countries.

A concrete plan on foreign economic relations and trade for 1983 was mapped out.

PRC DELEGATE ADDRESSES CHINA-EUROPE SYMPOSIUM

OW211228 Beijing XINHUA in English 1207 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 21 (XINHUA) -- Foreign bankers and enterpreneurs attending a Beijing forum on enterprise management were told today that China is undertaking two to three hundred projects involving imported funds and technology in 1982, two to three times as many as the average annual figure for the period from 1979 to 1981.

Zhu Rongji, member of the State Economic Commission and director of the commission's technical transformation bureau, told participants in the second China-Europe business leaders symposium that in 1983, there will be 500 such projects.

He said Deng Xiaoping, chairman of the Advisory Commission of the Central Committee of the Chinese Communist Party, has repeatedly called for boldly using foreign funds and technology to renovate small and medium-sized enterprises, since it involves virtually no risks in comparison to importation of large equipment. In 1983, he added, China will "take still greater steps" towards adopting more flexible policies and simpler procedures for approval of small and medium-sized enterprises using foreign funds and technology.

About 3,000 million U.S. dollars in foreign investment were involved in contracts and agreements that had been signed between China and other countries by the end of June. These contracts and agreements called for starting 44 joint ventures, 425 coproduction projects and 600 compensation projects. In addition to direct investment, he said, China seeks long and medium-range low-interest project loans from foreign governments and international banking organizations.

China prefers to import technology easily integrated with its natural resources and the production and managerial levels. Because of the high costs, Zhu Rongji said, import of the world's most up-to-date technology is impossible except in cases when this is absolutely necessary.

Priority in imported technology is given to designs, technological processes, manufacturing techniques and managerial skills, Zhu Rongji said. China also import what it cannot produce now, including key equipment, production lines, testing and inspection instruments.

Renovation of existing enterprises to tap production potential is a fundamental program in China's modernization effort. China's enterprises need to be renovated to produce better products, increase varieties, reduce costs and improve efficiency, he said.

Zhu Rongji added: "The purpose of our technological importation is to improve the economic results of our enterprises."

From 1979 to 1981, he said, the country spent 12,100 million yuan on technical renovation and transformation, resulting in increased capacities to save an amount of energy equivalent to 19 million tons of coal, reduce consumption of oil by eight million tons, and produce an annual average of light industrial and consumer goods worth 15,000 million yuan.

But potential for future advances is still great, Zhu Rongji said. For example, energy consumed by Chinese enterprises in producing 10,000 U.S. dollars of the national income is equivalent to 32.6 tons of standard coal. This contrasts to 5.5 tons consumed by Japanese enterprises and 13.1 tons by British enterprises.

OFFICIAL CITED ON TRANSPORTATION SHORTCOMINGS

HK220302 Beijing CHINA DAILY in English 22 Oct 82 p 3

[Article: "Problem of Transport Is Now Urgent, Official Says"]

[Text] An official of the State Economic Commission revealed that the national transportation network, including railways, waterways, highways, airlines and pipelines, which totalled 1.25 million kilometres in length by 1981, is still far from adequate to match the existing need of the national economy.

"This has become a problem more urgent than the shortage in energy supply," he said.

The most outstanding gap exists in the lack of shipping facilities to meet the demand for transporting coal from inland coal-producing centres in Shanxi, Henan, Ningxia and Inner-Mongolia and for import-export freight into or out of coastal cities.

This serious situation, resulting from ignoring the importance of developing transportation in the national economy during the past decade, is not expected to improve within a few years because construction of railway or port facilities takes time, he said.

However, in order to cope with the tremendous demand of quadrupling the annual gross value of national production within this century, great efforts are being made to improve the transportation system in the country with particular emphasis on the speedy development of port facilities and renovation of existing railways.

Freight volume via rail and waterway has already increased 6.9 percent and 38.3 percent respectively while passenger traffic increased 16.7 and 34.2 percent respectively last year as compared with 1979. Incoming and outgoing freight through seaports increased 10.6 percent in the same period.

Steps have been taken to boost double-tracking from the current 16 percent to 20 percent of all existing railways. And 25 percent of the railways will be electrified as against only 3 percent at present.

Similar efforts are being made to develop more and better ports and highways so as to form a comprehensive network of greater shipping capacity.

By 1992, the transport situation is expected to be considerably better and to provide a solid base for the coming economic boom during the next decade, the official said.

Plans are already being mapped out for the building up of an economically efficient, well-coordinated system of land, waterway and air transportation network before the end of this century.

PLANS TO BOOST PRODUCTION OF COMPUTERS REVEALED

HK220300 Beijing CHINA DAILY in English 22 Oct 82 p 2

[By a CHINA DAILY reporter: "China Bracing Up To Boost Computers"]

[Text] China has developed an ambitious and encouraging blueprint to more than triple computer production by 1990, Li Rui, general menager of the bureau of the national computer industry, has revealed.

China is striving to reach an annual production of 1,000 large, medium and small-sized computers and 10,000 micro and single-board computers by 1985.

By 1990, it is expected to reach an annual production capacity of 1,800 large, medium and small-sized computers and 40,000 micro and single-board computers.

"Our main goal is to establish a fully-fledged computer industry in China, thus by 1990 boosting it to the same level achieved in the advanced countries in the early 1980's," Li said.

Now China is capable of producing 500 large, medium and small-sized computers and 500 micro-computers annually. This year, China has experienced a big surge in computer production.

Between January and September, China produced 160 large, medium and small-sized computers, an increase of 62 percent over the corresponding period of last year, and 520 micro-computers, a jump of 160 percent.

China's computer industry, which has a workforce of 100,000, boasts 20 research institutes and 86 manufacturing plants. These are mainly located in Beijing, Shanghai, Tianjin, Guangdong, Liaoning and Fujian. There are 25 service centres across the country.

By 1981, computer centres had been launched in 22 provinces and municipalities, and more than 3,500 large, medium and small computers and 10,000 micro-computers were in use. Only in Tibet were there no computers in use.

Computers have been applied in more than 200 industries and sectors, ranging from the oil and chemical industries and machine building, to transport, banking and teaching.

The running of the Beijing-Shanghai railway has been successfully computerized. More efficient use of rolling stock means that an extra 3,000 rail cars can be in use at any one time.

"If we load one-third of those 3,000 rail cars, more than 13 million tons of goods can be shipped, thus increasing income by another 100 million yuan," Li said.

China is running the electric supply network in north China with computers, which is expected to save 300,000 tons of coal annually and increase annual income by another nine million yuan.

Part of China's industrial production control has been computerised, especially in the chemical and metallurgical industries.

The bureau is planning to upgrade some manufacturing plants and laboratories, and establish more service centres throughout the country.

"Our consistent policy is to rely on ourselves, and at the same time learn from the advanced technology of foreign countries," Li said. "If we blindly imported computers, we would have to spend billions of dollars before widespread use of computers in China was achieved."

Prior to 1981, China imported 500 standard computers and 10,000 micro and single-board computers from 14 countries, including the United States, Japan, France and West Germany, at a cost of about $500 million.

The bureau has established contacts with almost all of the world's influential computer companies and it is exploring the potential of collaboration with them in importing technology, joint ventures and the processing of imported parts.

This January, the bureau cosponsored a computer software service centre with Nippon Electric of Japan. The centre is designed to train Chinese personnel and cooperatively produce computer software.

Another service centre, cosponsored by the bureau and Sperry-UNIVAC of the United States, will open in two months. The American company will supply computer parts and send its technicians to China to help train Chinese personnel.

"We have just signed an agreement with Honeywell of the United States to co-operate in the production of large and medium-sized computers," Li said.

Now China sells its micro and single-board computers in Hong Kong and Southeast Asia. It is also expanding into Europe, Li said.

CADRES, EXPERTS PLEDGE TO DEVELOP HYDROPOWER

OW211131 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 0049 GMT 17 Oct 82

[Excerpts] Beijing, 17 Oct (XINHUA) -- In an interview with XINHUA reporters, conducted amidst the high tide of studying the documents of the 12th CPC National Congress, leading cadres and experts who have engaged in the construction of powerplants over a long time expressed their confidence in the future development of China's hydroelectric powerplants and pledged to redouble efforts to enable hydropower construction meet the need of quadrupling China's annual industrial and agricultural output.

Li Peng, vice minister of water conservancy and power, said: hydropower is a cheap, clean and recyclable energy source. By developing hydropower, we can conserve petroleum and coal as an energy source, ease the strain in transportation and achieve comprehensive results in flood prevention, irrigation and water navigation. The sooner we make efforts, the greater it will benefit the national economy. In order to speed up hydropower construction, the Ministry of Water Conservancy and Power has decided to concentrate efforts on building 10 major hydropower bases by the end of this century, including in the middle and upper reaches of the Huang He, on the Hongshui He, in the middle and upper reaches of the Chang Jiang, on the Yalong Jiang, the Dadu He and the Wu Jiang, in the middle reaches of the Lanchang Jiang, on the Jinsha Jiang and on rivers in western Hunan and the area bordering Fujian, Zhejiang and Jianxi, which have rich hydropower resources and good conditions for development.

Li Daigeng, vice minister of water conservancy and power, and Chen Gengyi, general manager of the Water Conservancy and Power Construction Corporation, said: In order to achieve the gigantic goal of quadrupling the annual industrial and agricultural output by the end of this century, hydropower construction should take the lead. In addition to building thermal power stations in areas with abundant coal deposits, attention must be given to developing hydropower because the construction of thermal powerplants is restricted by their dependency on coal deposits and transportation. China has rich hydroelectric resources with a potential capacity of 380 million kilowatts. However, only 3.4 percent of this capacity has been developed. There is great potential for developing hydropower. Plans for developing over 100 million kilowatts have been formulated.

Pan Jiazheng, chief engineer of the Water Conservancy and Power Planning and Designing Institute, and Zhang Changling, vice president of the China Hydroelectric Engineering Society, said: One of the favorable conditions for accelerating hydropower construction is that we have a 250,000-strong contingent of engineers and technicians who have accumulated rich experience in building various kinds of hydroelectric powerplants.

GOVERNMENT ASKED TO CONTACT KOREA ON DEFECTOR

OW211421 Taipei CNA in English 1404 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Text] Taipei, Oct 21 (CNA) -- The National Defense Committee of the Control Yuan approved a special motion Thursday, asking the government to contact positively with the Korean Government to send Wu Jung-ken, the freedom seeking Chinese Communist jet pilot, and his MIG-19, to the Republic of China.

Wang Shu-lin, member of the Control Yuan, said that Wu flew his MIG-19 jet to South Korea a few days ago as he defected the Chinese Communist regime but sources report that the South Korean Government intends to send the MIG-19 jet back to the Chinese Communist regime. He proposed that the government contact positively with the Korean Government to send both Wu and his jet fighter to his free motherland in Taiwan.

Another three members of the Yuan have also spoken on the issue and made the same proposal. The meeting decided to ask the committee to send the proposal to the Ministries of National Defense and Foreign Affairs.

INTERIOR MINISTER REJECTS MULTIPARTY SYSTEM

OW211235 Taipei CHUNG YANG JIH PAO in Chinese 16 Oct 82 p 1

[Text] In reply to inquiries addressed by Legislator Fei Hsi-ping, Interior Minister Lin Yang-kang pointed out yesterday: Today we are in an extraordinary period and are faced with an archenemy. If formation of new parties is allowed, we would not be able to limit the number of new parties or control their quality. This will do damage to our major task of anticommunism and national recovery.

Minister Lin Yang-kang also disagreed with Fei Hsi-ping's statement that disallowing the formation of new parties means dictatorship. He said: "Dictatorship is rule by the will of one or a few persons" without restraint by the public. Today our government has five yuans exercising separate powers. Under Article 63 of our Constitution, the Legislative Yuan has the power of deciding on laws, declaring war, concluding peace treaties and deciding on other important affairs of the state. The Executive Yuan cannot function without the approval of the Legislative Yuan. Therefore, disallowing the formation of new parties at the present stage cannot be regarded as undemocratic.

Minister Lin pointed out: Countries like West Germany and France which have multiparty systems do not encounter complicated environments. In these countries the disadvantages of a multiparty system will result in political instability at the worst but will not affect their national security or survival. But our country's conditions make us worry about the consequences of such a system.

Minister Lin recalled China's political turmoil between 1911 and 1923 when there were over 300 political parties. During this 12-year period, the head of state changed 10 times, the cabinet 45 times, parliament 5 times and the constitution 7 times. He said that these were the harmful results of having too many parties.

Minister Lin added: In elections, the Kuomintang [KMT] supports its candidates within the framework of the law. All military dependents and government and educational personnel have been voting according to their own free will. As a matter of fact, there are people among government and educational personnel who have supported non-KMT candidates. The KMT has not interfered in this. Therefore, elections in our country are truly just, fair and open contests.

NONPARTY FIGURE CALLS FOR PROMOTING DEMOCRACY

OW210905 Taipei TZU LI WAN PAO in Chinese 15 Oct 82 p 2

[Text] Addressing an inquiry to the Executive Yuan along the theme that "only democracy can achieve national recovery," Legislator Kang Ning-hsiang on 15 October urged the ruling party to promote democracy, do away with monopolistic practice and unite the entire people to rebuild confidence in a democratic and constitutional government.

Legislator Kang pointed out: In view of the unfavorable international situation, we must build up full strength while waiting for a new opportunity. This is a task that needs to be fulfilled through Taiwan's democratization. Only democracy can revitalize society in Taiwan. The imposition of martial law for 33 years has strengthened, concentrated and expanded the power of the ruling party to an unlimited degree and purposely undermined the principle of division of power in a constitutional government.

Regarding the establishment of new political parties, Kang Ning-hsiang said: The emergence of a multiple political party system is an inevitable process in political development. Shortcomings of a multiparty system can be corrected by the system itself and will disappear in the course of natural development. The evil manifestations of the "failure to make a distinction between party and government" have not only seriously corroded the normal functions of the political system but also damaged the healthy development of Taiwan's economy.

Citing the example of the disputes involving the party organization of the Control Yuan, Kan-hsiang said that the ruling party has forcibly seized public property and used it for party purposes. He also pointed out that certain expenditures of a party organization of the ruling party have formally been included in the government budget at various levels. Moreover, along with the strengthening of the ruling party's power, the number of enterprises run by the ruling party has increased and they have come to monopolize the market.

Legislator Kang stressed: Before there can be any change in the situation of cooperation between the United States and the Chinese Communists, we must accelerate democratization in Taiwan and build up our political and economic strength while waiting for the opportunity to oppose communism and recover the mainland. If the ruling party wants to revitalize the spiritual strength and determination of the entire people, it must realize its shortcomings and correct them.

CHINA POST: 3 PARTIES 'ENOUGH AT PRESENT'

OW211125 Taipei CHINA POST in English 17 Oct 82 p 2

[Editorial: "There Is Enough for Now"]

[Text] One of the subjects of the interpellations raised recently by legislators is the founding of a fourth political party, besides the Kuomintang, the Young China Party, and the China Democratic Socialist Party.

There is need for a new party, the non-partisans have said, because it would help promote democracy in this country. Democracy, they have asserted, is a goal they are pursuing. The goal is correct and admirable, yet one must be careful in choosing the way to carry it out.

In view of the present situation of the country, the formation of a new party would be superfluous, if not altogether unnecessary.

With the Chinese Communists across the Taiwan Strait constantly seeking to destroy this island bastion, what counts most today here is stability. It is stability that makes possible continued progress and prosperity, which are the only effective weapons for fighting communism.

The existence of a great many parties in the early years of the republic taught some bitter lessons. It was responsible for many of the internal and external troubles during those days.

Across the strait is a society now ruled by a totalitarian regime. The centralization of power on the mainland could prove to be an advantage should the regime decide to wage war in the strait. Unless the people on Taiwan remain united we could easily lose the war.

Due to the peace and stability that have existed here over the last 32 years some people have developed a false sense of security. The fact is that Taiwan can never be really secure as long as the mainland is under communist control. The existence of a part of China that is free, prosperous and progressive is of tremendous importance to China and the Chinese people as a whole. It is a beacon of hope for the millions of Chinese on the mainland, whose hopelessness can hardly be imagined by people living in the Free World.

Democracy is a very vague word. Many people use the word without knowing exactly what it means and many people find convenient interpretations suited to their objective.

Whatever the word means, democracy has been developed in this country to a point that sufficiently serves the interests of the nation. Elections of people's representatives at the local and central levels have been held in the last three decades as stipulated by the constitution of the nation. Any citizen, irrespective of party affiliation, may run for these and other elections freely if they are interested in choosing politics as their career.

Our situation at present is so delicate that chaos and division, such as the existence of too many parties can bring, would inevitably give the enemy a chance to seize this last stronghold of the Chinese anti-communist movement.

The three existing parties in Taiwan are enough for the present. The founding of a fourth could be justified after communism is eliminated from China's soil.

OVERSEAS CHINESE DAY MARKED IN TAIPEI 21 OCT

OW211441 Taipei CNA in English 1358 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Text] Taipei, Oct. 21 (CNA) -- A rally marking the 30th Overseas Chinese Day was held at the city hall auditorium Thursday.

President Chiang Ching-kuo's congratulatory message was read to the rally which was officiated by Wang Mei-chou, an overseas Chinese from the Philippines.

Vice President Shieh Tung-min, addressing the gathering, highly lauded the patriotism and anti-communist struggle that overseas Chinese have dedicated themselves to.

For the well-being and freedom of their descendants and the salvation of compatriots on the Chinese mainland, Vice President Shieh called for solidarity among all Chinese people around the world so as to crush Chinese Communism and reconstruct China through the three principles of the people.

Interior Minister Lin Yang-kang; Mo Sung-nien, chairman of the Commission of Overseas Chinese Affairs; and Tseng Kwang-shun, director of the Kuomintang Central Committee Overseas Affairs Department, also delivered speeches to the rally. They encouraged compatriots abroad to render their utmost support to the motherland for the accomplishment of the national mission.

More than 2,000 overseas Chinese attended the meeting. They read messages paying their respects to President Chiang and the armed forces and conveyed their regards to compatriots on the mainland.

The rally also marked the 30th founding anniversary of the Federation of Overseas Chinese Associations. The four-day directors meeting of the federation was opened simultaneously.

CNA REPORTS ON JET FIGHTER CRASHES IN PRC

OW220359 Taipei CNA in English 0238 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Taipei, Oct. 21 (CNA) -- Three MIG-19s, the mainstay of Red China's jet fighters, crashed in a single week last June while on training flights, according to an intelligence report. The planes were among those stationed at the Changchow airbase in Fukien across the Taiwan Straits.

At a meeting held to review the accidents by the Fukien military command, sabotage was blamed, and Tsai Yung-wei, deputy commander of the area's air force, was criticized for negligence as he was responsible for training and operation plans, the report added.

TRADE, TOURISM, COMMERCE TALKS WITH JAPAN

OW140349 Taipei CNA in English 0332 GMT 14 Oct 82

[Text] Taipei, Oct. 14 (CNA) -- The Republic of China and Japan will hold a series of three conferences between late October and early December aimed at improving the trade and economic relations between the two countries, according to informed sources.

The first will be the ROC-Japan Economic and Trade Conference to be held Oct. 28-29 in Taipei under the sponsorship of the Interchange Association and the Association of East Asian Relations. Just over 30 participants from the two nations will review ROC-Japan trade, economic and technical cooperation, and work out measures to improve the situation in these areas next year.

The second conference is the Tourism Committee meeting to be held in Taipei on Nov. 3 to discuss ways to promote the development of air transportation and tourism between the two nations. This meeting will be presided over by C.T. Hsu, chairman of the Ambassador Hotel. Participants will include Szeto Fu, chairman of China Air Lines, and representatives from the local tourism industry, as well as a delegation from Japan headed by Itakura Toshio, chairman of Japan Asia Airways.

The third will be the East Asia Businessmen's Conference scheduled to be held in Tokyo on Dec. 2-3. There will be 80 ROC participants, led by C.F. Koo, chairman of the Chinese Committee of the conference. The Japanese side will be headed by Tei Zo Horikoshi, chairman of the Japanese Committee.

This last meeting will consist of group discussions on general trade, investment and technical cooperation, financing, tourism, and more. The financing group is scheduled to discuss Taiwan Power Co.'s issuance of 5 billion Japanese yen (U.S. dollars 18.5 million) worth of corporate bonds in Japan, and proposed loans extended to local manufacturers of Japan.

HONG KONG FISHERMAN KILLED BY PRC FORCES

HK220116 Hong Kong SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST in English 22 Oct 82 pp 1, 18

[By Francis Li: "Tragedy on Chinese Island"]

[Text] A Hong Kong fisherman was shot dead on Saturday and his brother was seriously wounded as they tried to land on an island believed to be one of China's offshore restricted military zones.

Mr Law Yau-kam (42) was shot in the head and his brother, Mr Law Kam-fat (24), in his side as they and a man from another fishing vessel approached an island in the Pratas group in a sampan, about 6:30 on Saturday evening.

Yau-kam, who leaves a wife, five children and two elderly parents, died shortly after landing on the island.

Kam-fat is now being treated at the island's clinic.

Yau-kam was later buried on a small island in the South China Sea by members of his family.

Kam-fat's condition is said to be satisfactory, and unconfirmed reports claim that he is to be moved to Hainan Island, where better medical facilities are available. Another brother, Mr Law Kwai (36), is now staying on the island to take care of the wounded man.

The incident came to light when Yau-kam's eldest son, Chor-hei (20), reported it to the police on Cheung Chau yesterday morning. The Law family's fishing vessel returned to Cheung Chau about 2 pm on Wednesday, with Chor-hei, his mother, three other family members and two hired workers on board.

Sources close to leftwing fishing unions said yesterday that the Pratas Islands have been put on a "first degree military alert" ever since China's relations with Vietnam turned sour. The sources said Hong Kong fishermen who have registered with the Chinese authorities have been warned not to go near the islands.

According to Chor-hei, his father and uncle, together with a man from another vessel, Mr Fung Shue-kun, were fired on without warning when their sampan was about 30 metres from the shore.

The three were hoping to ask the people on the island whether fishermen on board about 15 Hong Kong fishing boats could shelter on the island from Typhoon Nancy, Chor-hei said. According to the Royal Observatory, there was already an 18-knot wind blowing in the area at the time.

Chor-hei said his boat, which left Cheung Chau on October 3, had been fishing in the area since October 5. About 14 other boats were seen fishing nearby.

Chor-hei said his family had been fishing near the Pratas Islands for five or six years without knowing that they might be close to a restricted military zone. He said his family had never landed on the island before.

"Four shots were fired from bushes on the beach without warning, until Mr Fung shouted that there were Chinese on board," he said. "When we finally reached the shore, no one came out to claim responsibility for the shooting."

Chor-hei was in tears as he recalled the way the wounded men were left to bleed. "We begged and begged, and a doctor finally came three hours later -- but my father was already dead by then," he said.

A spokesman for the Cheung Chau Fishermen's Mutual Aid Association said yesterday that the association would ask the Chinese authorities for an explanation of the incident.

MING PAO ON PURGE OF 'ULTRALEFTIST' HUANG GUANG

HK220546 Hong Kong MING PAO in Chinese 22 Oct 82 p 5

[Special dispatch from Beijing: "CPC Resolved To Purge Ultraleftists; Huang Guang Already Dismissed"]

[Text] Huang Guang, the daring vanguard of the ultraleftists in the literature and art circles on the mainland, has lost his power and influence. The CPC Central Committee Secretariat recently issued a document announcing the removal of Huang Gang from his post of chief editor of SHIDAI DE BAOGAO [CONTEMPORARY REPORT]. This is another incident, gratifying to the people, which occurred after the removal of Wang Renzhong and Wei Guoqing from their respective posts of director of the CPC Central Committee Propaganda Department and director of the PLA General Political Department and the open self-criticism of JIEFANGJUN BAO. This shows that within the CPC the political force formed jointly by the "whatever" faction and the ultraleftist faction is weakening day by day and that the political position of Deng and Hu's pragmatist faction has been further consolidated.

According to reports, the CPC Central Committee Standing Committee decided to enjoin Deng Liqun, the present director of the CPC Central Committee Propaganda Department, to handle Huang Guang's case. The CPC Central Committee Secretariat recently issued a document concerning the results of the handling of Huang Guang's case. It points out that the historical concept of "the 16 years since the Great Cultural Revolution" put forward by Huang Guang has confused two different periods -- the 10 years of the Cultural Revolution and the 6 years after the third plenary session -- and, in essence, opposes the line pursued since the third plenary session, opposes changing the formulation of literature and art serving politics to literature and art serving the people and socialism which was put forward by Deng Xiaoping in his toast proposed at the congress of the fourth committee of the Chinese literature and art circles and is not in keeping with the CPC Central Committee. The document includes the decision to remove Huang Guang from his post of chief editor of SHIDAI DE BAOGAO, withdraw all army writers from the editorial work of SHIDAI DE BAOGAO, change SHIDAI DE BAOGAO into a pure publication for newsletters and stop it from participating in work concerning theory and criticism of literature and art. It also includes the suggestion that Huang Guang become a professional writer of newsletters.

Huang Guang's original name was Huang Hongji. He was born in Wuchang, Hubei in 1917. His father, Huang Fusheng, was a CPC member of great seniority who enjoyed popularity equal to Chen Tanqiu and Cai Hesen. Near the end of the war of resistance against Japanese aggression, he went to Yanan and entered the literature department of the Lu Xun Arts Institute. After graduation, he was sent to work in Yanan's JIEFANG RIBAO. Later, he was transferred to the XINHUA NEWS AGENCY and was for some time director general of the agency. He was very intimate with Liu Baiyu, a war correspondent at that time.

After the CPC founded the PRC, Huang Guang worked successively in Shanghai and Beijing. He took up leading administrative work in literature, art and film and was once secretary of the Chinese Photography Association. He has always been very conceited and thinks himself to be the most revolutionary. He felt that Zhou Yang and Xia Xian should not have led the literature and art circles and regards them as right-deviationists. Consequently, he found it difficult to consolidate his position.

After the Cultural Revolution, Huang Guang taught at the journalism department of the International Politics College. Later, he published the quarterly SHIDAI DE BAOGAO in the name of the International Newsletters Society and he himself acted as chief editor. He was strongly supported by Liu Baiyu, who sent a great number of army writers to SHIDAI DE BAOGAO to act as editors. After that, Huang Guang became a henchman of Liu Baiyu and a daring vanguard in criticizing Bai Hua.

In April this year, Huang Guang published a number of articles in the second issue of SHIDAI DE BAGGAO under the heading of restudying Mao Zedong's "Talks at the Yanan Forum of Literature and Art" together with a 500-character "Notes by This Journal" in which he put forward the historical concept of "the 16 years since the Great Cultural Revolution." He tried hard to prove that in these 16 years Mao Zedong's thinking on literature and art was distorted and altered and that in the first 10 years ultraleftist ideas were the main trend while in the latter 6 years right-deviationist ideas were the main trend, "subsequently landing ourselves in the quagmire of bourgeois liberalization." Evidently, this was directed against Deng Xiaoping and it opposed the line formulated at the third plenary session.

At present, the CPC is removing ultraleftists from the army and literature and art circles. The replacement of the director of the CPC Central Committee Propaganda Department and the director of the PLA General Political Department in succession was only a signal. It is believed that more people will be removed from their posts one after another. It is not at all surprising that this "Yao Wenyuan II" has been removed.

TA KUNG PAO: PRICES TO BE ALLOWED TO FLUCTUATE

HK210234 Hong Kong TA KUNG PAO in English 21 Oct 82 p 6

[Text] Chinese industrial and commercial enterprises are now allowed to produce and supply 160 small daily necessities, hardware, stationery and electrical appliances for domestic use according to market demand, to overcome over-concentration of production and supply by the state -- a long-standing economic shortcoming of China's, the ECONOMIC INFORMATION reported recently.

From now on, prices will be allowed to fluctuate according to supply and demand for products ranging from elastic cord, shoelaces, buttons, brushes and hairpins to some cooking utensils and bicycle parts -- products which are usually produced in great varieties but have a low output value. Work will be done so that in two or three years the same price policy will be applied to more small commodities whose control by state is now regarded as impossible and unnecessary.

Prices for small commodities will be fixed by the industrial enterprises or commercial departments, according to a State Council-approved report jointly prepared by the State Administration of Commodity Prices, the Ministry of Light Industry and the Ministry of Commerce. The authorities, on their part, will work out the principles for fixing the prices and policies for price differences between the town and countryside and between different areas, and in the course of commodity circulation.

TA KUNG PAO ON FOREIGN EXCHANGE, GOLD RESERVES

HK210116 Hong Kong TA KUNG PAO in English 21 Oct 82 p 1

["By our Beijing Correspondent"]

[Text] China's foreign exchange reserves for the months of April, May and June this year were respectively U.S. $5.833 billion, U.S. $6.321 billion and U.S. $7.059 billion, according to the latest issue of CHINA FINANCE published on October 19.

The June reserves showed an increase of U.S. $1.854 billion over the figure for March, the last month of the first quarter, which stood at U.S. $5.205 billion.

The Beijing-based journal also disclosed that China's gold reserve in the second quarter of 1982 was maintained at the same level as the first quarter, i.e. 12.67 million ounces.

For the months of April, May and June, the exchange rates of the SDR against the RMB were 2.0534, 2.0554 and 2.1091 respectively; the exchange rates of the U.S. dollar against the RMB for the same period were 1.8177, 1.8285 and 1.9310 respectively.

OFFICIAL WRITES ON PRC ELECTRONICS INDUSTRY

HK070743 Hong Kong SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST in English 7 Oct 82 Canton trade fair supplement p 20

[Article by Peng Shulian, director of the Policy Research Section of the PRC Ministry of Electronics Industry, published in the CHINA MARKET magazine: "China's Electronic Industry Readjusts Product Structure"]

[Text] For a rather long period of time in the past, the irrational product structure of China's newly-emerging electronic industry had blocked the ways to boosting production.

The major problem lay in its service orientation which was confined to a very narrow area.

However, in light of the national readjustment programme, the electronic industry has, in the past few years, made efforts to change the product structure and its service orientation, and have achieved remarkable results.

To start with, consumer products have been considerably increased. The past two years saw a great expansion in the output and variety of TV's, radio sets and cassette tape-recorders, as well as corresponding improvements in quality.

Last year, for instance, 5.03 million TV sets, 36.3 million radio sets and 1.39 million tape-recorders were produced, an increase of 122 per cent, 32 percent and 69 percent, respectively, over the previous year.

Last year the departments concerned continued to gear the production of durable consumer electronic products to market demands by developing name-brand products and upgrading the products' quality. The result was satisfactory.

Energetic efforts have also been made to develop the production of electronic capital goods.

In the past two years, the electronic industry has played a remarkable role in the technical transformation of various economic departments and in popularising applied electronic technology.

A good example is the production of complete sets of equipment for the technical transformation of the power, petroleum, metallurgical and machine-building industries and for marine investigation and meteorological observation.

In the computer industry, the emphasis has been shifted from manufacture to popularisation. It has since undertaken 299 applicable items, of which 55 were listed as key items for popularisation.

In the energy, light and textile industries, as well as in communications, education and enterprise management, a number of typical items for popularisation have been explored.

The Shanghai No 28 cotton mill, for instance, has adopted the loom computer monitoring system which, after trial runs, has helped raise loom efficiency by 1.5 to two percent.

The Nanjing radio plant, whose Panda-brand TV and radio sets enjoy a brisk market at home and abroad, has introduced a computer system as a means to improve its management, which has proved to be effective after a period of trial runs.

This shows that China's computer industry has moved from its formerly stressed application in the fields of scientific and engineering calculations to data processing for various economic departments in their management and real time control.

Third, active measures have been taken to produce electronic products serving science, education, culture and society as a whole.

At present, in the fields of TV teaching facilities, computer-laser Chinese characters editing and typesetting system, computer multi-terminal teaching system, single system servicing several endusers, automatic pricing system for commercial purposes, medical electronic equipment, electronic organs, large recreation facilities, electronic toys and household electric appliances, many new varieties have been evolved and some have already been put into serial production.

It is envisaged that the large potential of applications in these fields will be taken step by step and the electronic industry will play a distinctive role in these areas.

Fourth, the export of electronic products has increased. For over 10 years in the past, the annual export volume of electronic products hovered around U.S. $10 million. In the past two years, however, the volume of transactions has gone up steadily.

Since the establishment of the China Electronic Technology Import and Export Corporation, which integrates production with trade, and adopts flexible and diverse trading methods, the value of direct exports last year was U.S. $59.32 million, a 2.5-fold increase over the previous year.

In addition, through exporting complete sets of electronic equipment in coordination with other industrial departments, the volume of transactions came to U.S. $41 million. The combined total exceeded U.S. $100 million.

At the same time, the export product structure has also been changed. Apart from radio components, electric vacuum devices, transistor parts and radio sets exported in the past, radio communication equipment, electronic instruments, mini-electric machinery, special electronic materials, numerical-control cutting machine tools have been added to the list. TV sets have broken into the international market.

Some products such as the "Feile" loud-speakers, "Jianyu" magnetic antenna and "999" buzzers have become famous products well received by customers in Hong Kong and Macao and in many other countries.

While readjusting the product structure, China's electronic industry has given due attention to the research and development of new equipment in order to improve the quality and reliability of the products.

With the co-operation of the electronic industry and other departments concerned, China successfully launched a carrier rocket over the Pacific Ocean in 1980 and last year several satellites into space on one single rocket. All the electronic equipment used in these experiments were designed and made by the Chinese electronic industrial departments themselves. The experiments show that the technology is advanced, and the operation of the equipment is steady, accurate and reliable.

These are factors that ensured the success of the carrier rocket experiments. They abundantly proved that China's electronic industry has a solid material and technological foundation and has reached a fairly high level.

The readjustment of the product structure of China's electronic industry is still in progress. It can be expected that the export of electronic products will continue to increase.

Under the principle of "promoting export through import and using export to sustain import," the import of advanced foreign technology and equipment will likewise increase in the days to come.

In short, the prospects are bright for China's electronic industry both in import and in export.

TA KUNG PAO REPORTS PETROLEUM FIRM'S CHARTER

HK120217 Hong Kong TA KUNG PAO in Chinese 7 Oct 82 p 1

["Articles of Association of the South China Sea Joint Petroleum Service Company"]

[Text] Chapter I -- General Principles

Article 1. These articles are formulated in accordance with the "Regulations for the Joint Exploitation of Sea Coast Petroleum by the PRC" and Article No 171 on Economic Enterprises (1982) by the State Economic Commission on the approval of the establishment of the South China Sea Joint Service Company.

Article 2. The South China Sea Joint Petroleum Service Company (hereinafter abbreviated as the Company) is a joint enterprise formed with the PRC Ministry of Petroleum Industry and the People's Government of Guangdong Province. It is an economic entity with legal standing.

Article 3. The task of the Company is to provide rear services for the exploitation of petroleum in the South China Sea, including the construction and service of the base, helicopters, shipping, communication, underwater operations, labor services, materials (not including special materials for exploiting petroleum), living services, manufacture and repair of equipment and so forth.

Article 4. During its service activities in the exploitation of South China Sea petroleum, the Company must insist on socialist orientation, implement the principles and policies of the state and observe the relative laws and decrees of the state.

Chapter II -- Organizational System

Article 5. The Company forms the board of directors which is composed of one managing director, several deputy managing directors and several directors. The board of directors executes under its leadership, the office of the general manager taking responsibility. There is one general manager and several assistant managers. The general manager is the legal representative of the Company and the main person in charge. The assistant managers are responsible to the general manager according to their division of work.

Article 6. The Company establishes, under it the general manager's office, the personnel department, business department, promotion department, finance department, external liaison department, material company and labor service company. The Company is located in Guangzhou.

Article 7. According to the needs of the exploitation of South China Sea petroleum and coordination with foreign companies, the Company establishes under it several companies, such as: specialized companies for helicopters, shipping, communications, underwater operations, living services, manufacture and repair of equipment and several service companies for the base.

Article 8. The Company exercises unified planning, unified management, unified command and unified control over the rear service and construction of the base for South China Sea petroleum. At the same time, it performs the duties of overall planning, organization, coordination and supervision endowed by the Guangdong People's Government.

Article 9. The functions and powers of the board of directors:

1. Prepare business principles, present and long-term plans and annual working schemes for the Company in accordance with the principles and policies of the state and the plan for the exploitation of South China Sea petroleum.

2. Examine and approve investment items, the amount of foreign investment to be employed and the agreement and plan for repayment.

3. Examine and approve the Company's capital construction scheme, annual business plan, financial budget and the year-end financial statement.

4. Examine the internal contract regulations and dealing plans of losses and gains of major economic activities.

5. Examine and approve the appointment and removal of the main personnel of the Company and employment of advisers and experts.

6. Revise the articles of the Company.

7. Listen to and examine the work report of the general manager.

8. Examine and approve the opinions of the general manager on the plans of setting up or canceling Company organs.

9. The board of directors is elected for a term of 5 years. The board generally holds two meetings a year. In case of important events, temporary meetings may be held. The managing director chairs the meeting.

Article 10. Duties of the general manager:

1. Carry out business principles and plans formulated by the board of directors and the relative instructions and decisions of the responsible departments at the higher levels.

2. Be responsible for leading and organizing the Company and the enterprises under the Company's jurisdiction to implement and accomplish the annual plan and tasks of all contract service items.

3. With the approval of the board of directors and within the limits of cadres assigned responsibility, he has the right to appoint, remove, reward and punish the working staff of the Company.

4. Submit to the board of directors the yearly financial report, major investment items and the profit distribution scheme.

5. Submit to the board of directors his suggestions on the setting up, changes and readjustment of organizations of the Company and its subordinate units.

6. Within the stipulations of the state, he has the right to command, dispatch, control and deal with the people, property and material of the Company.

7. Regularly submit work reports to the board of directors.

Chapter III -- Business Management

Article 11. The policy of socialization and opening to foreigners is adopted in the rear services for extracting and refining the petroleum of the South China Sea. The principle of internal unity and cooperation with foreigners in business management is adopted.

Article 12. In developing the construction of the base and the rear services for the South China Sea petroleum, it is necessary to make full use resources available in China and to act in a planned manner. Services are supplied according to demand in accordance with the plans and tasks issued by the state and the contracts signed between various petroleum companies.

Article 13. In accordance with the principle of equality and mutual benefit, various forms of cooperation with the compatriots of Hong Kong and Macao, overseas Chinese and foreign manufacturers are carried out. Advanced techniques, facilities and experiences in management are introduced to provide base services and rear services for exploring and extracting the petroleum in the South China Sea.

Chapter IV -- Capital

Article 14. The Company's registered capital is RMB 100 million. The Ministry of Petroleum Industry and the People's Government of Guangdong Province contribute 50 percent each.

Article 15. The capital of the enterprise consists of: 1) the shared capital of the joint venture; 2) bank loans; 3) foreign capital. The Company raises capital through unified negotiation and the Company is responsible for the creditors' rights and liabilities.

Article 16. The Company and its branches bear economic responsibilities. Autonomous management is practiced and losses and gains are independently audited. Gains and losses are distributed according to the number of shares and the branches pay their management fees to the Company.

Article 17. The Company opens separate accounts in the People's Bank of China, the People's Construction Bank of China and the Bank of China. Profits are first used to pay off debts and increase capital.

Article 18. The Company's yearly fund flow plan and its final accounts are included in those of the People's Government of Guangdong Province. The two shareholder parties audit the accounts of the Company.

Chapter V -- Personnel Management

Article 19. In accordance with the characteristics of the oceanic petroleum services and the relevant regulations of the state, a new system of personnel management, remunerations, fringe benefits and premium is to be tried.

Article 20. The professional technical personnel and skilled labor of the Company and its branches are gradually recruited through examinations. The best are selected and given work suited to their abilities. Vigorous management and examination systems are established.

Article 21. In order to provide various forms of labor and services for foreign companies, all kinds of professional personnel and technical personnel are organizationally and systematically trained and educated. The contract system is adopted in providing labor and services.

Chapter VI -- Appendix

Article 22. The Company has the right to formulate detailed rules and regulations in accordance with the articles.

Article 23. These articles have been passed by the board of directors, presented to the People's Government of Guangdong Province and to the Ministry of Petroleum Industry for examination and verification and were approved by the State Economic Commission before coming into force.

Article 24. The board of directors has the right to interpret and revise these articles.

FBIS DAILY REPORT

China

Vol I No 206 25 October 1982

CONTENTS

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

PRC To Send Delegation to Asian Games in India A 1
UNGA Calls For End to Iran-Iraq War 22 Oct A 1
RENMIN RIBAO Examines Antihegemonism Issue [9 Oct] A 1
Officials Attend UN Day Celebration in Beijing A 4

UNITED STATES

Clark's Presence at Taiwan Reception Protested B 1
KYODO: Deng Xiaoping Raps U.S. Taiwan Policy B 1
CPPCC Vice Chairman Meets Los Angeles Group B 2
RENMIN RIBAO Examines U.S. Farm Surplus 'Crisis' [21 Oct] B 2
Kang Shien Meets With Chairman of U.S. Firm B 3
BAN YUE TAN Reviews Career of William Casey [10 Oct] B 3

SOVIET UNION

AFP: Deng Says 'Many Problems' Remain With USSR C 1
KYODO: Zhao Says PRC To Continue Talks With USSR C 1

NORTHEAST ASIA

Komeito Party Chairman Feted in Beijing D 1
Wang Zhen Hosts Banquet D 1
Meets Deng Xiaoping D 1
Japanese Friendship Delegation Visits Beijing D 2
Zhao Meets Group D 2
Feted by Wang Zhen D 2
Further Reports on Volunteer Delegation Visit D 2
Visits Zhou Enlai Statue D 2
Received by Kim Il-song D 2
Feted in Pyongyang D 3
Pakistan's Ziaul Haq Arrives in Pyongyang D 3

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

Foreign Ministry Delegation Leaves for Thailand E 1
Thai Army General Discusses SRV Reinforcements E 1
Thailand's Prem Calls For SRV Pullout From DK E 1

SOUTH ASIA

Reportage on Indian Society Delegation's Visit F 1
Meets Zhao Ziyang F 1
Wang Bingnan Hosts Banquet F 1
Further Reports on Pakistan President's Visit F 2
Haq Arrives in Shanghai F 2
Haq Concludes Visit F 2
Pakistan Press Reaction F 2
Ye Jianying Congratulates Sri Lankan President F 3

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

Further Reports on Al-Qadhdhafi's Visit I 1
XINHUA Account I 1
AFP Report I 1
Leaves Tripoli I 1
Arrival in Beijing I 1
Welcomed by Zhao Ziyang I 2
Israel Rapped at Telecommunications Talks I 2
Arab Nations Delay Call To Oust Israel From UN I 3

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

RENMIN RIBAO Stresses Correct 'State of Mind' [25 Oct] K 1
Leaders Attend Science Awards Conference K 3
Fang Yi Speech K 4
Zhao Ziyang Addresses Meeting K 6
Zhao on Scientific Progress K 7
Science Must Serve Economy K 8
Zhao on Increasing Initiative K 8
Scientists' Part in Planning K 9
Awards Detailed K 9
Two Interviews With Award-Winning Scientists K 10
Atomic Physicist K 10
Quantum Theorist K 12
Zhao Ziyang Attends Foreign Trade Conference K 13
Economist on PRC's Growing Role in World Economy K 14
CHINA DAILY on Domestic Economy During Recession [24 Oct] K 15
Agreements Signed To Protect Foreign Investment K 17
Technology Imports Official on Trade Policies K 17
Commerce Minister on Changes in Commercial Work K 18
Railway Security Workers Commended in Meeting K 20
Fifth Generation Women Pilots Demonstrate Skills K 20

TAIWAN

Korea Allows PRC Pilot To Come to Taiwan V 1
Foreign Ministry Statement V 1
Korea Thanked V 1
AFP: PRC Declines Comment V 1

HONG KONG MEDIA ON CHINA

WEN WEI PO Views Prospects for Sino-Soviet Talks [25 Oct] W 1
Wounded Fisherman Returns From Paracels W 2
[HONG KONG STANDARD 24 Oct]
Guangdong Officials on PRC View Toward Hong Kong W 2
[KUANG CHIAO CHING No 121, 16 Oct]

PRC TO SEND DELEGATION TO ASIAN GAMES IN INDIA

OW230858 Beijing XINHUA in English 0819 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Excerpts] Beijing, October 23 (XINHUA) -- China today announced the formation of a 445-member sports delegation, including 308 athletes, to the ninth Asian Games to be staged in New Dehli of India from November 19 to December 4.

Also including officials, coaches and referees, it is the largest sports delegation China has sent to the Asian Games since its first appearance in the seventh Asian Games in Tehran in 1974, and indeed to any international sports event.

Leader of the delegation is Chen Xian, vice-minister of the State Physical Culture and Sports Commission, with Wei Jitong (also secretary general), He Zhenliang, Liu Junchen and Wu Zhongyuan as deputy leaders.

The Indian Sports Ministry has announced that up to October 7 31 countries and regions had confirmed their participation in the ninth Asian Games.

Chinese delegation leader Chen Xian has told XINHUA that the Chinese athletes, coaches and referees are participating in the games with an aim to learn from and exchange experience with the participants from other countries, strengthen friendship with them and the people of their countries, and promote the development of sports in Asia.

UNGA CALLS FOR END TO IRAN-IRAQ WAR 22 OCT

OW230730 Beijing XINHUA in English 0707 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] United Nations, October 22 (XINHUA) -- The U.N. General Assembly today adopted a resolution calling for an immediate cease-fire and withdrawal of forces by Iran and Iraq as a preliminary step towards the settlement of their dispute.

The resolution pointed out that the Iran-Iraq war has not only caused heavy losses in life and material in a politically and economically strategic region, but also endangered international peace and security.

All other states should abstain from all actions which could contribute to the continuation of the conflict, the resolution said.

The resolution, adopted by a vote of 119 in favour, 1 against and 15 abstentions, requested the secretary-general to continue his efforts to help find a peaceful settlement.

RENMIN RIBAO EXAMINES ANTIHEGEMONISM ISSUE

HK090834 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 9 Oct 82 p 6

[Article by Chen Zhongjing [7115 1813 4842]: "Oppose Hegemonism, Preserve World Peace"]

[Text] Comrade Hu Yaobang said in his report at the 12th party congress: "To oppose hegemonism and preserve world peace is the most important task for the world's people today." "Together with the peoples of the world, we will continue to struggle to oppose imperialism and hegemonism and preserve world peace." Comrade Deng Xiaoping also pointed out in his opening speech at the congress: Opposing hegemonism and preserving world peace is one of the three main tasks of the people of our country in the 1980's. I here give some initial views on this major task:

1. The whole party and the people of the whole country must in the future make concerted efforts to "create a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization."

This "new situation" includes economic construction, the building of spiritual civilization, the building of socialist democracy and legal system, national defense construction and party building. It also includes work in foreign affairs. A current important strategic aim in our foreign affairs work is to preserve world peace and strive for a relatively long period of peace and a peaceful international environment. In this way we can "concentrate our efforts on socialist construction." Of course, should the aggressors impose war on us, we are certainly not afraid of it. If we know what's what and make the necessary preparation, we will be alright. Attaining this strategic aim in foreign affairs work in the "new situation" is a task not only for the two fronts of foreign affairs and national defense construction, it is also a major task for all other fronts.

2. The "general program" of the new party constitution clearly stipulates: "The party's ideological line is to proceed from reality in everything, to link theory with practice, to seek truth from facts and to test and develop the truth in practice." In solving the new problems put forward in international affairs and mapping out and executing policies and principles in foreign affairs, we must similarly follow this ideological line, scientifically sum up the experiences of history and investigate and study the practical situation.

Recalling World War II, although the joint struggle of the international antifascist united front defeated German, Italian and Japanese fascism in the end and reversed the fate and history of the whole of mankind, the war caused tremendous losses in life and property. The countries involved lost 55-60 million military personnel and civilians, of which about 40 million were lost by China and the Soviet Union. The war cost the world about $1,400 billion in expenditures and property losses (according to the 1980 "Encyclopedia Brittannica" and the 1974 American "World Encyclopedia"). In Japan, then an aggressor country under military control, nearly 670,000 civilians were killed in air raids, and the Japanese economy was in a state of complete collapse at the end of 1945 (according to "History of a Century of Turmoil" by Yoshida).

Several decades have passed since that period of history, but the events remain fresh in our memory. Today, the remnants of the colonialist system have not yet been completely cleared away, while the superpowers practicing hegemonism constitute a new threat to the peoples of the world. The danger of world war is becoming ever more serious due to the rivalry between the superpowers. This is the most cruel reality objectively existing in the world today. Advancing the solemn and great task of "opposing hegemonism and preserving world peace" is absolutely not subjective and arbitrary; it is precisely based on the reality of the strategic situation in the world today.

Political commentators and strategists in the world today have put forward a number of views on the current world situation; some say that there will be no war for quite a long time because the Soviet Union and the United States do not want to directly wage war with each other, and wars now occur in certain intermediate zones or between small countries, which have become a testing ground for the new weapons of the superpowers; some say that future great war will be nuclear war and that the moment it is launched, both sides will perish together, and so the Soviet Union and United States actually dare not launch such a war but, instead, adopt a peripheral strategy and go no further than nuclear deterrence or terror; some say that the Soviet Union and United States may reach a tacit understanding or compromise, draw up spheres of influence afresh and so on. It cannot be said that there ideas are completely devoid of reason, but what merits still more serious attention and vigilance is the fact that from east to west across the whole world, partial wars have never ceased in the 37 years since World War II. Today, the flames of war blaze in many places, from the jungles of Kampuchea and the deserts and mountains of Afghanistan to the shores of the Persian Gulf and the valleys of Lebanon.

All these partial wars are inseparably linked to superpower rivalry. In some cases they themselves carried out direct aggression, in some they make use of small hegemonists or provide indirect support or instigation; while in others they sooner or later take full advantage. As the rivalry between the two superpowers becomes even more fierce, the possibility of a partial war evolving into a major war is growing daily. Will World War III indeed be a nuclear war? Not necessarily. It may very well be another conventional war. Comrade Hu Yaobang clearly stated in his report: "We oppose not only a world war prepared by the superpowers, we also oppose all partial wars of aggression instigated or supported by them." This merits deep attention and thought. In short, the ever-growing global rivalry between the two superpowers is precisely the main source of the turmoil in the world and the threat to world peace.

3. Comrade Hu Yaobang said in his report: "China's future is closely linked to the future of the world." "The foreign policy of independence and keeping the initiative in our own hands that we persistently practice is identical with the lofty task of preserving world peace and promoting the progress of mankind which we are carrying out." We must unite with all countries and peoples in the world that are willing to strive for the cause of peace. The five principles of peaceful coexistence that we uphold are applicable to our relations with every country. In the world today, the factors of war are on the rise, and so are the factors for cursing war. All forces for preserving peace and curbing war must actively unite.

At the same time, we Chinese Communists have always clearly stated our political viewpoint without mincing words. The two phrases "oppose hegemonism, preserve world peace" are closely related. Peace cannot be gained by prayer, and war cannot be avoided by concession. To effectively preserve world peace, it is essential to take forceful measures and take some sound action to oppose hegemonism. As far as the overall situation is concerned, an important measure in opposing all manifestations of hegemonism and expansionism is to disrupt their strategic plans. In every part of the world, and especially in the world as a whole, we will oppose any country that practices hegemonism, and we oppose still more any country that is still more ferocious and aggressive in pursuing hegemonism, first concentrating on disrupting its strategic plans. If the people of the whole world unite as one and wage unwearying struggle, it is possible for world peace to be preserved.

4. "The rise of the Third World on the international stage since the war is the cardinal event of our era." In the world today, it is still the Third World that is most menaced by hegemonism, and it is also the Third World that is most concerned for preserving world peace. The past history of the Third World and its present status determine that the Third World is the main force for opposing hegemonism and preserving world peace. Similarly, this is not something that can be changed at the will of man. Third World unity and solidarity constitute the foundation of the worldwide force for opposing hegemonism and preserving world peace. Earnest vigilance and resolute opposition against all kinds of superpower splittist conspiracies in the Third World constitutes an extremely important measure for disrupting hegemonist strategic plans.

5. Comrade Deng Xiaoping said in his opening speech at the 12th party congress: Of the three main tasks for the people of our country in the 1980's, "economic construction is the core and the basis for solving international and domestic problems." This is an extremely important principle. Many Third World countries are actively developing their national economies so as to consolidate with economic independence the political independence they have already won. The Third World countries need to strengthen economic as well as political unity. Comrade Hu Yaobang made a point of mentining "South-South cooperation" in his report and also highly evaluated this type of economic cooperation as "being of tremendous strategic significance."

Our China must also vigorously develop its own economy, the better to share with other Third World countries the important task of opposing hegemonism and preserving world peace, and we will then also be able to make a greater contribution to the world. I mention in passing that more than half a year ago two foreign publications simultaneously carried articles, one of which stated that China was extremely poor and of "no strategic significance," while the other declared that China was "a tiger, not a lamb." People can decide for themselves how things really stand. In short we must strive to quadruple by the year 2000 our total value of industrial and agricultural production by raising it to about 2,800 billion yuan. This great goal can certainly be attained with the people of all nationalities throughout the country working tobether. Of course, some people may say: Your average national income per person will still be rather low. Our view is: that is so, our "denominator" is too great; with 1.2 billion people, the average income cannot rise very greatly in a short time; however, per capita income cannot completely express a country's development level. Our view is: In sizing up a country, especially a big country, the important thing is to look at the scale, characteristics and development potentials of its national economy and at how much it will be able to mobilize its people and concentrate its power. As for how to use the total sum of 2,800 billion yuan, which is not small, that too is a matter of great import; in using it we can make overall plans and arrangements, and this is precisely where the superiority of our socialist system lies. We ourselves must first have a basis and make an analysis and a relatively comprehensive and accurate estimate of the development of our national strength. We must know what's what. In this way we will be able to "have more foundation" for confidently upholding our foreign policy of independence and keeping the initiative in our own hands and carrying out our lofty international duty of opposing hegemonism, preserving world peace and promoting the progress of mankind.

OFFICIALS ATTEND UN DAY CELEBRATION IN BEIJING

OW230802 Beijing XINHUA in English 0749 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 23 (XINHUA) --On the occasion of the United Nations Day, Nessim Shallon, resident co-ordinator of the United Nations System's Operational Activities for Development in China, gave a reception here today.

Among the guests were Qian Xinzhong, minister in charge of the State Family Planning Commission, Han Xu, vice-minister of foreign affairs, and leading members of other government departments.

Diplomatic envoys of various countries to China were also present.

CLARK'S PRESENCE AT TAIWAN RECEPTION PROTESTED

OW221652 Beijing Xinhua in English 1638 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Washington, October 21 (XINHUA) -- Chinese Ambassador to the United States Chai Zemin has lodged a protest against U.S. senior officials' presence at the so called "National Day" reception given by Taiwan's "North America Affairs Coordination Committee" in the United States.

In his meeting with Thomas P. Shoesmith, acting assistant secretary of state for east Asia and Pacific affairs on Monday, Chai Zemin quoted reports in Taiwan newspapers, CHINA TIMES, UNITY and METRO CHINESE JOURNAL, to show that William P. Clark, assistant to the President for national security affairs, and some other high-ranking U.S. officials were present at the "October 10 National Day" reception held in Washington on October 5.

William Clark even expressed congratulations on behalf of President Ronald Reagan, he noted.

Chai Zemin pointed out that this was a grave incident that ran counter to the Sino-U.S. communique on the establishment of diplomatic relations and the recent joint communique between the two countries. He said it was essentially an attempt to create "two Chinas" or "one China, one Taiwan."

The ambassador said as the incident took place not long after the issuance of the Sino-U.S. joint communique and at a time when the U.S. side had repeatedly professed to honor the communique, it could not but arouse the grave concern of the Chinese side.

Chai Zemin also noted that five states and nine cities in the United States had recently announced October 10 as the "day of the Republic of China" and government officials in some states and cities had participated in "October 10" celebrations.

All this was not accidental and the U.S. State Department bore unshirkable responsibility for it, he pointed out. The Chinese ambassador demanded that the U.S. Government take effective measures to prevent the recurrence of such incidents.

KYODO: DENG XIAOPING RAPS U.S. TAIWAN POLICY

OW241020 Tokyo KYODO in English 1010 GMT 24 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, Oct 24 KYODO -- Deng Xiaoping, China's strongman now head of the Chinese Communist Party Central Advisory Commission, Sunday expressed his strong dissatisfaction with the United States Government's policy toward Taiwan, including the sale of arms.

He made this remark at a one-hour meeting with Yoshikatsu Takeiri, chairman of the Komeito Party, now visiting Beijing at the invitation of the Chinese Government and party.

Deng stressed that serious troubles had developed in bilateral relations one after another since U.S. President Ronald Reagan assumed power at the outset of 1980, although it was China's persistent policy to develop further Beijing-Washington relations.

Deng revealed his displeasure with President Reagan's policy, saying U.S. diplomacy seemed to change drastically whenever a change in the U.S. leadership took place. There were too many cheap tricks played by the Reagan administration, he was quoted as saying.

Informed sources said Deng's remark, which was given in response to the questions raised by Takeiri, was rather unusual one in denouncing the U.S. Government for its policy toward China. Deng insisted the Reagan administration has adopted the highest amount of arm sales by the Carter administration to Taiwan as the standard for arm sales to that island.

CPPCC VICE CHAIRMAN MEETS LOS ANGELES GROUP

OW222123 Beijing XINHUA in English 1538 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 22 (XINHUA) -- Hu Ziang, vice-chairman of the National Committee of the Chinese People's Political Consultative Conference and chairman of the All-China Federation of Industrialists and Businessmen met today with a 16-member delegation from Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce led by Mrs. Karen L. Hathaway.

While in Beijing, the visitors were feted by Liu Weiming, acting chairman of the All-China Youth Federation.

RENMIN RIBAO EXAMINES U.S. FARM SURPLUS 'CRISIS'

HK221245 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 21 Oct 82 p 7

[Article by Chen Xiaoping [7115 1420 1627]: "The 'Surplus' Crisis of U.S. Farm Produce]

[Text] In his radio speech to a rural audience delivered on 15 October, U.S. President Ronald Reagan announced that the United States is willing to increase its export of grain to the Soviet Union. This action by President Reagan is not at all surprising. In the past few years, the U.S. Government has experienced greater and greater pressure from its farmers as the problem of a "surplus" of U.S. farm produce became increasingly serious. It has to increase its export of grain in order to ease the serious crisis in agriculture.

"Disasters caused by bumper harvests" have always been characteristic of U.S. agriculture. The seriousness of such disasters increases with the growth of these harvests. Bumper harvests have been reaped in the United States for 3 years running and consequently this problem has become even more prominent. According to figures released by the government, the output of corn and soybean in the United States will reach an all time high and that of wheat will be close to such a level. Therefore, in addition to what is sold at home or abroad, the United States will have a 5.03 and 5.49 million ton "surplus" of wheat and corn respectively this year, which will also have to be sold abroad. However, as a result of the sustained international economic crisis, farm produce does not have a good market abroad. Besides, other major Western grain-producing countries have also reaped bumper harvests. This makes the competition for selling grain on the world market even keener. Consequently, increasing grain exports to the Soviet Union, which needs to import grain, has become an important means of easing the agriculture crisis in the United States.

The United States is a country whose agricultural production is the biggest in the world and whose export of farm produce is also the biggest. The prices of farm produce on the international market are also controlled to a very great extent by the United States. In the past year, because of surplus farm produce and the drop of prices in this respect in the United States, the prices of wheat, corn and soybean on the international market have also dropped respectively by 8.7, 20.2 and 15.8 percent. This has reduced the agriculture income of the United States by 8 percent as compared with last year, which means it has dropped from $43.8 billion to $40.5 billion and has reached the lowest level since the big recession in 1933.

While the prices of farm products are dropping, the cost of agricultural production in the United States is continuously increasing as a result of price increases in the means of production and high interest rates. It is estimated that the average cost of production for each ton of wheat this year is $224 which is more than 100 percent of the selling price of each ton of wheat. Net agricultural income has dropped sharply from $24.5 billion in 1980 to $19 billion. This sum is not even enough for farm owners to pay this year's interest on the loans they have raised ($22 billion). Due to increasing debts, 7,000 farms in the United States have become bankrupt.

The agricultural crisis in the United States has also affected various industrial and commercial departments related to agriculture. At present, companies ranging from groceries in small towns to commercial giants such as the International Harvesters Company are all in difficulties. Because of financial difficulties, farm owners have tried to cut their expenditures. This year, the number of tractors sold in the United States fell by 27 percent, that of combine harvesters by 50 percent and the volume of chemical fertilizer sold by 11 percent. In the past 18 months, 20,000 workers have been laid off by five of the biggest agricultural machine building factories in North America.

The Reagan administration has adopted some measures to ease the agricultural situation and to win the support of the agricultural states in the middle and western part of the country for the time of the mid-term elections. Before the announcement of the increasing export of farm produce to the Soviet Union this time, the government decided to hold talks with the EEC to discuss the question of grain export and to demand that the EEC cancel export subsidies for farm produce in order not to hinder the United States from exporting its farm produce. It is reported that this question had already been listed as one of the five items on the agenda of the meeting concerning the general agreement on customs duties and trade, which is to be held in November this year. Besides, the U.S. Government has also decided to increase agricultural loans in the new fiscal year and to grant low interest loans to foreign purchasers of U.S. farm products through import and export banks. Obviously, these measures by the U.S. Government will undoubtedly further increase its financial deficit and increase U.S. agriculture's dependence on the international market. Besides, since it has greatly increased its grain export to the Soviet Union, the Reagan administration will find it even more difficult to persuade its West European allies to stop providing the most advance technology and equipment to the Soviet Union in the future.

KANG SHIEN MEETS WITH CHAIRMAN OF U.S. FIRM

OW232021 Beijing XINHUA in English 1523 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 23 (XINHUA) -- Chinese State Councillor Kang Shien this afternoon met with P. Grace, chairman of the board of the Grace Co. of the United States, and his party.

Kang Shien briefed the guests on China's petrochemical industry and discussed cooperation in this field with them.

BAN YUE TAN REVIEWS CAREER OF WILLIAM CASEY

HK210710 Beijing BAN YUE TAN in Chinese No 19, 10 Oct 82 pp 60-61

[Article by Jiang Geren [3068 1707 0086]: "William Casey -- Director of CIA"]

[Text] Sixty-eight-year-old William Casey has become the new director of the CIA -- one of the largest secret agencies in the world.

Casey is an old hand at collecting intelligence. Early during World War II, this young man, who studied law, joined the American Office of Strategic Services -- the predecessor of the CIA. He was responsible for intelligence activities in Europe and in dispatching groups to fascist Germany and other European countries occupied by Germany to gather intelligence and engage in sabotage activities. At that time, Casey spared no efforts in his work and achieved rather good results. After World War II, he left the secret agency and resumed his former profession in law circles. When Nixon and Ford came to power, he once again held posts in some departments related to intelligence activities at the side of the president. Reagan selected Casey as the director of the CIA. This was just the man he needed. The officials of the CIA also commended him as possessing all the characteristics necessary for intelligence work.

Ordinarily Casey was a man of few words and sometimes even a bit shy. At idle times, he ardently loves reading books. It is said that in his private library, he has a collection of more than 10,000 books. He also likes writing and is sometimes called a "writer." He mainly engages in legal study and he is also an entrepreneur. He has a private savings of over one million dollars. Casey is famed for his decisive manner in handling affairs and having certain spirits. His style of handling affairs was manifested immediately when he joined the CIA.

Since the "Watergate" event, the scandals of the CIA have been exposed one after another inside and outside the country and have been widely condemned as being notorious and against the will of the people. It is reported that during the Carter administration, more than 2,800 people dropped out of the CIA. An old American spy bemoaned: "Nearly all the personnel trained in the past 40 years have now left the CIA." Only 1,700 analytical personnel are left in the CIA. Casey keenly felt the gravity of this problem and regarded recruitment as a top priority. In addition to looking for and soliciting intelligence personnel through various channels, he also made us of television advertisements to recruit secret agents. This shows how anxious he was in lookin for qualified personnel. It is not known how many secret agents he wants to recruit, but since the CIA is going to build a new building twice the size of its present headquarters, it seems that Casey has great ambitions.

Last July, Casey founded the "National Intelligence Council", which specially provides "key" information of the state to the White House. He also strengthened the study of conditions of Third World countries, considering these countries to have significance in contention with the Soviet Union. This was also one of the weak links of CIA intelligence work in the past.

Increasing the number of secret agents dispatched abroad is another task done by his efforts since Casey assumed office. Spy satellites and electronic techniques can only reconnoiter the motions of things, but cannot reconnoiter the intentions and policies of countries. Only the secret agents who are in touch with government officials can offer political information. Therefore, Casey was determined to recruit a batch of people and dispatch them abroad after special training to engage in so-called "covert activities."

Domestically, Casey has enhanced the secret detective work of the CIA. Last year, Reagan signed an order to extend the power of the CIA and other secret agencies and stipulated that the CIA had the right to carry "covert activities" in the country. They could infiltrate organizations composed of foreign nationals to engage in reconnaissance and keep watch on them. Reagan also signed a law stipulating that journalists and other persons could not reveal the identity of secret intelligence personnel.

Casey is an old friend of Reagan. When Reagan ran for the Presidency, Casey was one of his responsible persons in the election campaign. After Reagan came to power, Casey became the first CIA director who was given the official title of being considered a Cabinet member. This shows Reagan attaches importance to the CIA and also supports Casey.

The road for Casey is by no means smooth. When he came to power, the deputy director Hugel promoted by him was accused for his irregularities in stock activities and was forced to resign. Hugel was orginally a merchant in the sewing machine business. He did not get any training in intelligence work. His resignation at least indicated that Casey did not choose the right person for the job. After that, news came that some people were claiming Casey as having deceived his customers while he was working in a multiple-product agricultural company, causing these customers to suffer a loss of several million dollars. He was also accused of having connections with criminal groups while he was holding the office of legal adviser of a salvage company. Some congressmen publicly asserted that Casey should no longer hold the post of CIA director. After several setbacks and with the backing of Reagan, Casey retained the post of director, but his future is still not optimistic.

AFP: DENG SAYS 'MANY PROBLEMS' REMAIN WITH USSR

OW250646 Hong Kong AFP in English 0622 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, Oct. 25 (AFP) -- Chinese strongman Deng Xiaoping said today that there were still "many problems" between China and the Soviet Union after the first round of discussions between the two countries for an improvement in their relations.

In a brief reply to questions by French newsmen, Mr. Deng said it was therefore necessary to continue the consultations.

The Chinese leader yesterday told Yoshikatsu Takeiri, chairman of the Japanese Komeito Party, that the exploratory talks held in Beijing this month with Soviet representatives had not produced any concrete results. Relations between the two Communist countries have been tense for the past 20 years.

KYODO: ZHAO SAYS PRC TO CONTINUE TALKS WITH USSR

OW240415 Tokyo KYODO in English 0405 GMT 24 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, Oct 24 KYODO -- Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang said Saturday that China would continue its dialogue with the Soviet Union whether the Soviets maintain or drop a hegemonistic policy.

China's continued opposition to the Soviet hegemonism and the Beijing-Moscow dialogue are not contradictory to each other, Zhao told Japanese Dietman Yoshimi Furui.

Zhao said the Chinese dialogue with Moscow does not mean that China ceased to oppose the hegemonism.

The Chinese diplomacy, based on the principle of independence and the five-point peace principle, has not changed, and China will never use the so-called Soviet card or American card in diplomacy, Zhao said.

Zhao met with Furui, chairman of the Japanese Dietmen's League for Japan-China Friendship, here Saturday evening.

After the meeting, the Japanese dietman also said that the Chinese Government offered yen 500 million (about dollar 1.8 million) to help build the Japan-China friendship hall in Tokyo to commemorate the 10th anniversary of the reopening of Sino-Japanese diplomatic relations.

The planned hall, to be built in downtown Tokyo, is estimated to cost more than yen 10 billion.

The Japanese Government has already promised yen 2 billion and a yen 3 billion fund-raising will be sought from the Japanese buisness circles. The remaining money will be collected from other private circles.

KOMEITO PARTY CHAIRMAN FETED IN BEIJING

Wang Zhen Hosts Banquet

OW221733 Beijing XINHUA in English 1542 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 22 (XINHUA) -- Wang Zhen, member of the Political Bureau of the Chinese Communist Party Central Committee, gave a banquet here this evening in honor of Yoshikatsu Takeiri, chairman of the Central Executive Committee of the Japanese Komeito (Komei Party).

Proposing a toast, Wang Zhen praised Yoshikatsu Takeiri and other Japanese friends of the Komei Party for their great contributions to the normalization of Sino-Japanese diplomatic relations and the development of friendship between peoples of the two countries. He said the friendship between the two countries will surely see further consolidation and development.

Yoshikatsu Takeiri said a true friendship between the two countries depends on upholding forever the spirit of the joint statement and the peace and friendship treaty of the two countries. Therefore, it is of great importance to pass on the spirit from generation to generation.

Present at the banquet were Wang Bingnan and Chu Tunan, president and vice-president of the Chinese People's Association for Friendship With Foreign Countries, Fu Hao, adviser to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and Yasue Katori, Japanese ambassador to China.

Meets Deng Xiaoping

OW240838 Beijing XINHUA in English 0802 GMT 24 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 24 (XINHUA) -- Deng Xiaoping, chairman of the Central Advisory Commission of the Chinese Communist Party, once again stressed the importance of Sino-Japanese friendship while meeting with Yoshikatsu Takeiri, chairman of the Central Executive Committee of the Japanese Komeito (Komei Party), and his party here this morning.

Bunzo Ninomiya, vice-chairman of the Komei Party Central Executive Committee, and his wife were among those who attended the meeting.

Deng Xiaoping expressed the hope that the friendly relations and cooperation between China and Japan would continue to develop in the present direction.

The most important statement about Sino-Japanese relations was that the two peoples of China and Japan should remain friends from generation to generation, Deng Xiaoping said.

Yoshikatsu Takeiri said Japan-China relations must adhere to the principles embodied in the joint statement and the peace and friendship treaty signed by the two countries. On this basis, the Komei Party would make constant efforts to deepen the mutual trust between Japan and China, he said. The two sides also exchanged views on other matters of common concern.

Present on the occasion were Fu Hao, adviser to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Sun Pinghua, vice-president of the Sino-Japanese Friendship Association, and Yasue Katori, Japanese ambassador to China.

The Japanese guests are due to leave for home tomorrow.

JAPANESE FRIENDSHIP DELEGATION VISITS BEIJING

Zhao Meets Group

OW231725 Beijing XINHUA in English 1544 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 23 (XINHUA) -- Premier Zhao Ziyang met here this afternoon with Yoshimi Furui, chairman of Japan's Dietmen's League for Japan-China Friendship, and his party.

Zhao Ziyang thanked Yoshimi Furui and other Japanese friends for their consistent efforts in promoting China-Japan friendship. He said he hoped the Japanese league will make new contributions to the friendship between the two countries.

Yoshimi Furui said Japan-China friendship should be carried on forever.

Present at the meeting were Fu Hao, adviser to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs; Sun Pinghua, vice-president of the China-Japan Friendship Association; and Yasue Katori, Japanese ambassador to China.

The Japanese guests arrived here yesterday at the invitation of the China-Japan Friendship Association.

Feted by Wang Zhen

OW231739 Beijing XINHUA in English 1640 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 23 (XINHUA) -- Wang Zhen, member of the Political Bureau of the Chinese Communist Party Central Committee, gave a banquet here this evening in honor of Yoshimi Furui, chairman of Japan's Dietmen's League for Japan-China Friendship.

Wang Zhen said: "At a time of continued development of Sino-Japanese friendship, we cherish the memory of Kenzo Matsumura and other Japanese friends and wish for continuous growth of permanent and steady friendly cooperation between the two countries."

Yoshimi Furui reviewed the historical ties between the two countries and expressed his determination to contribute to the further development of Japan-China friendship.

FURTHER REPORTS ON VOLUNTEER DELEGATION VISIT

Visits Zhou Enlai Statue

OW242014 Beijing Domestic Service in Mandarin 0300 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] The delegation of the former Chinese People's Volunteers with Han Xianchu as its leader and Xie Fang as its deputy leader on 21 October laid a wreath before the bronze statue of the esteemed and beloved Premier Zhou Enlai at the Hungnam fertilizer complex, Hamhung City, in memory of the great contributions Premier Zhou Enlai made to Sino-Korean friendship.

Present on the occasion were General Paek Hak-nim, vice minister of People's Armed Forces of Korea; (Kim Hui-mun), vice chairman of the Hamhung Municipal People's Council; Major General (Chon Chin-su), leading member of an army unit stationed in Hamhung; and others.

At noon, Major General (Chon Chin-su) gave a banquet in honor of the delegation.

Received By Kim Il-song

OW221905 Beijing XINHUA in English 1829 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Pyongyang, October 22 (XINHUA) -- Kim Il-song, president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, today wished all's well in China which, he said, would mean security in Korea as well.

President Kim Il-song recalled the battles fought shoulder to shoulder by the two peoples during the Korean War about 30 years ago when he received the Chinese delegation of former volunteers headed by Han Xianchu and Xie Fang this afternoon. "Tens of thousands of the Chinese People's Volunteers shed their blood on our soil and the Korean people will never forget them," said the president.

President Kim Il-song said he was very pleased to meet the Chinese comrades on the eve of the 32nd anniversary of the entry of the Chinese People's Volunteers into the Korean War. He said the Chinese People's Volunteers came to Korea at the call of Comrade Mao Zedong to help resist U.S. aggressors when things were most difficult for Korea.

Talking on the achievements made by Korea after the war, the president said in this regard China's assistance must not be overlooked either.

Referring to the long-standing friendship between Korea and China, the president said that the Korean and the Chinese peoples are like members of one family. They unite with each other. China is Korea's rear area which makes Korea feel self-confident if there is unity and order in China, he said.

Han Xianchu expressed thanks to President Kim Il-song for the hospitality he and the Korean people show for the delegation. Minister of the People's Armed Forces of Korea O Chin-u was among those present on the occasion.

Feted in Pyongyang

OW241939 Beijing XINHUA in English 1915 GMT 24 Oct 82

[Text] Pyongyang, October 24 (XINHUA) -- The Korean People's Armed Forces hosted a banquet here today for a delegation of former Chinese People's Volunteers to mark the 32nd anniversary of the Chinese People's Volunteers' entry into the Korean War.

Generals O Chin-u, Paek Hak-nim and Pak Chung-kuk and Vice-Premier Chong Jun Gi were present at the banquet. The delegation was headed by Han Xianchu and Xie Fang.

General Pak Chung-kuk and Chinese Ambassador to Korea Zong Kewen spoke at the banquet. Pak Chung-kuk praised the heroism and devotion of the Chinese People's Volunteers, many of whom laid down their lives in the war. The volunteers' exploits will remain in the memory of the Korean people forever, Pak Chung-kuk said.

In his speech Zong Kewen reviewed the concern and support of the party government and people of Korea for the Chinese People's Volunteers.

Twenty-four years have passed since the Chinese People's Volunteers returned home, Zong Kewen said, but the Chinese people have always been concerned with the cause of the Korean people and feel delighted at every new achievement they have made.

PAKISTAN'S ZIAUL HAQ ARRIVES IN PYONGYANG

OW231732 Beijing XINHUA in English 1547 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Pyongyang, October 23 (XINHUA) -- President of the Islamic Republic of Pakistan Ziaul Haq arrived here at noon today on an official state visit at the invitation of Kim Il-song, president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

Present at the airport to welcome the Pakistani guests were President Kim Il-song and his wife Kim Song-ae, and other Korean party and government leaders including O Chin-u, Pak Song-chol and Ho Tam.

FOREIGN MINISTRY DELEGATION LEAVES FOR THAILAND

OW220716 Beijing XINHUA in English 0710 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 22 (XINHUA) -- A delegation of officials of the Chinese Ministry of Foreign Affairs led by Han Nianlong, adviser to the ministry, left here this morning for a friendship visit to Thailand at the invitation of the Thai Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

THAI ARMY GENERAL DISCUSSES SRV REINFORCEMENTS

OW220128 Beijing XINHUA in English 1501 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Bangkok, October 21 (XINHUA) -- A Thai Army Lt. General Wibun Raosathian said today Thai troops along the Thai-Kampuchean border have been put on alert for any possible Vietnamese intrusion, as Vietnam has recently sent reinforcements into bordering western Kampuchea.

Wibun Raosathian was appointed this month as director of the information office of the supreme command of the Thai armed forces.

Wibun said Vietnam has just sent reinforcements to Poipot District and the Sisophon area in Battambang Province, western Kampuchea, which increased the number of Vietnamese troops there from several thousand to the present 10,000.

In addition, he said, Vietnam has sent seven more T-54 tanks to these districts. There has also been a buildup of Vietnamese troops in southwest Kampuchea. Vietnam has rebuilt a military air strip in Preah Vihear Province too, he said.

All these moves by the Vietnamese forebode new offensives in the coming dry season next month against the Kampuchean resistance forces, the spokesman predicted.

THAILAND'S PREM CALLS FOR SRV PULLOUT FROM DK

OW240932 Beijing XINHUA in English 0810 GMT 24 Oct 82

[Text] Bangkok, October 24 (XINHUA) -- The Kampuchean people should be allowed to decide their own destiny free from outside interference, Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon said today. The statement was made in a radio broadcast to mark the 37th founding anniversary of the United Nations.

Prem said: "Vietnam's military occupation of Kampuchea has become an international problem and also a major obstacle to the efforts of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations to turn Southeast Asia into a peaceful region."

The U.N. resolutions on Kampuchea calling for Vietnamese troop withdrawal from that country has won support from the majority of the world nations and peoples, Prem said. However, they have not been implemented because the country concerned is still trying to cover up facts and shirk responsibility, he added.

Referring to the huge influx of refugees into Thailand, Prem noted that the main cause lies in the foreign invasion of Kampuchea and interference in Laos.

REPORTAGE ON INDIAN SOCIETY DELEGATION'S VISIT

Meets Zhao Ziyang

OW231529 Beijing XINHUA in English 1459 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 23 (XINHUA) -- Premier Zhao Ziyang said today that the Chinese Government wishes for the early settlement of the China-India boundary question and is optimistic about the prospects for developing relations between the two countries.

In a meeting this afternoon with a delegation from the India-China Society, the premier said, "Although differences exist between the two countries on the boundary issue, we believe it is not so difficult to resolve the problem so long as both sides have good faith and act in the spirit of mutual understanding and mutual accommodation."

He said both China and India are large Asian countries that can exert great impact on the whole world. "A long-standing friendship exists between our two peoples, and the 1950's saw sound cooperation between our two countries. The two peoples both miss that period," he said.

Zhao added that the two countries have had similar historical experiences, and the two peoples are facing the common task of building their own countries. The two countries should be friendly to each other and improve their relations, the premier said.

Zhao told the Indian guests that this December will be the 40th anniversary of the death of Dr. Dwarkanath S. Kotnis and the 25th anniversary of the death of Dr. Menhanlal Atal. He said the Chinese people will solemnly cherish the memory of these two internationalists.

"We will never forget about the help they rendered the Chinese people when we were in difficulty. We hope the seeds of friendship sown by them will blossom with beautiful flowers," Zhao said.

The delegation from the India-China Society is headed by B.N. Pande, president of the society and a member of Parliament.

Pande said: "Our delegation consists of 14 members from Rajya Sabha and Lok Sabha. Our current visit has the support of the Indian External Affairs Ministry and the attention of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi."

Pande said that Prime Minister Gandhi is enthusiastic about furthering the relations between India and China and settling the boundary question between the two countries. "She hopes all pending problems between the two countries can be solved in our generation rather than left to the next generation," he said.

Present at the meeting were Wang Bingnan, president of the Chinese People's Association for Friendship with Foreign Countries, and Ayilam Panchapakesa Venkateswaran, Indian ambassador to China.

Wang Bingnan Hosts Banquet

OW211515 Beijing XINHUA in English 1505 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 21 (XINHUA) -- Wang Bingnan, president of the Chinese People's Association for Friendship with Foreign Countries, hosted a banquet here this evening in honor of a delegation from the India-China Society headed by its president, B.N. Pande, who is also a member of Parliament. Wang and Pande in their toasts spoke highly of the traditional friendship between the Chinese and Indian peoples. The society was founded in New Delhi last August. Its members include MP's, professors and noted artists. The guests arrived yesterday at the invitation of the Chinese Amity Association.

FURTHER REPORTS ON PAKISTAN PRESIDENT'S VISIT

Haq Arrives in Shanghai

OW221644 Beijing XINHUA in English 1602 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Shanghai, October 22 (XINHUA) -- Pakistani President Mohammad Ziaul Haq and Begum Ziaul Haq arrived in Shanghai by special plane this afternoon after a visit to Guilin.

Shanghai Mayor Wang Daohan gave a banquet this evening at the Cypress Hotel, which was specially decorated for the occasion.

In his toast the mayor said: "Shanghai and Pakistan have close and friendly relations in trade, education and other fields." He said President Ziaul's current visit to China will further improve the time-honored Sino-Pakistani friendship.

The president said he was delighted to visit Shanghai, the largest industrial city of China, on his third visit to China. He wished Shanghai to make new contributions to the expansion of trade between Pakistan and China.

"Exchanges in economic and cultural fields and the people-to-people contacts between our two countries have increased over the past years," the president said. He said that his visits to other parts of China and his meeting with Chinese leaders in Beijing have enabled him to gain a better understanding of China. President Ziaul said his visit has been a complete success.

Wu Xueqian, vice-minister of foreign affairs, who is accompanying the president on the visit, attended the banquet.

President and Begum Ziaul Haq visited the reed flute cave in Guilin this morning.

Haq Concludes Visit

OW230720 Beijing XINHUA in English 0209 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Shanghai, October 23 (XINHUA) -- Pakistan President Ziaul Haq and Begum Ziaul Haq left here for the Democratic People's Republic of Korea this morning, winding up their state visit to China.

They were seen off at the airport by Wu Xueqian, vice-minister of foreign affairs, and Wang Daohan, mayor of Shanghai. President Ziaul Haq asked Wu Xueqian to convey his good wishes and gratitude to the Chinese leaders.

Pakistan Press Reaction

OW241520 Beijing XINHUA in English 1506 GMT 24 Oct 82

[Text] Islamabad, October 24 (XINHUA) -- Pakistan newspapers have issued editorials acclaiming President Ziaul Haq's just-concluded state visit to China as "a successfull visit" and highly evaluated the ever-increasing Pakistan-China friendship.

The PAKISTAN TIMES said today that the president's visit has added "a new dimension" to the "model" bilateral relations between China and Pakistan.

"The identity of views on international issues and on the further consolidation of economic cooperation between the two countries was reflected in the people-to-people contacts" it added.

Turning to the Afghan problem, the paper said, Pakistan has consistently called for a political solution to the crisis and adhered to the stand for Soviet troop withdrawal. "It has made good its pledge to the principle of opposition to hegemonism in all forms." "China has equally endeavoured to normalise its relations with the USSR withouc deviating from its principled stand on Afghanistan," it noted.

It went on to say: "Their stands on the occupation of Kampuchea, a case of intervention similar to Afghanistan, are mutually supportive while China appreciates Pakistan's efforts to establish peaceful cooperation in South Asia."

"The decision to set up a joint Pak-China commission on economic exchange," it said, "confirms the peaceful nature of the overall relationship aimed at consolidating world peace and regional security."

NAWA-E WAQT described the establishment of the Sino-Pakistan joint commission as "another significant step towards strengthening of mutual cooperation in the economic sphere" and "it would produce momentous results in cooperation between the two friendly countries."

JANG said editorially that the Sino-Pak friendship "has remained victorious amidst the storms of regional and global events and has stood every test and trial over the long period of 30 years". "This is a means to the promotion of global and regional peace, opposition to war, aggression and colonialism and recognition of the right of every nation, big or small, to live in peace and honour," it added.

YE JIANYING CONGRATULATES SRI LANKAN PRESIDENT

OW231344 Beijing XINHUA in English 1300 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 23 (XINHUA) -- Ye Jianying, chairman of the Standing Committee of the Chinese National People's Congress, sent a message today to Junius Richard Jayewardene, warmly congratulating him on his reelection as president of Sri Lanka.

The message reads:

On the occasion of Your Excellency's election to the high office of presidency of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka, I wish to express, on behalf of the Chinese people and the Chinese Government and in my own name, our warm congratulations and best wishes to Your Excellency. May Your Excellency achieve new successes in the lofty cause of leading the Sri Lankan people in the national construction. May the traditional friendship between the Chinese and Sri Lankan peoples continue to develop and grow stronger.

FURTHER REPORTS ON AL-QADHDHAFI'S VISIT

XINHUA Account

OW221208 Beijing XINHUA in English 1159 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 22 (XINHUA) -- Colonel Mu'ammar al-Qadhdhafi, the leader of the September First Revolution of the Socialist People's Libyan Arab Jamahiriyah, will soon pay an official visit to China at the invitation of Chinese leaders.

AFP Report

OW221249 Hong Kong AFP in English 1209 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, Oct. 22 (AFP) -- Libyan leader Mu'ammar al-Qadhdhafi will arrive here next Monday for his first official visit to China, an official source said here.

Chinese officials gave no details on the purpose of Mr. al-Qadhdhafi's trip, which was prepared in great secrecy, but diplomatic sources here noted that the arrival of the Libyan leader coincided with an overall diversification of China's relations with the Arab world.

The sources added the Mr. al-Qadhdhafi's visit could seal a reconciliation between Tripoli and Beijing that began several months ago. A year ago, Beijing called Mr. al-Qadhdhafi a "fanatic Moslem."

Leaves Tripoli

OW231913 Beijing XINHUA in English 1900 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Tripoli, October 23 (XINHUA) -- Colonel Mu'ammar al-Qadhdhafi, leader of the September First Revolution of the Socialist People's Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, left here today by special plane for an official visit to China.

He was invited by Ye Jianying, chairman of the Standing Committee of the Chinese People's National Congress and Premier Zhao Ziyang.

Seeing him off at the Tripoli International Airport were Libyan leader 'Abd as-Salam Jallud, Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces Abu Bakr Yunis Jabir and other senior officials.

Charge d'Affaires ad Interim of the Chinese Embassy in Libya Lu Defang and other diplomats were also at the airport.

Arrival in Beijing

OW251050 Beijing Domestic Service in Mandarin 1000 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Text] Colonel Mu'ammar al-Qadhdhafi, leader of the September First Revolution of the Socialist People's Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, arrived in Beijing this afternoon by special plane for an official visit to our country at the invitation of its leader.

At a grand ceremony held in the square in front of the Great Hall of the People, Zhao Ziyang, premier of the State Council, warmly welcomed Colonel al-Qadhdhafi and other distinguished Libyan guests.

When Colonel al-Qadhdhafi arrived in the square by car from the airport, Premier Zhao Ziyang warmly shook hands with him and they extended greetings to each other.

Young Pioneers presented flowers to Al-Qadhdhafi. Then, the two leaders reviewed a guard of honor of the three services of the Chinese PLA.

Following the welcoming ceremony, Premier Zhao Ziyang met Colonel al-Qadhdhafi and his party. The host and the guests had a cordial and friendly conversation.

Accompanying Colonel al-Qadhdhafi on the visit are: Brigadier General Mustafa al-Kharrubi, chief of General Staff of the Armed Forces; 'Abd al'Ati al-Ubaydi, secretary of the People's Committee for Foreign Liaison; Abu Zayd 'Umar Durham, secretary of the People's Committee for Agrarian Reform and Land Reclamation; Musa Ahmad Abu Furaywah, secretary of the People's Committee for Economy and Light Industries; and Al-Bukhari Salim Hudah, secretary of the People's Committee for Communications and Maritime Transport.

Welcomed By Zhao Ziyang

OW251256 Beijing XINHUA in English 1241 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 25 (XINHUA) -- Colonel Mu'ammar al-Qadhdhafi, leader of the September First Revolution of the Socialist People's Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, arrived here by special plane this afternoon on an official visit to China at the invitation of Chinese leaders.

Premier Zhao Ziyang presided over a ceremony at the plaza east of the Great Hall of the People to welcome Colonel al-Qadhdhafi.

When Colonel al-Qadhdhafi and Mrs al-Qadhdhafi drove to the plaza, Premier Zhao stepped forward to greet them with cordial handshakes. Two children presented bouquets to the distinguished guests.

The plaza today flew the national flags of China and Libya.

Following the national anthems of Libya and China played by the miltary band, Colonel al-Qadhdhafi, accompanied by Premier Zhao Ziyang, reviewed a guard of honor made up of men of the three services of the Chinese People's Liberation Army. Two hundred children waved flowers to cheer Colonel al-Qadhdhafi.

Present at the ceremony were Ngapoi Ngawang Jigme, vice-chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress, Huang Hua, state councillor and foreign minister, Li Ximing, minister of urban and rural construction and environmental protection, and Chen Puru, minister of railways.

Also present were distinguished Libyan guests accompanying Colonel al-Qadhdhafi on the visit: Brigadier Mustafa al-Kharrubi, chief of staff of the Libyan Arab Army; 'Abd al-'Ati al-'Ubaydi, secretary of the People's Committee of the People's Foreign Liaison Office; Abu Zayd 'Umar Durham, secretary of the General People's Committee of Agricultural Reclamation and Development; Musa Abu Furaywah, secretary of the General People's Committee of Economic and Light Industry; and Al-Bukhari Salim Hudah, secretary of the General People's Committee for Transportation and Maritime Transport.

After the ceremony, Premier Zhao Ziyang had a friendly conversation with Colonel al-Qadhdhafi in the Great Hall of the People.

ISRAEL RAPPED AT TELECOMMUNICATIONS TALKS

OW220811 Beijing XINHUA in English 0702 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Nairobi, Oct 22 (XINHUA) -- The 12th plenipotentiary conference of the International Telecommuniation Union in a resolution today condemned Israel for its invasion of Lebanon and its massacre of Palestinian and Lebanese civilians.

The resolution expressed alarm at "the grave situation in the Middle East resulting from Israel's invasion of Lebanon" and expressed concern at "the destruction of telecommunications in Lebanon."

It "directs the secretary general of the International Telecommunication Union to study and report to the Administrative Council at its next session on measures to assist Lebanon in re-establishing those telecommunication facilities."

It also "requests the chairman of the plenipotentiary conference to bring this resolution immediately to the attention of the secretary general of the United Nations."

The resolution was adopted by secret ballot with 85 in favour, 31 against, 13 abstentions, one blank and two invalid votes.

Earlier, 30 member states including Algeria proposed a draft resolution resolving that "Israel shall be excluded from the plenipotentiary conference and from all other conferences and meetings of the union as long as it does not comply with its international obligations." However, the draft resolution was rejected early today by 61 votes to 57.

ARAB NATIONS DELAY CALL TO OUST ISRAEL FROM UN

OW230228 Beijing XINHUA in English 0148 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] United Nations, October 22 (XINHUA) -- Libya, current chairman of the Arab group, announced today that the Arab countries had decided to delay their move to challenge the Israel's letter of credentials at the current session of the U.N. General Assembly.

Speaking to a press conference here this morning, 'Ali at-Turayki, Libyan permanent representative to the United Nations, said the Arab countries would express collective reservation about the credentials of Israel, instead of seeking its ouster from the General Assembly.

But the delay did not mean that the Arab countries had changed their previous position, it was only a question of timing, he said.

If Israel continued to deny the rights of the Palestinian people to self-determination and refused to withdraw its forces from Lebanon, the Arab states would take action to challenge the Israel's seat at the United Nations next year, he said.

The Libyan representative pointed out that the U.S. threat to walk out of the U.N. General Assembly and cut off its annual contribution to the U.N. budget was not a reason for the Arabs to defer their action.

The Arab countries succeeded last month in winning enough support to suspend Israel in the International Atomic Energy Agency. The United States took a retaliatory action. It walked out and held up an 8.5 million U.S. dollars contribution to the agency's budget.

RENMIN RIBAO STESSES CORRECT 'STATE OF MIND'

HK250844 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 25 Oct 82 pp 1, 2

[Editorial: "What Kind of State of Mind Do We Need To Create a New Situation?"]

[Text] The 12th party congress drew a vast blueprint for building the four modernizations and proposed the great task of creating a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization. This is a glorious task with a completely objective basis, and it is also arduous. It shows the richer and more profound understanding of the Chinese Communists and the people of all nationalities regarding the laws of socialist construction in China, and demonstrates our unshakable resolve and will. When studying the 12th party congress documents, people are considering one issue: How can their own area, department or unit go about taking new strides and creating a new situation?

There are many things to be done to create a new situation. An important point is to ensure that the cadres and masses, and first of all the leading cadres, have a good state of mind, which could also be described as a revolutionary style. To put it briefly, it means "bracing spirits, opening up the way and forging ahead, displaying unswerving determination and struggling ceaselessly," as mentioned in the report of the 12th party congress. With this state of mind or revolutionary style, we can ensure that the principles and tasks defined by the 12th party congress can be implemented very well and that still more notable results are achieved in practice.

We must continue to emancipate our minds and be bold in carrying out reforms and creating new things. The fundamental reason why we have been able to make tremendous progress in all fields of politics, economics and culture since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee is that the Central Committee has upheld thoroughgoing materialism, broken through the severe bindings of the long period of "leftist" errors, correctly launched the two-front ideological struggle, greatly emancipated people's minds and carried out a whole series of profound reforms suited to our national condition. We have relied on emancipating people's minds in accomplishing the historic turning point; and we rely on continuing to emancipate the mind in accomplishing the great task of creating a new situation in all fields. The emergence of a new situation is inseparable from continuing to carry out reforms. The aim of reform is to embark on our own road, based on China's realities, and build socialism with Chinese characteristics. Experiences of the past few years have proven that in whatever field "leftist" influence has been eliminated relatively thoroughly and it has been possible to uphold the Central Committee's line, principles and policies in accordance with the specific conditions. The strides taken there in reform are sound and big, and the successes scored are conspicuous. Putting agriculture in the forefront on the economic front is an example that can explain the issue very well. Yet to improve agriculture still further, it is also necessary to further emancipate the mind, expand our vision and adopt measures that accord still better with reality. This is the case with every field and every place. Since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, very great changes have been recorded in some places and departments, but relatively small ones in others. Why is this? It has to do with whether people's minds have been emancipated or not and whether or not thoroughgoing reforms can be carried out. With reforms, we have a way out. In order to create a new situation, every front, area and unit must be resolved to carry out reforms. We must boldly base our efforts on reality and continually study new situations and solve new problems. The fact that the party has completed the task of bringing order out of chaos in guiding ideology does not mean that every person has completed the task of bringing order out of chaos in his ideology; the fact that reforms have been successful in certain places does not mean that the task of carrying out all reforms has been successfully completed.

As far as many comrades are concerned, to be a thoroughgoing materialist and to destroy the conventions in the mind that have long hampered the advance of our cause is a problem that will require very great efforts to solve.

We must not be afraid of difficulties or setbacks. Since ancient times, the accomplishment of major reforms and the appearance of new situations of historical significance have never been all smooth sailing or gained in one move. In our efforts to open up the way and forge ahead and create a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization, we are bound to encounter all kinds of difficulties and obstacles, and may even follow a tortuous road for a while. We must be ideologically prepared for these things. It is not the proper communist disposition to lose confidence and feel that there is no way out and no future when difficulties are encountered in opening up the way. Nor is it the proper communist disposition to leave things half-finished and even go back to the old road when resistance and contradictions are encountered in carrying out reforms. Lenin said: "Anyone who is afraid of difficulties in socialist construction and is scared by them, and anyone who becomes pessimistic or panic-stricken on seeing these difficulties, is not a socialist." The Chinese women's volleyball team did not lose heart when they ran into trouble; they boldly "tackled things head-on" and fought stubbornly, thus displaying the lofty style for creating a new situation. Their unbending and resolute spirit merits emulation.

We must have the heroic ambition to create great enterprises and scale lofty peaks. It is completely correct that, since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, we have persistently sought truth from facts and avoided raising boastful slogans and setting high targets. However, truly seeking truth from facts is bound to demand revolutionary spirit and heroic ambition. Comrade Mao Zedong was very fond of a phrase of Stalin's: Integrate revolutionary mettle with the spirit of practicality. In the past few years the Central Committee has constantly demanded that we both seek truth from facts and also brace our revolutionary spirit and accomplish something worthwhile. It is of course not seeking truth from facts to blindly rush in and do things for which the objective conditions are not ready; nor is it seeking truth from facts to fail to strive to do things for which the objective conditions are ready and which can be accomplished, provided the effort is made. Setting excessive targets and becoming divorced from reality will of course damage the masses' enthusiasm; but neither can people's morale be boosted and the wisdom and talent of the masses be brought into full play if targets are set lower than actual possibilities and if they can be accomplished without any efforts.

The great goal and the various tasks put forward by the 12th party congress have a scientific basis but they will not be easily accomplished, and tremendous efforts will be needed. It is essential to have revolutionary spirit and drive. The mentality of "having been bitten by a snake once, one fears a coiled rope for 10 years" should be discarded. The state of mind of being content with the status quo, not aiming to forge ahead, waiting and looking around, and behaving in an apathetic way must be changed. Chinese Communists, who are in a state of resurgence, and especially the party cadres, must precisely possess the spirit of "no mem we, unless we climb the southern gate of heaven."

Comrade Hu Yaobang pointed out in his report at the 12th party congress: "In the new historical period, to build China, a country whose economy and culture were formerly backward, into a powerful socialist modern state is one of the greatest and most creative projects in human history. Many issues in this undertaking could not have been proposed or solved by the Marxists of the past." History has assigned us a heavy responsibility, and the people have great expectations in us. There are only 18 years until the end of the century. Time will not wait for us. We must broaden our vision, summon up vigor, carry out creative work in our best form, and undertake a vast cause on the motherland's wide expanses that our forerunners have never done.

When they recall this period of history -- the closing years of the 20th century -- our posterity will make an evaulation of us. There are only three possibilities: They will say either that we are "promising people," or that we were "a mediocre generation" or else that we were "stupid bunglers." Seriously consider, comrade, in which category do you fit?

LEADERS ATTEND SCIENCE AWARDS CONFERENCE

OW240130 Beijing XINHUA in English 1534 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 23 (XINHUA) -- More than 500 scientists were honored today for outstanding inventions and research at the national science awarding conference that opened in the Great Hall of the People under the auspices of the State Science and Technology Commission.

The awarded items -- 428 inventions and 124 natural science research results -- demonstrate China's major progress in science and technology in the past two and half decades.

Present today were Vice-Premier Wan Li and other party and government leaders Xi Zhongxun, Wang Zhen, Fang Yi, Yang Dezhi, Song Renqiong and Deng Liqun.

Fang Yi, minister of the State Science and Technology Commission, gave the opening speech. Zhao Dongwan, vice-minister, presided over the gathering attended by 3,000.

State regulations for invention awards that came into force in December 1978 define the qualifications as being "unprecedented, advanced and applicable as proved in practice". The present award winners serve economic construction and national defence, and over 95 percent of these inventions have been popularized.

The Xian-type hybrid rice, developed by more than 500 agrotechnicians from 50 units in 10 years of effort, won the special-class award. From 1976 to 1981, China sowed Xian-type hybrid rice on a total of 22 million hectares of paddy fields, which brought an increase of 16.5 million tons.

Winners of the natural science awards mirror the country's progress in theoretical and basic science research over the past 25 years. The regulations promulgated in November 1979 decided to award research results dealing with natural phenomena, characteristics or laws that are of great significance in the development of science and technology. Some 1,000 research results were submitted by scientific institutions, universities and enterprises throughout the country for examination by the hundreds of scientists leading the academic divisions. Their choices were recommended to the award committee for final examination and the 124 award winners were chosen by secret ballot.

First-class award winners include earth science research in the discovery of Daqing oilfield, complete synthesis of bovine insulin, lingand field theory research, the discovery of antisigma particle, geological maps of China and Asia, and research into the solution of the Goldbach Conjecture. Second-class award winners include study of the oriental grasshoppers that helped China bring locust plague under control, the finite element method, a tectonic map and outline of China.

Wu Heng, advisor to the State Science and Technology Commission and director of both the award committee for natural sciences and the examination and recommendation committee in charge of classifying inventions, gave a detailed report on the work procedures.

He emphasized on three points: One, these subjects of research were developed from the needs of socialist construction and production, pursuing the principle of integrating theory with practice, and the results are closely connected with the needs of Chinese society: two, the award winners are products of large scale cooperation, a demonstration of the superiority of the socialist system and the spirit of independence and self-reliance; three, a generation of young and middle-aged scientists have shown their merits, testifying to the fact that a pwoerful contingent of Chinese scientists and technicians has come to the fore who are inventive, creative, able to overcome difficulties and key problems and are hard working. He called this "a most reliable force for achieving China's four modernisations."

Fang Yi Speech

OW241743 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1517 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, 23 Oct (XINHUA) -- The following is Fang Yi's speech at the opening ceremony of the national science awarding conference. The speech is entitled: "The Science and Technology Workers' Lofty Duties."

Comrades! Under the kind attention of the party Central Committee and the State Council, the national science awarding conference now opens. The convening of such a grand meeting, which is being held shortly after the victorious closing of the 12th CPC National Congress, to commend the science and technology workers for their hard work vividly shows the concern, attention and profound expectations of the party Central Committee and the State Council for science and technology. At todays' meeting, we will announce the names of the science and technology workers who have gloriously won the country's awards for natural science and inventions. We will also commend them at this meeting. The commendations by our motherland and people are the highest awards. Winning such an award is the greatest happiness and glory. With a jubilant heart, we want to express our warm congratulations and heartfelt thanks to those scientists, experts, engineers and technicians who are gloriously honored here today for their outstanding contributions in their work. We must also point out that a large number of engineers, technicians and administrators who have made exceptional contributions in economic construction and national defense should also be commended, even though their names are not included in the namelist of those who are commended today. Generally speaking, any achievement in our socialist state embodies the collective wisdom and efforts and represents the products of a great socialist cooperation. The comrades who are commended today are specifically the representatives of the tens of thousands of unknown heroes on our country's scientific and technological front. Commending them is a way of expressing the commendations of the party and the people for all comrades on the scientific and technological front.

Naturally, the purpose of holding such a commendation meeting not only is to commend what has been accomplished, but also -- which is more important -- to greet what will be accomplished. The meeting today is both a commendation meeting and a mobilization and oath-taking meeting. We must, through this meeting, further mobilize and organize our country's science and technology workers to scale new heights of science and technology and make new contributions to the enhancement of our country's economic and social development in accordance with our country's needs.

Comrades! The scientific and technological cause of our socialist state is part of the people's cause. Its lofty goal is to work for the interests of the motherland and the people. Unlike all the exploiting classes' acts of seizing science and technology as their own property, our socialist state's science and technology belong to the people. Our socialist state is closely linked with the people's interests as it is dedicated to fulfilling the people's needs and enhancing their happiness.

Science and technology workers in our socialist state follow a lofty ethical standard and are dedicated to serving the people wholeheartedly. This is precisely why our country's scientific and technological work is so vigorous and promising.

Although our country's scientific and technological work has experienced all sorts of difficulties during the past 30 years and more, nothing has been able to obstruct its progress. This is because science represents the people's interests, and the people's interests cannot be ignored; and science also represents truth, and truth cannot be repressed. It will invariably discover a way for its development. Following the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, our country's scientific and technological work entered into a new period of development. Scientific and technological work has received great attention from the party and the government. The party's various policies on scientific and technological development have been further implemented. News of victory keeps pouring in from the scientific and technological front, and new things have continued to appear. A new generation of science and technology workers is maturing. A picture of prosperity and boundless vitality has appeared in our country's scientific and technological cause.

According to Marxist principles, a society's material production constitutes the basic content of a human society's activities. Developing the economy is a task of utmost importance that lies ahead of our country. To serve the people's interests, science and technology must first serve economic construction and modernization. Science and technology must spur the development of industrial and agricultural production and fulfill the people's increasing material needs and demand for civilized living. During a certain period in the past, science and technology were out of line with the economy to a certain extent. To correct this situation, our country formulated a new policy in 1981 on scientific and technological development. It was presented in accordance with the situation of our country. This policy mainly emphasized that science and technology must serve economic and social development, and that economic and social development must depend on science and technology. It also emphasized that scientific and technological development must be in coordination with economic and social development, and that science and technology must consider serving the economy as their most important tasks. This policy has correctly handled the relationship between economic and social development and scientific and technological development and the relationship between fundamental and practical research and developmental research. It has also resolved such problems as development of production technology and options of technological structures as well as the problems of correctly handling and absorbing foreign countries' advanced scientific and technological achievements. Because of this policy, our country has been able to build its scientific and technological work on a solid foundation. Guided by this new policy, our country's scientific and technological development and economic and social development have been further integrated during the past 2 years. While science and technology have had economic support, they have in turn spurred economic development and brought about better economic results. The powerful role of science and technology as a productive force and a means for settling policy has become more and more apparent. An unprecedentedly lively and vigorous situation has appeared in our country's scientific and technological sphere. Not long ago, the party's 12th national congress put forward the grand objective of striving to quadruple the gross annual value of industrial and agricultural production by the end of this century under the premise of improving the economic results. While presenting new and higher demands for science and technology, the congress has also provided even broader areas throughout the country where scientific and technological potentials can be brought into full play. Now there is a wide scope for science and technology to serve the economy.

Comrades! Our party is attaching great importance to science and technology not only because they can create material wealth and are powerful means for building a modernized material civilization, but also because they can create spiritual wealth and are important aspects in building a socialist spiritual civilization. Science is arduous and honest labor. It inspires people's wisdom and fosters people's spirit of arduous struggle and of seeking truth. Science is a means for exploring and creating the future. It broadens people's minds, broadens their horizons, and gives them the courage to explore and create. Science develops in the course of struggling against fallacies, it gives people the courage to defy hardship and frustrations and gives them the persevering and indomitable strength of seeking and defending truth. Science is mankind's common wealth; it is incompatible with all sorts of opportunistic, profit-making and selfish behavior. It can nurture people's noble qualities and inspire people's spirit of dedication. We urge all the science and technology workers to further foster the scientific spirit. We urge the whole nation to study how to foster the scientific spirit so that the flowers of socialist spiritual civilization will blossom more beautifully.

Comrades! October is cool and pleasant in Beijing. It is also a month of harvest. After the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, we greeted the arrival of a spring of science. Now the fruits from the flowers that blossomed in that spring are ripe. While we are still working hard tilling our land, we are beginning to reap the first batch of fruits from our garden of science. What an encouraging scene! This symbolizes our thriving scientific and technological work. It also symbolizes even more that our great motherland is entering into an era of national resurgence, which is full of hope and sunshine. All science and technology workers who have lofty ambitions and ideals, let us dedicate ourselves fully to the communist cause, to the building of a stronger and more prosperous China and to the progress of the people's scientific and technological work. Let us once again express our high respect for those science and technology workers, administrators and party and government workers who have contributed to our country's scientific and technological development. May the glory, hope and responsibilities be all yours!

Zhao Ziyang Addresses Meeting

OW241403 Beijing XINHUA in English 1200 GMT 24 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 24 (XINHUA) -- Premier Zhao Ziyang today spoke to China's leading scientists and administrators on four major questions concerning scientific progress and economic construction.

Addressing the national science awarding conference attended by 6,000 people, the premier called attention to developing science and technology in line with the needs of the national economy.

The four questions are:

One. Economic advance relies on the progress of science and technology, and so will be the realization of the national goal for the year 2000.

Two. Science and technology should serve economic construction. This should be regarded as a guiding principle. Scientists should play an active part in the country's socialist modernization and carry out research on key problems of significant economic results.

Three. Scientists and technicians should be organized to participate in planning work and tackling the major technical problems.

Four. Attention should be paid to arousing the enthusiasm of enterprises in raising their technical levels. There should be appropriate economic policies to pave the way for the advance of science and technology. All ministries, regions and enterprises should spend money on and make money by developing new technology.

Among the party and state leaders present at the conference today are Wan Li, Fang Yi, Yu Qiuli, Yao Yilin, Chen Muhua, Deng Liqun, Bo Yibo and Huang Hua.

Warm applause greeted Premier Zhao as he concluded his report. Discussions will follow this afternoon and tomorrow.

Zhao on Scientific Progress

OW250932 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1405 GMT 24 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, 24 Oct (XINHUA) -- At the national science awarding conference, Premier of the State Council Zhao Ziyang said: The invigoration of China's economy depends on progress in science and technology. He emphatically pointed out that this will be the guiding principle for China's economic work. Premier Zhao pointed out that by not relying on progress in science and technology, there is a danger that the slogan of "quadrupling" the target may fall through, whereas by relying on it, the realization of this target may be assured. The documents of the 12th CPC National Congress said that we should "strive" to quadruple. When we say we shall "strive" to reach the goal, we mean first of all to strive for progress in science and technology. Our hope lies in making this important task a success.

Zhao Ziyang said: Industry, agriculture and factories, old and new, must grasp the technical progress link and shift production toward a new and advanced technical basis. In carrying out economic construction from now on, we should not stick to the old road but follow a new one; we should not lay our bet on enlarging extension [wai yan 1120 1693] but should rely on intension [nei han 0355 3211] in the main. It goes without saying that we still must build factories with an advanced technical level in a planned manner in the future. However, China is so large, modernization cannot be realized by simply building a handful of new modernized plants. Old plants must carry out technical reform. These old plants are comparable to a boundless ocean. If the appearance of this boundless ocean remains unchanged and always settles in a backward state, it would be impossible to bring the entire technical and economic targets to an advanced level. On the other hand, the new plants must not only be built and armed with advanced technology, but must also continue to use even more advanced technology after their completion. With the technical aging period becoming shorter and shorter, even more advanced technology will lag behind in several years. Enterprises that fail to achieve technical progress and those that stand still and refuse to make progress have no future and will certainly become obsolete. From now on to the end of this century, all economic departments must be switched to a new technological basis step by step and in a planned way.

Zhao Ziyang pointed out: Once it is put into use in production, advanced science and technology will become a powerful and dynamic social productive force. Th[illegible] a fundamental principle of Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong Thought. Comrade Deng Xiaoping ha[illegible] cussed this principle on many occasions. At the recent 12th CPC National Congress, Comrade Hu Yaobang also stressed the question of science and technology. We should put these ideas into practice in economic construction. If we are to seriously carry out modernization, we must depend on progress in science and technology. All ministers, governors, mayors, magistrates and plant managers must depend on policies and on science and technology in leading economic work.

How can leading cadres rely on science and technology? Premier Zhao suggested that work should be done well in the following four areas: 1) the initiative of scientific and technological personnel must be brought into play; 2) research projects must be put forward on the scientific and technological front; 3) good working conditions must be provided for scientific research work; 4) the application of research results in production must be facilitated.

He said: Many comrades are not too familiar with many of these things. However, because we want to quadruple the target and pursue modernization, we must learn to do well this work that we are not too familiar with but which is hard and important. We must study it earnestly and carry it out in a practical way. From now on, all leading financial and economic departments including financial, banking and commercial departments must include those comrades in the leadership who have scientific knowledge and are eager to promote science and technology. Otherwise, we will be facing a mental block and cannot implement policies well. Now is the right time to raise such questions without further delay.

Science Must Serve Economy

OW241411 Beijing XINHUA in English 1233 GMT 24 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 24 (XINHUA) -- Premier Zhao Ziyang said today that China's scientific and technological work must be geared to the needs of the country's economic construction.

Speaking at the national science awarding conference, the premier said that the primary task of scientific research, that covers a wide area of endeavor, is to study key scientific and technological projects of great benefit to economic development.

The most important contribution to be made by a scientist or technician is the kind that promotes progress in production technology and increases economic results, he added.

The guiding principle that science and technology must serve economic construction is correct and necessary, he noted. It is therefore imperative to decide upon the tasks and projects of scientific research, readjust the scientific research system and scientific forces and improve the system of assessment of scientific and technical workers and the awarding policy accordingly

The existing scientific research system falls short of the needs of economic construction, he added. It may be considered first to do the following: 1) establish technical development centers in some trades; 2) establish or strengthen technical development centers in some major specialized corporations and major enterprises; 3) encourage the collaboration between research institutes and production units by integrating scientific research, designing, production and service, setting up comprehensive experimental bases for agricultural modernization, introducing a scientific research contracting system and technical consultancy service.

It is necessary to work out regulations to encourage technical progress, he said. Awards should be given according to contribution without any egalitarian considerations.

Zhao on Increasing Initiative

OW241417 Beijing XINHUA in English 1248 GMT 24 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 24 (XINHUA) -- Efforts must be made to overcome two fundamental shortcomings in the current economic setup in the process of transforming it, said Premier Zhao Ziyang at the national science awarding conference today.

Identifying the two shortcomings, the premier said the current economic setup cannot very effectively encourage enterprises to concern themselves with the needs of society and the market or with technical progress. This has resulted in divorcement of production from demand and slow progress in technical transformation.

All departments, localities and enterprises should spend money on developing new technology and make money through the introduction of new technology, he said.

Financial, credit, taxation, pricing and other policies should pave the way for technical progress and increase the enterprises' enthusiam for it, he noted.

He said: "Our economic policy should encourage and not impede technical progress."

Scientists' Part in Planning

OW241419 Beijing XINHUA in English 1253 GMT 24 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 24 (XINHUA) -- Economists and scientists should work together in drawing up a 10-year national economic development program so that economic construction, scientific and technological progress and social development are better coordinated, Premier Zhao Ziyang said at the national science awarding conference today.

Zhao Ziyang pointed out that scientists should also participate in making plans for various industries, localities and major enterprises. This, he said, would enable the scientists to contribute their share and acquaint themselves with the actual conditions and the present and future needs of economic construction, and to have an accurate all-round view in considering the direction, focus and subjects of study for their specialities.

Speaking on organizing forces to solve key technical problems, Premier Zhao Ziyang said that feasibility studies and other preparatory work for major projects should be included in such problems.

Once research results are achieved, they should be applied to production and popularized promptly, he said.

"The number of our scientists is limited. This is a weak point," Premier Zhao Ziyang said. "But China is a socialist country. We have a good social system and we can organize our forces to tackle problems. This is where we are superior."

Awards Detailed

OW240205 Beijing XINHUA in English 1604 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 23 (XINHUA) -- A brief introduction to China's six major research projects that won the country's first-class awards for natural sciences today follows:

1. Complete synthesis of bovine insulin: Niu Jingyi at the Institute of Biochemistry under the Chinese Academy of Sciences and other scientists in 1965 produced totally synthesized crystalline bovine insulin after more than six years of hard effort. It was the first time in the world that protein was synthesized. The achievement marked a great step forward in man's quest to understand life and its secrets and opened new vistas for basic research and application of proteins. Basing themselves on this achievement, Chinese scientists later went on to synthesize many kinds of polypeptide hormones of practical value and began to synthesize even bigger protein molecules.

2. The geo-scientific work that led to the discovery of the Daqing oilfield in northeast China: Li Siguang (deceased), Huang Jiqing and other Chinese geologists, basing themselves on a large amount of geo-scientific work before and after the founding of New China, refuted the notion of some foreign scholars that China lacked oil deposits and advanced the theory that oil could be found in continental sedimentation, thus providing China's oil industry with bright prospects. In accordance with their proposal, the central government at the beginning of 1958 decided to move some of China's oil prospecting teams from northwest to northeast China. Wells of industrial values were soon tapped and an oilfield -- Daqing, one of the world's largest oilfields -- was thus discovered. The geo-scientific work conducted by Li Siguang and other geologists provided a theoretical and practical basis for a nation-wide petroleum survey.

3. Ligand field theory research results: Professor Tang Aoqing of Jilin University and the research group under his guidance, after overcoming many conceptual and mathematical difficulties, began in the 1960s to systemize, and standardize the Ligand field theory concerning the structure of molecules for wider application. Their research results, of quite advanced world levels, are being widely applied.

4. The discovery of anti-sigma negative hyperon: When doing research on elementary particles, Professor Wang Guanchang and his team in 1960 discovered the anti-sigma negative hyperon -- the first electrically-charged negative hyperon ever found. This discovery enriched man's understanding of elementary particles and provides new proofs of the universal law of unity of opposites, i.e., particles and anti-particles and matter and anti-matter.

5. Geological maps of China and a geological map of Asia: After a comprehensive study of relevant data, Wang Xiaoqing and other scientists of the Institute of Geology under the Ministry of Geology and Minerals began in 1958 to draw a series of national and regional geological-mineral maps of China and a geological map of Asia with corresponding notes, works and papers. These maps and documents provide valuable basic data for geological, mineral prospecting and hydrological work, the development of the national economy, national defence, geological research and teaching.

6. Progress toward the solution of the Goldbach Conjecture: In 1742, the distinguished German mathematician Goldbach advanced the proposition that every large even number can be represented as the sum of two primes. But the proposition remains unsolved. In the 1950s, Wang Yuan of the Institute of Mathematics under the Chinese Academy of Sciences and Pan Chengdong of Shandong University made significant progress in research into the problem. By 1966, Chen Jingren of the Institute of Mathematics first proved the representation of large even numbers is the sum of a prime and the product of at most two primes. Chen Jingren published his results in detail in 1973, and then Pan Chengdong and Wang Yuan simplified Chen's process. Their achievements are the best in the world so far, though more efforts are being made to finally solve the Goldbach Conjecture.

TWO INTERVIEWS WITH AWARD-WINNING SCIENTISTS

Atomic Physicist

OW231905 Beijing XINHUA in English 1829 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 23 (XINHUA) -- Sitting in his drawing room in his four-room apartment in Beijing, Wang Ganchang looks so quiet, so plain that one would hardly know that he is one of the leading scientists who guided the development of China's first atomic bomb in 1964 and hydrogen bomb in 1967.

He is now heading a group of scientists researching inertial confined fusion, which he described as "one of the hopeful approaches towards the realization of nuclear fusion."

Professor Wang Ganchang -- along with the research group under his guidance -- today received China's natural science award, first class. The nation's highest science prize was awarded for the discovery of the antisigma negative hyperon.

When U.S. Physicist E. Segre and others declared the discovery of anti-proton in 1956, Professor Wang suggested that anti-hyperon could be discovered by using an accelerator with higher energy.

The Chinese scientist organized a research team at the Joint Institute of Nuclear Research in Dubna, U.S.S.R. in 1958 and by using pi-meson as the bombarding particle discovered the anti-sigma negative hyperon. Man for the first time discovered electrically-charged anti-hyperon and thus enriched the understanding of elementary particles.

When Wang Ganchang left lecture rooms and quiet laboratories to work in China's nuclear bases in northwestern deserts in the early 1960s, a period during which China was experiencing temporary economic difficulties, the professor recalled that he was very much moved be the indominable spirit of the other scientists, technicians and party administrators working there. Convinced of success in the future, everybody willingly faced fatigue and hardship -- water could never really boil, rice half-done, breathing was difficult and the weather was sometimes swelteringly hot and sometimes severely cold.

"I came to understand what is most valuable in life -- the moral quality of our people and scientists," he said.

"A prosperous and strong China had been one of my life-long ideals. Only in New China I began to see hope," the professor added.

Wang Ganchang was educated at Qinghua University from 1925 to 1929 and went to Germany in 1930 to major in physics at Berlin University at a time when nuclear physical studies were just on the rise.

The reality of Hitler's Germany in 1933 taught him that it was impossible for scientists to stand aloof from politics. He was eager to go back to China which was being invaded by the Japanese. Some friends advised him to stay in Europe to do research work. China had no conditions whatsoever for nuclear research, they told him.

"I'm a scientist, but I am first a Chinese," Wang replied.

In the early 1930s, Swiss physicist W. Pauli held a hypothesis that there was probably a new particle called nutrino, however the premise had never been validated with experiments. Wang worked out a proposal for such an experiment, but he could not possibly proceed with the experiment in old China. He had to write a paper on his proposal and send it to the scientific journal PHYSICAL REVIEW in the United States. Half a year later, American scientist J. Allen proved the existence of the nutrino according to Wang's proposal.

The scientist is bittersweet about it. "Why could it not have been validated in China?"

After he came back to China in 1934 at the age of 27, he again plunged into the study of nuclear physics though China was deeply beset by the turmoil of war. His family fled to mountainous Guizhou in 1938 and lived in extreme poverty. His children managed to raise a sheep to get some milk for their hard-working and ailing father.

At his 75th birthday party last year, the professor quoted an ancient Chinese poem, jokingly comparing himself to a horse which -- though old -- still aims to gallop another thousand miles. This "old horse" wins respect from all those who work with him.

Professor Wang and his wife are now living with their third daughter, a mechanical engineer. Two of their daughters are biologists and their only son is a geologist.

Quantum Theorist

OW240307 Beijing XINHUA in English 1841 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 23 (XINHUA) -- Professor Tang Aoqing (Tang Ao-chin), 67, of Jilin University, and his research group got a first-class natural science award today for the research results on the ligand field theory.

Professor Tang Aoqing is one of China's leading researchers in quantum chemistry. In an interview at his hotel room, he told XINHUA that he was doing research into structural rules of cluster compounds. A team under his guidance was going to cooperate with Professor Roald Hoffmann, the 1981 Nobel Price winner for chemistry, in quantum chemical studies.

Professor Tang first announced the irreducible tensorial method of ligand field theory at the Beijing symposium on physics in July of 1966. Since then, he and his coworkers have published a series of papers in this field.

The ligand field theory is one of the three major theories concerning molecular structure and is an important theoretical basis for modern inorganic chemistry. It is of great importance for the explanation of the relationship between the physical properties such as optical, electrical, magnetic or thermal properties and the structures of complex compounds or crystals.

Professor Tang Aoqing in the 1950s studied the theory of internal rotation of molecules and worked out a theory to express the potential functions, for which he got a third-class award by the Chinese Academy of Sciences. He has many original ideas of polymer reaction dynamics and put forward a number of new theories on polymer chemistry.

In the 1970s Professor Tang developed the graph theory of molecular orbitals. He also obtained some valuable results on the symmetry conservation of molecular orbitals.

Since he returned from the U.S.A. in the spring of 1950, he has engaged in scientific education. He has trained more than one hundred specialists in the structure of matter, polymer physical chemistry and quantum chemistry.

He studied chemistry in Beijing University from 1936 to 1940. After graduation he taught at the National Southwest Associated University in Kunming. He went to Columbia University, U.S.A. as a post-graduate. During his student days, he experienced insults as a Chinese and as a person from a weak nation. He was all along inspired by the idea "China could be saved by science". Only after the establishment of New China in 1949 did he find the way. "I realized that nothing is more valuable than national independence and nothing more important than ending the history of being plundered and bullied by strong foreign powers and standing as an equal nation in the family of the world." Professor Tang said.

With science put on the high agenda of national development, a bright future is in sight for China now, Professor Tang said.

Professor Tang is now director of the Institute of Theoretical Chemistry under Jilin University with a laboratory of quantum chemistry and one of structural chemistry.

He is the father of six children, three sons and three daughters. His eldest daughter is teaching physics at Beijing University and eldest son softwear engineering at Qinghua University. His third son is studying molecular physics at the University of Southern California, the U.S.A. The youngest daughter is learning chemistry as a postgraduate at Jilin University, following her father's footsteps.

ZHAO ZIYANG ATTENDS FOREIGN TRADE CONFERENCE

OW220425 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1228 GMT 20 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, 20 Oct (XINHUA) -- A national conference on planning for China's foreign economic relations and trade was held in Beijing from 29 September to 20 October. The conference seriously studied and implemented the guidelines of the 12th CPC Congress and pledged to make better use of world markets to create a new situation in China's foreign relations and trade and to contribute to realizing the grand goal of quadrupling China's industrial and agricultural output value by the end of this century.

During its session, Zhao Ziyang, Wan Li, Fang Yi, Chen Muhua, Gu Mu, Bo Yibo and other central leading comrades received briefings from the Ministry of Foreign Economic Relations and Trade and made important speeches. They fully affirmed the achievement made in China's foreign trade since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee. They pointed out that the doubling of China's export value in the last 3 years and the fine performance of its foreign exchange revenues and expenditures at a time when the world economy is in recession and when China's economy is undergoing readjustment are very impressive achievements.

The planning conference was the first of its kind since the establishment of the Ministry of Foreign Economic Relations and Trade to take charge of all foreign economic relations and trade work.

At the beginning of the conference, Comrade Chen Muhua put forth on behalf of the leading party group of the ministry the slogan of "implementing the guidelines of the 12th CPC Congress and creating a new situation in China's foreign economic relations and trade" and the 20-year development blueprint. On the basis of the 12th CPC Congress guidelines, the conference pooled the collective wisdom and held serious discussion on making preparations for implementing next year's plan.

After analyzing the international and domestic economic situation, the conference pointed out: Despite continuous depression in the world economy, China's economy is vigorously developing in the course of economic readjustment. We should make full use of our conditions and continue to develop our foreign economic relations and trade in order to make a new breakthrough in China's imports and exports and in its economic cooperation and exchange with foreign countries.

The conference stressed: Increasing exports is the basis for developing China's foreign economic relations and trade and should be vigorously promoted. It is necessary to work hard in readjusting commodity structures. First of all, it is necessary to continue to fully use China's rich natural resources and actively increase the export of some of them in a well-planned way. It is also necessary to earnestly promote the export of machinery products. Traditional commodities such as farm produce, sideline and local products as well as light industrial and textile products are still mainstays of China's exports. It is necessary to continually promote their exportation.

The conference demanded that the question of quality of exported commodities be seriously studied as a question of strategic importance. It was pointed out at the conference that beating competitors with better-quality products is of special significance under the present new circumstances. Now, since foreign countries are making increasing efforts to protect their own trade, our exported products are restricted in quantity. Only by making a farily big breakthrough in quality can we quickly increase our exports. For example, if we improve the varieties, quality and packaging of our cereal and edible oil products exported to Hong Kong, we will earn an additional U.S. $200 million annually. At present, raw materials and primary products account for nearly one half of our exported commodities, while the proportion of processed and manufactured products, especially sophisticated products, is not high. It is imperative to give full scope to our processing capability and proceed step by step toward exporting manufactured products instead of raw materials. At the same time, efforts should be made to improve management, do a still better job in fulfilling the contracts, offer more after-sale service and further improve the quality of such service.

The conference pointed out that improvement of commodity quality is not merely a task of the production departments. In the present system those in charge of foreign economic relations and trade can provide the production departments with samples, technical material and market information and can reflect the needs of customers. They can also help the production departments choose and import advanced technology and equipment and conduct international market surveys. We must strive hard to see to it that our exported commodities are improved remarkably in quality, in variety and designs and in packaging and are more competitive in the market within a few years.

To promote exports, the conference pointed out, it is necessary to exploit the favorable conditions of coastal areas and go all out to develop the processing industry using imported raw material and turning out products for export. Continued efforts should be made to support the operations of production bases and special plants and workshops which produre commodities for export, and to seriously solve such problems as transport and warehousing. Communications and transport departments must give all-out support and serve the import and export business.

The conference studied such questions as how to actively and effectively use foreign capital, import advanced technology, win contracts from abroad for engineering projects and develop cooperation with foreign firms by providing labor. It worked out plans for next year's imports and exports.

The conference pointed out with emphasis: The foreign economic relations and trade is a component part of the national economy. It is closely linked with other sectors of the national economy. We must mobilize and rely on the initiative of all departments concerned in order to further improve this work. In the meantime, since the work is faced with a complicated and fluctuating international market, it is imperative to strengthen coordination and management so as to develop it successfully. For this reason, we must carry out the principle of "unified planning, unified policy and coordination in foreign trade work" and according to this principle, bring the initiative of various localities, departments and enterprises into full play so that they will make coordinated efforts to further improve foreign trade work.

ECONOMIST ON PRC'S GROWING ROLE IN WORLD ECONOMY

OW231354 Beijing XINHUA in English 1236 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 23 (XINHUA) -- China is becoming more active each day in the world economic arena and is making steady progress amidst the current worldwide economic fluctuation, according to Professor Luo Yuanzheng, research fellow of the Research Institute of World Economy and Politics of the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences.

Speaking at a colloquium now in session here, the professor predicted that, endowed as it is with great potentialities for stepping up economic, trade and financial cooperation with foreign countries, China is certain to play an ever greater role in the development of the world economy.

The colloquium is being jointly sponsored by the People's Bank of China and the International Monetary Fund.

The professor pinpointed five areas in which China has displayed a positive role in the world economy:

First, despite a dwindling world trade, China's foreign trade is rapidly expanding.

According to the professor, the volume of world trade, which has stagnated since the beginning of the 1980s, increased 1.5 percent in 1980, only to drop 1.6 percent the next year. So far there are no signs of a pickup for 1982. However, China's total value of imports and exports in 1981 increased by 62 percent over that in 1979, from 45,500 million to 73,530 million yuan.

Although the world market was marked by a decline in most of the commodity prices in the first half of this year, China's total export value rose by 10.2 percent over the same period last year, surpassing that of the world's total export value, Professor Luo said.

Second, China's international financial relations are growing and her import of foreign capital has demonstrated a strong start.

According to figures provided by the Bank of China, by the end of 1981, the Bank of China had established agent relations with 1,071 foreign banks and their 1,849 branches in 146 countries and regions -- a 28 percent increase over three years ago.

With rich natural resources and a potentially large domestic market, China is an ideal place for investment, he said. There are broad prospects for the import of funds and technologies and for economic and technological exchanges with foreign countries.

Third, exploitation of China's energy resources forms and important part of international technological and economic cooperation.

Judging from the actual situation of supply and demand at home, China can probably rely on its domestic production for home consumption and stay free from the influence of fluctuating prices on the world energy market, he said. The country exported more than 10 million tons of crude oil in 1981. China's coal is competitive in the world market because of its rich variety and high quality, he said. China is exploiting its energy resources mainly by self-reliance but also through international economic and technological cooperation.

Fourth, China is in favor of South-South economic cooperation and supports the efforts of the developing countries towards the establishment of a new international economic order, the professor said, and this country can also play a considerable role in developing South-South cooperation. China's trade with Third World countries is rapidly expanding, with the 1980 value more than five times that of 1970, he said. In the past three years, China entered into economic cooperation with a number of Third World countries in various arrangements and the technologies provided by China have been found to be well suited to conditions in Third World countries, he said. On the other hand, China can also import useful technologies from other developing countries.

Fifth, China's economy constitutes a positive factor contributing to the development of the world economy.

Thanks to its efforts in more than 30 years, China has established an independent and comprehensive system of socialist industry and national economy mainly by adhering to an independent policy and to self-reliance, he said. China's foreign economic relations have also experienced steady growth, he said, and this is obviously a positive factor in the development of the world economy as a whole, he concluded.

CHINA DAILY ON DOMESTIC ECONOMY DURING RECESSION

HK240244 Beijing CHINA DAILY in English 24 Oct 82 p 2

[By CHINA DAILY reporter: "China Beats the Recession"]

[Text] Despite the worldwide economic recession, China's economy is surging ahead steadily, which "is a positive factor to promote the world economy," Professor Luo Yuanzheng, a senior research fellow of the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences yesterday told the academic meeting held by the People's Bank of China and the International Monetary Fund (IMF).

According to Luo, the total value of industrial and agricultural output in 1981 was 749 billion yuan, an increase of 13 per cent over 1980. The annual output of grain jumped to 325.02 million tons in 1981.

Luo pointed out that light industry maintained a high rate of growth, with the output of cotton cloth and chemical fibres showing a 29.4 per cent increase over 1978.

Heavy industry, he said, picked up again after a fall in 1980 and 1981, with its output showing a jump of 9.5 per cent in the first six months of this year, compared with the same period last year.

The rebound of heavy industry, Luo noted, was mainly due to the boom of agriculture, light industry, basic construction, foreign trade and the extensive technological upgrading of existing enterprises.

China succeeded in achieving a basic balance between state revenue and expenditure and a favourable balance in foreign trade in 1981, he said.

China's commodity prices were stable, he said. Prices of some items had not gone up in the past few years, but those of daily necessities had been kept relatively stable, Lou said.

The annual growth rate of commodity sales in urban and rural areas had averaged 14.5 per cent in the past three years. During the same period, state spending on workers' wages had increased by 8.2 billion yuan annually. The annual per capita income rose from 134 yuan in 1978 to 223 yuan in 1981, up 66.4 per cent.

China's foreign trade was expanding fast, showing the country's positive role in the world economy, Luo said. Its international financial relations were growing and the import of foreign capital had shown a good start.

By the end of 1981, the Bank of China had established agent relations with 1,071 foreign banks and itself had 2,920 branches in 146 countries, a 28 per cent increase over three years ago.

Since 1979, he revealed, China had reached agreements on $5.7 billion of loans from foreign governments and world financial institutions.

Since 1980, the Chinese Government had approved the operation of 44 joint ventures involving foreign investment and 425 contracts on co-operative enterprises.

China had an abundance of energy resources. It exported 13.754 million tons of crude oil and 5.05 million tons of refined oil in 1981. Its coal was competitive in the world market because of its rich variety and high quality, he said.

Luo said that China's trade with Third World countries had been expanding fast, reaching $8.4 billion in 1980, more than four times that of 1970. In the past three years, China had signed co-operative contracts with a number of Third World countries on construction projects, service supply and joint ventures.

"The whole world is gripped by the serious economic depression, but the depression has exerted a lesser adverse effect on China than on other developing countries." Lou said.

Manufactured goods took up 53.4 per cent and primary goods 36.6 per cent of China's exports in 1981. Therefore, commodity price fluctuations on the world market, where the prices of primary goods usually fall faster than those of manufactured goods, had not affected China very much, he said.

AGREEMENTS SIGNED TO PROTECT FOREIGN INVESTMENT

OW240227 Beijing XINHUA in English 1508 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 23 (XINHUA) -- Agreements have been signed between the Governments of China, the United States and Sweden on the protection of these countries' investments in China, Jing Shuping, vice-president of the China International Trust and Investment Corporation (CITIC) said today.

China is discussing investment protection with a number of other countries including Switzerland, Japan, Canada and the Federal Republic of Germany, he said in a report to the closing session of the second China-Europe business leaders symposium which opened here on October 19.

He expressed the hope that this would help reassure foreign investors since China still lacked experience in absorbing foreign investment and its foreign economic laws and regulations were yet to be improved.

He assured the foreign participants -- mostly bankers and entrepreneurs from Europe, the United States and Arab countries -- that once approved by the Chinese Government, contracts and agreements signed by Chinese institutions were "legally effective."

In carrying out the policy of opening to the world, Jing Shuping said, China is willing to cooperate with foreign countries in what it considers the best of the internationally acceptable forms, including joint ventures, cooperative enterprises, joint exploitation of natural resources, compenstation trade, leasing, processing and assembling of supplied materials and components.

Nevertheless, he continued, processing for the production of some products would be limited when that affected the development of China's national industry.

CITIC operates directly under the State Council and specialises in drawing funds for China's economic construction. The State Council, Jing Shuping said, had authorized the CITIC to use on a trial basis methods to make things easier in soliciting foreign funds.

For example, he said, the corporation was in a position to issue corporate debentures abroad. In January 1982, it issued 10,000 million yen bonds in Japan in private placement.

"Less formalities are involved in CITIC's handling of cooperation projects that do not affect the country's economic plan," he added.

Since its founding in October 1979, CITIC has signed agreements with 40 "internationally prestigious" banks on the supply to China of overdrafts and loans, Jing Shuping said. It has invested 300 million U.S. dollars of overseas and its own funds in a wide range of industrial sectors.

Jing Shuping is concurrently president of the China International Economic Consultants, Inc. (CIEC) which was established in October 1981. In that capacity, he said the corporation had been commissioned to undertake 80 projects, the biggest involving investment amounting to billions of U.S. dollars.

TECHNOLOGY IMPORTS OFFICIAL ON TRADE POLICIES

OW221830 Beijing XINHUA in English 1518 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 22 (XINHUA) -- China's policy is to open to the world, press ahead with technical and economic exchanges with other countries and absorb foreign funds and technology, a Chinese official said today.

Xu Deen, deputy managing director of the China National Technical Import Corporation explained China's foreign trade policy in an address to a group of foreign bankers and entrepreneurs attending the second China-Europe business leaders symposium. His corporation is under the Ministry of Foreign Economic Relations and Trade and specializes in importing technologies and complete sets of equipment.

"You may rest assured that it will be a profitable business to engage in economic and technical cooperation with China on the basis of equality and mutual benefit," he said, "because work in this field will grow in scope."

"But China, in line with international practices, rejects terms which are unreasonable in order to protect its just rights and interests," he said.

The corporation, he said, refuses to sign contracts containing terms that restrict the Chinese from undertaking research and development or making revisions on imported technical documentation to suit conditions in China. Neither should another country impose terms that restrict the Chinese from continuing to use imported technology upon the expiration of the contract, he said, or oblige it to return the technical documentation or continue to pay royalties thereafter.

He said, other terms to be rejected include: those that provide no technical guarantee on the part of the supplying party in regard to imported projects and products or no guarantee for the acceptability of such projects and products; those that aim at imposing a tie-in arrangement to oblige the Chinese side to buy additional technology, materials, spare parts or finished products it does not need; those that prohibit the Chinese side from acquiring similar or still better technology from other sources; and those that oblige the Chinese side to acquire materials and spare parts only from the supplying party.

The corporation refuses to sign contracts providing no reciprocal rights and obligations in matters relating to the exchange of technological improvements, he said.

"We also consider unacceptable terms stipulating that a contract should be made in such a way as to be pursuant to the law of a specific country other than China," Xu Deen said.

He said: "This stand of ours is reasonable. We adopt it to implement the principle of equality and mutual benefit and ensure a sound development of our foreign economic and technical cooperation."

He said this stand is shared by many developing countries.

The China National Technical Import Corporation was set up in 1952, and by 1979. it had imported $16,500 million worth of technology and complete sets of equipment.

From 1979 to 1981, Xu Deen said, it imported 128 items of machine manufacturing technology.

COMMERCE MINISTER ON CHANGES IN COMMERCIAL WORK

OW222037 Beijing XINHUA in English 1508 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 22 (XINHUA) -- Liu Yi, minister of commerce, said that changes are to be made in commercial work in order to help realize the target of quadrupling China's gross industrial and agricultural output value by the end of this century set at the twelfth party congress.

He said this at a national meeting on commercial work now being held in Beijing.

The minister listed the following principles for the future reforms in commercial system:

-- State-owned enterprises should be the mainstay of China's socialist commerce, while allowing the existence of collective commercial enterprises and enterprises run by individuals. The collective and individual enterprises should be allowed to handle agricultural products, by-products and native produce, daily use manufactured goods and catering trade. The state-owned enterprises should support, assist and give guidance to them and must not restrict them.

-- The circulation of commodities between the cities and the countryside must be improved resolutely. At the same time, the system of the grassroots marketing and supply cooperatives in the rural areas must be reformed, to make them capable of coping with the economic and cultural development in the countryside and help bring about the prosperity of rural commodity economy.

-- Gradually reform the management system of commodities and reduce the unnecessary procedures in commodity circulation.

The basic tasks for commercial work in this period were outlined as: promote the production and circulation of commodities, bring about a prosperous economy both in the cities and in the countryside, and serve the growing material and cultural needs of the people and socialist construction.

Liu Yi listed the following achievements in commercial work:

-- The amount of grain, cotton and edible vegetable oil purchased by the state has greatly increased. This has ensured the supply of raw materials for the light and textile industries and provided more foodstuffs for the people.

-- The unitary form of unified purchase and sales by state commercial organizations of light industrial goods has been changed. Four different forms have been adopted, namely: state purchase and marketing, planned purchase, fixed quotas for purchase and selective purchase. This has led factories to manufacture products needed on the market, to turn out new products and upgrade existing ones and supply the market with a greater variety of daily use commodities.

-- The situation in which the state-owned enterprises handle all the domestic commercial transactions has been changed. Now business transactions are handled by state-owned, collective as well as individual trading agencies and through different channels and this has enlivened the market and convenienced the people.

-- The responsibility system has been implemented in commercial management. Thirty-five percent of the trading agencies with independent accounting have practised the responsibility system in management since last year, and some state-owned catering services in the cities have tried out the contract system, assuming sole responsibility for their profits or losses, thus breaking a path for improving the quality of service and economic results.

-- A fairly rapid development has been achieved in the training of personnel, in building refrigerating facilities, stores and other commercial buildings.

The national meeting of commercial work has opened on October 20 in Beijing, with more than 600 leading members of commercial departments throughout the country in attendance.

RAILWAY SECURITY WORKERS COMMENDED IN MEETING

OW220842 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1255 GMT 20 Oct 82

[Excerpts] Beijing, 20 Oct (XINHUA) -- The second national meeting to commend collectives and workers in railway security work was held today in Beijing. A total of 178 advanced collectives and 253 advanced individuals were commended. Ten units and 16 persons were respectively conferred the honorary titles of "model collective" and "advanced pace setter" and awarded silk banners and citations.

The meeting called on railway security cadres and police as well as local public committees throughout the country to seriously study the 12th CPC Congress guidelines and build themselves into a strong public secuirty contingent which is firm in political stand, pure in organization, competent in professional work, strict in discipline, superior in work style and maintains flesh and blood ties with the masses. The meeting also asked them to promote socialist spiritual civilization and foster the fine traditions and work style of the public security organs. It asked them to ardently love the party, socialism and the people, to stress the policy, the legal system, discipline, civility, courtesy and to fear neither hardships nor sacrifice. It asked them to deepen the activities to learn from Lei Feng, to cultivate a new work style, to promote the "five stresses and four beauties" and to foster the spirit of "people's railways are for the people" and "people's police love the people." It asked every public security cadre and policeman to become a cultured and disciplined public security fighter with lofty ideals and high ethical standards and to make fresh contributions to the creation of a new situation in railway security work, to the basic improvement in railway security and order, and to the safety of railway transportation and production.

The meeting also issued a written proposal to all railway security cadres and police and local public security committees in the country.

The meeting was sponsored by the Ministry of Railways.

FIFTH GENERATION WOMEN PILOTS DEMONSTRATE SKILLS

OW222204 Beijing XINHUA in English 1614 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 22 (XINHUA) -- China's fifth generation of women pilots today displayed their talents in the sky. The group is the fifth of Chinese women pilots since China started training women pilots in 1950.

The teen-aged pilots demonstrated their flying skills by diving, circling, and somersaulting at altitudes of thousands of meters before they landed successfully.

The pilots were secondary school graduates before they entered the aviation school, where they received rigorous training.

KOREA ALLOWS PRC PILOT TO COME TO TAIWAN

Foreign Ministry Statement

OW231033 Taipei CNA in English 0952 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Taipei, Oct 23 (CNA) -- In answering a press inquiry about the statement issued by the Government of the Republic of Korea on its decision to turn over Wu Jung-ken, a defecting Chinese Communist Air Force pilot to the Republic of China, Mr Ta-Jen Liu, spokesman of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, made the following statement today:

We are delighted to learn that the Government of the Republic of Korea, based on humanitarian consideration, has decided to allow Wu Jung-ken to come to the Republic of China in accordance with his own wishes. We would like to express our keep appreciation and respect to the Government of the Republic of Korea for its great effort in safeguarding freedom, justice and human dignity.

Korea Thanked

OW250531 Taipei International Service in English 0100 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Excerpts] In Seoul, the South Korean Foreign Ministry has announced it will send a Communist Chinese Air Force pilot who defected to South Korea on 16 October to Taiwan in accordance with his wishes. The ministry said the pilot, Wu Jung-ken, had expressed the desire to go to the Republic of China, the seat of the national Government of the ROC. A spokesman for the Foreign Ministry said the disposal of the MIG-19 which Mr Wu flew to Seoul will be carried out according to international practice but did not elaborate.

The spokesman said after studying the Communist Chinese pilot's request to defect, the South Korean Government decided to accept his free will out of humanitarian consideration and international practice. He said the South Korean Government had started legal procedures to turn the pilot over to the ROC as soon as possible but did not say when the process would be completed. The spokesman also said that South Korea had notified the Chinese Communists of the pilot's intentions but did not disclose when and how the contact was made.

At a press conference at 0850 Taipei time yesterday morning, the Chinese ambassador to the Republic of Korea, Ting Mou-shih, expressed gratification over the Korean Government's decision to arrange for the pilot, Maj Wu Jung-ken, to come to Taiwan. Meanwhile, spokesman for the Foreign Ministry in Taipei, Liu Ta-jen, also expressed his appreciation for the Korean Government's decision to safeguard the freedom by aiding the freedom fighter in coming to the ROC.

On Saturday the ROC Foreign Ministry issued a statement welcoming a South Korean Government announcement that the pilot had expressed a desire to come here. Authorities here have shown a keen interest in accepting Wu, the third to have defected to South Korea from Red China. Two others did so in 1961.

AFP: PRC Declines Comment

OW231016 Hong Kong AFP in English 0954 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, Oct 23 (AFP) -- Chinese authorities declined to comment today on the South Korea Government's decision to send a [word indistinct] defected Chinese Air Force Army pilot to Taiwan.

The Chinese authorities have still made no official mention of the defection of Wu Jung-ken, 23, from Dalian, a major northeast aeronaval base. They did, however, announce the October 16th disappearance of an air force "MIG-19."

Reliable sources in Seoul said the South Korean Government hoped to return the plane to China but was faced with the problem of not having contacts in mainland China as there are no relations between the two countries.

WEN WEI PO VIEWS PROSPECTS FOR SINO-SOVIET TALKS

HK250240 Hong Kong WEN WEI PO in Chinese 25 Oct 82 p 2

[Editorial: "Prospects for Sino-Soviet Talks"]

[Text] Chinese Vice Foreign Minister Qian Qichen and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Leonid Ilichev began talks in Beijing on 5 October. The first round of talks is over. The second round will be held in Moscow.

During the first round of talks, both sides stated their respective positions and probed into questions concerning substantive talks in the second round. Leaders of both countries expressed their desire to improve relations. The current talks of a probing nature is a beginning of efforts made in this direction.

Talks between China and the Soviet Union were once held in 1979 but they were interrupted by the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan. However, trade between the two sides continues and has been increasing year after year. The volume of trade this year is 43 percent more than that of last year. Exchanges in other fields have also increased this year.

Both sides have signed an agreement of fisheries, Soviet scientists have attended meetings in Beijing and the chief of the Far East Department of the Soviet Foreign Ministry made a private visit to Beijing. China's fishery delegation and Yu Hongliang, director of the Soviet Union and East European Affairs Department of the Chinese Foreign Ministry, have also visited the Soviet Union.

Soviet President Brezhnev delivered speeches in March and September this year, repeatedly expressing the desire to improve relations with China. Regarding Brezhnev's speeches, Chinese leaders have stated that they will listen to what he says and watch what he does and that the Soviet Union must demonstrate its sincerity with actions. But at the same time they welcome the Sino-Soviet talks. This series of events is a natural development in resuming the current Sino-Soviet talks.

China pursues an independent foreign policy. It does not depend on any big power or international blocs and will not yield to pressure from any big power. It opposes hegemonism, safeguards world peace and supports the just struggle of the Third World countries. All this is the patriotic demand of the Chinese people and is also the cause of internationalism involving the common interests of the people of the whole world. China opposes anyone who seeks hegemony no matter where he tries to do so. China opposes Vietnam's armed aggression, with Soviet support, against its neighbor. China also opposes U.S. support of Israel's aggression and the apartheid rule in South Africa. Therefore, Sino-Soviet relations involve bilateral questions (at present, they are mainly border issues: the Soviet Union has stationed massive forces along the Sino-Soviet and Sino-Mongolian borders, thus threatening China's security) and questions of international relations. Great differences exist between the two sides, so the talks will be arduous and tortuous.

Nevertheless, China follows the principles of "mutual respect for territorial integrity and sovereignty, mutual nonaggression, noninterference in each other's internal affairs, equality and mutual benefit, and peaceful coexistence" and uses them in handling its relations with other countries. Of course, these five principles are also applicable to Sino-Soviet relations. China and the Soviet Union are big countries and they are also neighboring countries. Normalizing relations between the two sides is favorable not only for China and the Soviet Union but also for world peace and stability.

In his speech delivered in Baku, Soviet President Brezhnev said: "It is very important" for China and the Soviet Union "to normalize and gradually improve relations on the basis of showing a sensible attitude and mutual respect and mutual benefit." Chinese leaders have already expressed their desire to normalize Sino-Soviet relations. If the Soviet Union shows sincerity and takes concrete measures to remove its threat against China's security, it should be possible for Sino-Soviet relations to thaw and become normal.

WOUNDED FISHERMAN RETURNS FROM PARACELS

HK240232 Hong Kong HONG KONG STANDARD in English 24 Oct 82 p 1

[Excerpt] The fisherman who was shot last Saturday when seeking refuge on one of the Sisha (Paracel) Islands during the passage of Typhoon Nancy, was ferried back to Hong Kong yesterday and admitted to Queen Mary Hospital. The condition of 24-year-old Law Kam-fat was described as satisfactory.

Kam-Fat and his elder brother, 42-year-old Yau-kan, were shot, apparently by Chinese soldiers, when their sampan tried to land at Yezi (Coconut) Island in the restricted military zone in the Sisha Islands. Yau-kan was killed while Kam-fat was injured in his side. The elder brother was buried on a neighbouring island and the younger Law was left on the island for medical treatment, accompanied by another brother, Law Kwei.

The deceased's wife, Chong Ah-choi, said that Kam-fat had received treatment in a clinic on the island but had not had any operation. Law's friends despatched a fishing vessel to Yezi Island the previous night to ferry the wounded home, Mrs Law said. Kam-fat, though injured in the side, could walk down from the boat without aid yesterday morning, she said.

GUANGDONG OFFICIALS ON PRC VIEW TOWARD HONG KONG

HK211240 Hong Kong KUANG CHIAO CHING in Chinese No 121, 16 Oct 82 pp 18-23

[Report by Chang Kuo-sen: "Special Zone Officials on China's Attitude Following Mrs Thatcher's China Visit"]

[Excerpt] After Mrs Thatcher's visit to China, this reporter made a special trip to the Shenzhen Special Economic Zone where I was received in audience by some high-ranking officials of the Guangdong Provincial Government and responsible persons of the Shenzhen Special Economic Zone and from whom I obtained some information.

It has been learned from Hong Kong press reports, from this reporter's observation and even from the views of Chinese officials that the talks between China and Britain were held in an atmosphere of antagonism. These talks were actually an occasion for each of the two parties to express its stand: China holds that its sovereignty over Hong Kong is not a topic to be discussed and that the topic to be discussed is how both parties will work together to maintain Hong Kong's stability and prosperity. Britain insists on the validity of the three treaties and agrees that maintaining Hong Kong's stability and prosperity will benefit both parties.

For this reason, the talks basically did not have a standard key note. China's attitude toward sovereignty over Hong Kong was firm and unbending. According to a Chinese official, China at first did not expect Britain to be so stubborn about the three treaties (concerning sovereignty over Hong Kong) and felt that it had taken a big step backward as compared with its stand at the time when former Prime Minister Edward Heath visited China at the beginning of this year. This was the reason why the two parties issued separate statements and expressed their views at press conferences after the talks.

China held that sovereignty over Hong Kong belonged to China, that this was "unequivocal and known to all" and that the question was how to achieve a preliminary implementation of the "12-point plan" set forth by China.

Reportedly, sovereignty over Hong Kong, which China said it would regain, includes the administration of Hong Kong. There has never been such a concept as "separate handling of sovereignty and administration" or "regaining sovereignty does not mean exercising sovereignty." Regaining sovereignty certainly includes exercising sovereignty and regaining administration. The question is how Hong Kong people will administer Hong Kong." The Chinese leaders firmly believed that the Chinese (including the more than 5 million Chinese people in Hong Kong) could administer Hong Kong well.

As far as Britain is concerned, recognizing China's sovereignty over Hong Kong means admitting that British rule in Hong Kong has been illegal ever since the opium war. Moreover, will the powerful British Empire permit its subjects to work in Hong Kong under the five-starred flag?

It can be said that the talks brought out great differences between the two parties over the questions of sovereignty and administration. China just wanted to carry out the plan of letting Hong Kong people administer Hong Kong. Then, what role would the British play in Hong Kong?

China meant to give the British some benefits. However, it absolutely did not mean to make concessions regarding sovereignty and administration. It would only allow Britain to profit from the stability and prosperity of Hong Kong. Britain's present attitude reflects the fact that it did not accept such an arrangement.

The outcome of the talks was that the two parties agreed to maintain the stability and prosperity of Hong Kong and to continue negotiations through diplomatic channels. The negotiations started in October, very soon after the talks.

This, of course, may be regarded as an achievement. The two parties agreed to maintain "stability and prosperity." This means that no one will be allowed to violate public order, make trouble or disrupt the economy and the people's livelihood. However, since the negotiations are being conducted through "diplomatic channels," the so-called independence and "self-determination by the people on the island" are out of the question.

The above reflects the Chinese and British stands in the Sino-British talks during Mrs Thatcher's visit to China.

Apart from this, the Chinese officials analyzed the conditions which might emerge in Hong Kong after the Sino-British talks.

Why Did Mrs Thatcher Adopt Such a Firm Attitude?

They held that China was very firm in its intention to maintain the stability and prosperity of Hong Kong. But China would never allow the economic viewpoint to be confused with the political viewpoint. Premier Zhao Ziyang also pointed out that China was justified in regaining its sovereignty over Hong Kong and that China would tolerate the present social conditions in Hong Kong on the basis of the principle of "respecting history and respecting realities." However, this absolutely does not mean that China recognizes the three unequal treaties.

Furthermore, the Chinese people, including the Chinese youth of Hong Kong, who have some knowledge of modern history know very well that these three treaties were signed by the corrupt government of the Qing Dynasty. Why should the PRC allow such things to exist? Otherwise, how can it explain the matter to the Chinese people and the people of the world? For this reason, there is no room for negotiations over sovereignty.

The question of maintaining the prosperity of Hong Kong under the condition of regaining sovereignty may be discussed. The very thing China wants is to solve by peaceful means in the next 15 to 20 years the questions left behind by history.

Britain always stresses actual benefits. It has openly said that "it works for the benefits of the Hong Kong people" and "it is responsible for the people of Hong Kong." However, the people of Hong Kong will see the matter clearly if they think about the nationality law and the fees paid by Hong Kong students in Britain.

Naturally, it is both good and necessary for China and Britain to work together to maintain the stability and prosperity of Hong Kong. This will also benefit the people of Hong Kong. China, too, hopes to maintain the political, economic and social stability of Hong Kong by means of the 12-point plan. But will Britain cooperate? That remains a question.

Why, then, did Britain assume such a firm position in the Sino-British talks?

Possibly, it hoped to gain more from China by driving a bargain with it. Possibly, after the Falkland war, Mrs Thatcher enjoyed much higher "prestige" at home and the whole country looked up to the "Iron Lady" with special respect. Thus the Sino-British talks offered her another chance to show the power of the British Commonwealth. For this reason, she openly hoisted the flag of "international treaty" and showed the Hong Kong businessmen how Britain would preserve the environment in which they can make money freely and, at the same time, she showed to the people of Hong Kong that Britain, being the suzerain state, bore responsibility for them.

It seems that Mrs Thatcher, of the Conservative Party, hoped to amass adequate chips for the 1984 general election in Britain in an attempt to defeat the Labor Party and continue to rule the country.

Thus, it seems that "abiding by the international laws," "protecting the interests of investors" and "bearing responsibility for the people of Hong Kong" could really thwart the threat to the Conservative Party posed by the 3 million jobless people in Britain!

But were the Hong Kong people's interests really protected?

China Will Definitely Maintain the Stability and Prosperity of Hong Kong.

Over the next 2 years before the 1984 general election in Britain, Hong Kong will remain the scene of a "seesaw battle" in the diplomatic negotiations between China and Britain and will be left to "dry up" gradually. This may also be the policy Britain has adopted toward Hong Kong. Before the situation of Hong Kong has been clarified, the majority of capitalists will adopt a wait-and-see attitude and the investors will either retreat slowly or halt. Britain knows very well the psychology of the capitalists on this point.

How, then, does China analyze the present situation of the people of Hong Kong?

Chinese officials hold that the investors aim chiefly at obtaining profits and will go anywhere they can make money. For a period of time some capital may move out but it will return to Hong Kong later, once the situation becomes clear.

The vast majority of the middle-class people and professionals -- such as medical doctors, accountants and engineers -- worry that China may implement its policy toward intellectuals after it has regained sovereignty over Hong Kong. Therefore, China will need to draw up a plan for respecting the higher intellectuals and professionals.

However, the overwhelming majority of the people of Hong Kong are concerned to know whether or not their living standards and life styles -- including gambling on dog and horse races, speculation in stockshares and gold, going to discos and watching TV programs of the present quality -- will be retained.

This is not a problem at all. China definitely will respect the life style and customs of the people of Hong Kong.

There will be no change in the salary structure of employees in Hong Kong, irrespective of the size of the salaries they draw. After regaining sovereignty over Hong Kong, China will continue to improve the living standards of the people.

Most of the Hong Kong people worry about a change in China's policy. They lack confidence in China and fear that China will send its cadres to Hong Kong. There is no need for fear about this point: China definitely will not send in the cadres. It is deeply confident that the people of Hong Kong can administer Hong Kong well.

As a matter of fact, Hong Kong owes its present prosperity chiefly to the Chinese people in Hong Kong, although the British have also contributed a share. Moreover, there are many factors in Hong Kong's successes and Britain has derived incalculable gains from Hong Kong. This was true during the periods of the Korean and Vietnamese wars and in the land sales at high prices in recent years.

Hong Kong's achievements are attributable to its geographical position, the timing of the Korean and Vietnamese wars and the supply of materials from China. The British have contributed a share toward Hong Kong's achievements but they are not the only contributor.

The majority of the people of Hong Kong claim that they are Chinese. They warmly love their hometown and Chinese culture.

The majority of Hong Kong's people hope to maintain the present situation of stability and prosperity but absolutely reject the three unequal treaties mentioned by Mrs Thatcher. They want stability because, once there is a change, no one will know what the results will be.

Even if the British leave Hong Kong, China's determination to maintain the stability and prosperity of of Hong Kong will remain unchanged. It is hoped that the people of Hong Kong can see this point. According to informed sources, China is striving to announce before the end of 1983 concrete plans to regain its sovereignty over Hong Kong so as to put the hearts of the Hong Kong people and foreign investors at ease.

Even if Hong Kong encounters some difficulties in 1984 and afterward, these difficulties need to be overcome.

So far, this reporter has gotten an idea of China's preliminary view of Hong Kong's people and the social conditions and future of Hong Kong.

Shenzhen Special Economic Zone Is Separated From Hong Kong by a Strip of Water

Being interested in the role currently being played by the Shenzhen Special Economic Zone this reporter visited Zou Erkang [6760 1422 1660], chief secretary of the Shenzhen Special Economic Zone, and Lu Zufa [4151 4371 3127], director of the Policy Research Office of the Shenzhen Special Economic Zone.

They also took exception to the stand adopted by Britain in the Sino-British talks. They held that Hong Kong students opposed Britain's insistence the three unequal treaties by proceeding from national justice and that their stand was justified and identical to the stand they took in opposing the distoration of history of Japanese aggression against China by the Japanese Minority of Education. Britain's attitude hurt the pride of the Chinese nation.

The policy of developing the Shenzhen Special Economic Zone, Chief Secretary Zuo said, is part of the socialist construction and four modernizations carried out by China after the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee. It is an economic policy formulated by summing up the experiences over a long period of time and will not be changed.

FBIS DAILY REPORT CONTENTS

China

Vol I No 209 28 October 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

U.S., USSR Arms Race 'Mocks' UN Disarmament Week [RENMIN RIBAO 27 Oct] A 1
IMF Counselor Views World Economy, PRC Role A 1
UN Approves Credentials Committee Report A 1

SOVIET UNION

Brezhnev Remarks on Sino-Soviet Ties Noted C 1
Beijing Radio Account C 1
Moscow RPP: Ilichev Received by Huang Hua C 2
AFP: Ilichev To Leave Beijing C 2

NORTHEAST ASIA

Deng, Hu Shown With Kim Il-song, Kim Chong-il D 1
Kim Il-song Hosts Banquet for PCF Group D 1
Further Reports on Volunteer Delegation Visit D 2
Leaves DPRK D 2
Returns to Beijing D 2

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

XINHUA: SRV Troops Must Leave Kampuchea E 1
RENMIN RIBAO on Kampuchea Retaining UN Seat [27 Oct] E 2
Thai Leaders Hail Vote E 3

SOUTH ASIA

Zhao Ziyang on Sino-Indian Border Dispute [Madras THE HINDU 13 Oct] F 1
NPC's Luo Qingchang Meets Indian Parliamentarian F 3
Pakistani Authorities Seize Soviet-Made Weapons F 3
Islamic Delegation Meets Bangladesh President F 3
Afghan Official Said To Use 'Twisted Logic' [RENMIN RIBAO 28 Oct] F 4

WESTERN EUROPE

Carter Urges Deployment of Missiles in Europe G 1
PRC, European Business Leaders Plan Meeting G 1
Additional Reports on PCF Delegation Visit G 2
Tours Shanghai Factory G 2
Leaves Shanghai for Suzhou G 2
Further Reports on Irish Minister's Visit G 2
Huang Hua Attends Banquet G 2
Collins Leaves Beijing G 2
French Navy Spots Soviet Spy Vessel off Coast G 3
Huang Hua Meets Outgoing Swedish Ambassador G 3

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

Further Reports on Al-Qadhdhafi's Visit I 1
Talks With Huang Hua I 1
Visits Mao Memorial I 1
Meets Deng Xiaoping I 1
XINHUA on 'Green Revolution' I 1
King Hassan Urges Support for Arab Peace Plan I 2
Tunisian President Receives PRC Minister I 3
Envoy Marks Relations Anniversary in Uganda I 3
Zimbabwean President Meets Women's Delegation I 3
Delegation Concludes Visit I 4
CPC Official Attends Party Congress in Tanzania I 4
Upper Voltan President To Visit PRC Next Year I 4

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Further Material on 1982 Census Figures K 1
Population Growth Drops K 1
Population More Educated K 1
Quality of Census K 2
CPC Congress Attitude on Class Struggle Assessed K 3
[RENMIN RIBAO 25 Oct]
PLA Logistics Department Meets on CPC Congress K 5
[RENMIN RIBAO 19 Oct]
PLA's Li Desheng Urges Congress Documents Study K 11
RENMIN RIBAO on Building Houses on Farmland [24 Oct] K 11
Official Says 30 Million Urban Homes Needed K 13
[CHINA DAILY 28 Oct]
National Forum on School Personnel Housing Opens K 14
RENMIN RIBAO on Heilongjiang CPC Rectification [18 Oct] K 14
Chen Muhua Speaks at Guangzhou Trade Fair K 17
Encouraging Prospects Seen for Oil Industry K 18
Peasants Said To Buy More Means of Production K 19
Defense Commission, Navy Hail Rocket Launching K 19
Communication Satellite Experiments Conducted K 20

PRC REGIONAL AFFAIRS

NORTH REGION

Beijing Congress Standing Committee Meets R 1
Sentences Issued on Hebei Election Sabotage R 1

NORTHEAST REGION

Heilongjiang CPC Committee Holds Plenum S 1
Yang Yichen Report S 1
Further Details S 4
Heilongjiang Warns Cadres by Punishing Staff S 5
Hu Qiaomu Views Heilongjiang Print Exhibition S 5
Jilin Founds People's Police Armed Forces S 6
Jilin's Qiang Xiaochu Hears Views on Economy S 6
Qiang Xiaochu at Congress Guideline Study Forum S 7
Li Desheng Takes Part in Shenyang Tree Planting S 8
Liaoning's Guo Feng Returns From DPRK Visit S 8

TAIWAN

Reports on Sun Remarks in Legislative Yuan V 1
No 'Taiwan Issue' [CHUNG YANG JIH PAO 16 Oct] V 1
On Reunification, Security V 1
Taiwanese Support Welcomed V 2
Overseas Chinese Associations Issue Resolution V 2
Sun Attends Overseas Chinese Day Function V 2
ROK Criticized for Handling of Defector V 3
CHENG CHIH CHIA Reacts to PRC Missile Test [16 Oct] V 4
PA SHIH NIEN TAI: Authorities Seize PO KUAN [15 Oct] V 5
CHENG CHIH CHIA Comments on Hong Kong's Future [16 Oct] V 5

HONG KONG MEDIA ON CHINA

PAI HSING on Hong Kong's Future of 'Self-Rule' W 1
[No 34, 16 Oct]

U.S., USSR ARMS RACE 'MOCKS' UN DISARMAMENT WEEK

HK270904 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 27 Oct 82 p 7

[International Jottings by Feng Xiong [1409 7160]: "A Mockery of 'Disarmament Week'"]

[Text] The United Nations has announced the last week in October as "Disarmament Week" and has called on people of various countries to carry out publicity activities against the arms race in order to defend world peace. However, the superpowers which are engaged in a frantic arms race are simply ignoring "Disarmament Week."

The United States and the Soviet Union have been holding a new round of talks in Geneva on reduction of nuclear weapons for nearly a month. They are still beating around the bush on the "zero option" and the "overall freeze proposal." Both sides lack sincerity and have murderous intentions behind their smiles. It can be foreseen that the outcome will only be that "both sides agree to adjourn indefinitely" and then each will continue as before to produce weapons in order to overpower the other.

U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said last week that the United States will not resign itself to an inferiority in nuclear arms, and therefore the Reagan administration has planned to strengthen its nuclear strength until it reaches parity with the Soviet Union before considering freezing nuclear weapons. Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko also said during debates at UN General Assembly that the Soviet Union will not lag in contending for military superiority. They are indeed well-matched. It seems that they will only continue their frantic arms race with the utmost efforts. This is how the superpowers mock the UN "Disarmament Week."

IMF COUNSELOR VIEWS WORLD ECONOMY, PRC ROLE

OW271333 Beijing XINHUA in English 1237 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 27 (XINHUA) -- The most important economic policy objective for the industrial countries is to reduce the rate of inflation, said William C. Hood, economic counselor of the International Monetary Fund, here today.

The other two major problems industrial nations face are low rates of economic growth and large payment imbalances.

Hood is currently attending a colloquium sponsored by the People's Bank of China and the International Monetary Fund here in Beijing.

"It will not be possible to increase growth rate until inflation rates are reduced, and that requires a careful monetary policy and structural adjustment to improve productivity and to adjust the rate of earnings to productivity growth," he told XINHUA.

He said that it is important also that industrial countries avoid increasing protection measures against imports, and that they maintain or increase the flows of aid.

But developing countries may help themselves by their own efforts to avoid inflation and improve productivity, he said.

On the prospects of the world economy, he predicted an increase in the rate of economic growth in the industrial countries next year. But the increase will be moderate, he said.

There are certain dangers in the outlook, he said. "There is the danger of renewed inflation, the danger of a possible increase in protectionism, and the danger of international lenders withdrawing their support of countries undertaking programs to adjust their payment imbalances."

Should the lenders do that, he said, great hardship would be imposed on the debtor countries.

On China's role in the world economy, he said: "Since China has many resources, human and material, undoubtedly, it has a great contribution to make to the development of the world economy in the decades ahead."

He said that China's role is to strengthen its own economy so that its export to the world may grow. As China's export grows, he said, China will be able to afford the imports it needs for her modernization.

China must find the products, materials and services so that it can efficiently supply the world market and it must promote such exports, he said. But, he said, it is also necessary that the world market be receptive to Chinese products.

UN APPROVES CREDENTIALS COMMITTEE REPORT

OW271417 Beijing XINHUA in English 1213 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] United Nations, October 26 (XINHUA) -- The U.N. General Assembly today approved the report of the Credentials Committee which confirms the credentials of representatives to the current session.

Reservations over the credentials of Israel were expressed by 49 countries in a letter addressed to President of the General Assembly Imre Hollai, but the amendment proposed by Iran yesterday to challenge Israel's credentials was not put to vote due to a motion raised by Finland today which asked the assembly not to take action on the amendment.

The motion raised by Finland on behalf of the Nordic countries was opposed by Iran. The motion was carried by a vote of 75 to 9 with 32 abstentions.

Then the president of the General Assembly announced that the assembly adopted the report of the Credentials Committee.

BREZHNEV REMARKS ON SINO-SOVIET TIES NOTED

OW281327 Beijing XINHUA in English 1257 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Moscow, October 27 (XINHUA) -- Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev delivered a speech at a conference of the leaders of the Soviet army and navy in the Kremlin today.

He stressed that the "international situation continues to grow more complicated" and the Soviet Union would continue to strengthen its military readiness. "We equip the armed forces with most advanced weapons and military hardware." And they are trying to "keep them always up to the mark," he said. "The level of combat readiness of the army and navy should be even higher," he added.

Brezhnev also accused the United States of deepening tension and aggravating the situation, and unfolding an unprecedented arms race. "Practical preparations are under way in Europe for the deployment of American medium-range nuclear weapons in NATO countries," he said.

He said: "Israel's aggression in Lebanon should also be regarded as a consequence of the political course taken by the Americans.... The situation in a number of regions of Africa, Asia and Central America is very complicated. The reason is the same: attempts to impose American diktat on them."

Referring to the Soviet-Chinese relations, he said: "Of no small importance are relations with China. We sincerely want a normalisation of relations with that country and are doing everything in our power toward this end. In Peking, they also say now that normalisation is desirable. No radical changes in the foreign policy of the People's Republic of China are to be seen so far. But the new things which appear must not be ignored by us."

On the Soviet economic situation, the Soviet leader said that not everything goes smoothly; there are difficulties and shortcomings. Metal, fuel and transportation continue to be the bottlenecks. The situation in capital construction is improving slowly. A great deal of work is being done in agriculture in order to eliminate the future the need for grain purchases abroad, he said.

Beijing Radio Account

OW281125 Beijing Domestic Service in Mandarin 1000 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Speaking at a meeting of army, navy and air force leaders at the Kremlin yesterday, Soviet leader Brezhnev stressed that the Soviet Union should continue to strengthen its armed forces. The Soviet Armed Forces, he said, should be equipped with the most modern weapons and technology. He urged the Soviet Armed Forces to further raise their level of war preparedness.

In his speech, Brezhnev criticized the United States for aggravating international tension and launching an unprecedented arms race.

Touching on Soviet-Chinese relations, Brezhnev said: Our relations with China are of no little significance. We sincerely hope that our relations with China will be normalized, and we will do whatever we can in this regard. Now Beijing also says that normalization is desirable, but for the time being no principled change can be seen in Chinese foreign policy. Nonetheless, we should not ignore the new factors that are emerging.

Referring to the Soviet domestic economic situation, Brezhnev said that not everything is going smoothly, and that the Soviet economy still has quite a few problems and shortcomings.

MOSCOW RPP: ILICHEV RECEIVED BY HUANG HUA

OW281141 Moscow Radio Peace and Progress in Mandarin to Southeast Asia 1000 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] On 27 October Huang Hua, councillor of the State Council and foreign minister of China, received Ilichev, special envoy of the Soviet Government and vice foreign minister of the Soviet Union who is participating in the consultations [xie shang hui yi] in Beijing between the Soviet Union and China, and had a conversation with him.

Present at the meeting on the Soviet side was Shcherbakov, Soviet ambassador to China. On the Chinese side were Qian Qichen, special representative of the Chinese Government to the consultations and vice foreign minister of China.

AFP: Ilichev To Leave Beijing

BK281102 Hong Kong AFP in English 1018 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, Oct. 28 (AFP) -- Soviet Vice-Foreign Minister Leonid Ilichev will leave Beijing tomorrow for Moscow after restarting talks between the Soviet Union and China following a lapse of nearly three years, a Western diplomatic source said today.

The first round of exploratory negotiations about relations between the two Communist giants, whose quarrel has lasted for 20 years, ended in Beijing last week without any apparent headway being made. The talks, at which China is represented by Vice-Foreign Minister Qian Qichen, are to be held alternately in Beijing and Moscow.

Western diplomats said that the talks, officially designated as "consultations", would resume next month in the Soviet capital.

Meanwhile there has been no Chinese Government reaction to remarks made in Moscow by Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev again urging a normalisation of relations with China.

The countries have fallen out over conflicting ideology, frontier issues and rival spheres of influence.

The negotiations between Mr Ilichev and Mr. Qian were conducted in the utmost secrecy but, while the first round of talks was in progress, China published its conditions for any real improvement in Sino-Soviet relations.

The Chinese called for an end to the massive deployment of Soviet forces along the frontier with China and in Outer Mongolia, to the Soviet aid for Vietnam's activities in Cambodia and to the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. All three elements of Soviet policy are part of what the Chinese see as a threat to their security.

The dialogue between Moscow and Beijing was broken off in January 1980 soon after the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Shortly after the new round of talks ended in Beijing, Chinese strongman Deng Xiaoping said there were still "many problems" between the two sides.

"It is therefore necessary to pursue the consultations," he told a group of French journalists.

DENG, HU SHOWN WITH KIM IL-SONG, KIM CHONG-IL

HK271610 [Editorial Report] Beijing Domestic Television Service in Mandarin at 1140 GMT on 25 October carried a special report entitled "Comrades Hu Yaobang and Deng Xiaoping Visit Korea." This 36-minute report shows Deng and Hu visiting Pyongyang from 26-30 April 1982 at the invitation of Korean Workers Party General Secretary Kim Il-song.

After showing Deng and Hu arriving at Pyongyang by special train on the evening of 26 Paril, the filmed report shows Kim Il-song shaking hands and embracing first Deng and then Hu, at the railway station. Then Deng and an unidentified man are seen embracing and shaking hands. Deng is next shown shaking hands with Kim Chong-il. The film also shows Deng, Hu, Kim Il-song and Kim Chong-il standing in front of photographers at the railway station. According to the announcer, Deng and Hu were greeted by "Korean Workers Party Central Committee General Secretary Kim Il-song and other leading comrades including Kim Chong-il, O Chin-u, (?Tiao Chengzhi), Yim Ch'un-ch'u and (?So Ch'ol)." This is the only mention of Kim Chong-il made in the special report.

Kim Chong-il is not seen in any other segments of the filmed report. After the welcoming ceremony, the film shows Kim Il-song in conversation with Deng and Hu in an unidentified guesthouse; Deng and Hu with Kim Il-song on 27 April; Deng and Hu at a banquet given by Kim Il-song on the evening of 27 April; Kim Il-song with Deng and Hu at the guesthouse on 28 April; Hu's visit to a Pyongyang library in the company of Kim Il-song; Deng and Hu at theatrical performance in the company of Kim Il-song; Hu's visit to a Korean factory in the company of Kim Il-song; Deng and Hu at a gymnastic performance on 29 April in the company of Kim Il-song; Deng and Hu at a banquet given by Kim Il-song on the evening of 29 April; and Deng and Kim Il-song at a railway station on 30 April to see off Deng and Hu.

KIM IL-SONG HOSTS BANQUET FOR PCF GROUP

OW271620 Beijing XINHUA in English 1541 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Pyongyang, October 27 (XINHUA) -- Korean leader Kim Il-song said yesterday that there can be no "single policy" for communist parties to realize socialism.

Hosting a banquet for the French Communist Party [PCF] delegation, which arrived here yesterday from China, headed by Secretary General Georges Marchais, Kim highly praised the independent policies adopted by the French Communists to pave the road of socialism.

He said that such practice "suits the specific conditions of France."

Copying ready-made formulas or foreign experiences simply won't do, he said, because revolutionary practice in our era is "diverse, complex and imcomparably gigantic in scale."

"One should use one's own brains, shape one's own lines and policies in accordance with one's own views and judgment, and translate them into reality mainly by one's own efforts," Kim stressed.

On relations among communist parties and countries, Kim said the consistent policy followed by the Workers' Party of Korea is to adhere to independence while at the same time uniting and cooperating with each other and strengthening international solidarity on the principles of equality, independence, mutual respect and noninterference.

In his speech at the banquet, Georges Marchais rejected "the notions of a model of socialism," urging that each communist party "independently shape a policy most suited to it."

Marchais said that more and more experiences of socialist construction constitute an asset for "all the liberation forces of the world."

On Franco-Korean relations, Marchais expressed hopes that his country will establish diplomatic relations with Korea. He said that the French Communist Party is working to improve the relations between the two countries.

FURTHER REPORTS ON VOLUNTEER DELEGATION VISIT

Leaves DPRK

OW271556 Beijing XINHUA in English 1525 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Pyongyang, October 27 (XINHUA) -- The delegation of former Chinese People's Volunteers headed by Han Xianchu with Xie Fang as the deputy leader left here for home today after concluding its visit to Korea.

Among those present at the railway station to see the delegation off were Paek Hak-im and Pak Chung-kuk, vice-ministers of the Ministry of the People's Armed Forces, Kim Cha E-suk, vice-minister of the Foreign Ministry, as well as other leading members of the Korean party, government and army.

Chinese Ambassador to Korea Zong Kewen was also present on the occasion.

The delegation arrived here on October 12.

Returns to Beijing

OW280810 Beijing XINHUA in English 0757 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 28 (XINHUA) -- The delegation of the former Chinese People's Volunteers returned here by train this morning from a visit to the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

Leader of the delegation is Han Xianchu, member of the C.P.C. Central Committee and deputy commander of the former Chinese People's Volunteers, and deputy leader is Xie Fang, vice-president of the Academy of General Logistics of the Chinese People's Liberation Army and chief of staff of the former Chinese People's Volunteers.

The delegation was greeted at the railway station by Wu Xiuquan, P.L.A. deputy chief of General Staff, Xu Guangyi, deputy director of P.L.A. General Logistics Department, and Chon Myong-su, D.P.R.K. ambassador to China.

XINHUA: SRV TROOPS MUST LEAVE KAMPUCHEA

OW270507 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 0750 GMT 26 Oct 82

[Commentary by XINHUA correspondent: "Vietnamese Aggressive Troops Must Get Out of Kampuchea"]

[Text] Beijing, 26 Oct (XINHUA) -- The 37th UNGA session adopted by an overwhelming majority vote (90 to 29 with 26 abstentions) the full credentials of Democratic Kampuchea on 25 October, thus once again foiling the scheme of the Soviet Union and Vietnam to deprive Democratic Kampuchea of its lawful seat in the United Nations. Compared with what happened at the last session on the same issue, the number of countries voting for Democratic Kampuchea has increased by 13 while those against dropped by 8.

During the general debate in the last few days, representatives from many countries strongly condemned Vietnam for its military occupation of Democratic Kampuchea. Member countries of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations proposed a draft resolution demanding an immediate and complete withdrawal of Vietnamese troops.

This, plus the ensuing vote, shows that a majority of countries around the world are concerned about peace and stability in Southeast Asia and other parts of the world. They uphold justice and support the struggle of the Kampuchea patriotic forces against Vietnamese invasion and for defending national independence and state sovereignty and setting up a peaceful, neutral and nonaligned Kampuchea. Vietnam has become even more isolated in the world community. The Heng Samrin puppet regime set up by Vietnam with bayonets has been cast aside by most of the world countries.

Now the problem is: The past sessions of the UN General Assembly and other "international meetings on Kampuchea" have passed a number of resolutions calling for immediate and complete Vietnamese withdrawal from Kampuchea. However, the Vietnamese authorities have all along refused to pull its troops out unconditionally, in wanton defiance of the UN resolutions and the voice of international society. Its occupation of the Kampuchea territory and killing of people there still continues.

Besides, Vietnam has of late reinforced its troops in western Kampuchea in preparation for new attacks against the Kampuchean people in the coming dry season. On 5 October, the Vietnamese occupation troops in Kampuchea intruded into Thailand to attack the Thai frontier force. Meanwhile, the Vietnamese authorities also continued to carry out armed provocations along its border with China and intruded again into Chinese territory.

Facts show that in pursuing a regional hegemonist policy, the Vietnamese authorities have trodden under foot Kampuchea's sovereignty, independence and territorial integrity and inflicted immense suffering on its people. Vietnam has posed a direct threat to the independence and security of the Southeast Asian countries. Instead of bringing peace, stability and prosperity to the Vietnamese people, this policy has caused them hunger, disasters and death. This policy has added a heavy economic burden to the Soviet Union, Vietname's backer which has tried to gain some strategic advantages in the region, and made it even more politically isolated in the international community.

Therefore, the Kampuchea problem is by no means a "regional problem." It involves not only the peace, independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity of Kampuchea, but also an overall problem of safeguarding the norms governing international relations and the UN Charter, ensuring the security and stability in Southeast Asia and maintaining world peace. Since the Kampuchea problem is caused by Vietnam's aggression, only when Vietnam withdraws its troops unconditionally from Kampuchea can this problem really be solved.

The reason why the Vietnamese authorities have become so emboldened as to invade Kampuchea and refuse to pull troops out of that country is that it obtains support from the Soviet Union in addition to its own ambition to establish an "Indochina confederation" and practice hegemony in Southeast Asia. Shortly before Vietnam invaded Kampuchea, the Soviet Union not only airlifted a large amount of weapons and dispatched many military advisers to Vietnam, but also signed with it a treaty of "friendship and cooperation," which has the nature of a military alliance. Over the past few years, Moscow has offered Hanoi billions of U.S. dollars in beefing up its military apparatus. More recently, the Soviet leaders pledged to "continue siding with Vietnam," declaring that the "Soviet Union resolutely supports" Vietnam and the Heng Samrin regime and will continue to provide them with all necessary aid and assistance. The Soviet Union, therefore, cannot escape its responsibility for Vietnam's continuous aggression.

Of late, the Vietnamese authorities have time and again stated that they, too, want to see "peace and stability" in Southeast Asia. This is hypocrisy, pure and simple. Everybody knows that by claiming "peace and stability," they want others to recognize that the Vietnamese occupation of Kampuchea is a "reality," want to legalize the Heng Samrin puppet regime and want to stop the Kampuchean people's just struggle against the Vietnamese aggressors.

World public opinion holds that the root cause of instability in Southeast Asia is Vietnam's policy of aggression and expansion and its occupation of Kampuchea. In order to achieve real peace and stability in this region, the Vietnamese authorities must stop its aggression and expansion and withdraw its troops unconditionally from Kampuchea. Any attempt to accept the consequences of Vietnamese aggression at the expense of Kampuchea's independence and sovereignty runs counter to the UN Charter and the principles of international law and is therefore impermissible.

RENMIN RIBAO ON KAMPUCHEA RETAINING UN SEAT

HK270940 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 27 Oct 82 p 6

["Short" commentary: "A Still More Crushing Defeat"]

[Text] The 37th UN General Assembly has accepted the full powers of Democratic Kampuchea by overwhelming votes. Compared with the last UN General Assembly, the number of countries which support Democratic Kampuchea has increased by 13, and the number of countries which oppose it has decreased by 8. The plot of the Soviet Union and Vietnam aimed at depriving Democratic Kampuchea of its legal seat in the United Nations has met with a still more crushing defeat.

After the invasion of Kampuchea, the Soviet Union and Vietnam always racked their brains at various UN General Assembly sessions in an attempt to deprive Democratic Kampuchea of its legal seat in the United Nations and inject their puppet in Phnom Penh into the United Nations to legalize their act of aggression. However, their plots have never succeeded. On the contrary, more and more countries support Democratic Kampuchea. This shows that more and more countries in the world have seen through the evil motives of the Soviet and Vietnamese hegemonists, big and small.

At the same time, this also tells us that the struggles of the Kampuchean people, which are progressing victoriously, have increasingly gained the sympathy and support of the peace-loving and justice-holding people of various countries in the world. Hegemonists who are carrying out invasion and expansion are more and more isolated and the Kampuchean people who are opposing aggression have become increasingly powerful. The fact that the UN General Assembly has once again accepted the full powers of Democratic Kampuchea by even greater and more overwhelming votes than last year has precisely reflected this situation.

The UN General Assembly time and again adopted resolutions, urging Vietnam to unconditionally withdraw all its troops from Kampuchea so that the Kampuchean people would be able to establish a peaceful, neutral and nonaligned Kampuchea without any foreign intervention. However, with the support of the Soviet Union, Vietnam has, up to now, turned a deaf ear to the UN resolutions and refused to implement them. The fact that Vietnam and the Soviet Union have so obstinately clung to their puppet regime in Kampuchea has more clearly proved they will persist in threatening Southeast Asia with the so-called "Indochinese federation" as their base.

Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach recently said that Vietnam would provide Soviet Union with bases, trying to threaten Southeast Asian countries so that they would accept the status quo of the Vietnamese invasion and occupation of Kampuchea. This is a confession by these two hegemonists that they act in collusion with each other and covet Southeast Asia. It is right and natural for the United Nations, an international organization which shoulders the great task of defending world peace, to retain the lawful seat of Democratic Kampuchea in the United Nations and defy the Vietnamese attempt to legalize its invasion of Kampuchea. This is also an effort exerted by the United Nations to safeguard peace and security in Southeast Asia.

The Kampuchean people are not isolated. Their just struggles are supported by the peace-loving countries and people of the whole world. The fact that the UN General Assembly has once again accepted the full powers of Democratic Kampuchea by an overwhelming vote will greatly encourage the struggles of the Kampuchean people to resist Vietnam.

Thai Leaders Hail Vote

OW261616 Beijing XINHUA in English 1535 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Bangkok, October 27 (XINHUA) -- Senior officials and the press in Thailand today and yesterday said the retaining of Democratic Kampuchea's United Nations seat showed growing international support for that country, as well as a defeat for Vietnam.

Deputy Prime Minister Thanat Khoman told reporters yesterday that the retaining of Democratic Kampuchea's seat at the 37th UN General Assembly session was a fruitful result of the establishment of the country's coalition government.

Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila told reporters at the prime minister's office after attending a government cabinet meeting yesterday Thailand should be gratified that Democratic Kampuchea has retained its UN seat for four consecutive years. Sitthi called this a major victory for Thailand and ASEAN in their effort to resolve the Kampuchean problem in the international arena, and yet another utter defeat for the Vietnamese aggressors.

TONG HUA YIT PAO in a commentary today pointed out the favorable change in votes for retaining Democratic Kampuchea's seat at the UN has showed that more and more countries are upholding justice, supporting Democratic Kampuchea and opposing Vietnamese aggression. The change also means Vietnam is moving closer to the day when it meets its defeat in Kampuchea, the commentary said.

SING SIAN YIT PAO today said Democratic Kampuchea's victory, with an overwhelming majority of votes at the UN, registered yet another defeat for the Vietnam-backed Phnom Penh regime.

ZHAO ZIYANG ON SINO-INDIAN BORDER DISPUTE

BK271027 Madras THE HINDU in English 13 Oct 82 p 1

[By G.K. Reddy]

[Text] New Delhi, Oct 12 -- The prime minister of China, Mr Zhao Ziyang, wants the Sino-Indian border dispute settled on the basis of the five points put forward by the leader of the Chinese delegation, Mr Fu Hao, at the last round of the official level talks in Delhi.

These five points, read in conjunction with the five principles of co-existence could serve, in his view, as basic guidelines for evolving through further discussions, a mutually acceptable concept of a comprehensive settlement of the border problem.

In a 90-minute interview in Beijing on October 3, Mr Zhao did not mince words in voicing his disappointment at the lack of progress during the first two rounds of the official level talks on the border question. He felt that India should make adequate preparation before the next round of talks in Beijing towards the end of this year for which no date has been suggested yet by either side.

The five points referred to by the Chinese premier were equality, friendly consultations, mutual understanding and mutual accommodation, fair and reasonable settlement and comprehensive solution. Unfortunately, there was nothing new in these five points which were only components of the classic sentence that the Chinese officials had been repeating since 1960 during various stages of the talks on the border problem.

At the last round of talks in Delhi, Mr Fu Hao merely restated the Chinese position that the two countries, treating each other as equals, could, through friendly consultations, and, in a spirit of mutual understanding and mutual accommodation, reach a fair and reasonable, comprehensive settlement. But, in commending this approach to the border problem, Mr Zhao left no scope at all for any ambiguity about the Chinese stand by stating categorically that China would not compromise on its sovereignty or make any unilateral concession.

The whole accent of Mr Zhao's advocacy of a fair and reasonable solution was on a comprehensive settlement of the entire border problem and its inter-related issues. It was for this reason that he declined to be drawn into a discussion on Sikkim and Bhutan. All that he said was that during his visits to India's neighbours, Nepal and Pakistan, he had advised them to improve their relations with India, while stressing that if India also followed a good-neighbourly policy, it would help to create a better atmosphere of peace and stability in the south Asian region.

The Chinese premier did not, therefore, think that the time was ripe for elevating the current Sino-Indian dialogue to the political level in the absence of any progress at the official level on the very concept of a settlement. It would be more advisable, in his opinion, to continue the present talks at the official level until the persisting differences were adequately narrowed down.

But, at the same time, Mr Zhao was very keen that the prime minister, Mrs Indira Gandhi, should pay a visit to China to keep up the momentum of normalisation in other spheres. He said he had personally extended her an invitation when they met in Cancun in October 1981 and it was subsequently renewed by the Chinese vice-premier and foreign minister, Mr Huang Hua, when the former Indian ambassador to China, Mr K.S. Bajpai, paid a farewell call on him in June last before returning to Delhi.

The Chinese prime minister said that Mrs Gandhi would receive a very warm welcome which, some other Chinese leaders assured, would be comparable to the memorable visit of her father in October, 1954, during the high noon of Sino-Indian relations.

He conceded that border settlement was central to Sino-Indian normalisation, but continued to maintain that the two countries should work together in other fields without waiting for a solution of this complex problem.

If Mrs Gandhi paid a visit to China, the border question would no doubt be discussed, but it would not be the only issue to be considered during such a visit since there were several other spheres for increased cooperation.

The two countries should make conscious efforts to expand the current dialogue to develop both bilateral and international cooperation without confining it to the border problem. Apart from making a great contribution to the cause of the Third World. India and China would learn from each other by sharing their experiences and exchanging experts for better utilisation of their talents and resources. It was in this context that China had been pressing for a wider normalisation of relations.

The Chinese premier did not agree that the Sino-Indian border conflict was one of the sad legacies left over by the Maoist era that required to be settled soon to provide greater credibility to the present government's pragmatic policy of shedding the past rigidities and displaying greater flexibility in the conduct of China's foreign relations.

He said China, like India, was a victim of imperialism and, by implication, he seemed to defend fully the stand taken by the Chinese delegation at the last round of talks in Delhi that it was an injured party that was no less entitled to redress over the border problem.

The principles that were embodied in the package offer made to India were the same as those applied in settling the border issues with several other neighbouring nations. The Chinese people, including the Tibetan population, felt very strongly about the border problem and, if India did not agree to the application of these principles, it would not be possible to resolve this problem. It was in this context that Mr Zhao said that China would not compromise on its sovereignty or make any unilateral concessions to arrive at a settlement.

The Chinese prime minister spoke at length about the recent changes in China and the efforts of the present leadership to usher in a long period of political stability and orderly economic development, the efforts underway to undo the damage done by the Cultural Revolution and the decision to do away with the dogma of permanent revolution. The new stress on socialist modernisation implied not merely a readiness to dispense with the doctrine of a continual class struggle, but also a renewed emphasis on the rule of law to restore the confidence of the people.

In opening up China to the outside world, the present leadership was also trying to develop good relations with all countries of the world on the basis of the five principles of peaceful co-existence. But, in seeking better bilateral relations with both the superpowers, China was not in any way diluting its stand against hegemonism. He drew a distinction between the offensive hegemonism of the Soviet Union which continued to arm itself and commit aggression and the defensive hegemonism of the U.S. which was still supporting Israel and South Africa, stationing troops in South Korea and interfering in China's internal affairs through its stand on Taiwan.

The Chinese prime minister received me not in the Great Hall of the People where the Chinese leaders normally meet foreign visitors, but in the Zi Guang Ge pavilion in the Zhong Nan Hai part of the forbidden city, where all the top leaders live and work in a special security zone. It is the inner sanctum sanctorum of the vast web of Chinese party and governmental power, where Mao Zedong, Zhou Enlai and others used to reside.

At the end of the 90-minute interview, there were still some questions which remained unanswered, but Mr Zhao had to leave to attend an important party conclave.

He said his colleagues would be happy to answer them on his behalf, but no replies were received because these were of a sensitive nature relating to some recent border incidents, the renewed Chinese reference to U.S. resolutions on Kashmir during the exchange of protests over the extension of the Karakoram Road through the Khunjarab Pass and the suggestion that China should declare that this road would never be used for military purposes.

NPC'S LUO QINGCHANG MEETS INDIAN PARLIAMENTARIAN

OW261226 Beijing XINHUA in English 1204 GMT 26 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 26 (XINHUA) -- Luo Qingchang, member and deputy secretary general of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress, met here today with Sat Paul Mittal, secretary general of the preparatory committee for the Asian Forum of Parliamentarians on Population and Development.

Outlining his country's population policy, Luo Qingchang said that China was resolved to have a population under 1,200 million by the end of this century. To this end, family planning has been written, as an independent article, into the new constitution which would soon be submitted for approval. Preparations were underway to establish legislation on population control.

Mittal said that China and India, the most populous countries in the world, should cooperate in seeking ways and means to solve the population problem. This was very important.

Present at the meeting was Zhou Boping, vice-minister of the State Family Planning Commission.

The Asian Forum of Parliamentarians on Population and Development is a follow-up on the Asian Conference of Parliamentarians on Population and Development which was held in Beijing a year ago.

PAKISTANI AUTHORITIES SEIZE SOVIET-MADE WEAPONS

OW251222 Beijing XINHUA in English 1215 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Text] Islamabad, October 25 (XINHUA) -- Pakistan police seized a quantity of Soviet-made fire arms on the night of October 23, a local newspaper reported today.

These arms included seven double-barrelled shot guns, five 303 rifles, one mortar gun, six revolvers and 1,400 rounds of ammunition. They were seized from a house in Pushtoonabad area of Quetta, capital of Baluchistan Province.

The police surrounded the house after being informed that some people lving in Quetta were smuggling weapons into Pakistan from Afghanistan. Three persons were arrested in this connection during the police raid.

During the search, the police broke down an adobe wall and found the hidden arms. Investigations into this case are going on.

ISLAMIC DELEGATION MEETS BANGLADESH PRESIDENT

OW251912 Beijing XINHUA in English 1851 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Text] Dhaka, October 25 (XINHUA) -- Bangladesh President Assanuddin Chowdhury received members of the Chinese Islamic delegation at the presidential house here today.

The Chinese people were the great friend of the Bangladesh people and the frequent exchanges of visit in various fields had symbolized the excellent relations between the two countries, the president told the delegation.

He said he was happy to learn that the Chinese citizens enjoy freedom to believe in religion and the Muslims in China are leading a normal spiritual life.

Abdurahim Latib, leader of the Chinese delegation, said their current visit had contributed to the mutual understanding and friendship between the people and the Muslims of the two countries.

After they arrived in Bangladesh on October 19, the Chinese Muslims visited a number of famous mosques in the capital of Dhaka and the port city of Chittagong. The Chinese Islamic delegation is scheduled to leave for home on October 27.

AFGHAN OFFICIAL SAID TO USE 'TWISTED LOGIC'

HK280821 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 28 Oct 82 p 6

["International Jottings" by Huang Qing [7806 2532]: "Waste of Effort"]

[Text] On 24 October Keshtmand, "prime minister" of the Karmal regime of Afghanistan, made remarks displaying complex emotions and twisted logic to journalists. There were three main points in his remarks:

1. He said: "I must say that everything here is run by Afghans." However, people know that Afghanistan's "national security" is "protected" by a 100,000-strong Soviet Army, that "social order" is "maintained" by Soviet military police, that the administration is under the control of Soviet advisers, and that even the security of the presidential palace is the responsibility of Soviet special forces. It would better match Kabul reality to say that "everything in Afghanistan is run by the Soviets."

2. He said: "We need a friend like the Soviet Union to come and support our independence when we are threatened from outside." This "prime minister" deliberately avoided one question: Where did this "external" threat come from? Whose armored combat vehicles raced across the border to trample on Afghan territory? In the present state of Afghanistan, "reliable friend" and "external threat" are in fact one and the same concept, so why should Mr Keshtmand concoct the myth of another "external threat!"

3. He said: "It is not possible to say when we will be able to fully consolidate ourselves." This was the only true sentence in his entire talk. The Karmal regime is slavishly dependent on others, which goes against the wishes of the people; it is opposed by the masses and deserted by its followers and embroiled in difficulties at home and abroad. The "prime minister" could be said to still have some sense of reality in cherishing no extravagant hopes of "consolidating ourselves."

Unable to win a war, its ugliness plain to see, its lies deceiving nobody, the Karmal regime is showing signs of embarrassment. Keshtmand, who claims to "seldom talk to the press," has given a performance on this occasion, but it was a wasted effort, as it is totally unable to help the difficult situation in which the Karmal regime and its backstage boss find themselves in Afghanistan.

CARTER URGES DEPLOYMENT OF MISSILES IN EUROPE

OW271415 Beijing XINHUA in English 1207 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Brussels, October 26 (XINHUA) -- Former U.S. President Jimmy Carter today urged Western European countries to deploy "without equivocation and without delay" new American-made nuclear missiles to offset the Soviet nuclear threat.

Carter told members of the Grand Catholic Conference here that peace could be secured only through strength.

The ex-President, touring Europe to publicize his memoirs, in his speech summed up his lessons in dealing with the Soviet Union. He said he was disturbed to observe that the results of detente were the unnecessary buildup of the military strength of the Soviet Union and the Warsaw Pact.

He maintained that a total nuclear freeze "would be ill-advised because of the nature of the Soviet SS-20 missiles that are still being deployed at the rate of one a week."

Referring to NATO's nuclear missile deployment program, Carter said "the Pershing II's and ground-launched cruise missiles are only a partial response to this unwarranted threat."

Belgium and the Netherlands have not yet agreed to accept their shares of the 572 missiles NATO hopes to deploy in Western Europe by 1986.

The former U.S. President urged Europeans to honour their shares of missile deployment for defense of NATO area. He said the United States was committed to the defence of areas vital to the West such as the Middle East.

Earlier Tuesday Carter told a news conference that he was "extremely disheartened" by the Israeli invasion of Lebanon and the massacre in Beirut. He maintained that the Camp David agreement is still the only viable basis for negotiations to break the deadlock in the Middle East following the "horrible bloodshed in Beirut."

PRC, EUROPEAN BUSINESS LEADERS PLAN MEETING

OW240247 Beijing XINHUA in English 1517 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 23 (XINHUA) -- Leaders of major Chinese and European enterprises are to meet in Beijing the first week of October, 1983, to exchange information and skills on enterprise management, and to discuss cooperation in major sectors of China's economy -- especially in the country's efforts in technical renovation.

Plans for the meeting were announced at the closing session of the five-day second China-Europe business leaders symposium here this afternoon.

Dr Stephane Garelli, director of the European Management Forum (EMF) and deputy head of a 55-member EMF delegation to the second gathering of Chinese and European business leaders, told XINHUA that "next time, we will ask the participants to define very precisely their interest in cooperation with China and their projects to discuss with their Chinese counterparts."

Founded in 1971, the Geneva-based forum, has close connections with some 8,000 major enterprises in 17 European countries and other parts of the world. Some of these enterprises have already started their cooperation with Chinese counterparts and more are now negotiating directly with China in this regard.

Asked to evaluate the symposium, the EMF director said that it is "extremely useful to us because it is a good opportunity to learn from China's leaders how the country's policies are to be implemented" and also those fields in which both sides may cooperate.

In short, Dr. Garelli said, this gathering "has increased the direct utility of the symposium."

Chinese participants viewed the symposium as a helpful way of promoting cooperation between Chinese and European enterprises, and expressed the hope for more meetings like this.

"Before the start of the next gathering," said Zhang Yanning, head of the 59-member Chinese delegation to the second symposium, "Chinese participants will put forward what they want to know in management and in what fields they hope to cooperate with their European counterparts, including importing technology and equipment from Europe."

Zhang Yanning stressed that "there are broad prospects for practical cooperation between both sides in regard to China's technical transformation planning."

ADDITIONAL REPORTS ON PCF DELEGATION VISIT

Tours Shanghai Factory

OW251251 Beijing Domestic Service in Mandarin 1200 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] The PCF Central Committee delegation led by Georges Marchais toured the Shanghai machine tool factory that exclusively manufactures grinding machines and the Shanghai first department store on 22 October. The same evening, French comrades watched the fine performance presented by the Shanghai acrobatic troupe.

Leaves Shanghai for Suzhov

OW231735 Beijing XINHUA in English 1642 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Shanghai, October 23 (XINHUA) -- The visiting French Communist Party [PCF] Central Committee delegation led by General Secretary Georges Marchais left Shanghai for Suzhou by special plane this afternoon after concluding its visit to Shanghai.

The delegation is accompanied on the trip by Qian Liren, deputy head of the International Liaison Department of the Chinese Communist Party Central Committee.

The French guests were seen off at the airport by Chen Guodong, member of the C.P.C. Central Committee and first secretary of the C.P.C. Shanghai Municipal Committee, and Yang Di, member of the C.P.C. Central Committee and vice-mayor of Shanghai.

Marchais told Chen at the airport that Shanghai is a great city that left a deep impression on him. He wished Shanghai greater achievements.

Marchais and his party visited the Shanghai machine tool plant yesterday.

FURTHER REPORTS ON IRISH MINISTER'S VISIT

Huang Hua Attends Banquet

OW251854 Beijing XINHUA in English 1833 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 25 (XINHUA) -- Gerard Collins, Irish minister of foreign affairs, gave a reciprocal banquet at the embassy here this evening.

Among the guests were Huang Hua, Chinese state councillor and foreign minister, his wife He Liliang, Zhang Wenjin, vice-minister of foreign affairs, and Gong Pusheng, Chinese ambassador to Ireland.

Collins said: "I have held useful and constructive talks with the Chinese. Through this visit we have obtained a clear understanding of China's position on international affairs and its efforts to accomplish its modernization program.

"The relations between Ireland and China have a solid basis. We are determined to further promote trade and other relations," he said.

Huang Hua said: "The current visit by Mr. Collins has yielded fruitful results.

"Mr. Collins and I had a wide-ranging exchange of views on the major international issues of common concern and on our bilateral relations. We share identical or similar views on many international issues. We are glad to note that a good start has been made for cooperation and exchanges between our two countries in the economic, trade, cultural and other fields since the establishment of diplomatic relations."

He said: "The foreign minister's current visit has contributed again to promoting and increasing the friendly contacts between the two countries in various fields."

This morning, Collins met with Zheng Tuobin, Chinese vice-minister of foreign economic relations and trade. They discussed strengthening of trade cooperation between the two countries.

Collins Leaves Beijing

OW261300 Beijing XINHUA in English 1241 GMT 26 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 26 (XINHUA) -- Gerard Collins, Irish minister of foreign affairs, and Mrs. Collins left here for home by air this morning.

They were seen off at the airport by Chinese Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs Zhang Wenjin, Chinese Ambassador to Ireland Gong Pusheng and Irish Ambassador to China John Campbell.

FRENCH NAVY SPOTS SOVIET SPY VESSEL OFF COAST

OW271228 Beijing XINHUA in English 1222 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Paris, October 26 (XINHUA) -- A Soviet espionage vessel was recently spotted between the Seine and D'Ouessant Islands near Brest, a major French naval base, by the French Navy.

The passing of the French coastal waters by Soviet espionage vessels is commonplace. But it is unusual for such vessels to stay long in the waters off Brest. Last May, a Soviet espionage vessel was found to hang on there for 12 days. French naval sources said that Moscow has 27 trawlers equipped with espionage apparatuses, which are considered by the West as military vessels.

HUANG HUA MEETS OUTGOING SWEDISH AMBASSADOR

OW251313 Beijing XINHUA in English 1247 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 25 (XINHUA) -- State Councillor and Minister of Foreign Affairs Huang Hua met and had a friendly conversation here today with Sten Sundfeldt, Swedish ambassador to China who is to leave for home shortly at the end of his term of office.

FURTHER REPORTS ON AL-QADHDHAFI'S VISIT

Talks With Huang Hua

OW271407 Beijing XINHUA in English 1250 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 27 (XINHUA) -- Colonel Mu'ammar al-Qadhdhafi, leader of the September First Revolution of the Socialist People's Libyan Arab Jamahiriyah, Mrs. al-Qahdhafi, and other distinguished Libyan guests visited the Great Wall this afternoon.

In the afternoon, Huang Hua, state councillor and minister of foreign affairs, held talks with Abdelati Alabedi, secretary of the People's Committee of the People's Foreign Liaison Office. They exchanged views on the current world situation and international issues of common concern.

Visits Mao Memorial

OW280759 Beijing XINHUA in English 0756 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 28 (XINHUA) -- Colonel Mu'ammar al-Qadhdhafi, leader of the September First Revolution of the Socialist People's Libyan Arab Jamahiriyah, and other Libyan guests paid their respects to the remains of the late Chairman Mao Zedong at Chairman Mao Memorial Hall here this morning in the company of Chinese Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs Wen Yezhan.

Meets Deng Xiaoping

OW280828 Beijing XINHUA in English 0824 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 28 (XINHUA) -- Chairman of the Central Advisory Commission of the C.P.C. Deng Xiaoping met and had cordial talks with Colonel Mu'ammar al-Qadhdhafi, leader of the September First Revolution of the Socialist People's Libyan Arab Jamahiriyah, in the Great Hall of the People here this morning.

Deng Xiaoping hosted a banquet for Colonel al-Qadhdhafi and other Libyan guests after the meeting.

Present at the banquet were Huang Hua, state councillor and minister of foreign affairs; Wen Yezhan, vice-minister of foreign affairs; He Ying, adviser to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs; Wei Yuming, vice-minister of foreign economic relations and trade; and Pei Jianzhang, Chinese ambassador to Libya.

XINHUA on 'Green Revolution'

OW232003 Beijing XINHUA in English 1910 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 24 (XINHUA) -- In the Libyan capital of Tripoli on the Mediterranean coast, there is a square painted throughout in green.

In this north African nation, green symbolizes revolution. The book in which Libyan leader Mu'ammar al-Qadhdhafi elaborated his revolutionary theory is called the "Green Book." The new national flag on Libya is all green. Green, Al-Qadhdhafi once noted, symbolizes hopes and springtime and glows with vitality.

Under the revolution, Libya, where quality oil spurted in significant quantities for the first time in 1959, has benefitted a great deal more from her own resources.

Being an "ideal, dependable and quick supplier of quality oil" for the West, Libya was the first Third World country succeeding in forcing international oil companies to raise prices. Annual oil returns have now increased to the tune of more than 10 billion, boosting per capita national income to $11,000 last year, which was the highest rate in Africa.

The enormous oil earnings have been used to develop industry and agriculture and improve the living standards of the people. One of the government's goals is to "provide every family with a decent home." 250,000 new flats have been built, in a country of three million people. There are more than 200,000 cars in the capital with a population of 750,000. Medical care and education are free of charge for all. One Libyan told this correspondent during his recent visit there, "we really have nothing to worry about in our life." Affluent as they are, the Libyans are leading a moral life. It is a country without red-light districts, discos and night clubs.

September 1 of 1969 was a turning point in the history of the country. Al-Qadhdhafi, then a 29-year-old officer, staged a military coup to overthrow the corrupted feudal regime of King Idris. This was followed by the take-over of the U.S. Wheelus Airbase and the British military bases in the country. The new revolutionary regime also nationalized 30,000 hectares of plantations owned by Italian colonialists. A modern military college principal told this correspondent that in order to preserve their gains, the people "are ready to defend our nation against any invasion!"

As early as 1973, Al-Qadhdhafi announced Libya would become a country of "true socialism" different from both capitalism and communism. Four years later, Libya proclaimed to have entered the era of "the people's power" and the republic was renamed the Socialist People's Libyan Arab Jamahiriya in which there should be no instruments of rule and all are equal. The name of the government was changed into "the General People's Committee" and leaders at all levels became known as "secretaries."

In March of 1979, Al-Qadhdhafi himself resigned from all administrative posts and became known as leader of the "September 1 Revolution".

In his green book published in the same month, he advanced the "third international theory" which calls for the delegation of power to the people and the establishment of socialism in Libya. Libya has since continued marching forward on its path of green revolution.

KING HASSAN II URGES SUPPORT FOR ARAB PEACE PLAN

OW270244 Beijing XINHUA in English 0129 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] United Nations, October 26 (XINHUA) -- King Hassan II of Morocco, chairman of the 12th summit conference of the League of Arab States, declared today that the Arab peace plan on Middle East could be applied immediately.

Speaking at the 37th session of the U.N. General Assembly this afternoon, the king stressed that the points of the Arab plan were made in clear language. The program did not "originate from weakness." It showed that "the common view of Arabs as emotional was not true."

King Hassan II is in the United States on a mission assigned by the Fes summit of the Arab League to exchange views with U.S. President Reagan for a peaceful settlement of the Middle East.

The king of Morocco said what was important was that the Arabs and Palestinians had "a common commitment." Though the U.S. did not recognize the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), the Arabs recognize it as the sole legitimate representative of the Palestinians.

He appealed to the international community for support to the Arab peace plan.

TUNISIAN PRESIDENT RECEIVES PRC MINISTER

OW141307 Beijing XINHUA in English 1247 GMT 14 Oct 82

[Text] Tunis, October 13 (XINHUA) -- Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba and his wife Wassila Bourguiba met here today Chinese Minister of Water Conservancy and Power Qian Zhengying and discussed with her the construction of China-aided Medjerda-Cap Bon Canal.

Bourguiba expressed satisfaction with the progress of the canal construction.

The meeting was followed by the inauguration of a 2,700-meter-long tunnel, part of the canal in southern Tunisia. The ceremony was co-chaired by the Chinese minister and Tunisian Minister of Equipment Mohamed Sayah.

Later today, Qian Zhengying met Tunisian Foreign Minister Beji Caid es-Sebsi and Minister of Agriculture Lassad Ben Osman.

Qian arrived here from Cairo Wednesday for a week-long visit.

ENVOY MARKS RELATIONS ANNIVERSARY IN UGANDA

OW230722 Beijing XINHUA in English 0704 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Kampala, October 22 (XINHUA) -- Chinese Ambassador to Uganda Li Shi held a reception here today to celebrate the 20th anniversary of the establishment of diplomatic relations between China and Uganda.

The Chinese ambassador in his speech said that during the past 20 years, China and Uganda have helped each other in national construction and cooperated fruitfully in international affairs. "We are looking forward to still closer cooperation in developing our economies, safeguarding world peace and opposing hegemonism, imperialism and colonialism," he declared.

Ugandan Minister of Regional Cooperation Samuel Tewungwa, who is also acting minister of state for foreign affairs, said that China is a great nation and the Chinese people are a great people. The people of Uganda cherish friendly sentiments toward them." [quotation mark as received]

ZIMBABWEAN PRESIDENT MEETS WOMEN'S DELEGATION

OW210211 Beijing XINHUA in English 0127 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Text] Harare, October 20 (XINHUA) -- Zimbabwean President Canaan Banana today received a visiting Chinese women delegation led by Zhang Jiexun, member of the Executive Committee of the All-China Women's Federation.

In his cordial talks with the Chinese visitors, President Banana highly valued the relations of friendship and cooperation between Zimbabwe and China.

The delegation arrived here yesterday for an eight-day visit.

Delegation Concludes Visit

OW280200 Beijing XINJUA in English 0144 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Harare, October 27 (XINHUA) -- Chinese women's delegation ended an eight-day visit to Zimbabwe and left for Zambia this evening. The delegation is led by Zhang Jiexun, member of the Secretariat of the All-China Women's Federation.

Zimbabwean Minister of Community Development and Women's Affairs Teurai Ropa Nhongo saw off the Chinese delegation.

During their stay here, the Chinese were received by Zimbabwean President Canaan Banana and his wife Mrs. Banana, as well as by Prime Minister Robert Mugabe.

The delegation had visited great Zimbabwe and Shamva area, toured around Harare town and visited welfare facilities for women and children, including the training centers of women's clubs, the youth academy and the university.

CPC OFFICIAL ATTENDS PARTY CONGRESS IN TANZANIA

OW211323 Beijing XINHUA in English 1225 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Excerpts] Dar Es Salaam, October 20 (XINHUA) -- President Julius Nyerere today called on the whole nation to face seriously and bravely the reality of economic difficulties and work hard to make recovery through self-reliance.

Nyerere, who is also the chairman of the ruling Revolutionary Party of Tanzania, made the call here today at the opening session of the party congress.

In a four-hour speech to party delegates and foreign guests, Nyerere outlined marked progress made by the party and government in the areas of party building, health, education, transport, energy and mining. But he devoted most part of his address to the "very serious and very real problems" the country is facing.

More than 2,000 delegates of the party and over 20 delegations from various countries of the world attended the 12-day congress.

Also present at the opening session was delegate of the Chinese Communist Party Li Shuzheng, alternate member of the CPC Central Committee.

UPPER VOLTAN PRESIDENT TO VISIT PRC NEXT YEAR

OW271654 Beijing XINHUA in English 1639 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 27 (XINHUA) -- Upper Volta head of state Saye Zerbo has accepted an invitation from Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang to visit China next year.

Saye Zerbo, who is also president of the Military Committee of Recovery for National Progress and prime minister, received the invitation through Zhou Min, Chinese ambassador to Upper Volta, during a recent meeting.

FURTHER MATERIAL ON 1982 CENSUS FIGURES

Population Growth Drops

OW271139 Beijing XINHUA in English 0819 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 27 (XINHUA) -- China's natural population growth was 14.55 per thousand in 1981, a substantial drop from the 27.8 per thousand in 1964, the year the second census was taken.

This is a verification of the success of family planning which has been vigorously encouraged throughout the country for the past decade.

Hu Yaobang, general-secretary of the Chinese Communist Party said at the 12th party congress: "Family planning is a basic policy of our state," and "we must do our utmost to keep our population within 1.2 billion by the end of this century." This means that in the coming 18 years, the annual population growth must be kept to 11 million.

The figures published in the census communique show that the 1981 birthrate was 20.91 per thousand, while it was 39.3 per thousand in 1964.

At present, 16 million couples have pledged to have only one child and 100 million couples of child-bearing age are using contraceptives. A directive issued by the party and the government last March called on people to have only one child and discouraged them from having more than two children under any circumstances.

The 1980 statistics show that the natural population growth rate in 18 of 29 provinces, autonomous regions and municipalities was under ten per thousand.

The drop in natural population growth rate is even more remarkable considering the reduction in the mortality rate, which stands at 6.36 per thousand in 1981 as compared with 11.5 per thousand in 1964.

The drop in the mortality rate is a direct result of the improvement in people's living standard and public health work.

China has been successful in eliminating plague, smallpox, kala-azar, relapsing fever and typhus and other acute communicable diseases. Incidence of other communicable parasitic and endemic diseases has also dropped sharply.

At present, there are over 190,000 health establishments in the country, with over two million hospital beds. China now has over 3 million medical personnel.

According to the Ministry of Public Health, the average life expectancy rose to 69 years in 1981 as compared with 35 years before the founding of the People's Republic.

Population More Educated

OW271149 Beijing XINHUA in English 0828 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 27 (XINHUA) -- The Chinese population has become more educated over the years, according to figures released in the third national census communique.

Compared with the 1964 census figures, the total number of people having a college education has increased by 44 percent to over 6 million, the number with a secondary school education has quadrupled to some 245 million, and the number with a primary school education has gone up 25 percent to 355 million.

The government, realizing that education is the key to the country's modernization, has been paying much greater attention to this field. The number of students now enrolled in schools in China totals some 200 million and teachers now number nine million.

In 1981, the number of institutes of higher learning reached 704 with 1.28 million students, or 49.4 percent higher than the 1978 figure; middle schools increased to 3,132 with 1.07 million students, an increase of 20.3 percent; the number of agricultural and vocational schools totaled 2,655 with 480,000 students; the number of secondary technical schools developed to 3,669 with 680,000 students; the number of ordinary senior middle schools was cut down after readjustment and now those who have no opportunity to study in college can also be trained in some skill for work.

Though the number of illiterates or semiliterates has dropped from the 1964 figure of 38.1 percent to the present 23.5 percent, great efforts are still being made to further reduce the figure. Literacy classes are now being organized throughout the country, which combine teaching of language and mathematics with vocational skills.

Hu Yaobang, general-secretary of the Chinese Communist Party, in his recent report to the 12th party congress called upon the nation to work vigorously to achieve universal primary education, strengthen secondary vocational education and higher education and develop educational undertakings of all types and all levels in both urban and rural areas, in order to train all kinds of specialists and raise the scientific and educational level of the whole nation.

Quality of Census

OW270949 Beijing XINHUA in English 0727 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 27 (XINHUA) -- The quality of the work of the third population census conducted last July which is unprecedented in scale, is top rate, said Li Chengrui, deputy head of the State Council's population census leading group.

He pointed out that the error rate is very low, with a 0.71 per thousand overcount, 0.56 per thousand undercount and a net overcount of 0.15 per thousand. By world standards, any error rate below ten per thousand is considered good quality, he added.

An interesting fact, he mentioned, is that the total population of the mainland, 1,008,175,288, is consistent with China's past statistics. The population figure for the end of 1981 published by the State Statistical Bureau on April 30th this year was 996.22 million. This plus the population increase in the first half of this year and the 4.23 million members of the armed forces add up to something like the present figure. "This indicates that the population figures published by China every year have been fairly accurate," he said.

This was the result of careful planning and hard work. Over the past two years and more, over 5.7 million household registration officials and cadres made house calls and corrected an overcount of 6.1 per thousand and an undercount of 5.4 per thousand.

Again in the later past of June, 1982, 5.18 million census takers visited all families in their districts and discovered and corrected a 3.0 per thousand overcount and a 2.5 per thousand of undercount.

After the formal census-taking between July first and tenth, census takers spent the next 10 to 20 days to call on the families again for a final check-up and corrected an overcount of 0.1 per thousand and an undercount of 0.2 per thousand. Discrepancies in sex, age, educational levels and occupation were also discovered and corrected.

In places where transportation was inconvenient, like Tibet, Xinjiang and Inner Mongolia, flexible measures were taken and census taking began one month earlier (in certain places even two months earlier). These figures were later verified as of July first. Census personnel travelled by car where possible, but where cars were not accessible they went by horse, donkey or camelbacks.

Li Chengrui said that th present communique consists only of figures manually tabulated. Many important items in the census registration such as age, occupation, status of non-working people, marital status, births per woman of child-bearing age, are being processed at 28 computer stations and will finally be tabulated at the computer center under the State Statistical Bureau in Beijing.

At present, he said, over 100,000 coders are working on some 300 million questionnaires. Four thousand programmers are processing the data.

The State Council plans to have all census data showing the social and economic characteristics of every commune, county, prefecture and province completed by the end of 1984.

Li Chengrui disclosed that the present manually tabulated figures will be printed in pamphlet form and will be published by the China Statistics Publishing House.

CPC CONGRESS ATTITUDE ON CLASS STRUGGLE ASSESSED

HK280634 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 25 Oct 82 p 5

[Article by Sun Qimeng [1327 6386 1322]: "Understanding the 12th CRC Congress' Reaffirmation of the Assessment of Class Struggle at the Present Stage"]

[Text] [Editor's note] Recently, in the process of studying the documents of the 12th CPC National Congress, many readers have raised questions concerning the present stage of the class struggle in China. Here, we are specially publishing this article by Comrade Sun Qimeng on his study and understanding for your reference. [end editor's note]

In his report to the 12th CRC National Congress, Comrade Hu Yaobang gave an important and penetrating exposition of our basic principles regarding the problem of class struggle in China at the present stage. The report reaffirmed the class assessment repeatedly pointed out by the Central Committee, saying: "Following the elimination of the exploiting classes as such, most contradictions in our society do not have the nature of class struggle, and class struggle no longer constitutes the principal contradiction.... However, within certain limits, class struggle will continue for a long time and may even intensify under certain conditions."

There is a thesis which holds that the expression "within certain limits" is too flexible. The limits could be considered wide or narrow, so are difficult to understand. I think it is necessary to make an analysis of this point.

In the first place, the wording of the phrase "certain limits" is definite and unalterable. It is perfectly inflexible.

First, to say "within certain limits" is to correct the disorder created by "taking class struggle as the key link." For a long time after the founding of the PRC, class struggle was taken to exist at all times and in all places. The slogan "take class struggle as the key link" was the embodiment of such a view. Comrade Hu Yaobang pointed out that in a socialist society where the system of exploitation has been abolished and the exploiting classes have been eliminated, it is wrong to declare and act on the principle of "taking class struggle as the key link." His statement is fully in accordance with the historical reality of socialist China. The basic point of the formulation "within certain limits" is to make a clean break with the theory of "taking class struggle as the key link." Class struggle exists "within certain limits" but not "as the key link." This point is unalterable and absolutely inflexible.

Second, as mentioned above, class struggle no longer constitutes the principle contradiction in our society at its present stage. This tells us that there is a limit to class struggle, and this limit is that class struggle does not occupy the principal position among our social contradictions, class struggle is not a principal but a nonprincipal contradiction. This point is also unalterable and inflexible.

Third, Comrade Hu Yaobang clearly pointed out that "most contradictions in our society do not have the nature of class struggle." This means that comparatively speaking, social contradictions falling within the sphere of class struggle, constitute a minority, not a majority. A relatively small number, not a relatively large number. We cannot take certain limits to mean wide limits. This point is also unalterable and inflexible.

In the second place, the wording of the phrase "within certain limits" has of course eliminated any rigid or mechanical assessments. In this sense, this formulation is flexible. That is to say, the limits of class struggle in China at the present stage might be narrow under certain conditions but wide under other conditions. Why can we not fix definite limits instead of adopting such a flexible phrase? The reas n is that this phrase more accurately and more comprehensively reflects the actual changing conditions of class struggle. It does not reflect subjective arbitrariness but an understanding of the reality of class struggle in China at the present stage in accordance with materialist dialectics. Both domestic and international conditions influence the formation and change of the class struggle in China at the present stage. There exist antagonistic elements both inside and outside China which are hostile to our socialist system. Whenever they get the chance, they stir up trouble and perform acts of sabotage. There are not many of them but they have great capacity to cause harm. We have no way of estimating the scope of the class struggle they plan to carry out. We can only pay them close attention and investigate their development. We should make analyses, formulate accurate estimations and be practical and realistic. If the scope of class struggle is wide, we will say it is wide; if it is narrow, we will say it is narrow. That is one aspect of the reason why we adopt such flexible wording as "within certain limits."

Another aspect is that subjectively, whether we can adopt the correct principles and carry out effective work in tackling problems of class struggle is closely related with the scope of class struggle. Experience has demonstrated that as long as our policies are correct and our work good, we can control the limits of class struggle and gradually make them narrower. If, on the contrary, we make mistakes in our work and policies, then we will not be able to achieve such goals.

For the above reasons, it is correct in theory and advantageous in practice to adopt the flexible formulation "within certain limits" in explaining class struggle in China at the present stage. It keeps us clearheaded in class struggle and helps us work harder to make a success of our investigation and study. If we think subjectively and rigidly define the limits of class struggle (whether we define them as too broad or too narrow), we will be led to make mistakes and violate the principle of correctly distinguishing between and handling the contradictions between ourselves and the enemy, and those among the people. This is extremely damaging to the construction of our socialist cause and the unification of our country.

In his "Materialism and Empirio-Criticism," Lenin, discussing the criterion of practice, said: "This criterion is sufficiently 'indefinite' not to allow human knowledge to become 'absolute,' but at the same time it is sufficiently definite to wage a ruthless struggle against all varieties of idealism and agnosticism." We should treat the problem of the flexibility of the formulation "within certain limits" with the same attitude.

Some people raise doubts such as: "Why is it necessary to say that class struggle might intensify?"

My understanding is this: The documents of the 12th CPC National Congress reaffirming the thesis that class struggle in China may intensify under certain conditions are well grounded in theory and necessary in practice.

First, all matters exist in a state of development and motion; the state of perpetual unchangingness does not exist. Class struggle is just the same. In what ways does it move and change? Generally speaking, it changes in two directions: one is intensification, the other is modernization. Naturally, whatever direction it takes, the process is winding and tortuous; it does not develop along a straight line. Since we recognize that class struggle exists, and that it either goes one way or the other, pointing out in the document that class struggle may intensify under certain conditions implies just this; the question of whether it is necessary or not does not arise. Some people may ask: Why is it necessary to raise the question of the possibility of intensification? This is because under the leadership of the party, and especially under the guidance of the party's line, principles and policies since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, on the whole, many social contradictions including social contradictions of a class nature are gradually and suitably being resolved and are not intensifying. Everyone can see this. If we gain too much of such perceptual knowledge, it is possible that we may overlook the possibility of intensification. After all, the handling of class struggle is different from the handling of other social contradictions, and a reminder of the possibility of intensification under certain conditions has important significance in promoting and unifying understanding and arousing the necessary vigilance.

Second, it has never been the policy of the party to exacerbate social contradictions; only the adoption of correct methods to handle correctly social contradictions according to their nature constitutes true Marxist strategic ideology. In handling contradictions among the people, we always adopt proper methods which suit actual conditions and which strive to achieve moderation. In handling contradictions between ourselves and the enemy, it is inevitable that we resolve those contradictions by means of legal measures and through fierce struggle. We do not intend to aggravate the intensity of contradictions, but if we do not struggle, contradictions cannot be resolved and the interests of the people cannot be protected. Pointing out that class struggle may intensify under certain conditions enables us to understand scientifically and deal with the problem of class struggle and try our best to avoid the intensification of contradictions. This is necessary in practice; it is beneficial, not harmful.

PLA LOGISTICS DEPARTMENT MEETS ON CPC CONGRESS

HK211426 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 19 Oct 82 pp 1, 4

[Report by correspondents Zhou Songnai [0719 2646 5082] and Wang Zongren [3769 1350 0088] and reporters Wang Yongan [3769 3057 1344] and Zhai Qiyun [5049 0796 6663]: "Unify Thinking Along the Line of the Party Program -- Standing Committee of the CPC Committee of the PLA Logistics Department Holds Enlarged Meeting To Study and Implement the Guidelines of the 12th CPC Congress"]

[Text] The party committee of the PLA General Logistics Department held an enlarged meeting of its Standing Committee in Beijing from 23 September to 17 October. The meeting used Comrade Deng Xiaoping's opening speech to the 12th CPC Congress as a general guide and repeatedly studied the documents of the congress in order to thoroughly understand their guidelines. In consideration of the reality of the thinking and the work of various units and individuals, the meeting then summarized experiences, conducted criticism and self-criticism, and discussed and studied measures and plans for creating a new situation in all fields of the General Logistics Department.

Approximately 257 people attended the meeting. They were delegates of the General Logistics Department who had attended the 12th CPC Congress, members of the Standing Committee of the CPC Committee of the General Logistics Department and main leading members of armies and divisions concerned. Wang Ping, executive member of the Central Advisory Commission and political commissar of the General Logistics Department, and Hong Xuezhi, member of the CPC Central Committee and director of the General Logistics Department, delivered important speeches at the meeting.

Blaze a Path of Our Own and Build Socialism With Chinese Characteristics

In his opening address to the 12th CPC Congress, Comrade Deng Xiaoping pointed out: "In our modernization program, we must proceed from Chinese realities." He added: "To integrate the universal truth of Marxism with the concrete realities of China, blaze a path of our own and build socialism with Chinese characteristics -- this is the basic conclusion we have reached in summing up long, historical experience." The meeting carried out a heated discussion on this statement and maintained that this was an important basis for working out the program of the 12th CPC Congress and a general guiding ideology for creating a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization. Those participants pledged to repeatedly study this statement in order to have an in-depth understanding of it.

Why should this statement be regarded as a general guiding ideology? Comrade Bai Xiangguo (deputy political commissar of the General Logistics Department) said: After the smashing of the "gang of four," when the state was facing a mountain of problems and a situation in which right and wrong were confused, what had to be done to make our state prosperous and powerful? Neither the theory of the "two whatevers" nor the practice of indiscriminately copying the experiences of others worked. Only the act of blazing a path of our own and building socialism with Chinese characteristics proved of value. In other words, we should integrate the universal truth of Marxism with the concrete realities of China. Since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, our party has persisted in pursuing the practice of emancipating the mind and seeking truth from facts and formulating and implementing a series of correct lines, guiding principles and policies. We have achieved remarkable results in this respect. This shows that we have taken a correct path. Comrade Deng Xiaoping's opening speech has fully embodied the spirit of the 12th CPC Congress. Only by taking the opening speech as a guiding ideology can we study 12th CPC Congress documents well, understand our present policies and a series of reforms, and avoid repeating old mistakes.

All the participating comrades cited numerous facts to speak glowingly of the line, guiding principles and policies of the party and the way to make the people rich and the country powerful. Comrade Bi Kewu (deputy director of the capital construction and barracks section of the General Logistics Department) said: When the responsibility system in production which links remuneration to output was first implemented in the rural areas, some of our comrades did not understand it and cast doubt upon it. This year, when I returned to my home in Wendeng County, Shandong Province, to visit my family and relatives, I was given a profound education. When I left my home to join the army, villagers lived in thatched cottages; now, they have moved into tile-roofed houses and each laborer can earn more than 3 yuan per day. Almost every household has bank savings deposits amounting to 800 - 1,000 yuan. A lot of households have bought TV sets, and some of them even have two TV sets. A secretary of the county CPC committee said: Our village has only attained middle level. Comrade Zhu Yunhe (director of Hospital 309) said: My younger sister is living in my home village. A few years ago, her family lived in straitened circumstances and I had to give money to her. Now, she no longer needs it, saying that her family earns more than 3,000 yuan a year and she does not lack money.

Comrade Zhang Xiang, alternate member of the CPC Central Committee (former director of the public health section of the General Logistics Department), said: Intellectuals working in the General Logistics Department account for more than 50 percent of the total number of cadres. Due to the implementation of party policy, their enthusiasm has been fully aroused. In these few years, they have scored achievements in more than 1,000 research projects. These facts have showed that as long as we act in accordance with the spirit of the CPC Central Committee, the situation will greatly change.

The party's correct program should be understood by the whole party. Reviewing party history, the comrades present at the meeting maintained that this matter is a key which determines the success or failure of the Chinese revolution and construction. Comrade Wan Yi, alternate member of the Seventh and Eighth CPC Central Committees (now adviser to the General Logistics Department), said: Once the correct program of the party is understood by the whole party, the enthusiasm of the masses will be fully aroused and the revolution will develop rapidly. Before the Seventh CPC Congress, the Zunyi meeting of the party was a historical turning point. The rectification campaign in Yanan exposed and criticized Wang Ming's line. On such a basis, the Seventh CPC Congress formulated the correct program for the democratic revolution and unified the understanding of the whole party. After the convening of the Seventh CPC Congress, the situation developed rapidly and beyond expectation. We only took 4 years to liberate the whole of China. Combat hero Comrade Sun Cunyu (adviser to the oil section of the General Logistics Department) added: At that time I was working in the base area in east China. As a basic-level commander, I personally realized the power of the line of the Seventh CPC Congress. After unifying their understanding, various base areas united as one and fought bravely. I took part in the Huai-Hai campaign. The great victory of eliminating 550,000 enemy troops was a proof. Since the 7th CPC Congress gave rise to a new China, I believe that the 12th CPC Congress will also bring about a socialist and modern power.

Comrade Su Jigang, delegate to the 12th CPC Congress (director of the ordance section of the General Logistics Department) said: If we are unable to make the correct line understood by the whole party, the correct line will not be effectively implemented and we might possibly take a roundabout course. The line of the Eighth CPC Congress was correct. Why was it shattered by the erroneous theory and practice which "takes class struggle as the key link?" One important reason for this was that we had not made sufficient preparation ideologically and the line of the Eighth CPC Congress was not fully understood and mastered by the broad masses of cadres and people. Therefore, the line of the Eighth CPC Congress was not fully implemented. The program of the 12th CPC Congress is a summarization of the historical experience of socialist construction over the past 30 years, the 3-year new experience since the 3d plenary session in particular. It is a Marxist program which conforms with our national conditions. We should bear in mind the implementation of the experience of the 7th CPC Congress and draw a lesson from the implementation of the 8th CPC Congress line to truly make the spirit of the 12th CPC Congress understood by the whole party.

Correctly Carry Out Ideological Struggle on Two Fronts

All the participating comrades maintain that to ensure the smooth implementation of the program of the 12th CPC Congress and keep in line with the CPC Central Committee ideologically and politically, we should continue to carry out correctly the ideological struggle on two fronts to oppose "leftist" and rightist deviations. Judging from the present conditions, we should not underestimate the "leftist" influence.

Comrade Wang Ping, member of the Central Advisory Commission (first secretary of the CPC Committee of the PLA General Logistics Department), pointed out that it is of vital importance to straighten out our thinking.

The 12th CPC National Congress marked a great historical change of our party; a change from failure to victory, from setbacks to rejuvenation, and from the party's line, policies and principles to the actual work on various fronts. In other words, our party has been changed from being influenced by the "leftist" error for a long time in both theory and practice to the construction of socialism with Chinese characteristics. At this great turning point, whether the thinking of our party members and cadres, especially our leading cadres, can meet the changed situation has a most direct bearing on correctly understanding and implementing the policy decisions adopted by the party Central Committee. For this reason, since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, the party has been paying the closest attention to the struggle on the ideological front. It has given unequivocal ideological guidance to all concrete work in different periods. Primarily, the "leftist" deviationist error has been straightened out and the trammels of "leftist" ideology have been fundamendatally smashed. The trend of bourgeois liberalization has been criticized in time and stopped, and the party's ideological, political and organizational line has been forcefully implemented.

In the General Logistics Department, both the "leftist" and rightist erroneous trends have existed in our cadre ranks, but the former is the main danger. For example, quite a few people did not understand and frowned upon the line of the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee. Some of them even held that it signified retrogression and made nitpicking and improper comments on it. When a small number of cadres who had followed Lin Biao and Qiu Huizuo and had thus committed mistakes tried to reverse correct verdicts, some people even sympathized with them and supported them. Under such circumstances, was it not right for us to criticize the "leftist" error? Thus, guided by the ideology of opposing both "leftist" and rightist errors wherever they exist, we held a political work conference last March to straighten out the "leftist" influence among the leaders at various levels and criticize the "two whatevers" mistakes. We achieved very good results in straightening out our thinking and understanding and in carrying out the party's line. We should admit that at that time there was resistance to the criticism of the "leftist" ideology. Although some cadres had been seriously influenced by the pernicious "leftist" ideology and should have had their thinking straightened out, they refused to do so. On the contrary, they persisted in the "leftist" errors under the pretext of criticizing the rightist deviation. Since they were criticizing the rightist deviation on a "leftist" stand, they became more and more "left" through the criticism. This was a bitter experience. We must earnestly solve this problem in the study of the 12th CPC Congress documents. At the same time, we must maintain high vigilance against the rightist erroneous trend and always carry out resolute struggles against all words and actions which run counter to the four basic principles and various criminal activities which sabotage our socialist construction.

On the relations between politics and economics, some comrades had different views during the discussion. Wang Ping said that the slogan of putting politics in command has been mentioned for many years and has been deeply imprinted on people's minds. Now that the focus of our work has been shifted to economic construction, it appears that this slogan can no longer give an accurate and scientific expression of the relationship between politics and economics. In his opening speech at the 12th CPC Congress, Comrade Deng Xiaoping dealt with three major tasks for the 1980's and penetratingly analyzed the relationship among them. He clearly pointed out: "Economic construction is the core of these tasks. It is the basis for the solution of China's external and domestic problems." Marxism holds that politics, which belong to the category of the superstructure, is determined by the economic base and serves the latter. The proletariat first wants to seize political power and then to preserve it. It is in this sense that politics should be put in the first place. This is because there will be no socialist economic construction without political power.

However, after shifting the focus of our work to economic construction, we should carry out economic construction as the central task and no longer put politics in command. Now politics must be subordinate to economic construction and ensure the development of the economy. In the 10 years of turmoil, the sentence that politics cannot but have precedence over economics was repeatedly quoted, but it was quoted out of context. If this sentence is understood in terms of absolutes and held universally as if politics should be put in first place at all times, in all places and under all circumstances, one will make mistakes. This is the ABC's of Marxism. However, this question has been confused under the influence of "leftist" mistakes. Now, we should straighten out this distorted idea.

Not to put politics in command absolutely does not mean that political work is not important and that political institutions and political cadres will have nothing to do. On the contrary, political work is very important. In his opening speech at the 12th CPC Congress, Comrade Deng Xiaoping emphasized that from now on it is necessary to diligently do our jobs well in four aspects. These four jobs will be the most important guarantees for our adherence to the socialist road and the concentration of our efforts on modernization. They are very rich in content and have set ever more arduous tasks for us to carry out in political work. Only when we do them well will we be able to adhere to the socialist orientation and ensure the realization of the strategic objective in economic construction.

Only by Straightening Out Their Thinking Can Leading Cadres Lead the Masses Forward

Why should we not underestimate the "leftist" influence? Comrade Zheng Jian (deputy director of the PLA General Logistics Department) said: 1) In the party's guiding ideology, the long-term "leftist" error has not only exerted influence on various localities but also on the army. 2) The General Logistics Department was most seriously harmed, since the Lin Biao counterrevolutionary clique had done its utmost to fan up the flame of "leftism" in this department and the "gang of four" had also poked their noses into it. 3) Since the smashing of the "gang of four," some political incidents have occurred in the General Logistics Department, the fundamental reasons for which were the influence of the "leftist" ideology. Facts show that if the pernicious influence of "leftist" ideology is not eliminated, it will be impossible for us to keep political unanimity with the party Central Committee. Of course, what I have said does not mean at all that we can slacken our struggle against rightist deviation. Nevertheless, we must be really aware of the danger of "leftist" ideology and have a good understanding of the importance of further eliminating the "leftist" influence in the course of studying and implementing the spirit of the 12th CPC Congress.

Comrade Xiang Jun (director of the political department of the military supplies and production management office under the PLA General Logistics Department) said that since the political consciousness of the masses of people has been greatly raised and their ability to differentiate between right and wrong has been enhanced, they will not allow anyone to continue practicing "leftism" or rightism. In order to correct various erroneous ideas, it is necessary to rely on the masses.

In order to implement the spirit of the 12th CPC Congress and keep ideological and political unanimity with the party Central Committee, it is necessary to solve ideological problems of the leading cadres. Comrade Chen Ying, alternate member of the CPC Central Committee (and deputy political commissar of the PLA General Logistics Department), said that unifying the thinking of leading cadres in line with the program of the 12th CPC National Congress is a matter of keeping unanimity with the CPC Central Committee. While studying the documents of the 12th CPC Congress, it is necessary to examine ourselves and, in light of these documents, find out what experiences we have gained and what problems we still have.

For example, to find out in what aspects, such as our understanding of the party's line, policies and principles, the personnel appointments in the Central Committee, our analysis of the situation and our attitude toward the realization of the strategic aim laid down by the 12th CPC Congress, we are still not in keeping with the CPC Central Committee, and to decide what to do. All these problems must be solved well. Judging from the situation in the PLA General Logistics Department since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, all people and things concerned in the incidents which went counter to the party's line, policies and principles have their roots in "leftist" ideology. Therefore, only when we have straightened out our thinking can we justly and forcefully carry out well the mass ideological work and lead the masses of people forward. Our army is under the absolute leadership of the party. It must unconditionally keep political unanimity with the party Central Committee. We must set an example in this respect and stand firm on the major issues of principle. All those who publicly express opinions which are antagonistic to the party Central Committee will absolutely not be tolerated by party and army discipline. At the same time, we must also see that due to the long-term existence of "leftist" influence, it is not possible to get rid of it in a short period of time. Although the General Logistics Department has made great efforts to eliminate "leftist" influence, there is no reason for us to lower our guard.

Lay a Good Foundation for Creating a New Situation

Those who attended the meeting held that in the final analysis, the study and implementation of the spirit of the 12th CPC Congress must be reflected in practical work. The participants discussed the problem of how to create a new situation in the work of the General Logistics Department and put forth many opinions, suggestions and plans.

Comrade Hong Xuezhi, member of the CPC Central Committee (and second secretary of the CPC Committee of the General Logistics Department), said that in order to create a new situation in logistics work, great efforts should be made to blaze new trails. 1) It is necessary to have the spirit of blazing new trails; that is, taking the whole country into account and pondering questions from the high plane of suiting logistics work to the needs of building a modernized and regularized revolutionary army. If the development of our thinking stops at the stage of "millet plus rifles" mentality, how can we promote our work to suit the development of the situation? When we attain a new and lofty realm of thought, our vision will be broadened and we will be determined to reform rather than sticking to old ways. 2) It is necessary to have the work style needed in creating a new situation. In other words, every comrade must strive to be a man of action and get right on the job and do it well. We must never stop until we reach our goal. No one should be a bystander who only talks without action. We must pay attention to the practical results of our work and avoid "lies, exaggerations and empty talk." We must resolutely resist and check such unhealthy tendencies as trying to establish relations with others in order to gain private interests. 3) It is necessary to work out plans and measures to create a new situation; that is, to work out long-term plans and make arrangements for the near future so that proper steps and measures can be taken and our work can be done with a clear aim and emphasis. In order to lay a solid foundation for creating a new situation, we should do a good job in investigation and study. An investigation group has already been formed to inspect our work in all companies and brigades in the border areas and on coastal islands. Then, all warehouses in the army will be checked. Next year, the financial affairs of the whole army will also be checked. It is necessary to carry out investigations on front after front so that we can have a clearer understanding of the situation, collect all necessary data and work out good methods to solve problems in a down-to-earth manner and to attain our goal of creating a new situation. Only in this way can the spirit of the 12th CPC Congress be integrated with the concrete logistics work and be really implemented.

Comrade Xu Guangyi, delegate to the 12th CPC Congress (deputy director of the General Logistics Department), said that in creating a new situation, it is of great importance to treasure and train talented people. It is necessary to select and promote those who have good political, military and professional quality and necessary cultural and scientific knowledge. There are not too many capable people now. Rather, we are greatly in want of such people. If we fail to pay attention to the correct use and active training of talented people, we will commit a big mistake in our era. It is impossible for people who do not have cultural and scientific and technological knowledge to realize modernization. For example, due to the lack of scientific and technological knowledge, some people have caused enormous losses amounting to tens of thousands of yuan or even several million yuan in technological accidents. This shows that learning cultural, scientific and technological knowledge is very important. However, some people are overtly advocating that in building socialist spiritual civilization, cultural knowledge is not necessary. This is not only absurd in theory, but is also harmful in practice. All departments under the General Logistics Department must spare no efforts in carrying out intellectual education.

The comrades present at the meeting declared that they would play an exemplary role in this respect and help the masses of people raise their consciousness in line with the spirit of the 12th CPC Congress so that the initiative of the masses can be further mobilized. Pan Rongwen, alternate member of the CPC Central Committee (physician-in-charge at Changzheng Hospital), said that in order to judge how a person or a unit has implemented the spirit of the 12th CPC Congress, we must see the actual results which have been achieved. After I go back to my unit, I will work conscientiously and in a down-to-earth manner to fulfill my duty.

PLA'S LI DESHENG URGES CONGRESS DOCUMENTS STUDY

OW280449 Beijing Domestic Service in Mandarin 2230 GMT 26 Oct 82

[Text] On page 1 of JIEFANGJUN BAO on 27 October there is a report on measures put forward by Li Desheng, commander of the Shenyang PLA units, at a recent telephone conference for deepening the study of the 12th CPC National Congress documents. The measures include the following:

One, it is necessary to regard the study of the congress documents as a matter of utmost importance and pay keen attention to it.

Two, it is necessary to concentrate the efforts on key issues in order to thoroughly understand the spirit of the documents.

Three, it is necessary, in the light of ideological reality, to eliminate leftist and rightist influences and pay special attention to preventing revival of current leftist ideas.

Four, it is necesary to implement the guidelines of the congress with concrete action and strive to create a new situation in army building.

RENMIN RIBAO ON BUILDING HOUSES ON FARMLAND

HK271154 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 24 Oct 82 p 2

[Commentator's article: "Seriously Deal With Cadres Who Indiscriminately Build Houses on Farmland"]

[Text] It is indeed a startling fact that houses have been built at the cost of farmland in the rural areas of Zhejiang's Wenzhou City. Such an unhealthy practice can be seen in many places and it deserves our serious attention.

In recent years, the CPC Central Committee and the State Council have repeatedly pointed out that one of the basic national conditions in our country is a large population with little arable land and it is necessary to treat as our national policy the saving of land and the proper utilization of every inch of land.

Not long ago, Comrade Hu Yaobang pointed out in his report to the 12th CPC Congress: "At present, both labor productivity and the percentage of marketable products are rather low concerning our agriculture; our capacity for resisting natural calamities is still quite limited; and, in particular, the contradiction between the huge population and the insufficiency of arable land is becoming ever more acute." It is, therefore, necessary to protect vigorously various agricultural resources including arable land. The State Council has successively promulgated a series of important laws and regulations, such as "Regulations of Management of Housing Land in Villages and Towns" and "Regulations of Taking Over Land for National Construction" to enforce the implementation in all areas.

Over the past year or so, instructions by the CPC Central Committee and State Council have been carried out seriously in Shanxi, Beijing and other areas, and professional contingents have been organized and personally presided over by leading cadres to check up and investigate the problems of building houses indiscriminately on farmland and deal seriously with the activities of seizing arable land in contravention of the "regulations," thus initially reversing the unhealthy trend of building houses at the cost of farmland. However, importance has not been attached to this work in some places and the unhealthy trend of indiscriminately seizing arable land has not yet been halted, and is instead viciously spreading and expanding. There are many reasons why the unhealthy trend cannot be halted. But the main reason, according to what has already been disclosed in the Wenzhou case, is that some leading cadres have taken advantage of their power and played a detestable leading role in the unhealthy trend of indiscriminately seizing arable farmland. Of the 12 members of the CPC Standing Committee of Leqing County in Wezhou City, 6 have built houses at the cost of farmland. Among them, two are deputy secretaries of the county CPC committee. With the leading cadres at the county level involved in evil practices and cadres in grassroot units following their actions, the unhealthy trend of indiscriminately seizing arable land is bound to become more and more radical.

It is explicitly stipulated in the "Constitution of the Communist Party of China" approved by the 12th CPC Congress: All Communist Party members must put the interest of the party and the people above all and never engage in corruption and harm the public interest to benefit personal gains. Those cadres in Wenzhou have run totally counter to the basic principle as stipulated in the party constitution and grossly undermined party style, thus encouraging evil trends. Obviously, if we want to call a halt to the evil trend of indiscriminately seizing arable land, we must first of all seriously deal with the illegal cases of these cadres and never forgive and tolerate them with the excuse of "no such case next time." With misbehaving leading cadres seriously dealt with, it will be easier to deal with the illegal behavior of indiscriminately seizing arable land among the masses.

The cases in Wenzhou have also taught us that it is by no means an isolated phenomenon that the evil trend of building houses at the cost of farmland would appear in the area. The trend is closely associated with land deals in society and serious crimes in the economic sphere. This has not only grossly trampled upon the state laws and regulations, but has also maliciously corrupted the peasants. It must be resolutely outlawed and dealt with according to law. It should not be allowed to continue to run rampant.

Naturally, in order to basically solve the problem of indiscriminately seizing arable land, plenty of meticulous work must be done to help solve some practical problems in building houses for the masses. It is necessary to grasp construction planning work in the countryside and towns. A good general plan will save arable land, bring a rational layout of new villages and provide conveniences to the masses in their living and production. It is necessary to help the peasants overcome difficulties in building houses in such fields as design, construction and construction material, and achieve the goal of not only saving arable land and lumber but also improving living conditions. It is also necessary to use economic means to work out concrete methods and encourage the practice of occupying no arable land or less arable land while building houses, the practice of building houses on hills and the practice of building multistory houses. Facts in many places have shown that such practices will be applauded warmly by the masses.

OFFICIAL SAYS 30 MILLION URBAN HOMES NEEDED

HK280114 Beijing CHINA DAILY in English 28 Oct 82 p 1

[Text] China will have to build 30 million urban homes between now and 1990, according to He Ziyu, director of the technological department of the Ministry of Urban and Rural Construction.

Speaking at the Asian-Pacific symposium on lowcost housing, in Beijing, he stressed the important relation between housing construction and pupulation growth in China.

He said China had built a total of 530 million square metres of housing space in the cities during the 29 years from 1950 to 1978 and another 250 million square metres over the three years after 1978.

Despite the unprecedented speed of housing development, the rate of construction could hardly catch up with the ever-growing number of new families demanding houses in the cities.

As there were 500 million young people who would enter the age for marriage or childbirth within the next 20 years, 2.1 million new urban couples would demand houses during each of the next eight years, he said.

This demand alone exceeded China's annual urban housing development rate of 80 million square metres over the last few years.

In order to provide a house for each urban family, including all the old and new families in need of a house, a total of 30 million houses or flats would have to be built in the cities by 1990, he said.

China could only solve the housing shortage by stages, he said. Nonetheless, the state had already given priority to housing construction in its long-term development programme.

He said that housing development accounted for a quarter of the state capital construction investment for 1981, showing an increase of 20 per cent over that for 1980.

Shanghai

Steps had also been taken by the state to encourage enterprises, local authorities and individuals to invest in housing projects so as to quicken housing development in the country.

Meanwhile, the Shanghai Municipal People's Government plans to build more than 15 million square metres of residential housing space during the Sixth Five-Year Plan period, ending 1985.

Six million square metres of houses are expected to be completed before 1983, while another nine million square metres will be built in the following three years.

The total investment of this housing development project, including urban utilities, is estimated at 3.4 billion yuan.

During the three years before 1981, Shanghai had already developed a total of 10.7 million square metres of new residential housing space.

Shanghai's new housing programme is planned as a part of its overall urban re-development programme, which embodies a new municipal layout of residential, cultural and social centres and improvement of urban communications facilities, including two motorway tunnels connecting the two sides of the Huangpu River.

NATIONAL FORUM ON SCHOOL PERSONNEL HOUSING OPENS

HK270732 Changsha Hunan Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 26 Oct 82

[Summary] "This morning, the national forum for exchanging experiences in improving the housing conditions of urban middle and primary school teachers opened in Changsha. Vice Minister of Education Zhang Wensong; Zhang Wenguang, member of the Standing Committee of the Hunan Provincial CPC Committee and vice governor; Wang Hanfu, vice chairman of the provincial people's congress standing committee; and (Fang Ming), secretary of the party branch of the state trade union of education workers, attended the meeting. Vice Education Minister Zhang Wensong gave an opening speech." He said: Comrade Hu Yaobang pointed out in his report to the 12th party congress that the tasks of teachers at all levels are tough and honorable. Their efforts will determine the intellectual and physical development of the younger generation. We must make the whole of society respect and support their labor. Comrade Hu Yaobang also pointed out in his report that the state is taking various measures to improve the livelihood and housing conditions of middle-aged intellectuals now working in various production fronts. Zhang Wensong said: We must implement the resolution of the 12th party congress and solve the housing problem of middle and primary school teachers. Since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, some municipalities have paid attention to education and the livelihood of teachers. They have, through various channels, constructed a considerable number of houses for the teachers in order to ease their housing problem. It is hoped that all provinces and municipalities, on the basis of learning from the model provinces and municipalities, will draw up plans and devise methods to solve the problem.

This national forum was cosponsored by the Ministry of Education, Ministry of Urban and Rural Construction and Environmental Protection and the state trade union of education workers. There were some 180 people participating in the forum including personnel from the education departments and bureaus in various provinces and municipalities, urban construction bureaus, responsible comrades from education trade unions and representatives of 16 model provinces and municipalities.

RENMIN RIBAO ON HEILONGJIANG CPC RECTIFICATION

HK210307 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 18 Oct 82 p 3

[Article by Yang Yichen [2799 2496 6591]: "We Must Properly Consolidate Our Party" -- reprinted in 19 October HEILONGJIANG RIBAO]

[Text] In his report to the 12th CPC National Congress, Comrade Hu Yaobang pointed out that the Central Committee has decided on an overall rectification of party style and consolidation of party organizations. This is an important issue in our party building. The successful rectification and consolidation of the party has important significance in bringing about radical improvements in the party style, strengthening and improving party leadership and promoting the party's combat strength.

In the past few years in Heilongjiang, party organizations at all levels have firmly implemented the party's principles and policies adopted since the 3d plenary session of the 11th Central Committee and led the people of the whole province to bring about the socialist modernization. Through this process, we feel deeply that the present Central Committee is an united and harmonious leading collective and the strong core which can manipulate complicated situations. But, judging from the body of the party and the quality and combat strength of the party members, there are many problems. According to the investigations made by the prefectural and municipal committees in our province, about 20 percent of the grassroots party organizations are not up to combat strength and about 15 percent of the party members are not qualified or basically not qualified.

Consequently, it is necessary to rectify the party style and party organization. Only if our party is successfully rectified can it be reliably ensured that the party's principles and policies are implemented, that our party has vitality and that construction of material and spiritual civilization be carried out smoothly.

In the past 4 years, under the guidance of the above ideology, we have continuously carried out pilot projects in our party rectification and certain results had been achieved. For instance, after party rectification in the Lun Ken Commune in Boli County, the party members played an exemplary role, the leading ranks of the commune and party branch were quite firm and strong, production was firmly grasped, policies were successfully implemented and production increased on a grand scale. There was an increase of 22 percent in grain production and an increase of 90 yuan in per capita income. In Mudanjiang, before party rectification, the neighborhood factories suffered losses every year. After party rectification, they proceeded from strictly organizing life and educated the party members to play their exemplary vanguard role and there has been progress in all fields of work. In 1 year, losses were turned into profits, a debt of 160,000 yuan was cleared, they were one quarter ahead in achieving the plan for production value and the profit achieved was 80,000 yuan. These investigations illustrate that there are great changes in the points which have been rectified. The percentage of qualified or basically qualified party members has increased from 85 percent to 97 percent. The percentage of branches of the first category has increased from 29 percent to 51 percent and the construction of material and spiritual civilization has been vigorously pushed forward.

Judging from the pilot projects of party rectification practiced in our province in the past few years, successful party rectification entirely depends on positive education. It is necessary to place ideological rectification as the first priority. Party rectification carried out in an extremely ordinary manner or as a mere formality is, in most cases, caused by poor ideological education.

In ideological education, on the whole, we have solved three problems: 1) to confirm and consolidate communist faith, we have clarified the superiority of socialism and inevitability of communism on the basis of the unity of theory and practice; 2) to foster the idea of wholeheartedly serving the people, clearly adhere to the principle of "the three no changes": the principle that the interest of the party enjoys first priority in whatever place and time does not change, the selfless principle that the interests of others are put before self-interest does not change, and the principle of being the first to bear hardships and the last to enjoy comforts does not change; 3) to adhere to the criterion of Communist Party membership. Party members are required to establish the criterion of membership in their ideology and act in accordance with the criterion of membership.

To place ideological rectification as the first priority and to solve the problem of ideological membership are the foundations of successful party rectification. Unhealthy trends have been prevailing among many party members, but they feel that they are all right. After study and education, they increasingly feel that they are not qualified. They make a clean breast of their problems. In addition, they seriously carry out corrections in accordance with the provisions of the relevant documents of the state and the party. Their problems have been solved. Moreover, they feel the greatest of care and help that the party gives them.

Thus, in party rectification, it is necessary to be willing to make efforts, spend a lot of energy and strength and to place study and education in an important position.

Three years ago, when pilot projects in party rectification were carried out in our province, only the rectification of the grassroots party organization was grasped while party committees and leading organs above the county level were not rectified. The practice of party rectification tells us that problems at the grassroots level are closely related with the leading organs. If the leading organs are not properly rectified, the entire situation cannot be opened and the whole rectification will become passive.

Thus, this year, we combine party rectification with overall rectification and synthetic administration and we make the party rectification our core. When the grassroots rectification is well grasped, the rectification of the leading organs is also seriously grasped. Emphasis is placed on the leading ranks and the leading organs taking the lead. Comrade Yaobang suggested that in party rectification, "the party members among the 18 million cadres should first be rectified, then, the party members from the working class and the peasantry." This is very reasonable. Party committees and organs above the country level bear important responsibilities which are closely related with the overall situation of the entire region, the system and the unit. They have great influence on the committees and organs at the lower levels. If the style of the committees and organs above the county level is correct, it can improve that of the committees and organs at the lower levels.

Party rectification is a solemn issue, It is necessary to adhere to principles, not to avoid contradictions and be bold in solving problems. In party rectification some regions and units avoid difficult problems and problems which are closely related with the members of the units or regions, dare not grasp things, pay attention and solve problems. As a result, the party rectification is a mere formality. As to this question, on the basis of in-depth study and education, we emphasize that it is necessary to stress principles and party style. We should be bold in smashing "the art of maintaining good relationships with everybody" and "the web of relationship', not avoid the substance of the questions, not make great issues small and not make small issues disappear. It is necessary to uphold the solemn nature of party discipline and party regulations, solidly solve the problems of the party and correct the unhealthy trends with the spirit of being responsible to the party, the people and the comrades.

The practice in the pilot projects in party rectification tells us that there is an intrinsic relationship between the overall rectification of the enterprises, the further improvements of the agricultural responsibility system in the rural areas and party rectification. Party rectification should be organically combined with the rectification of enterprises, organs, communes and production brigades, with party rectification as the core and they should promote each other. In this way, good results can be achieved.

In order to realize improvements in the party spirit in 3 to 5 years, it is necessary to have key points and aspects in party rectification, unify the key points and aspects and carry them out in turn and in groups.

In grasping the key points, leadership in the aspect of education must not be relaxed. The aspect of education reality is an ideological preparation for overall party rectification. In addition, in the aspect of universal education, it is necessary to unify piecemeal rectification in the unit's party spirit and to unify ideological education with the solving of the practical problems in party spirit. It is necessary to proceed from the problems where there is a concentration of opinion of the masses and from the problems where there are the most urgent demands, solve the problems one by one and carry out a cumulative piecemeal rectification. Practice has proven that if rectification is to be successful, work without emphasis can be better done than work with emphasis.

Consolidating party organization, strengthening the party's ideological construction and organization construction and promoting the party's combat strength are the party's regular tasks. When the cause is developing and the work progressing, it is necessary to continuously consolidate and promote the party organization. We always remind party committees at all levels to bear in mind and hold in their hands party building. If party building is not successful, one or two hands are to blamed.

That only economic construction but not party building is grasped, that the party is cast aside while one is busily engaged in general rectification, that "the task is finished in one battle" -- achieve rectification once and for all, and that people are lax in regular party building work and wait until they collectively carry out party rectification and "settle the whole business" in the future, these are all incorrect ideas and an incorrect working style.

Although we have done some work and achieved some results in consolidating party organization, what we have done in the historic task of the overall consolidation of the party organization is only a prologue. Comrade Hu Yaobang's report and the new party constitution passed by the 12th CPC National Congress are strong weapons for the successful rectification of our party. We firmly believe that we certainly can make a success of our party rectification under the guidance of the spirit of the 12th CPC National Congress.

CHEN MUHUA SPEAKS AT GUANGZHOU TRADE FAIR

OW271241 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1702 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Guangzhou, 23 Oct (XINHUA) -- Chen Muhua, state councillor and minister of foreign economic relations and trade, speaking at a report meeting held by the Chinese export commodities fair this morning, said: In foreign economic and trade work it is necessary to uphold the unified plan, the unified policy and the joint principle, earnestly improve the sale of export commodities, strengthen investigation and study of market conditions, do business in a flexible manner and to steadily improve the export commodities fair in Guangzhou.

Comrade Chen Muhua inspected the 1982 autumn Chinese export commodities fair in Guangzhou from 20 to 23 October. She visited the fair's exhibition hall, witnessed activities on the spot and talked with the heads of trade delegations, the directors of various provincial, municipal and autonomous regional foreign trade bureaus and representatives of various trade groups, and listened to their views and suggestions on developing foreign trade and improving the fair's activities. This morning, she again made a report to comrades of departments concerned.

Since its opening, the 1982 autumn export commodities fair has been visited by many enthusiastic traders. During the first week, it received a total of over 12,000 traders from 78 countries and regions on separate occasions, surpassing the number of visiting traders in a similar period in previous years. Good results in export transactions were also reported during that week.

Chen Muhua said: During the current export commodities fair, many good persons and good deeds have surfaced as personnel, eager to implement the guidelines of the 12th CPC National Congress, have attached importance to the general interest, worked in unity and in coordination with each other and put others' interests ahead of their own. Good results have been achieved in implementing the unified plan, the unified policy and the joint principle and in strengthening coordination and management, which has also drawn the traders' praise. Chen Muhua called on all personnel at the fair to make persistent efforts and to work with a new style and a new attitude in order to make new achievements for the export commodities fair. She called on all personnel to do well in promoting the sale of export commodities. They should take advantage of the favorable conditions at the Guangzhou export commodities fair to do both sales as well as investigation and study in an earnest manner. All workers must do their share in investigation and study and do a good job in studying home delivery of goods. The principle of linking up departments dealing with foreign trade must be upheld consistently so as to do a good job in linking up ports and companies, and industry and trade. In linking up industry and trade, foreign trade departments must provide information expeditiously on commodities and earnestly promote sales of products; industrial departments on the other hand should make use of the information mainly to improve products, raise quality and increase the variety in color and design so that the products can better meet the needs of the international market.

ENCOURAGING PROSPECTS SEEN FOR OIL INDUSTRY

OW271331 Beijing XINHUA in English 1228 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 27 (XINHUA) -- Chinese experts predict a breakthrough in China's oil production in the latter half of the 1980s when offshore oil exploitation begins, quotes an article carried in the current issue of the magazine FORTNIGHTLY CHAT [BAN YUE TAN].

Preliminary results of a nation-wide oil search indicate that there are 300 explorable sedimentary basins, with sedimentary rock areas totalling 4.5 million square kilometers, about half the size of China. More than 20 provinces and autonomous regions have reported oil and gas discoveries. In addition, there are 1.2 million square kilometers of promising continental shelf, where working conditions are satisfactory despite early season typhoons.

The extensive search for oil and gas started in 1979 in order to keep pace with the nations growing needs for consumption and export.

In northeast China's Songhua-Liache River Basin and the North China Basin, the thickness of oil potential sedimentary strata is estimated to range from between 8,000 to 10,000 meters. But so far, oil has been discovered and extracted form a depth of only 3,000 meters. With the application of new theories, drilling is now going deeper than 4,000 meters.

The article says that the proven reserves in these areas alone may help China to stabilize the annual oil putput at 100 million tons, a performance achieved in 1978.

In northwest China, progress has been made in the exploration of Tarim, Junggar and Qaidam Basins in cooperation with U.S. and French seismological prospecting and drilling teams, the article reports.

The thickness of sedimentary strata in the Tarim Basin in Xinjiang has been verified to be exceeding 10,000 meters.

In the offshore waters, six potential oil basins have been found so far in the Bohai Sea, the East China Sea, the South China Sea and the Yellow Sea, some of them with links to land oil fields. A number of high-yielding wells have already been drilled.

The article disclosed that the evaluation of the more than 100 bids submitted by foreign oil companies for joint exploration of offshore petroleum resources is proceeding smoothly and contract signing will start early next year, as scheduled.

China's oil industry has become a full-fledged industrial system playing an important role in China's modernization, the article continues. Now there are over 100 oil and gas fields in operation and a pipeline network totalling 9,700 kilometers are carrying 60 per cent of the crude from Daqing, Liaohe, Dagang, Shengli and other oilfields to oil refineries that spread in various parts of the country.

More than 300 physical exploration teams are now working in the field searching for oil and gas and 800 drilling teams are tapping the existing oilfields and opening up new ones. The country is currently able to produce all the major equipment necessary for the exploration, drilling, production and refining of oil, including offshore drilling rigs and pumping units, the article says.

PEASANTS SAID TO BUY MORE MEANS OF PRODUCTION

OW280052 Beijing XINHUA in English 1546 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October (XINHUA) -- With more and more money at their disposal, Chinese peasants are buying more means of production and building materials while becoming increasingly selective in buying consumer goods, according to a release issued by the Chinese Agricultural Bank of China.

In the first eight months of 1982, for example, rural supply and marketing cooperatives throughout China sold 51.92 million tons of chemical fertilizer, 13 percent more than in the same 1981 period. Despite the increase, the bank reported, this was still anywhere from 20 to 30 percent short of the actual demand.

Total sales of farm machinery was 3,780 million yuan during the 1982 January-August period, up 6.7 percent. From 1979 to 1981, sales of farm machines dropped. The increase for sales of all means of production was 11.9 percent, the bank said.

Authorities attribute the increase in the sales of the means of agricultural production to the heightened enthusiasm of peasants for work under the job responsibility system which pays them according to output and other economic results of production.

Chinese farm machinery plants -- formerly producing large machines mainly -- have readjusted their production to meet the growing demand for more small machines and implements under the system, which calls for assigning production tasks to households or smaller but more efficient work groups rather than production teams as in the past.

Cement, class and other building materials are in short supply in the rural housing boom, the bank pointed out. New housing totaling 18 million square meters in floor space has been built in rural communes under the Shanghai Muncipality in the past three years. This was three times that built in the city proper, the bank reported. Two hundred thousand peasant families, about one fifth of the total number in Shanghai's rural areas, now live in new homes.

Retail sales of consumer goods handled by rural supply and marketing cooperatives came to 33.370 million yuan in the first eight months of this year, 0.2 percent less than the 1981 corresponding figure.

This was because peasants were now more selective and supply was insufficient for goods they really liked, the bank said.

DEFENSE COMMISSION, NAVY HAIL ROCKET LAUNCHING

OW280033 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1513 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, 25 Oct (XINHUA) -- The National Defense Scientific and Technological Commission and the Navy recently held a meeting to celebrate the successful underwater launching of a carrier rocket from a submarine. The meeting read the message of congratulations from the CPC Central Committee, the State Council and the Military Commission of the CPC Central Committee.

Entrusted by the CPC Central Committee, the State Council and the Military Commission of the CPC Central Committee, Zhang Aiping, deputy secretary general of the Military Commission of the CPC Central Committee, extended greetings and congratulations to all those who took part in the launch test. He said: The successful test shows China's new achievements in the development of carrier rockets. Such achievements are the result of the hard work of science workers, engineers, technicians, workers, cadres and PLA commanders and fighters who took part in the research, production and testing of the carrier rocket.

It is also a result of our adhering to the principle of developing our national defense independently and self-reliantly. We must not be complacent about our success, but must seriously sum up experience, strive to raise our scientific and technological level, do practical work and accelerate the modernization of our national defense, he stressed.

After his speech, Zhang Aiping wrote a poem to express his warm congratulations.

Chen Bin, director of the National Defense Scientific and Technological Commission and Liu Youguang, political commissar of the commission, also spoke at the meeting. They pointed out: The successful launch test shows that we have a good contingent on the national defense research front which can withstand testing. We are sure that they can create a new situation and score fresh successes in future.

Naval Commander Liu Huaqing and Political Commissar Li Yaowen also said: The successful carrier rocket test has greatly enhanced the fighting capability of the navy against future aggressive wars. They also said that the naval units taking part in the test had received very good training. On behalf of the party committee of the navy and various leading organs, they expressed thanks for the concern and support of various departments. At the same time, they also encouraged naval units to guard against complacency and to make further efforts to accelerate naval construction and realize modernization of national defense.

Also speaking at the meeting were responsible comrades of the party, government and military at the launching site, as well as responsible comrades of the Ministry of Aviation Industry, the Ministry of Nuclear Industry, the Ministry of Electronics Industry, the China Corporation of Shipbuilding Industry and the Chinese Academy of Sciences. They warmly congratulated the successful launch test of the carrier rocket. They also extended greetings to all those who took part in the test and called on all PLA units and the people to learn from them, maintain unity and work hard, under the leadership of the CPC Central Committee, to create a new situation in socialist modernization.

COMMUNICATION SATELLITE EXPERIMENTS CONDUCTED

OW280152 Shanghai City Service in Mandarin 2300 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] According to WEN HUI BAO, China conducted its first experiment in using international communication satellites for domestic satellite communication and TV transmission from 5 June to 5 October this year. The experiment was successful and has laid the technical and material foundations for establishing a satellite communication network in the country.

Recently the Ministry of Posts and Telecommunications held a meeting in Shanghai to sum up the work of the experiment. In accordance with the needs of national construction and communications, more ground stations are scheduled to be built in Xinjiang, Nei Monggol, Xizang and other frontier provinces and cities.

BEIJING CONGRESS STANDING COMMITTEE MEETS

HK281006 Beijing City Service in Mandarin 2300 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Summary] On 21 October the Beijing Municipal People's Congress Standing Committee held its 24th meeting to listen to, examine and discuss the report by Vice Chairman Ma Yaoji on conducting the election of the eighth municipal people's congress deputies; the report by (Ding Hong), director of the municipal gardening bureau, on mobilizing the masses to strive to create a new situation in urban greening work; and the report by (Zhu Yuyi), vice chairman of the municipal planned parenthood committee, on the municipal situation in planned parenthood work and future views. After serious discussion, committee members agreed on the above-mentioned reports and put forward many good and constructive views and suggestions.

Committee members held that "over the past few years the capital has achieved relatively great results in urban greening work and has basically achieved a small change in 3 years. However, the urban greening level is still very low and does not suit the status of the capital." They pointed out: "Compared with the publicity given to the traffic and public health laws and regulations, the publicity of the capital greening law and regulation is not carried out thoroughly enough. It is necessary to take measures to strengthen publicity for this. We must help improve urban appearance and public health laws and help policemen sum up experiences in enforcing the laws and the regulations and raise their law enforcement level. In the future we must endeavor to achieve new results in the capital's urban greening work."

Committee members agreed on (Zhu Yuyi's) report and held that "after hard work, this municipality has achieved very great results in planned parenthood work." They also pointed out: "Beijing is the capital of our country. Population is now constantly increasing. Control over the growth of population is very urgent." Many of them emphatically pointed out: "To grasp planned parenthood work well, the key point must be placed in the rural areas. The rate of urban planned births has reached about 99 percent, but the rate of planned births in distant suburban counties is only 76 percent. After the rural areas implemented the production responsibility system, some peasants' desire for having more children has become strong. In addition, as the influence of such old ideas as 'the more children the more blessing' and 'raising sons as an insurance against the insecurity of old age' are relatively deep, it is slightly more difficult to embark on planned parenthood work. In these circumstances, we must work hard to do rural planned parenthood work well. In urban planned parenthood work, we must consolidate the results already achieved. We must not only control the size of the population but also raise the quality of population. Healthy offspring must be produced and they must be brought up well. We must do well in contraceptive work and reduce the number of illegal and secret births and abortions."

Committee members suggested that in the future, we should grasp vigorously and well the publicity of and education in planned parenthood and do this work more meticulously and penetratingly.

Vice Chairman Yang Chunmao presided over yesterday's meeting. Vice Chairmen Fan Jin, (Wu Guang), Hou Jingru, Wen Jiasi, Cai Xu, An Chaojun and Ye Gongshao attended. Vice Mayor Lu Yu and responsible persons of the municipal higher court, the municipal procuratorate and the people's congress standing committees of all districts and counties attended as nonvoting delegates.

SENTENCES ISSUED ON HEBEI ELECTION SABOTAGE

HK300928 Shijiazhuang Hebei Provincial Service in Mandarin 0400 GMT 22 Sep 82

[Text] In Feixian County the incident of sabotaging the election of party congress delegates has been seriously handled. (Lu Guotai, Li Molin, Zhao Xiangsheng, Wang Haibo) and six other people who planned, directed and took an active part in the incident have been punished by the party through administrative discipline.

In January this year, when Feixian County's third party congress was in session, a serious political incident of violating a democratic election took place. After a careful investigation was carried out by the Hebei Provincial CPC Committee and the Handan Prefectural CPC Committee, with the care of the central leading comrades, the provincial CPC committee now declares that the result of the election, which was announced in April, is null and void and that the post of (Chen Yu), former secretary of the county CPC committee, is resumed. A new leading body has also been appointed for the county CPC committee. The investigation reveals that those who planned and directed this incident were people who were seriously affected by factionalism and who were careerists. In order to seize the power of the county CPC committee, they gathered together a number of people who committed mistakes during the "Cultural Revolution," who were criticized or punished for unhealthy practices and who were trying to seek personal gain and who -- through various illegal activities, just as they did in the "Cultural Revolution," such as ganging up to plot conspiracies, putting up big-character posters, distributing leaflets, spreading rumors and slandering people -- drove out of office the responsible comrade of the county CPC committee, who was resolute in carrying out the line of the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th Central Committee.

The Handan Prefectural CPC nad government leading organs recently held a meeting in this county. It announced the following punishments for the four people who planned and directed the incident: (Lu Guotai), county vice magistrate, was expelled from the party and discharged from public employment, but retained on probation. (Li Molin), county vice magistrate, was expelled from the party and dismissed from his administrative post. (Zhao Xiangsheng), deputy secretary of the county CPC committee and county vice magistrate, was placed on 2 years' probation within the party and dismissed from his administrative post. (Wang Haibo), deputy manager of the cotton and gunny cloth company under the county supply and marketing cooperative, was expelled from the party and dismissed from his administrative post.

The meeting also announced the following punishments for six people who took an active part in the incident: (Li Xifeng), director of county purchase office, was expelled from the party and dismissed from public employment, but retained on probation. (Liu Yuyin), secretary of the (Jiudian) Commune CPC Committee, was placed on 1-year probation within the party. (Wang Shuqin), director of the county's power bureau, and (Li Xianghe), director of the county economic committee, were dismissed from all posts inside and outside the party. (Liu Tong), secretary of the (Zhongdanggu) Commune CPC Committee, and (Li Fengbin), secretary of the (Daxilao) Commune CPC Committee, were given serious disciplinary warnings within the party.

Two active participants, (Li Zhengxiang) and (Li Jinzhang), were exempted from punishment for making confessions on their own accord.

More than 1,000 people attended the meeting. Among them were party members and cadres from Feixian County's subordiante organs and various communes and responsible cadres from various counties in Handan Prefecture and Prefectural departments. The responsible cadre of the Handan Prefectural CPC Committee stressed in his speech that it is necessary to take this incident as a negative example and sum up our experiences and lessons so that we can do a good job in the reorganization and building of party organizations at various levels in accordance with the unified arrangements of the CPC Central Committee and under the guidance of the 12th party congress spirit.

HEILONGJIANG CPC COMMITTEE HOLDS PLENUM

SK220356 Harbin Heilongjiang Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Text] The Sixth Plenum of the Fourth Heilongjiang Provincial CPC Committee held a meeting of all committee members this afternoon. Comrade Yang Yichen, first secretary of the provincial CPC committee, presided over the meeting. The meeting unanimously endorsed a resolution on holding the Fifth Heilongjiang Provincial CPC Congress, a resolution on augmenting committee members to the Fourth Provincial CPC Committee and resolutions on strengthening education on communist ideas and scientific and technological work. Comrade Li Lian, second secretary of the provincial CPC committee, explained to the meeting all issues mentioned in the resolution on holding the fifth provincial CPC congress. It was decided at the plenary meeting that the Fifth Heilongjiang Provincial CPC Congress will be held around the second half of 1983. The plenary meeting agreed with the proposal of adding 17 comrades including (Liu Hanqing), (Ma Biao), (Wang Lianzheng), (Liu Muzhi) female, (Liu Jinzhi) female, (Gong Chengshan), (Li Jinzhi) female, (Li Shirong) female, (Gu DianwU), (Fang Yusheng), (Wu Shuyi), (Mu Zianzhang), (Zhao Nianxiao), (Xing Weiru), (Han Mengjiu), (Jiang Yiyuan) and (Qian Yiqiang) to serve as committee members of the fourth provincial CPC committee.

The sixth plenum of the fourth provincial CPC committee called on party organizations at all levels, Communist Party members, CYL members and the broad masses of cadres and the people throughout the province, under the inspiration of the guidelines of the 12th party congress, to deeply study and implement the congress documents, fulfill all fighting tasks set forth at the 12th party congress, seek unity, enhance spirit, work with one heart and one mind, strive to create a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization in our province and greet the convocation of the fifth provincial CPC congress with concrete deeds.

Yang Yichen Report

SK240954 Harbin Heilongjiang Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] The 19-day Sixth Enlarged Plenary Session of the Fourth Heilongjiang Provincial CPC Committee successfully concluded today after satisfactorily fulfilling its scheduled tasks. It was a session of study at which participants concentrated on studying the documents of the 12th CPC congress and also a session of work at which the participants, after studying and mastering the guidelines of the documents, fully discussed ways for our province to open up an overall new situation for socialist modernization and formulated preliminary plans for our province to quadruple its annual industrial and agricultural output value by the end of this century.

During the session the participants were earnest in their study and active in their thinking. They held discussions in line with the reality in ideology and work, thus enhancing their understanding and confidence, broadening their field of vision and learning a great deal. In the first place, they enhanced their understanding of the historic role of the 12th CPC congress. They unanimously held that the 7th CPC Congress had led the revolution to a success and the 12th CPC Congress will surely lead the construction to a success. They enhanced their understanding of the law governing our socialist economic undertakings. The strategic objective, strategic priority and strategic steps and a series of principles and policies set forth at the 12th CPC Congress for quadrupling our country's industrial and agricultural output value by the end of this century are a program for economic construction and for the purpose of changing our economic backwardness and achieving a comparatively good standard. The plan for quadrupling our annual industrial and agricultural output value is different in essence from the two advances that were rashly formulated in 1958 and 1978. It is a plan in full conformity with the conditions of our country. The speed of development, which we achieved previously, is scientific and can be realized.

The participants also enhanced their understanding of the socialist spiritual civilization, focusing on communist ideology. They held it is a profound summing up of the socialist historical experiences and a significant contribution to the Marxist theory on scientific socialism. They enhanced their understanding of successful party building in the new historical period. Party building is still a magic weapon in the period of socialist construction. In particular, the work style of a ruling party determines its prosperity and failures. The important decision on successfully consolidating the party in 3 years is a fundamental measure in conformity with the will of the party and the people and is completely correct. It has enhanced our sense of responsibility for creating a new situation for socialist modernization and enhanced our understanding of the pressing nature of the task.

In discussing the grand goal of the material and spiritual civilizations, the participating comrades deeply felt that they shoulder heavy responsibilities for creating a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization, that they should start from themselves and start immediately to achieve the threefold increase and that they should lay a substantial foundation for later generations to build a powerful, modern socialist state.

During the session Li Lian, second secretary, Li Jianbai, Zhao Dezun and Hou Jie, secretaries of the provincial CPC committee, and (He Shoulun), secretary of the party leading group of the provincial financial and trading office, spoke on quadrupling our province's annual industrial and agriculture output value by the end of this century, achieving a fundamental turn for the better in its financial and economic situation in 5 years, building the socialist spiritual civilization and achieving a fundamental turn for the better in social conduct, particularly public security, in 5 years.

Representatives of the Jiamusi Municipal CPC Committee, (Xinghsizi) brigade of Gannan County and 13 other units also spoke on their experiences.

On the morning of 22 October, Yang Yichen, first secretary of the provincial CPC committee, delivered a summing-up report on behalf of the standing committee of the provincial CPC committee. The report is divided into five parts.

First, it is necessary to regard the task of conscientiously organizing party members, cadres and the masses throughout the province to study the documents of the 12th CPC Congress as a task of first priority and grasp it firmly, unify their ideology in line with the guidelines of the 12th congress, show political unanimity with the CPC Central Committee, give play to the role of the congress documents in mobilziing and organizing the people and make sure that work in all fields of our province successfully progresses along the correct course set by the 12th congress.

The provincial CPC committee decided that 1983 was designated as a year of study for the entire province. This means that we should conduct large-scale study and education on the gudielines of the 12th CPC congress and create a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization. At present, we should concentrate on the study of the congress documents. Later we should systematically study basic theories, general knowledge, history and science and technology. Party members and cadres at and above the section level should attend meetings instead of training courses and attend enlarged meetings of CPC committees at all levels. Rotational training classes for ordinary cadres should be from 20 to 30 days. Party members attending rotational training classes and personnel attending the classes sponsored by enterprises and establishments, schools and neighborhoods which are provided with necessary conditions may be released from their jobs for the training. Classes in rural areas should be opened in slack seasons. The study of the congress documents should be combined with the study of the basic theories, with the summing of experiences and with the efforts in solving current problems in ideology and in practical work.

Comrade Yang Yichen pointed out in the second part: It is necessary to mobilize the masses to discuss and work out plans for economic construction. After more than 30 years of construction, our province has laid a fairly substantial foundation for industry and agriculture and has raised them to a fairly high standard.

In addition, we have abundant resources, which is an exceptional advantage. In our efforts to fulfill the strategic objective set forth at the 12th CPC Congress, we have the responsibility to make more contributions and must do so, while vigorously organizing party members, cadres and the masses to study congress documents. We should encourage them to discuss what we should do when the country is striving for quadrupling the annual industrial and agricultural output value and what we should do when the country is striving to achieve fundamental turns for the better in three fields in 5 years. Through mass discussions, we should further emancipate our minds and implement policies. We should pool the wisdom of the masses to tap potential in all fields and formulate feasible, effective plans. How can we formulate economic construction plans which are encouraging and in conformity with reality?

1. We should have correct guiding ideology. This means that we should persistently seek truth from facts and proceed from reality. We should consider improvement of economic results a prerequisite and coordinate developing speed with economic results. We should foster the idea of self-reliance and arduous struggle and, based on our own efforts, properly handle the relationship between the part and the whole and persistently achieve a comprehensive balance. While formulating plans for economic development, we should formulate plans for social development.

2. We should have a correct road for economic development. Proceeding from reality and implementing the principles and policies set forth by the central authorities, all localities have blazed new roads for the development of agriculture, industry, commerce and science and technology and gained some new experiences since the third plenary session of the CPC Central Committee. We should develop and improve them in our future practice. To achieve a threefold increase in annual agricultural output value, we should rely on the development of science and technology and give full play to their role by establishing scientific-research-production complexes or adopting the measure of doing scientific research and popularizing research results through teaching at the same time.

Comrade Yang Yichen said in the third part: It is necessary to strive to build the socialist spiritual civilization with the communist ideology as its core. At present, we should particularly attend to the following tasks: First of all, we should exert great efforts to successfully conduct an education in communist ideology and combine education on the basic theories -- with Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong Thought as the emphasis -- with regular ideological education. We should continue to broaden and deepen the five stresses and four beauties and make them regular and systematic. We should vigorously develop education. In the meantime, we should strengthen socialist democracy and the legal system and develop the former in the people's political, spiritual, cultural and social lives, so as to give full play to their initiative.

The fourth part of Comrade Yang Yichen's summing-up report stated: It is necessary to conduct overall consolidation and tackle problems in all fields with the consolidation of party organizations as the core. In the first place, we should successfully restructure organizations. We should successfully consolidate party organizations, achieve a fundamental turn for the better in party work style and further attend to the task of tackling problems in all fields. In order to achieve this, we should continue to deal blows at serious economic crimes, conduct in-depth education on combating corrosion, persistently improve public security and achieve a fundamental turn for the better in social conduct.

In the fifth part of the summing-up report, Comrade Yang Yichen emphasized the need to map out overall plans and to conscientiously carry out our current work. He said: The year 1983 is the first year after the 12th CPC Congress. A 1000-li journey is started by taking the first step. To fulfill the lofty strategic objective by the end of this century, we should first successfully do our work for the first 10 years, the first 5 years and, particularly, for next year. We must be earnest and win a victory in the first battle for opening up a new situation in our province.

In the coming winter and spring, we should relay and study the guidelines of the 12th CPC Congress and implement the guidelines of this enlarged plenary session, fulfill the tasks for this year's production and construction and make good preparations for the production and construction of the first quarter of next year. We should examine and conclude the consolidation work at pilot units and prepare for the consolidation at new pilot units next year. We should also examine and sum up this year's work in line with the guidelines of the congress and map out plans for next year's production and construction.

The session called on Communist Party members, CYL members, workers, peasants and intellectuals throughout the province to vigorously respond to the call of the 12th CPC Congress, vigorously create a new situation, give play to their strong points and make more contributions.

Further Details

SK260558 Harbin Heilongjiang Provincial Service in Mandarin 2200 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Text] According to XINHUA, Yang Yichen, first secretary of the Heilongjiang Provincial CPC Committee, said: While mobilizing the masses to discuss and work out plans for economic construction, we must regard the documents and guidelines of the 12th party congress as the criterion and stick to the correct guiding ideology.

At the recent Sixth Enlarged Plenary Session of the Fourth Heilongjiang Provincial CPC Committee, he pointed out: In working out economic construction plans, we must adopt the mass line -- from the masses, to the masses -- concentrate and be persistant. The plans should first be formulated from the lower to the higher organizations and then be summed up and balanced from the higher to the lower organizations. Therefore, while studying the documents of the 12th party congress, various localities should conduct mass discussions on a large scale, pool the wisdom of the masses, tap the potential of various fields and work out feasible plans so as to arouse the socialist enthusiasm of the masses and energetically create a new situation.

Yang Yichen discussed the guiding ideology of formulating the plans in five respects.

1. Persist in seeking truth from facts and proceeding from reality. In helping the masses discuss and work out the plans, various localities should encourage different trades, professions, units and departments to work out specific plans in conformity with their practical situations in line with their own economic basis, managerial conditions and development potential.

2. Unify the rate of economic development on the premise of raising economic results. Low economic results have been a conspicuous problem of economic development in the province for many years. The province's economic results in the spheres of production, construction and circulation fall far short of not only the national level but also previous provincial records. The general requirement in the future is enabling the increase of economic results to go faster than output value, basically ending the losses from enterprise management and partially eliminating the losses from policies.

3. Foster the thinking of self-reliance and fighting arduously and place the focal point on one's own efforts. To quadruple the industrial output value, we should place our hope not only on the state investments and new projects, but also on the existing enterprises and fixed assets. We should support the existing industrial enterprises to tap potential and carry out technical innovations and to increase their production capability through extended reproduction. Of course, some new construction projects should also be developed in light of the condition of natural resources.

4. Properly handle the relations between the part and the whole and develop and overall balance. In the course of formulating the plans, various localities and departments should sum up the historical experiences and lessons, properly handle the relations between the part and the whole and bring their own principles and plans into line with those of the province and the state. It is never permissible for each to go his own way. Without an overall point of view and comprehensive balance, a confused situation will develop and the economic results of the whole society will be even less. In the end, we should have to make a readjustment once again.

5. Map out plans for social development while formulating plans for economic development. Historical experience and lessons have told us that paying attention to economic development alone and neglecting social development will result in a low standard of people's material and cultural livelihood, which will in turn interfere with the development of the economy. Such losses must be made up in the end. The plans for social development mainly are scientific technology, education, income for urban and rural people, employment, residential construction, everyday services, social welfare and environmental protection. Plans should be formulated for all of them. In particular, plans should be worked out for controlling the population growth.

HEILONGJIANG WARNS CADRES BY PUNISHING STAFF

SK250239 Harbin Heilongjiang Provincial Service in Mandarin 2200 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] According to HEILONGJIANG RIBAO, following the report carried in that paper in regard to the violation of (Wang Zhonglin), director of the industrial and commercial administrative office of the Nangang District market in Harbin Municipality, the Harbin Municipal CPC Committee has attached great importance to the case. The principal responsible comrades of the municipal CPC committee have instructed the Nangang District CPC Committee to immediately and strictly deal with the case to warn the broad masses of cadres against following this bad example. In line with the instruction given by the municipal CPC committee, the Nangang District CPC Committee and the district people's government decided to strictly handle the mistake committed by persons, including (Wang Zhonglin), and to conduct education on ideological and work style consolidation among cadres, staff and workers throughout the district by making the case a lesson. They urged departments in various fields, bearing in mind the practical work in their own unit, to earnestly organize cadres and party members to make further efforts to study the 12th CPC Congress documents and guiding principles so as to straighten out party work style, bring about a change of work style among cadres and do a good job in the work of various fields.

At present the Harbin Municipal Industrial and Commercial Administrative Bureau is consolidating the work style among cadres and enforcing work discipline by taking the case as a warning. The bureau is determined to draw a lesson from the case and to formulate measures for improvement. As to the case of (Wang Zhonglin), who violated the laws and beat persons by taking advantage of his position and power, the district CPC committee and people's government are determined to deal strictly with the case to maintain the seriousness of party discipline and state laws.

Meanwhile, HEILONGJIANG RIBAO prints the letter by reader (Qu Feng), who expresses his indignation at (Wang Zhonglin's) violation and urges higher leadership of the department concerned earnestly and strictly to handle the case to reverse the bad influence exerted by the case on the people and to educate the broad masses of cadres by making the case an example. HEILONGJIANG RIBAO also prints a commentator's article entitled "Change a Bad Thing Into Good Thing" that deals with the case.

HU QIAOMU VIEWS HEILONGJIANG PRINT EXHIBITION

SK281004 Harbin Heilongjiang Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 27 Sep 82

[Excerpts] According to our sources, the exhibition on prints concerning the scenery and customs of the great northern wilderness was sponsored in Beijing recently. Having viewed the exhibition, Jiang Feng, chairman of the Chinese Artists Association, said: These prints have new features and express livelihood in the main. He personally selected eight works and suggested they be selected as works to attend the Sino-U.S. joint print exhibition to be held in the United States next year. Hu Qiaomu, member of the CPC Central Committee Political Bureau, viewed the exhibition.

On display were 90 works produced this year by 34 sparetime print artists in the province's reclamation area. At present the exhibition on prints concerning the scenery and customs of the great northern wilderness has been held in Sichuan and will be held in Jiangsu and Tianjin.

JILIN FOUNDS PEOPLE'S POLICE ARMED FORCES

SK091039 Changchun Jilin Provincial Service in Mandarin 2200 GMT 8 Oct 82

[Text] According to JILIN RIBAO, on 1 October Jilin Province formally established the People's Police Armed Forces according to guidelines of instructions issued by the CPC Central Committee. This police armed force also belongs to the state and, like the PLA, is the people's own army. The force is one of the major tools of practicing the people's democratic dictatorship and an important component part of public security departments, and it assumes the glorious task of suppressing sabotage by enemies and serious criminals, maintaining the state sovereign rights and social order and safeguarding the people's life and property.

On 27 September the provincial people's government sponsored an inaugural meeting to establish the column of the People's Police Armed Forces. Yu Ke, secretary of the provincial CPC Committee, attended the meeting and Yang Zhantao, standing committee member of the provincial CPC committee and deputy governor of the province, addressed the meeting.

On behalf of the provincial CPC committee and the provincial government, he urged efforts to do a good job in leading, managing and building all police armed forces affiliated with the provincial column of the People's Police Armed Forces and to make new contributions to achieving a fundamental turn for the better in our province's social order, safeguarding socialist modernization construction and consolidating the people's democratic dictatorship.

Also speaking at the meeting were He Youfa, standing committee member of the provincial CPC committee and commander of the provincial military district, and (Liu Luming), political commissar of the provincial military district. On behalf of the provincial military district, they extended warm congratulations on the founding of the People's Police Armed Forces. Also attending the meeting were representatives from the Public Security Ministry.

[Du Zhenfu), director of the provincial public security department and responsible person of the provincial column of the People's Police Armed Forces, delivered a speech at the meeting on behalf of the provincial column of the People's Police Armed Forces. He expressed the determination not to betray the hopes of the party and the people and to build the province's People's Police Armed Forces into armed forces that are faithful to the party and the people, awed by the enemy, cherished by the people and trusted by the party and the country.

By attaching great importance to the founding of the People's Police Armed Forces, departments, commissions, offices and bureaus concerned under the provincial CPC committee, the provincial people's government and the provincial military district have given helpful support to the police armed force on its inauguration.

JILIN'S QIANG XIAOCHU HEARS VIEWS ON ECONOMY

OW211345 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 0033 GMT 17 Oct 82

[Excerpts] Changchun, 17 Oct (XINHUA) -- In the course of arranging the province's work, the Jilin Provincial CPC Committee has conducted serious study and investigation, modestly solicited suggestions and pooled the masses' wisdom. As a result, its work plan is more practical and easier to implement.

The Jilin Provincial CPC Committee has attached great importance to pooling the masses' experience and wisdom and soliciting their opinions. In order to make policies conform to reality and establish ties between the leaders and the masses, the provincial party committee at the end of 1981 issued a circular comprehensively soliciting suggestions on the 1982 work plan. It called on all municiapl, prefectural and autonomous prefectural party committees, departments concerned and mass organizations to mobilize the masses to make suggestions and offer advice to the provincial party committee in connection with the demands set by the central authorities and the realities of the province.

The poor economic achievements of industrial and communications enterprises in Jilin Province have for many years affected the province's revenues and its economic development. In order to rapidly improve this unfavorable situation, the provincial party committee has repeatedly solicited suggestions from management, economic research and science and technology experts. It has also invited personnel from the Changchun branch of the Chinese Academy of Sciences and its subordinate institutes to report on their services, plans and recommendations concerning local economic construction at a special meeting of its standing committee. In May the provincial scientific and technical association held a meeting of scientific workers to suggest ways and means to enhance Jilin's economic results. The provincial leaders who attended the meeting and listened to the experts' views and suggestions included Qiang Xiaochu, first secretary of the provincial party committee, and Zhao Xiu and Yu Lin, secretaries of the provincial party committee.

Since the beginning of this year, standing committee members of the provincial party committee, vice governors and other high-ranking leaders have visited grassroots units to conduct serious study and investigation there, hear more views from various sectors and make the work of the province proceed from reality. Qiang Xiaochu visited some counties and communes in Jilin, Yanbian, Siping and Baicheng Prefectures, concentrating on investigating the rural situation there. Wherever he went, he visited grassroots units to find out about their conditions and problems. He also called on commune members' families. Provincial party Secretary and Governor Zhang Gensheng and Vice Governor Dong Xin visited Liaoyuan Municipality several times and conducted a thorough investigation of enterprises selected to undertake enterprise consolidation on an experimental basis.

Developing the economy is one of the important tasks fo the provincial party committee. In agriculture the provincial party committee has called for promoting grain production and diversified undertakings at the same time. In industry, it has called for doing a good job in consolidating enterprises and enhancing economic results. At present, fairly good results have been achieved in both the agricultural and industrial sectors.

The year 1982 has been a year of grave natural disasters, but diversified undertakings have been increasing in both mountain and plans regions. Commune- and brigade-run enterprises have been developed. In the first 8 months of this year, their total output value increased 28.8 percent and their profits rose 75 percent compared with the same period of 1981. Jilin's industrial achievements have been remarkable with industrial development accelerated and industrial economic results enhanced by a fairly big margin. In the first 7 months of this year, total industrial output value rose 7.4 percent, the profits earned by enterprises listed in the state budget increased 14.3 percent and losses suffered by enterprises operating at a loss dropped by 18.1 percent compared with the first 7 months of 1981. Of the 242 enterprises listed in the state budget and selected as the first group of enterprises to undertake consolidation, total industrial output value and net profits in the first half of this year were up 11.5 percent and 9.7 percent respectively compared with last year's corresponding period.

QIANG XIAOCHU AT CONGRESS GUIDELINE STUDY FORUM

SK230405 Changchun Jilin Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Excerpts] According to our sources, to advance the profound study of the 12th CPC Congress documents, leading comrades of the Jilin Provincial CPC Committee, including Qiang Xiaochu, Wang Daren and Yu Lin, sponsored a forum on 21 October with the participation of responsible personnel from the Jilin University CPC Committee, the Yushu County CPC Committee, the workshop party branch under the motor vehicle plant, the leading party members' group of the provincial second light industrial bureau and the leading party members' group of the provincial public security department. At the forum, these leading comrades listened to the participants present the experience they gained in organizing party members and the masses to study the 12th CPC Congress documents and put forward concrete demands on how to advance the profound study of the 12th CPC Congress documents.

At the forum (Hu Shaopu), secretary of the Jilin University CPC Committee, reported that under the inspiration of the 12th CPC Congress, professors, students, staff and workers in the university are determined to strengthen communist education by means of studying the 12th CPC Congress documents, to improve teaching and scientific research standards and to strive to create a new situation in school construction.

After hearing the reports given by participants, Comrade Qiang Xiaochu put forward concrete demands on how to advance the profound study of the 12th CPC Congress documents, saying that the study of the 12th CPC Congress documents is a most extensive study campaign, having profound and remarkable results in our province. At present, our province has whipped up an upsurge for the study of the 12th CPC Congress documents. Generally speaking, the study situation is fine and the campaign's development is also sound. However, the campaign has not been evenly developed in areas across the province. As of now, the campaign raises a new challenge for us, which is that the study campaign for the days to come should be carried out more effectively and penetratingly and that the campaign should be carried out in a down-to-earth, step-by-step manner. This impels the party committees at all levels to enhance their leadership over the campaign in a down-to-earth manner and to conduct more dissemination work and guidance aimed at specific issues. In carrying out the study campaign, it is necessary to integrate the campaign with the study of Marxist and Leninist works as well as history to promote better understanding of the documents. All in all, we are striving to study the 12th CPC Congress documents to reach the goal of raising the level of our understanding, consciousness and confidence and to take their guidelines as an impetus to advance our work in all fields.

LI DESHENG TAKES PART IN SHENYANG TREE PLANTING

SK240242 Shenyang Liaoning Provincial Service in Mandarin 2200 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] According to our sources, on 23 October over 2,400 commanders and fighters from the organs of the logistics department, subordinate units, hospitals and depots under the shenyang PLA units participated in autumn tree-planting activities at (Fengshan) scenic area in Shenyang Municipality. Leading comrades of the Shenyang PLA units, including Li Desheng, Liao Hansheng, Jiang Yunghui, Li Huamin, Xie Zhenhua, Yuan Jun, (Zhang Jiecheng) and Liu Zhenhua, were full of zest to work together with cadres and fighters.

This spring leading organs and subordinate units under the Shenyang PLA units planted over 300,000 trees and 1,000 mu of trees at (Huishan) mountainous area. To upgrade the survival rate, units have twice come to the area to water young trees and to weed and bank soil for them. On 20-23 October over 5,000 commanders and fighters from the air force units under the Shenyang PLA units, the units under the Liaoning Provincial Military District and from the logistics department of the armoured force unit under the Shenyang PLA units also engaged in work for young forest management and protection and in leveling land and digging holes to prepare well for tree-planting operations next spring.

LIAONING'S GUO FENG RETURNS FROM DPRK VISIT

SK270350 Shenyang Liaoning Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 26 Oct 82

[Text] After satisfactorily winding up its visit to the DPRK North Pyongan Province, the Liaoning Provincial CPC Committee delegation returned to Shenyang on the afternoon of 26 October. The delegation was headed by Guo Feng, member of the Central Advisory Commission and first secretary of the Liaoning Provincial CPC Committee, with Zhang Tiejun, standing committee member of the provincial CPC committee, as its deputy head.

During its visit to the North Pyongan Province, the delegation visited some plants, villages and schools in Sinuiju, (Feicheng) and (Xiangshanzhen) and toured some scenic spots. The delegation also visited Pyongyang City at the invitation of the DPRK KWP Central Committee. The delegation was received and feted by Kim Hwan, secretary of the KWP Central Committee.

REPORTS ON SUN REMARKS IN LEGISLATIVE YUAN

No 'Taiwan Issue'

OW260620 Taipei CHUNG YANG JIH PAO in Chinese 16 Oct 82 p 1

[Excerpt] CHUNG YANG JIH PAO report: Premier Sun Yun-hsuan solemnly said at the Legislative Yuan yesterday: The relationship between Taiwan and the Republic of China is one of inseparability. At present, there is only a "China issue" and there is no "Taiwan issue." To advocate the "defense of Taiwan" without calling for "reunification of China" cannot solve our present problem. It will cause serious consequences and bring "calamity to Taiwan" rather than "save Taiwan."

Premier Sun said this in answer to a query from Legislative Yuan member Hsu Jung-shu.

Premier Sun said: Our constitution stipulates that the territory of the Republic of China, according to its existing national boundaries, includes mainland China and the base for national rejuvenation -- Taiwan, the Penghus, Chinmen [Quemoy] and Matsu. The people of the Republic of China include our compatriots on the Chinese mainland, our compatriots in the Taiwan region and the more than 25 million overseas Chinese. The Republic of China recovered Taiwan after it sacrificed innumerable lives in bloody battles during the war of resistance against Japan. Taiwan and the Republic of China have a relationship of inseparability in all respects.

He said: Only after we completely settle the China issue and reunify China under the banner of democracy and freedom of the three principles of the people can we firmly guarantee Taiwan's future of freedom and happiness. This is a historical and cultural fact as well as an international political reality which cannot be changed or negated by a minority of persons.

He emphasized: In this situation, we must be united and work together with one heart. Only in this way can we have a bright future and enable all our compatriots on this base for national rejuvenation to have security and happiness. We should completely wipe out all splittist thinking and the Taiwan independence mentality.

On Reunification, Security

OW270327 Taipei CNA in English 0246 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Taipei, Oct. 27 (CNA) -- Premier Sun Yun-hsuan Tuesday spurned the idea of merely talking about "safeguarding Taiwan" outside of the context of "reunifying China," saying that this will only help create chances for the enemy to sow discord and internal division in this country.

Replying to questions raised by legislators at a meeting of the Legislative Yuan, the premier stressed ensuring peace and security of the 18 million people on the bastion of Taiwan, Penghu, Chinmen and Matsu should not be separated from the larger problem involving the whole of China.

"This is an international political reality. The prerequisite for the 18 million people on Taiwan to continuously enjoy political freedom and economic prosperity will be hinged on whether the whole of China can be unified under the banner of the three principles of the people," he said.

In the past 30 years, the government has spared no efforts to ensure that the peace and security of this bastion receive top priority and the promotion of economic prosperity and the improvement of social welfare are treated as major programs, the premier added.

Taiwanese Support Welcomed

OW270312 Taipei International Service in English 0100 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Excerpt] Premier Sun Yun-hsuan said Tuesday at the Legislative Yuan that all natives of Taiwan who support the policies of the Republic of China will be welcomed by the government to work for national reconstruction of the Republic of China within or without the nation. In answer to questions by Legislator (Chang Jung-hsien), the premier said: It is known that the World Taiwan Amity Association has been under the control of so-called Taiwan independence movement elements, but it doesn't mean that every member of the association is a Taiwan independence element.

OVERSEAS CHINESE ASSOCIATIONS ISSUE RESOLUTION

OW250533 Taipei CNA in English 0302 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Text] Taipei, Oct. 25 (CNA) -- The Federation of Overseas Chinese Associations [FOCA] at its seventh board of directors meeting Sunday adopted a series of resolutions to speed up the movement of the reunification of China under the three principles of the people. Highlights of these resolutions adopted at the closing session of the three-day meeting:

-- Strengthen the people-to-people diplomacy through the overseas Chinese communities in an effort to foil the united front warfare launched by the Peiping regime.

-- Improve the operation of the Federation of Overseas Chinese Associations abroad, enabling it to cope with the changing situation in line with the government policy.

-- Request the government to ease the entry for overseas Chinese trapped in Indochina and give them assistance.

-- Set up regional overseas Chinese organizations under the sponsorship of the FOCA in a step to strengthen overseas activities.

-- Urge FOCA's Hong Kong unit to cope with the local needs, keep close contacts with the regional overseas Chinese bodies, and exchange opinions with them on how to promote the reunification of China under three principles of the people.

-- Organize anti-communist people working in civil bodies, newspapers and schools in overseas Chinese communities to fight against the united front warfare of the Peiping regime.

-- Launch a world-wide compaign via overseas Chinese in advising communist diplomats, students, specialists and scholars to urge their cadres back behind the bamboo curtain to abandon communism and support the reunification of China under the three principles of the people at an early date.

The FOCA board of directors ended their three-day meeting Sunday with I Hai-tien presiding over the closing ceremony.

On behalf of President Chiang Ching-kuo, Mo Sung-nien, chairman of the Overseas Chinese Affairs Commission, extended best wishes and sincere regards to all overseas Chinese around the world during the closing ceremony.

SUN ATTENDS OVERSEAS CHINESE DAY FUNCTION

OW221141 Taipei CNA in English 0930 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Taipei, Oct. 22 (CNA) -- A cocktail party was held Thursday at the Armed Forces Officers Club to celebrate the 30th Overseas Chinese Day and the 30th founding anniversary of the Federation of Overseas Chinese Associations (FOCA).

Premier Sun Yung-hsuan, and Tsiang Yen-si, secretary general of the Central Committee of the Kuomintang, attended the party and spoke to the gathering.

Tsiang first called on all overseas Chinese to join together closely with a view toward crushing Communist China's united front plot.

Apart from political and military work, he stressed that Chinese traditional culture will chiefly bear the burden of the nation's cause of mainland recovery.

In addition, Tsiang highly praised the work done by the FOCA over past years, saying it firmly supported the anti-communist mission of the nationals abroad and served as a bridge between overseas Chinese and the motherland.

Facing a turbulent world situation, he finally reminded the associations to continue in their task and be ready to respond to the nation's appeal for help at any time.

ROK CRITICIZED FOR HANDLING OF DEFECTOR

OW280523 Taipei International Service in English 0100 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] The MIN CHU EVENING NEWS quotes scholars in the Republic of China as taking exception to the South Korean Government for delaying the departure of Chinese Communist defector Maj Wu Jung-ken from Seoul to the ROC.

Now that 11 days have elapsed since the Chinese Communist pilot flew a MIG-19 jet fighter to an airport in Seoul, many scholars in Taiwan have criticized the delay as an indication as, quote, a lack of mutual understanding between the two nations.

Critics have pointed out that the South Koreans have suffered no less at the hands of the communists than the ROC. And it is this common alliance of anticommunism that creates a bond between the Seoul and Taipei governments.

The Chinese-language daily reports the scholars as finding it inconceivable that the so-called international practices and legal procedures should require so much time to enable Major Wu to come to Taiwan. The paper quotes Cheng Chih University Professor (Ching Chih-chen) as saying that the Korean Government has displayed a degree of indecisiveness in the management of this matter.

Even if the Korean Government wanted to return the MIG-19 jet fighter to the Chinese Communists, said Professor (Ching), they have no reason not to comply with Major Wu's request to be sent to the ROC. He stressed that in terms of military worth the MIG-19 is definitely not a wonder-plane and does not warrant such lengthy deliberation over its disposal.

Another solution, proposed the professor, is to send freedom fighter Wu to the ROC and leave the plane in the ROK. However, he questioned whether the Korean Government's delay in sending the plane to Communist China was prompted by the ROC's stance, which is firmly against such a move.

Meanwhile, Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Legislative Yuan (Wang De-chen) also accused the Korean Government of managing this incident inappropriately. He said that even though the ROK may consider otherwise, it is important to keep in mind that both the Republics of China and Korea are nations in the democratic camp. He urged the authorities in Seoul to send Major Wu to Taiwan as soon as possible.

Taipei City Assemblywoman (Wu Bi-chu) has said that the Korean Government should send the 25-year-old Chinese Communist defector to the ROC as soon as possible. But the disposal of the plane can be postponed to maintain the solidarity of the two resolutely anticommunist Asian nations. Numerous other assemblymen interviewed by the evening paper have voiced their views along the same lines.

CHENG CHIH CHIA REACTS TO PRC MISSILE TEST

OW270631 Taipei CHENG CHIH CHIA in Chinese 16 Oct 82 p 2

[Editorial: "The Chinese Communists Should Not Test-Fire a Missile Into Waters Off Taiwan"]

[Text] Early this month, the Chinese Communists announced that they would fire a missile into waters 100 kilometers east of Chekiang and 300 kilometers north of Taiwan between 7 and 26 October. This announcement shocked the world but in Taiwan only Taiwan television broadcast the news and only LIEN HO PAO carried it. All the other television stations and newspapers did not treat this announcement as news. The authorities seemed to overlook the importance of this announcement purposely and did not react to it. Keeping to the stand of the 18 million people in Taiwan, we really should not remain silent on this. This is because this act of the Chinese Communists will damage the international image of the Chinese people and threaten the security of the Taiwan compatriots.

It is very easy to understand the motive behind the Chinese Communists' choice of waters 100 kilomaters east of Chekiang as the target area, where ships from Japan and Korea sailing to Southeast Asia, and vice versa, must pass through. The Chinese Communists unilaterally announced that the target area would be closed to all foreign aircraft, merchant ships and warships. Moreover, the testing period would last as long as 20 days -- from 7 to 26 October -- and during this period all ships and aircraft scheduled to go through that area will have to change course. This greatly infringes on the rights and interests of the ships and aircraft that sail through or fly over that area at regular or irregular intervals. In addition, this will also affect international impressions of the Chinese Communists.

What will be the effect of the Chinese Communists' forthcoming missile test near Taiwan?

The Chinese Communists' decision to test-fire a missile between 7 and 26 October is aimed at the National Day and Retrocession Day celebrations to be held in Taiwan. An unspecified date for the missile launching test within 20 days would overshadow these two important festivals in Taiwan.

The forthcoming show of force by the Chinese Communists is designed simply to indicate that they will reunify the country by force. Such a threat will certainly influence the 18 million people in Taiwan to a certain degree. For the Kuomintang, the party in power, this will also constitute heavy pressure.

Keeping to the stand of the Chinese people and considering the prospects for them in the world, the Chinese Communists actually should not resort to such tactics as a show of their missile force, because the settlement of issues by force would not be accepted by the future civilized world. The future China will do everything possible to take care of its people and improve their living standards and quality of life so that they will be respected intellectually, culturally and qualitatively by the people of other countries.

We are against settling the issue by force of confrontation between the two sides of the Taiwan Strait But at the same time we cannot be intimidated by force. We realize that the Chinese Communists have missiles, but we firmly hold that the issue of confrontation between the two sides of the Taiwan Strait can only be settled by peaceful and democratic means. The 18 million people in Taiwan will continue to experiment in democracy and work hard to build a democratic culture. We have the confidence to build a democratic civilization -- which is wanting in Chinese culture -- and we will contribute our achievements in this regard to the mainland, the motherland. While striving to achieve this purpose, we do not want to be interfered with by armed force.

Meanwhile, we hold that the authorities would allow the forthcoming Chinese Communists missile test to be reported in detail. They should face reality and do some thorough studies in order to understand the possible chain reaction of the forthcoming Chinese Communist missile test-fire, including international reaction to it and its possible effects on the Taiwan people, and take countermeasures.

PA SHIH NIEN TAI: AUTHORITIES SEIZE PO KUAN

OW241730 Taipei PA SHIH NIEN TAI in Chinese 15 Oct 82 p 10

[Text] The second issue of PO KUAN, a magazine run by Yu Ching, was seized by the Taiwan Garrison General Headquarters while it was still in the binding process. The seizure came because its contents -- which included an editorial entitled: "On What Is the Ban on New Parties Based?" and articles such as "A New Party Organizational Program and Action Plan," "We Must Keep on Fighting" (a letter to Mr Lei Chen), "The War on the Ban on New Parties" and others -- were all about the formation of a new party, thus violating the authorities' taboo.

Upon learning of the incident, Legislator Hsu Jung-shu, Taipei City Councilman Hsieh Changting and Attorney Chiang Peng immediately arrived at the scene to reason and argue with the garrison authorities. Also on the scene to express their concern were many people who sympathized with the cause of nonparty personages and reporters.

The PO KUAN incident was of considerable significance due to the fact that recently nonparty political magazines and views have been flourishing like flowers in springtime and voices opposing the ban on new parties have risen one after another. This has aroused grave concern among the authorities. Particularly when the fourth get-together of the nation's nonparty personages was held at the hall of Dr Sun Yat-sen in Taipei City on 28 September, security and intelligence units took emergency measures because they mistakingly thought that nonparty personages were about to announce the formation of a new party at the meeting. Interior Minister Lin Yang-kang also issued a warning at the Legislative Yuan that the formation of a new party would violate the law. Suddenly, the entire political climate was charged with unwarranted tension.

The fact is that the formation of a new party has nothing to do with whether or not it is legal but rather a question of strength and right timing. The ruling party's long practice of using martial law as an amulet against the formation of new parties has long been an international laughing stock. The second issue of the PO KUAN magazine, besides reviewing the "war on the ban on new parties" between the ruling party and nonparty personnel over the past 30 years or so, merely discussed the program of political parties -- which are common knowledge in democratic countries -- and yet the Kuomintang became angered and intolerant. This mentality of the Kuomintang that "it is more urgent to guard against public clamor than against a flood" makes their slogan "hold fast to the democratic positions" mere empty words.

CHENG CHIH CHIA COMMENTS ON HONG KONG'S FUTURE

OW260636 Taipei CHENG CHIH CHIA in Chinese 16 Oct 82 p 25

[Article by Qiu Shixian [6726 1102 6513]: "The Hong Kong Question -- Regional Self-Determination?"]

[Text] To all believers in great Han nationalism, Hong Kong's predicament should give them a very good opportunity to reexamine their own theories. Hong Kong's stock market has continued its sharp dives in recent days as a result of the Chinese Communist regime's tough attitude toward Hong Kong and Mrs Thatcher's trip to Beijing that brought no solution to the question of Hong Kong's future.

In spite of the fact that the Chinese Communist regime included Hong Kong as a special administrative region in its new constitution and made it clear that Hong Kong would continue to maintain its present economic system after the future takeover, Hong Kong's residents have become alarmed and are planning to move to somewhere else.

As far as the Chinese Communist regime and Britain go, Hong Kong is an extraordinary big money tree. Through Hong Kong, the Chinese Communist regime has been earning U.S. $4 billion annually in foreign exchange. And, besides, Hong Kong is the only money-earning child in the declining British empire. The Chinese Communist regime looks upon Hong Kong as a touchstone to determine whether or not it can take control of Taiwan. Britain, on the other hand, counting on the fact that the Chinese Communist regime needs Hong Kong to earn foreign exchange, probably hopes the Chinese Communist regime understands that a takeover of Hong Kong would bring about a disastrous economic and social collapse.

According to the nationalist explanation of human nature, the residents of Hong Kong, being the descendants of the Yellow Emperor, would definitely not renounce their own nation but would choose Chinese Communist rule. However, as it turned out, the residents of Hong Kong went against nationalist expectations. Both before or after Mrs Thatcher's trip to Beijing, they expressed their unwillingness to accept a Chinese Communist takeover in Hong Kong and said they would rather choose imperialist Britain, which has humiliated them for nearly 100 years. Instead of lining up and cheering their return to the embrace of the motherland, they are getting things ready to seek refuge with another imperialist.

The Kuomintang understands that as far as launching a counterattack on the mainland goes, it must "wait." But it has managed to maintain its rule for three decades by dint of waving the banner of democracy. But there is a difference of attitude between the Kuomintang and the nationalists because -- as can be seen from this point -- they learned things from different teachers. The definition of nationalism given by the Kuomintaing is evidently very different from the one accepted by the Taiwan nationalists and is very close in meaning to that of the Western nationalists.

On the question of Hong Kong, the Kuomintang originally claimed KMT sovereignty over Hong Kong in a tone that seemed to indicate it had no other choice. But it later turned around to advocate "regional self-determination." The KMT official organ and two other major newspapers of the Standing Committee of the KMT Central Committee repeatedly carried articles denouncing the Chinese Communist regime and Britain for "making illicit deals" in total disregard of the wishes of the local residents. The KMT official organ also said: "The future of Hong Kong should be decided by the Hong Kong people themselves."

It is clear here that the Kuomintang also accepts the doctrine of "regional self-determination," a point consistently despised by the Taiwan nationalists.

PAI HSING ON HONG KONG'S FUTURE OF 'SELF-RULE'

HK230239 Hong Kong PAI HSING in Chinese No 34, 16 Oct 82 pp 12-15

[Article by Lu Keng [7120 6972]: "Hong Kong Self-Rule by the Hong Kong People" -- capitalized passages published in boldface]

[Excerpts] Editorial note: This article was written by Mr Lu Keng, who, after meeting people from various circles in his capacity as a veteran writer, learned about Beijing's concept of the future of Hong Kong. It is reported that in addition to the Hong Kong and Macao Office under the State Council, the CPC Central Committee has set up a special group to study the Hong Kong and Macao issue and to consider various possible plans. Among them is the concept of "Hong Kong self-rule by the Hong Kong people." [end editorial note]

On the afternoon of 30 September, the writer attended by invitation the National Day reception held by the Hong Kong office of the XINHUA NEWS AGENCY. A large number of ladies and gentlemen gathered at the reception, laughing and talking. It was said that a greater number of guests attended the reception than on the previous occasions. Some people jokingly said that it was very lively because China was to regain its sovereignty over Hong Kong.

At the reception the writer had the following conversation with a responsible member of the XINHUA NEWS AGENCY:

"Will China regain its sovereignty over Hong Kong before 1997?"

"No."

"Why?"

"There is no need to be impatient. We shall wait until the time is ripe."

"Will China regain its sovereignty over Hong Kong after 1997?"

"More likely."

"Why?"

"Because it concerns the noble national cause and the national mentality. We should hold ourselves responsible to history."

"Do you mean that China's sovereignty over Hong Kong will be regained in 1997?"

"This is my personal view."

Everybody knows, however, that a CPC member is not allowed to have his or her "personal view" on major political issues. They should make known their position according to the policy decisions of the CPC Central Committee. Therefore, according to the plan of the CPC, the 1997 issue will be solved in 1997.

How will the issue be solved? Peaceful transition in 15 years, which is an issue, is also an issue that both China and Britain are now discussing. What is more important is how to maintain Hong Kong's prosperity and stability before and after 1997.

So far, people are seriously considering only two possibilities. One is to maintain the status quo and continue British rule. Even if China regains its sovereignty over Hong Kong, this will only be symbolic and the right to administer will still belong to Britain. Another is to change the status quo, that is, China will regain its sovereignty over Hong Kong and Hong Kong will come under communist rule.

THE FUTURE PATTERN IS HONG KONG SELF-RULE BY THE PEOPLE OF HONG KONG

The plan for self-rule by the people of Hong Kong has taken shape in the following manner:

China has made a detailed study of history since the Opium War in 1840 and the entire process of how Hong Kong has developed from a small fishing village to the third largest financial center in the world today and attained the good reputation of being the "Pearl of the East."

China has its own view on the current prosperity and stability of Hong Kong. First of all, it attributes the credit to the hard work and wisdom of the Hong Kong people and then to the mainland's support for Hong Kong. This support is both material and spiritual. For example, Hong Kong has always maintained a stable political situation over the past three decades and more. This situation is closely tied to stability on the mainland. There was some turmoil for a time in 1967 in Hong Kong but this was caused by the "Cultural Revolution." Even during such circumstances, Hong Kong was still safe and sound. Quite a few people have overlooked this point.

Moreover, the people of Hong Kong frequently say that Hong Kong has provided the mainland with foreign exchange and even Mrs Thatcher has expressed such a view. It is a pity that people forget the fact that this foreign exchange has not been obtained free but with goods and materials, most of which are sold at very cheap prices. Even when the Chinese mainland was hit by 3 years of natural disasters and there was a widespread shortage of goods and materials, China still made every effort to maintain its supplies to Hong Kong. At that time, the CPC Central Committee made a decision that, due to meat and food shortages, meat and meat products should only be sold in the domestic markets and should not be sold abroad. Consequently, Hong Kong was still listed as a domestic market. Thus under certain circumstances, the common folks on the mainland have supplied Hong Kong with goods and materials by tightening their own belts.

DO NOT BLAME THE PEOPLE OF HONG KONG, BLAME OURSELVES

Naturally, Chinese pragmatists, in the spirit of seeking truth from facts, have also noticed the prosperity which the free economic system has brought to Hong Kong. This is indispensable to an international free port. What is more important is that they have admitted the emergence of a "credibility crisis" on a national scale. Even China faces a "credibility crisis," to say nothing of Hong Kong. When on 15 June 1982 Deng Xiaoping met with the 12 representatives of the left in Hong Kong and Macao, one of them vehemently said:

"The most important problem relating to the recovery of China's sovereignty over Hong Kong is currently that of confidence. If China had raised the issue of regaining its sovereignty over Hong Kong in 1957, it is believed that most of the people of Hong Kong would have agreed to it. However, the situation is different today. Over the 25 years since 1957, we have taken many roundabout courses in our work and have made many mistakes, with the result that our country has suffered a great deal. Therefore, the people have lost confidence. We should not blame the people of Hong Kong for this but should blame ourselves. The most important thing for us to do now is set people's minds at rest and all other things are of less importance."

It is said that, after hearing this remark Deng Xiaoping did not bear him any ill will but instead praised him. The concept of self-rule by the people of Hong Kong came into being on this common view. That is to say, in view of the fact that the people of Hong Kong have lost confidence in socialism, they will be allowed to live under the capitalist system for a certain period. Furthermore, in order to solve the Taiwan issue, there is already a tentative idea of "one state, two systems."

THE FIVE-STAR RED FLAG WILL BE HOISTED IN HONG KONG

According to this tentative idea, after China regains its sovereignty over Hong Kong in 1997, the five-star red flag will be hoisted over the sky of Hong Kong in order to show that sovereignty has been returned to China. But China does not plan to send people here to take control. The people of Hong Kong will practice self-rule.

By that time, like the NPC, which is China's supreme organ of power, Hong Kong will also have an organization similar to the people's congress as Hong Kong's supreme organ of power. Delegates to the people's congress come from direct election and people will be allowed to engage in the election campaigns which have been practiced for a long time in capitalist society. By that time, an ordinary taxi driver will be able to discuss matters in the small hall with Li Ka-sing, Gordon Wu and others.

The local government of Hong Kong will be formed under the supreme organ of power. The British-appointed Hong Kong governor will have gone home when the Union Jack is lowered and the five-star red flag is hoisted. The new Hong Kong mayor or chairman of the local government will be elected by the Hong Kong people's congress and, at the same time, confirmed by the central government in Beijing.

The local government of Hong Kong will still continue to practice the British system of civilian officials. Efforts will be made to employ as many Hong Kong people as possible. Former government officials of the British or other nationalities will continue to hold office if they are willing to do so. They will have authority commensurate with their posts and will also enjoy a welfare and retirement system.

With respect to Hong Kong law, a set of laws which is approved by the great majority of the people of Hong Kong will be enacted in light of local conditions. At the same time, Hong Kong will set up courts of at least two levels.

Public order in Hong Kong will be maintained by the police appointed by the local government. At the same time, Hong Kong will maintain its former "national army," that is, the Hong Kong Regiment. There is some misunderstanding in Hong Kong, to the effect that the "national army" is dispatched by Britain. In fact it is not. For many years Hong Kong has had its own armed forces. Will the PLA come? No.

Hong Kong will maintain its free economic system. Bank notes will still be issued by the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation but they will not be linked to renminbi. On the contrary, they will keep their links with the international currency and will be converted freely. Furthermore, there will be no foreign exchange control and capital will be free to flow in and out.

BOTH SOCIETY AND ECONOMY WILL MAINTAIN A FREE SYSTEM

Hong Kong's education will be reformed on a voluntary basis and no efforts will be made to put politics in command. The Chinese language movement will be left to develop spontaneously. No efforts will be made to replace the Guangdong dialect with Mandarin and things will be allowed to take their own course. If the common folks speak Mandarin of their own accord, that constitutes another matter.

Hong Kong mass media will still pursue a policy of free press. However, people who are familiar with the current Hong Kong situation know that news publications are not really so free. There is a question people are concerned about: Will the anticommunist mass media be allowed to exist? There seems to be very little probability. Today, when there is still 14 years until 1997, to say nothing of 15 years later, quite a few rightist figures in media circles have started looking for a way out in the United States and Canada.

It seems that pornography, gambling and drug taking will not exist in Hong Kong after 1997. The news that China will not allow horseracing has long since been spread. Some people may be skeptical about the possibility of attaining prosperity with a Puritan life. But the healthy development of Singapore has provided a convincing answer. There drugs are regarded as a great scourge. With the exception of horse-racing, gambling is prohibited and pornographic establishments have also disappeared.

The freedom of speech, assembly and association enjoyed by the people of Hong Kong will be guaranteed and freedom of migration and travel will not be restricted. Travel documents will be replaced with PRC passports. However, a seal of the local Hong Kong Government will be added to the passport to differentiate between the people of Hong Kong and the people in the hinterland. Those holding British passports or passports of other countries will probably have some convenience in entering or leaving Hong Kong on account of their historical origins. As for the people in the hinterland, they will have to show their travel permits as they do now. Customs in Shenzhen and other entrances to the hinterland will exist as usual.

What will the relationship between Taiwan and Hong Kong be at that time? According to the thinking of the Chinese leaders, if the Taiwan issue is still unresolved it will be necessary to adopt extraordinary means to accomplish the great cause of unifying the motherland.

THE NEW RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN THE NEW HONG KONG AND CHINA

The last and the most important point: What will be the relationship between the local self-rule government of Hong Kong and the Hong Kong CPC Committee? By the way, the writer would like to make a clarification for the readers. There are various versions in the Hong Kong mass media on the CPC's organization in Hong Kong. There is only one correct term, that is, the Hong Kong and Macao CPC Working Committee, or the "Hong Kong and Macao Working Committee" for short. Over the past three decades, the secretary of the Working Committee has always been assumed by the person holding primary responsibility in the Hong Kong office of the XINHUA NEWS AGENCY. According to a leftist figure, the relationship between the local government of Hong Kong and the CPC committee after self-rule by the Hong Kong people has been effected will be one between friends and not one between the led and the leader. It will be most desirable if the CPC committee plays an advisory role.

In the physical world, ideals are often divorced from reality. Moreover, it is very difficult to say what the world and China will be like 15 years hence. However, there is one point that can be affirmed. Viewed from either the trends of the times or the pursuit of mankind, the concept of self-rule by the people of Hong Kong is quite reasonable. If we link Deng Xiaoping's remarks on "a high degree of democracy and a high degree of civilization" with the prospects for Hong Kong and take them into account, we shall see that since Hong Kong can perform economic miracles, why should it be impossible for Hong Kong to perform a political miracle? At a time when the capitalist system is going from bad to worse and the prospects for socialism are bleak, who knows if the people of Hong Kong, descendants of the Chinese nation, who have the excellent traditions of the Chinese culture and have fully absorbed Western culture, will be able to create another political "Pearl of the East" in the social structure of Asia!

FBIS DAILY REPORT CONTENTS

China

Vol I No 210 29 October 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

PRC Representative Speaks at UN ECDC Session A 1

UNITED STATES

Weinberger Attacks Brezhnev's Moscow Speech B 1
Reagan Suspends Favored Treatment of Poland B 1
Foreign Institute Official Meets U.S. Group B 2
Briefs: Heilongjiang-Wisconsin Ties B 2

SOVIET UNION

TASS: USSR Officials Receive Message From PRC C 1
AFP: Ilichev Leaves Beijing for Moscow 29 Oct C 1
Friendship Groups Greet Soviet Counterparts C 1
USSR Said To Be Using SRV Bay as Permanent Base C 2

NORTHEAST ASIA

Deng, Hu Visit to DPRK in April Reported D 1
Chen Muhua Signs Trade Agreement With DPRK D 3
Scientific Cooperation Pact Signed With DPRK D 3
DPRK Presents Gifts for Chinese Martyrs D 3

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

UNGA Calls for SRV Withdrawal From Kampuchea E 1
UN Envoy Exposes SRV 'Trick' on Kampuchea E 1

WESTERN EUROPE

Thatcher View of Hong Kong Treaties Rapped G 1
Kang Shien Holds Talks With British Visitor G 1
Science Delegation Leaves Beijing for UK, FRG G 1
Fang Yi Meets French Science Delegation G 2
Shanghai's Wang Daohan Fetes FRG Engineers G 2
Zhu Xuefan Fetes West German Delegation G 2
PLA Air Force Commander Returns From Belgium G 2
Deng Liqun Meets Belgian Education Group G 2
Military Delegation Pays Visit to Turkey G 3
Meets President Evren G 3
Concludes Visit G 3
Gu Mu Briefs Austrians on Economic Situation G 3
U.S. Approach to Pipeline Sale Examined G 4
[RENMIN RIBAO 13 Oct]
Ma Yi Describes China's Economic Successes G 4

EASTERN EUROPE

Poland Issues Statement on U.S. Sanctions H 1
Consular Instruments Exchanged With SFRY H 1

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

Further Reports on Al-Qadhdhafi's Visit I 1
Continues Talks With Zhao I 1
Leaves Beijing for DPRK I 1
U.S. Envoy Talks With Lebanon President I 1
RENMIN RIBAO on U.S. Support of Israel at UNGA [28 Oct] I 2
RENMIN RIBAO Examines Middle East Peace Talks [26 Oct] I 2
Ambassador Presents Credentials in Jordan I 4
Peng Chong Meets Tunisian Red Crescent Group I 4
Ni Zhifu Receives Botswana Trade Union Group I 4

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Text of Zhao Science Awards Conference Speech K 1
Scientists View Zhao Technical Progress Report K 14
CHINA DAILY Cites Deng on Advisory Commission [29 Oct] K 15
Population of Minority Nationalities Grows K 16
RENMIN RIBAO on Economy of Minority Regions [23 Oct] K 16
RENMIN RIBAO on Attitude to Old, Young Cadres [28 Oct] K 18
Machinery Factories' Leading Bodies Reorganized K 19
CHINA DAILY Article Examines Commercial Work [29 Oct] K 20
Lenin's View on Politics, Economics Discussed [RENMIN RIBAO 25 Oct] K 21
Party, State Issue Directive on Tree Felling K 22
Deng Writes Title for 'Diary of Chen Geng' K 24
Xi Zhongxun at Literary Exhibition on Marxism K 24
Wang Zhen, Song Renqiong at Publishing House Fete K 24

PRC REGIONAL AFFAIRS

EAST REGION

Roundup of East China Leaders' Activities O 1
Anhui's Zhou Zijian Inspects Counties 6-13 Oct O 2
Xiang Nan Attends Fujian Sports Meeting [FUJIAN RIBAO 4 Oct] O 2
New Fujian Vice Governor Meets Xiang Nan O 2
Fujian's Governor Leads Delegation to Nagasaki [FUJIAN RIBAO 14 Oct] O 3
Jiangsu's Han Peixin Talks to Enterprise Meeting O 4
Jiangsu Export Manager Arrested for Embezzlement O 5
Jiangsu's Nanjing PLA Units Meet 19 Oct O 5
Jiangsu CPC Secretariat on Congress Documents O 6
Nanchang Shelter Converted to Shopping Center O 6
Jiangxi Treatment of Taiwan Compatriots Reported O 7
Fuzhou PLA Holds Meeting on Air Defense Works O 7

PRC REPRESENTATIVE SPEAKS AT UN ECDC SESSION

OW290825 Beijing XINHUA in English 0751 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Geneva, October 28 (XINHUA) -- The United Nations and other international agencies will provide financial resources for developing countries to facilitate their economic cooperation.

A resolution to this effect was adopted today when the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development Board ended its 10-day session on economic cooperation among developing countries (ECDC) here.

The resolution, submitted by Kuwait on behalf of the "Group of 77" was adopted by a vote of 63 for and 22 against with 9 abstentions. The Western developed countries voted against it while the Soviet Union and East European countries abstained. China supported the resolution.

The resolution points out that ECDC is "a key element in the strategy for collective self-reliance and an essential component of the international development strategy."

It says that improved ECDC "will make an important contribution to the development of developing countries as well as to the world economy."

It points out that efforts to promote ECDC do not diminish the responsibilities of developed countries to establish just and equitable international economic relations.

Speaking at the closing plenary meeting today, Chinese delegate Zhao Gongda said that China always gives a high appraisal to economic cooperation between developing countries.

"Such cooperation is in the interest of maintaining the national independence of developing countries, developing their national economy and realizing collective self-reliance," he said.

To strengthen such cooperation has now become a more urgent task with the continuance of the world-wide economic recession, the Chinese delegate said.

WEINBERGER ATTACKS BREZHNEV'S MOSCOW SPEECH

OW290758 Beijing XINHUA in English 0732 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Washington, October 28 (XINHUA) -- U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger today attacked the Soviet Union for continuing "the path of an even more intensified quest for military superiority."

In the Reagan administration's first public reaction to the Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev's recent speech, the U.S. defense secretary urged the West to counter the Soviet challenge and pledged that the United States would "stay on the course" of rearmament program.

Brezhnev in his Moscow speech Wednesday accused the United States of "threatening to push the world into the flames of nuclear war." He called for increase of the Soviet military strength to meet the "unprecedented" U.S. arms buildup.

Speaking at a Pentagon press conference today, his first in nearly 21 months, the U.S. defense secretary said "yesterday, President Brezhnev pledged the Soviet Union to continue the path of an even more intensified quest for military superiority. He called for steps further to improve the Soviet Union's war fighting capability and he pledged the Soviet Union to a new military technology."

"We now have to record a new Soviet appreciation of what detente actually means, what its definition is. It excludes constraining the buildup of Soviet strategic forces. It excludes the buildup of conventional forces, it does not mean arms control and it does not mean further Soviet efforts to get Western technology for their military buildup," he said.

Weinberger said: "Mr. Brezhnev referred to a number of times to detente and all of that, but all through detente they did enormous expansion year after year on every type of weapons and weapons systems and they're continuing to do it. So his policy in his speech doesn't announce any new policy. His speech announces a continuation of what they've been doing for 20 years."

"It would seem to me that this would underline even more specifically than anything we could the reasons for not entering into a freeze," he said.

Weinberger's statement today is apparently related to the November second congressional elections. Next week, U.S. voters in a number of states will be asked to vote in the ballots on resolutions calling for an immediate U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms freeze at current levels.

Dismissing the idea of a nuclear freeze, the defense secretary believed that the freeze would only strengthen the Soviet military might and "weaken our deterrent forces." "The passage of a freeze would increase the risk and the danger of war and that it would be something that would encourage the Soviets to stay away from the negotiating table."

"If we freeze today, the Soviet Union would have no incentive whatever to negotiate any reductions, and indeed, they would wholly exploit the many aspects of the freeze which are unverifiable," Weinberger said.

REAGAN SUSPENDS FAVORED TREATMENT TO POLAND

OW280818 Beijing XINHUA in English 0800 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Washington, October 27 (XINHUA) -- U.S. President Ronald Reagan signed a proclamation today suspending most-favored-nation status for Poland in retaliation for the "outlawing" of "the independent trade union Solidarity" by the Polish Government.

The U.S. granted most-favored-nation status to Poland in 1960. Suspension of the status will raise tariffs on a number of Polish products imported by the United States. Polish exports to the U.S. declined from 427 million dollars in 1979 to 365 million dollars last year, and in the first six months of this year they were only 100 million U.S. dollars.

The United States had already suspended guaranteed credits, export-import bank credit insurance, civil aviation and fishing privileges, travel programs and export licenses for high-technology items to Poland since the imposition of martial law in Poland in December 1981.

FOREIGN INSTITUTE OFFICIAL MEETS U.S. GROUP

OW281654 Beijing XINHUA in English 1635 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 28 (XINHUA) -- Hao Deqing, president of the Chinese People's Institute of Foreign Affairs, met here today with a delegation from the Asten Institute for Humanistic Studies of the United States led by William Kieschnick.

The delegation arrived here yesterday on a visit to China at the invitation of the Chinese institute.

BRIEFS

HEILONGJIANG-WISCONSIN TIES -- The signing ceremony for the establishment of friendly ties between China's Heilongjiang Province and Wisconsin in the United States was held on 18 October in Madison, the capital of Wisconsin. Chen Lei, governor of Heilongjiang Province, and Lee S. Dreyfus, governor of Wisconsin, signed the agreement. U.S. Secretary of State Shultz sent a telegram to the two governors warmly acclaiming the establishment of friendly relations between Heilongjiang and Wisconsin and wishing for the continual development and intensification of friendly relations between the United States and China, based on equality, mutual benefit and mutual respect. [Text] [Harbin Heilongjiang Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 21 Oct 82 SK]

TASS: USSR OFFICIALS RECEIVE MESSAGE FROM PRC

LD281612 Moscow TASS in English 1542 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Moscow, October 28 TASS -- A message from the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress and the State Council of the People's Republic of China has been received by the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet and the Council of Ministers of the USSR. The message expresses gratitude for the congratulations on the occasion of the 33rd anniversary of the formation of the People's Republic of China and expresses the wish for the development of friendship between the peoples of the two countries and the relations between both countries.

AFP: ILICHEV LEAVES BEIJING FOR MOSCOW 29 OCT

OW290212 Hong Kong AFP in English 0202 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, Oct. 29 (AFP) -- Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Leonid Ilichev today left for Moscow after talks here that marked the resumption of the Sino-Soviet dialogue to end a nearly three-year break.

Mr Ilichev's partner in the talks, Chinese Deputy Foreign Minister Qian Qichen, was at the airport to see off the Soviet diplomat who headed for home aboard a regularly scheduled Aeroflot flight.

Neither man made any statement on their talks on relations between the communist giants, at odds for two decades. The exploratory discussions, officially termed "consultations," began October 5 and were held in utmost secrecy.

The talks are to be held alternately in the Chinese and Soviet capitals. Diplomats here said that the next round will likely begin in Moscow next month.

Mr Ilichev, an old hand in dealing with China who headed Moscow's delegation to the last major Sino-Soviet talks which broke off in January 1980, arrived here on October 3.

He had six meetings with Mr Qian, whose country broke off the last talks to protest the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. Chinese officials announced last week that this first round of discussions had ended.

After winding up his series of talks here, Mr Ilichev traveled to Xian, a former imperial capital in northern China, for some brief sightseeing.

Upon his return to the capital, he paid a courtesy call Wednesday on Foreign Minister Huang Hua, diplomats said.

FRIENDSHIP GROUPS GREET SOVIET COUNTERPARTS

OW290719 Beijing in Russian to the USSR 1600 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] The Chinese People's Association for Friendship With Foreign Countries and the Sino-Soviet Friendship Association have sent a greetings telegram to the Union of Soviet Societies for Friendship and Cultural Relations With Foreign Countries and the Soviet-Chinese Friendship Society on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the establishment of the Soviet-Chinese Friendship Society.

The telegram says: On the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the establishment of the Soviet-Chinese Friendship Society, the Chinese People's Association for Friendship With Foreign Countries and the Sino-Soviet Friendship Association express warm congratulations to the Union of Soviet Societies for Friendship and Cultural Relations With Foreign Countries and the Soviet-Chinese Friendship Society and send friendly greetings to the people of the Soviet Union. The Chinese people always hold very dear the friendship with the Soviet people.

The Chinese People's Association for Friendship With Foreign Countries and the Sino-Soviet Friendship Association have for many years exerted efforts to promote mutual understanding and develop friendship between the peoples of the two countries. They will continue to exert new efforts in the future to uphold and develop the traditional friendship between the Chinese and Soviet peoples.

The telegram expressed wishes that the Soviet-Chinese Friendship Society will achieve new successes in the work of devloping freindship between the Chinese and Soviet peoples and will make new contributions towards this. The telegram wished the Soviet people ever new successes in the cause of building their country, wished them happiness and expressed the wish that in the future the friendship between the Chinese and Soviet people will be further developed and strengthened.

USSR SAID TO BE USING SRV BAY AS PERMANENT BASE

OW261644 Beijing XINHUA in English 1636 GMT 26 Oct 82

[Text] Tokyo, October 27 (XINHUA) -- About 12 Soviet naval vessels are permanently stationed at Vietnam's Cam Ranh Bay where Soviet attack nuclear-powered submarines are also making regular calls, according to KYODO quoting a government source here today.

In an analysis of the recent movements of Soviet forces in the Far East, the source said the Soviet naval vessels began using Cam Ranh Bay four years ago and attack-type nuclear-powered submarines started calling at the bay last year. In early August alone, three such submarines, together with two others, made their calls there.

The source added that two Soviet supply ships are also permanently stationed at the bay and Bear reconnaissance planes are believed to be making flights between the bay and the coastal provinces of Siberia.

In addition, 50 Soviet Backfire bombers are deployed in the Far East, the source said. Of this number, about 20 are stationed at Aleksevevka, located across Sakhalin.

DENG, HU VISIT TO DPRK IN APRIL REPORTED

HK290154 Beijing Domestic Television Service in Mandarin 1140 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Filmed report: "Comrades Hu Yaobang and Deng Xiaoping Visit Korea"]

[Excerpts] [Passage omitted depicting the DPRK's progress during recent years]
Upon the warm invitation of Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Korean Workers Party [KWP], CPC Chairman Comrade Hu Yaobang and Vice Chairman Deng Xiaoping went to Pyongyang by special train to make a working visit to their close neighbor Korea on 26 April 1982. They brought with them the Chinese people's warm feeling toward the Korean people. They were accompanied by Qiao Shi, head of the CPC International Liaison Department; Han Nianlong, vice foreign minister; Yang Dezhong, deputy director of the State Planning Commission.

Kim Il-song, general secretary of the KWP Central Committee, and other leading comrades including Kim Chong-il, O Chin-u, (Tiao Chengze), [Mandarin phonetic translation] Yim Chun-chu and So Chol warmly welcomed the Chinese comrades.

When intimate friends and close comrades in arms meet, they warmly shake hands and embrace each other, expressing the combatant friendship and revolutionary unity between the Chinese and Korean parties, between the two countries and between the two peoples.

Comrade Kim Il-song accompanied Comrades Deng Xiaoping and Hu Yaobang to the guesthouse to take a rest. Despite traveling several thousand li, they are in high spirits when they meet their old friends. This is a warm exchange of proletarian internationalism between the two parties and the two peoples. It is in this way that the historic meeting begins.

On 27 April Comrades Hu Yaobang and Deng Xiaoping came to the Kumsusan assembly hall to call on Comrade Kim Il-song and other Korean party and government leaders, who held talks on questions of common interest in a very friendly atmosphere. This meeting of the leaders of the two parties has a great and deep significance to the further consolidation and development of the friendly cooperation between the parties, the two countries and the two peoples, to the promotion of the socialist revolution and socialist reconstruction of the two countries, and to the maintenance of peace and security in Asia and the world.

On the evening of 27 April Cimrade Kim Il-song gave a banquet at the banquet hall of the Kumsusan assembly hall to warmly entertain Comrades Hu Yaobang and Deng Xiaoping. Comrade Deng Xiaoping warmly shook hands with Kim Il, member of the KWP Political Bureau. KWP leaders O Chin-u, Kim Young-nam, Kim Hwan and Ho Tam also attended the banquet.

Comrade Kim Il-song, who is the first one to speak, said that whenever there is anything to discuss, leaders of our two countries always conduct formal or internal exchange so as to maintain contact and carry out negotiations. This has become a tradition. We firmly believe that this fine tradition between the leaders of our two countries will continue to develop in the future. We feel that this meeting and exchange of views is a good opportunity to cope with the complex situation and to work out more effective avenues. He said that we are happy to see that our fraternal Chinese party, government and people are enhancing their influence, through their correct policies, on the developments in the international arena. Under the wise leadership of the CPC headed by you the fraternal Chinese people have scored great success in the struggle to firmly uphold the four basic principles, achieve stability and unity throughout the country and bring about the four modernizations. People of our country are truly happy about this situation and we sincerely hope you will score even greater success in the reversion of Taiwan and the unification of the country.

In his speech, Comrade Hu Yaobang said: Comrade Deng Xiaoping once said: Leaders of our two parties should meet regularly. Even if there is no issue to be discussed, we should meet Comrade Kim Il-song. This is because relations between our two parties are very uncommon.

He said: Over the previous years, leaders of the two parties have had frequent contacts with one another, just like relatives. They have discussed issues, exchanged conditions and given mutual support, thus energetically promoting the uninterrupted development of friendly cooperative Sino-Korean relations. Just because our hearts beat in harmony, the friendship and unity between our two parties, between China and Korea and between the Chinese and Korean peoples have particularly deep foundations. He said he firmly believes that Sino-Korean friendship will surely move like the sun and moon and will shine forever. He said: We firmly believe that under the leadership of Comrade Kim Il-song, in the struggles ahead the Korean people will surely win new and still greater victories, will surely build their motherland into a richer, stronger and more prosperous country and will surely realize the unification of Korea, which is 3,000 li in length.

In beautiful Pyongyang, there are friendly spring breezes everywhere. The scenes at the state guesthouse are pleasing to the eye. The bright-colored (Jindalai) flowers are just like the Sino-Korean friendly flowers which are dazzlingly beautiful and bright.

On 28 April Comrade Kim Il-song arrived at the Chinese comrades' dwelling place. He and Comrades Deng Xiaoping and Hu Yaobang extended greetings to each other and had cordial conversations. They showed a feeling of immeasurable joy for the new development of Sino-Korean friendship.

Through the current cordial meeting of leaders of the two parties, the militant friendship and revolutionary unity between the two parties and the two countries and between the Chinese and Korean peoples, as personally fostered by Chairman Mao Zedong, Premier Zhou Enlai and President Kim Il-song, have reached new heights. After this, comrades of the two parties continued their very sincere and friendly talks. [passage omitted on Hu's visit to a Pyongyang library in the company of Kim Il-song, Hu and Deng at a theatrical performance in the company of Kim Il-song, Hu visiting "Korea's (Daan) heavy machinery plant" on the morning of 29 April in the company of Kim Il-song and on Hu and Deng at a gymnastic performance entitled "People Sing the Praises of the Lead" on the afternoon of 29 April in the company of Kim Il-song]

On the eve of the departure day, Comrade Kim Il-song gave a farewell dinner for the Chinese comrades in celebration of the new development of friendship between the Korean and Chinese parties, the two countries and the Korean and Chinese peoples. He wished Comrades Deng Xiaoping and Hu Yaobang a pleasant journey.

Comrade Hu Yaobang, chairman of the CPC Central Committee, and Comrade Deng Xiaoping, vice chairman of the CPC Central Committee, satisfactorily concluded their visit to Korea and left Pyongyang for China on 30 April. O Chin-u, (Tiao Chengze), Yim Chun-chu (So Chol) and Kim Chung-nin, leading comrades of the Korean party and government, gave a warm sendoff to the Chinese comrades. Comrades Deng Xiaoping and Hu Yaobang cordially said a few parting words to comrade Kim Il-song:

Farewell, close comrades-in-arms. Farewell, the heroic people. The common ideal has closely united the peoples of our two countries and the monument of friendship has been engraved on the memory of the Chinese and Korean peoples. Let us wholeheartedly wish: May the revolutionary friendship and militant unity which have been cemented with the blood of the Chinese and Korean parties and peoples and which have withstood the historical tests, remain fresh forever, just like the towering pine and cypress trees on the Changbai mountains.

CHEN MUHUA SIGNS TRADE AGREEMENT WITH DPRK

OW281656 Beijing XINHUA in English 1644 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Pyongyang, October 28 (XINHUA) -- A long-term trade agreement (1982-1986) between the Chinese and Korean Governments was signed here this evening.

Chinese State Councillor Chen Muhua and DPRK Vice-Premier Kong Chin-Tae signed the agreement on behalf of their respective governments.

Prior to the signing of the trade agreement, DPRK Vice-President Pak Song-chol received and had a cordial conversation with Chen Muhua and all other members of the Chinese Government economic and trade delegation she was leading.

SCIENTIFIC COOPERATION PACT SIGNED WITH DPRK

OW281534 Beijing XINHUA in English 1516 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Pyongyang, October 28 (XINHUA) -- A protocol on scientific and technical cooperation was signed here today between China and the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

Signed at the 22nd session of the China-Korea Committee for Scientific and Technical Cooperation, the protocol states both sides will work together in the fields of machinery, chemical industry, agriculture, forestry, water conservancy, building materials and medicine.

Dong Liyong, Chinese vice-minister of forestry, and Kim Ung-ho, vice-chairman of the State Scientific and Technical Commission of Korea, signed the document on behalf of their respective governments.

The Chinese delegation arrived here Oct. 19.

DPRK PRESENTS GIFTS FOR CHINESE MARTYRS

OW261848 Beijing XINHUA in English 1830 GMT 26 Oct 82

[Text] Pyongyang, October 26 (XINHUA) -- Korean people's great Kim Il-song today, through a representative, extended his regards and presented gifts to relatives of three Chinese People's Volunteers who died in the Korean war.

The three fighters, Huang Jiguang, Qin Shaoyun and Luo Shengjiao, were well-known in China for heroism during the Korean war.

Huang, to pave the way for his comrades who were checked by enemy fire, blocked with his chest machine gun fire from a pillbox.

Qin died in a fire while laying in ambush -- he could have easily extinguished the flames but a slight movement would probably have alerted the enemy and endangered the whole army.

Luo drowned after he jumped into a frozen river to save a Korean boy who had fallen through the thin ice while skating.

The three were each named hero of the Chinese People's Volunteers.

Deputy Foreign Minister Kim Chae-suk, entrusted by Kim Il-song, gave the presents this evening to Han Xianchu, head of the delegation of the former Chinese People's Volunteers which arrived in Korea October 12.

General Han once led the volunteers in the Korean war as deputy commander-in-chief.

UNGA CALLS FOR SRV WITHDRAWAL FROM KAMPUCHEA

OW290228 Beijing XINHUA in English 0158 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] United Nations, October 28 (XINHUA) - The U.N. General Assembly today adopted by an overwhelming majority a resolution, which once again calls on Vietnam to withdraw its forces from Kampuchea.

The resolution, sponsored by 49 nations, was adopted by a vote of 105 in favour and 23 against with 20 abstentions. Compared with the voting on the issue last year, 5 votes more supported Democratic Kampuchea, and 2 votes less sided with Vietnam.

The resolution also calls for an international conference at an appropriate time to find a comprehensive political settlement of the Kampuchean problem.

The resolution stresses that the withdrawal of all foreign forces from Kampuchea, the restoration and preservation of its independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity, the right of the Kampuchean people to determine their own destiny are the principal components of any just and lasting resolution to the Kampuchean problem.

The resolution says that to bring about a lasting peace in Southeast Asia, there is an urgent need for a comprehensive political solution to the Kampuchean problem.

It notes with deep concern that the continuing deployment of foreign forces near Kampuchea's border with Thailand has maintained tension in the region.

The resolution authorizes the ad hoc committee of the International Conference on Kampuchea to convene when necessary and to carry out the tasks entrusted to it in its mandate.

It provides for the inclusion in the provisional agenda of its 38th session of the item "the situation in Kampuchea."

UN ENVOY EXPOSES SRV 'TRICK' ON KAMPUCHEA

OW270350 Beijing XINHUA in English 0305 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] United Nations, October 26 (XINHUA) -- Chinese Permanent Representative Ling Qing told the General Assembly today Vietnam's proposal for partial withdrawal from Kampuchea is a trick. Under no circumstances should U.N. recognize the fait accompli of Vietnamese occupation of Kampuchea, he declared.

Condemning Hanoi's pursuance of regional hegemonism and expansionism with the support of a superpower, the Chinese representative called for the complete withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea and urged the United Nations to adopt effective measures to put an end to Vietnam's military occupation of Kampuchea.

Vietnam's invasion of Kampuchea has brought untold sufferings to the Kampuchean people and posed a grave threat to the peace and stability of Southeast Asia, he continued.

"The Chinese Government has always advocated an early political settlement of the Kampuchean question on a fair and reasonable basis. However, any political settlement should strictly adhere to the correct principles set forth in the General Assembly resolutions and the declaration of the International Conference on Kampuchea.

"That is to say, it must insist on the complete withdrawal of foreign troops from Kampuchea so that the Kampuchean people may exercise the right of self-determination under U.N. supervision. Under no circumstances should it recognize the fait accompli of foreign aggression."

Ling Qing called on all member states to vote for the draft resolution on the Kampuchean problem jointly sponsored by the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) and others, which reaffirms the basic principles contained in the resolutions of the three previous sessions and in the declaration of the International Conference on Kampuchea.

He drew attention to the military situation in Kampuchea, saying that the fourth dry-season offensive mounted by the Vietnamese once again ended in fiasco. The myth that the Kampuchean situation was "irreversible" had thus been shattered, he said.

"We are convinced that so long as the Kampuchean people strengthen their unity and persist in their struggle under the leadership of the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea with Prince Norodom Sihanouk as its president, they will surely realize their nation's sacred aspiration to expel the invaders and win complete victory in their patriotic war," he said.

The Chinese representative pointed out that in renewing their "partial withdrawal" gesture after the formation of a coalition in Kampuchea and on the eve of the 37th General Assembly session the Vietnamese authorities wanted to offset the impact of the coalition and head off a U.N. call for the unconditional, total withdrawal of their troops from Kampuchea.

Referring to the trick of an international conference on Southeast Asia, he noted that Vietnam suggested that prior consultations be carried out on matters regarding the conference between the ASEAN countries and the "Indochinese states" including the Heng Samrin regime. "Vietnam's occupation of Kampuchea is the key issue in Southeast Asia. To talk about questions of Southeast Asia without touching on this key issue is clearly a ruse designed to forestall the application of the U.N. resolution to the Kampuchean issue and then remove it altogether from the agenda of the world forum," Ling Qing said.

The proposed "international conference" was also aimed to impose the Phnom Penh puppet regime on the participants and legitimize it so that Vietnam can perpetuate its occupation of Kampuchea and justify its control and domination of Indochina, he added.

Refuting Vietnam's claim of "China threat", he said: "This is a downright lie. It is a plain fact that Kampuchea became an issue only after Vietnam launched its armed aggression against that country, and that it is not the consequence of a dispute between China and Vietnam." He asked: "Since there is not a single Chinese soldier in Kampuchea, how could China be a threat to Vietnam?"

As to the relations between China and Vietnam, Ling Qing said: "If only Vietnam withdraws all its troops from Kampuchea, renounces aggression and expansionism and abandons its anti-China position, the Chinese Government is ready to resume talks with it and to negotiate and adopt measures to restore friendly and good-neighbourly relations between the two countries."

THATCHER VIEW OF HONG KONG TREATIES RAPPED

OW281824 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1554 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] London, 27 Oct (XINHUA) -- In tonight's television "news" program, a BBC commentator pointed out: Mrs Thatcher's description of the three unequal treaties on the status of Hong Kong which Britain imposed on China by force in the 19th century as valid shows that she "lacks historical knowledge."

Commenting on Mrs Thatcher's visit to Beijing last month, commentator (John Tulsa) said: "Mrs Thatcher persistently holds that the three treaties which enabled Britain to obtain Hong Kong remain valid;" however, "as everyone knows, the Chinese hold entirely different views on these treaties."

The BBC "news" program tonight also briefly reviewed the history of the opium wars and the situation in which the Qing government was forced to sign these treaties. The program pointed out that China regards all three treaties as "unequal treaties signed by force."

The "news" program also broadcast a talk on the Hong Kong issue by Professor (William Besli) of London University. Professor (Besli) pointed out that those treaties have colonialist elements. He said that to emphasize these treaties to be as valid as international law "will not win friendship, nor is it convincing." He said that the most important thing is that people should know the Chinese people's "feeling over the political humiliation which they suffered in the 19th century."

KANG SHIEN HOLDS TALKS WITH BRITISH VISITOR

OW200800 Beijing XINHUA in English 0739 GMT 20 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 20 (XINHUA) -- Chinese State Councillor Kang Shien stressed the importance of energy in China's modernization in talks with Sir Peter Baxendell, chairman of the committee of managing directors of the Royal Dutch/Shell Group of Co., this morning.

Kang Shien said energy will play an important role in China's four modernizations, and China hoped to cooperate with foreign firms in developing offshore oil resources under the principle of equality and mutual benefit.

"This is not an expedient measure, but a task for a long period. We will unswervingly follow the open-door policy," the state councillor said.

The Royal Dutch/Shell Group of Co. participated in the first-round bidding for exploitation of China's offshore oil resources.

SCIENCE DELEGATION LEAVES BEIJING FOR UK, FRG

OW121833 Beijing XINHUA in English 1532 GMT 12 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 12 (XINHUA) -- A 6-member delegation of the Chinese Academy of Sciences, led by its President Lu Jiaxi, left here today by plane for a visit to Britain and the Federal Republic of Germany, at the invitation of the Royal Society of Britain and the Max-Planck-Gesellschaft of West Germany, respectively.

During its visit -- two weeks in Britain and 10 days in West Germany -- the delegation will discuss cooperative projects and engage in scientific and technical exchanges with leaders of academic institutions of the two countries.

Scientific and technical exchanges have developed in recent years since the signing of agreements on cooperation between the Chinese Academy of Sciences and the Royal Society of Britain and the Max-Planck-Gesellschaft of West Germany.

FANG YI MEETS FRENCH SCIENCE DELEGATION

OW221254 Beijing XINHUA in English 1242 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 22 (XINHUA) -- State Councillor Fang Yi met and had a friendly conversation here this afternoon with a life sciences delegation from France led by Francois Gros, science adviser to the French prime minister.

SHANGHAI'S WANG DAOHAN FETES FRG ENGINEERS

OW280443 Shanghai City Service in Mandarin 1130 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Text] The academic delegation of the West German Engineers' Society headed by (Thuemer), state secretary of West Germany's North Rhine-Westphalia, arrived in Shanghai for a visit recently at the invitation of the Chinese Mechanical Engineering Society. Beginning today, this delegation will begin a report meeting in Shanghai on metallurgical processing and modernized management of the textile industry and enterprises.

An opening ceremony for the meeting was held this morning at the Shanghai science hall. (Tao Angxian), vice chairman of the Chinese Mechanical Engineering Society and Mr (Thuemer) spoke at the meeting.

In the evening, Wang Daohan, honorary chairman of the Chinese Mechanical Engineering Society and mayor of Shanghai, hosted a banquet in honor of the guests from West Germany.

ZHU XUEFAN FETES WEST GERMAN DELEGATION

OW261514 Beijing XINHUA in English 1503 GMT 26 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 26 (XINHUA) -- Zhu Xuefan, vice-chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress and vice-president of the Association for International Understanding of China, this evening met and feted a delegation from the Friedrich Ebert Foundation of the Federal Republic of Germany led by its vice-president, Heinz Juhn.

PLA AIR FORCE COMMANDER RETURNS FROM BELGIUM

OW142058 Beijing XINHUA in English 1552 GMT 14 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 14 (XINHUA) -- Zhang Tingfa, commander of the air force of the Chinese People's Liberation Army, returned to Beijing by plane this evening after a friendship visit to the Kingdom of Belgium.

He was greeted at the airport by Xu Xin, assistant to the chief of the P.L.A. General Staff; Gao Houliang, political commissar of the P.L.A. Air Force; and Roger Denorme, Belgian ambassador to China.

DENG LIQUN MEETS BELGIAN EDUCATION GROUP

OW261828 Beijing XINHUA in English 1607 GMT 26 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 26 (XINHUA) -- Deng Liqun, member of the Secretariat of the Central Committee of the Chinese Communist Party, met this afternoon with a Belgian educational delegation led by Robert Urbain, member of the Executive Committee in charge of education in the nation's French-speaking southern region.

Deng Liqun, also head of the Propaganda Department of the Central Committee, heard a detailed account of Belgium's education system.

Urbain hoped for exchanges of experience and cooperation with China's educational circles.

Present at the meeting were He Dongchang, minister of education, and Roger Denorme, Belgian ambassador to China.

MILITARY DELEGATION PAYS VISIT TO TURKEY

OW131945 Beijing XINHUA in English 1544 GMT 13 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 13 (XINHUA) -- A military delegation of the People's Republic of China led by Zhang Zhen, deputy chief of General Staff of the Chinese People's Liberation Army left here today for an official visit to Turkey on invitation.

The delegation was seen off at the airport by Chi Haotian, deputy chief of the P.L.A. General Staff, Wang Zhengzhu, deputy director of the P.L.A. General Logistics Department, and Barlas Ozener, charge d'affaires ad interim of the Turkish Embassy here.

Meets President Evren

OW190738 Beijing XINHUA in English 0724 GMT 19 Oct 82

[Text] Ankara, October 18 (XINHUA) -- Turkish President Kenan Evren told a Chinese military delegation today Turkey will beef up its military forces for peaceful coexistence. He said: "Never will we give others one inch of land."

The Chinese delegation led by Zhang Zhen, deputy chief of General Staff of the Chinese People's Liberation Army, arrived in Istanbul Friday for a nine-day visit to Turkey.

Evren told the delegation his forthcoming visit to China would contribute to the development of good relations between the two countries.

He said Turkey and China have the common tasks to safeguard their national independence and state sovereignty, develop their economy and defend world peace.

He said Turkey and all the other countries in the region hope that their problems would be solved without foreign interference.

Zhang Zhen praised Turkey for its progress in public security and economic development.

The delegation will also visit Kirikkale 70 kms east of Ankara and the Golcuk naval base east of Istanbul.

Concludes Visit

OW250824 Beijing XINHUA in English 0816 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Text] Ankara, Oct. 24 (XINHUA) -- The Chinese military delegation led by Zhang Zhen, deputy chief of General Staff of the Chinese People's Liberation Army, left Turkey today after a ten-day visit.

During their stay in Ankara, the Chinese guests were received by President Kenan Evren who is also chief of General Staff of the Turkish armed forces. Present at the meeting were commanders of the Turkish ground, navy and air forces and military police.

The Chinese delegation visited military colleges and military installations in Ankara, Istanbul, Golcuk and Kirikkale.

GU MU BRIEFS AUSTRIANS ON ECONOMIC SITUATION

OW221226 Beijing XINHUA in English 1200 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 22 (XINHUA) -- China's State Councillor Gu Mu met here this morning with a delegation from the Donau European Institute of Vienna, an organization for international, economic relations, led by Fritz Bock, former Austrian vice-chancellor and president of the institute.

During the meeting, Gu Mu briefed the guests on China's economic situation. He said: "With the growth of China's economy a more positive attitude will be adopted towards the import of foreign advanced equipment and utilization of foreign funds.

"There are very broad prospects for cooperation between China and other countries in exploitation of energy resources, transportation, port construction and transformation of existing enterprises."

U.S. APPROACH TO PIPELINE SALE EXAMINED

HK131115 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 13 Oct 82 p 7

["International Jottings": "Such a High Stake Involved"]

[Text] The United States has recently adopted successive "sanctions" against some West European companies and U.S. subsidiaries in Europe because they have sold gas pipeline equipment to the Soviet Union. However, the West European governments have instructed these companies to continue with their contracts, thus opposing the U.S. action, and have accused the United States of exercising "extraterritoriality." Now, both sides are refusing to budge and are inextricably locked in contradictions.

The dispute has lasted a long time. The United States blamed the West European companies for giving great help to the Soviet Union by selling the gas pipeline equipment, an action detrimental to the common struggle against the Soviet Union. However, the West European countries argued that since the United States sold the Soviet Union large quantities of grain, it had no grounds for objecting to their gas pipeline sales, alleging that what the United States did is precisely like the saying: "The magistrates are free to burn down houses, while the common people are forbidden to light lamps." Now, both parties are claiming to be in the right.

From the point of view of its own benefit, (an annual income of several billion U.S. dollars from its grain sales to the Soviet Union) the United States is obviously unwilling to give up this trade. For this reason, the U.S. "Research Office for World Trends", which specializes in studying international economic and political tendencies, counselled the Washington authorities to give a free hand to the West European companies in their selling of gas pipeline equipment to the Soviet Union. A report from this research office points out: "U.S. farmers have interests in the gas pipeline now under construction, because the import of gas into West Europe through the pipeline will furnish the Soviet Union with the foreign exchange it needs to buy grain from the United States." Hence, this research office holds that the United States must lift its sanctions against these West European companies.

These advisers have made very careful calculations. With such high stakes involved, who knows whether the Washington policymakers will accept this well meaning advice or not.

MA YI DESCRIBES CHINA'S ECONOMIC SUCCESSES

OW191319 Beijing XINHUA in English 1236 GMT 19 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 19 (XINHUA) -- China is expected to register an over five percent industrial production growth this year over 1981 and an all-round increase in the output of major crops, Ma Yi, vice-minister in charge of the State Economic Commission said today. He was speaking to the opening session of the five-day second China-Europe business leaders symposium.

"The economic situation has been better than expected since the beginning of this year," he said. "The country's economy is embarking on a road of steady and sound development."

In the first nine months of this year, he said, industrial output value grew 8.6 percent compared to the same 1981 period. Although the country was hit by "serious" natural disasters, the output of wheat, early rice and other summer grain crops was 5.9 million tons more than 1981, a 9.2 percent increase.

State revenues exceeded expenditures in the first eight months of this year, he announced. The total volume of foreign trade grew by 8.3 percent.

The improvements are the result of efforts in the past few years to readjust and restructure the national economy.

The job responsibility system has been instituted in 70 percent of the rural production teams, he said. This has resulted in an all-round expansion of agriculture, forestry, animal husbandry, sideline production and fishery. The income of the rural population has significantly increased, averaging over 60 percent in communes where farm output used to be low.

Ma Yi called attention to China's emphasis on consumer goods production as part of the effort to achieve a better coordinated development between light and heavy industry. From 1979 to 1981, he said, light industrial production grew at an average annual rate of 14 percent, while heavy industrial production, at a pace of 1.4 percent. The proportion of light industry in the total value of industrial output went up from 42.7 percent in 1978 to 51.4 percent in 1981.

Living standards of China's urban and rural population improved during the same three-year period, when the rate of accumulation was reduced from 36.5 percent to 28.3 percent.

While the scope of construction was reduced in general, funds and labor force were concentrated on key projects and housing construction. Expenditures on science and education increased. At the end of 1981, he said, China had 704 institutes of higher learning with 1.28 million students. This compares favorably with 434 such institutes in 1965, when the number of students was 600,000 less.

Ma Yi also spoke of the effort to restructure China's economic system and improve enterprise management. Progress has been made in eliminating over centralization in economic administration and egalitarianism in distribution, longstanding economic shortcomings, he said.

To streamline production and achieve better economic results, he continued, China had by the end of 1981 set up 2,390 specialized corporations and integrated complexes involving 23,350 enterprises.

The vice-minister said China would continue to expand economic and technical cooperation with Europe. In the past three years, he said, more than 200 Chinese managers have studied in short-term training sessions in the Federal Republic of Germany, France, Italy, Sweden, Norway, the United States and Japan. More than 160 experts from West European countries, the United States, Japan and the United Nations Industrial Development Organization have given lectures in China.

It is now three years since a management training center in Dalian jointly run by China and the United States opened. Work is underway to start another center in Tianjin with Japanese assistance, Ma Yi said. The Federal Republic of Germany and Canada are ready to help establish centers in Shanghai and Chengdu, respectively.

POLAND ISSUES STATEMENT ON U.S. SANCTIONS

OW290827 Beijing XINHUA in English 0722 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 29 (XINHUA) -- The Polish Government issued a statement late last night, declaring it might take counter-measures against the United States in response to new economic sanctions imposed by Washington the day before, according to reports reaching here.

The statement said the Polish Government would "consider appropriate steps to take in Polish-American relations and international forums after the recent discriminating decision."

The statement said the U.S. decision to suspend Poland's most-favored-nation trading status is part of a policy of confrontation by the Reagan administration. Washington was deliberately exploiting the Polish problem to increase East-West tension, it said.

The statement added: "The Polish Government has decided to reject the policy of blackmail and pressure...and underlines that in solving our problems it is guided exclusively by the supreme interests of the nation and the Polish state."

The Polish Government statement was issued after the two-day session of the Central Committee of the Polish United Workers Party. A report presented to the Central Committee during the session said: "Acting from a position of power and violating universally recognised norms of international coexistence, the U.S. administration is trying to interfere in our country's internal affairs by escalating economic sanctions."

The report added: "These are calculated to effect the breakdown of our economy, cause the deterioration of living standards and set society against people's rule."

The Polish press agency, PAP, rejected President Reagan's argument that Poland had reneged on a pledge to increase imports from GATT (General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade) countries by seven percent a year, describing it as "a worthless pretext".

The new U.S. economic sanction was announced by President Reagan earlier this month after the Polish National Assembly passed the new trade union law banning the Solidarity union.

CONSULAR INSTRUMENTS EXCHANGED WITH SFRY

OW281836 Beijing XINHUA in English 1831 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Belgrade, October 28 (XINHUA) -- Chinese Ambassador to Yugoslavia Peng Cungwei and Yugoslavian Assistant Secretary for Foreign Affairs D. Krajger today exchanged instruments of ratification on the consular agreement signed by the two governments.

The agreement, signed in Beijing on February 4, was approved by the Chinese People's Congress on August 23 and by the Yugoslavian Federal Executive Council on June 10.

After the ceremony was over, Peng and Kraigher had a friendly conversation. They both believed that the consular agreement will further improve the all-round friendly and cooperative relations between the two countries.

FURTHER REPORTS ON AL-QADHDHAFI'S VISIT

Continues Talks with Zhao

OW281645 Beijing XINHUA in English 1637 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 28 (XINHUA) -- Zhao Ziyang, premier of the State Council, and Colonel Mu'ammar al-Qadhdhafi, leader of the Sept. First Revolution of Libya, continued their talks at the state guest house here this evening.

Following the talks, Al-Qadhdhafi held a press conference.

He said his visit aimed at furthering the friendship and cooperation between the two countries.

"The visit has brought our relations to a new stage. The two countries will expand trade, economic and technical cooperation," he said.

"China and Libya will also enter into cooperation in international affairs. We both oppose U.S.-supported Israeli aggression against Lebanon and other Arab countries, and stand on the side of the Palestinian people," he said.

He said his country is proud of the role played by China in the Third World.

Leaves Beijing for DPRK

OW291046 Beijing XINHUA in English 0825 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 29 (XINHUA) -- Colonel Mu'ammar al-Qadhdhafi, leader of Libya, left here this afternoon for the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, after concluding an official visit to China.

Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang went to the guest house to see Colonel al-Qadhdhafi off before the departure of the Libyan guests.

U.S. ENVOY TALKS WITH LEBANON PRESIDENT

OW290821 Beijing XINHUA in English 0706 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Beirut, October 28 (XINHUA) -- U.S. Middle East envoy Morris Draper held talks here today with Lebanese President Amin al-Jumayyil on the withdrawal of all foreign troops from Lebanon.

The envoy would not give details of a new U.S. proposal on the withdrawal. But well-informed sources here revealed that the proposal was a three-stage plan. The first stage would involve a withdrawal of Israeli troops to Damur, 10 kilometers south of Beirut, and a withdrawal of Syrian and Palestinian troops from the mountains to the central Al-Biqa' Valley.

Lebanese Prime Minister Shafiq al-Wazzan, who was also present on the occasion, said the talks laid a pattern for talks between the different parties. A new climate of hope existed after Al-Jumayyil's recent meeting with U.S. President Reagan, he added.

Referring to Israeli conditions for its withdrawal, the prime minister said that his country wanted U.N. Security Council resolutions calling for an unconditional withdrawal of Israeli troops to be enforced.

Draper, who arrived here late Wednesday, was expected to meet Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin tomorrow, and then return to Beirut.

RENMIN RIBAO ON U.S. SUPPORT OF ISRAEL AT UNGA

HK230759 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 28 Oct 82 p 7

["Short" commentary: "Let's See What the United States and Israel Will Do in the Future"]

[Text] On 26 October the UN General Assembly decided to take no action on the question of Israel's credentials for this year's session, thus giving Israel a chance by seeing how the offender will behave. This was an effort made by the Arab states and peace-loving nations for the sake of solving the Middle East problem by peaceful means.

The Israeli invasion of Lebanon and the bloody slaughter of Palestinian civilians in West Beirut have aroused the righteous anger of the international community. The Arab states mulled over the question of throwing Israel out of the United Nations, a completely just action. The Chinese people resolutely stand by the side of the Arab states. The Arab states' challenge to the Israeli delegate's letter of plenipotentiary powers was the inevitable response to the Begin government's policy of aggression. Previous UN General Assembly sessions on many occasions passed resolutions demanding sanctions against Israel. This was absolutely merited by Israel's crimes, which she implemented of her own free will.

In this situation, the United States, which has all along connived at and protected Israel, hurried to express resolute opposition, going so far as to threaten certain countries: If they support the move of the Arab states, the United States will cut off economic aid to them. U.S. Secretary of State Shultz declared that if the UN General Assembly and organs affiliated to the United Nations adopted proposals to kick out Israel, the United States would withdraw from these organizations and cease funding them. These U.S. moves fully revealed its superpower hegemonist features.

Basing their actions on the overall situation, the Arab states decided not to challenge the Israel delegate's credentials this year. However, they and several score other states have written a letter to the session chairman reserving their opinion of the Israeli delegate's letter of plenipotentiary powers for the 37th UN General Assembly session. If Israel continues to ignore the serious warnings of the international community, she will bear responsibility for all the consequences arising therefrom.

It must be pointed out that Israel is an aggressive force that has grown completely under the aegis of the United States, and that the United States bears an unshirkable responsibility for the Israeli crimes of aggression and expansion. If the United States genuinely wants to make efforts to establish peace in the Middle East, then it must take the side of reason and justice, show more understanding and sympathy for the Arab and Palestinian peoples, compel the Israeli forces to withdraw immediately and unconditionally from Lebanon and from all Arab territory, including Jerusalem, which they have occupied since 1967, recognize the right of the Palestinian people to return to and build their homeland, and thus provide the essential conditions for an overall and just solution of the Middle East problem.

RENMIN RIBAO EXAMINES MIDDLE EAST PEACE TALKS

HK270637 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 26 Oct 82 p 6

[Commentary by Lin Jiaomin [2661 4109 2494]: "New Trends of Mideast Peace Talks"]

[Text] Recently, the atmosphere in peace talks has once again become lively on the political stage of the Middle East and there has been an ever increasing demand for a complete, impartial and peaceful solution to the Palestinian issue.

In accordance with the resolution of the 12th Arab summit conference, a delegation of the Arab League headed by Morocco's King Hassan II is now visiting the United States and "exchanging views and ideas" with President Reagan.

The delegation will also visit other member countries of the UN Security Council to seek a new road for the peaceful settlement of the Middle East issue.

Reportedly, while in the United States King Hassan II expressed that the conflict between the Arab countries and Israel "has entered a new stage: It is no longer an armed conflict but a conflict over the issue of law and power." He revealed that the Arab countries wish to coexist with Israel peacefully if Israel gives up the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip and returns to its own border area before the 1967 war. Visits to other countries by the delegation of the Arab League and the declaration of its principled stand have fully expressed the sincere desire of the Arab countries to solve the Middle East issue peacefully. The Reagan administration keeps on talking about a peaceful settlement of the issue but has unscrupulously refused to acknowledge the PLO and meet its members in the delegation. All this has clearly shown the true meaning of Reagan's "peaceful proposal."

Both the delegation of the Arab League and the United States have declared that the meeting was not a negotiation but an exchange of ideas. U.S. President Reagan seemed quite optimistic after the meeting, saying it was a foundation for peace talks in the future. King Hassan II also expressed some positive ideas in his statement. However, people still find it difficult to ascertain whether it is the beginning of future peace in the Middle East.

World public opinion unanimously holds that any peace talks on the Middle East issue will be inconclusive without the participation of the PLO. But the United States has adhered to a pivotal point, that is, the Arab countries must "first of all" explicitly recognize the existence of Israel. This is unreasonable. West European countries have held that the Arab countries and Israel should recognize each other simultaneously. People have noticed that the Arab countries have adopted a clear stand on the issue, that is, Israel will not be recognized until it returns all the occupied territories to them.

However, it is none other than Israel that has stubbornly clung to its expansionist policy, refused to acknowledge the legal national rights of the Palestinian people and continued to forcibly occupy the homeland of the Palestinian people and the terroritories of other Arab countries. The Begin government has turned down the peaceful proposals raised respectively by the Arab summit conference and the Reagan administration for the settlement of the Middle East issue and this has shown that the stubborn position of the Begin authorities remains the stumbling block in solving the Middle East issue. If the Reagan administration really wishes to promote the peace talks, it should first of all force the Begin government to change its position.

In the wake of the Lebanon war, the Reagan administration has repeatedly expressed that there is now an "opportunity which should not be missed" to achieve peace and stability in the Middle East. However, no practical action has been taken by it. According to analyses of some public opinion around the world, the essence of the U.S. policy on the Middle East issue is that the United States should maintain the "trend of peace talks" in the area, firmly grasp the Middle East "card" and not harm Israel's "fundamental interests." As a matter of fact, it is the U.S. Government that should not miss the opportunity.

Another feature of the lively atmosphere in the Middle East peace talks is that a principled agreement has been reached by 'Arafat, chairman of the PLO, and King Husayn of Jordan on the establishment of a Jordan-Palestinian confederation. People have noticed that this is an important step to the establishment of an independent Palestinain state. The PLO has expressed that it will form a "confederation" with Jordan provided a Palestinian state is established. If this proposal is finally approved by the National Committee of the PLO, the future Palestinian state will have a basic embryonic form, bearing some similarities to the six-point proposal raised by Reagan.

It is due to this that the United States attaches great importance to the Jordan-Palestine agreement. The United States has repeatedly disclosed its intention to hold a "new Camp David summit" attended by the United States, Egypt, Jordan and Israel "at the earliest possible time." However, Jordan's Foreign Minister Marwan al-Qasim made a declaration on 19 October that only with the endorsement of the Arab countries will Jordan join the process for peace in the Middle East. It is thus clear that it is hardly possible for the United States to pull Jordan into the new process for peace without the understanding and support of the seven-member committee of the Arab League.

AMBASSADOR PRESENTS CREDENTIALS IN JORDAN

OW251730 Beijing XINHUA in English 1643 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 25 (XINHUA) -- Huang Shixie, newly-appointed Chinese ambassador to the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan, presented this morning a letter of credence to King Husayn ibn Talal at the Ra'dan palace in Amman, according to a report from Amman.

PENG CHONG MEETS TUNISIAN RED CRESCENT GROUP

OW271554 Beijing XINHUA in English 1521 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 27 (XINHUA) -- Peng Chong, vice-chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress, met here this afternoon with a delegation from the Red Crescent Society of Tunisia led by its president, Dr. Ali Fourati.

Qian Xinzhong, president of the Red Cross Society of China, was present on the occasion.

NI ZHIFU RECEIVES BOTSWANA TRADE UNION GROUP

OW261312 Beijing XINHUA in English 1257 GMT 26 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 26 (XINHUA) -- Ni Zhifu, president of the All-China Federation of Trade Unions, met and had a cordial talk with a delegation from Botswana Federation of Trade Unions led by I. Mabiletsa.

The delegation arrived here yesterday at the invitation of the host federation.

TEXT OF ZHAO SCIENCE AWARDS CONFERENCE SPEECH

OW271405 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1508 GMT 26 Oct 82

["Text of Zhao Ziyang's speech at the national science and technology awarding conference on 24 October 1982, entitled: 'A Strategic Question in Vigorous Economic Development'" -- XINHUA headline; speech carried on p 1, 2 of 27 October RENMIN RIBAO]

[Text] Beijing, 26 Oct (XINHUA) -- Comrades: You have done excellent work. The party and government want to thank you and offer you their warm greetings.

Now, I would like to express some views and discuss, together with you comrades, four questions which are closely related with economic construction and scientific and technological work.

China's gross annual value of industrial and agricultural production in 1980 was 710 billion yuan. While steadily working for more and better economic results, it is necessary to quadruple this gross annual value to 2,800 billion yuan or so in the year 2000. This is a joint strategic target for the economic front, the scientific and technological front, and other fronts in the entire nation. What are our financial and material conditions? Can these conditions ensure the implementation of the aforementioned target? These are issues of general interest. As far as funds, energy and material resources are concerned, a general concept is: We have the conditions. We may also say that we do not have these conditions. Funds and energy and material resources are insufficient to a serious extent if calculations are made on the basis of the technical and economic targets that we have already fulfilled. However, if all the sectors of our national economy can raise the various technical and economic norms to a new level in construction for 20 years by gradually transforming themselves to make full use of new technology, we would have funds and energy and material resources to ensure the task of quadrupling the gross annual value of industrial and agricultural production.

All the energy we generated in 1980 was equivalent to 630 million dun of standard coal. We precisely relied on these 600 and more million dun of fuel and energy sources to achieve the over 700 and more billion yuan gross annual production value. At the end of this century, energy supplies can be doubled, by and large. If we double our energy supplies, can we quadruple our gross production value? Yes and no. If we calculate on the basis of the current ratio between the gross production value and energy supplies and if we continue to remain at the current technical level, it is possible for us only to double our gross production value. However, things would be different if we were to raise the ratio between the gross production value and energy supplies to a new level by means of advanced technology. As seen from the ratio between energy consumption and the gross national production output value, we are backward among the developing nations, let alone the developed nations. The annual energy consumption in Japan is now about the same as China, that is, about 600 million dun of standard coal. However, the Japanese gross national production output value is 3-4 times of ours. Naturally, there are some factors because of which we cannot compare ourselves with Japan. For example, the structure of energy is different. So is the product mix. However, the tremendous difference is mainly because Japan's technological level is much higher than ours. Even at the end of this century, we will still be unable to reach that kind of technological level. However, we should strive to realize the 2800 billion yuan gross production value by using 1.2 billion dun of standard coal. In order to reach this kind of new level, it is not enough to rely on a few enterprises, a single trade or several trades to raise their technological level. All facilities with high energy consumption used by all trades and professions throughout the nation must be replaced. This is not enough. All trades and professions must also carry out a series of major technical transformations to change the technological process and the product mix. Only by so doing, will it be possible to lower energy consumption on a large scale.

Comrades in the Ministry of Metallurgical Industry have made some study and formed a preliminary concept. By using new technology and changing the product mix, they can double their production output and increase economic results by more than 100 percent in China's metallurgical industry without greatly increasing energy consumption. Therefore, it is necessary to rely on science and technology in making up for the shortage in energy. When a planning conference was held every year in the past, everyone asked the energy department or the planning department for help and vied with one another for more energy supplies. I believe that a new situation will definitely prevail in the future. All trades and professions will attach importance to science and technology and ask the scientists and technicians in the country and those who are attending this conference to provide advanced technology to exploit and save energy. You comrades must be mentally prepared. A similar situation also prevails in material supplies. Cement, lumber, metals, synthetic material, all kinds of new materias and substitute materials must be produced by developing science and technology. Those departments that produce materials will ask you for help and ask you to provide them with the advanced technology for producing more and better materials so that one dun of new material can do the work of several dun of old materials. Those departments that use materials would also ask you for help and ask you to provide them with the designs, technology, equipment and products to lower material consumption. Therefore, to cope with the shortage in energy and materials, it is necessary to rely on scientific and technological progress.

Funds are still in great demand. This tense situation would continue for some time. We have a weak foundation and very little money. To achieve the goal of, first feeding the people and, second, building the country, we must make overall planning and do things according to our own capabilities. The problem is that our present economic results are still very poor. Let us take capital construction as an example. One yuan of investment in capital construction results in only 70 to 80 fen of fixed assets and in state-run industrial enterprises is equivalent only to 96 fen of production value. If we remain at the current level in technology and in economic results, we must quadruple our investments in order to quadruple the output value. Twenty years later, not much of our existing fixed assets will be left, due to wear and tear. In addition, we cannot start production even if we have fixed assets. We still need circulating funds. The circulating funds in our state-run industrial enterprises are now equivalent to one-quarter of our fixed assets. If we calculate on this basis, how much funds do we need to raise in 20 years! Now our annual revenues are only a little over 100 billion yuan. Naturally China's financial resources would gradually increase in 20 years. However, there is always a limit. If we are bent on feverishly increasing our investments in fixed assets, we must inevitably curtail consumption. This will once again bring about imbalance in our economy, create a very tense situation and cause chaos in our economic activities. Where is our way out? The way out lies in the improvement of management and the adoption of advanced technology. Management is a branch of science. It is our weak link at present. Management improvement will bring about quick results in tapping our tremendous potentials. Today, I mainly want to discuss questions with regard to production technology. Technological progress would also make money. Major technological progress can often make big money for the state. The State Council recently organized some experts to discuss how to make good use of 100 million dun of petroleum. The preliminary conclusion drawn by the group of experts is: Greater efforts must be made to strengthen the work of processing and multipurpose utilization in our petroleum refinery and petrochemical industries. By doing a good job in this respect, we will be able to increase our revenues by 10 billion yuan a year. The Capital Iron and Steel Company is a well-run enterprise. It has done excellent work in all fields. After organizing all the workers to conduct a mass debate, it has decided to carry out 12 major technical innovations in 3 years. It has decided not to ask the state for help. Instead, it will raise the money needed for technical innovations from its own accumulated fund and from the economic benefits as a result of these technical innovations. In addition to the taxes paid to the state, it is also prepared to deliver 1.05 billion yuan of profits to the state in 3 years -- amounting to the total value of its existing fixed assets.

Chiefly by relying on science and technology, Xiangfan Municipality, Hubei Province, doubled its gross value of industrial output in 3 years from 1979 to 1981, while the profit and tax turned over to the state by this municipality were more than doubled. From this example we can see what a great effect advanced technology can have on boosting economic benefits. In view of our fund availability, when calculated on the basis of the present technical and economic norms, there will be a relatively big shortage of funds if we are to ensure the quadruplication of the gross annual value of industrial and agricultural production. This shortage must be solved by advance in science and technology.

This is a state of affairs where we can have either adequate or inadequate financial and material conditions. If we base ourselves on the old technology, our financial and material conditions will be inadequate for quadrupling the gross annual value of our industrial and agricultural production. If we strive to switch to an advanced technological basis, we will be able to use more effectively our financial and material resources and create more wealth in society. In that case, our conditions will be adequate for quadrupling the gross annual value of industrial and agricultural production. Why don't we set our strategic objective entirely on the basis of the conditions we have now according to the present technical and economic norms? If we do so, we are marking time, and we will have the "advantage" of easy work but can make no advance. In that case, it will be impossible to realize modernization.

The above leads to this conclusion: With old technology, equipment, materials, processes and products and by adhering to the technical and economic norms we have now attained, it will be impossible to quadruple the gross output value. In contrast, if we have new technology, equipment, materials, processes and products, we can quadruple the gross output value. By not relying on progress in science and technology, there is a danger that our objective may fall through, whereas by relying on it, the realization of this objective may be assured. The documents of the 12th CPC National Congress said that we should "strive" to quadruple. When we say we shall "strive" to reach the goal, we mean first of all to strive for progress in science and technology.

Because of this, industry, agriculture and all other trades and professions as well as all factories, old and new, must grasp the technical progress link and shift production toward a new and advanced technical basis. As we have often said, in carrying out economic construction from now on, we should not stick to the old road but follow a new one; we should not lay our bet on enlarging extension [wai yan 1120 1693] but should rely on intension [nei han 0355 3211] in the main. It goes without saying that we still must build factories with an advanced technical level in a planned manner in the future. However, as China is so large, modernization cannot be realized by simply building a handful of new modernized plants. This is very important and must be clearly understood. Old plants must carry out technical reform. This old plants are comparable to a boundless ocean. If the appearance of this boundless ocean remains unchanged and always settles in a backward state, it would be impossible to bring the entire technical and economic targets to an advanced level. On the other hand, the new plants must not only be built and equipped with advanced technology, but must also continue to use even more advanced technology after their completion. With the technical aging period becoming shorter and shorter, even more advanced technology will lag behind in several years. Enterprises that fail to achieve technical progress have no future and will certainly become obsolete. From now to the end of this century, all economic departments must be switched to a new technological basis step-by-step and in a planned way. Our hope lies in making this important task a success.

Economic prosperity must rely on progress in science and technology. This must be taken as the basic guiding ideology for economic construction from now on. Once it is put into use in production, advanced science and technology will become a powerful and dynamic social productive force. This is a fundamental principle of Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong Thought. Comrade Deng Xiaoping has discussed this principle on many occasions. At the recent 12th CPC National Congress, Comrade Hu Yaobang also stressed the question of science and technology.

We should put these ideas into practice in economic construction. If we are to carry out modernization seriously, we must depend on progress in science and technology. All ministers, governors, mayors, magistrates and plant managers must depend on policies and on science and technology in leading economic work. How can leading cadres rely on science and technology? The main thing that they have to do is to implement the party's principle and policy. For the time being, this can be summed up in four sentences: 1) the initiative of scientific and technological personnel must be brought into play. 2) Research projects must be put forward on the scientific and technological front. 3) Good working conditions must be provided for scientific research work. 4) The application of research results in production must be facilitated. Many comrades are not too familiar with many of these things. However, because we want to quadruple the target and pursue modernization, we must learn to do this work that we are not too familiar with but which is hard and important; we must study it earnestly and carry it out in a practical way. From now on, all leading financial and economic departments including financial, banking and commercial departments must include those comrades in the leadership who have scientific knowledge and are eager to promote science and technology. Otherwise, we will be facing a mental block and cannot implement policies well. Now is the right time to raise such questions without further delay.

This is the first question that I have to explain. It is a question on the guiding ideology for economic construction; that is, in carrying out modernization, invigorating the economy and quadrupling the gross annual value of industrial and agricultural production, we must rely on progress in science and technology.

The second question is the guiding ideology in doing scientific and technological work. While economic construction relies on science and technology, how should scientific and technological work be carried out? Scientific and technological work must be geared to the needs of economic construction. Scientific and technological workers must plunge into the great practice of socialist modernization, especially the practice of economic construction. Scientific research covers a wide area of activities, and there are numerous tasks to be carried out. The primary task is to study key scientific and technological projects of great benefit to economic construction. Scientists and technicians must make contributions in every field. The most important contributions to be made by scientists and technicians are those that promote progress in production technology and increase economic results.

All this is what we have talked about previously. It was contained in the principle for developing science and technology laid down by the CPC Central Committee and the State Council last year. Why is the same old theme brought up again at this time? First, it represents the state's need and the people's wish. Quadruplication of the gross annual value of industrial and agricultural production must rely on progress in science and technology, and everyone holds great expectations for the achievements of scientific and technological workers. Second, our science and technology are not developing evenly in all fields. We have achieved a very high level in some very hard theoretical projects and sophisticated technology but are rather backward in production technology, which turns out large quantities of products and which covers a great variety of fields. We must focus our attention on developing new technology, processes and products and on assimilating and applying on a wide scale the advanced scientific and technological research results and organize those who are engaged in research and development, in studying ways to apply research results and in basic research to catch up as quickly as possible. Third, in our country, scientific and technological personnel are few in number, and scientific research funds are limited and must not be wasted. It is imperative to draw up a list of priorities according to importance and urgency and use our extremely precious manpower, funds and materials in the right place instead of scattering them. Fourth, since we have now emphatically pointed out that economic construction must rely on science and technology, we must simultaneously stress that our scientific and technological work must be geared to the needs of economic construction. Harmonious mutual reliance and active cooperation will bring about success in fulfilling the common strategic objective. Because of the above four realistic reasons, it is entirely necessary to reiterate the old theme.

If we make science and technology serve economic construction, will the development of science and technology be adversely affected? In my opinion, the development of science and technology will not be adversely affected but, instead, will prosper. Science and technology are a productive force because they can be applied to production and their actual role can be brought into full play. Scientific and technological modernization constitutes the key because it can be used to solve difficult problems in developing modernization. Making science and technology serve economic construction is aimed precisely at making science and technology play an even greater and better role. We must strengthen the study of applied science and attach importance to the study of basic sciences. Projects of applying research achievements and those of developing scientific research are both basically aimed at serving production. Many projects of basic research may also indirectly serve production. Thus, the overwhelming majority of projects can be applied to production, directly or indirectly. The practice of making science and technology serve economic construction can bring about prosperity in those areas where scientific and technological development is more needed. Of course, in the field of basic research there are some projects which at present cannot be applied to production. We should respect the work of those comrades who are particularly good at doing research in such projects and let them feel at ease and continue their work. However, at least at the present stage, we cannot assign more manpower to do work in these fields. Investigation of the development of science and technology in various countries of the world reveals a general phenomenon: In countries with a relatively developed economy, the work of science, technology and education is also relatively developed. Why? This is because they have real economic strength; in other words, they have money to run schools and develop scientific and technological projects, and they have better scientific research facilities and have more people to do scientific research work.

Economy is the foundation. Without a sound economy, it is impossible to develop science and technology. After the state achieves its goal of quadrupling the industrial and agricultural output value and its economic strength become relatively solid, things will be much easier. By then, we may have more manpower for doing basic research than at present. However, we cannot put too much manpower into doing basic research now. Because the number of our scientists and technicians is limited due to the restrictions of objective conditions, we must organize the overwhelming majority of them to participate in economic construction. In this way, our country will become well-off sooner. In this way, we will not only be able to guarantee the accomplishment of the most important task of quadrupling our industrial and agricultural output value and first develop the urgently needed sciences and technologies, we will also be able to lay a fairly solid economic foundation for all-round prosperity of China's science and technology in the future.

Therefore, I think that to clearly put forward the guiding principle that science and technology must serve economic construction is correct and necessary. It is conducive to the development of national economy as well as the development of science and technology.

If you agree with me, I would like to elaborate on how to organize scientific and technological work according to this guiding principle.

In my opinion, we should do at least three things. According to this guiding principle: 1) We should decide upon the tasks and projects of scientific research. 2) We should readjust the scientific research system and scientific research force. 3) We should improve the system of evaluation and the awards policy for the scientific and technological personnel. All three things are important and must be done. Today, I am only assigning the subjects. Then who is going to write the articles? They will be written by the State Scientific and Technological Commission in conjunction with the departments concerned. They can write three good articles if they follow this explicit guiding principle and the mass line to pool the wisdom of the masses. Today, I would like to present some preliminary views. Let us discuss the second and the third things first and deal with the first thing later.

The existing scientific research system falls short of the needs of economic construction and the scientific research units are not rapidly informed of the difficult scientific and technological problems confronting economic construction and requiring immediate solutions. The production units do not know much about the achievements made by scientific research units. The scientific research forces in various fields are not well organized, nor do they coordinate well with each other. Several dozen units are repetitively working on the same low-level research projects while no one takes care of projects that can yield good economic results. Various departments rival each other. It is said that some of them even counteract each other's efforts and block each other. This is not good. I am afraid that this may have something to do with unhealthy thinking and work style in addition to problems concerning the research system. The distribution of our scientific and technological forces is also unreasonable. Some units are overstaffed while others are understaffed, particularly in need of more first-line scientific and technological personnel. The personnel composition of some scientific research units is not in proper proportion. Some scientific research institutes in fact have only a few scientific and technological personnel. Such problems have existed for a long time, but they will obstruct our work if we let them drag on. I think that the problems concerning the scientific research system must be solved step by step through overall planning. We must be prudent in handling problems that affect large areas. We must not upset the important research projects. Readjustments that are of great benefit to work should be made promptly. It may be necessary to first consider the following.

1. It is necessary to establish technical development centers in some trades. Do not establish too many, but we must run them well and make them truly work. Their tasks must be clearly defined. In other words, the technical development center of a trade should concentrate on the technical transformation, technical development planning and the development of new techniques and new products for the trade and truly work as a production technique development center to serve society. We do not have to set up all the technical development centers in Beijing. Their staffs should be complete and well-trained. To establish the technical development centers, we may use the existing scientific research organizations of industrial departments or large enterprises as the bases and strengthen them with additional personnel. If the manpower of a certain department is indeed insufficient, the scientific research organizations of other departments should energetically support it with outstanding scientific and technical personnel. We also may recruit technical development personnel through examinations or recommendation and then select qualified people from among the applicants. Surplus personnel and personnel whose jobs are not commensurate with their specialities in a unit should be allowed to leave. The technical development centers should serve their respective trades, particularly the medium-sized and small enterprises. Some technical development centers may be organized by a department while others may be organized by more than one department, with a certain department as the principal organizer.

2. Major specialized corporations and major enterprises, particularly the large major enterprises selected to carry out key technical innovations, may also follow the above-mentioned practice to establish or strengthen their own technical development centers with the approval of the departments concerned under the State Council. They will mainly serve their own enterprises, while they may also work on some scientific research projects for other enterprises. Such technical development centers should not be too numerous either. We should first establish some on a trial basis and then set up more after the first group proves successful.

3. We can encourage cooperation between scientific research units and production units without having to upset their established system or changing their affiliation. According to the situation, the cooperation may be in the form of "coordinated process of scientific research, designing, production and services," "association of scientific research, designing and production, " comprehensive experimental base for agricultural modernization, scientific research contract, technical consultation or concurrent jobs.

The academies of sciences, colleges and scientific research units with adequate scientific and technological manpower may organize their scientific and technological personnel to support and help in a planned way the enterprises with little scientific and technological force. The support personnel retain their affiliation with their parent units. Many of our scientific and technological personnel have long been eager to make more contributions to economic construction, but they have not been given the opportunities. I think that we should open the "door" to them to enable all scientists and technicians with remarkable achievements and great aspirations to contribute freely their wisdom and talents in the great undertaking of economic construction.

As for the awards system, we have had a regulation governing the awards for inventors. We have also had a regulation governing awards for those who make outstanding achievements in natural sciences. It is precisely in accordance with these two regulations that the comrades have been selected to receive the awards today.

Your excellent work has enriched our treasure house of knowledge and created material wealth. Many comrades have created enormous material wealth. Concerning the inventions which receive awards today, 13 of them can yield annual economic results amounting to over 10 million yuan each and 6 of them over 100 million yuan each. What a great contribution an invention can make when it can produce such results in a year! With indomitable determination and perseverence, you have scaled the heights of science and technology and won honor for our motherland. Your achievements are a great encouragement to the people throughout the country engaged in the modernization program.

I also want to point out that the existing system of evaluation and awards policy for the scientific and technological personnel are not good enough. Although many scientists, technicians, workers, peasants and management personnel have made no inventions nor discoveries, they have worked in a creative way at various posts in developing new techniques, new technology and new products; in applying scientific and technological achievements to production; and in doing cultivation, breeding, mine prospecting, designing, construction, manufacturing, and technical management work as well as in quality control and standardization, measurement, testing, labor protection, medical care and public health, environmental improvement, supplies storage, telecommunications and transportation, and scientific and technical data collection. They have also made important and even outstanding contributions to promoting technological progress and enhancing economic results. We have invited over 100 such comrades to attend today's meeting as observers. We would like to salute and thank the thousands upon thousands of such comrades throughout the country!

Regulations should be laid down for rewarding them for their technological achievements. Based on their technological achievement and their contributions to economic results, some of them should be rewarded by enterprises and others by localities or departments or even by the state.

In giving awards, we must not practice egalitarianism, nor must we pay attention to saving face or to seniority but to contributions to technological progress and economic results. In particular, those who have made major contributions under extremely difficult circumstances should be rewarded. Scientists and technicians should be assessed, and problems such as those concerning their professional or technical titles, wages and working conditions should be handled mainly according to their respective contributions to technological progress and economic results. In addition, various awarding policies and measures should be laid down to encourage scientists and technicians to work in industrial and mining enterprises, rural and border areas or where they are most needed in economic construction. The number of our scientists and technicians is small. However, some units have failed to pay sufficient attention to them and to use them properly, thus preventing the scientists and technicians in those units from bringing their abilities into full play. Meanwhile, those units have also failed to show due concern for the scientists' and technicians' living and working conditions. This situation should be promptly changed. I believe that this practice is conducive to implementing the guiding ideology in scientific and technological work, to mobilizing the whole society to show concern for technological progress and economic results and to developing economic construction.

The third question is the organizing of scientists and technicians to participate in planning and tackling major problems. We intend to improve our planning work. There is plenty of room for improvement. Here, I will mention only the following three points:

1. The improvements should be aimed at effecting better coordination among economic construction, science and technology, and social development.

2. The improvements should be aimed at having a broad vision, and at making long-range plans, general concepts and major policies. It is because we cannot solve many problems, particularly the most vital problems in the fiscal year, not even in our five-year plan. Now we are developing the 10-year plan for the development of the national economy. In science and technology, we must have a broad vision and make plans up to the end of this century.

3. The improvements should be aimed at formulating the national plan even better on the basis of the plan for developing various trades, the plan for developing various economic zones and the plan for developing technical transformation in key enterprises. Therefore, we need to mobilize a large force to do planning in all fields and at all levels. To do planning actually means to conduct investigation and study. In order to overcome blindness in our action, we must systematically study the prospects for the future development of various trades and professions, economic zones and key enterprises. Our efforts in this respect are worthwhile.

Then, what kind of plans must scientists and technicians be mobilized to make? Scientists and technicians must participate in making plans for all the abovementioned fields. Scientists and technicians must not only participate in working out plans for science and technology, but also in formulating the national plan. However, the number of scientists and technicians is limited, after all. Therefore, I believe it is necessary to emphatically point out that scientists and technicians must be organized to participate in making plans for various trades, zones and key enterprises.

Planning for the development of various trades is extremely important. If one does not plan far ahead, one will have immediate cause for worry. We must not cure only where the pain is, nor should we mechanically perform our calculations on the basis of a certain graduated rate, because these calculations are unreliable.

In doing planning for the development of various trades, we should not pay attention only to production output. The important thing is to think about what direction we must follow in development, what technical level we must reach and what kind of policies we must adopt with regard to technology and equipment. We must conduct investigation and study thoroughly, calmly and in an overall manner; think systematically; and form a general concept and overall plan. On the issue of orientation, we must make some major policies according to the requirements of macro-economics and the internal relations among all trades and professions in developing themselves. We should scientically discuss, based upon China's particular situation, the production technology level to be reached by the year 2000. Some preliminary deliberations have been made throughout the country with regard to technical progress. During the deliberations, the following idea has emerged: Can we basically popularize, among China's industrial and mining enterprises before the turn of this century, those advanced production techniques already universally adopted by the economically developed countries during the 1970's and early 1980's, which meet the needs of China; and form a technical system suited to China's particular conditions? This is a major issue.

We must proceed from reality, study carefully and prudently expound and prove before we make any decision. It is impossible to make an immediate decision. Nor are we in a hurry to do so. A national decision should be made by taking the needs of all trades and professions and all possible factors into consideration. A nationwide policy decision can be made more realistic and the implementation of this decision be ensured only when the goals of various trades and professions for their own development are clearly defined. The situation is different in each individual trade or profession. After all, what technical level can we reach? Instead of "vying with one another" in "catching up with and overtaking others," we must do things in a realistic manner. We must never demand uniformity in everything. We must also conduct specific analyses within certain trades. For example, the machine-building industry is a department that provides us with equipment. It should adequately march ahead of others. However, we do not need to follow others as far as many large farm machines are concerned. If our orientation and goal are unclear, our policies with regard to technology and equipment will be vacillating, and we will not know what course to take in tackling major problems. After plans for various trades are finalized, they can be regarded as a foundation for the development of technical transformation in existing enterprises. In the future, if newly built factories fail to meet certain requirements laid down by the technical policy and fail to reach a certain technical level, they will not be permitted to go into operation. This constitutes a good way to prevent people from blindly engaging in construction work. Planning for a trade or profession is a major issue which cannot be tackled by relying on economic workers alone. Scientists and technicians must join the economic workers in studying this issue.

Aside from making plans for the existing trades and professions, we must also think it over in establishing new trades and professions. For example, the issue of establishing the fodder trade should be included in our daily agenda. Also, for example, should we establish the trade of developing computer software on the basis of our actual situation? If it is necessary to do so, what kind of steps should we take. We have held discussions many times to decide, on the basis of China's special conditions, what trades we may establish -- trades in which we occupy a dominant position in natural resources and for which we have ample technology and manpower. Now is the time to work out plans.

Making plans for various zones does not mean that all provinces and counties must work out plans that will cover all aspects. More important is the fact that we must have some plans for the development of the delta of the Chang Jiang, the plan for the development of the zone and the heavy industrial and chemical industrial base areas with Shanxi as the center, as well as the plan for the development of various zones with large and medium-sized cities as the cores so that from these plans we may find some major directions and work out some major policy decisions. Many comrades who work in the field of science and technology offered some important points of view in this respect. Some of the viewpoints are basically identical, while some of them are not. We must weigh the advantages and disadvantages, use strong points to offset weaknesses, and adopt what is good.

Although there are 380,000 factories, mines and other kinds of enterprises in our country, only around 1,000 of them can be regarded as backbone enterprises in our national economy. The technology used by these backbone enterprises and the resulting economic benefits play a decisive role in the financial and economic conditions of our country. When we say that we should by and large popularize in our country the production technology which has been widely adopted in developed countries, the primary task is to popularize it among these backbone enterprises. In this connection, the State Council has decided, first of all, to work out a technical transformation plan covering a number of key and backbone enterprises, including the Anshan Iron and Steel Company. Under this plan, the enterprises will undergo technical transformation group by group at different times.

I have said that scientific and technological work should serve economic construction. Now comrades on the economic front are encountering many problems in drawing up work plans.

It is necessary to ask scientific and technological personnel to "serve" them by discussing the plans with them so as to solve the problems through concerted efforts. This should not only involve comrades engaged in research and development and in studying ways to apply the research results, but also those who are doing basic research so that they can see how the plans concern their own specialties and what contributions their specialized knowledge can make to economic construction. By participating in planning, scientists and technicians can play their role in at least the following two aspects:

1. They can contribute their own knowledge and play a role as advisers.

2. They can understand the actual situation in economic construction and the present and future needs. With this knowledge, they can have a more comprehensive and accurate view in deciding on the orientation, key points and projects for the work in their own fields.

The next task is to tackle key technical problems. Personnel engaged in research and development, in studying ways to apply research results and in basic research, should all be organized to tackle the difficult problems on science and technology encountered in planning. This matter should not be held up until the entire plan has been worked out. It should be done when a portion of the plan has been formulated. Now there is one thing I want to say: We should broaden our view rather than understand the meaning of tackling key technical problems in the narrow sense. First, feasibility studies and other preparatory work for major projects should be included in the task of tackling key technical problems. There are many scientific and technological problems in this regard. If a major policy decision is inappropriate, it will often have an extremely serious and irretrievable impact on economic results. Second, tackling key technical problems at home and introducing technologies from abroad should be coordinated with each other. They should not be duplicated, nor should they be divorced from each other. Most problems should be tackled at home. As regards some problems which require too much time and money if they are studied at home, we should introduce technologies from abroad to seek solutions. Assimilation of the technologies introduced from abroad should be regarded as a task of tackling difficult problems and should be carried out in a down-to-earth way as in the case of research work done at home.

Tackling key technical problems is not the end. Once research results are achieved, they should be quickly applied and popularized. In the past we did have many research results, but we did not fully use and popularize them. It is necessary to transfer scientific and technological research results from the laboratories to production, from sole military use to use for both military and civilian purposes, from coastal areas to the interior, and from foreign countries to our country. All aspects, from intermediate experiment, industrial experiment and small-scale production to large-scale production and wide popularization, should be linked up. In transferring technologies, it is necessary to promote the fine style of socialist cooperation and oppose the unhealthy practice of blocking the transfer of technologies. At the same time, it is necessary to respect the labor of the units as well as of the scientists and technicians in achieving research results and to protect their reasonable interests.

In carrying out the current task of making plans and tackling key technical problems, it is imperative to work seriously instead of acting perfunctorily. Even though a plan for a certain trade is of a forecast nature, it must be made on a reliable foundation by seeking truth from facts, because it will be used by the state as a basis to make policy decisions. Once they are approved and decided upon, technical transformation plans for key factories and major scientific research projects will be included in the state plan. All these are very serious matters. Many comrades have said that there should be conditions to guarantee the work of tackling key technical problems. This opinion is reasonable. There are two aspects in carrying out projects to tackle key technical problems. One is that necessary funds and scientific research conditions must be provided. The other is to implement a scientific research responsibility system so as to quickly turn out fruitful results which we can apply and which we can afford to apply. Great care should be exercised in deciding on the projects of tackling key technical problems. Projects without economic benefits should not be included in the work plan, and all projects listed as key ones should be those which can give considerable economic benefits within a certain period.

We should guard against the phenomenon of "key projects meaning great waste" and should try to raise the level of management and work efficiency in scientific research.

It is the leaders' responsibility to organize scientists and technicians to participate in making plans and tackling key technical problems. This is a large-scale organizing task which must be done methodically, step by step and according to proper arrangements. It is necessary to have unified planning and direction by an authoritative, efficient and compact organization that will coordinate work and forces in various quarters. The CPC Central Committee and the State Council will make a decision in this regard.

The number of our scientists and technicians is limited. This is a weak point. But ours is a socialist country. We have a good social system, and we can organize our forces to tackle key technical problems. This is where we are superior. In the 1950's we succeeded in organizing scientists and technicians to tackle key technical problems in producing semiconductors and computers and in sophisticated technology. In the 1960's we again succeeded in organizing scientists and technicians to tackle key technical problems in producing nine major types of machinery and electrical equipment. The current task of tackling key technical problems is more arduous and of greater significance than those in the past. Therefore, we should do our organizing work better than before. All scientists and technicians of the Academy of Sciences, institutions of higher learning, industrial departments, localities and other quarters constitute the state's scientific and technological force. We should break down the barriers between the various departments. All scientists and technicians, whether they play a leading role or a supporting one, should work together in close coordination according to the urgent needs of the state in order to attain the strategic objective of quadrupling the gross annual value of industrial and agricultural production. On the condition that they fulfill their tasks in defense construction, the departments of scientific research in the national defense field and defense industries should also organize a considerable scientific and technological force to participate in the work in this regard. I believe that a profound change will take place in science and technology as well as in the economic field if scientists and technicians are organized to participate in making plans and tackling key technical problems.

The fourth question is the motive force to propel technical progress in enterprises.

In the countryside, the implementation of various production responsibility systems characterized by rewards based on output has greatly aroused the enthusiasm of the 800 million peasants to learn and apply science. In view of this, how to raise the industrial enterprises' initiative in making progress in technology has become an even more impending and prominent question.

I think I should say something in fairness to the enterprises. Comrades of the enterprises are worried. They say that they lack three forces to work on new technology, namely, motive force, pressing force and real force. No advantage can be obtained by working on new technology -- this is a phenomenon of lack of motive force. It doew not matter if they do not work on new technology -- this indicates lack of pressing force. Even if they want to work on new technology, they have various difficulties such as too little funding for the trial-production of new products -- this means no real force. Last month I want to Kiaoning and heard that the Shenyang water pump factory made 22 new products, including 9 different types of high-efficiency energy-saving pumps, which could produce very good economic benefits for our society. However, because the price problem could not be solved, this factory lost some 300,000 yuan and gave smaller bonuses to the workers than they deserved. The workers thus had grievances. Now the Daqing oilfield has signed a contract to buy water pumps from this factory, agreeing to return to it a certain portion of the money saved through the use of these pumps. The problem has thus been solved after all. There are many problems like this. For example, a railraod switch factory under the Ministry of Railways has developed a new production process, increasing the service life of its product from 1 to 3 years. This is very good, but the factory has put aside the new production process for fear that it would receive fewer orders for the new product -- an outcome which would adversely affect the output value and, therefore, would not be in the interest of the factory.

If a few factories are not enthusiastic about making technical progress, it is easy to correct them. If many factories lack enthusiasm, we must examine our economic system and economic policies to find out the causes. Our current economic system has two fundamental shortcomings. One is that it cannot very effectively encourage enterprises to concern themselves with the needs of the society and the market. This has resulted in the divorce of production from demand. The other is that it cannot very effectively encourage enterprises to concern themselves with technical progress. This has resulted in what people usually describe as the "same old techniques for several decades." The two shortcomings are interrelated. Showing no concern for the market and no interest in new varieties, colors, and designs will dampen interest in new technology. On the other hand, new products cannot be produced without introducing new technology.

In the last 2 or 3 years, we have begun some initial reforms. However, the problems can only be solved step by step because they are complicated and difficult to deal with. We should make efforts to overcome the two above-mentioned shortcomings throughout the course of reforming the economic system. We should contemplate overall plans and various specific measures for reforming the economic system to overcome these two shortcomings. Overall, we should recheck our planning, economic policies and administrative measures in order to solve the problems step by step.

In planning we should solve the problem concerning targets. To take the total output as the primary target has a very big drawback which is detrimental to our efforts to lower material consumption and costs and apply new techniques. Collecting management fees by construction engineering enterprises according to the amount of engineering jobs also has a very big drawback. To our surprise, we have such a problem. We have developed the technique of heavy hammering and shallow ramming [zhong chui qian hang 6850 6925 3239 1137] and the relevant equipment to accelerate the engineering process and save materials and energy. However, engineering units are unwilling to apply the technique because it will reduce the amount of engineering jobs and thus cut back management fees. If we cannot find a way to effect a permanent cure for the moment, we should first consider the adoption of some temporary measures. It seems to me that the state plans should not only set the demands for producing new products and using new techniques, it should also set the demands for stopping the production of old products and banning the use of backward techniques. These demands should be explicitly set as primary items of evaluation.

It is necessary to solve economic policy problems in order to pave the way for technical progress. For example, we should find constant financial sources for the development of new products. We should extend bank loans to support the development of new techniques and new products in an even better way. We should implement a tax policy which encourages technical progress. We should study implementation of the principle of pricing according to quality and set high prices for products of good quality, low prices for products of low quality and penalty prices for old products of poor quality. The commercial, supply and foreign trade departments should improve the practice of having the exclusive right to buy and sell. The enterprises which produce new products should be given certain rights to market their own products. The enterprises which produce obsolete and poor products should not be allowed to muddle along. Many of our economic regulations obstruct technical progress. For instance, coal is shipped out without being washed because we have not solved the problem concerning setting a higher price for washed coal. As a result, millions of tons of rocks are shipped out with the coal each year, despite the strain on our transportation. Another example is taxes. Our national policy is to import more technology and fewer complete sets of equipment, but our tax policy is usually favorable to imports of equipment and unfavorable to imports of technology. Our economic policies should encourage technical progress and should not obstruct it.

I am citing these examples to point out some problems. By doing so, I am assigning the subjects. The articles are to be written by various departments concerned. Please do not confine yourselves to the problems which I have pointed out. You should aim at enhancing the enthusiasm of enterprises for technical progress, emancipate your minds and conduct an overall examination.

All departments concerned should write two articles -- the long-term plan and the short-term plan. They should not be written in the office. It is necessary to visit the enterprises and conduct some investigations and studies there before writing the articles. After the plans are finished, they should be sent to the enterprises for their perusal and comments. They should not be submitted to the State Council for examination and approval before the enterprises consider them good enough to solve the problems.

In short, we must solve the problems in a down-to-earth way in order to enhance the enthusiasm of the enterprises for technical progress. We should set a clear and definite orientation and solve a certain number of problems each year.

A meeting held by the State Council in September decided that a scheme of royalties for scientific and technological achievements will be implemented. In early October, the State Council decided that the scientific research spending in the early stage of a major construction project should be included in the capital construction investment. In the middle of October, the State Council held a meeting of the departments concerned. The meeting decided to solve the following practical problems:

1. The state-managed technical development funds for next year will be increased by 94 percent over the original budget.

2. Various industrial departments will study and make suggestions on how to readjust and increase the technical development funds in their hands.

3. In the past, the enterprises retained a portion of their profits for financing their development funds, collective welfare funds and awards funds. From now on, it should be used in four respects -- namely, the general development funds, the new product development funds, the collective welfare funds and the awards funds. The new product development funds must be spent on developing new technology and new products and are not permitted to be diverted to other purposes. The general development funds as well should be spent primarily on making technical progress and technical transformation. No attempt should be made to expand the production capacity on the basis of old techniques. A portion of the awards funds should be set aside to exclusively award the staff and workers who contribute to technical progress.

4. With the approval of the state, certain enterprises of machine-building industry doing research on new equipment may draw a certain amount of development funds according to output value or amount of sales. With the approval of higher authorities, industrial enterprises other than those of machine-building industry may phase their new product development spending into production costs within a prescribed time provided the development of new products is a planned project. Specific measures will be worked out separately.

5. The commodity price bureau should put forward a plan for setting price according to quality with high prices for good products and penalty prices for poor obsolete products and submit the plan to the State Council for approval before putting it into practice.

I hope that the five methods I have just mentioned can solve a number of problems. Fundamentally speaking, a problem exists regarding how to increase wealth and how to use capital. Nowadays, when it comes to general capital construction projects or projects for expanding processing capabilities, enterprises say that they have the money for and are interested in these projects. However, they say they have no money for key construction projects and technical development. The current malignant problem is a failure to make proper use of capital and undertake projects that require small investments, but yield high profits. If we can curb this practice, herein also lies our way out. After recognizing the truth that economic development must rely on advanced science and technology, all departments, areas and enterprises should apply this principle in using capital for creating wealth. That is, they should invest their capital in developing new technologies and then create more wealth by applying these technologies. The solution of this problem will enliven the scientific, technical and economic fronts. We have often talked about the necessity to promote benign cycles. This is also a kind of benign cycle.

Of course, in addition to problems in our economic system and economic policies, there are other problems in the composition of cadres and in the structure of the labor force in the enterprises that are hampering technical progress. I am not prepared to deal with these problems today.

Comrades! The four suggestions that I have dealt with today -- a vigorous economic development must rely on advanced science and technology, science and technology must be made to serve economic development, scientific and technical personnel should be organized to participate in planning work and in tackling key problems, and enterprises must enhance their enthusiasm for technical progress -- are questions concerning science, technology and economic development. In my opinion, these are not minor questions, but strategic questions concerning whether a vigorous economic development can be effected in our country. The 12th CPC National Congress has decided on a program for creating a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization. Each front is studying the best way to bring about its own new situation. If my suggestions can help the scientific, technological and economic fronts effect a new situation, my aim has been fulfilled.

SCIENTISTS VIEW ZHAO TECHNICAL PROGRESS REPORT

OW290459 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1313 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, 25 Oct (XINHUA) -- Scientists and technical workers should be dutybound to develop the economy and should rise to action, become organized and plunge into the great practice of socialist modernization and economic construction and make contributions toward promoting technical progress in production and raising economic results.

This was the common aspiration of all representatives attending the national science awarding conference in discussing Premier Zhao Ziyang's important report to the conference.

The representatives, greatly inspired after hearing Premier Zhao's report, held group meetings to enthusiastically discuss it on 24 and 25 October. A warm atmosphere prevailed in every conference room in the Chinese Academy of Sciences building. In groups, scientists who specialize in mathematics, physics, chemistry and astronomy vied with each other in discussing this question: Since economic construction depends on progress in science and technology, what should scientists and technical workers do? Wang Daheng, optics specialist, said: Premier Zhao's report, which systematically and comprehensively explained the close relations between the lofty goal of economic construction put forth by the 12th CPC National Congress and economic construction and scientific and technological work, is a guide to our scientific and technological work in the future. As a comprehensive research center of natural sciences in the country, the Chinese Academy of Sciences should find a way to create a new situation. We are currently facing this problem. He said: Under the current new situation, the Chinese Academy of Sciences should give priority to serving the national economy and national defense construction, and fully mobilize the initiative of all scientists and technical personnel to participate in planning and in tackling key problems. He believed that China will not only gain a foothold in the world in developing socialist spiritual civilization in the near future, but also make bounden contributions to mankind through material development.

In the course of discussion, the scientists unanimously said that there is a lot of room for science and technology to promote progress in production. Representative Niu Jingyi, one of the participants in developing synthetic bovine insulin and winner of the first-class natural science award, said: Premier Zhao pointed out in his report that a most important task for scientists and technical workers is to make contributions toward promoting technical progress in production and improving economic results. I was deeply inspired. In synthesizing insulin, we should apply the method of synthesizing polypeptide, synthesize more polypeptide hormones and promote its role in medicine, public health and fishery. In the meantime, the work in these fields should also help technical renovation in production and create conditions for producing more comprehensive and complicated protein. After the conference, we shall further study how to apply these new methods in tackling key problems in medicine, public health, agriculture and animal husbandry which bear on the national economy, and make new contributions.

Representative Ye Shuhua, female astronomer and winner of the natural science award, said: The origin and development of science links with production from the very start. Premier Zhao's call for gearing scientific and technological work toward economic construction is not only beneficial to production but also helps develop science and technology. She said that the questions expounded in Premier Zhao's report were very farsighted. All worthwhile scientists and technical workers should clearly realize this goal and unite as one to participate in planning and in tackling key problems in close coordination with urgent problems in national construction so as to report to the party and the people with excellent results. Ma Shiji, noted ecologist and winner of the natural science award, said: Premier Zhao's report charted a direction and spelled out tasks in light of actual condition in economic construction in our country. His report said what I wished to say. This old scientist, who has been dedicating his energy since the 1950's to eliminating the "plague of locusts in east Asia" that ruined our agricultural production for years, expressed firm belief after hearing the report that with the correct leadership of the party Central Committee and the support of the broad masses of the people, scientists and technical workers can surely shoulder the glorious and arduous tasks entrusted to them under the new situation.

CHINA DAILY CITES DENG ON ADVISORY COMMISSION

HK290250 Beijing CHINA DAILY in English 29 Oct 82 p 1

[Text] The job of the Communist Party's new Advisory Commission is to rejuvenate the party's leadership, and it will be disbanded when it has achieved this task, according to Deng Xiaoping.

Deng, who heads the commission, predicts in the literature of the CPC 12th party Congress, just released by the People's Publishing House, that the commission will last no more than 15 years.

The establishment of this commission is based on the realistic need of the party. It is also meant to enable old party members to continue their role after retiring from the "first line" of active duty, Deng noted.

Deng, who was elected chairman of the Central Advisory Commission at its first meeting on September 13, explained the role of the commission in a speech.

"It was our idea that the Advisory Commission should be, in a certain sense, a form of transitional structure. Our fundamental approach to solve this question is to set up a retirement system, which is essential to the basic structure of our state and our party," Deng said.

"We hope to resolve the transition of leadership from the old to the younger generation in about 10 years, and then we can do away with this advisory organ. So the Advisory Commission will last just 10 or 15 years at most.

"It will be a big success if we can achieve this end in 10 years. It would mean we had done a great service for the future of our country," Deng said.

The commission members should keep themselves in regular contact with the grassroot units, Deng said. If each member was in constant touch with a school, an institute or a county's party organ, they could be very useful in providing timely advice to the party's leadership.

Deng told the commission members that one of their important roles was to be a model of socialist ethics.

Because they were high-ranking cadres of the party, what they did and said was being watched carefully by the rank and file.

They should bear this in mind and try to give the people guidance by setting good examples, Deng said.

Another task facing the commission was to look into cases of serious economic crimes. Some members, upon request by the Secretariat of the party's Central Committee, would take part in investigating, supervising and handling such cases on the spot.

POPULATION OF MINORITY NATIONALITIES GROWS

OW271125 Beijing XINHUA in English 0752 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 27 (XINHUA) -- The total population of China's 55 minority nationalities on the mainland has grown to 67.23 million people, a 68.4 percent increase over the 1964 figure. This compares with an increase of only 43.8 percent for the majority Han nationality, according to the communique issued by the State Statistical Bureau here today.

There are now 15 minority nationalities that each has a population over one million while there were only 10 in 1964. The biggest of the 55 is the Zhuang nationality with a population of 13.38 million. The Hui nationality is next with 7.22 million. The Uygurs have 5.96 million people, the Mongolians, 3.41 million and the Tibetans 3.87 million. The smallest nationality, the Hezhe have only 1,476 people.

Li Chengrui, deputy of State Council's population census leading group and head of the census office, said today: "The increase in the population of the minority nationalities is the result of the raising of living standard and improved medical care which have been brought about by the government's policy on minority nationalities."

China's minority nationalities comprise only 6.7 percent of the total population, but live on about 60 percent of the nation's land area. China now has five minority nationality autonomous regions, 30 autonomous prefectures and 72 autonomous counties or banners.

State policy is to allow the population of minorities living in sparsely populated areas to increase, though family planning is also propagated among minorities who live in crowded areas. But birth control is not as vigorously propagated as it is among the Han nationality.

The economic and cultural development of the minorities has been making steady headway with the financial and material backing of the government as well as the dispatching of additional manpower.

In the Tibet Autonomous Region, the laboring people had very little medical care before 1949. Now free health care is provided by over 800 hospitals and clinics manned by 6,000 professionals and thousands of mobile medical teams have visited the people living in Tibet's remote areas in the past ten years.

With the central government's special appropriation of 5 billion yuan between 1952 and 1980, the region's economy has developed and the people's living standards have improved. The total population has now reached 1.89 million, while in 1959, it was only 1.23 million.

RENMIN RIBAO ON ECONOMY OF MINORITY REGIONS

HK270912 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 23 Oct 82 p 3

[Editorial: "Enliven and Develop the Economy of National Minority Regions"]

[Text] The trade fair exhibiting and selling commodities of daily use and products from the light and textile industries produced by the minority nationalities has closed victoriously. The varied and colorful products exhibited at the fair vividly reflected the excellent situation of economic development, a brisk market and improvements in people's livelihood in the national minority regions since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee. Great prospects for development have unfolded.

China is a unified multinational country. In addition to the Han nationality, there are 55 other minority nationalities with a total population of more than 60 million. The area they inhabit amounts to 50 to 60 percent of the total area of China. The area is large and rich in products, and possesses superior conditions for developing agriculture, forestry, animal husbandry, sideline production, fishery and a diversified economy. Since the founding of the PRC, the party and the state have led the different nationalities to rely on their own efforts in their endeavor to carry out economic construction. There has been an increase of 100 percent in the production output of agriculture, forestry and animal husbandry. Especially since the 3d plenary session of the 11th Central Committee, the party has paid special attention to work in the national minority regions. It has adopted a series of broader and more flexible economic policies than in the Han nationality regions to bring about new economic development in the national minority regions. In the 3 years from 1979 to 1981, there was an average increase of 5.5 percent in the gross annual value of agricultural production. Industry, finance and trade also expanded rapidly. Particularly in the light and textile industries, there was not only an increase in the quantity of production, but the color, variety and quality of the products were also notably improved. The economic income of all the various minority nationalities increases every year. Compared with the whole country, the economic bases in the national minority regions are still very weak because of historical factors and errors of work. The developmental level of their productive force is quite low. Compared with the culturally and economically advanced regions, they are not so well developed. This phenomenon is not commensurate with the status of the minority nationalities in our country.

The most important task of nationality work is to actively help national minority regions to develop production and make a success of economic construction. The economy is the foundation; if it is not well managed, it is impossible to do anything in the fields of education and culture. In his report to the 12th CPC National Congress, Comrade Hu Yaobang pointed out: "Unity, equality and common prosperity among the nationalities are of vital importance to the destiny of China as a multinational country." All fronts and departments should help the national minority regions develop economic construction and further strengthen support and technical coordination. Practice in the past few years has proven that support geared to the needs of the people is a good method of mobilizing forces from all departments to help the national minority regions develop their economy and culture. It requires only a very small amount of investment but returns are quick and profits are high. It promotes the common development and prosperity of all nationalities. In providing support geared to the needs of the people, provinces and municipalities with better cultural and economic development should use their superior knowledge in science, technology and business management to help the national minority regions establish enterprises and improve their techniques. They should also help them improve management, lower their rate of consumption, change losses to profits, train technical forces, and so on. As a result, the economic development in the national minority regions will be promoted. It is necessary to seriously summarize and exchange experiences so that there will be broader and deeper development.

In order to promote the economy of the national minority regions, it is necessary to correctly implement the party's principles and policies, promote the spirit of self-reliance, bear hardships and vigorously do pioneer work. Our minority nationalities have a glorious tradition of being brave and hard-working, and striving regardless of hardships. In the past, they made great contributions to opening up the border regions, developing the national economy and creating our glorious Chinese culture; now it is certain that they can rely on their own hands to create a new situation in economic construction in the national minority regions. In the past few years, the national minority regions have created much good experience in developing their economy. Of course, the state's support is required for the national minority regions' economic development. In the past few years, in spite of financial difficulties, the state allocated a certain subsidy to support them every year.

With the gradual recovery of the national economy, there will be an increase in the quantity of its support. The national minority regions should make serious arrangements and use the money rationally. They should use the limited capital where it is needed most and strive to promote economic results.

The economic construction of the national minority regions should be based on actual conditions in the regions. It is necessary to pay attention to making use of natural resources and give priority to the light and textile industries on the basis of developing agriculture and animal husbandry. At present, it is necessary to lay stress on the development and promotion of light and textile industries under the system of collective ownership. It is particularly necessary to develop the handicraft industry, labor intensive professions and small commodities industries. They should obtain and process raw materials locally and meet local demands. This will enliven the local market, satisfy the demands of the minority nationalities, and solve the problem of employment in the labor force. It is necessary to pay attention to developing commodities specially needed by the minority nationalities, famous-brand products and products required by tourism, improving and promoting techniques and craftsmanship, increasing colors and varieties and improving the quality and quantity of products so as to meet the demands of both domestic and foreign markets. The national minority regions have superior geographic conditions, a long history, cultures of long standing and places of historical interest and scenic beauty. These should be fully utilized to accelerate the development of tourism.

To actively help the national minority regions carry out economic construction is a long-term task for the whole party and state. This task is difficult but glorious. Let us strive to enliven and develop the economy of the national minority regions under the guidance of the spirit of the 12th CPC National Congress.

RENMIN RIBAO ON ATTITUDE TO OLD, YOUNG CADRES

HK290811 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 28 Oct 82 p 5

[Article by Zhang Yuwen [1728 5124 3306]: "What Attitude Should We Take Toward 'Old' and 'Young' Cadres?"]

[Text] "Are the passengers on a flying airplane moving or motionless?" I remember that this question was asked by the teacher in a physics lesson while I was in middle school. At that time, the classmates immediately answered: "They are moving." However, the teacher calmly said: "They are motionless." The classmates looked at each other in blank dismay and the teacher unhurriedly explained: "It is correct to say either they are moving or motionless because the things that you chose to refer to were different. If you were referring to the ground, the passengers would be moving, but if you were referring to the plane, the passengers would be motionless." This lesson has left a very deep impression on me.

While the 12th party congress put forth the proposal of realizing cooperation between old and young cadres and replacement of old cadres by young ones and the proposal of promoting thousands and thousands of fine middle-aged and young cadres to the leadership groups at all levels, I recalled the question of "reference."

Theoretically speaking, everyone knows the principle that "the fundamental principle for government administration is to gain popularity," everyone admits the importance of promoting fine middle-aged and young cadres and everyone understands the meaning of "young birds sing better than old birds." However, as far as actual living is concerned, our understanding of these questions differs. Certainly, promoting cadres to leadership groups is an affair of major importance and should be cautiously dealt with. There are different situations concerning the understanding of the question of promoting cadres. However, this article is only confined to a general question, that is the question of how to view "old" and "young" cadres.

Some cadres who have had 20 to 30 years' experience and whose age is above 40, should be regarded as quite mature and experienced persons. However, whenever there is a proposal to promote them to the leadership group of a certain level, some people will shake their heads and say: "They are still too young and inexperienced." Two such examples can be found in Fujian Province. Both Hu Ping and Lu Dongming were 52 years old and were cultivated by the party during the initial stage after the founding of the country. Both of them had more than 30 years' actual experience. When they were nominated for promotion to the leadership group of the provincial government, some people disagreed with the nomination saying that they were "too young." In order to persuade these stubborn comrades, the provincial CPC committee responsible comrades explained: In the initial stage of the founding of the country, Comrade Zhang Dingcheng returned from the central authorities to Fujian to take up the most dominant position. He was only 51 years old then. Many "old Fujian people" called him "Old Zhang." But now, when we want to promote those who are 52 to vice governors, why should we treat them as the "younger generation?" This incident called for deeper thought. At that time, one of the reasons why other comrades called Zhang Dingcheng "Old Zhang" was because he was respectable. But the most important was that our leading party cadres at all levels at that time were quite young. At that time, Comrade Mao Zedong was only 57, Comrade Zhou Enlai was in his early 50's, and Comrades Deng Xiaoping and Chen Yun were only in their 40's. Today, the reason why we think 52-year-old cadres are still young is because our leadership groups at all levels have "grown old."

Fortunately, certain leading comrades in Fujian finally understood this and Comrades Hu and Lu have already been promoted to the post of vice governor. This has provided a "reference" to us for promoting fine middle-aged and young cadres. Have similar questions been solved in various places? No. It seems that it is extremely necessary to conscientiously ponder and correctly solve the problem of "reference" in relation to promoting cadres.

China has a population of 1 billion and there are capable persons. We will find capable persons so long as we discard the old conventional concepts and metaphysical ideas of calculating seniority according to experience and looking for perfect human beings.

MACHINERY FACTORIES' LEADING BODIES REORGANIZED

OW281518 Beijing XINHUA in English 1232 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 28 (XINHUA) -- The Chinese Ministry of Machine Building has just completed a radical reorganization of the leading bodies of 30 large factories under its direct administration.

Of the 300 leading cadres, 128 over the age of 55 have left and 62 middle-aged and young people averaging 44 years old have been elected to leading positions, according to the ministry.

This is an important step in maintaining continuity of present economic policies and preparing for a significant advance in machinery production in the next twenty years, said the ministry.

Middle-aged and young cadres now account for 61 percent of the total leadership in the 30 factories. Before the reorganization, they accounted for barely 41 percent. Of the new leaders 65 percent have college or secondary technical school education.

A spokesman for the ministry said that it was a long-established goal to promote to leading positions younger and more professional cadres with higher educational levels.

Party General Secretary Hu Yaobang reiterated this principle at the 12th national party congress not long ago and urged organizations to promote in a timely fashion large numbers of energetic young and middle-aged cadres who possess both political integrity and ability to various leading posts.

The ministry is very firm on this point, said the spokesman. Older cadres above 55 will have to leave their posts or continue service as advisors or in labor service companies or workers training centers in much the same way as six older cadres in the Harbin bearings plant in northeast China did recently.

The spokesman said that the ministry had drawn the line, not allowing the number of leading cadres to exceed nine in a factory and the percentage of middle-aged and young cadres under the age of 50 to drop below 40 percent in the leading body. Every factory leading body must contain one or two persons under 45 years old.

This requirement was met in all the 30 factories and the young cadres elected have proved their worthiness with expertise and managerial skills, the ministry said.

Workers at the Beijing internal-combustion engine plant, for example, are quite satisfied with the new party secretary and acting plant director, the spokesman reported. The party secretary is a college graduate and the acting director is a technical school graduate. Both are experts in their respective fields and work with enthusiasm.

Practice has dispelled the misgivings of some aging cadres who had worried that the new leading cadres were too young to manage so large factories, the ministry said.

The ministry said that a plan is under way to complete the reorganization of leading bodies of all the factories under its administration by the end of next year.

CHINA DAILY ARTICLE EXAMINES COMMERCIAL WORK

HK290346 Beijing CHINA DAILY in English 29 Oct 82 p 3

[By CHINA DAILY reporter: "Commercial Work Urgent in Diversified Production"]

[Text] Commercial work should play an important role in helping to develop a diversified economy in rural areas, Pan Yao, deputy minister of commerce, told a national meeting on commercial work in Beijing.

He said that in 1981 total receipts from crops and sideline occupations other than grain reached 92.2 billion yuan, an increase of 31.1 percent from 1978, and 53.6 percent of the value of all agriculture products.

"Diversification is a strategic change in China's agriculture, which used to focus on grain," he said. "Practice has proved that it is difficult to increase the total value of agriculture much and to improve living standards of the peasants without developing a diversifified economy, including commodity production, in the rural areas."

Pan said peasants have made four earnest requests of rural commercial workers. They are: providing market information and more opportunities for sideline production; introducing improved growing techniques and supplying breeding stocks and the fine seed strains; buy and selling their products promptly, and ensuring them of a reasonable income.

He called on commercial departments at all levels to do the following things well:

-- Improve market forecasting and provide peasants with timely information. Production in a diversified economy must accord with the principle that planning should play the leading role and regulation by the market should be supplementary. Blind production will lead only to economic losses by the peasants and dampen their enthusiasm for production.

-- Provide technical guidance and technical services. This should include training of agrotechnicians through lectures, short term training classes, and publications; emphasizing the development of diversification while popularizing science and technology among the peasants. He cited a science and technology association in Lianxian County that lectured to 10,000 peasants and whose technological information desk on market day attracted thousands of questioners.

-- Make reasonable use for sideline production of the funds provided to collectives and individuals. Pan noted that supply and marketing cooperatives have issued more than 500 million yuan to communes and production teams.

-- Develop joint ventures between supply and marketing cooperatives and production teams or individual peasants for sideline production. The cooperative in Dongtai County of Jiangsu Province, in 1981 and the first half of 1982 began joint ventures with 108 production teams. The total investment was 520,000 yuan, of which 77.4 percent was put up by the cooperative. The total output value is expected to reach 1,486,000 yuan, of which 610,000 yuan will be profit. Joint ventures combine the needs of the state and the market place with the interests of the peasants and discourage blind sideline production.

-- Set aside more areas for appropriate specialized agricultural and sideline production. Those established in the 1970s must be helped to perfect their system of production responsibility and be provided with technical and financial assistance so as to make more profits as early as possible.

LENIN'S VIEW ON POLITICS, ECONOMICS DISCUSSED

HK280900 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 25 Oct 82 p 5

[Article by Li Deshui [2621 1795 3055]: "How To Understand a Sentence Spoken by Lenin"]

[Text] In his article "Once Again on Trade Unions, the Current Situation and the Mistakes of Trotskiy and Bukharin," Lenin makes a formulation on the relationship between politics and economics. He says: "Politics must take precedence over economics. To argue otherwise is to forget the ABC's of Marxism." ("Selected Works of Lenin," vol 4, p 441)

In a previous period, particularly in the 10 years of turmoil, this statement of Lenin's was always quoted by some people in a onesided manner and was used as theoretical ground for dealing with the relationship between politics and economics. In their eyes, a Marxist-Leninist must take politics as primary at any time, any place and under any circumstances. This is absolutely a misinterpretation through garbled quotations.

What does Lenin mean by this statement?

It is when criticizing Trotskiy and Bukharin's mistakes in dealing with trade unions in early 1921 that Lenin said "politics must take precedence over economics." In those days, the Soviet regime had just smashed the armed intervention by imperialists and ushered in the new period of economic rehabilitation. Under these circumstances, Trotskiy maintained that trade unions should take the place of the state's economic management organs. When refuting Trotskiy's argument, Lenin pointed out: Trade unions have an extremely important role to play at every step of the dictatorship of the proletariat, but they are not a state organization, rather a school of administration, a school of communism. He said: "The wrong attitude toward trade unions will ruin Soviet power and topple the dictatorship of the proletariat."

When disputing over the role and tasks of the trade unions, Trotskiy said that he took an economic approach and Bukharin said that the economic approach was as important as the political approach. It is precisely in order to answer these views that Lenin said: "Politics must take precedence over economics." "Without a correct political approach to the matter the given class will be unable to stay on top, and consequently, also unable to solve its production problem."

Though Lenin stressed on the above-mentioned occasion that politics must take precedence over others, he did not treat this as a universally applicable formula for handling the relationship between politics and economics. Lenin once said: "It is necessary to have less politics and more economics." He was always opposed to politics filled with empty talk and the tendency to study politics exclusively at the neglect of economic work. At the Eighth All-Russia Congress of Soviets, he said: "We have, no doubt, learned politics; here we stand as firm as a rock. But things are bad as far as economic matters are concerned. Henceforth, less politics will be the best politics. Bring more engineers and agronomists to the fore, learn from them, keep an eye on their work, and turn our congresses and conferences not into propaganda meetings but into bodies that will verify our economic achievements, bodies in which we can really learn the business of economic development." ("Collected Works of Lenin" vol 31, p 466)

During this dispute, Trotskiy once retorted that Lenin had said at the eighth congress of soviets that we should have less politics and more economics, but when dealing with the problem of the trade unions Lenin put politics in the primary position. To this, Lenin seriously answered: "I have always said, and will continue to say, that we need more economics and less politics, but if we are to have this we must clearly be rid of political dangers and political mistakes." Lenin pointed out that it was precisely the political mistakes caused by Trotskiy and his sort that distracted the party's attention from economic tasks and production work and that made the party waste time on correcting these mistakes and objecting to the incorrect approach to the trade union movement. Here, it is not difficult to realize that by saying politics must take precedence over economics, Lenin means only that after taking over political power and consolidating this power can the proletariat go in for socialist economic development. Thus, it is absolutely wrong to apply this statement indiscriminately.

PARTY, STATE ISSUE DIRECTIVE ON TREE FELLING

OW280802 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1424 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, 27 Oct (XINHUA) -- Emergency directive of the CPC Central Committee and State Council concerning stopping the destructive felling of trees dated 20 October 1982:

The evil practice of destructive felling of trees prevails again in many places and is gradually spreading. The primary cause of the evil practice is the lack of understanding of the seriousness of destructive tree felling on the part of party and government leading organs and their failure to take effective measures to tackle the problem. Some party and government organs even shut their eyes and let the evil practice go unchecked. It is necessary to make comrades understand that problems such as additional funds for the tending of forests, effective felling plans and readjustment of purchasing and selling prices do exist in the current forestry work and that some of the problems have only been partially solved. The masses of people in the forest regions also face difficulties in their daily life. These problems need to be gradually solved in a prepared and systematic way and over a considerable period of time. However, in the face of the destructive tree felling, comrades should not disregard the law, or only enforce it casually, under the pretext of shortcomings in the work. Forestry law and regulations formulated by the state reflect the vital interests of the people of all nationalities in the country and are supported by the broad masses of the people. Those who violate the law and destroy forests are only a small minority. Connivance at the handful of violators is a crime against the people. Only by resolutely striking by the handful of violators can we effectively stop the evil practice and encourage more people to protect and develop forestry. Otherwise, trees which take a long time to grow will be destroyed at once, causing irredeemable losses. For this reason, an emergency directive is issued and reads as follows:

1. The CPC Central Committee and State Council instruct party committees and people's governments of counties having forest areas to take the responsibility of supervising the enforcement of forestry protection law and regulations. They are urged to take immediate and decisive measures to stop the destructive felling of trees within a stated time. It is imperative to investigate thoroughly and punish in accordance with the law any unit or individual who has seized and destroyed, with any means, state- or collectively-owned wooded and hilly lands. Failure to stop the violators is a dereliction of duty on the part of county party secretaries and county magistrates. They will be held responsible for their ineffective leadership by the party committee and government at the next higher level.

2. It is necessary to order any unit or individual that has destroyed forests to return the seized forests or compensate for them, to impose fines, or to mete out punishment in accordance with the degree of the destruction and with the law. Violators, no matter whether they are ordinary people or cadres at any level, must be punished equally and must not be connived at, shielded or protected under any pretext. Places where the evil practice is rampant must seize a few typical cases, severely handle them and publish the results in newspapers so as to frighten criminals and educate the masses of cadres and people. The CPC Central Committee and State Council have decided to set up a work group consisting of the Central Commission for Discipline Inspection, the Ministry of Forestry and other departments concerned to assist some key provinces and autonomous regions to handle cases of destructive tree felling and correct some party and government leaders' failure to handle the cases.

3. It is necessary to speed up the work to stabilize the ownership of wooded and hilly areas, designate private hilly areas and introduce the responsibility system in forestry production. In places where the work has not been completed, felling of trees, except for the lumber production task under the state plan, should be temporarily stopped. In places where the work has been completed, it is necessary to strengthen forestry management, formulate general rules and regulations among villagers, and rigidly enforce the procedures for reviewing the application for and the issuing of licenses for felling and shipping trees. A license issued by forestry departments is needed in order to fell and ship trees and to sell lumber. Free markers of woods and bamboos in the forest regions and neighboring areas must be closed. At the same time, it is necessary to conscientiously solve disputes over wooded and hilly lands. Before a dispute is settled, neither side is allowed to obtain the ownership certificate and fell the trees in these disputed wooded and hilly areas. Any attempt to start a new dispute over the ownership is not allowed. Violators will be investigated and duty handled. In collectively-owned forests, it is necessary to implement the responsiblity system for specialized jobs under contracts. The forests should not be equally divided up among individuals.

4. In view of the fact that to protect and develop forestry is a key issue in China's socialist construction, it is necessary to strengthen the protection and management of forests and efforts should not be slackened at anytime. From now on, it is necessary to immediately stop the evil practice of destructive tree felling once it occurs. Indecisiveness in handling cases of violation should not be allowed. Party committees and people's governments at various levels must immediately conduct an earnest inspection of the work to resolutely stop the evil practice of destructive tree felling, strengthen the management and protection of forests, and further carry out the forestry policy in order to map out specific arrangements for the existing problems and achieve good results in the work.

Party committees and people's governments in all provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions are required to submit a report to the party Central Committee and State Council before the end of this year.

DENG WRITES TITLE FOR 'DIARY OF CHEN GENG'

OW271221 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1255 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, 25 Oct (XINHUA) -- The "Diary of Chen Geng," a record of Comrade Chen Geng's life of struggles, was published recently. The title of this book was written personally by Deng Xiaoping, chairman of the Military Commission of the CPC Central Committee.

Comrade Chen Geng was one of the PLA's outstanding leaders and a general known both at home and abroad. A native of Hunan's Xiangxiang County, he was admitted to the CPA in 1922 and he participated in the "1 August" Nanchang uprising in 1927. He had successively held the posts of division commander, corps commander, deputy chief of General Staff and vice minister of national defense. He died of illness in 1961 at the age of 58.

Edited and published by the Fighters' Publishing House of the PLA, the "Diary of Chen Geng" contains over 150,000 Chinese characters. It is mainly a collection of part of the diary written by Comrade Chen Geng from 1937 to 1947. It also contains "My Autobiography" written by Comrade Chen Geng in 1944. The book is a lively and concrete record of Comrade Chen Geng's glorious career during the years of wars and depicts his enthusiastic devotion and dedication to the party, the people and the motherland.

XI ZHONGXUN AT LITERARY EXHIBITION ON MARXISM

OW281008 Beijing XINHUA in English 0807 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 28 (XINHUA) -- Books in nine languages published overseas on Marxism and social science research are now on display at an exhibition here. Sponsored by the Party School under the Central Committee of the Chinese Communist Party and the China National Publications Import and Export Corporation, the exhibition is part of the commemorative activities in China for the 100th anniversary next year of the death of Karl Marx.

Among the more than 10,000 books on display in the China Art Gallery are original works by Karl Marx, works on Marxism, and reference books on social science related to Marxism. The books -- printed in English, French, German, Italian, Japanese, Romanian, Russian, Serbian and Spanish -- cover a wide range of topics including Marxism, philosophy, economics, socialism, sociology, political science, law, international relations and history of literature.

The exhibition has been visited by party and government leaders Xi Zhongxun, Wang Zheng and Deng Liqun, Culture Minister Zhu Muzhi and Vice-President of the Party School Jiang Nanxiang.

Speaking at an opening ceremony Monday, Ding Po, general manager of the China National Publications Import and Export Corporation, said that the exhibition would serve as a basis for a documentation center in China for the research of Marxism-Leninism. He said the center could provide necessary documents for realizing the goal to "go on our own way, a combination of Marxism-Leninism and concrete practice in China, to build a socialism with unique Chinese features."

The exhibit will close tomorrow.

WANG ZHEN, SONG RENQIONG AT PUBLISHING HOUSE FETE

OW281910 Beijing XINHUA in English 1524 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 28 (XINHUA) -- Some 600 people from publishing, press, literature, art and academic circles in the Chinese capital today gathered in the Great Hall of the People to mark the 50th anniversary of the founding of Life Publishing House, which later merged with Reader and New Knowledge Publishing Houses.

Party leaders Wang Zhen and Song Renqiong were present.

The three publishing houses were set up in the 1930's, the earliest being the Life Publishing House, which was founded by the noted writer Zou Taofen on July 1, 1932.

After a dozen years of separate operation, the three publishing houses merged in October 1948 to form the Joint Publishing Co., some Communist Party members joined in the work. [sentence as received]

With the people's interest, society's progress and spread of Marxism-Leninism as their purposes, the three publishing houses published in the Kuomingtang ruled areas during the '30s and '40s works by Marx, Engels, Lenin, Stalin and Mao Zedong. Other published books included works on politics, economics, literature, education, history, geography, science and technology.

The publishing houses also issued some 40 journals, playing an important role in the national revolution, inspiring young people to join the revolutionary cause.

Speaking at the meeting, Deng Liqun, head of the Propaganda Department of the party Central Committee, said that in the 1930s when he was probing a way to save China from national subjugation, it was the works of revolutionaries of the older generation that led him from a patriot to a communist.

Deng Liqun said he hoped that the Joint Publishing Co. would bring its past good traditions into full play and make greater contributions to educating the youth of today.

Zhou Yang, chairman of the China Federation of Literary and Art Circles, said that he had "half a century comradeship" with the three publishing houses which had been engaged in culture protection, inheritance, accumulation and improvement.

He said the publishing work was of great importance and he believed that the Joint Publishing Co. would win continuous popularity among the people.

Zhu Muzhi, minister of culture, said that the years following the third plenary session of the 11th party committee had witnessed big development in publishing. "More books and richer varieties had been turned out than pre-culture revolution days. The important task facing us was to raise the social effect of the work. Books published should be favorable to socialist culture and people's thinking. Measures must be taken to speed up the publishing and facilities should be modernized," he said.

Among the participants were Shen Cuizhen, widow of Zou Taofen, and representatives from the Hong Kong branch of the Joint Publishing Co.

An exhibition on the three publishing houses will be held next month and an anniversary book, now in the course of compiling, will be published next year.

ROUNDUP OF EAST CHINA LEADERS' ACTIVITIES

OW270449 [Editorial Report] Hefei Anhui Provincial Service in Mandarin at 1100 GMT on 20 October carries a 6-minute report on the inspection tour made by Zhou Zijian, acting first secretary of the Anhui Provincial CPC Committee and governor of Anhui; and (Wang Yuzhao), Standing Committee member of the Provincial CPC Committee, to Chuxian prefecture's Jiashan, Chuxian, Laian, Tianchang and Quanjiao counties from 13 to 16 October.

According to the report, Zhou Zijian said: "Chuxian Prefecture stands in the forefront in implementing the system of responsibility by signing mass contracts with commune members. The prefecture has had a head start as compared with other localities in the province in putting this system into practice. The ideas of the leading comrades at the prefectural and county levels are identical. There is no sign of clashes at all. Chuxian Prefecture's experience shows that this system of responsibility has been carried out systematically and comprehensively without any problem. The masses' enthusiasm for socialism has been greatly whipped up. The prefecture has rapidly developed agricultural production and made great contributions to the state."

Zhao called for efforts to further improve this system of responsibility and for continuing to bring this system into full play. Zhao also toured several flood-stricken communes in Quanjiao County and offered suggestions on how to do a good job in relief work and in reconstruction.

Hefei Anhui Provincial Service in Mandarin at 1100 GMT on 22 October carries a 4-minute report on the opening of the Second Congress of the Chinese Agroeconomics Society and 1982 symposium in Hefei municipality, Anhui, on 21 October.

The report points out: "Attending the opening ceremony of the congress were Zhou Zijian, acting first secretary of the provincial CPC committee and governor of Anhui; Wang Guangyu, secretary of the provincial CPC committee; and (Wang Yuzhao), Standing Committee member of the Provincial CPC Committee. On behalf of the provincial CPC committee and people's government, Comrade Zhou Zijian greeted more than 300 people attending the congress, including leading comrades from various provinces and autonomous regions and various departments at the central level in the fields of agroeconomics, scientific research and teaching. He pointed out that the convocation of this congress in Hefei will greatly inspire us in doing economic work in Anhui's rural areas. (Fu Rensheng), director of the Rural Policy Research Office under the CPC Central Committee Secretariat, delivered a report at the congress." The report dwells upon the system of responsibility and other issues with regard to rural economy. Attending the congress were leaders from other provinces and experts for rural economy, including Wang Tingdong, secretary of the Shanxi Provincial CPC Committee; and (Wang Zhenbin), adviser to the Agricultural Economics Institute of the Academy of Social Sciences.

Nanjing Jiangsu Provincial Service in Mandarin at 2300 GMT on 24 October carries a 2-minute report on a documentary film regarding the life of Liu Haishu, president of Nanjing Institute of Arts. According to the report, Xu Jiatun, first secretary of the Jiangsu Provincial CPC Committee, had recently called on 87-year-old artist Liu Haishu and his wife at the guesthouse.

Shanghai City Service in Mandarin at 1130 GMT 24 October carries a 4-minute report on the conclusion of the seventh Shanghai municipal sports meet at Shanghai's Hongkou Stadium on the afternoon of 24 October. The report points out: "Attending the closing ceremony were leaders of the Shanghai Municipal CPC Committee, the Standing Committee of the Municipal People's Congress, and the Municipal People's Government and Wang Daohan, Zhao Xingzhi, Yang Shifa, (Jing Yuanxi) and Yang Kao as well as the leading comrades of the Municipal CPPCC Committee, the PLA units stationed in Shanghai and other departments concerned." (Du Quan), vice chairman of the organizing committee of the seventh municipal sports meet gave a closing speech, and Shanghai's Mayor Wang Daohan and other municipal leaders gave prizes to the winners of the sports meet.

ANHUI'S ZHOU ZIJIAN INSPECTS COUNTIES 6-13 OCT

OW191031 Hefei Anhui Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 17 Oct 82

[Excerpts] Zhou Zijian, acting first secretary of the Anhui Provincial CPC Committee and governor of the province, and (Wang Yuzhao), Standing Committee member of the Provincial Party Committee, accompanied by Deputy Secretary (Wang Zhengpeng) of the Suxian Prefectural Party Committee, inspected Dangshan, Xiaoxian, Suxian, Lingbi, Suxian and Wuhe Counties in the prefecture from 6 to 13 October.

During the inspection, Comrade Zhou Zijian called on party members, cadres and other people to conscientiously study and publicize the documents of the 12th party congress and, with the guidelines of the congress as a driving force, to push forward in all fields of work in the countryside so as to bring about a new situation in socialist modernization.

Comrade Zhou Zijian said: After visiting several counties, my general impression is that the situation in Suxian Prefectur's rural areas is very good. Despite natural disasters, the prefecture's agricultural production has increased this year. Particularly in Sixian, Wuhe, Li gbi and Guzhen Counties, which had always remained poor and backward, the average grain output per capital has topped the 1,000-jin mark. This is gratifying indeed.

He then said: It is necessary to further improve the production responsibility system in order to steadily increase agricultural production and then to attain the goal of quadrupling the gross annual agricultural output value.

While inspecting Xiaoxian, Suxian and Lingbi Counties, Comrades Zhou Zijian and (Wang Yuzhao) visited people of villages and communes which had been hardest hit by natural disasters and asked them in detail about their food, fuels, clothing and housing.

Comrade Zhou Zijian said: Xiaoxian County has suffered the most serious natural disaster in several hundred years, and Suxian and Lingbi Counties have also been hit by considerably serious natural disasters. However, so long as we rely on policy and science and fully arouse the enthusiasm of the masses, we can surmount all difficulties.

He encouraged the masses in the disaster-hit areas to make every effort to do autumn sowing well and to provide for and help themselves by engaging in production. People in areas that have not been hit by natural disasters should vigorously support those in the affected areas to resume production and rebuild their native villages.

XIANG NAN ATTENDS FUJIAN SPORTS MEETING

OW131104 Fuzhou FUJIAN RIBAO in Chinese 4 Oct 82 p 1

[Excerpts] After 6 days of sharp contention, Fujian Province has just ended its eighth provincial sports meet. All kinds of awards were issued during the grand closing ceremony. After each score was announced and joyful music played, the party-government-army leading cadres Xiang Nan, Fu Kuiqing and Wu Hongxiang, respectively, presented cups, medals and prizes to athletes who set national or provincial records, to collective units that won the spiritual civilization prize and to the first four winning teams of each individual match.

NEW FUJIAN VICE GOVERNOR MEETS XIANG NAN

OW190947 Beijing Domestic Service in Mandarin 2230 GMT 14 Oct 82

[Text] JIXIE ZHOUBAO on 15 October published a newsletter entitled "Lu Dongming's First Day in Office"

A responsible comrade of the central authorities once said: In Fujian, there is a small plant called the Mindong electric machinery plant whose director is very competent and has worked outstandingly. This plant director is Lu Dongming, aged 51, who was recently appointed Fujian provincial vice governor in charge of communications and industry, with major responsibilities in the machine-building, electronics and national defense industries.

Lu Dongming assumed office one day in August. At 0600 he stepped out of the collective dormitory of the Mindong electric machinery company and began to sweep the courtyard. At 0730 he drove an old car, given the plant by the higher authorities in the 1960's, and headed for the provincial people's government compound. At 0800 he stepped into his office, where a comrade responsible for his daily chores solicited his opinion. Lu Dongming declined to use a guard assigned to him. After his subordinate left, Lu Dongming went to the office of Xiang Nan, first secretary of the provincial CPC committee, and discussed his new job. In the three bureaus under his charge, Lu Dongming's key concerns are Fuzhou, Xiamen and Sanming Municipalities. In each of these bureaus and municipalities, he concentrated on two categories of units -- the profitable, and those with long-standing, big and difficult problems. He said that initial results should be achieved in the next 5 months, that the work should improve and that cadres should go down to grassroots units. Comrade Xiang Nan agreed with him.

At noon Lu Dongming was dressed and ready to go down to grassroots units. In the afternoon, he went to the Fuzhou electrical appliance plant. After a briefing and tour of the plant, he had heart-to-heart talks with the plant's cadres. He stressed that leading bodies at all levels should achieve initial results in 3 months and make a breakthrough in 6 or the No 1 men should step down. He said: It is necessary to arouse the enthusiasm of middle-aged intellectuals as well as young workers who lag behind.

A little after 1800, Lu Dongming was going to have dinner with the plant director. Seeing that the little cafeteria was filled with delicious dishes and wine, he turned immediately to his secretary and instructed: Next time you arrange a tour of a plant for me, make sure you have me eat my meals at the mess hall and stay in the collective dormitory.

At 2300 he left the plant and returned to the Mindong electric machinery company and studied related work with responsible comrades of the company. At 0100, he walked into a 12-man collective dormitory and went to sleep at the lower berth of a double-decker.

GONGREN RIBAO on 15 October reprinted the excerpts of this newsletter.

FUJIAN'S GOVERNOR LEADS DELEGATION TO NAGASAKI

OW261119 Fuzhou FUJIAN RIBAO in Chinese 14 Oct 82 p 1

[Text] A Fujian provincial good-will delegation to Japan led by Governor Ma Xingyuan left Shanghai on the morning of 14 October for a good-will visit to Nagasaki Prefecture in Japan at the invitation of Governor Isamu Takada of Nagasaki Prefecture.

The Fujian provincial good-will delegation to Japan arrived in Shangahi by train on the morning of 10 October. When the delegation left Fuzhou, it was seen off at the railway station by Hu Ping, Wen Fushan, Zhang Yumin, Xiao Su and other leading comrades of departments concerned.

The members of the delegation are Guo Liangru, director of the provincial finance and trade office; Qiu Jianping, vice chairman of the provincial construction committee; Zhuang Nanping, deputy director of the office of the provincial people's government; Lin Wangzhong, deputy director of the provincial office of foreign affairs; and Lu Guosong and Chen Zuwu, staff members of the delegation.

During its visit to Nagasaki Prefecture, the delegation will sign a protocol on establishing friendly ties between Fujian Province and Nagasaki Prefecture and visit shipbuilding and heavy industrial enterprises, a porcelain experimental plant and several electrical appliance companies in the prefecture.

JIANGSU'S HAN PEIXIN TALKS TO ENTERPRISE MEETING

OW140404 Nanjing Jiangsu Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 12 Oct 82

[Excerpts] A provincial conference on enterprise consolidation came to a close in Nanjing on 12 October after 7 days in session.

The conference called on all localities to carry out the all-round consolidation of enterprises as a practical measure to implement the guidelines laid down by the 12th party congress and to achieve the strategic objective for the rest of this century.

Attending the conference were Han Peixin, secretary of the provincial party committee and acting governor of the province; Gu Xiulian, secretary of the provincial party committee; Zhou Yifeng, Wang Bingshi and Jin Xun, standing committee members of the provincial party committee and vice governors of the province. Comrade Gu Xiulian presided.

In his speech, Comrade Han Peixin said: It is now the task of primary importance to study, publicize and implement the guidelines laid down by the 12th party congress. Enterprise consolidation should be carried out under these guidelines and is closely related to attaining the grand goal set by the 12th party congress. Enterprise consolidation is an important measure in bringing about a fundamental change for the better in the national economy and is also an important task in laying a foundation for quadrupling the gross annual industrial and agricultural output value by the end of this century.

Comrade Han Peixin said: During this consolidation, it is necessary to solve problems in production and management as well as in the system of enterprise leadership.

He stressed: Consolidating and building leading bodies is the key to this enterprise consolidation. All enterprises must consolidate and build their leading bodies into the key link. We must strictly guard against persons who rose to prominence by rebellion, who are seriously factionalist in their ideas, who have indulged in beating, smashing and looting, who oppose the line followed by the party Central Committee since its third plenary session and who have seriously violated law and discipline. Any such persons who are already in leading bodies must be resolutely removed. Newly organized leading bodies must not include any such persons.

On current economic work, Comrade Han Peixin said: In industrial production, it is necessary to continue to do a good job in the following three aspects:

1. It is necessary to develop production by practicing economy. In this regard, stress should be placed on economy in consumption of energy and raw materials.

2. It is necessary to develop production by turning out marketable products. Every effort should be made to improve the quality of consumer goods.

3. It is necessary to develop production by increasing sales. Particular efforts should be made to study and solve the question of how to transport industrial products to the countryside and to find a market for them there.

JIANGSU EXPORT MANAGER ARRESTED FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

OW210452 Nanjing Jiangsu Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 19 Oct 82

[Text] (Lu Qimeng), manager of the Jiangsu provincial chemical industry export and import branch company, and four other persons accepted gifts from foreign businessmen during trips abroad and made a fraudulent claim for their travel, food and lodging expenses during the trips. Their embezzlement, totaling some 13,700 yuan, has created serious economic losses and harmful political influence in the country.

(Lu Qimeng) and business section chief (Xu Mingqian) have been arrested in accordance with the law.

The quintet, headed by (Lu Qimeng), twice visited Japan, in March and December 1980, at the invitation of a Japanese firm [name indistinct]. They abused their powers by privately dividing among themselves the gifts from foreign businessmen of electronic digital watches, tape recorders, calculators and color tv sets worth some 8,600 yuan.

According to the contract signed with the Japanese firm, the travel, food and lodging expenses were to be paid by the Japanese side. However, after their return they made a fraudulent claim for the foreign exchange they had spent in buying overcoats, slacks and radios, totaling some 5,100 yuan, of which 3,400 yuan was spent by manager (Lu Qimeng).

JIANGSU'S NANJING PLA UNITS MEET 19 OCT

OW211312 Nanjing Jiangsu Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 20 Oct 82

[Excerpts] The Nanjing PLA units held a meeting on 19 October to exchange experiences on building socialist spiritual civilization among the units. The meeting defined the focus of building socialist spiritual civilization as establishing and fostering a new type of social relationship.

Du Ping, political commissary; Liu Xiyuan and Sun Keji, deputy political commissars; Hu Darong, advisor; and other leading comrades of the Nanjing PLA units attended the meeting. Shan Danan, deputy commander, spoke at the meeting.

After the start of the activities of building socialist spiritual civilization among the units, which emphasize in particular the "four haves," "three stresses" and "two fear nots," the party committee of the Nanjing PLA units adopted a decision on the need for leading organs to take the lead in promoting socialist spiritual civilization. This has brought about a major change in the mental attitude, work style, human relationships, work order and daily life of organs. A group of advanced units and individuals in building socialist spiritual civilization has emerged.

Du Ping, political commissar, and Zhan Danan, deputy commander, addressed the meeting. They emphasized the great significance of primary organs taking a lead in promoting socialist spiritual civilization and asked all organs and individuals to draw up a plan for creating a new phase in their work to make fresh contributions to building a highly advanced socialist spiritual civilization.

JIANGSU CPC SECRETARIAT ON CONGRESS DOCUMENTS

OW290529 Nanjing Jiangsu Provincial Service in Mandarian 2300 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Excerpts] The Secretariat of the Jiangsu Provincial CPC Committee held a meeting on 21 October to review the study of the documents of the 12th CPC National Congress by the broad masses of party members, cadres and ordinary people in the province and to study how to further deepen the study.

After hearing a briefing by the propaganda department of the provincial CPC committee, a responsible comrade of the committee said: Due to the conscientious efforts to organize the study of the documents by party committees at various levels in the last few weeks, an upsurge in studying the documents has been whipped up among the broad masses of party members, cadres and people, and a good beginning has been made in the study. The problem now is how to further deepen the study. The responsible comrade offered a four-point suggestion:

1. The key to further deepening the study lies in party committees at various levels, particularly principal leading comrades. They must regard the study as a matter of utmost importance and take the lead in studying and publicizing the documents.

2. It is necessary to further define the aim and requirements of the study. Judging from the study in the last few weeks, efforts must be made to solve two problems: First, it is necessary to maintain ideological and political unity with the party Central Committee; and second, it is necessary to urge every party member to meet the requirements of the new party constitution, strive to be a qualified Communist Party member, cope with the new situation and shoulder the great task in the new period.

3. It is necessary to pay keen attention to the rotational training of cadres and do a good job in publicizing and giving lectures on the congress documents.

4. It is necessary to correctly apply the study in reality. Party members and cadres, particularly leading cadres, must deepen the study of the guidelines of the 12th CPC Congress in light of the actual situation in ideological and other work in order to deepen the understanding of the congress guidelines.

The provincial CPC committee calls on party committees at various levels to earnestly review the last few weeks' study and summarize the experience in order to discover and solve problems and to deepen the study.

NANCHANG SHELTER CONVERTED TO SHOPPING CENTER

OW210148 Nachang Jiangxi Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 19 Oct 82

[Text] A large underground shopping center, converted from a people's air raid shelter, has been opened for business in Nanchang City. This shopping center is located underground at the (Erjiaotong) intersection in Nanchang. Arch-Shaped and built with reinforced concrete and steel, it can be used in time of peace or war. It is artistically designed to retain national characteristics.

In the course of remodeling, repair and dehumififying in the past 6 months or so, three sets of ventilation equipment, dehumidifiers and sanitation facilities were also installed. With fresh air circulation, the shopping center is warm in winter and cool in summer, providing a springlike atmosphere all year round.

This underground shopping center contains two halls selling agricultural and industrial products and one selling subsidiary food items. There are more than 30 counters to handle business entailing over 1,000 items, including more than 300 name-brand products from 17 provinces and cities throughout the country.

JIANGXI TREATMENT OF TAIWAN COMPATRIOTS REPORTED

OW211151 Nanchang Jiangxi Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 20 Oct 82

[Text] Yichun Municipality has seriously implemented the party's policies toward Taiwan compatriots and their relatives. During the last 2 years, 339 items of confiscated properties and 5 confiscated houses have been returned to Taiwan compatriots and their relatives residing in the municipality. In addition, those who had been dismissed from their work during the Cultural Revolution have been politically rehabilitated and reassigned to their former work units with full back pay and benefits.

Among relatives of Taiwan compatriots, 6 had the honor of being admitted to the CPC, 10 were promoted to leading posts at various levels, 18 were promoted to associate professor, instructor, deputy chief engineer, engineer, chief surgeon or doctor. In addition, three were elected as deputies of the municipal people's congress and members of the municipal CPPCC committee.

(Fan Jianhu), the son of (Fan Yinzhong), a former KMT military man, is a worker at the Jiangxi bearing plant. He had the honor of being admitted to the CPC this year because of his outstanding performance. He said in earnest: "The party's policies are fine. The socialist system is great. I will do my best to contact my father in Taiwan and to persuade him to come back for a reunion and to work together for the four modernizations."

FUZHOU PLA HOLDS MEETING ON AIR DEFENSE WORKS

OW261426 Nanchang Jiangxi Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Excerpts] The Fuzhou PLA units held a meeting in Nanchang from 17 to 21 October to exchange experiences in the maintenance and management of people's air defense works.

The meeting called on various localities to do a better job in building people's air defense works against war, to make use of these works in production or for other peacetime purposes on the condition that they can be put to use immediately in the event of war, and to improve the management of these works in order to make them useful in peacetime and wartime.

Tian Shixing, deputy commander of the Fuzhou PLA units, attended and addressed the meeting. Zhao Zengyi, secretary of the Jiangxi Provincial CPC Committee and acting governor of the province, Wu Ping, deputy secretary of the provincial party committee and secretary of the Nanchang municipal party committee, and others attended the meeting.

Making people's air defense works useful in both peacetime and wartime began in 1978. In less than 5 years, 10.5 percent of the floorspace of such works has been utilized. Among the people's air defense works which are used for peacetime purposes, there are underground workshops, stores, hotels, restaurants, storehouses, recreation centers and hospitals, which directly serve the people's production and livelihood.

The meeting pointed out: People's air defense works are an important component of our preparedness against war and a major strategic measure for coping with a war against aggression in the future. In building people's air defense works against war, it is necessary to continue to implement the policy of readjusting the national economy. The 1983 investment in the construction of people's air defense works should be used mainly for maintaining, reinforcing or renovating existing works. Proper arrangements should be made for completing a small number of such works under construction.

FBIS DAILY REPORT CONTENTS

China

Vol I No 211 1 November 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

RENMIN RIBAO Discusses PRC Foreign Policy [31 Oct] A 1
Representative to UN Speaks on Disarmament A 3
UN Representative Raps Protectionism in Trade A 5

UNITED STATES

U.S. Midterm Congressional Elections Examined B 1

SOVIET UNION

KYODO: Ministry Spokesman on Brezhnev Speech C 1
Moscow TV Cites PRC Reportage of Brezhnev Speech C 1
AFP: Sino-Soviet Talks Center on Kampuchea C 1

NORTHEAST ASIA

Kim Il-song Meets Economic, Trade Group D 1
Delegation Leaves DPRK D 1
DPRK Radio, TV Delegation Feted in Shanghai D 1
PLA Deputy Chief Attends Japan Forces Day Fete D 1

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

Further Reaction to UN Vote on Kampuchea E 1
Sihanouk's Comments E 1
RENMIN RIBAO Commentary [30 Oct] E 2
SRV, Heng Samrin Response E 3
Asian Press Cited E 3
1983 Commodities Protocol Signed With Thailand E 4
Peng Chong Meets Thai Prosecution Group E 4

WESTERN EUROPE

UK Paper on PRC Right To Recover Hong Kong G 1
Bo Yibo Meets British Trade Delegation G 1
Science Academy President Visits Britain G 1
RENMIN RIBAO on New Franco-West German Relations [28 Oct] G 2

EASTERN EUROPE

Poland Responds to U.S. Trade Policy Shift H 1
Jaruzelski Cited on Situation in Poland H 1

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

Joint Cooperation Agreement Signed With Libya I 1
DPRK President Gives Banquet for Libyan Leader I 1
Hu Yaobang Sends Message to Tanzania's Nyerere I 1
CPCCC Greets Fifth Tanzanian CCM Congress I 2

WESTERN HEMISPHERE

Peruvian Officials Comment on Relations With PRC J 1
Prime Minister's Statement J 1
President's Statement J 1
Kang Keqing Fetes Dominican Women's Group J 1

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Hu Yaobang Dec 1981 Speech on Literature, Art [HONGQI No 21] K 1
RENMIN RIBAO on Current Historical Period [29 Oct] K 6
RENMIN RIBAO on 'Three Kinds of People' Problem [29 Oct] K 11
SHAANXI RIBAO on 'People of the Fourth Category' [20 Oct] K 12
Shoudu Steel Reports on Responsibility System K 13
Wan Li, Other Leaders Join in Street Cleanup K 17
Millions of Youth Involved in Serving People K 18
Young Pioneers Promote 'New Habits' Movement K 19
Party, State Leaders Meet Gymnastic Delegation K 19
Satellite Communication Experiment 'Successful' K 20

PRC REGIONAL AFFAIRS

CENTRAL-SOUTH REGION

Guangdong's Ren Zhongyi on Spiritual Building P 1
Guangdong's Ren Zhongyi Visits New Hotel P 2
Ren Zhongyi Watches Guangzhou Song, Dance Show P 2
Guangdong People's Congress Session Opens P 2
Session Concludes P 3
Qiao Xiaoguang Attends Guangxi PLA Congress P 3
Guangxi's Qiao Xiaoguang at Wei Baqun Rally P 3
Hubei Seventh Provincial CYL Congress Concludes P 4
Hunan's Mao Zhiyong on Aiding 'Rich Peasants' P 4
Briefs: Guangdong Aquatic Products Industry; Guangdong County Foreign Trade P 5

NORTH REGION

Nei Monggol 'Rebel' Expelled From Party R 1
Nei Monggol's Zhou Hui Attends Anniversary Rally R 1

PRC MEDIA ON TAIWAN

Beijing Lauds Taiwan Lawmaker's Call for Talks U 1
RENMIN RIBAO Reports Taiwan Group's 'Misdeeds' [22 Oct] U 2

TAIWAN

PRC Defector Arrives in Taiwan From Seoul V 1
Holds Press Conference V 1
AFP Report V 2
To Receive Cash Award V 3
PRC Opera Singer Defects to Taiwan Via Tokyo V 3
Meets Press 30 Oct V 3
Spokesman Calls USSR-PRC Talks 'Diplomatic Ploy' V 4
Defense Minister Discusses Defense Plans V 4
Taiwan-Japan Trade Talks Begin in Taipei V 5
Trade Talks Continue V 5
Conference Closes 29 Oct V 6
Nuclear Electrical Power To Be Emphasized V 6
Canadian MP on Improved Relations With Taiwan V 7
Premier Sun Greets Haitian Group 30 Oct V 7
Paper Decries Legislator's Peace Formulas V 7
[CHUNG KUO SHIH PAO 16 Oct]
ECONOMIC NEWS on State Enterprises' Losses [16 Oct] V 9

FBIS DAILY REPORT CONTENTS

China

Vol I No 212 2 November 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

Military Activity Said To Increase in W. Pacific A 1
West Blamed for Shifting Economic Crisis A 2

UNITED STATES

U.S. Reaction to Brezhnev's Speech Examined B 1
[RENMIN RIBAO 31 Oct]
U.S. Defense Secretary Begins Pacific Tour B 2
State Councillor Bo Yibo Meets U.S. Guests B 2

SOVIET UNION

AFP: PRC Officials on Discussions With USSR C 1
RENMIN RIBAO: Soviet Delegate's 'Self-Ridicule' C 1
[2 Nov]
USSR-PRC Rift Said To Hold Apart Two Mongolias C 2
[THE DAILY TELEGRAPH 1 Nov]
USSR Bombers Said To Exercise Over Sea of Japan C 3

NORTHEAST ASIA

Bo Yibo Meets Japanese Friendship Delegation D 1
Bo Yibo Meets President of Nippon Steel D 1
Ulanhu Meets Japan's Nagasaki Governor D 1
Vulnerability of Japanese Economy Viewed D 1

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

Further Reaction to UN Vote on Kampuchea E 1
RENMIN RIBAO 31 Oct Article E 1
VODK Commentary Cited E 1
Thai Official's Comments E 2
VPA Move of Chemical Weapons Reported E 2
Xi Zhongxun Meets Hong Kong Delegation E 3
RENMIN RIBAO on Hong Kong Container Port, Future E 3
[2 Nov]

SOUTH ASIA

Vice Premier Wan Li Meets Nepalese Minister F 1
Bangladesh Administrator Meets Islamic Group F 1

WESTERN EUROPE

SHIJIE ZHISHI on History of Sino-UK Relations [16 Sep] G 1
Further Reports on PCF Delegation's Trip G 4
Stopover in Beijing G 4
Marchais on DPRK Relations G 4
Marchais: Visit Successful G 5
Qianhu Meets French Bank Chairman 1 Nov G 5
Bo Yibo Meets With FRG Delegation 30 Oct G 5
Christian Group Concludes Finland Visit G 5

EASTERN EUROPE

Sports Exchange Protocol Signed With SFRY H 1
Bo Yibo Meets Bulgarian Cooperation Delegation H 1

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

RENMIN RIBAO Castigates Israeli Officials [30 Oct] I 1
Sino-Iraqi Economic Cooperation Meeting Held I 1
Deng Liqun Meets Senegalese Visitor 9 Oct I 1
Wan Li Meets Algerian Provincial Governors I 2
Li Shuzheng Concludes Tanzania Trip, Heads Home I 2

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

HONGQI on People's War, Defense Modernization [2 Nov] K 1
Use of Shipbased Helicopters Deemed Successful K 1
Editorial on Importance of Energy Conservation [RENMIN RIBAO 30 Oct] K 2
RENMIN RIBAO Urges Halt to Forest Destruction [28 Oct] K 4
Central Organs To Train Cadres in Rotation K 5
RENMIN RIBAO Article on Mao Zedong Thought [19 Oct] K 9
Vice Minister Outlines Capital Construction Goal K 14
Consolidating Enterprise Leaderships Stressed K 15
Yuan Baohua on Large Enterprise Consolidation K 16
Deng Liqun Addresses Workers' Education Meeting K 17
Deng Liqun Attends National Library Celebration K 17
Deng Yingchao Hails Publishing Firm Anniversary [RENMIN RIBAO 29 Oct] K 19
Yang Jingren Attends Zhejiang United Front Forum K 19
Yang Shangkun, Others Watch Dance Performance K 20
Optical Fiber Communications Conference Ends K 20
Coastal Urban Forum Held in Tianjin 25 Oct K 20
Customhouses Said Successful in Smuggling Work K 21
Peng Dehuai Biography Group Visits Gansu K 22
Rural Transportation Conference Closes in Shanxi K 22
Sustained Development of Family Planning Urged K 23
Ba Yi Radio Says PLA Command Cadres Being Purged K 23
Ba Yi Radio Reports Problems Not Solved in PLA K 24
RENMIN RIBAO Carries HONGQI Table of Contents [30 Oct] K 25

PRC REGIONAL AFFAIRS

NORTH REGION

Hebei Simplifies Party, Government Organizations R 1
Nei Monggol's Zhou Hui Speaks on Commodities R 1
Shanxi's Hou Shilian Stresses Party Capabilities R 2
Yang Shangkun Visits Tianjin Water Project R 3

NORTHEAST REGION

Heilongjiang's Yang Yichen Attends CPC Meeting S 1
Jilin's Qiang Xiaochu Urges Unity With CPC S 1
Jilin Work Conference on Militia Training Ends S 3
Jilin's Qiang Xiaochu Receives Orphans 27 Oct S 3
Liaoning's Guo Feng at CPC Committee Plenum S 3

NORTHWEST REGION

Fang Yi Visits Commune Family in Gansu Province T 1
Feng Jixin Attends Close of Gansu CYL Congress T 1
Lanzhou PLA's Xiao Hua Serves in Lanzhou Shop T 2
Gansu's Feng Jixin Sends Oda Death Condolence T 2
Ningxia's Li Xuezhi Addresses Economic Meeting T 2
Li Xuezhi at Ningxia Military District Congress T 3
[NINGXIA RIBAO 8 Oct]
Ningxia's Li Xuezhi on Quadrupling Output T 3
Liang Buting Watches Cultural Show in Xining T 4
Qinghai's Liang Buting Comments on Intellectuals T 4
Qinghai's Zhang Guosheng on Structural Reform T 5
Shaanxi's Ma Wenrui on Hu Congress Speech T 6
Shaanxi Governor on Implementing Congress Spirit T 6
Shaanxi People's Congress Committee Meets T 7
Shaanxi's Ma Wenrui on Farmland Construction T 8
Shaanxi's Ma Wenrui Calls for Learning From Hero T 9
Shaanxi County Holds Memorial for Luo Jianfu T 9
Urumqi's Tan Youlin's Work Report to PLA CPC T 10
Xinjiang's Wang Enmao Inspects PLA Warehouse T 11
Xinjiang's Wang Enmao Stresses System Reforms T 12
Wang Enmao Says Farewell to Ex-Soldiers T 12
Wang Enmao Inspects Xinjiang Prefectures T 13
Briefs: Shaanxi Employment Work Conference T 13

TAIWAN

Western Pacific Security Conference Opens V 1
President Chiang Meets Haitian Ministers 1 Nov V 2
Briefs: Malaysian Investment Mission; Computer Terminals Produced; Laser Research Project; Fishery Agreement With India V 2

HONG KONG MEDIA ON CHINA

Hong Kong Press Reports on Hong Kong's Future W 1
Official's 'Assurance' W 1
[SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST 30 Oct]
Jia Shi Remarks [WEN WEI PO 30 Oct] W 1
Xi Zhongxun Cited W 2
[SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST 2 Nov]
TA KUNG PAO Column [1 Nov] W 3
Paper Views U.S. Attitude Toward KMT, CPC W 5
[SHING TAO JIH PAO 27 Oct]
MING PAO on CPC Economic Reforms [20 Oct] W 6

FBIS DAILY REPORT CONTENTS

China

Vol I No 213 3 November 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

UN Envoy Calls for Nuclear Arms Reduction A 1
Seminar on Socioeconomic Indicators Opens A 1
Workshop on Chinese Medicine Opens in Beijing A 2

UNITED STATES

Shultz Comments on U.S.-Soviet Relations B 1
Author Herman Wouk Meets Writers in Beijing B 1
Briefs: Container Ship to U.S. B 1

NORTHEAST ASIA

Japan Refuses Visas to Soviet Electronics Group D 1
Yu Qiuli Meets Japanese Economic Study Group D 1
New Defense Minister Named in Mongolia D 1

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

VODK Reports DK Victories Over SRV Forces E 1
SRV Reportedly Stepping Up Border Operations E 1
SRV Foreign Minister's Comments Called 'Insult' E 2
[RENMIN RIBAO 3 Nov]

SOUTH ASIA

Huang Hua Meets New Bangladesh Ambassador F 1
RENMIN RIBAO Lauds Indian-Pakistani Talks F 1

WESTERN EUROPE

'Current Events' Program Views PRC-FRG Relations G 1
Zhu Muzhi Attends Turkish Envoy's Reception G 2
Health Minister Meets Turkish Deputy Premier G 2
Christian Delegation Meets Swedish King G 2

EASTERN EUROPE

Guangdong's Ren Zhongyi Meets Romanian Envoy H 1
GDR Textile Machinery Exhibit Opens in Shanghai H 1

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

Light Industry Minister Departs for Iraq I 1
Ends Visit I 1
Zhu Xuefan Meets PDRY Friendship Delegation I 1
Ni Zhifu Meets Rwandan Delegation in Beijing I 1
Ni Zhifu Meets Mozambique Delegation 19 Oct I 1
Ni Zhifu Meets Namibian Union Delegation I 2
Bo Yibo Meets Visiting Zimbabwe Journalists I 2
Reports on PRC Delegation's Visit to Somalia I 2
Qian Zhengying at Anniversary I 2
Award Presented to Minister I 3
Zhu Liang Fetes Congo Labor Party Delegation I 3

WESTERN HEMISPHERE

CHINA DAILY on PRC-Latin American Trade [29 Oct] J 1
Huang Hua Meets Chilean Vice Foreign Minister J 2

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Ma Hong Articles on Economic Construction K 1
RENMIN RIBAO 28 Oct K 1
RENMIN RIBAO 29 Oct K 5
RENMIN RIBAO on Need for Good Market Forecasting [29 Oct] K 9
RENMIN RIBAO on CPC Pursuing General Task [28 Oct] K 10
Central State Party Committee Meets 29 Oct K 13
Deng Liqun Addresses Workers' Education Meeting K 15
Advanced Railway Workers Meet in Beijing K 16
PLA Navy Commander Visits Cadres at Sanatorium K 16
Zhao Cangbi Discusses Spiritual Civilization K 17
Lu Dong on New Capital Construction Situation K 17
Bo Yibo Addresses Energy Saving Meeting K 18
Introducing Technology From Abroad Explained K 19
Family Planning Propaganda Work Conference Held K 20

PRC REGIONAL AFFAIRS

EAST REGION

Xiang Nan Attends Fujian Tree-Planting Meeting O 1
Fujian's Xiang Nan Reports on NPC DPRK Visit O 1
KMT Spy Cases Uncovered in Fujian Province O 1
Xu Jiatun Addresses Jiangsu Party Meeting [XINHUA RIBAO 29 Sep] O 2
Jiangxi's Bai Dongcai at Economic Crime Meeting O 4
Shandong's Bai Rubing at Party Plenary Session O 5
Chen Guodong Attends Shanghai Awards Meeting O 6
Shanghai's Chen Guodong Lauds Thrifty Households O 7
Li Fengping Attends Zhejiang Commendation Meeting O 7

CENTRAL-SOUTH REGION

Wang Zhen Addresses Guangzhou PLA Cadres [NANFANG RIBAO 2 Nov] P 1
Wang Zhen Attends Guangzhou Cultural Show 1 Nov P 2
Guangdong's Ren Zhongyi on Hitting Economic Crime P 3
Guangdong's Liu Tianfu on Congress Documents P 3
Liu Tianfu at Banquet for Taiwan Compatriots P 4
Guangdong Team To Investigate Rebel Official NANFANG RIBAO Urges Purge [15 Oct] P 4
Guangxi Opens Army-People Solidarity Congress P 5
Liu Jie Addresses Henan Tree-Planting Gathering P 6

SOUTHWEST REGION

Chi Biqing Attends Guizhou Procuratorial Meeting Q 1
Guizhou's Chi Biqing on Minority Nationality Work Q 1
Tan Qilong Addresses Sichuan CYL Congress Q 3
Sichuan Leaders Explain 12th Congress Documents Q 4
Sichuan Holds Militia Reorganization Gathering Q 4
Sichuan Militia Reorganization Gathering Ends Q 5
Xizang's Yin Fatang on Spiritual Civilization Q 6
Xizang's Yin Fatang Publicizes Congress Spirit Q 6
An Pingsheng Attends Yunnan Economic Forum Q 7

HONG KONG MEDIA ON CHINA

Delegation Reassured on Hong Kong's Future W 1
[WEN WEI PO 3 Nov]
TA KUNG PAO Views Sino-Soviet Relations [2 Nov] W 1
CHENG MING on Deng's Support for Ye Jianying [1 Nov] W 3
WEN WEI PO on Changes in Guangzhou PLA Personnel [3 Nov] W 4

FBIS DAILY REPORT CONTENTS

China

Vol I No 214 4 November 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

Huang Hua Meets Cameroon, Brazil Envoys A 1
New World Information Order Called for at UN A 1

UNITED STATES

Democrats Score Gains in U.S. Midterm Elections B 1

NORTHEAST ASIA

Economic, Trade Group Returns From DPRK D 1
DPRK, Libya Sign Friendship Treaty 2 Nov D 1
Briefs: Japanese Color TV Project D 1

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

Reportage on U.S. Defense Secretary's Asian Trip E 1
Thailand, Singapore Visits E 1
Indicates ASEAN Support E 1
Talks With Thai Leader E 2
Arrival in Indonesia E 2
Soviet Military Delegation Visits Vietnam E 2

SOUTH ASIA

Ziaul Haq Meeting With Indira Gandhi Discussed F 1
[RENMIN RIBAO 3 Nov]

WESTERN EUROPE

Zhao, UK Trade Group Discuss Economic Ties G 1
Queen Elizabeth II Delivers Policy Speech G 1
RENMIN RIBAO Examines Spanish Election Result G 2
[30 Oct]
Briefs: FRG Trade Union Delegation G 3

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

Lebanese President, U.S. Envoy Continue Talks I 1
Xi Zhongxun Meets Zimbabwe Youth Delegation I 1
Reports on Benin Delegation's PRC Visit I 1
Received by Hu Qili I 1
PRC Leaders at Embassy I 2
Public Health Delegation Visits Kuwait I 2

WESTERN HEMISPHERE

RENMIN RIBAO Discusses Latin America's Debts [29 Oct] J 1
Colombian Senator Feted in Shanghai 18 Oct J 2

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Commentator Urges Peasants To Work, Become Rich [RENMIN RIBAO 2 Nov] K 1
Article on Relying on Masses To Change CPC Style [RENMIN RIBAO 3 Nov] K 2
RENMIN RIBAO on Communists Observing Laws [1 Nov] K 2
RENMIN RIBAO: Improve Intellectuals' Livelihood [2 Nov] K 5
Commentator Stresses Work of College Students [RENMIN RIBAO 2 Nov] K 6
Education Ministry Circular on Graduate Studies K 7
Wang Zhaoguo Elected CYL First Secretary 4 Nov K 8
PLA's Wang Zhan Stresses Cultural Education [RENMIN RIBAO 2 Nov] K 8
Wan Li Stresses Need for Construction Quality K 9
Official on How To Perfect Responsibility System K 9
Economic Responsibility System Promoted K 11
Continued Economic Growth for Jan-Sep Reported K 12
Pan Yao Views Rural Economic Diversification K 13
Chengdu Hosts National Meeting on Contraceptives K 14
State Council Issues Circular on Census Work K 15
National Conference on Drama Opens in Xian K 15

PRC REGIONAL AFFAIRS

NORTHEAST REGION

Heilongjiang's Yan Yichen Speaks on Economy S 1
JILIN RIBAO on Implementing Responsibility System [28 Oct] S 4
Li Desheng Aids in Shenyang Cleanup Work S 5
Briefs: Heilongjiang Dairy Cattle S 5

NORTHWEST REGION

XINHUA: Region To Achieve Development Goal T 1
Fang Yi at Gansu Conference on Resources T 1
Gansu's Feng Jixin on Province's Prospects T 2
Li Xuezhi at Ningxia 12th Congress Study Class [NINGXIA RIBAO 21 Oct] T 3
Qinghai Government Outlines Structural Reforms T 5
Qinghai CPC Committee Holds Plenary Session T 6
Shaanxi's Ma Wenrui Addresses People's Congress T 7
Xinjiang's Wang Enmao at Inauguration Ceremony T 8
Briefs: Xinjiang Nationalities Meeting T 8

PRC MEDIA ON TAIWAN AFFAIRS

GUANGBO JIEMU BAO on Broadcasts to Taiwan [18 Sep] U 1

TAIWAN

PRC Pilot Defector Calls on Taiwan Personages V 1
Urges Others To Defect V 1
ROK Envoy on Fate of PRC MIG-19 Flown to Seoul V 2
Economic Planning Council Reports 1981 Exports V 2

FBIS DAILY REPORT

China

Vol I No 215

5 November 1982

CONTENTS

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

Ling Qing Addresses UNGA on Falklands Issue — A 1
Resolution Adopted — A 1

UNITED STATES

Reagan Administration Accused of Playing 'Tricks' [ZHONGGUO QINGNIAN BAO 30 Oct] — B 1
RENMIN RIBAO Reviews 'Serious' U.S. Unemployment [3 Nov] — B 1
U.S. Telecommunications Exhibit Opens in Beijing — B 3

SOVIET UNION

USSR Anniversary Marked at Beijing Reception — C 1
Heavy Soviet Purchases Push Up Silver Price — C 1

NORTHEAST ASIA

Zhao Ziyang Meets DPRK Friendship Group 4 Nov — D 1
Briefs: TV Japanese Language Teaching — D 1

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

Prince Sihanouk Arrives in Beijing 4 Nov — E 1
Welcomed by Zhao Ziyang — E 1
Zhao Hosts Banquet — E 2
Deng Hosts Birthday Banquet — E 3

SOUTH ASIA

India, USSR Sign Oil Import Contract 4 Nov — F 1
Indian Minister: Ziaul Haq Visit 'Significant' — F 1
Briefs: Food Aid to Nepal — F 1

WESTERN EUROPE

EEC Commission To Resume Butter Sales to USSR — G 1
Reception Marks Italian Armed Forces Day — G 1
Briefs: Technical Accord With UK — G 1

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

U.S. Opposes Israeli West Bank Settlements — I 1
GUANGMING RIBAO on Begin Government's Isolation [29 Oct] — I 1

WESTERN HEMISPHERE

Implications of Sino-Canadian Trade Gap Examined [RENMIN RIBAO 2 Nov] J 1
Wan Li Meets Chilean Finance, Trade Delegation J 2

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

RENMIN RIBAO Commentator on Party Building [4 Nov] K 1
Constitutional Revision Committee Session Opens K 9
Editorial on Enterprise Restructuring Methods [RENMIN RIBAO 3 Nov] K 9
CHINA DAILY on Need To Fortify National Defense [5 Nov] K 11
CHINA DAILY on Jan-Sep Economic Growth [5 Nov] K 13
Development of Medium, Small Cities Viewed K 14
Circular Issued on Unity of Nationalities Campaign K 15
Increase in Quality of Higher Education Noted K 16
Machine-Building Industry Meeting Closes 31 Oct K 17
Coal Import-Export Meeting Closes 29 Oct K 17
Plan To Improve Coal Processing, Output Reported [CHINA DAILY 3 Nov] K 18
Economic Development of Seaports Urged K 19
PLA Leaders Visit Injured Beijing Policewoman K 19
Hu Qiaomu Backs Artificial Intelligence Research K 19
Deng Liqun Report Read at Materialism Meeting K 20
Correction to Family Planning Conference Held K 20

PRC REGIONAL AFFAIRS

EAST REGION

Fujian's Xiang Nan Meets Nagasaki Governor O 1
Jiangsu's Xu Jiatun Visits Outstanding Athletes O 1
Remnant Factional Forces Cause Trouble in Jiangsu [XINHUA RIBAO 20 Oct] O 1
PLA Holds Intellectual Work Forum in Nanjing [XINHUA RIBAO 23 Oct] O 3
Jiangxi Class on Congress Documents Opens O 3
Shandong's Bai Rubing at Table Tennis Event O 4
Liu Huaqing Inspects Shanghai Navy Units O 4
Hong Kong Man Arrested for Espionage in Shanghai O 4
Zhejiang's Tie Ying Attends Martial Art Ceremony [ZHEJIANG RIBAO 28 Oct] O 5
Briefs: Zhejiang TV Relay Stations O 5

CENTRAL-SOUTH REGION

Guangdong Vice Governor Meets Hong Kong Group P 1
Guangdong's Ren Zhongyi at Economic Crime Meeting P 1
Guangdong CPC Meeting on Economic Principles P 2
Guangxi Commends PLA Advanced Border Units P 3
Wuhan PLA Command Carries Out Maneuvers in Henan P 3
Henan's Liu Jie Attends Military Parade P 4
Henan's Liu Jie Speaks at Cadre Study Course P 5

SOUTHWEST REGION

Guizhou Discipline Inspection Leaders Meet Q 1
Sichuan Leaders Attend Commendation Ceremony Q 2
Banqen Erdini Arrives in Aba Prefecture, Sichuan Q 2
Sichuan PLA Meeting Views Slack Document Study Q 3
Yin Fatang Visits Xizang Middle School Teachers Q 3
Xizang Postpones People's Congress Session Q 4
Xizang's Yin Fatang at Buddhist Congress Q 4
Yunnan's An Pingsheng Inspects New Stoves Q 5
Kunming Court Sentences Lin, Jiang Followers Q 6
Kunming PLA Urges Communist Ideology Education Q 6
Yunnan Radio Relates Case of Huang Zhaoqi Q 6
Yunnan Party Plenary Session Opens 4 Nov Q 9

NORTH REGION

Hebei People's Congress Meeting Concludes R 1
Nei Monggol's Zhou Hui Speaks at Education Rally R 2
Nei Monggol PLA Leaders Publicize Documents R 2
Nei Monggol Commentary on Studying Documents R 3
Nei Monggol Deals With Corrupt Bureaucracy R 4
Hu Qili Inspects Tianjin Commercial Centers R 5

PRC MEDIA ON TAIWAN AFFAIRS

RENMIN RIBAO on Taiwan Family Settling in PRC [29 Oct] U 1
LIAOWANG Commentary on Taiwan Reunification U 2
[No 9, 20 Sep]

HONG KONG MEDIA ON CHINA

CHENG MING Examines Hong Kong Question
[1 Nov] W 1
MING PAO Discusses China's Economic Performance
[1 Nov] W 3
WEN WEI PO Examines PRC Sixth 5-Year Plan
[3 Nov] W 4
PRC Tightens Security on Drugs Into Hong Kong
[HONG KONG STANDARD 3 Nov] W 6
WEN WEI PO Reporter Meets Hubei's Chen Pixian
[WEN WEI PO 2 Nov] W 8
Jiang Qing Followers on Trial in Beijing
[TA KUNG PAO 4 Nov] W 9

FBIS DAILY REPORT

China

Vol I No 216 8 November 1982

CONTENTS

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

UNITED STATES

RENMIN RIBAO Examines U.S. Midterm Elections [5 Nov] B 1
'Costly Democracy' Noted [RENMIN RIBAO 7 Nov] B 2
U.S. Paper Cited on Soviet Might in Pacific B 3
RENMIN RIBAO Reports on Weinberger's Asian Trip [7 Nov] B 3
First Sino-U.S. Pharmaceutical Venture Set Up B 4
Hao Deqing Meets U.S. Congressional Group B 4

SOVIET UNION

Further Materials on GOSR Anniversary C 1
PRC Greetings to USSR C 1
Soviet Envoy Hosts Reception C 1
Grishin Speech Noted C 1
Further Report C 1
Parade in Moscow C 2

NORTHEAST ASIA

RENMIN RIBAO Delegation Leaves DPRK for Home D 1
Japanese Exchange Group Pays Visit to Beijing D 1
Meets Liao Chengzhi D 1
Meets Wan Li D 1
KYODO Report D 1
Liao Chengzhi Meets Japanese Amity Delegation D 2
Kang Shien Meets Japanese Bank Delegation D 2
Briefs: Dramatists Delegation to Japan D 2

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

Khieu Samphan Pays Official Visit to PRC E 1
Welcomed by Zhao Ziyang E 1
Holds Talks With Zhao E 1
Feted by Zhao E 2
PRC Leaders Attend Sihanouk Birthday Banquet E 4

WESTERN EUROPE

SHIJIE ZHISHI on West German-Chinese Relations [No 19, 1 Oct] G 1

EASTERN EUROPE

RENMIN RIBAO Delegation Ends Romania Visit H 1
Polish Official Warns U.S. of Reprisals H 1

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

Israel's Economic Control of West Bank Viewed [RENMIN RIBAO 4 Nov] I 1
CPC Member Returns From Tanzanian Congress I 1

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

RENMIN RIBAO Discusses Class Struggle Issues [6 Nov] K 1
Constitutional Revision Committee Meet Continues K 4
Further Revision Suggested K 4
Wan Li, Deng Liqun at Rural Ideological Meeting K 4
Deng Liqun Speech K 6
Beijing Radio on Political Work in Rural Areas K 15
Document Regulates Farmland Housing Construction K 16

PRC REGIONAL AFFAIRS

NORTH REGION

5th Beijing Municipal CPC Congress Opens 6 Nov R 1
Duan Junyi Speaks R 1
Hebei Abolishes Some Provisional Organs [HEBEI RIBAO 27 Oct] R 2
Hebei's Gao Yang on Developing Diversification [HEBEI RIBAO 22 Oct] R 3
Nei Monggol's Zhou Hui Speaks at Regional Meeting R 5
Zhou Hui at Nei Monggol Red Teams Anniversary R 5
Shanxi's Huo Shilian Visits Well-To-Do Peasants R 6
Tiayuan Holds Municipal CPPCC Session 21-28 Sep [SHANXI RIBAO 17 Oct] R 6

NORTHEAST REGION

Heilongjiang's Yan Yichen on Reforms of Party S 1
Jilin CPC Official on Economic Development S 3

NORTHWEST REGION

Gansu's Feng Jixin Speaks on Intellectuals T 1
Gansu's Feng Jixin Addresses Labor Model Meeting T 1
Gansu Science, Technology Exhibition Opens T 2
Ningxia Reforms Administrative Structure T 3
Qinghai's Liang Buting on Long-Term Planning T 3
Qinghai PLA Leaders Publicize Congress Documents T 4
Qinghai People's Congress Session Scheduled T 4
Ma Wenrui Describes Shaanxi Model Worker [GONGREN RIBAO 25 Oct] T 5
Ma Wenrui Attends Northwest Cultural Meeting T 7
Xinjiang's Wang Enmao on Unity of Nationalities [RENMIN RIBAO 17 Oct] T 8
Urumqi PLA Units Party Congress Opens 22 Oct T 8

HONG KONG MEDIA ON CHINA

TA KUNG PAO Notes PRC Reassurances on Hong Kong [5 Nov] W 1
WEN WEI PO on China's Economic Strategy [5 Nov] W 3
Hong Kong-Based Firm To Receive PRC Company Data [SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST 2 Nov] W 5
Briefs: Trade Delegation to Beijing W 6

FBIS DAILY REPORT

China

Vol I No 217 9 November 1982

CONTENTS

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

NATO Says USSR Hardens Position on Arms Talks A 1
Forestry, Fishery Protocols Signed by PRC, UN A 1
Asian-Pacific Construction Workshop Closes A 1
Delegate Supports Namibia's ITU Membership A 2

UNITED STATES

U.S. Plans To Continue Military Buildup B 1
Weinberger Comments on USSR Pacific Presence B 1
Reagan, Italy's Spadolini Discuss USSR Ties B 1
WASHINGTON POST on NATO's Turkish Airfield Plans B 2

SOVIET UNION

Further Materials on GOSR Anniversary Activities C 1
Friendship Group Greetings C 1
Official's Greetings C 1
GOSR Impact Examined C 2

NORTHEAST ASIA

Deng Xiaoping Meets Japan-PRC Friendship Group D 1
DPRK Broadcasting Delegation Arrives in Nanjing D 1
Han Peixin Hosts Banquet D 1
Minister Welcomes Group D 2
South Korean Students Demonstrate in Seoul D 2

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

UN Envoy Blasts Vietnamese Aggression in DK E 1
CHINA DAILY Discusses Vietnam, Kampuchea [9 Nov] E 2
Khieu Samphan Calls on Sihanouk in Beijing E 3
Khieu Samphan Views UN Vote on DK's Seat E 3
Thai Prime Minister To Visit Beijing 17 Nov E 3

SOUTH ASIA

Soviet General Killed by Guerrillas in Afghanistan F 1
Afghans Said To Inflict Casualties on Soviets F 1

WESTERN EUROPE

UK Prime Minister Blames USSR for Arms Expansion G 1
France, Norway To Adopt Tough USSR Policies G 1

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

Kuwait To Loan PRC Funds for Wood-Product Plant I 1
Huang Hua Meets New Omani Ambassador 8 Nov I 1
Huang Hua Meets New Algerian Ambassador 8 Nov I 1
Zambian UNIP Leader Receives Women's Group I 1

WESTERN HEMISPHERE

Potential in Sino-Canadian Trade Examined J 1
[RENMIN RIBAO 4 Nov]
Cultural Delegation Leaves for S. America J 2
Wan Li Meets Colombian Conservatives Delegation J 2

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

RENMIN RIBAO on Party Work Among Peasants [7 Nov] K 1
RENMIN RIBAO on Communism, CPC Members [5 Nov] K 4
10th CYL Central Committee Holds 4th Plenum K 6
Wang Zhaoguo First Secretary K 6
Hu Qili's Address K 7
Wang Zhaoguo's Closing Address K 10
Wang Zhaoguo Interview K 10
Li Desheng on Understanding Congress Spirit K 12
[RENMIN RIBAO 7 Nov]
Zhang Tingfa on Selecting, Promoting Cadres K 12
Wan Li Addresses Railway Conference Closing K 13
Ulanhu Article on Broadcasting, Television K 14
Regulations on Protecting Communications Lines K 15
Fang Yi Speaks at Tungsten Industry Meeting K 16
Fang Yi Meets Hunan Calligraphists 7 Nov K 17
Zhu Muzhi Talks to Cadres on CPC Documents K 17
AFP Source Confirms Trial of Red Guard 'Generals' K 18

PRC REGIONAL AFFAIRS

CENTRAL-SOUTH REGION

Guangdong Official Meets Hong Kong Delegation P 1
Trade Discussed P 1
Henan's Liu Jie Sees Production Potential P 2
Zhengzhou, Anyang Courts Issues Sentences P 2
Station Commentary P 4
Henan Radio Commentary on Recent PLA Exercise P 5
Hubei Provincial Leaders Attend Award Rally P 5
Hunan Tries, Sentences Jiang Qing Followers P 6
Briefs: Henan Popularizing Science Forum; P 7
Hubei Subsidizes Urban Livelihood

SOUTHWEST REGION

Guizhou's Chi Biqing Joins Cleanup Drive Q 1
Sichuan People's Congress Committee Meeting Ends Q 1
Xizang's Yin Fatang at Documents Study Class Q 1
Yunnan Radio Relates Case of Liu Yinnong Q 2
Briefs: Guizhou Water, Soil Conservation; Q 3
Chengdu Illegal Farmland Occupation

TAIWAN

PRC Pilot Defector Meets Foreign Reporters V 1
Notes Corruption in PRC V 1
PRC Air Force 'Backward' V 2
Commissioned Air Force Major V 2
Further Reports on Security Cooperation Conference V 3
U.S. Policy Criticized V 3
Sun Addresses Closing Session V 3
Foreign Minister Views U.S. Public Opinion V 5
Defense Minister Discusses Military Preparedness V 5
[CHUNG YANG JIH PAO 28 Oct]
Seminar Views U.S. Elections, Foreign Policy V 5
CHUNG YANG JIH PAO Denounces Peace Talk Idea [28 Oct] V 6

HONG KONG MEDIA ON CHINA

PRC To Consider Cuts in U.S. Cotton Imports W 1
[SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST 9 Nov]
Detention of Hong Kong Citizen by PRC Confirmed W 2
[SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST 6 Nov]
HSIN WAN PAO on China's Recovery of Hong Kong W 2
[6 Nov]
Hong Kong Paper Reviews PLA Command Changes W 3
[SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST 6 Nov]
MING PAO Examines Space Technology Development W 6
[6 Nov]
Seminar Recommends Developing Northwest China W 7
[HSIN WAN PAO 6 Nov]

FBIS DAILY REPORT

China

CONTENTS

Vol I No 218 10 November 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

KYODO: Deng on Relations With USSR, U.S., Japan A 1
RENMIN RIBAO on U.S.-USSR Nuclear Arms Talks A 2
[9 Nov]
IMF Approves Loan to S. Africa With U.S. Support A 4
Soviet Professors Attend Beijing Symposium A 5

UNITED STATES

XINHUA Correspondent Views Midterm Elections B 1
Huang Hua Meets U.S. Congressional Delegation B 2
George Bush To Visit African Countries B 2

SOVIET UNION

AFP: Deng Outlines Concern Over USSR Troops C 1

NORTHEAST ASIA

Xi Zhongxun Meets DPRK Radio, TV Delegation D 1
Briefs: Japanese Cultural Exchange Delegation D 1

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

VODK Commentary on Soviet Delegation's Visit E 1
RENMIN RIBAO on Hanoi, Phnom Penh's New Move E 1
[6 Nov]
Khieu Samphan Visits People's Commune in Beijing E 1
Thai Minister on Prem Tinsulanon's Visit E 2
Peng Chong Receives Thai Journalists 7 Nov E 2
Thai Deputy Prime Minister Receives Delegation E 2
Wang Bingnan Fetes Thai Friendship Delegation E 3
USSR Planes Said To Violate Philippine Airspace E 3
Article Examines Returning Hong Kong to PRC E 3
[SHIJIE JINGJI DAOBAO 18 Oct]
Australian Leaders Meet U.S. Defense Secretary E 5

SOUTH ASIA

India-PRC Amity Group Holds Fifth Conference F 1
Wang Bingnan at Meeting Honoring Pakistani Poet F 1

WESTERN EUROPE

Ni Zhifu Meets French Labor Delegation 6 Nov G 1
Ulanhu Receives Credentials of New Spanish Envoy G 1
Swedish Envoy Presents Credentials to Ulanhu G 1

EASTERN EUROPE

CSSR Foreign Minister Views Relations With PRC H 1
Reception Marks Yugoslav Writer's Birthday H 1

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

Qiao Shi Meets Congolese Labor Party Group I 1
Ambassador to Ethiopia Presents Credentials I 1
Somali President Receives PRC Delegation I 1

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Constitutional Revision Committee Meeting Ends K 1
NANFANG RIBAO on Correcting Party Work Style K 1
[4 Nov]
RENMIN RIBAO on Replacing Old Cadres With Young K 3
[3 Nov]
Using Science, Technology To Improve Economy K 5
[RENMIN RIBAO 7 Nov]
Fang Yi Speech on Scientific Work in Cities [GUANGMING RIBAO 22 Oct] K 6
Economic Commission Circular on Large Enterprises K 12
Commentary on Improving Rural Credit Utilization [RENMIN RIBAO 6 Nov] K 14
Winter Wheat Sowing in North Completed K 15
'Opening to World' Is 'Long-Term Policy' [CHINA DAILY 10 Nov] K 16
Ba Yi Radio Scores Purging of Army Leaders K 17
Xi Zhongxun-Led Delegation Inspects Liaoning [LIAONING RIBAO 21 Oct] K 18
Li Desheng Urges Endemic Disease Prevention K 19
Bo Yibo Attends Memorial Service for Wu Zhigang K 20
Bo Yibo on Publication of World Economy Almanac K 20
Bo Yibo Stresses Propaganda on Population K 21
Yang Jingren Addresses Democratic Party Meeting K 22
Wang Bingqian Speaks at Fiscal Work Conference K 23
Pan Yao Addresses Commercial Work Meeting 5 Nov K 24
Navy Headquarters Congratulates Radio Plant K 25
Sichuan Hosts Science Information Meeting K 25

PRC REGIONAL AFFAIRS

EAST REGION

Anhui's Zhou Zijian Helps Clean Up Environment O 1
Zhou Zijian at Anhui's Finance Meeting O 1
Fujian's Xiang Nan Writes on Role of Education O 2
Xiang Nan at Fujian Marine Aquatics Meeting O 2
Jiangsu's Xu Jiatun on Economic Crime, Discipline O 2
Shandong Holds 17th People's Congress Meeting O 4
Bai Rubing Attends Jinan Militia Rally 6 Nov O 4
North Sea Fleet Studies CPC Congress Documents O 5
[DAZHONG RIBAO 18 Oct]
Jinan PLA Units Stress Ideological Study O 5
Shanghai's Chen Guodong Visits Grassroots Units O 6
Shanghai's Chen Guodong Watches Shaoxing Opera O 7
Chen Guodong Attends Shanghai Concert 7 Nov O 7
Briefs: Shandong Popular Science Works O 7

NORTH REGION

Duan Junyi Addresses Beijing CPC Congress R 1
Streamlining Government R 1
Economic Situation R 1
Development Plans R 2
Shanxi's Huo Shilian on 12th Party Congress Goal R 3
Taiyuan Holds Congress To Elect Mayor 22-28 Sep R 4
[SHANXI RIBAO 17 Oct]

NORTHEAST REGION

Heilongjiang CPC Urged To Eliminate '3 Types' S 1
[HEILONGJIANG RIBAO 20 Oct]
Shenyang PLA's Li Desheng on Communist Education S 2
Liaoning Forum Urges Mass Discussion of Plans S 4
Li Desheng Aids in Shenyang Cleanup Campaign S 5
Briefs: Liaoning Gold Mining S 5

NORTHWEST REGION

Feng Jixin at Closing of Gansu Labor Meeting T 1
Ningxia Regional CPC Committee Meets 21-25 Oct T 1
[NINGXIA RIBAO 26 Oct]
Shaanxi's Ma Wenrui Meets PRC Dramatists T 5
Shaanxi's Ma Wenrui Hears Wheat Experts' Report T 6
Urumqi PLA's Xiao Quanfu on 'Leftist' Ideas T 6
[RENMIN RIBAO 5 Nov]
Xinjiang's Ismail Amat on Nationality Unity T 7
Wang Enmao at Xinjiang Nationality Meeting T 8
Xinjiang's Wang Enmao on Role of Social Science T 9

TAIWAN

Premier Sun Receives PRC Pilot Defector V 1
Premier Sun Opens Conference, Thanks Reagan V 1
Trade Mission Returns From European Tour V 1
Taiwan 'Key Link' in U.S. Pacific Defense V 2
[CHINA POST 5 Nov]
Government Interested in U.S. T-34 Trainers V 3
[LIEN HO PAO 4 Nov]
PA SHIH NIEN TAI on New Political Parties Issue V 3
[15 Oct]

HONG KONG MEDIA ON CHINA

Wu Xueqian 'Expected' To Be New Foreign Minister W 1
[SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST 10 Nov]
Hong Kong Groups To Discuss '1997' in PRC W 3
[SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST 10 Nov]

FBIS DAILY REPORT

China

Vol I No 219 12 November 1982

CONTENTS

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

U.S., USSR Motives Viewed at Madrid Meeting [RENMIN RIBAO 11 Nov] A 1
PRC Pledges Contributions to UN Organizations A 2
Huang Hua Meets New Egyptian, Indian Envoys A 3
Bo Yibo Says Patent Law Near Completion A 3

UNITED STATES

CHINA DAILY Views U.S. Economics, Politics [12 Nov] B 1
First PRC-U.S. Energy, Environment Confab Opens B 2

SOVIET UNION

Reaction to Soviet President Brezhnev's Death C 1
First Announcement C 1
TV Coverage C 1
NPC Condolence Message C 1
Poor Health Cited C 1
Funeral Plans, Biography C 2
Front-Page Coverage [ZHONGGUO XINWEN SHE 12 Nov] C 2
KYODO: Funeral Delegation C 2
KYODO: Ministry Statement C 3
Leaders Extend Condolences C 3
USSR Protests Basing U.S. F-16's in Japan C 4

NORTHEAST ASIA

Further Reports on DPRK Media Delegation Visit D 1
Meets Hu Yaobang D 1
DPRK Envoy Fetes Group D 1

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

Further Materials on Khieu Samphan's Visit E 1
Meets Hu Yaobang E 1
Zhao Hosts Banquet E 1

SOUTH ASIA

USSR Said To Be Losing 'Sticky' Afghanistan War F 1

WESTERN EUROPE

Britain Sentences Soviet Spy to 35-Year Jail Term G 1
PRC, Belgian-Luxembourg Commission Meets G 1
Ulanhu Receives Swiss Envoy's Credentials G 2
Ye Jianying Greets New Turkish President G 2

EASTERN EUROPE

Street Demonstrations Reported in Polish Cities H 1
PAP Cited on Expected Lech Walesa Release H 1
Foreign Minister Huang Hua Meets Yugoslav Envoy H 1

WESTERN HEMISPHERE

Culture Agreement Signed With Colombia 10 Nov J 1
Ambassador to Mexico Ends Term of Office J 1

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Fifth NPC Session Scheduled for 26 Nov K 1
RENMIN RIBAO on Ideological, Political Unity [10 Nov] K 1
RENMIN RIBAO Urges Communists To Serve People [8 Nov] K 4
CHINA DAILY Article on Rural Industries [12 Nov] K 7
Nuclear Accelerators Reported Designed, Built K 8
Further on Accelerators K 8
Zhejiang Site for Nuclear Power Station K 9
[CHINA DAILY 12 Nov]
Science Forum Discusses Zhao Congress Report K 9
[RENMIN RIBAO 10 Nov]
Science Academy Urges Study of Zhao Science Talk K 10
Ba Yi Says Building Nuclear Submarines Unwise K 11
National Commerce Conference Ends 10 Nov K 11
XINHUA Commentator on Shoudu Iron, Steel Company K 12
RENMIN RIBAO on Coal Ministry's Education Work [9 Nov] K 14
Praised in Commentary K 15
Beijing Meeting Stresses Energy Conservation K 15
3-Year Railway Development Plan Worked Out K 16
Official on Modernizing Economic Legislation K 17
Crime Rate Decline Attributed to Policy K 18
Chen Pixian Visits Hospitalized Policewoman K 19
Xu Xiangqian Receives Sister of PLA Martyr K 19
Renovation of Genghis Khan Mausoleum Completed K 20

PRC MEDIA ON TAIWAN AFFAIRS

Text of Teng Hongzhi Letter to Chiang Ching-kuo U 1

TAIWAN

Taipei Spokesman Comments on Brezhnev's Death V 1
U.S. Magazine Story on Taiwan Troubles Rebutted V 1
Pact Signed With Kentucky To Promote Trade V 2

HONG KONG MEDIA ON CHINA

TA KUNG PAO on PRC Relations With U.S., USSR [10 Nov] W 1
PRC Mayor, Delegation Visit Macao 10 Nov W 2
[SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST 10 Nov]

FBIS DAILY REPORT CONTENTS

China

Vol I No 220

15 November 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

UN Representative Condemns South Africa A 1
UN Security Council Hears Appeal on West Bank A 1
U.S. Paper Says USSR Builds 6 Airfields in DRA A 2

UNITED STATES

Reagan on Improvement in U.S.-USSR Relations B 1
U.S. Lifts Pipeline Sanctions Against USSR B 1
Xi Zhongxun Meets, Fetes U.S. Delegation B 2
Congressional Delegation Welcomed in Beijing B 2
Fang Yi Meets Delegation B 2
Michigan State Delegation Arrives in Sichuan B 3
Milliken Hosts Banquet B 3

SOVIET UNION

Huang Hua Leads Delegation to Brezhnev Funeral C 1
Foreign Ministry Announcement C 1
Departs for Moscow C 1
Arrives on 14 Nov C 1
AFP Lists Delegation C 1
Huang Pays Tribute C 1
Predeparture Statement C 2
Andropov Elected CPSU General Secretary 12 Nov C 3
TASS Issues Biography C 3
Friendship Society Sends Condolences on Brezhnev C 3

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

Beijing Decries SRV-Cuba Condemnation of PRC E 1
Nguyen Co Thach Remarks on UN DK Vote Viewed E 1
Zhao Ziyang, Sihanouk Speak at Beijing Banquet E 2
DK's Khieu Samphan Visits Army School in Hebei E 5
Zhao Ziyang Bids Farewell E 5
DK Radio Urges Vietnamese People To End War E 5
Lao Defense Minister Receives Soviet Delegation E 6
Peng Chong Leads NPC Delegation on Asian Trip E 6
Arrives in Bangkok E 7
Reaffirms Support for Thailand E 7
Speaks at Banquet E 8
Thai Prime Minister on Coming Visit to PRC E 9
Ulanhu Receives Credentials of New Thai Envoy E 9
Huang Hua Meets Malaysian Foreign Minister E 9
Hong Kong-PRC Trade Continues To Increase E 10
[CHINA DAILY 14 Nov]
Ulanhu Receives First Kiribati Ambassador 13 Nov E 10

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Further on NPC Standing Committee Meeting K 1
Zhu Muzhi on Relics Law K 2
Hygiene Law Discussed K 3
Yuan Baohua on Port Openings K 3
Laws Concerning State Structure To Be Revised K 4
Legal System To Advance K 4
CPPCC Constitutional Revision Committee Meets K 5
RENMIN RIBAO on Focus of Ideological Work [15 Nov] K 6
RENMIN RIBAO Editorial on Spiritual Civilization [14 Nov] K 8
More Spiritual Civilization Activists Emerge K 12
Deng Liqun Addresses Meeting K 12
Beijing Meeting Commends PLA Projectionists K 13
Yu Qiuli Commends Film Teams K 14
Leaders Watch Modern Drama by PLA Troupe K 14
North Sea Fleet Commander Explains CPC Documents K 15
First Ship-Based Helicopter Pilots Trained K 15
[RENMIN RIBAO 13 Nov]
National Drama Conference in Xian Closes K 16
Zhou Weizhi at Meeting K 17
RENMIN RIBAO Urges Writers To Go Deep Into Life K 18
[10 Nov]
Labor Minister Views Employment Situation K 20

TAIWAN

CHINA TIMES Reports Delivery of U.S. Missiles V 1
Planner Predicts 'Gradual Economic Recovery' V 1
CNA Reports Figures on Trade With Japan, U.S. V 1
CHENG CHIH CHIA Suspended for Aiding Communists V 2
[CHUNG KUO SHIH PAO 7 Nov]
Briefs: New Taiwan Dollar Devalued; V 2
Foreign Trade Drops

HONG KONG MEDIA ON CHINA

PRC To Vote on Hong Kong Status at Congress W 1
HSIN WAN PAO on USSR-PRC Post-Brezhnev Relations W 1
[12 Nov]
TA KUNG PAO on PRC's 'New Evaluation' of USSR W 2
[15 Nov]
WEN WEI PO Reports Reorganization of PRC Magazine W 4
[14 Nov]

FBIS DAILY REPORT

China

CONTENTS

Vol I No 221 16 November 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

UN Adopts Declaration on Peaceful Settlement A 1
Conference on Rare Metal Production Ends 11 Nov A 1

UNITED STATES

'Roundup' on U.S. Lifting of Pipeline Sanctions B 1
RENMIN RIBAO Article [15 Nov] B 2
U.S.-China Conference on Energy Held in Beijing B 4
Wang Shien Attends B 4
Development of Coal Industry B 4
Conference Ends B 5
Deng Xiaoping Meets U.S. Professor 13 Nov B 5

SOVIET UNION

Huang Hua Attends Brezhnev Funeral 15 Nov C 1
Huang Hua Holds Meetings in Moscow 14-15 Nov C 1
Meets George Bush C 1
TANJUG: Huang Reportedly To Meet Gromyko C 1
Television Coverage of Events in Moscow C 2
Initial Reports C 2
Brezhnev Funeral C 3
Late Report: Huang Hua Meets Gromyko 16 Nov C 3

NORTHEAST ASIA

DPRK Vice Premier Receives PRC Scientists D 1
PRC Suspends Indirect Trade With South Korea D 1
Japanese-American Military Exercise Begins D 1
Ulanhu Meets Delegation From Fukuoka, Japan D 2
Liao Chengzhi Meets Japanese Socialists D 2
Liao Chengzhi Receives Former Japanese Dietman D 2

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

SRV Said To Prepare Dry Season Offensive in PRK E 1
Sihanouk Departs Beijing 16 Nov for DPRK E 1
Arrives in Pyongyang E 1

WESTERN EUROPE

Annual Meeting of PRC-EEC Committee Ends 12 Nov G 1
Italian Delegation Arrives, Meets Officials G 1
Bo Yibo Meets Italian Businessmen 12 Nov G 1
XINHUA Views Italian Government's Collapse G 1

Hu Yaobang Congratulates New Spanish CP Leader G 2
Text of Message [RENMIN RIBAO 13 Nov] G 3
Bo Yibo Meets British Shipbuilders' Delegation G 3
Economic, Trade Delegation Leaves for Turkey G 3

EASTERN EUROPE

PRC Delegation at SFRY Trade Union Conference H 1
Congress Ends H 1

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

RENMIN RIBAO on Israeli Annexation of West Bank [11 Nov] I 1
Prospects of National Reconcilation in Lebanon [CHINA DAILY 16 Nov] I 2
Ye Jianying Congratulates Cameroonian President I 3
Zhao Ziyang Message to Cameroonian Minister I 3
Beijing Comments on Namibian Independence I 3

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Hu Yaobang Pays Inspection Visit to Fujian K 1
He Jingzhi: Criticize 'Ultrademocratic' Works K 1
HONGQI Commentator Views Problems in CPC Style K 2
Retired Cadres Continue To Serve Public K 3
Tan Qilong Article on Socialist Modernization [RENMIN RIBAO 9 Nov] K 4
Economic Commission Official on Economic System K 11
Economic Commission Arranges Industrial Work K 12
Reform of Supply, Marketing Cooperatives Promoted K 13
Liaoning Official Raps State of Rural Education [CHINA DAILY 14 Nov] K 14
Air Force Sets Goals for Spiritual Civilization K 16
Scientific Society Follows Zhao Guidelines K 17
Beijing Ceremony Marks Sun Yat-sen's Birthday K 18
Meeting Marks Guo Moruo's Birth Anniversary K 18
Memorial Meeting for Chen Wanlan Held in Beijing K 19
Energy Conservation Centers Set Up Nationwide K 19
Rural Enterprises Forum Ends in Beijing 13 Nov K 20

PRC MEDIA ON TAIWAN AFFAIRS

Taiwan Leader Attacks PRC To Gain U.S. Arms U 1

TAIWAN

Spokesman Views PRC-USSR Thaw, Brezhnev Death V 1
Taipei Comments on Role of Brezhnev's Successor V 2
Vice Foreign Minister Assesses USSR-PRC Talks V 3
President Chiang Interviewed by LE FIGARO V 4
Briefs: Foreign Exchange Reserves V 4

FBIS DAILY REPORT CONTENTS

China

Vol I No 222 17 November 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

BEIJING REVIEW on UN Support for Kampuchea A 1
Delegation Leaves To Attend UNESCO Session A 2
XINHUA Cites GATT Report on World, PRC Trade A 2

UNITED STATES

Reagan, Kohl Look for Better East-West Relations B 1
Beijing Views Lifting of Pipeline Sanctions B 2
Vice President Bush Ends Visit to Nigeria B 3
Wang Shoudao Meets U.S.-China Relations Group B 3
Zhu Xuefan Meets With ITT Delegation 15 Nov B 3

SOVIET UNION

Huang Hua in Moscow With 'Important' Message [Zagreb] C 1
TV Coverage of Huang Hua's Contacts in Moscow C 1

NORTHEAST ASIA

Beijing Reports on Radio, TV Group's DPRK Visit D 1
Deng Xiaoping, Wang Zhen Meet JSP Delegation D 3
Deng Xiaoping Recalls Warning Against U.S. [KYODO] D 3

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

RENMIN RIBAO Prints Hoang Van Hoan Article E 1
SRV Vessels Seize Thai Fishing Trawlers E 2
Thai Prime Minister Meets NPC Delegation E 2
Agriculture Minister Received by Marcos E 3
Fang Yi Meets Kiribati Ambassador 15 Nov E 3

SOUTH ASIA

Afghans Sabotage Tunnel, Killing Soviets F 1
Soviets Kill Afghan Civilians in Herat Province F 1
PRC Sports Delegation Arrives in India for Asiad F 1

EASTERN EUROPE

Romanian Ambassador Visits Hainan 7-10 Nov H 1
XINHUA Analyzes Yugoslav Economic Difficulties H 1

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

PLO States Stand on Mideast Talks Participation I 1
Mali Rural Development Minister Arrives I 1
Meets With Wan Li I 1

WESTERN HEMISPHERE

XINHUA Analyzes Forthcoming Caribbean Summit J 1

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

NPC Standing Committee Holds Plenary Session K 1
Legal Scholar Views Revised State Constitution K 1
CPPCC Constitution Committee Meeting Ends K 2
LE MONDE Reports on Trial of Dissidents [12 Nov] K 3
RENMIN RIBAO on Economic Responsibility System [12 Nov] K 3
RENMIN RIBAO on Contract Management in Shops [15 Nov] K 7
CHINA DAILY on Status of Dalai Lama, Tibet [17 Nov] K 8
School Enrollment Decline Reported in Rural Area K 9
Rural School Enrollment Decline Reported K 9
RENMIN RIBAO Carries Population Analysis K 10
Liu Shaoqi Article on Literature, Art Policy K 11
[GUANGMING RIBAO 3 Nov]
Yang Dezhi at PLA Meeting Honoring Model Teacher K 14
Military Encyclopedia To Be Compiled by PLA K 14
Wang Zhen, Fang Yi at Ceremony Honoring Guo Moruo K 15
Scientific Body Formulates Development Plan K 16

PRC MEDIA ON TAIWAN AFFAIRS

Former KMT General Calls for CPC-KMT Peace Talks U 1
Overseas Newspaper Urges Chiang To Hold Talks U 1

TAIWAN

PRC Diplomat Granted Political Asylum in France V 1
Paper Reports Defection of Mainland Physicist V 1
President Chiang Receives U.S. Congressmen V 2
Paper Views Development of Medium-Range Missiles V 2
[LIEN HO PAO 11 Nov]

HONG KONG MEDIA ON CHINA

TA KUNG PAO Views Relations in Post-Brezhnev Era [16 Nov] W 1
WEN WEI PO on Hu Yaobang's Visit to Liangshan [17 Nov] W 2
Guangdong Proposes Committee on Trade Problems W 3
[SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST 15 Nov]
Global Recession Affects PRC Special Development W 4
[SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST 17 Nov]

FBIS DAILY REPORT CONTENTS

China

Vol I No 223 18 November 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

Guangzhou 1982 Autumn Trade Fair Judged Success A 1
Shanghai Firm Signs Pacts With Foreign Concerns A 2

SOVIET UNION

Huang Hua Leaves Moscow for Home 17 Nov C 1
'Optimistic' on Talks C 1

NORTHEAST ASIA

Kim Il-song Hosts Birthday Banquet for Sihanouk D 1
Kim Il-song Addresses DPRK Artillery Meeting D 1
[RENMIN RIBAO 15 Nov]
RENMIN RIBAO Urges End to Division of Korea [18 Nov] D 1
Japanese Air Force Develops Reconnaissance Plane D 2
Japanese Bank Sets Up Office in Beijing D 2
Japanese Food Industry Exhibition Opens 18 Nov D 3

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

Thai Prime Minister Begins Official PRC Visit E 1
Departs Bangkok E 1
Arrives in Beijing E 1
Zhao Ziyang Hosts Banquet E 2
Text of Prem Banquet Speech E 4
[THE NATION REVIEW 18 Nov]
Kampuchean Question Discussed E 6
Prem Meets Huang's 'Successor' E 7
[THE NATION REVIEW 18 Nov]

SOUTH ASIA

Indian-Pakistani Trade Relations Resume F 1
Asian Games Executive Committee Meets 17 Nov F 1

WESTERN EUROPE

Wan Li Meets Italian Vice Foreign Minister G 1
Thatcher Warns Against One-Sided Disarmament G 1

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

Religious Affairs Director Meets Algerian Guests I 1
Lebanon's Al-Wazzan Cited on Mideast Peace I 1

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Hu Yaobang: No Change in Special Zone Policy K 1
State Council Issues Enterprises Aid Regulation K 3
State Council Makes Appointments, Removals K 4
Deng Xiaoping Sends Wreath on Death of Wei Zuzhen K 4
Certified Public Accountants Reappearing K 5
[CHINA DAILY 17 Nov]
RENMIN RIBAO on Building New Fuel Forests [13 Nov] K 6
National Seminar Deals With Rural Energy K 8
100 Coal-Mining Projects To Be Initiated K 8
Production of 1.2 Billion Tons of Coal by 2000 K 9
National Rural Highway Construction Meeting Held K 10
[SHANXI RIBAO 27 Oct]
National Seminar Discusses Economic Returns K 10
More College Graduates Serving in PLA Air Force K 11
Importance of Middle-Aged Intellectuals Noted K 11
TIYU BAO Cites Hu on Sports, Party Parallel K 12
Chen Pixian Attends Shanghai Pingtan Performance K 13
Foreign Metallurgical Construction Group Set Up K 13
RENMIN RIBAO Carries HONGQI Table of Contents [14 Nov] K 14

FBIS DAILY REPORT CONTENTS

China

Vol I No 224

19 November 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

World Bank To Provide Agricultural Funds A 1
RENMIN RIBAO on Third World Economic Freedom [16 Nov] A 1

UNITED STATES

RENMIN RIBAO Views Reagan-Kohl Discussions B 1
XINHUA on Purpose of Weinberger's Asian Trip B 2

SOVIET UNION

TV Reports on Huang Hua Departure From Moscow C 1

NORTHEAST ASIA

Joint U.S.-Japanese Ground Exercise Ends D 1
Japan's LDP Nearing Selection of President D 1
Gu Mu Meets Japanese Trade Promotion Delegation D 2

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

XINHUA Reports on DK Army Liberation of Villages E 1
Thailand's Prime Minister Continues Visit E 1
Attends Art Performance E 1
Zhao on Foreign Relations E 1
Huang, Sitthi Talks E 2
Zhao Attends Prem Banquet E 2
XINHUA Views Sino-Thai Economic Cooperation E 3
Liao Chengzhi Meets Singapore Pugilists E 4
Textile Minister Hao Jianziu Visits Burma [cross-reference] E 4

SOUTH ASIA

Afghans Attack Soviets in Farah, Qandahar F 1
India, U.S. Resume High-Level Consultations F 1
Delegation Leaves for Pakistan, Bangladesh F 1

WESTERN EUROPE

Quao Shi Meets French Labor Delegation 18 Nov G 1
PRC-Luxembourg Ties Anniversary Celebrated G 1
Briefs: Sino-French Investigation G 1

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

XINHUA on Current Middle East Peace Talks I 1

WESTERN HEMISPHERE

PRC, Ecuador Sign Cultural Cooperation Agreement J 1
Ulanhu Meets With Ecuadorean Judicial Delegation J 1
Daily on Latin American Economic Relations J 1
[RENMIN RIBAO 9 Nov]

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

New Foreign, Defense Minister Appointed K 1
Wu Xueqian Foreign Minister K 1
Zhang Aiping Defense Minister K 1
NPC Standing Committee Session Ends 19 Nov K 1
Yang Dezhi Attends PLA Logistics Conference K 2
Chen Pixian Urges Improved Social Order K 3
AFP Reports Cultural Revolution Trials Slated K 3
End of Eating From 'Same Big Pot' Urged K 4
[RENMIN RIBAO 17 Nov]
Exploits of Shoudu Steel Company Cited K 6
[RENMIN RIBAO 12 Nov]
Further on Shoudu Steel K 6
RENMIN RIBAO on Education New Party Members [17 Nov] K 10
Committee Approves Draft of CPPCC Constitution K 13
HONGQI Discusses Chinese Foreign Policy [No 21, 1 Nov] K 14
HONGQI on Need for Defense Modernization [No 21, 1 Nov] K 20
Survey of Coastal Zones, Tidal Flats Underway K 26
New Railway To Extend From Hubei to Guangxi K 27
[CHINA DAILY 19 Nov]

PRC REGIONAL AFFAIRS

NORTHEAST REGION

Anhui Opens 'Five-Good Family' Meeting O 1
Zhou Zijian Speaks O 1

PRC MEDIA ON TAIWAN AFFAIRS

RENMIN RIBAO Examines Taiwan's Economy [12 Nov] U 1

TAIWAN

Taipei Assails Free World Homage to Brezhnev V 1
AFP: Premier Sun Yun-hsuan Discusses PRC, USSR V 2
Chiang Seeks Cooperation in Economic Policy V 3
Premier Sun Orders End to Trademark Fraud V 3
Briefs: Fishery Development Program V 4

FBIS DAILY REPORT CONTENTS

China

Vol I No 225 22 November 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

PRC Pledges Contribution to UN Refugee Program A 1
Atomic Energy Agency Chief Extols Nuclear Power A 1
NATO Parliamentarians Urge Improved Strength A 1
Rogers on Defense Spending A 2
NATO Official on Mediterranean Area Dangers A 2
Shultz, Tikhonov on U.S.-Soviet Relations A 3
USSR's Ustinov on Need for War Readiness A 4
International Rural Development Seminar Opens A 4

UNITED STATES

U.S. Oil-Drilling Gear Reaches Southern PRC B 1
RENMIN RIBAO on Chinese Writers' U.S. Visit [17 Nov] B 1

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

Thailand's Prime Minister Concludes Official Visit E 1
Hu Yaobang Views Kampuchea E 1
Hu on Hong Kong Recovery E 1
BANGKOK POST Report [20 Nov] E 2
Meeting With NPC Vice Chairman E 3
Deng Discusses USSR Relations E 3
Prem News Conference E 4
Bangkok Coverage E 5
Prem Sees Zhao Ziyang, Departs E 6
Comments in Bangkok E 6

SOUTH ASIA

PLA's Chi Haotian Attends Bangladesh Reception F 1
Bangladesh's Ershad To Pay Official Visit 27 Nov F 1
Gandhi Receives PRC Song, Dance Artists F 1
Pakistan's Ziaul Haq Receives Lin Hujia F 2
Ziaul Haq Cited on Afghan Refugee Problem F 2

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

XINHUA Reporters Interview Egyptian Official I 1
Egypt Holds Military Exercises in Sinai 19 Nov I 2
U.S. Special Envoy Habib Returns to Lebanon I 2
Beijing Reception Marks National Day of Oman I 3
Oman's Deputy Prime Minister Arrives 21 Nov I 3
Syria's Al-Asad Meets U.S. Congressional Group I 3
U.S. Vice President Continues Africa Visit I 4
Departs Zimbabwe I 4
Stops in Zambia I 4
Benin's Kerekou Receives PRC Envoy's Credentials I 4

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Further on NPC Standing Committee Session K 1
Biographies of Wu, Zhang K 1
Judicial Appointments K 1
Further on CPPCC Standing Committee Meeting K 1
Session Scheduled 24 Nov K 1
Newcomers Appointed K 2
Meeting Ends 21 Nov K 2
Self-Criticism on Zhao Yiya Article Published K 3
[JIEFANG RIBAO 16 Nov]
Ba Yi Radio Defends Current Purged PLA Leaders K 5
Sun Yefang on Quadrupling Output in 20 Years K 6
[RENMIN RIBAO 19 Nov]
State Council Enterprise Consolidation Meeting K 15
CPC Leading Comrade on Tianjin Commercial Work K 16
Chen Pixian Addresses Conference on Social Order K 16
Xizang People's Congress Chairman Dies K 18
Bainqen Erdini Returns From Gansu, Sichuan Tour K 19
Zhao Ziyang Hails Shanxi County's Successes K 20

PRC REGIONAL AFFAIRS

NORTH REGION

Beijing CPC Committee Elects New Leadership [RENMIN RIBAO 18 Nov] R 1
Party Committee Elected R 1
Beijing Municipal CPC Congress Held R 2
Beijing Promotes Younger, More Educated Leaders R 4
Shanxi People's Congress Standing Committee Meets [SHANXI RIBAO 28 Oct] R 5
People's Congress Set for December [SHANXI RIBAO 30 Oct] R 5
Shanxi Commends Advanced Party Branches, Members [SHANXI RIBAO 27 Oct] R 6
Shanxi Article on Punishment of Economic Criminals R 6
[SHANXI RIBAO 27 Oct]
PLA Unit Praised for Tianjin Engineering Work R 7
TIANJIN RIBAO on Illegal Housing Construction R 8

TAIWAN

CCNAA Appoints New Representative to U.S. V 1
CNA on Deng Campaign for PRC Presidency V 1
Import Ban on Additional Japanese Goods Lifted V 1
Editorial Calls for Keeping Taiwan Secure V 2
[CHINA POST 15 Nov]
Serious Social, Environmental Problems Noted V 3
President Chiang Views Ties With PRC, U.S. V 3
[Paris LE FIGARO 13-19 Nov]
Premier SUN Comments on PRC-USSR Rapprochement V 7
[ASIA MAGAZINE]

HONG KONG MEDIA ON CHINA

TA KUNG PAO: Deng Xiaoping Meets U.S. Professor [18 Nov] W 1
WEN WEI PO on Zhang Aiping Appointment [20 Nov] W 3
WEN WEI PO on 'Optimistic' Sino-Soviet Prospects [21 Nov] W 4
Xisha Quandao Designated Restricted Military Zone W 5
[HONG KONG STANDARD 22 Nov]
12-Mile Limit Announced W 6
[SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST 22 Nov]

FBIS DAILY REPORT CONTENTS

China

Vol I No 226 23 November 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

UN Committee Approves Television Satellite Plan A 1
XINHUA Views Scheduled GATT Session in Geneva A 1

SOVIET UNION

CPSU Central Committee Holds Moscow Meeting C 1
Further Details C 1
Andropov Address C 2

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

DK's Prime Minister Son Sann Arrives for Visit E 1
Official Welcome E 1
Talks With Zhao Ziyang E 1
Zhao Ziyang Hosts Banquet E 2
Son Sann Visits Great Wall E 4
Peng Chong Hosts Banquet in Bangkok 18 Nov E 4
Delegation Leaves for Malaysia E 5
Peng Chong Hails ASEAN E 5
NPC Delegation Leaves for Australia, New Zealand E 5
Dinner in Sydney E 6
Liao Chengzi: PRC To Recover Hong Kong by 1997 E 6
UK Army Chief Cited on Hong Kong Defense Plans E 7
[London THE DAILY TELEGRAPH 20 Nov]
PRC To Help Fiji Promote Rice Production E 7

SOUTH ASIA

India Sends Invitations for Nonaligned Summit F 1
Chen Xian Attends Indian President's Reception F 1
Lu Jiaxi Fetes Indian Science Academy President F 1
Romanian President Stops Over in Pakistan F 2

WESTERN EUROPE

PRC, Britain To Cooperate in Shipbuilding G 1
Technical Cooperation With Turkey To Be Promoted G 1

EASTERN EUROPE

Polish Army Inspection Teams To Visit Countryside H 1
Gu Mu Meets Romanian Banking Delegation 20 Nov H 1
Qiao Shi Meets, Fetes New Yugoslav Ambassador H 1

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

Jordan's Husayn Plans Visits to PRC, USSR, U.S. I 1
Yang Dezhi Hosts Dinner for Omani Official I 1
RENMIN RIBAO Reports on Middle East Peace Talks [21 Nov] I 2
XINHUA Commentary on IMF Treatment of Zambia I 3

WESTERN HEMISPHERE

Antiguan Official Interviewed on Foreign Policy J 1

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Economic Responsibility System Report Issued K 1
RENMIN RIBAO on Party Constitution Features [22 Nov] K 4
Deputy Education Minister on Higher Education [RENMIN RIBAO 18 Nov] K 8
WEN HUI BAO Calls for Educational Reform [15 Nov] K 10
Coal Ministry, Fujian Take Lead in Education [CHINA DAILY 23 Nov] K 12
Hunan's Mao Zhiyong Urges Respect for Teachers K 12
Beijing Comments on Elementary Education in PLA K 13
PLA Issues Directive on Congress Documents Study K 13
Civil Application of Nuclear Science Noted K 14
CHINA DAILY Article Views Domestic Trade [23 Nov] K 16
CHINA DAILY Report Examines Railway Expansion [23 Nov] K 17
Xi Zhongxun, Gu Mu Watch Opera in Beijing 21 Nov K 18
Foreign Ministry Comments on Drug Trafficking [CHINA DAILY 23 Nov] K 19

PRC REGIONAL AFFAIRS

NORTH REGION

Hebei Symposium on Studying 12th Congress Spirit R 1
Hebei Officials Boost Quadrupling of Output [HEBEI RIBAO 5 Nov] R 2
Chen Weida Receives NPC Deputies in Tianjin R 5
Nei Monggol Plans To Restructure Government Organs R 5
Nei Monggol's Zhou Hui Discusses Public Security R 7

NORTHWEST REGION

Wang Enmao Attends Xinjiang Hospital Meeting T 1

HONG KONG MEDIA ON CHINA

NPC To Discuss Strategy for Recovering Hong Kong [HSIN WAN PAO 20 Nov] W 1
WEN WEI PO Views Liao Remarks on Hong Kong [22 Nov] W 2
More on Liao Remarks [HONG KONG STANDARD 21 Nov] W 3
'Hong Kong Special Administrative Zone' Detailed [KUANG CHIAO CHING 16 Nov] W 4
TA KUNG PAO on SHIDAI DE BAOGAO Reshuffle [20 Nov] W 9
WEN WEI PO Editorial on Chiang Ching-kuo's Errors [15 Nov] W 11
MING PAO Reports Guangdong Personnel Changes [18 Nov] W 12

DAILY REPORT

China

Vol I No 227

24 November 1982

CONTENTS

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

UN Urges Abolition of Vestiges of Colonialism A 1
PRC Delegate Addresses FAO Council in Rome A 1

UNITED STATES

Reagan Announces Decision on MX Deployment B 1
CAAC, Boeing Sign Multimillion-Dollar Contract B 1
Former U.S. Envoy Woodcock Ends PRC Visit B 2

SOVIET UNION

Yuriy Andropov Speaks to CPSU Plenum Session C 1
AFP: Ustinov Greets New PRC Defense Minister C 1

NORTHEAST ASIA

Xi Zhongxun Meets KWP Delegation 20 Nov D 1
Xi Zhongxun Fetes Korea's Hwang Chang-Yop D 1
Wang Zhaoguo Meets DPRK Youth Delegation 21 Nov D 1
French Envoy Discusses Reunification of Korea D 1
KYODO: Japan, PRC Agree on DPRK Trade Route D 2
Kang Keqing Receives Japanese Women's Group D 2

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

More SRV Troops Reported at Thai Border E 1
DK Prime Minister Son Sann Continues Visit E 1
Meets With Hu Yaobang E 1
Press Conference E 2
Beijing Reports Reorganization of Lao Cabinet E 2
Commentary Notes Good PRC-Thai Relations E 3
Peng Chong-Led NPC Delegation Visits Malaysia E 4
Meets With Prime Minister E 4
Liao Chengzhi Meets Hong Kong Businessman E 5
Australian Governor General Meets Zhu Xuefan E 5

WESTERN EUROPE

Chen Muhua Meets Cypriot Commerce Minister G 1
Netherlands' Lubbers Cited on Missile Plans G 1
Norway Approves NATO Missile Deployment Payment G 1
UK's Callaghan Views Unilateral Disarmament G 2

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

Huang Hua Fetes Omani Deputy Prime Minister I 1
Muscat Report I 1
Israeli Withdrawal Demands to Lebanon Condemned I 2
[RENMIN RIBAO 23 Nov]
Mitterrand on Need for Independent Palestine I 2

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Constitution Revision Body Approves New Draft K 1
NPC Deputies, CPPCC Members Arrive in Beijing K 1
Wang Wei Explains New Food Hygiene Law K 2
RENMIN RIBAO on Importance of Food Hygiene [21 Nov] K 3
RENMIN RIBAO Urges Cultural Relics Protection [20 Nov] K 4
CPPCC Motions Promptly Handled, Answered K 5
Antismuggling Activities Reported Stepped Up K 6
RENMIN RIBAO Reports Shenzhen Smugglers' Arrest [23 Nov] K 7
Deng Xiaoping, Others Mourn Liu Mengchun K 9
XINHUA Talks to Social Science Academy President K 9
Wan Li Approves Suggestion on School Reform K 11
Shoudu Iron, Steel Company Doubles Profit K 11
National Rural Energy Meeting in Chengdu Ends K 12
Nuclear Applications Exhibit Opens in Chengdu K 13
PRC Expects To Set Coal Output Record in 1982 K 14
Coal Production Technology, Equipment Imported K 15
Construction Contracts Signed With 43 Countries K 15
PLA Official on Relying on Science in Logistics K 16
Peasants Increase Farm Machinery Purchases K 16
Commercial, Service Enterprises Reported Tripled K 17
CYL Secretary Urges Youth Learn From Zhang Hua K 18

PRC REGIONAL AFFAIRS

EAST REGION

Anhui Plans Fifth Congress Session in December O 1
Anhui To Hold PLA, Militia Congress in January O 1
Anhui Holds Conference on Civil Offense Trials O 1
Anhui Radio Comments on Solving Civil Disputes O 2
Xiang Nan Attends Fujian Judicial Meeting O 3
Xu Jiatun Leads Jiangsu NPC Delegation to Beijing O 4
Jiangsu's Xu Jiatun Attends Militia Work Meeting O 5
Nanjing PLA Units Stress Role of Education O 6
Shanghai Press Commentators on Economic Crimes O 7
17 Nov WEN HUI BAO O 7
17 Nov JIEFANG RIBAO O 7
Shanghai Holds Meeting on Economic Crime O 8
Shanghai To Build Industrial, Construction Zones O 9

NORTHEAST REGION

Heilongjiang's Yang Yichen on Aiding the Poor S 1

FBIS DAILY REPORT

China

Vol I No 228

26 November 1982

CONTENTS

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

UNITED STATES

RENMIN RIBAO Reviews U.S. MX Deployment Plan [25 Nov] B 1
TASS Terms MX Deployment Decision 'Dangerous' B 2
U.S. Army: Pershing Test Result Unsatisfactory B 3
Beijing Views U.S. Decision on Pipeline Sanctions B 3

SOVIET UNION

AFP: PRC Spokesman Urges Improved Soviet Ties C 1
YOMIURI Cites USSR, PRC Comments on Border Talks [25 Nov] C 1
Andropov Elected to Presidium of Supreme Soviet C 2
USSR Supreme Soviet Session Closes 24 Nov C 2

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

Further Materials on Premier Son Sann's Visit E 1
Son Sann Press Conference [CHINA DAILY 25 Nov] E 1
Zhao Ziyang 21 Nov Speech E 1
Son Sann Speech E 2
Zhao Ziyang Sees Son Sann Off E 5
Son Sann Leaves Kunming E 6
Peng Chong, NPC Delegation Visit Southeast Asia E 6
Report on Thailand Visit
[RENMIN RIBAO 23 Nov] E 7
Meet Malaysia's Musa Hitam E 8
Host Banquet in Kuala Lumpur E 8
Arrive in Manila From Malaysia

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Fifth Session of Fifth NPC Opens 26 Nov K 1
Presidium Elected 25 Nov K 1
Agenda Approved K 1
Presidium Holds Meeting K 2
Presidium Namelist K 3
Motions Committee Namelist K 4
Fifth NPC Opens 26 Nov K 4
Peng Zhen on Constitution K 5
Peng on Rights of Citizens K 7
Peng on Reunification K 8
Peng on Foreign Policy K 9
Peng on Economy K 10
Peng on Drafting Constitution K 11
Ye Jianying Interviewed K 13
[RENMIN RIBAO 25 Nov]
Deputies Interviewed K 14
RENMIN RIBAO Hails Opening of NPC, CPPCC [26 Nov] K 15

Fifth Session of Fifth CPPCC Opens 24 Nov K 18
Deng Opens Committee Session K 18
Hu Ziang Work Report K 19
Liu Lantao on Constitution K 21
Nie Rongzhen Praises Frontier Soldiers K 25

FBIS DAILY REPORT CONTENTS

China

Vol I No 229 29 November 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

GATT Session Continues Despite Differences A 1
PRC Observer Speaks A 1
RENMIN RIBAO on Meeting [24 Nov] A 2
Editorial Sees Third World Economy Worsening A 3
[RENMIN RIBAO 20 Nov]

NORTHEAST ASIA

Japan's Nakasone Elected Prime Minister D 1
Discusses National Policy D 1
Strengths, Weaknesses Assessed D 2
[RENMIN RIBAO 27 Nov]

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

PRC Denounces Vietnam 'Scheme' in Beibu Gulf E 1

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Further Coverage of Fifth Session of Fifth NPC K 1
Peng Zhen on Socialist Economy K 1
Peng on Spiritual Civilization K 2
Peng on State Structure K 3
Peng on Nationality Policy K 4
Li Xiannian Meets Hubei Group K 5
Panel Discussions Begin 27 Nov K 6
Yang Dezhi on Constitution K 7
Qin Jiwei on Military K 8
Duan Junyi, Ren Zhongyi Comment K 9
Peng Zhen Joins in Talks K 10
Deputies on Regional Autonomy K 12
Deputies on Religious Freedom K 13
Guangdong Leaders Comment K 14
Jilin Leader States Views K 15
Gansu's Feng Jixin Comments K 16
Shanxi's Huo Shilian Comments K 16
Beijing Television Report K 17
Wang Bingqian Article on Financial Work [RENMIN RIBAO 26 Nov] K 19
All-Army Conference on Logistics Work Held K 28
Zhang Aiping Addresses Meeting K 28
Yu Qiuli Speaks at Meeting K 28
Army Leaders Attend Beijing PLA Food Exhibit K 29
Deng Yingchao Inspects Shanghai School for Blind K 30

HONG KONG MEDIA ON CHINA

PRC May Recover Hong Kong 'At Any Time' W 1
[SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST 29 Nov]
HSIN WAN PAO on 'Internationalizing' Hong Kong W 3
[28 Nov]
HSIN WAN PAO Examines Hong Kong's Future W 4
[22 Nov]
WEN WEI PO Notes Hu Yaobang's Reform Work W 5
[23 Nov]
Shenzhen Officials Fighting Rail Ticket Racket W 6
[SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST 24 Nov]

DAILY REPORT
CONTENTS

China

Vol I No 230 30 November 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

UNITED STATES

President Reagan's Latin America Tour Noted B 1
Vice President Bush's Africa Visit Assessed B 2
George Shultz Meets South Africa's Botha B 3
U.S. Claims Proof of USSR Chemical Weapons Use B 4
Reagan Asks for Higher National Gasoline Tax B 5

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

SRV Dry-Season Offensive in Kampuchea Foreseen E 1
[RENMIN RIBAO 25 Nov]
Soviet Support Scored E 2
[BEIJING REVIEW 15 Nov]

SOUTH ASIA

Bangladesh's Ershad Leads Delegation on Visit F 1
Welcomed at Airport F 1
Feted by Zhao Ziyang F 1
Confers With Deng Xiaoping F 3
Meets Hu Yaobang F 4
Sees PLA Chief Yang Dezhi F 5
Attends Cultural Soiree F 5
Places Wreath at Monument F 5
Hosts Return Banquet F 5
Loan Agreement Signed F 6

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Further Coverage of Fifth Session of Fifth NPC K 1
Group Discussions 29 Nov K 1
Constitution's Implementation K 1
Peaceful Reunification Viewed K 2
Group Discussions 30 Nov K 4
Remarks on 1997 Issue K 4
Zhao Begins Delivering Report K 5
Zhao Submits Sixth 5-Year Plan K 6
Zhao on Output Value K 6
Zhao on Capital Construction K 7
Zhao on Education, Science K 8
Zhao on Expanding Trade K 9
Zhao on Living Standards K 10
Zhao on Minority Aid K 11
Zhao on State Revenue K 11
Zhao on Training Programs K 12
Zhao on Social Conduct K 13
Zhao on Major Targets K 13

Further Coverage of Fifth Session of Fifth CPPCC K 16
Panel Discussions 25 Nov K 16
PRC Constitution Discussed K 17
Hong Kong Issue Discussed K 18
RENMIN RIBAO on Education of Party Members [29 Nov] K 19
Strengthening Party Members Education Stressed K 21
Hu Qiaomu on Treatment of Late Scientists K 22
[RENMIN RIBAO 29 Nov]
Layout of First Nuclear Powerplant Begins K 25

TAIWAN

CHINA POST on Plot To Foment Civil Disorder [21 Nov] V 1
Monthly Notes Taiwan's Human Rights Problems V 2
[PA SHIH NIEN TAI Nov]
Premier Sun Discusses Shrinking Exports V 3
Free Trade Zone Viewed V 4
Work for Unity Urged V 4
President Chiang Addresses KMT Weekly Meeting V 5
Chiang's Health 'Excellent' V 6
Government Restates Claim to Spratlys, Paracels V 7

FBIS DAILY REPORT CONTENTS

China

Vol I No 211 1 November 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

RENMIN RIBAO Discusses PRC Foreign Policy [31 Oct] A 1
Representative to UN Speaks on Disarmament A 3
UN Representative Raps Protectionism in Trade A 5

UNITED STATES

U.S. Midterm Congressional Elections Examined B 1

SOVIET UNION

KYODO: Ministry Spokesman on Brezhnev Speech C 1
Moscow TV Cites PRC Reportage of Brezhnev Speech C 1
AFP: Sino-Soviet Talks Center on Kampuchea C 1

NORTHEAST ASIA

Kim Il-song Meets Economic, Trade Group D 1
Delegation Leaves DPRK D 1
DPRK Radio, TV Delegation Feted in Shanghai D 1
PLA Deputy Chief Attends Japan Forces Day Fete D 1

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

Further Reaction to UN Vote on Kampuchea E 1
Sihanouk's Comments E 1
RENMIN RIBAO Commentary [30 Oct] E 2
SRV, Heng Samrin Response E 3
Asian Press Cited E 3
1983 Commodities Protocol Signed With Thailand E 4
Peng Chong Meets Thai Prosecution Group E 4

WESTERN EUROPE

UK Paper on PRC Right To Recover Hong Kong G 1
Bo Yibo Meets British Trade Delegation G 1
Science Academy President Visits Britain G 1
RENMIN RIBAO on New Franco-West German Relations [28 Oct] G 2

EASTERN EUROPE

Poland Responds to U.S. Trade Policy Shift H 1
Jaruzelski Cited on Situation in Poland H 1

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

Joint Cooperation Agreement Signed With Libya I 1
DPRK President Gives Banquet for Libyan Leader I 1
Hu Yaobang Sends Message to Tanzania's Nyerere I 1
CPCCC Greets Fifth Tanzanian CCM Congress I 2

WESTERN HEMISPHERE

Peruvian Officials Comment on Relations With PRC J 1
Prime Minister's Statement J 1
President's Statement J 1
Kang Keqing Fetes Dominican Women's Group J 1

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Hu Yaobang Dec 1981 Speech on Literature, Art [HONGQI No 21] K 1
RENMIN RIBAO on Current Historical Period [29 Oct] K 6
RENMIN RIBAO on 'Three Kinds of People' Problem [29 Oct] K 11
SHAANXI RIBAO on 'People of the Fourth Category' [20 Oct] K 12
Shoudu Steel Reports on Responsibility System K 13
Wan Li, Other Leaders Join in Street Cleanup K 17
Millions of Youth Involved in Serving People K 18
Young Pioneers Promote 'New Habits' Movement K 19
Party, State Leaders Meet Gymnastic Delegation K 19
Satellite Communication Experiment 'Successful' K 20

PRC REGIONAL AFFAIRS

CENTRAL-SOUTH REGION

Guangdong's Ren Zhongyi on Spiritual Building P 1
Guangdong's Ren Zhongyi Visits New Hotel P 2
Ren Zhongyi Watches Guangzhou Song, Dance Show P 2
Guangdong People's Congress Session Opens P 2
Session Concludes P 3
Qiao Xiaoguang Attends Guangxi PLA Congress P 3
Guangxi's Qiao Xiaoguang at Wei Baqun Rally P 3
Hubei Seventh Provincial CYL Congress Concludes P 4
Hunan's Mao Zhiyong on Aiding 'Rich Peasants' P 4
Briefs: Guangdong Aquatic Products Industry; Guangdong County Foreign Trade P 5

NORTH REGION

Nei Monggol 'Rebel' Expelled From Party R 1
Nei Monggol's Zhou Hui Attends Anniversary Rally R 1

PRC MEDIA ON TAIWAN

Beijing Lauds Taiwan Lawmaker's Call for Talks U 1
RENMIN RIBAO Reports Taiwan Group's 'Misdeeds' [22 Oct] U 2

TAIWAN

PRC Defector Arrives in Taiwan From Seoul V 1
Holds Press Conference V 1
AFP Report V 2
To Receive Cash Award V 3
PRC Opera Singer Defects to Taiwan Via Tokyo V 3
Meets Press 30 Oct V 3
Spokesman Calls USSR-PRC Talks 'Diplomatic Ploy' V 4
Defense Minister Discusses Defense Plans V 4
Taiwan-Japan Trade Talks Begin in Taipei V 5
Trade Talks Continue V 5
Conference Closes 29 Oct V 6
Nuclear Electrical Power To Be Emphasized V 6
Canadian MP on Improved Relations With Taiwan V 7
Premier Sun Greets Haitian Group 30 Oct V 7
Paper Decries Legislator's Peace Formulas V 7
[CHUNG KUO SHIH PAO 16 Oct]
ECONOMIC NEWS on State Enterprises' Losses [16 Oct] V 9

RENMIN RIBAO DISCUSSES PRC FOREIGN POLICY

HK310734 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 31 Oct 82 p 6

[Article by Huan Xiang [1360 6763]: "Uphold the Foreign Policy of Maintaining Independence and Keeping the Initiative in Our Own Hands"]

[Text] In his report delivered to the 12th party congress, Comrade Hu Yaobang gave a full exposition of the basic principles of the foreign policy practiced by Ch na of maintaining independence and keeping the initiative in our own hands: Uphold the five principles of "mutual respect for sovereignty and territorial integrity, mutual nonaggression, mutual noninterference in internal affairs, equality and mutual benefit, and peaceful coexistence," and establish and develop normal friendly relations with all states that treat us as equals; strengthen unity and cooperation with the countries of the Third World and other friendly states; oppose hegemonism and preserve world peace. These are the basic principles we have consistently followed, and they accord with the interests of the people of the whole world, not just of China.

I

We are patriots and also internationalists; integration patriotism and internationalism has always been our fundamental starting point in handling foreign relations. As the report to the 12th party congress pointed out: "The foreign policy we uphold of maintaining independence and keeping the initiative in our own hands is identical with our lofty international obligations of preserving world peace and promoting the progress of mankind."

China's foreign policy is absolutely not subordinated to any large country or group of countries; it absolutely does not yield to the pressure of any large country, and it has unswervingly upheld the security of our own country and the interests of our nation. Comrade Deng Xiaoping said in his opening speech at the 12th party congress: "No foreign country can look upon China as its vassal or hope that China will swallow the bitter fruit of damage to its interests." This fully expresses our strong resolve to uphold the principle of maintaining independence and keeping the initiative in our own hands.

When carrying out the foreign policy of maintaining independence and keeping the initiative in our own hands, China has consistently respected the security and interests of other countries and nations. It certainly does not act like certain countries, especially the superpowers, in pushing the doctrine of one's own national interests and of hegemonism under the pretext of preserving the security and interests of itself or its bloc, wantonly sacrificing the security and interests of other countries, and violating their independence and sovereignty in order to expand its own sphere of influence. Under the pretext of guaranteeing its national security, the Soviet Union has deployed 1 million troops on China's border, carried out an armed invasion of Afghanistan, supported Vietnam's aggression against and occupation of Kampuchea, and formed a posture of armed encirclement of China. Since the establishment of diplomatic relations between China and the United States, the United States has failed to keep its promises; under the pretext of protecting its own interests, it passed the "Taiwan Relations Act," continued to regard Taiwan -- China's territory -- as a political entity, and continued to sell arms to Taiwan, in a vain attempt to reach its goal of sabotaging the reunification of China. The hegemonist behavior of these two superpowers seriously threatens the sovereignty and security of China and other Asian countries, and has become the obstacle to the onward development of Sino-U.S. and Sino-Soviet relations. The Chinese people cannot but resolutely oppose such behavior.

II

The five principles of peaceful coexistence are applicable to relations between China and all other countries, including socialist countries. China has established and developed normal friendly relations with many countries on the basis of these principles. We hold that these principles are the elementary guidelines every country should follow in its international exchanges.

Comrade Hu Yaobang pointed out in his report to the 12th party congress that the normal development of Sino-U.S. relations accords wtih the interests of the peoples of both countries, and that China has "consistently hoped that these relations would go on developing." However, there has always been a shadow over these relations. Sino-U.S. relations can only develop in a healthy way by truly abiding by the principles of mutual respect for sovereignty and territorial integrity and mutual noninterference in internal affairs.

As for Sino-Soviet relations, Comrade Hu Yaobang said to French correspondents on 17 October: "The Chinese side sincerely hopes that all obstacles harmful to the normalization of Sino-Soviet relations can be cleared away, so that normal relations between the two countries will then be able to follow the path of healthy development." This fully expresses the desires of the Chinese people.

Some people hold that China needs assistance from certain countries in order to carry out socialist construction, and so China will adopt a tolerant attitude toward these countries' threats and interference against it. This is an erroneous notion. "Self-reliance" and "persistently opening up to the world" are China's fundamental principles in carrying out socialist economic construction. The reason why we persistently open up to the world is, first, in order to speed up our economic construction, and secondly in order to make our contributions toward improving the current world economic situation. The principles of "self-reliance" and "persistently opening up to the world" reflect the spirit of equality and mutual benefit; they certainly do not mean that we are relying on anyone.

In its relations with the countries of the Third World, China has always followed the five principles of peaceful coexistence, and this too fully expresses the principle of internationalism. In order to support construction in the Third World, China has made available some manpower and financial assistance despite her very great limitations in these aspects. Even when China's economy was in extremely great difficutly, we went on providing as much assistance to the Third World as we could, and without attaching any political or economic strings either. Even more important, strengthening economic cooperation and exchanges with the countries of the Third World, with each supplying what the other lacks and learning from each other's strong points in order to offset one's own weaknesses, on the basis of equality, is extremely beneficial for building up independent national economy in these countries and establishing a new international economic order.

At present the countries of the Third World are worried about two things in their relations with each other. First, these countries (including China) all need to import investment from abroad in carrying out their own economic construction. People are afraid that competition in this respect will reduce the opportunities for getting more foreign investment. Second, the great majority of the developing countries follow the development strategy of "developing export industries," and in the current gloomy world economic climate people are afraid that fierce competition in commodity sales will affect their own development speed. These worries are understandable. We hold that the countries of the Third World need to hold regular consultations to study these economic problems, and readjust and harmonize their mutual relations. They should also "each supply what the other needs" in technology and reduce these practical contradictions.

Under the guidance of the principle of "taking self-reliance as the main factor," China will certainly consider the needs of the Third World countries on the questions of importing technology and exporting commodities; she will certainly not adopt a selfish stand. China is extremely happy to hold regular consultations with the Third World countries and to study all kinds of major cooperation issues with them.

III

The fact that superpowers sway the political situation of the world is an important phenomenon in post-war international life. With the lapse of time, people have gradually deepened their understanding of the superpowers. To call them superpowers does not mean that they have extremely vast territory or "super" strength. The more important way to assess them should be based on their aims and the way they exercise their power. In other words, we should see what kind of policies they are implementing. The basic feature of superpower is that, apart from possessing powerful economic and military strength, they impose their will upon other countries by utilizing their strength to realize their selfish aims. When necessary, they will spare no effort to directly invade and enslave other countries. In this sense, it is appropriate to say that the politics of superpowers are the "politics of hegemonism."

If a country refrains from carrying out aggression and expansion and pursuing hegemonist policies, it should not be regarded as a superpower, no matter how powerful it is. It is precisely because of this understanding that China resolutely opposes power politics and hegemonism and repeatedly tells the world that China will never become a superpower. At the same time, struggling together with all peace-loving countries and people throughout the world, we resolutely support all nations and people who are oppressed by superpowers and oppose hegemonists in any form.

We should realize that the existence of superpowers is a kind of temporary historical phenomenon. Due to the fact that superpowers harbor extremely selfish aims, there can only be increasingly acute conflicts of interests and keen contenion among them, and they are not able to unite to dominate the world. Moreover, they are opposed by more and more countries, including their "allies." Therefore, contrary to their wish, it is impossible for them to assemble the strength of their "allies" and other countries to attain their hegemonist aims. The strength of the superpowers is contained and expended in their mutual confrontation and contention, the internal contradictions in their blocs, and in conflict in various partial wars. Therefore, a strange phenomenon has occurred in international relations. Although the power to launch a war on the part of the superpowers has increased to an unprecedented level, the restrictions imposed on their ability to control the political situation and their sphere of influence have also been stepped up to an unprecendented level. People of all countries should fully understand the dual character of the strength and weakness of superpowers. Apart from that, they should also realize that the strength of superpowers is still powerful, and the various forces on which world peace depends are still comparatively weak. The possibility a partial war developing into major one should not be neglected.

In other words, there are two possibilities in whether world war can be prevented or not, that is, the possibility of it breaking out and the possibility of preventing it. The direction of development of these possibilities depends on the struggles of the peace-loving countries and peoples of the whole world. If people throughout the world heighten their vigilance, unite as one and resolutely fight against all hegemonist and expansionist activities, it is possible to prevent the outbreak of war.

REPRESENTATIVE TO UN SPEAKS ON DISARMAMENT

OW300805 Beijing XINHUA in English 0716 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] United Nations, October 29 (XINHUA) -- China today urged the Soviet Union and the United States to take the lead in substantially cutting back their nuclear and conventional arsenals. It pledged itself never to seek hegemony and join in the arms race and rivalry between the superpowers.

During the general debate on disarmament in the First Committee (political and security), Chinese representative Liang Yufan said that as a result of the arms race between the two superpowers, "the international situation has been increasingly destabilized, the danger of a new world war has been growing and the confidence between states, which is indispensable to the disarmament efforts, has been undermined."

He pointed out that backed by their ever more powerful military strength, the two superpowers have been vying with each other for world hegemony.

"Disarmament can make no headway whatsoever unless determined struggles are waged against the hegemonistic policies of the superpowers."

He reiterated China's position on disarmament, saying "China is opposed both to a global war or nuclear war for which the superpowers are making preparations, and to any conventional war of aggression started or supported by them.

"China has consistently stood for genuine disarmament and against the arms race between the superpowers, maintaining that they should take the lead in substantially cutting back their nuclear and conventional arsenals."

On non-use of nuclear weapons, he said: "As long as nuclear-weapon states do not harbour the intention to commit aggression and expansion, it should not be difficult for them not to be the first to use nuclear weapons and not to use nuclear weapons against non-nuclear-weapon states."

"If the nuclear states genuinely comply with this undertaking, it should greatly help reduce the menace of a nuclear war", he asserted.

He pointed out that the Soviet pledge on non-first-use of nuclear weapons was certainly a change from the hitherto Soviet refusal of doing so. However, people cannot fail also to note that the Soviet Union undertook this obligation only after it had built up a vast nuclear arsenal and gained a preponderance in conventional arms.

Furthermore, he continued, "the Soviet statement did not contain an undertaking of not using or threatening to use nuclear weapons against non-nuclear-weapon states or nuclear-weapon-free zones. Instead, it indicated that the Soviet commitment was conditional upon 'how the other nuclear powers act', which cannot but give rise to the suspicion that the Soviet Union may suddenly withdraw its promise whenever it thinks opportune".

"On the other hand," he added, "the United States still refuses to assume the same obligation, insisting on its doctrine of nuclear deterrence."

On nuclear disarmament, Liang Yufan said: Simply calling for a ban on the use of nuclear weapons without stipulating a step-by-step reduction until their complete elimination is not enough to halt the arms race and realize genuine nuclear disarmament.

He pointed out that under the pretext of 'equal security', the superpowers want all the nuclear-weapon-states to assume equal responsibility. That is merely a subterfuge to cover up their reluctance to carry out disarmament.

"Even if they cut their nuclear arsenals by 50 percent respectively, each of them will still possess far more nuclear weapons than any of the other nuclear-weapon states," he added.

The Chinese representative stated nuclear test ban should be linked closely to the ultimate goal of nuclear disarmament because nuclear disarmament cannot be achieved by a mere test ban without halting the improvement and production of nuclear weapons. or without a substantial cutback of the same.

"Today when nuclear weaponry has already developed to a point where the emphasis is on improving target accuracy and advanced warning abilities, a test ban alone can hardly check the arms race," he remarked.

On conventional disarmament, Liang Yufan said that nuclear disarmament should be carried out in conjunction with conventional disarmament, because "the superpowers have relied on their far superior conventional arms, both in quantity and in quality, to carry out military intervention, invasion or occupation of other countries," he said. "Considering that a nuclear war might result from the escalation of a conventional war between the superpowers, if one only calls for nuclear disarmament and the prevention of nuclear war while overlooking conventional disarmament and losing vigilance against conventional war, a loophole might still be left for the outbreak of a nuclear war," he warned.

The Chinese representative also stressed the need to prohibit chemical weapons.

Liang stated that as soon as the superpowers "have stopped the testing, qualitative improvement and manufacture of nuclear weapons and reduced their nuclear arsenals by half, we will be willing to undertake corresponding obligations."

Liang concluded: "World peace can be preserved provided the peace-loving nations of the world unite and, by adhering to the correct principles of disarmament and giving fully play to all agencies and conferences within the United Nations system, intensify their struggle to oppose the superpower policies of aggression, expansion and arms race and thwart their strategic plans."

UN REPRESENTATIVE RAPS PROTECTIONISM IN TRADE

OW301006 Beijing XINHUA in English 0700 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] United Nations, October 29 (XINHUA) -- A Chinese representative has urged major developed countries to renounce their trade protectionist measures and refrain from controlling the prices of primary commodities on the world market in order to improve North-South relations and reactivate world economy.

"If the economic performance of the developing countries is bound to further deteriorate, there will be no reactivation of world economy to speak of", he told the Second Committee of the current U.N. General Assembly yesterday.

He pointed out that "access of the products of the developing countries to the markets of developed countries has been made increasingly difficult due to the unilateral restrictions imposed by the developed countries. The general system of preference enjoyed by many developing countries is faced with a grave threat." "These protectionist measures have impaired the rights and interests of the developing countries", he said. He also pointed out that as a result of major developed countries' manipulation of commodity prices on the world market, "prices of primary commodities in real terms have now reached their lowest levels of the past 45 years." This has resulted in a sharp increase in their trade deficit and external debts and debt service, he said.

The Chinese representative expressed the hope that the sixth U.N. Conference on Trade and Development, scheduled for next June, would give priority to the solution of the major economic problems confronting the developing countries, and would meanwhile give due consideration to the question of structural readjustment in the existing international economic system.

U.S. MIDTERM CONGRESSIONAL ELECTIONS EXAMINED

OW302104 Beijing XINHUA in English 1903 GMT 30 Oct 82

["U.S. Mid-Term Congressional Elections Two Days Away -- by XINHUA Correspondent Yu Enguang" -- XINHUA headline]

[Text] Washington, October 30 (XINHUA) -- The partisan struggles between the Republicans and Democrats have sharpened as the mid-term congressional elections are two days off. The 10th postwar off-year congressional elections will determine all the 435 seats in the House of Representatives, a third of the 100 Senate seats and 36 of the 50 state governorships.

With the U.S. economy in its 8th recession in postwar years, the elections are widely seen to be a vital test on the President's economic policies. An outstanding issue will be the 10.1 percent unemployment rate which, together with the record number of bankruptcies (17,000), has made the recession one of the worst since the end of the great slump in the 30's. Democrats have been quick to grasp unemployment as a weapon for attacking President Reagan's economic performance. Influential Democrats, including Senator Edward Kennedy, former Vice-President Walter Mondale and House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, all blame the Republicans for the over 10 million jobless. O'Neill says unemployment might have been as high as 13 percent instead of the official figure of 10.1 percent.

Forced into a defense, Reagan credited himself with checked inflation, lowered interest rates and cuts on government spending and income taxes. The post-war record in unemployment rate, he says, was inherited from previous Democratic governments. The campaigners also wrangle over the depth of the recession and its best possible remedy. Reagan contends that recovery is already in sight. He calls on voters to "stay the course". But Democrats assert that the economy is still in a blind alley and insist that "America needs a change." For lack of a unified recovery strategy among themselves, the Democrats have failed to present alternatives to Reaganomics.

Beside national economic problems, important regional issues have also come to the fore, such as unemployment and industrial bankruptcies in the northeast industrial belt, difficulties confronting ranchers in the Midwest, and racial problems in the South. To collect more votes for the Republicans, Ronald Reagan has toured the country, making speeches on different themes of concern to different voters. The influential leaders of the opposition party have also been feverishly engaged in the campaign, which is reportedly something never seen before.

More than 2,400 "political action committees" have been formed by enterprises, trade unions and other nongovernmental associations. The funds for the campaign, which have totalled 72 million dollars, have also broken past records. The estimated expenditure of 500,000 dollars for each candidate in average is four times that in the 1978 elections. The Washington press has pointed to these two facts as indicative of the uniqueness of the 1982 camapign.

Though the election day is drawing near, there is no marked change in the attitude of the voters, who seldom talk about the elections. Optimists predict that this year's turnout will be little higher than 1971's 35.5 percent. This will explain the real degree of representation of any newly-elected congressman or governor. It is generally predicted here that the Republicans will lose some 20 seats in the House but maintain a slim majority in the Senate. It is common in U.S. politics that a ruling party tends to lose seats in mid-term elections. But a heavy loss this year will lead to the emergence of an anti-Reagan Congress, which in turn will thwart the efforts of his administration and cast shadows over his prospects of re-election.

KYODO: MINISTRY SPOKESMAN ON BREZHNEV SPEECH

OW300401 Tokyo KYODO in English 0327 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, Oct 30 KYODO -- China Saturday called on the Soviet Union to take practical actions to remove a threat to China for improving bilateral relations.

A spokesman for the Chinese Foreign Ministry was commenting on Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev's call for improved Sino-Soviet relations Wednesday.

"The fundamental way of normalizing Sino-Soviet relations lies in taking practical actions to do away with the threat imposed on China," the spokesman said.

China has been calling on Moscow to remove massive troops along the Sino-Soviet border and those from Afghanistan, and stop supporting Vietnam in its actions in Kampuchea as a precondition for normalization of relations between the two countries.

MOSCOW TV CITES PRC REPORTAGE OF BREZHNEV SPEECH

LD291456 Moscow Domestic Television Service in Russian 1400 GMT 29 Oct 82

[From the Vreyma newscast]

[Excerpts] Comrade Brezhnev's speech at the conference of leading cadres of the Soviet Army and Navy, and the speeches exchanged at the Kremlin dinner by Leonid Ilich Brezhnev and President Spiros Kiprianou of Cyprus have caused great interest in the world.

The Chinese RENMIN RIBAO published a report by XINHUA agency from Moscow. Leonid Ilich Brezhnev, at a conference of the leading cadres of the Soviet Army and Navy in the Kremlin, stressed that at present the international situation continues to become complicated, and that the Soviet Union should strengthen its defense. In his speech Leonid Ilich Brezhnev accused the United States of stepping up international tension, of developing a hitherto unknown arms race. He said that in Europe there are practical preparations for deploying in NATO countries U.S. medium-range nuclear weapons. Israeli aggression in Lebanon is the work of the Americans. The agency fully quotes that part of the speech by Leonid Ilich Brezhnev concerning Soviet-Chinese relations.

AFP: SINO-SOVIET TALKS CENTER ON KAMPUCHEA

OW010810 Hong Kong AFP in English 0756 GMT 1 Nov 82

[By Charles-Antoine de Nerciat]

[Text] Beijing, Nov. 1 (AFP) -- The first of a series of exploratory discussions between China and the Soviet Union touched largely upon the Cambodian question, where Beijing sees the presence of Vietnamese troops as a threat to China's security, diplomatic sources said here today.

According to diplomatic circles quoting Chinese sources, the two countries expressed "very steadfast" positions on the possibility of an improvement (?in) relations.

But the two countries, whose falling out dates back to the 1960's, intend to continue their discussions as long as necessary, the same sources added.

China sees Moscow's support to Vietnam's Cambodian presence as one of the three factors impeding a real improvement in its relations with the Soviet Union.

Currently 150,000 to 200,000 Hanoi soldiers are defending the pro-Vietnamese regime against Beijing-backed resistance movements.

Observers mentioned that the Cambodian question is one of the more delicate problems opposing [as received] the Chinese and Soviets, partly because the Soviet Union is not directly involved.

The stand Moscow generally takes in Sino-Soviet discussions is to avoid involving third countries during the talks.

The two other factors cited by China for an improvement of relations are the deployment of one million Soviet soldiers at the Sino-Soviet borders and the Soviet Army's intervention in Afghanistan.

While the negotiations, officially called "consultations", were being held in Beijing last month between the two Vice Foreign Ministers Leonid Ilichev and Qian Qichen, Chinese leaders several times publicly maintained that the combination of these factors formed a threat to China's security.

On the same day Mr. Ilichev was returning to Moscow, last Friday, the Chinese foreign minister called for the Soviet Union to take "practical actions" to do away with the threat.

The negotiations, which marked a renewal of the Sino-Soviet dialogue interrupted in January 1980 the [words indistinct] forces entered Afghanistan, will be held alternately in Beijing and Moscow.

The second series of talks is thus to take place in the Soviet capital very soon, diplomatic circles said quoting Chinese sources.

KIM IL-SONG MEETS ECONOMIC, TRADE GROUP

OW291405 Beijing XINHUA in English 1257 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Pyongyang, October 29 (XINHUA) -- President Kim Il-song today received the visiting Chinese Government economic and trade delegation headed by State Councillor Chen Muhua.

In a very cordial and friendly conversation, President Kim Il-song said that the 12th national congress of the Chinese Communist Party was not only a happy event for the Chinese people, but also a good thing for the international communist movement.

Expressing thanks to Comrade Kim Il-song for his reception, Chen Muhua said: The recent visit to China by the president was a great support and encouragement to the Chinese Communist Party and people.

President Kim Il-song had photos taken with the Chinese comrades.

Vice-Premier Kong Chin-tae, Minister of Foreign Trade Choe Chong-kun, and Chinese Ambassador to Korea Zong Kewen were present on the occasion.

Delegation Leaves DPRK

OW300813 Beijing XINHUA in English 0806 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Pyongyang, October 30 (XINHUA) -- The Chinese Government economic and trade delegation headed by State Councillor Chen Muhua left here today for home after a friendly visit to Korea.

DPRK RADIO, TV DELEGATION FETED IN SHANGHAI

OW311049 Shanghai City Service in Mandarin 2300 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Chen Yi, deputy secretary and director of the Propaganda Department of the Shanghai Municipal CPC Committee, met and feted a Korean radio and television delegation at the (Longbai) Hotel in Shanghai on the evening of 29 October. The delegation is headed by Yi Yong-ik, member of the Central Committee of the Korean Workers Party and chairman of the Central Radio Broadcast Committee of Korea.

Present were Hao Pingnan, vice minister of radio and television, Director (Chu Fanyang) of the Shanghai Municipal Broadcasting Administration and Deputy Director (Chen Xiaodong) of the administration.

Both host and guests chatted cheerfully about the unity and cooperation between the Chinese and Korean parties as well as the militant friendship between the Chinese and Korean people. The banquet was replete with a cordial and friendly atmosphere.

The Korean delegation visited the Shanghai television station and was accorded a warm welcome from responsible comrades of the Shanghai People's Broadcasting Station and the Shanghai television station. Radio and television workers from China and Korea chatted cordially and briefed each other on work for which they have responsibility.

PLA DEPUTY CHIEF ATTENDS JAPAN FORCES DAY FETE

OW291520 Beijing XINHUA in English 1511 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 29 (XINHUA) -- Colonel Yasuo Kumamoto, defense attache of the Japanese Embassy, and Mrs. Kumamoto gave a reception at the embassy here this evening on the occasion of the 32nd anniversary of Japan Self Defense Forces Day.

Wu Xiuquan, deputy chief of General Staff of the Chinese People's Liberation Army, was present.

FURTHER REACTION TO UN VOTE ON KAMPUCHEA

Sihanouk's Comments

OW291305 Beijing XINHUA in English 1232 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] United Nations, October 28 (XINHUA) -- Samdech Norodom Sihanouk said here today that the victory won by Democratic Kampuchea in the U.N. was not only for his government and peoples but also for all peace-loving countries and peoples of the world.

In an interview with XINHUA and PEOPLE'S DAILY tonight, Samdech Sihanouk, president of the Coalition Covernment of Democratic Kampuchea, said that he was very satisfied with and proud of the results of the voting on the credentials issue and the resolution on the situation in Kampuchea. "As far as the credentials issue is concerned," he said, "we have got 90 votes in favour of our government as the legal representative of Kampuchea. To compare with 77 votes last year, this is a big progress."

As to the resolution on the situation in Kampuchea, he said: "We have also won a great victory. We have got 105 votes supporting the resolution, five votes more than last year."

He noted that this resolution was in favor of an independent Kampuchea and it would help compel the Vietnamese troops and other foreigners who were illegally occupying his country to withdraw. Samdech Sihanouk said these achievements indicated that the United Nations saw the situation in Kampuchea clearer and rejected the pretexts used by Vietnam, the Soviet Union and its satellites to justify the illegal occupation of Kampuchea.

These achievements reflected that the armed resistance by the Kampuchean people was growing in strength and their unity was further strengthened, he continued. "Without the success we achieved in struggle, the international community could not have supported us so strongly," he said.

He stressed that justice was on the side of the Kampuchean people. "We do not make a war against Vietnam, we are fighting against the foreign forces who are on our land, we are fighting for our liberation."

Asked what is the key issue for a political settlement of the Kampuchean problem, President Sihanouk said: "I take every opportunity to let the world know that we, the coalition government and the people of Democratic Kampuchea, are not waging the war in Kampuchea for the sake of war, but for peace." The president stressed that peace without independence, liberty and equality with our neighbours, is nothing.

"However, Vietnam pretends to serve the cause of peace in Kampuchea. What kind of peace we get from Vietnam, the peace between the master and his slaves? The Kampuchean people reject such kind of peace," he said.

Waving his first and speaking in a firm tone, Sihanouk said: "We want peace, but peace with independence." He reaffirmed that his government is ready for reconciliation with Vietnam and ready to sign a nonaggression pact with it, if Vietnam totally and unconditionally withdraws its troops from Kampuchea in conformity with the U.N. resolutions.

Kampuchea will be a sovereign state without any foreign troops, foreign bases and foreign advisers on its soil, he emphasized.

The president called on Vietnam to abide by the resolutions of the United Nations and the U.N. sponsored International Conference on Kampuchea (ICK). "We had the ICK in 1981, we are ready to organize the second ICK, but with the participation of Vietnam and the Soviet Union," he said. Within the framework of the ICK, Vietnam and Kampuchea can try to solve the problem by peaceful and political means, he said.

"There is only one way to solve the problem peacefully and politically, that is to abide by the U.N. resolutions. We refuse the regional conference proposed by Vietnam," he declared.

RENMIN RIBAO Commentary

HK300802 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 30 Oct 82 p 6

[Commentator's article: "The Vietnamese Aggressors Have Made Fools of Themselves Again"]

[Text] By a greater majority than last year, the UN General Assembly passed a resolution on the Kampuchea question on 28 October, again demanding the total withdrawal of Vietnamese forces from Kampuchea. This resolution reflects the common desire of the great majority of UN member states to demand the implementation of resolutions on the Kampuchea question adopted by previous UN General Assembly sessions. The Vietnamese aggressors and their backers thus made fools of themselves yet again in the world forum of the United Nations.

The Kampuchea issue has been listed as an important question for discussion by the UN General Assembly a successive 4 years. Each session since the 34th in 1979 has adopted resolutions demanding that Vietnam withdraw its forces from Kampuchea, that the Kampuchean people be allowed to settle their problems themselves and that Kampuchea's peaceful, neutral and nonaligned status be restored. At this year's UN General Assembly session, Democratic Kampuchean Chairman Prince Norodom Sihanouk attended as the leader of the Democratic Kampuchean delegation and also made a speech. He was warmly welcomed by the assembly. This year still more countries voted to support the retention of Democratic Kampuchea's legitimate UN seat. In their assembly speeches, the delegates of many countries demanded that Vietnam implement the relevant UN General Assembly resolutions, cease its military occupation of Kampuchea and pave the way for a political settlement of the Kampuchea question. All this clearly demonstrates that the just anti-Vietnamese struggle of the Kampuchean people is gaining unprecedentedly broad sympathy and support.

There has been no change at all in the stubborn stand of the Vietnamese authorities in refusing to implement the relevant UN General Assembly resolutions and continuing to invade and occupy Kampuchea. Before this UN General Assembly session was convened, Hanoi, on the one hand, dispatched senior officials to go around canvassing in a vain attempt to hoodwink world opinion and lure other countries into recognizing its aggression against and occupation of Kampuchea as a fait accompli; and, on the other hand, after its so-called "partial troop withdrawal" swindle went bankrupt, it sent more troops into Kampuchea and stepped up war deployments in the Kampuchea-Thailand border area in a vain attempt to occupy Kampuchea for a long time and realize its fond dream of hegemonism. This arbitrary and unreasonable attitude of the Veitnamese authorities has aroused strong discontent and censure among the international community.

Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach's recent proposal for international talks on the Southeast Asia question between the so-called "three countries of Indochina" and ASEAN and countries concerned is obviously another swindle aimed at vainly attempting to legitimize Vietnam's aggression against and occupation of Kampuchea. It is quite natural for the ASEAN countries to reject and oppose this proposal. As the permanent delegate of Thailand to the United Nations pointed out, this Vietnamese proposal is a "dangerous snare." That the UN General Assembly has for the fourth time adopted a resolution demanding that Vietnam withdraw its forces from Kampuchea once again shows the total bankruptcy of the Vietnamese authorities' tricks.

Apart from bringing suffering and calamity to the Kampuchean people, Vietnam's aggression against and occupation of Kampuchea directly threatens peace and stability in Southeast Asia and the Asia-Pacific region. Philippine President Marcos recently clearly pointed out that Soviet-backed Vietnam is the greatest threat to the peace of Asia. The only way to eliminate this threat is for Vietnam to immediately, totally and unconditionally withdraw its aggressor troops from Kampuchea. This is also the precondition for a political settlement of the Kampuchea question. Now, the three patriotic forces in Kampuchea have joined together and the Kampuchean people's anti-Vietnamese struggle has made new progress. This creates still more favorable conditions for a rational settlement of the Kampuchea question. If the international community continues to put strong political, economic and other pressure on Vietnam, this will help to force Vietnam to withdraw all its forces from Kampuchea and to implement at an early date the UN General Assembly resolutions on the Kampuchea question.

China is willing to see a fair and rational comprehensive settlement of the Kampuchea question, but it is resolutely opposed to actually sacrificing Kampuchean sovereignty and satisfying Soviet and Vietnamese expansionist demands under the pretext of a political settlement. As the current UN General Assembly session's resolution has pointed out, to have foreign forces withdraw from Kampuchea, to restore and preserve Kampuchean independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity, and to have all countries undertaking not to intervene or interfere in Kampuchea's internal affairs represents the main component of any just and lasting settlement of the Kampuchea question.

China is willing to work with all peace-loving countries that uphold justice to implement the UN General Assembly resolutions and seek a rational settlement of the Kampuchea question.

SRV, Heng Samrin Response

BK311134 Beijing in Cambodian to Kampuchea 1030 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] After the UN General Assembly voted with an overwhelming majority for Democratic Kampuchea's credentials on 25 October, Vietnam and the Heng Samrin administration were very angry and strongly reacted against this decision.

On 27 October, Vietnam's NHAN DAN published a commentary saying that this decision by the UN General Assembly neglects the reality in Kampuchea. It pointed out that this is the fourth time that the UN General Assembly has made such a serious mistake. This paper said nothing about the fact that it is Vietnam's aggression in Kampuchea which is causing trouble in Indochina. It turned white to black by slandering the UN General Assembly for supporting the legitimate seat of Democratic Kampuchea which has firmly and steadily struggled against the aggressors. It considered the UN General Assembly's decision dangerous and destructive to peace and stability in Southeast Asia.

The VIETNAM NEWS AGENCY carried the 26 October statement of the Heng Samrin administration slandering this just UN General Assembly decision. The Kampuchean puppet's foreign ministry, following their masters' ideas, stated that the presence of the Democratic Kampuchean delegation at the UN General Assembly is objectively against reality and that this decision has once more damaged the prestige of the United Nations.

Asian Press Cited

OW281396 Beijing XINHUA in English 1248 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Hong Kong, October 27 (XINHUA) -- Singapore and Malaysian newspapers in reports and commentaries today highlighted the acceptance of the credentials of Democratic Kampuchea at the current session of the UN General Assembly.

The credentials of Democratic Kampuchea were accepted at the 37th session of the UN General Assembly by overwhelming majority votes of 90 to 29 on Oct. 25.

In a report on the event, the Malaysian paper SIN CHEW JIT POH said the retaining of the seat of the Government of Democratic Kampuchea has powerfully frustrated the attempt of those who wanted to unseat the government.

SING PIN YIT PAO pointed out that the result of the voting showed that the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea enjoys popular support, and the Vietnamese challenge meets with setbacks.

The Singapore paper SIN CHEW JIT POH pointed out the retaining of the seat of Democratic Kampuchea by 90 to 29 voting in the UN General Assembly showed that more countries support Democratic Kampuchea.

NANYANG SIANGO PAO, in an editorial, took the event as "a victory for world justice opposing aggression and for ending interference in the internal affairs of small countries by big powers."

It is no doubt, the editorial said, "the outcome of the voting in the United Nations will encourage the resisting armed forces and patriotic people in Kampuchea to put up a more resolute and brave struggle to recover the fatherland and drive out the Vietnamese aggressors."

The editorial believed that "the Kampuchean people can surely liberate their fatherland and establish a free, democratic and neutral Kampuchea."

STRAITS TIMES in an editorial appealed to the international community to continue exerting pressure on Vietnam politically and economically.

1983 COMMODITIES PROTOCOL SIGNED WITH THAILAND

OW271234 Beijing XINHUA in English 1226 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 27 (XINHUA) -- A protocol on the importation and exportation of commodities for 1983 between the Government of the People's Republic of China and the Government of the Kingdom of Thailand was signed here today.

Present at the signing ceremony were Lu Xuejian, vice-minister of foreign economic relations and trade, and Danai Tulalamba, director general of the Department of Foreign Trade of the Thai Ministry of Commerce.

PENG CHONG MEETS THAI PROSECUTION GROUP

OW271526 Beijing XINHUA in English 1516 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 27 (XINHUA) -- Peng Chong, vice-chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress, met here this afternoon with Suchin Timsuwan, director general of Public Prosecution Department of Thailand.

The delegation came to China on October 18. While in Beijing, Huang Huoqing, chief procurator of the Supreme People's Procuratorate, met with the delegation.

UK PAPER ON PRC RIGHT TO RECOVER HONG KONG

OW311226 Beijing XINHUA in English 1212 GMT 31 Oct 82

[Text] London, October 30 (XINHUA) -- Hong Kong is a part of China illegally occupied by Britain and it is the Chinese people's sacred right to recover this territory by whatever means they consider necessary, says a British paper today.

CLASS STRUGGLE, a monthly paper published by the Revolutionary Communist League of Britain, in a signed article says: "Britain's claim that its occupation of the area is legal under a series of nineteenth century 'treaties' is sheer nonsense."

Citing historical facts, the article notes, "the same unequal treaties which the Chinese Government and people so unequivocally reject were imposed by British imperialism at the point of a gun."

The article says the Chinese Government has unequivocally reaffirmed that it never has recognized these treaties and never will. "The patriotic people of Hong Kong and of all China refuse to recognise these treaties," it adds.

Though "Thatcher was fully aware of this depth of feeling in China over the question of reunification with Hong Kong," but she chose to "cling to these unequal treaties", which she described as "not invalid".

"Communists in Britain unconditionally support the right of the Chinese people, their government and Communist Party, to recover their sacred territory of Hong Kong by whatever means they consider necessary," the article declares.

The signed article believes that "the Chinese people have stood up and will certainly win national reunification."

BO YIBO MEETS BRITISH TRADE DELEGATION

OW312020 Beijing XINHUA in English 1558 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 28 (XINHUA) -- Bo Yibo, state councillor, met this afternoon with a delegation from the 48 Group of British traders with China led by S.G. Sloan, chairman and R. Berger, consultant of the group.

Bo Yibo said: "Britain's long industrial history and rich experience have provided good grounds for economic and technical cooperation between China and Britain."

He said the two countries can increase trade volume and expand exchanges in consultative business.

Bo Yibo expressed his appreciation for the efforts of "The 48 Group" in developing its trade with China through many years.

The delegation will make a study tour of Liaoning and Jiangsu. Bo Yibo hoped British firms would play large roles in technological upgrading of enterprises in the two provinces.

Wang Yaoting, chairman of the China Council for the Promotion of International Trade, was present at the meeting. The delegation is here at the invitation of the council.

SCIENCE ACADEMY PRESIDENT VISITS BRITAIN

OW301010 Beijing XINHUA in English 0706 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] London, October 29 (XINHUA) -- The scientific and technological cooperation between China and Britain has broad prospects, President of the Chinese Academy of Sciences Lu Jiaxi said here yesterday.

A delegation of the Chinese Academy of Sciences, led by Professor Lu Jiaxi, concluded a two-week good-will visit to Britain at the invitation of the British Royal Society and left here for Bonn today.

During the two weeks, the delegation met leaders of the Royal Society, the British Council and the Department of Sciences and Education. They visited universities and research institutions in London, Cambridge, Oxford and Edinburgh and had discussions with scientists there.

Professor Lu, a well-known chemist, was the first president of the Chinese Academy of Sciences to visit Britain. He had studied and worked in the London University more than 40 years ago.

RENMIN RIBAO ON NEW FRANCO-WEST GERMAN RELATIONS

HK010825 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 28 Oct 82 p 7

[Article by Zhai Xiangqian [5049 6272 0051] and Ma Weimin [7456 3634 3046]: "New Development in Franco-West German Relations"]

[Text] On 21-22 October, French President Francois Mitterrand and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl held routine government consultations in Bonn. This was the second session of summit talks between the two countries since the formation of the new West German Government. The talks covered a wide range of issues, including East-West relations, the natural gas pipeline projects in Siberia, the economic policies of the two countries and prospects for the EEC. Both parties have decided to strengthen military cooperation and this, in particular, has drawn international attention.

At the summit and ministerial level talks, the two countries decided the foreign ministers and defense ministers of the two countries should meet every 6 months in future to discuss security and defense policy issues. They also decided to set up a permanent joint military commission and working group for regular consultations so that the summit and ministerial level talks held every half year might supervise security affairs. President Mitterrand said that this was "one of the most important achievements" of the summit talks, signifying a "major development" in the relations between the two countries. Chancellor Kohl said that it represented "a very important continuation" of the spirit of the treaty of friendship between the two countries. West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher called it a "historic" step.

Details of the military cooperation discussed between the French and West German heads of government have not been disclosed. At a press conference, President Mitterrand announced that France and Bonn had discussed the decisions relevant to the French nuclear deterrent which affect West German security, and that they "had chiefly discussed the issue of the modernization of French tactical units." According to V.P.I., the talks also covered French use of nuclear weapons in the event of war, the French plan to reduce regular ground forces by 10 percent and the possibility of France using neutron bombs. President Mitterrand pointed out, however, that nuclear cooperation between the two countries and the transfer of nuclear technology from France to West Germany are completely out of the question and that West Germany will not provide funds for the French nuclear plan.

The development of the nuclear force has always occupied an important place in the French defense strategy. Earlier this month, France approved the 1983 defense budget. Expenditure on nuclear weapons will increase by 24.6 percent over 1982 and about 2 percent of the defense outlay will be used on nuclear force. President Mitterrand repeatedly stressed that "France must establish a sufficiently powerful nuclear deterrent." In West Germany, although the federal armed forces are fairly well equipped and constitute NATO's biggest regular forces in Western Europe, the government is prohibited by law from manufacturing and possessing nuclear weapons. Therefore, the development and application of the French nuclear force are obviously of vital importance to West Germany.

Viewed from the practical situation, West Germany, which is situated on the West's front line, should rely on the French nuclear force as a powerful backing, but it also provides a certain natural defense for France. This is the objective basis for strengthened military cooperation between France and West Germany.

The international political background conducive to the military cooperation between the two countries is the unstable situation caused by contention for hegemony in Europe between the two superpowers. At present, the Soviet Union has deployed several hundred SS-20 guided missiles against Western Europe, posing an actual threat to Europe. Both President Mitterrand and Chancellor Kohl Have unequivocally expressed their support for NATO's dual resolution. Undoubtedly, cooperation with the United States and loyalty to the North Atlantic alliance still form the basic principles of French and West German policies. However, Western public opinion has noted the emergence of a certain defense nucleus between France and West Germany which will not be under the leadership of the United States but have a certain degree of independence. Recently, contradiction between Europe and the United States has become more acute in certain fields. West European confidence in the United States has declined and in the United States, the call for withdrawal from Western Europe is continiually rising. Therefore, more and more West European people, particularly West German people, are considering this question: Will the United States honor its commitment to defend Western Europe in the event of an invasion? The French and West German decision to strengthen military cooperation is precisely a reflection of these worries.

The summit talks between France and West Germany were held under conditions of deterioration in the economic situations in the two countries and Chancellor Kohl came into power a short time before. Therefore, economic issues were also an important subject of discussion between the two heads of government.

At present, the French economic situation has reached worrying proportions. It has been estimated that the French foreign trade deficit may be as high as Fr 100 billion this year. Its trade deficit with West Germany in the first 8 months of this year alone is close to Fr 23.4 billion. In the past year and beyond, the franc has been very weak on the international money market. At present, it is coming under new assaults. The West German economic situation is also speedily deteriorating and the employment rate, in particular, is rising very quickly. The two countries have a very close economic relationship with one being the biggest supplier and customer of the other. In an effort to reduce her foreign trade deficit, France has advanced the slogan of "redominating the domestic market." West Germany is afraid that the rise of trade protectionism in France will seriously hit West German exports. Therefore, at the talks on 22 October, West Germany expressed her fear that France would adopt trade protectionism. It seems that both parties failed to make much headway in eliminating economic differences.

Strengthened cooperation between France and West Germany will be conducive to the stability of Western Europe. Just as Chancellor Kohl pointed out, Franco-West German cooperation is the foundation of Europe.

POLAND RESPONDS TO U.S. TRADE POLICY SHIFT

OW300320 Beijing XINHUA in English 0252 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Warsaw, October 29 (XINHUA) -- Poland today halted the distribution in this country of an American Polish-language magazine AMERYKA in response to the discriminatory measures taken by Washington, the Polish news agency, PAP, reported.

The Foreign Ministry this afternoon summoned U.S. Charge d'Affaires a.i. here Herbert Wilgis and informed him of the ban which was effective immediately.

Wilgis was also told that all offers of scholarships and invitations for Polish citizens to visit America from the U.S. Information Agency or other official agencies must be directed through "competent Polish governmental institutions."

The United States suspended most-favored-nation status for Poland on Oct. 27 in retaliation for the "outlawing" of "the independent trade union Solidarity" by the Polish Government.

JARUZELSKI CITED ON SITUATION IN POLAND

OW302036 Beijing XINHUA in English 1856 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Warsaw, October 29 (XINHUA) -- Polish leader Wojciech Jaruzelski said yesterday the country's situation is "still unfavorable" and a "sharp class struggle is still being carried on."

He made these statements at the two-day plenary session of the ninth congress of the Polish United Workers' Party, as first secretary of the party's Central Committee.

During the session, the 10th of the ninth party congress which ended yesterday, key questions concerning the social and economic development of the country were discussed.

Jaruzelski reviewed the economic achievements made since martial law was declared in Poland, and said the government is determined to continue restructuring the economy with emphasis being placed on low cost and high production, more exports, repression of speculation and profiteering, and fighting inflation.

He criticized the United States for its decision to stop treating Poland as a most-favored-nation, saying that "Poland is not Texas of the United States."

During the two days of discussion, a set of resolutions were adopted. One was on the tasks of the party organs regarding the social and economic development of the country. It outlined the party's objective of feeding the people, creating conditions for solving the country's food supply and housing problem, and increasing consumer goods to meet people's needs. It also instructed the party organizations at various levels to work out measures for carrying out the tasks.

In another resolution, the party stated its position on the restoration of the worker's union, saying that "there can be no democratic and correct social-political system without a self-government, administratively independent worker's union which, in cooperation with the party, protects the rights and interests of all the working people."

The resolution pointed out that there may be contradictions and conflicts between government institutions and the worker's union. But the party will help the worker's union find "correct methods that suit the working people and the socialist country," it said.

JOINT COOPERATION AGREEMENT SIGNED WITH LIBYA

OW291236 Beijing XINHUA in English 1204 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 29 (XINHUA) -- An agreement on the establishment of China-Libya joint committee and a cooperation program between the two governments were signed here today.

Zhao Ziyang, premier of the State Council, and Colonel Mu'ammar al-Qadhdhafi, leader of the September First Revolution of Libya, attended the signing ceremony.

Huang Hua, Chinese state councillor and minister of foreign affairs, and 'Abd al-'Ati al-'Ubaydi, secretary of the People's Committee of the People's Foreign Liaison Office of Libya, signed the two documents.

Under the agreement, the joint committee will supervise and check the implementation of the agreements on economic, trade and scientific and technological cooperation between the two countries and study the possibilities of expanding such cooperation.

According to the cooperation program, the two sides will cooperate in trade, communications, light industry, agriculture and housing projects as well as joint investment.

DPRK PRESIDENT GIVES BANQUET FOR LIBYAN LEADER

OW301311 Beijing XINHUA in English 1234 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Pyongyang, October 30 (XINHUA) -- President Kim Il-song of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea has renewed his support to the just struggle of the Palestinian and all other Arab people.

He made the statement at a banquet yesterday given in honour of the Libyan leader Colonel Mu'ammar al-Qadhdhafi, who is here on an official visit. The president once again sternly condemned the Israeli aggressors for the brutal massacre they committed in Lebanon with the backing of the U.S. imperialists.

He said if all the Arab people get closely united and take concerted actions, the Israeli aggressors will never be able to ride so roughshod as they are doing now and the common cause of the Arab people will be finally accomplished.

Korea and Libya alike are newly-emerging countries and members of the Nonaligned Movement standing in the forefront of the struggle against U.S. imperialism and its stooges, he said. Therefore, he added, the militant solidarity and friendship between them have been enhanced in the common struggle against the common enemy.

In his reply, Al-Qadhdhafi pledged support to the struggle of the Korean people for the reunification of their fatherland. He said U.S. imperialism which threatens Korea's reunification is also menacing Libya from the Mediterranean and the border. This is why Libya and Korea, though thousands of miles apart, are in the same trench against U.S. imperialism.

HU YAOBANG SENDS MESSAGE TO TANZANIA'S NYERERE

OW311244 Beijing XINHUA in English 1217 GMT 31 Oct 82

[Text] Dar es Salaam, October 30 (XINHUA) -- Hu Yaobang, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of China, has sent a message to President Julius Nyerere, extending his warmest congratulations on Nyerere's re-election as chairman of the ruling Chama Cha Mapinduzi (the Revolutionary Party) of Tanzania.

The message was delivered by delegate of the Chinese Communist Party Li Shuzheng, alternate member of the CPC Central Committee, to Nyerere here today.

The message says: "On the occasion of your re-election as chairman of the Central Executive Committee of Chama Cha Mapinduzi, I, on behalf of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of China, extend to you the warmest congratulations."

It heartily wishes Nyerere new successes in his noble work of leading the people of Tanzania to accomplish the militant tasks decided upon at the congress of Chama Cha Mapinduzi.

"May the intimate friendship and close cooperation between our two parties, two countries and two peoples be continuously strengthened and develop excl." the message concludes.

CPCCC GREETS FIFTH TANZANIAN CCM CONGRESS

OW311250 Beijing XINHUA in English 1220 GMT 31 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 31 (XINHUA) -- The Central Committee of the Communist Party of China has sent a message of greetings to the ordinary national congress of Chama Cha Mapinduzi [CCM] of Tanzania (the Revolutionary Party of Tanzania).

The message was read out by delegate of the Communist Party of China Li Shuzheng at the congress.

The message says:

"The valiant Tanzanian people have glorious tradition of opposing imperialism. Since independence, the Tanzanian people, under the leadership of his excellency President J. Nyerere, have adhered to the policy of independence and self-reliance and made unremitting efforts to consolidate national independence, safeguard state sovereignty and develop national economy and culture. In recent years, CCM of Tanzania has achieved gratifying results in its work of strengthening and building the party, further bringing into play the leading role of the party, leading the people to sum up experiences, shaping guiding lines and measures that suit the actual conditions of your country and advancing along your own road of development. In international affairs, the party and Government of Tanzania have persisted in opposing imperialism, colonialism and racism, pursued a policy of nonalignment and earnestly promoted the unity of Africa and the Third World. Being an important front-line country, Tanzania has always actively supported the people of southern Africa in their struggles against racism and for national liberation, thus displaying the lofty spirit of self-sacrifice. We heartily wish CCM of Tanzania to overcome difficulties and win new and continuuous victories on her road of advance.

"The friendship between China and Tanzania was established and developed in the protracted struggle for national liberation. Since your country gained independence, our two countries have sympathized with and supported each other in our common struggle for developing national economy, building our respective countries and preserving world peace. We are happy to see that since the founding of CCM of Tanzania, the friendly contacts and co-operation between the two parties of China and Tanzania have developed rapidly. The Sino-Tanzanian friendship has great vitality because we both belong to the Third World, experienced similar sufferings in the past and are at present confronted with the common task of construction.

"To strengthen the unity and cooperation with the Third World countries and people is the consistent policy of the Communist Party of China. We will always stand together with the Tanzanian people and fight unremittingly against imperialism, colonialism, racism and power politics and for the defence of national independence and the establishment of a new international economic order that is just and rational and for the maintenance of world peace."

PERUVIAN OFFICIALS COMMENT ON RELATIONS WITH PRC

Prime Minister's Statement

OW010823 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1239 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Lima, 29 Oct (XINHUA) -- China's policy toward the Latin American countries is to have "a sincere, earnest and truly close relationship" with them, said Peruvian Prime Minister Manuel Ulloa Elias here on 28 October.

Speaking at a luncheon held by the Peruvian Enterprises Administrative Commission, Ulloa delivered an introductory account of his recent visit to China and Japan. He said that China is highly interested in developing relations with Peru, other countries in Latin America and the entire Third World. He pointed out that China "is a big power of wisdom, united, stable and intelligent, and, in considering its foreign policy and other policy decisions as a whole, Peru is bound to take China into consideration." Peru has much to learn from China, he added.

Ulloa's speech also touched on China's achievements in striving to become self-sufficient in energy and food grain supply. On the energy issue, he said that China relied on its own efforts to develop energy, science and technology when problems occurred in its relations with the Soviet Union, and that China has gained "very important experiences" since that time. Touching on the question of grain supply, Ulloa said that China has "extraordinary experience" in agriculture and has become self-sufficient in food grain under conditions in which the country lacked the required funds and technology, but had abundant manpower.

President's Statement

OW200559 Beijing XINHUA in English 1507 GMT 19 Oct 82

[Text] Lima, October 18 (XINHUA) -- Peruvian President Fernando Belaunde Terry said Sunday the relations of his country with China should be extended.

Speaking at a press conference held shortly after Premier Manuel Ulloa's visit to China, the president said that "a new look has appeared in China and there are many things we need to learn about."

He said: "Besides, we are so much alike."

He also said that China "assured Ulloa of its intention not to export revolution, which we welcome."

The president also accused some big countries of "attempting to export their ideologies, especially their government systems regardless of whether or not we need them or are willing to accept them."

KANG KEQING FETES DOMINICAN WOMEN'S GROUP

OW181658 Beijing XINHUA in English 1516 GMT 18 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 18 (XINHUA) -- Kang Keqing, vice-chairman of the National Committee of the Chinese People's Political Consultative Conference and president of the All-China Women's Federation, today met and feted a delegation from the Dominican Women's Union led by its president, Juana Angela Hernandez. They had a friendly conversation.

HU YAOBANG DEC 1981 SPEECH ON LITERATURE, ART

OW010448 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 0703 GMT 31 Oct 82

[Speech by Comrade Hu Yaobang on 27 December 1981 while meeting with representatives attending a national conference on the creation of films: "Uphold the Concept of One Dividing Into Two; Attain a Still Higher Goal" -- published in issue 21 of the 1982 HONGQI]

[Text] Beijing, 31 Oct (XINHUA) -- I am a rooter for ball games, a rooter for radio and television broadcasts, a rooter for the movie industry. In short, I am your avid supporter. Our comrades of all party committees and propaganda departments must assign such a task for themselves: to be rooters, to cheer everybody up.

Literature and art, like sports, have a broad mass character. We must organize and lead the people to use all means possible to boost anything which has a broad mass character, which is beneficial to the people, which can inspire and educate people to aim high and which is popular among the people. Because only by doing this can we prove ourselves to have what our party constantly claims as a mass viewpoint.

The year 1981 will pass and a new year will come in only 4 more days. How should we view our work this year and greet the new year? Let me present these remarks to you comrades: Uphold the concept of one divides into two; attain a still higher goal. If there should be a "dui lian" [a Chinese couplet often written and mounted on scrolls to be hung on the wall] for the new year, can these remarks be considered as fit for this purpose?

All our comrades must uphold the concept of one divides into two at all times. This is a conclusion reached at the meeting sponsored by the party Central Committee for the first secretaries of various provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions to review the work of this year. To view things with the concept of one divides into two, we can see, on the one hand, our party has achieved great progress in its work and the result has generally been good, but, on the other, we can also see that we have not been performing very well in other work, including that in which we ought to have done better, such as political and ideological work, [stabilizing the] commodity prices and so forth. How does literary and art work fare? I hope you comrades will have this issue analyzed with the scientific attitude of one divides into two so that the work next year will be done better.

As far as the movie industry is concerned, we must fully affirm that much progress was made during the past several years, and that new progress has been made this year. Therefore, good and generally acceptable movies have been the mainstream. This also tells that the majority of our comrades have been working very hard. Some middle-aged and young directors and playwrights have been maturing very quickly. Our workers, peasants, soldiers and intellectuals, our Communist Party members, CYL members and Young Pioneers, in short people of all nationalities throughout the country, male and female, young and old, people residing in cities and rural areas, are pleased with and welcome the accomplishments and progress achieved by the people of the movie industry and their hard work and contributions. They can see these accomplishments with their own eyes, and they will remember them and are thankful for them. This is what we usually mean as the rights and wrongs of a case will be judged by the public. This is a fact, and this is the kind of confidence we should have.

Of course, there is another side of the coin. This is to say that certain movies are really not good enough, that certain comrades have not worked hard enough, and that relatively serious shortcomings and errors still can be found in certain works and among certain individual comrades. The two main problems are simply thus:

First, the political sentiments of certain works and certain comrades are not healthy. Where are these unhealthy political sentiments reflected? They are reflected mainly in their attitude of ignoring, and even writing off, the great accomplishments achieved by the Chinese people in pursuing their socialist cause, and in their attitude of blaming the entire state, the entire revolutionary rank and file and the entire socialist system for the mistakes in our revolutionary process and for the destructions done by the Lin Biao and Jiang Qing counterrevolutionary cliques. Because of such attitudes, they conclude that communism has no future, and that communism is but a dim illusion. That is what I mean by unhealthy political thinking or political sentiments.

Why do we have to criticize Comrade Bai Hua? It is because his work " nrequited ove" is unhealthy in political thinking and harmful to the people's minds. Things have now turned out very well since he has been criticized and since he has realized his mistakes and made a self-criticism. Comrade Bai Hua is still a party member and a writer, and he will continue to write. Comrade Bai Hua produced some good works in the past. We hope he will produce more good works. People can see from this case that the party Central Committee's policies and ways of doing things are vastly different from those in the past, and these differences have demonstrated that our party has indeed learned a beneficial lesson from its mistakes and setbacks and has become more mature.

There is no doubt that we must convincingly and seriously criticize erroneous things. Here, we must adhere to truths and never try to save face. It is best that one conduct self-criticism earnestly instead of shielding a shortcoming or fault. The comrades, readers and audience must help him. This is not only true for writers, but also true for the responsible comrades of our party committees at all levels. Can we criticize the Standing Committee members of the party Central Committee's Political Bureau and the comrades of the Secretariat if they have committed mistakes? Naturally we can criticize them. We can even criticize Comrade Mao Zedong's errors. Why can't we criticize ourselves, if we commit mistakes? For our great cause, whoever makes mistakes in our revolutionary ranks should be criticized or told to conduct self-criticism. However, we must face facts, be good to others and pay attention to science and policy. We must not wantonly criticize people. Perhaps some comrades would say that one's enthusiasm will be affected once criticism has started. We say: It all depends on what kind of enthusiasm you have. If is is the kind of enthusiasm detrimental to the socialist cause, should we not dampen this kind of enthusiasm? This kind of dampening would help the healthy enthusiasm to further develop at the same time.

Second, some comrades have failed to attain a lofty realm of thought in some of their works. Their realm of thought is even very low. Where does this phenomenon manifest itself? Mainly, it shows up when they are unable to correctly handle the relations between love affairs and the revolution and between love affairs and the socialist cause, while inappropriately overemphasizing the love affairs.

Naturally, love affairs constitute an important theme in literature and art. We not only may write on this theme, but should write on this theme. I had mentioned this at the symposium on script writing held last year. Who says that we cannot write about love affairs? They represent an integral part of human life and an important phenomenon in social life. The question is what role we let love affairs play. All communists, revolutionaries and patriots should be even more broadminded and farsighted. Ardently loving only our great motherland, our great people and our socialist cause is most valuable. If we can classify our sentiments of ardent love into number one, number two and number three, the number one should be this type of ardent love. Literature and art in the socialist period should be much more progressive than that in the new democratic revolution period. First of all, our literary and art works should educate the people, particularly the young people, to love the socialist cause of the motherland and our people. Fundamentally, love affairs should be identical with the revolutionary cause. For the people's interests and for the socialist cause, a revolutionary should be able to completely sacrifice one's own love affairs and even life, if it is necessary to do so.

People still remember the Hungarian poet Petofi's famous poem: "Life is indeed valuable, but the price of love is even more valuable. However, for the sake of freedom, I can give up both." For the nation's independence and the people's freedom in the motherland, this democratic revolutionary in the mid-19th century was able to attain this kind of lofty realm of thought. How can our socialist literature and art today retreat to the realm of thought where love is considered as something supreme? We should not let love between the sexes overtake the revolution and prevail over the revolution. Nor should we give publicity to love being the noblest and doing everything for the sake of love. Our literary and art works should always be aimed at broadening the people's spiritual realm and at encouraging and inspiring the people to dedicate themselves to the socialist modernization of the motherland.

Only by upholding the concept of "one divides into two," will it be possible for us to attain a still higher goal. In the next year, not only must you attain a higher goal, you must also work hard to attain a higher goal in doing the work of our party and the work of all trades and professions. You said that in the next year, you would produce 100 feature films. This is fine. However, the question is what kind of feature films. Everyone believes the quantity of 100 feature films should be ensured. The quality of these films should also be better than those produced in 1981. It is, therefore, necessary for you comrades to work harder than ever to conscientiously solve the series of questions in the realms of ideology and art and in all fields of your work.

As for economic development, there must be a practical and "unexaggerated" growth rate next year. This means a certain quantitative as well as a strict qualitative requirement or combining of quantity with quality in this regard. I think this requirement is also completely applicable to film production.

If we make no big mistakes, adopt a scientific approach and go all out to push the national economy forward, it will be possible gradually to accelerate the improvement of the people's living standards a little bit. However, generally speaking, it will not be quite possible for our living standards to catch up with those in the most economically developed countries in the next 50 years or until the 2020's or 2030's. Let us review some history. China was gradually reduced to a semicolonial and semifeudal society since the middle of the 19th century. After more than a century, a tremendous social change took place in China in the middle of the 20th century -- China entered the period of socialism. It might take another century or so for a fundamental and tremendous socioeconomic change to occur in our country so that China will be among the advanced of the world -- or such a change might not take place until the middle of the 21st century. Therefore, the course of social history has determined that we Chinese have to bear more hardships in this century and the next. What is so serious about bearing some hardships? Difficulties and hardships will help you succeed in your undertakings. This century and the next will be the two centuries in which the Chinese nation will bring about tremendous changes and make tremendous progress.

Such historical development and changes require our comrades to conscientiously experience all kinds of hardships and tempering. After this difficult historical stage, our nation will have a bright future. This is the realm of thought in which our minds are emancipated. Such a realm of thought is one of revolutionary romanticism and revolutionary realism. Is this not realistic? We must be determined to work hard in the next 5 decades to make China a modern, powerful socialist country with political stability, economic prosperity, developed education and high ethical standards and to make our country really stand up. This will be a close integration of revolutionary realism with revolutionary romanticism. Could one be called a revolutionary realist if one disregards the nature of historical development and regards the people's cause and ideals as worthless or devoid of any merit? That is shortsighted, naturalistic and indicative of a declining mentality.

Comrades, this question concerning the realm of thought is one of a fundamental character and characteristic of the times. Among our people, party members and cadres, there will definitely be more and more people who firmly believe that our country will effect a tremendous change or progress from disorder to order and from poverty to prosperity and who conscientiously work hard for this purpose. Now some people eagerly look forward to this, others are half believing and half doubting and still a very small number of people determinedly oppose such a tremendous change and progress and want to go backward. This requires us to turn our party's correct lines and objectives, through our ideological, political, theoretical, propaganda, literary and art, journalistic and educational work, into the firm will and conviction of large numbers of party members, cadres and people, into the ideas, consciousness and public opinion of hundreds of millions of people of various nationalities and into their actions. There will be no future for our literature and art if they do not serve this purpose. If our writers and artists fail to stand ahead of the times but stand aside and only write, perform or sing something about the "wind, flowers, snow and moon" and "love," or if they stand behind the times and only write, perform or sing something "miserable" or which is "unbearable to recall," then, what future will they have? There will be no future at all for those who stand opposed to use and distort and curse the revolution with a mentality marked by antipathy and gloom and with the language of hatred, and they are bound to be cast aside by the people. Of course, this does not in the slightest degree mean that ugly phenomena in our social life cannot be criticized. We have said on several occasions that they can and should be criticized. The question here is what stand you take and your frame of thought.

Comrade Xia Yan has just asked me to say more about the question of study. I think this is an extremely important question. The question of restudy faces not only you in your profession but also the whole party and people of all nationalities throughout the country, including us. Of course, the division of work in society varies from people to people. However, there are common yet different requirements for people in study. As far as writers and artists are concerned, I think that they must step up their study of Marxism, social life, culture, science and history.

Marxism, which came into being more than 100 years ago, has its rich theory of literature and art. But this does not mean that authors of classical works of Marxism have provided readymade answers to all questions about literary and art work. Our study of Marxism today is for no other purpose than guiding our artistic practice with the Marxist stand, viewpoint and method. We should strive to attain a higher ideological and a higher artistic level and to integrate the one with the other or to merge them into a single whole. Only in this way will we be able to greatly raise our realm of thought and to promote social progress in a particular way.

I do not know if you have read Comrade Wang Chaowen's "The Concept of Aesthetics" and some other comrades' aesthetical works. I have read some of the book but have not yet finished it. I feel that there may be some shortcomings in all books on aesthetics, but they still can help us understand some concepts or common sense of aesthetics so that we can avoid detours in this regard. Now some of our comrades do not pay sufficient attention to theoretical questions, and our achievements in the theory of literature and art are very few indeed.

Writers and artists should go deep into the realities of life in order to observe, experience and analyze persons and social phenomena of various kinds — this is a prerequisite for our literary and art creation. If a writer does not do so, he can only fabricate stories according to his subjective needs. Take the plot of having a love affair in a tank for example. People only have to ask this: Since the number of personnel assigned to a tank is limited, how can another person be added to it so casually? Gorkiy once sincerely advised a young writer: Do not write anything in a hurry but study it first. He also said: One must pay attention to reality in order to portray new life vividly and effectively. There are three kinds of realities — the past reality, the present reality and the sketchy reality of the future.

In studying science, culture and history, one must pay particular attention to language. I think it necessary to remind comrades, especially young comrades, to pay close attention to this matter.

"A writing that is devoid of literary grace will not last long." This is quite right. It shows that a writing devoid of literary grace and refined language cannot touch people to the heart. This is an extremely important experience. Literary language is an art. A work without literary grace definitiely has little vitality. Please take a look at Lu Xun, Guo Moruo, Mao Dun, Ba Jin, Gao Yu, Lao She, Zhao Zhuli and other literary giants of modern times. Is any of them not a great master of the art of language? However, it appears that some young comrades have not paid close attention to this matter. If one does not have sufficient literary accomplishment and is unwilling to study some classical Chinese poems and prose, his writing will be insipid and devoid of the effect of touching people to the heart. If one goes on like this, how can one do ne's job?

Certain comrades mentioned the movie "Bosom Friend." I think a movie like this can be produced. Cai E indeed rendered outstanding service in the struggle of overthrowing Yuan Shikai during the old democratic revolutionary period, and Xiao Fengxian can be regarded as a woman with foresight and courage. However, I do not know whether the movie's playwright and director read Xiao Fengxian's elegiac couplet for Cai E. The first part of the couplet reads: "Over the boundless horizon in the south, you ascended like a roc that wings skyward, lifted by the cyclone. How can I, a survivor of a chaotic world, bear the fact that our union has become a mere dream?" The second half reads: "During your several years of stay in the north, I pitied myself for having led an aimless life. But after having you, a hero, as my bosom friend, what is fleeting will be remembered forever." You can see that this couplet, which mentions Cai's lofty ambition and Xiao Fengxian herself, as well as her relationship with Cai, has a fairly deep perception and literary grace. I hear that it was written by a literati in Xiao Fengxian's name. Nevertheless, it has a certain literary value. I think it would be nice if the movie "Bosom Friend" used this couplet as its theme and even used its words for the lyrics of a theme song. From this we can see that we must continue to brush up on history and culture. If our works have a correct theme and tell a touching story with a rich, graceful language, they certainly can powerfully educate and inspire our people.

Some comrades maintain that our movies, like ball games, should be up to the standard that they can compete with other countries on the international movie scene. I think this issue must be analyzed because we will lose our bearings if it is not clearly analyzed. Nowadays, the international sports tournaments are matches of athletic skills conducted under unified competition regulations and judging standards that are internationally acknowledged. In light of these regulations and standards, who wins and who loses can be clearly distinguished, and the results, which do not have a class character, are spontaneously recognized by the whole world. However, literature and art, including motion pictures, are different. It is one of the ideological departments that has a strong class and social character. The same literary and art work may be judged differently, or even diametrically, by different people because of differences in their social status and world outlook. Of course, different peoples and different countries can and should learn from each other in the field of artistic forms and skills of their literature and art. All the positive results from the literature and art of all nations will contribute to mankind's cultural development. In the final analysis, however, whether our literature and art has a great vitality depends only on whether it meets the needs for the progress of people of all nationalities. Therefore, the goal of struggle of our literature and art is not what it can accomplish internationally, but how it can penetrate the hearts of the broad masses of Chinese people and become a powerful spiritual weapon that can arouse hundreds of million of Chinese people to struggle for socialist modernization. If our literature and art really attains this goal, it has expressed its major international significance. If our own culture can be developed and thrive healthily in a great country like China, which has 1/4 of the world's population, and if our people will emerge in the world as a highly civilized nation, it will be an inestimable contribution to and a tremendous motivating force in the world's cultural development. Is it possible then that this will not be recorded in full detail in the cultural history of the world?

In short, in the interest of our country and people, we must heighten our spirits, rise up and be ready to exert sustained and strenuous efforts to build a stronger and more prosperous country. We must also emulate the Chinese women's volleyball team's spirit of winning glory for the motherland and the people. Some comrades say that their burden is heavy and they already feel the "pressure." I think this is good. When tap water cannot reach the upper floors of tall buildings, it is because there is not enough pressure. There must be some pressure, but, of course, it should not be too large. In the final analysis, we rely on our legs in order to attain a still higher goal. Whether our legs can make large steps depends on how loyal we are to our motherland, the people, the party and the socialist cause.

This meeting is being held quite successfully. I propose that a meeting like this be held every December. The meeting should be larger so it will be attended by directors, playwrights and some performers and singers. The purpose for settling the general account at the end of the year is to be prepared for the fighting during the new year. Let me repeat what I said: We must wage a hard struggle in order to attain a still higher goal!

RENMIN RIBAO ON CURRENT HISTORICAL PERIOD

OW300336 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 0703 GMT 29 Oct 82

[RENMIN RIBAO 29 October editorial: "Why Is It Said That the Current Historical Period Is One of the Best Since the Founding of the People's Republic -- Supporting Evidence in 10 Fields"]

[Text] Beijing, 29 Oct (XINHUA) -- In his report to the 12th CPC National Congress, Comrade Hu Yaobang said: "The present period is one of the best since the founding of our People's Republic." Some comrades have asked: Since our country has so many difficulties, society has so many problems and there are not a few problems within the party, is this conclusion tenable? In the course of conveying, studying and discussing the documents of the 12th party congress, many comrades have presented a host of facts and some leading comrades have made reports to clarify this question. Since this question directly involves our views regarding the achievements and the line since the 3d plenary session of the 11th Central Committee and implies whether we will fulfill the tasks put forth by the 12th congress with full confidence, it is indeed necessary to clarify this question through discussion.

To state that the period of less than 4 years since the 3d plenary session of the 11th Central Committee is one of the best since the founding of our People's Republic, we have grounds based on the following 10 principal aspects:

1. The leadership of the party is in the hands of genuine Marxists. We have restored the Marxist ideological line of seeking truth from facts and resumed democratic centralism in inner-party life. We have made massive, manysided and effective new studies in building socialism. We have also begun to restructure the administration and build up the ranks of more revolutionary, younger in average age, better educated and professionally more competent cadres. All these are major developments in the history of the party and the state. The significance of these developments is clearly discernible now and will be more clearly discernible as time passes. Of course, we admit that there remain many unsolved problems within the party, in society and in many aspects of our state life. We must not underestimate this fact. However, we must also note that the victories already won by the party and the people will not be obscured by these problems. The overall situation has been stabilized, not for just a short period, but more stabilized every year. The objective trend shows that this stabilization will be sustained. In short, the leadership has changed and leadership and work methods have changed. Many of these changes match those in the early period of the founding of the People's Republic, while many others are better.

2. The work focus of the whole party has shifted to socialist modernization. We formed the CPC and made revolution through all kinds of hardships and difficulties for more than 60 years precisely for the purpose of conducting socialist revolution and construction after winning the victory in the new democratic revolution. In the more than 30 years after the founding of our People's Republic, we did not make the building of socialism the center of our work over quite a long period. The strategic change acheived after the 3d plenary session of the 11th Central Committee can be called a result which was gained at a grievous price. We must never take this result lightly and must say that the Chinese revolution has embarked on a correct, sound path of development of socialist construction.

3. Our party has basically corrected the prolonged "left" deviationist policies and views on education, science, culture and intellectuals.

4. We are on the track of building a modern, regular revolutionary army which has gradually gotten rid of the pernicious influence of the 10 years of domestic chaos. We have launched a self-defensive counterattack against Vietnam and conducted a large-scale north China regional exercise. We have done a great deal of work in modern weapons testing and recently succeeded in launching a carrier rocket to a predetermined sea area. Our army units have done many things in the more than 3 years after the 3d plenary session of the 11th Central Committee. These are but a few examples.

5. Our achievements in political construction are also tremendous. We have restored public security, procuratorial and judicial organs and their work. The normal functions of the NPC and the CPPCC have been resumed. United front and minority nationalities work has made remarkable progress. What is especially noteworthy is that we have begun to embark on the road of a genuine socialist legal system. This is of extraordinarily great significance for maintaining permanent public order in our country. Since 1979, the NPC has adopted 13 laws. The NPC Standing Committee has adopted 15 laws or legal regulations and 12 legal decisions. It has also republished eight laws and decrees and seven legal resolutions and decisions that were promulgated before the "Cultural Revolution." It has promulgated the criminal law and the law of criminal procedure for the first time. In addition, a new constitution will be adopted at the forthcoming Fifth Session of the Fifth NPC. All of these have played a great role in promoting modernization and achieving stability in our country and they will continue to do so.

Since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, social order has become more and more stable. Although crimes still occur, our achievements in struggle against them are tremendous. Criminal cases from January to August of 1982 were 15 percent fewer than in the corresponding 1981 period. We should consider the following factor in order to explain why the present criminal cases statistic is comparatively large. In the past, the statistics for criminal cases were smaller because the criminal law had not been promulgated, and we had an equivalent law, but we did not completely implement it. Now, as the law is becoming adequate, the statistics for criminal cases will look larger. This explanation is intended to help people understand the overall situation in the present social order. However, it does not mean that social order is no longer an important problem. This year's ratio of criminals may reach 7.2 per 10,000, if reckoned on the basis of the statistics for the first 8 months. The figure is smaller than high ratio years since the founding of the People's Republic and is much smaller than last year. Therefore, social order is gradually becoming better year by year, as compared with other years since the founding of the People's Republic. Comparing China with other countries, many friends who come from or have visited capitalist countries, such as the United States, say that "one has the greatest sense of security" in China.

6. A large number of people who were wronged or wrongly accused have had their cases reversed. Those who were wrongly labelled "rightists" have been rehabilitated. A total of 2.78 million people have had their former designation of "landlords" or "rich peasants" removed, and 700,000 small shopowners, peddlers and handicraftsmen who were wrongly classified as capitalists have had their positions restored.

Since the release of former Kuomintang party, government and military personnel and its special agents above the county or regimental level, 4,237 prisoners who were former Kuomintang party, government and military personnel and its special agents below the county or regimental level have been released. The proper settlement of these issues has greatly stabilized political life and the political atmosphere, and greatly improved the contradictions among the poeple throughout the country.

7. Great progress has been made in the party whose membership has reached 39 million. According to statistics compiled at the end of 1981, those who joined the party before liberation account for 6.8 percent of the total membership and those who joined the party after the founding of the People's Republic and before the outbreak of the "Cultural Revolution" account for 38.6 percent. They total 45.4 percent. In addition, 40.6 percent of the party members were admitted into the party during the "Cultural Revolution" and 14 percent were admitted after the "Cultural Revolution." There are indeed a number of persons who were "rushed into the party" during the "Cultural Revolution," but we should not regard all those who joined the party during the "Cultural Revolution" as rebels. Many among them are very good party members and, of course, there are also persons who committed mistakes and even serious mistakes. However, those mistakes were committed under the historical conditions of those years. Except for the three types of persons pointed out by the central authorities, we should not do too much to affix personal responsibility for those mistakes.

Because of the high standard set for new recruits in recent years, new party members are of good quality. Many comrades who have applied for party membership and whose performance is indeed fairly good have not yet been admitted. Even in this situation, the new party members have accounted for 14 percent of the total. We anticipate that after the 12th national party congress, there will be more applicants for party membership, more new party members will be recruited and party members' quality will become still better. Of the 20 million cadres (including non-CPC cadres) in China, 86 percent are between the ages of 26 and 55. Of the cadres, 58.7 percent are at an educational level at or above senior middle school and 42.4 percent have various specialities and hold various specialized job positions. We should not underestimate the long-term effects of cadres' becoming younger and more educated. The progress made in party leadership, work style and discipline since the 3d plenary session of the 11th party Central Committee are particularly obvious to all.

8. Our economy has developed. From 1979 to 1981 after the 3d plenary session of the 11th party Central Committee, the total output value of China's industry and agriculture increased at an average annual rate of 6.7 percent. More than 26 million people have gotten jobs. National revenue registered an increase of 87 billion yuan. According to rough statistics compiled by the State Statistical Bureau, peasants' income has increased by 58 billion yuan, workers' 20 billion yuan and enterprises' (collectives') 20 billion yuan, totalling 98 billion yuan. The large increase in the income of peasants, workers and enterprises caused the total state expenditure to exceed the total state revenue and thus created a deficit. In those 3 years, the central authorities reduced the scale of capital construction and cut back capital construction investment by 18.8 billion yuan (however, the scale of capital construction was not effectively reduced because of a large increase in capital construction investment outside the state budget). The state also increased the funds for science, culture, education and public health by 6 billion yuan in spite of such financial difficulties. In 1978 the investment in productive capital construction projects accounted for 83 percent, while that in nonproductive projects accounted for 17 percent. In 1981 the investment in productive projects dropped to 59 percent, while the investment in nonproductive projects rose to 41 percent. This shows that indeed great changes occurred in the economy in those 3 years. The changes mainly manifested themselves in an increase in the people's income; an increase in allocations for cultural work, education, public health and urban public services; more flexibility for local authorities and enterprises; and diversified business operations in rural areas.

Becuase of the reduction in the scale of capital construction in 1981, the shortage of the means of production has been relaxed -- to some extent -- as compared with a few years earlier, though it still exists. The production of consumer goods has increased and market commodities are abundant. People once rushed to buy things. Now, they do not have to rush because they can buy what they want as long as they have the money. With some items, supply exceeds demand. This is a phenomenon rarely seen since the founding of the People's Republic. Of course, this phenomenon should not be left to continue too long. Generally speaking, economic development in recent years is sound. Some blindness in economic development, such as the problem of excessive investment in nonproductive projects, has aroused our attention and is surmountable. The people's livelihood has indeed improved. Workers and peasants now have the opportunity to rest and build up strength. This is a very important factor which enables our social, political and national situation to become more and more stable and develop soundly amid stability.

9. Great changes in our economic policy since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee have achieved remarkable results. One of the changes which is particularly worth our attention is the system of production responsibility now in practice in various forms in agriculture. As to how to socialize agriculture, neither Marx nor Engels or Lenin put forward any clear, definite or concrete ideas. All the ideas contained in their relevant works, particularly "On the Cooperative System" written by Lenin in his later years, differ significantly from the collective farm system practiced by the Soviet Union and the system of the advanced agricultural producers' cooperative and the people's commune system later practiced in China.

It is prejudiced to believe that only following the old practice can be called socialization and that our current practice amounts to retrogression. The production responsibility system now in practice in agriculture is a creation of the masses. Practice has proven that this system is a form of socialist agriculture. The development of this diversified form of socialist agriculture should continue. Nowadays, there are many people in the countryside who are not engaged in agriculture. The number of workers and personnel engaged in transportation and other work has increased. In the countryside where the population is large, it is difficult for the people to become well-off if all of them are engaged purely in agriculture. It would also be difficult for the rural economy to develop. Hence, it is a good thing and big progress if the rural population is engaged in diversified occupations.

There have also been transformations in industry, commerce and employment. We have ended our past practice of ensuring employment for the urban population, in fact, the practice of guaranteeing that everyone "can eat from the same big pot." Similarly, this is progress, not retrogression, on the socialist road. We have developed a diversified form of economy. Besides further developing the state economy in cities and towns, we have approved the existence of the collective economy and a certain amount of privately-owned economy. Commerce (including service trades) is beginning to shift to a diversified form. Production and marketing are coordinated well. There are enterprises in the countryside that are run collectively, privately and directly by peasants. Enthusiasm and initiative follow the expansion of the authority of the localities and enterprises. The expansion of enterprises' authority also enhanced their workers' enthusiasm for work. Our socialist economy will develop at a fast pace if this enthusiasm and initiative are rationally brought into full play. Only this can be called the manifestation of the superiority of the socialist economy.

10. Carrying out the policy of opening to the outside world. Since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, we have accepted foreign loans and used foreign funds to meet the state's construction needs. This has promoted construction in energy and transportation and helped build some projects that we were forced to stop or postpone. In addition, we have imported fairly advanced technology, equipment and business management. All that we have done is necessary.

Our foreign trade has grown rapidly over the past few years. Figures from all foreign trade departments in China show that the total volume of exports was 16.8 billion yuan in 1978 and 37.1 billion in 1981, an average annual increase of 30.2 percent. There has been a change in the composition of our exports. Agriculture products totalled 27.6 percent in 1978 and 17.6 percent in 1981; exports of light industrial products have decreased from 46.9 to 39 percent; moreover, exports of heavy industrial products, including crude oil and primary processed oil products, coal, electrical and machinery products, as well as other products such as ships, which have never been exported, rose from 25.5 percent in 1978 to 43.4 percent in 1981.

Many forms have been used in China's foreign trade such as processing materials imported from abroad, processing or assembling materials supplied by foreign firms, running coproduction projects, exporting techniques and labor service. The volume of exports of finished products processed from imported materials was 21.5 percent in 1978 and 30.7 percent in 1981. By the end of last June, China had concluded 628 contracts worth $940 million with foreign firms for labor service cooperation to build projects. China has sent 25,000 technicians and staff members to over 30 countries and regions. The expansion of our foreign trade has considerably promoted the development of China's economy. About one-third of the 1979 and 1980 increases in industrial output value of Tianjin Municipality were realized by expanding exports; in Shanghai one-third of the staff members and workers, or half of the number of the handicraft factories are engaged in the production of export products; in Shandong's Yantai Prefecture, the average income of its rural population in 1980 rose by 40 yuan against 1979 as a result of exporting agricultural, sideline, local and special products. Some problems have emerged in the course of carrying out the policy of opening to the outside world and we have suffered some losses. This cannot be avoided. Nevertheless, we have gained some experience and have become cleverer.

We do not rest content with the completed work because there are still problems in our work. All problems, either those left over from the past or those we now face, should be solved step by step. However, the main thing is that our cause is advancing. The ten points listed above are sufficient to testify that the tremendous successes we have achieved over the past 4 years could not be dreamed of in the 10 years of the "Cultural Revolution" and far exceed those made during the decade prior to the "Cultural Revolution." Only the achievements of the 7 years after the founding of the PRC can be compared to the successes made in the past 4 years. Of course, there is no intention to negate the achievements made during the decade prior to the "Cultural Revolution." We did a great deal of work even during the 10 years of the "Cultural Revolution" and also in the first 2 years after its conclusion. The important thing is that the achievements we made during these two periods, in terms of the fields involved and their importance in the history of the development of the cause of socialism in China, cannot be put on a par with those made in the past 3 years or so. Moreover, the background in these past 3 years or so is entirely different from that in the early years after the founding of the PRC. On the one hand, we won a sweeping victory and liberated the whole country in less than 3 years prior to the founding of the PRC. It was under such favorable circumstances that we carried out our work. On the other hand, there were favorable factors when we began our national construction after the national victory. Moreover, the scale of our work then was comparatively small. Since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, our achievements have been made in an extremely chaotic, complicated and difficult situation created by the "Cultural Revolution." Taking these factors into consideration, we will see more clearly that the successes we have made since that session are indeed tremendous. Therefore, the present period entirely deserves to be called one of the best since the founding of the PRC.

RENMIN RIBAO ON 'THREE KINDS OF PEOPLE' PROBLEM

HK010912 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 29 Oct 82 p 5

[Article by Wen Yu [2429 3768]: "Will Stability and Unity Be Affected by Solving the Problem of 'Three Kinds of People?'"]

[Text] The 12th party congress has raised the task of solving the problem related to the 'three kinds of people.' This is a very important task. Some people worried that by fulfilling this task, we would harm stability and unity. This worry is entirely groundless.

During the 10 years of civil disorder, we also time and again put forth that we had to seek stability and unity, but actually disorder was only aggravated. What was the reason for that? The reason was because at that time a series of erroneous theories, policies and slogans was politically being carried out outside and inside our organizations. Moreover it was because the Lin Biao and Jiang Qing cliques and the "three kinds of people" who followed Lin Biao and Jiang Qing were making trouble. How could there be any stability or unity then? It is only since the smashing of the "gang of four" and especially since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee that our party has thoroughly broken away from the serious fetters of the "leftist" mistakes, brought order out of chaos, reestablished the Marxist ideological, political and organizational line and thus put an end to prolonged social disorder and created a stable, united and lively new situation. In order to consolidate and develop this stable and united situation, we must continue to work hard. The program and measures that have been set by the 12th party congress, including the measure of firmly purging the "three kinds of people" from our leading groups, are precisely the strategic measures for the consolidation and development of a stable and united situation.

In his speech at the 12th party congress, Comrade Chen Yun clearly pointed out that the "three kinds of people" whom we should clear out were "those who rose to prominence during the "Cultural Revolution' by following Lin Biao, Jiang Qing and their ilk in 'rebellion'; people who are seriously factionalist in their ideas; and people who indulged in beating, smashing and looting." The ideological system for these "three kinds of people" is thoroughly an ideological system of Lin Biao's and the "gang of four's." What these people believe in is "rebellion" and "seizing power." Their number is small, but their potential is great. What is worth our especially great attention is that even now there are quite a few such people who remain in leading posts and that some of them have even been promoted to or selected as candidates for leading posts during the past few years. These people oppose and resent the series of principles and policies that have been formulated since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee. Therefore, in the areas and units under their control, it has been very difficult for the party's various principles and policies to be implemented. Most of the wronged, false and misjudged cases created by them have not yet been corrected or rehabilitated. In our organizations, they have formed factions to squeeze out those who hold different views and vigorously develop the unhealthy trend. On the surface, these people seem "to be behaving themselves" because they see that the situation has completely changed against them, but in fact there has not been any radical change in their stand or thoughts. If we allow them to remain in our leading groups or promote them to leading posts, they will cooperate with one another to make trouble or to stage a comeback, thus bringing harm to the people when there are conditions for their doing so. That is why by resolutely clearing them out of our leading groups, we are precisely removing latent dangers in a timely manner and vigorously facilitating the consolidation and development of a stable and united situation.

In solving the problem related to the "three kinds of people, we should certainly pay attention to clearly distinguishing between the "three kinds of people" and the comrades who have committed mistakes during the "Great Cultural Revolution." The number of these "three kinds of people" is very small and the larger numer is those people who have followed them. As for those who have followed these people, if only they realize their mistakes and really correct their mistakes, we should have confidence in and employ them and would continue to examine and help them in their work.

At the same time, we should also be on guard against those who take advantage of clearing out the "three kinds of people" to settle old scores and prevent the malpractice of an excessive amount of clearing out these people.

SHAANXI RIBAO ON 'PEOPLE OF THE FOURTH CATEGORY'

HK011036 Xian SHAANXI RIBAO in Chinese 20 Oct 82 p 3

["Ideological Commentary" by Si Yuan [1835 3293]: "We Must Heighten Vigilance Against 'People of the Fourth Category'"]

[Text] When addressing the 12th CPC Congress, leading cadres of the Central Committee repeatedly stressed cleaning out "people of the fifth category." This has attracted great attention from us. However, the author has made contacts with some comrades, talking with them about the people of the fourth category who have been against the line of the CPC Central Committee since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee. These comrades seemed to find some difficulty in dealing with this question. I would like to express some views on this topic.

From an overall viewpoint, after several years of readjustment, the leading power in party and government organs at all levels has been transferred to the hands of those who stick to the line of the third plenary session. However, it must not be overlooked that there are still a few people who oppose the line of the third plenary session. Some of them venomously slander the party line and leading cadres of the Central Committee and/or overtly agree but covertly oppose, interrupt, postpone and refuse to take orders implementing the party line and policy. In fact, some of these people made their names or were put in important positions during the Cultural Revolution. But, there are also some people who, although they made small mistakes during the "Cultural Revolution," instead of changing their outlook, still insist on the old "leftist" stuff. Some of them were the targets of criticism and attack during the "Cultural Revolution," actively participated in redressing "mishandled cases, unjust cases and false cases," but now take a wait-and-see attitude toward all kind of reforms and have been unconciously opposing the party line, particularly when their interests have been affected, for they did not study and their minds were oversaturated with old ideology. At the historical turning point, some comrades lacked understanding, had said something wrong or had made some mistakes. Naturally, this belongs to the problem of understanding and it is all right if they have made corrections. However, those who oppose the line of the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee have gone far beyond the limit in words or deeds. Serious problems reside in the fact of that they have power and refuse to implement the policies of the Central Committee in the area or unit under their control, converting them into places "inaccessible to the spring breeze" where work is paralyzed and the masses of people pour out endless grievances. Evidently, by letting them remain in leading posts, this only serves to adversely affect work. If we say that "people of the third category" are a hidden peril in the ranks of the party cadres and that "people of the fifth category" are a malignant tumor in the body of the party, then "people of the fourth category become obstacles in the building of the four modernizations."

Although this kind of people, generally, belong to the contradictions among the people, they have completely forfeited the qualities of leadership. We must stand firm and prudent while dealing with them. To stand firm means to transfer all of them from key departments regardless of their leading posts at whatever level, to a common job to be supervised and educated. To be prudent is to make a thorough investigation of the problem and stick to policy and make strict conclusions according to the facts. We should make special and specific analyses and strictly distinguish those who are opposing the line adopted by the third plenary session from those who became rigid for a moment, cannot understand party policy, made wrong statements and committed mistakes but have already made corrections.

To resolutely clean out "people of the fourth category" serves to give a warning to those who are saturated with "left" ideology, suspect party policy and passively hesitate to implement it and to sober them up. These comrades should sum up their experience, criticize themselves, learn lessons, try hard to catch up and strive to take the initiative in the study of the 12th CPC Congress documents. Otherwise, they are in danger of lapsing into becoming "people of the fourth category" by following the beaten track.

SHOUDU STEEL REPORTS ON RESPONSIBILITY SYSTEM

OW310440 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1219 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Report by Zhou Guanwu, secretary of the party committee of the Shoudu Iron and Steel Company, entitled: "The Industrial Economic Responsibility System Is a New Way for Enterprises To Improve Economic Results by Relying on the Masses"]

[Excerpts] Beijing, 29 Oct (XINHUA) -- XINHUA editor's note: We would like to recommend to comrades on various fronts the report of the Shoudu Iron and Steel Company on improving economic results in an all-round way by implementing the economic responsibility system and be relying on the masses. The experience of the Shoudu Iron and Steel Company has been highly praised by the central leading comrades, and industrial and transportation departments throughout the country have attached importance to it. A leading comrade of the Shoudu Iron and Steel Company was recently invited to deliver a report to the central leading organs. The report was warmly received. The following are detailed excerpts of the report. (end editor's note)

The Shoudu Iron and Steel Company is an old enterprise with a history of over 60 years. Although the enterprises was called an iron and steel plant before liberation, it only produced iron and no steel. By the end of 1948 the accumulated output of iron totaled only 286,000 dun, or slightly more than a month's output of the present Shoudu Iron and Steel Company. After liberation, the plant was expanded and renovated and has grown in scale, producing a greater variety of products. As of now the plant has gradually developed into an integrated iron and steel complex which encompasses the whole production process from mining to rolling. The company's current annual production capacity is as follows: iron ore, 12 million dun; iron, 3 million dun; steel, 1.5 million dun; steel products, 1 million dun and some industrial chemical products, with a gross annual output value reaching 1.1 billion yuan. The company now has over 70,000 workers and staff members on the payroll.

I wish to report on the following aspects:

First part: Implementing the Economic Responsibility System Is a Restructuring of the Economic Management System for Improving the Economic Results of Enterprises

A. Expand the Enterprise's Decisionmaking Power and Define Its Economic Responsibility Toward the State

The Shoudu Iron and Steel Company began to restructure its economic system in 1979. The central link of the restructuring was to expand the decisionmaking power of the enterprise's business management and to correctly handle the interests of the state, the enterprise and the individual. The purpose of the restructuring was to create a practical system and measures catering to China's special characteristics and which can ensure unified state leadership, the proportional development of the economy in a planned way, fully bring into play the initiative of the enterprise, the workers and staff members, and improve economic results. We must understand that the industrial economic responsibility system is a new type of production management system which aims at improving economic results by maintaining close links among responsibility, power and interests under socialist conditions and the guidance of macroeconomics. The industrial economic responsibility system consists of two parts: one is to expand the enterprise' decisionmaking power and define its economic responsibility toward the state, that is, the relation between the enterprise and the state is governed by the implementation of the economic responsibility system; the other is to implement the economic responsibility system at all levels of the enterprise down to individuals. The above are the two integral parts of the inseparable whole.

First, I would like to talk about the enterprise's economic responsibility toward the state.

China's former industrial management system was built largely along the lines of the Soviet industrial management system in the 1950's. The most serious defects of the system are the practice of rigid control in every aspect and the practice of sharing food from the same big pot. The previous system bound the enterprises hand and foot. Hence, the creativity of the workers and staff cannot be brought into play and economic results cannot be improved. Thus, there is no way out except by restructuring the industrial management system.

With expanded decisionmaking powers, more retained profits and greater financial power, the enterprise can pay attention to some urgent matters and also can carry out technical renovation projects which require only small amount of investment, but with substantial results. The enterprise can also step up pollution control.

Following the expansion of decisionmaking powers for the enterprise, we have ensured more income for the state, as well as greater profits retained by the enterprise and higher pay for the workers and staff. Some comrades have different views regarding the expansion of decisionmaking power. They hold that with more profits retained by the enterprise, the income for the state will decrease. Therefore, they do not support expanding decisionmaking powers for enterprises. However, we can cite a few figures to show that these comrades' worries do not conform to facts. In 1978 our company delivered 180 million yuan of profits to the state, a historic high; however, in the same year, the state appropriated over 150 million yuan for the company. Therefore, the state received only 23 million-odd yuan from the company. Since expansion of the decisionmaking power, our company delivered 210 million-odd yuan to the state in 1979. The profits delivered in 1979 were more than those delivered in the previous year. Besides, the state appropriations for the company markedly decreased to just over 70 million yuan. So in 1979 the state received in reality 140 million yuan of profits from the company.

With expanded decisionmaking powers for the enterprise, work efficiency has been raised, initiative enhanced and responsibility added. Under the guidance of macroeconomics, the enterprises must clearly define their economic responsibility toward the state, give priority to the interests of the state, ensure completion of state plans and strive to meet social demands. The economic responsibility of the Shoudu Iron and Steel Company toward the state includes: fulfilling the profit-delivering plan; fulfilling the production plan regarding the quantity, quality and variety of major products; accomplishing the state plans on the allocation and transfer of products; ensuring that all products are marketable and will not become stockpiled; completing major technical renovations under the state plan; ensuring that the award funds for workers and staff members do not exceed the standard approved by the upper leading departments; and achieving the goal of not exceeding the state-stipulated energy consumption target. Only by fulfilling the economic responsibility system in an all-round way can the enterprise retain profits in accordance with the relevant regulations.

B. Implement the Economic Responsibility System in Enterprises on the Basis of Expanded Decisionmaking Powers

The success or failure of an enterprise depends on whether the workers can be aroused to be the true masters of their own affairs. We can be enlightened by the rural areas' responsibility system, under which a person is held responsible for what has been contracted to him.

We realize that we cannot keep the enterprises from expanding their decisionmaking powers nor can we authorize only a few enterprise leaders to have greater power. It is necessary first to expand decisionmaking powers and then to implement the economic responsibility system at all levels within the enterprise. Only in this way can we arouse the enthusiasm of the enterprise as well as that of the workers. In other words, the heavy burden should be shared by all workers and staff members instead of leaving it to a few leading members to shoulder.

Our company began to implement the economic responsibility system in June 1981. By means of the economic responsibility system within the enterprise, the principle of combining responsibility, powers and interests into one was applied to everyone at every level. Responsibility comes first, then the powers and interests are determined accordingly. Our actual approach is to concentrate on three key links, namely, package assignment, guarantees and evaluation.

1. Make package assignments for everyone at every level. This means making every plant, mine, workshop, worker and staff member take up the enterprise's economic responsibility toward the state as well as taking up the entire management and business of the enterprise.

2. Combine package assignments with guarantees. In large-scale industrial production, all departments and work procedures are closely interrelated and coordinated with one another. Therefore, in implementing the economic responsibility system, it is necessary to make package assignments as well as guarantees. The specific requirements for coordination mutually guaranteed by different units and work posts should be gradually applied to individuals at all levels. Some people ask if a complex will cease to be a complex when the economic responsibility system is introduced into industry. The answer is negative. This is because we have incorporated into the economic responsibility system the complicated network of coordination among the higher and lower bodies and among the parallel units. The enterprise has been formed into a unified entity and all its members make concerted efforts to achieve the best economic results.

3. There should be strict evaluation. In making evaluations, we have no consideration for anyone's feelings, we do not look into the objective causes and we are not goody-goody. We uphold equality for all before the rules and regulations. Strict evaluation is even more important to iron and steel enterprises engaged in continuous production. The remaining poison of the tumultuous decade has yet to be eliminated and there are more incoming young workers, so potential dangers may exist and accidents may occur if discipline is relaxed. It is difficult indeed to make strict evaluations of new workers. However, one must undergo rigorous training in order to become superior. It is useless to try to organize large-scale production by means of the small-producer mentality. We are very firm in making strict evaluations.

How do we make strict evaluation? First we strictly evaluate one by one the terms of package assignments and guarantees. In addition, we institute the "three 100 percent's": the rules and regulations should be implemented 100 percent, the names of violaters of rules and regulations should be recorded 100 percent and the bonuses for these violators should be canceled 100 percent. Some people may argue that even criminals may be "treated with leniency if they confess their crimes" and question the necessity of withholding the bonus of a violator after his name has been recorded. Our answer is: This is what we meant by strictness.

The advantages of implementing the economic responsibility system within the enterprise are manifested mainly in two aspects: On the one hand, the enterprise has greatly improved its economic results. In 1981 we managed to increase revenues despite a reduced output resulting from the state's restrictions on iron and steel output. That was not easy. Generally speaking, when production drops and the corresponding fixed expenditures remain unchanged, the production costs will go up. But we managed to lower production costs and change our product line, which led to higher revenues despite lower production. That year our company's iron and steel output dropped by 360,000 dun, but profits rose by 9.07 percent.

On the other hand, the workers have undergone tremendous changes in their mental outlook. First, they display a greater sense of responsibility as masters of their own affairs. Another change in the mental outlook is a stronger sense of coordination. The implementation of the economic responsibility system smashes the idea of eating from the "same big pot" and makes the lazybones work hard.

Second part: The Economic Responsibility System Promotes the Enterprise's Overall Consolidation of a Constructive Nature

After the implementation of the economic responsibility system, individuals have been held responsible through contracting, guarantees and breaking down responsibilities for the various management tasks in the enterprise including the following areas: planning, technology, finance, equipment, and labor. This has brought about tremendous changes in the enterprise. These changes can be summarized as follows:

1. The economic responsibility system has promoted the implementation of correct policy decisions in the enterprise. Prior to the implementation of the economic responsibility system, the enterprise shouldered no responsibility at all, worrying nothing about production quantity or quality. Since the implementation of the economic responsibility system, things are different. The enterprise must not only fulfill the state plans in an overall manner, but must also understand the social needs and improve methods of the acquisition, accumulation and expenditure of funds.

2. The economic responsibility system has promoted the development of the original responsibility system. The responsibility system is the foundation of enterprise management. The Shoudu Iron and Steel Company also enforced a system of personal responsibility in the past. However, it was far from perfect. There were only a few principal targets, including those for production output and production value. Economic results were not emphasized. The workers' responsibilities were not closely connected with economic benefits. Therefore, the system of personal responsibility was not and could not be implemented well. Lenin said: The basic reasonable principle is that a certain person is held completely responsible for the certain portion of the work he is assigned to do. The Shoudu Iron and Steel Company has now developed the system of personal responsibility into a system of personal economic responsibility. Everyone has a clear-cut economic responsibility.

3. The economic responsibility system has promoted the management of date, which is an important basic task in enterprise management. All the activities of an enterprise are based upon certain data. The process of all activities is also controlled by certain data. Finally, data are used to reflect results.

4. The economic responsibility system has brought about reforms in rules and regulations and in the management of specialized departments. The changes in enterprise management since the implementation of the economic responsibility system can be summarized into the shift of attention from the past emphasis on production alone to the current improvement in management. Necessary reforms have also been made in various rules and regulations and in the management of specialized departments.

5. The economic responsibility system has brought about the strict assessment of all workers. Leading comrades are treated the same as cadres and workers.

6. The economic responsibility system has promoted the implementation of the principle of distribution according to one's work. This principle is mainly reflected in giving awards.

7. The economic responsibility system has helped consolidate and strengthen labor discipline. Now only a handful of people in the Shoudu Iron and Steel Company are not working hard enough. All of us are working tensely. We have strengthened labor discipline.

8. The economic responsibility system has consolidated all leading bodies. The work of a unit or department is mainly decided by the work of the leading body. Our experience shows that as long as we do a good job in readjusting the leading body, changes will take place rapidly, even in backward units. In the course of consolidating leading bodies, we select and promote cadres and make readjustments to ensure that leadership at all levels becomes revolutionaized, younger, better educated and professionally more competent.

Third part: While Implementing the Economic Responsibility System, Efforts Must Be Made Persistently To Integrate Politics With Economy

To run enterprises well, it is necessary to persistently bring into full play the role of politics and that of economics and to develop socialist material and spiritual civilization. We must not emphasize economic means while ignoring ideological and political work. In the meantime, we must not emphasize ideological and political work while denying the role of economic means. We must avoid emphasizing one side at the expense of the other. We should pay attention to both of them simultaneously.

Fourth Part: How Do We Further Improve the Economic Responsibility System

The Shoudu Iron and Steel Company reaped a profit of 314.6 million yuan in 1981. Everyone felt that it was not easy to fulfill this goal. Can we or can we not make a greater profit this year? Can we increase this profit greatly, moderately or slightly? After studying this issue, the company's party committee has decided that we must increase the profit greatly this year. It has set the target of reaping an annual profit of slightly over 400 million yuan this year. This task is very arduous, but the enterprise's potential is also great. By relying on the correct policy and on science and technology, we will be able to tap the enterprise's potential.

From January through September this year, the company reaped 22.9 percent more profit than in the same period last year, while delivering 18.8 percent more profit to the state.

We have realized that to create a new situation continuously, it is essential to persistently implement the economic responsibility system and, at the same time, to formulate a good development plan.

Under the solicitude and guidance of the party Central Committee and the State Council, we, workers of the Shoudu Iron and Steel Company, have scored some achievements, in implementing the economic responsibility system. However, these achievements are far from meeting the standards set by the 12th CPC National Congress. We must extensively study and implement the guidelines set by the 12th CPC National Congress, work hard in a down-to-earth manner, continuously improve the economic responsibility system and make due contributions to creating a new situation for the development of socialist modernization.

WAN LI, OTHER LEADERS JOIN IN STREET CLEANUP

OW310844 Beijing XINHUA in English 0818 GMT 31 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 31 (XINHUA) -- Veteran party and government leaders this morning listened attentively at a street corner to the speeches made by little students on hygiene and praised them for their publicity work.

At 9:00, Vice-Premier Wan Li, member of the Secretariat of the CPC Central Committee, First Secretary of Beijing party committee Duan Junyi and other leaders [At this point XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese at 1220 GMT on 31 Oct adds the following names: Xi Zhongxun, Zhang Tingfa, Ni Zhifu, Qin Jiwei, Deng Liqun, and Chen Pixian] walked out of Zhongnanhai to join the million strong Beijing residents and armymen in today's action, a part of Beijing's "socialist ethic month" starting October 20.

The people's leaders pushed carts, carried brooms over their shoulders and together with the people on the streets swept dried leaves and dust onto the dustpans.

Today's activities were organized by the Beijing Municipal Government.

An active force in today's cleaning, PLA soldiers cleared away dirt in eight parks, six railway stations and places around five overpasses.

Li Shuiqing, commander-in-chief of the Second Artillery, cycled to the overpass at Fuxingmen early in the morning to join 500 of his men in the cleaning. The 65-year-old veteran armyman said that it's the obligation of the PLA to contribute its bit to the capital's sanitation. In the past, the Red Armymen always cleaned yards and carried water for the people wherever they went. "It's a good tradition of ours," he said.

According to officials of patriotic public health campaign committee, 15 percent of the capital's medical personnel turned up today and called from house to house, spreading knowledge on disease prevention, especially colds and intestinal diseases that come with the change of weather.

On the east side of Qianmen watchtower, a picture exhibition on the prevention of winter diseases attracted a lot of people. Li Bingheng, head of health care of Tiantan Hospital in south Beijing who was in charge of the exhibition, said that, nearly 200 doctors and nurses of his hospital were out today.

Flying the Young Pioneers' red banners, most of the pupils from the city's primary and middle schools went to 2,500 streets in urban area and suburbs of the city this morning. They had small flags in their hands bearing such slogans as "no spitting and littering on the streets."

On seeing a young pedestrian spit on the street at Xidan crossing, 10 year-old Zhang Xiaoman, went over and told him the habit was unhygienic. The offender blushed and pledged not to do it again.

Last Sunday, 450 thousand young people went from door to door to help childless old people, soldier's dependants and members of revolutionary martyr's families with cleaning and household chores.

According to the municipal government's decision, after last week's emphasis on voluntary services to the people, the coming week will center on public health and sanitation; while the week between November 7 to 13 will concentrate on maintaining traffic order.

[XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese at 1220 GMT on 31 Oct adds the following graf: This morning Comrades Yang Dezhi and Hu Qiali separately joined the masses in cleaning up Beihai Park and Zhongshan Park.]

MILLIONS OF YOUTH INVOLVED IN SERVING PEOPLE

OW302220 Beijing XINHUA in English 0701 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 29 (XINHUA) -- Some 560,000 youth service teams have been set up in the nationwide campaign to promote socialist ethics, according to Communist Youth League authorities.

Last Sunday was the first day of "serve the people week" and in Beijing 450,000 young people in 40,000 youth service teams spent Sunday helping the old and sick and doing work for public welfare. Some cleaned houses, some did washing and some did shopping.

Three hundred young people in the Beijing television factory have been making the rounds of thousands of families in Beijing's suburbs and nearby Hebei Province to install T.V. antennae and adjust T.V. sets. They took exams and received certificates before going out to serve the people.

Ten "serve the people" teams in the Changsha water company in Hunan have been using their spare time to go from house to house to do plumbing repairs. Many families who did not bother to call the water company to fix small leaks were very grateful for the service.

In Wuhan, Hubei Province, one hundred thousand young people turned up on "communist service day" earlier this month. A young crippled man, Huang Zhong, insisted on taking part in the service work. He repaired 18 radios and tape recorders during the day.

Young people in the countryside are also taking an active part in this campaign. Youth league members in several provinces organized themselves to do farming for families who are short of labor power.

In Bazhong County, Sichuan Province, tens of thousands of "friendship families" have been set up. Young people who know something about scientific farming help those families who have not been introduced to these new methods. Some of this is being done by correspondence when distances are long. Instructions on fertilizers, field management and other technology are passed on in letters.

YOUNG PIONEERS PROMOTE 'NEW HABITS' MOVEMENT

OW291123 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 0707 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Excerpts] Beijing, 21 Oct (XINHUA) -- Young Pioneers throughout the country have launched a movement among children to encourage them to foster new habits to win awards of little red flowers, which will be pinned on their chests to show that they have distinguished themselves in fostering new habits. This movement has effectively promoted the intellectual, moral and physical development of children, thus adding splendor to the building of socialist spiritual civilization.

In July 1980, the CYL Central Committee popularized Tianjin's experience in developing such a movement. Since then, tens of thousands of children throughout the country have been commended and named "red flower children" and "red flower collectives."

The movement to encourage children to win awards of little red flowers by fostering new habits has instilled in them the idea of regarding assistance to others as a pleasure. The masses of children have taken the initiative in disseminating the "five stresses" and "four beauties" in streets, lanes and at railway stations and docks, in cleaning the environment and in planting trees, flowers and grass, thus making contributions, through actual deeds, to improving standards of social conduct and doing away with poor sanitary conditions and disorderliness.

PARTY, STATE LEADERS MEET GYMNASTIC DELEGATION

OW301604 Beijing XINHUA in English 1500 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 30 (XINHUA) — The Chinese gymanstics delegation, which won 13 gold, silver and bronze medals at the sixth world gymanstics cup tournament was received by party and state leaders Wan Li, Xi Zhongxun, Yu Qiuli, Song Renqiong and Peng Chong in the Purple Light Pavilion of the Zhongnanhai here this afternoon.

Representatives of outstanding athletes in other events were also present.

The Chinese gymnasts captured seven gold, two silver and four bronze medals at the world cup tournament.

Speaking to the gymnasts, Wan Li said: "We want to see you because you have won honor for our country and also because very soon, you will be going to the ninth Asian games in India. We hope that you will go all out and do your best at the games. What is more you should always bear discipline in mind and pay attention to ethics and manners."

Xi Zhongxun said being such a big country, China should attain a high level of sports. Our athletes should be diligent in basic training, learn modestly from others, be good at summing up experiences and must not become dizzy with success, nor be discouraged by failure.

Also present were Du Xingyuan, secretary-general of the State Council; Li Menghua, minister, Xu Yinsheng, vice-minister, of the State Physical Culture and Sports Commission; and Zhong Shitong, president of the All-China Sports Federation.

Later, the commission and the federation gave a tea party in honor of the Chinese gymnastics delegation.

SATELLITE COMMUNICATION EXPERIMENT 'SUCCESSFUL'

OW301918 Beijing XINHUA in English 1630 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Shanghai, October 30 (XINHUA) -- China has reported "complete success" with its first domestic satellite communications and T.V. transmission experiments involving ten ground stations, five of which were domestically designed and equipped, XINHUA learned today.

The Ministry of Posts and Telecommunications recently called a meeting in Shanghai to discuss the experimental use of a satellite of the International Telecommunications Satellite Organization (Intelsat) over the Indian Ocean region.

The experiment, which began on June 5 and ended on October 5, was characterised by experts as a "complete success". It is viewed as a first step towards establishing a full-fledged national satellite communications network and setting up ground stations in such remote regions as Tibet.

As a result of the experiment, said Zhu Chun, advisory to the ministry, "China acquired valuable experience in operating satellite communications facilities."

In the course of the experiment, the Beijing and Shanghai ground stations transmitted live telecasts of news, sports, and other programs to Xinjiang and Inner Mongolia, two remote regions, for over a month. Reception was reportedly excellent.

In addition to T.V. signals, the feasibility of transmitting telephone, telegraph, facsimile and data was verified.

Ten ground stations participated in the experiment. Of these, five were domestically designed and built and use Chinese equipment. These had passed Intelsat tests before they were put to use.

GUANGDONG'S REN ZHONGYI ON SPIRITUAL BUILDING

HK010818 Guangzhou Guangdong Provincial Service in Mandarin 1000 GMT 31 Oct 82

[Text] According to a NANFANG RIBAO report, at a forum held by the Guangdong Provincial CPC Committee on the strengthening of communist education and the proper handling of socialist spiritual civilization, Comrade Ren Zhongyi said that in conducting communist ideological education, the organization of cadres and people to study dialectical materialism and historical materialism is a fundamental problem.

This forum was held on the afternoon of 28 October and the morning of 29 October. Responsible persons of the provincial propaganda, cultural, educational, physical culture and other departments and of the trade union federation, the youth league, the women's federation and other mass organizations attended the forum. In light of reality, everyone talked freely about a number of vivid and concrete cases in regard to upholding the spirit of the 12th CPC National Congress and strengthening the building of socialist spiritual civilization.

At the beginning of the forum, Comrade Ren Zhongyi said that in his report at the 12th CPC National Congress, Comrade Hu Yaobang raised the problem of building socialist spiritual civilization under the guidance of communist thinking. Comrade Hu Qiaomu wrote an important article on this problem. In line with the spirit of the 12th CPC National Congress, we must properly handle the building of spiritual civilization centering on communist thinking. At the forum, when everyone talked about the relationship between the fostering of communist thinking and the study of Marxist theory, Comrade Ren Zhongyi said that in conducting ideological education, the organization of cadres and people to study dialectical materialist and historical materialist theory is a fundamental task. Socialist spiritual civilization takes communist thinking as its core while communist theory is born out of the philosophical system of dialectical materialism and historical materialism. Lenin said that without a grasp of the philosophy of dialectical materialism, there is no way of waging a persistent struggle against bourgeois thinking. Only by seriously studying and grasping dialectical materialism and historical materialism can we firmly cultivate a philosophical communist outlook. Only in ths way can we correctly understand and carry out the party's line and general and specific policies and avoid deviation and wavering. When everyone talked about the need to carry out various kinds of ideological education in building spiritual civilization, Comrade Ren Zhongyi said that experience shows that the five stresses and four beauties campaign, the campaign to learn from Lei Feng and create a new style, and education on socialism, collectivism and patriotism conducted all along in our province have brought about good results. Such activities must be continuously carried out. Communist thinking as the core must permeate through all the above activities.

Referring to what else could be desired in our current efforts to publicize communist thinking, Comrade Ren Zhongyi said that communism involves many things. In building spiritual civilization at present, we must chiefly, through education, enable the cadres and people to foster a communist sense of morality and a communist style. We must still seriously carry out the now existing policies of the socialist system, including from each according to his ability, to each according to his work, the more work the more pay, the less work the less pay, and so forth.

I believe that it is good if we can achieve three goals through communist education: 1) conscious concern for protecting public interests and public property; 2) refraining from haggling over every cent where personal interests are concerned; and 3) actively participating in voluntary labor and various activities as part of one's obligations to the state and the people. Lenin called Saturday voluntary labor communist voluntary labor. He considered this a regular activity in triumphing over altruism and lingering capitalist habits. The essence of the above three points is to put state and collective interests above personal interests.

Referring also to the need to carry out rich and colorful mass cultural and recreational activities in building spiritual civilization, Comrade Ren Zhongyi said that this is an important problem in building spiritual civilization. We must organize the masses to carry out spare time singing, theatrical and physical culture activities, and other activities. If the masses sing and dance happily with the blessing of peace and order, it is an indication of a very favorable situation. It is a paean to the party's line. Cultural and recreational programs must be of a recreational nature with education combined with recreation.

Comrade Ren Zhongyi also stressed that raising the people's standard of living should not be interpreted as having only to do with material life. Spiritual life must also be taken into consideration. Cities and towns must pay attention not only to increasing commercial networks, but also to adding cultural networks. Cities and their districts and neighborhoods must properly set up cultural bureaus, cultural stations, cultural rooms, reading rooms and so forth to meet the needs of the people's cultural life.

Comrade Ren Zhongyi suggested selecting several schools to experiment with the launching of these activities so that every student could at least pick up a spare time cultural or athletic activity. To get these activities started is of great significance.

In conclusion, Comrade Ren Zhongyi said that the building of spiritual civilization must be linked with all tasks put forth at the 12th CPC National Congress in order to insure the realization of the great goal put forth at the congress.

GUANGDONG'S REN ZHONGYI VISITS NEW HOTEL

HK170325 Guangzhou Guangdong Provincial Service in Mandarin 2350 GMT 16 Oct

[Summary] Guangdong and Guangzhou responsible Comrades Ren Zhongyi, Liu Tianfu and Liang Lingguang visited the new Bai Tiane Hotel on the bank of the Pearl River at Guangzhou on 16 October. The hotel was jointly built by the provincial tourism bureau and the well-known Hong Kong figures Y.T. Fok and K.C. Pang. The fifth to ninth stories of the hotel were opened on 15 October for guests visiting the Guangzhou trade fair. Li Jianzhen and Yin Linping also inspected the hotel. Y.T. Fok hosted a dinner for them.

REN ZHONGYI WATCHES GUANGZHOU SONG, DANCE SHOW

HK210311 Guangzhou Guangdong Provincial Service in Mandarin 2350 GMT 20 Oct 82

[Summary] The Guangdong provincial nationalities song and dance troupe gave its final public performance in Guangzhou on 20 October. Responsible comrades of the province and municipality Ren Zhongyi, Liu Tianfu, Liang Lingguang and Li Jianzhen watched the show and met the troupe's leaders and members afterwards.

GUANGDONG PEOPLE'S CONGRESS SESSION OPENS

HK270124 Guangzhou Guangdong Provincial Service in Mandarin 2350 GMT 26 Oct 82

[Text] The 20th meeting of the Fifth Guangdong Provincial People's Congress Standing Committee opened in Guangzhou on 26 October. The meeting decided that the fifth session of the fifth provincial people's congress will be convened in Guangzhou in mid-December. The session will listen to and discuss the work report of the provincial people's government, and so on.

The meeting listened to a report by the provincial price control bureau deputy director, (Chen Ming), on current market prices and problems and his views on improving work. The meeting also approved relevant appointments and dismissals. Comrade (Ning Xianglin) was appointed secretary general of the provincial people's government.

Session Concludes

HK280421 Guangzhou Guangdong Provincial Service in Mandarin 2350 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] The 20th meeting of the Guangdong Provincial People's Congress Standing Committee concluded on 27 October. After hearing a report from the provincial price control bureau on current market prices in the province, the meeting held: market prices have been controlled to a certain degree this year, and the tendency of prices to rise has gradually eased. Generally speaking, the development is now good. The committee members held: At present the province is launching a major check on prices. The people's congress standing committees at all levels must vigorously support this work, mobilize the masses and organize the people's deputies to take active part in it.

QIAO XIAOGUANG ATTENDS GUANGXI PLA CONGRESS

HK211134 Nanning Guangxi Regional Service in Mandarin 1130 GMT 19 Oct 82

[Summary] A congress of advanced units and advanced individuals of Guangxi region, the regional military district, PLA units and militia in the region in building socialist spiritual civilization opened in Nanning this morning. The congress is being attended by 1,058 delegates. Responsible persons of the region and the regional military district, including Qiao Xiaoguang, Liu Chonggui, Zhao Maoxun, Zhang Xudeng, Liang Huaxin, Guo Zhifu, Shi Qingsheng and Luo Ming attended the opening ceremony. Huang Ronghai, a responsible person of the Guangzhou PLA units, also attended the opening ceremony.

Guo Zhifu, political commissar of the regional military district, delivered an opening speech. On behalf of the CPC committee of the Guangzhou PLA units, Huang Ronghai delivered a speech.

In his opening speech, Guo Zhifu said: "The main tasks of this congress are to mobilize the PLA units of the regional military district and militiamen throughout the region to study in depth the 12th congress documents and implement the 12th congress spirit. With communist ideology as the core, we must strive to build a high degree of socialist spiritual civilization, sum up and exchange experiences, commend the progressives and publicize typical examples. We must work hard to train a new generation which has ideals, morality and culture and which observes discipline."

In his speech, Huang Ronghai highly praised the remarkable achievements of PLA units of the Guangxi Military District and militia in defending the border areas and building socialist spiritual civilization. He also wished the congress success.

GUANGXI'S QIAO XIAOGUANG AT WEI BAQUN RALLY

HK211130 Nanning Guangxi Regional Service in Mandarin 1130 GMT 19 Oct 82

[Summary] Today is the 50th anniversary of the death of Wei Baqun, an outstanding communist fighter of Chuang nationality. This morning, the Guangxi regional CPC committee held a rally in the hall of the regional people's government to mark the occasion. Leading comrades of the party, the government and the army in the region and PLA units studied in Nanning, including Qiao Xiaoguang, Liu Chonggui, Zhao Maoxun, Liao Shengdong, Liang Huaxin, Huang Yun, (Liu Yisheng), Guo Zhifu, Li Yindan, Shi Zhaotang, Chen An, Lu Rongshu, Gan Huaiyi, Qin Zhenwu, Ren Gengqing, Mo Naiqun, Shi Qingsheng and [Wang Baoshan), attended the rally. Also attending were responsible comrades of the regional CPPCC committee, including Huang Songjian, Huang Qihan, Ye Pei, Yan Guangcai, Li Tongwen, Huang Dufeng, Lu Yannan and Qin Si; and responsible comrades of all departments, committees, offices and bureaus of the organs at the regional level and the Nanning Prefectural and Municipal CPC Committee. Some 1,300 retired cadres, cadres, workers, peasants, armymen, teachers and students also attended.

Xiao Han, secretary of the regional CPC committee, presided over the rally. Huang Rong, standing committee member of the regional CPC committee and chairman of the regional people's congress standing committee, made a report at the rally, discussing Wei Baqun's life. He said he had made important contributions toward the building of the Youjiang revolutionary base but was killed by a traitor on 19 October 1932 while directing armymen and people in the Youjiang revolutionary base to smash the enemy's frantic attacks.

Huang Rong said: "Comrade Wei Baqun was a model Communist Party member. His brilliant deeds of struggling hard all his life for communism were, are now and will in the future be a great spiritual strength which encourages us to forge ahead. While commemorating Comrade Wei Baqun, we must, like him, pursue revolutionary truth, seriously study the 12th party congress documents and master their basic spirit." He went on: "While commemorating Comrade Wei Baqun, we must, like him, always maintain high revolutionary enthusiasm, work hard for our party and resolutely accomplish all combat tasks put forward by the 12th party congress. We must closely link achieving the great goal with doing current work well and vigorously creating a new situation in socialist modernization in Guangxi."

HUBEI SEVENTH PROVINCIAL CYL CONGRESS CONCLUDES

HK270715 Wuhan Hubei Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 26 Oct 82

[Summary] "The Seventh Hubei Provincial CYL Congress, which lasted for 16 days, concluded this afternoon. Leading comrades of the Hubei Provincial CPC Committee, provincial people's congress standing committee, provincial government and the provincial CPPCC Li Wei, (Wang Shucheng), (Wang Ruisheng), (Li Haizhong), Liu Jin, Tao Shuzeng, and (Wang Libing) attended the closing ceremony. Zhang Qingtai, alternate member of the CPC Central Committee, who was in Wuhan, and Xue Tan, member of the Central Commission for Discipline Inspection, were also invited to attend the ceremony." The closing ceremony was presided over by Comrade (Wang Jingzhang) and (Ni Zebing) gave a closing speech. He said: The meeting has fulfilled the various tasks fixed before the congress. It is necessary to view this congress as a starting point to further promote and develop CYL and youth work in the province. CYL cadres in the province must strive to create a new situation in CYL work.

"As soon as this congress opened, the representatives seriously studied and discussed the important speech given by Han Ningfu, second secretary of the provincial CPC committee, on behalf of the provincial committee. The representatives felt the concern and hopes of the CPC committee for the new generation. They unanimously held that they will not let the party down and will lead youths to become a generation of new people who have ideals, morality and culture and who abide by discipline."

During the congress, the representatives listened to, discussed and unanimously adopted the report given by Comrade (Qian Yinlu) on behalf of the sixth provincial CYL committee, which was entitled "All Youths in the Province Unite and Become Pioneers in Creating a New Situation in All Fields of Socialist Modernization." Members of the seventh provincial CYL committee were also elected by secret ballot. After the closing ceremony, Comrade Li Wei greeted the newly elected members of the CYL committee.

HUNAN'S MAO ZHIYONG ON AIDING 'RICH' PEASANTS

HK291504 Changsha Hunan Provincial Service in Mandarin 2310 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] According to a HUNAN RIBAO report, Mao Zhiyong, first secretary of the provincial CPC committee, held a heart-to-heart talk on 16 October with county CPC committee Secretary (Liu Qiusheng) in Chaling County on how to make those peasants who have become rich through hard work more cheerful and free of worries. After Comrade Mao Zhiyong came to Chaling, he learned that (Li Maoji) of the Daqing brigade of the Dizhou Commune was good at promoting household sideline production.

Several years ago, he was involved with a case of "removing the remnants of capitalism," because he sold piglets and subsidiary products. Later, he did not dare do anything of this kind again. Last year he cultivated 1,700 tobacco plants. He built furtively a tobacco-curing oven in his home. It was called a furtive oven by others. Last year, deputy county head (Zhang Hanqing) called at his home and discovered his secret. (Li Maoji) was ill at ease. Suddenly he heard the deputy county head say: This oven enables us to save on work and material. It is very handy for a household. So saying, he suggested that the furtive oven be called (Maoji) oven and that it be widely introduced throughout the county. This encouraged (Li Maoji). This year his family of six handled more than six mu of land on a contract basis. They reaped a harvest of 11,000 jin of grain. This coupled with their efforts in raising pigs, breeding fish and, cultivating tobacco and beans brought them an income of more than 5,000 yuan.

After learning from (Liu Qiusheng) of the above case, Comrade Mao Zhiyong said with great gusto that changing the name of the oven helped relieve the peasants of their worries. I think that this matter was handled well. Then old (Liu) recounted what had happened to the county which had given support to specialized households and priority households. Comrade Mao Zhiyong was all ears. He said after old (Liu) finished: You have done a good thing where the matter of (Li Maoji) is concerned. But the matter is actually half-finished. You have given him encouragement in his progress by giving his oven another name. But you have yet to ease his mind. I think we should find an opportunity to tell him that a mistake was made where the case of removing the remnants was concerned.

Old (Liu) could not help getting excited. He rose from his seat and said a bit hastily: Well, our county CPC committee will surely not give up until this matter is properly taken care of.

In a consultative voice, Comrade Mao Zhiyong said that this matter called for the county CPC committee to join the commune party committees and brigade party branches in doing work. The matter must be handled through basic-level cadres. But we must not pass the buck to basic-level cadres. We must shoulder the burden. The responsibility for promoting something ultraleftist several years ago fell upon the provincial CPC committee. Basic-level cadres were influenced by us. Now, if this matter is properly taken care of, everyone can feel happy about it. There is no need to worry about creating a new situation in upholding the party Central Committee's line and general and specific policies.

This talk yielded quick results. On the morning of 13 October, Comrade (Liu Qiusheng) made this matter known to more than 400 cadres at an enlarged meeting of the county CPC committee. Everyone pledged to join in properly handling the work concerning specialized households and newly rich households -- households getting rich by working hard. Everyone would help relieve their mental worries and support and encourage them. (Liu Qiusheng) also said that as soon as the meeting ended he would go down to the countryside and engage (Li Maoji) in a heart-to-heart talk. He would see to it that this matter was properly taken care of.

BRIEFS

GUANGDONG AQUATIC PRODUCTS INDUSTRY -- There have been new developments in Guangdong Province's aquatic products industry: On the basis of increasing freshwater fish output by an average of 8.8 percent a year for 3 years in succession, the province's freshwater fish output during the January-September period this year reached 2,454,000 dan, an increase of nearly 15 percent compared with the same period last year. Over the past 3 years, Guangdong Province's total area of fish ponds increased by 180,000 mu. There are now a total of 250,000 commune households engaged in fish breeding. [Guangzhou Guangdong Provincial Service in Mandarin 1000 GMT 27 Oct 82 HK]

GUANGDONG COUNTY FOREIGN TRADE -- According to statistics completed by the end of September, this year's total value of foreign trade purchasing volume in Nanhai County, a national advanced county in promoting foreign trade, has exceeded 192 million yuan, an increase of 14.7 percent compared with the same period last year, thus overfulfilling its state plan by 11.5 percent. During the January-September period this year, the county purchased and exported more than 380,000 live chickens and ducks, an increase of 33.7 percent compared with the same period last year. [Guangzhou Guangdong Provincial Service in Mandarin 1000 GMT 27 Oct 82 HK]

NEI MONGGOL 'REBEL' EXPELLED FROM PARTY

OW280057 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 0742 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Text] Hohhot, 25 Oct (XINHUA) -- The Nei Monggol Autonomous Regional CPC Committee recently approved a decision by the CPC committee of the Nei Monggol normal college on expelling Qin Weixian from the party. Qin Weixian, who was a rebel during the "Cultural Revolution," has committed serious mistakes, resisted investigation and caused trouble. The public security department has sent Qin to undergo 3 years' reeducation through labor.

Qin Weixian was formerly on the staff of the security section of the Nei Monggol normal college. He rose to power by rebelling during the "Cultural Revolution" and became vice chairman of the college revolutionary committee. During the 10 years of turmoil, he took the lead in carrying out sabotage and wantonly persecuting cadres and the people. He persecuted over 290 people in the normal college alone. Accordingly, after the smashing of the "gang of four," the Nei Monggol Autonomous Regional CPC Committee decided to remove him from the post of vice chairman of the college revolutionary committee and subject him to investigation.

In the course of investigation, the college party committee patiently educated Qin Weixan by criticism. However, he refused to admit his errors and obdurately declined assignment to work in the construction team of the college. He was extremely insolent when the college party committee asked him to confess his mistakes.

On 8 January 1982 Qin Weixian called on the secretary of the college party committee at the propaganda department of the college. There he willfully made trouble by insulting and slandering the party secretary. His insolent acts roused the indignation of the masses, who demanded that he be seriously handled.

The college party committee still sought to redeem Qin Weixian by further education. However, he showed no sign of repentance. To safeguard the party's principle and to enforce party discipline, the Nei Monggol Autonomous Regional CPC Committee approved the decision of the Nei Monggol normal college CPC committee.

NEI MONGGOL'S ZHOU HUI ATTENDS ANNIVERSARY RALLY

SK250342 Hohhot Nei Monggol Regional Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 24 Oct 82

[Excerpt] According to our reporter (Wu Xinmin) and correspondent (Li Jiesheng), on 23 October over 1,000 literary and art workers of all nationalities in our region attended a grand rally held at the government auditorium to mark the 25th founding anniversary of the (Wu-Lan-Mu-Qi) of Nei Monggol Autonomous Region.

Leading comrades of the regional CPC committee, the regional people's congress standing committee, the regional people's government and the regional CPPCC committee, including Zhou Hui, Ting Mao, Wang Duo, Kong Fei, Bu He, Shen Xinfa, Qi Junshan, Se-Yin-Ba-Ya-Er, Zhou Beifeng and Kui Bi, attended the rally. Ding Qiao, vice minister of the Cultural Ministry under the State Council; (Li Lin), secretary of the Secretariat of the All-China Federation of Literary and Art Circles; (Yun Haishan), responsible person of the Cultural Department of the State Nationalities Affairs Commission; made a special trip from Beijing to attend the rally.

Since its founding in Sonid Left Banner in 1957, the (Wu-Lan-Mu-Qi) of Nei Monggol Autonomous Region has now developed into an army of 80 theatrical teams comprising over 2,000 persons active in rural areas all over the region. In the past 25 years, particularly in the years after the third plenary session, it has made persistent efforts to take root in the countryside, worked wholeheartedly for the people and has zealously brought song and dance to the peasants. It has been loved and well received by peasants and herdsmen of all nationalities.

BEIJING LAUDS TAIWAN LAWMAKER'S CALL FOR TALKS

OW011131 Beijing in Mandarin to Taiwan 0400 GMT 31 Oct 82

[Station commentary: "Speaking of Fei Hsi-ping's Interpellation"]

[Text] Taiwan Legislator Fei Hsi-ping, during a recent interpellation session of the Legislative Yuan, proposed three principles for peace talks and six plans for reunification. His idea was to urge the Taiwan authorities to accept peace negotiations [he tan]. Sun Yun-hsuan immediately criticized Fei Hsi-ping for running counter to the so-called basic national policy. Fei Hsi-ping rebutted and disagreed with Sun Yun-hsuan's criticism.

This is the very first time the Taiwan Legislative Yuan has openly debated whether or not Taiwan should enter into peace negotiations with the CPC. And this dispute shows that there are people in Taiwan's upper strata who support an attempt at peace negotiations.

Peaceful reunification of the motherland is the common desire of all people throughout the country. The best approach to the realization of peaceful reunification is for both sides to sit down together for peace negotiations. Facts prove that many international disputes can be solved through negotiations. Why should our domestic problems not be solved in the same way?

The motherland government's proposal for accomplishing the great cause of the motherland's peaceful reunification through negotiations on an equal footing between the KMT and the CPC correctly expresses the people's desire. However, the KMT authorities are afraid of negotiations. Why? In their own words, first, they are afraid of supposedly falling into a trap; second, of supposedly getting the worst end of it and, third, of being turned into a local government. Recently a fourth fear has emerged: having once sat down at the negotiating table, they will not be able to pull out.

Since the motherland government has proposed negotiations on an equal footing, it will never forcibly impose anything on the other side. Negotiations simply improve understanding. If one round of negotiations [tan pan] fails, consultations [xie shang] can be continued. The Taiwan authorities should seriously consider the consequences of their persistent refusal.

Everybody knows that the desire for trade, postal and transport services and exchange of visits between the two sides has been expressed loudly both in and outside of Taiwan. Everybody is also clearly aware of the fact that those who prohibit such services and exchanges of visits are exactly those who have called for and insisted on no contact, no compromise and no negotiations. These people will become still more isolated if they fail to realize the changing situation. Did not Tao Po-chuan, Taiwan's so-called national policy advisor, call on the people on both sides of the Taiwan Strait to speak out together for genuine reunification? Is not Taiwan's Legislative Yuan debating the question of whether or not negotiations should be held?

This shows that in Taiwan people at all levels, including both common people and officials, are all discussing how to urge the Taiwan authorities to accept the proposed negotiations as the first step toward reunifying the motherland.

Those who insist on no negotiations will not only be strongly opposed by the people in general but will face rebellion and desertion by their close followers. If that happens, these people will sink into an abyss from which they will not be able to extricate themselves.

RENMIN RIBAO REPORTS TAIWAN GROUP'S 'MISDEEDS'

HK261312 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 22 Oct 82 p 2

[Article by Min Ge [2404 2706]: "A Visit or a Farce? -- On the Tour of the Taiwan 'Observation Group' to Europe and the United States"]

[Text] Some time ago, a few "members of the Legislative Yuan" of Taiwan formed a group to make an "observation" tour to Europe and the United States in order to carry out so-called "national diplomatic activities."

Before its departure, the "observation group" was received by the highest authorities in Taiwan. The Taiwan press also noisily advocated that "visiting and extending regards to compatriots residing abroad" is a matter of "great significance" and so forth. Thus the "observation group" became "hot news." However, in a routine conference of the Legislative Yuan after its return to Taiwan, its members tried to touch on each other's sore spots.

Some of them said: When paying a visit to the parliament of a certain country, we were not allowed to go in by the main entrance but had to go in at the back door. We were searched and even our briefcases were inspected. We stood in the hall and waited for 40 minutes. Actually, "we brought blame on ourselves." Others said: During a visit to the parliament of a certain country, some group members took snapshots everywhere, regardless of diplomatic etiquette and much to the displeasure of the director of the protocol department of that country.

Some said: Taiwan "Ambassador" to the Vatican Chou Shu-kai hosted a banquet for the "observation group." He also invited some members of parliament of a certain country to the banquet. The group waited for these members of parliament from 1800 until 2130, enduring hunger and fatigue. Others said: During their tour abroad, some members drank at every meal and often got drunk. When they were drunk, they banged their fists on the tables, pouring out a stream of abuse. Afterward, they would seek sensual enjoyment. This harmed the image of the "Legislative Yuan."

Some said: During our tour, we flew third class and stayed in hotels of the lowest grade, which were poorly furnished and dirty. When we ate in a restaurant, more than 40 of our group members crowded together in a corner, helping themselves like paupers "begging for food." Others said: Some people recklessly bought bargain or duty-free goods. One of them bought a wristwatch for new Taiwan $300,000 in Switzerland but was so miserly that he sent a Chinese student studying there on a 3-hour trip just to get a drawback certificate," thereby fully assuming the "dignified" airs of a "member of the Legislative Yuan."

Some said: Some people had "connections" with a travel agency, allowing it to get a large kickback from the expenses and also benefiting themselves. Some members of the entourage who were with some Legislative Yuan members and who joined the "observation group" free of charge were the "black sheep" of the group. Others said: Some people made the "observation" tour at public expense, but sightseeing and shopping were their only jobs. What a shame.

In this way, they exposed each other's misdeeds and everything which was foul in the "observation group." Even the Taiwan press remarked: This is like digging in a manure pit. "The more manure you uncover, the more nauseating the stench becomes." It said in an aggrieved tone: Taiwan has landed in "straitened circumstances" in diplomatic affairs. "Now, it is also burdened with internal scandals. The consequences will be unimaginable."

PRC DEFECTOR ARRIVES IN TAIWAN FROM SEOUL

OW311445 Taipei CNA in English 1438 GMT 31 Oct 82

[Text] Taipei, Oct. 31 (CNA) -- Former Chinese Communist air force pilot Wu Jung-ken, who flew his MIG-19 jet fighter to a South Korean air base on Oct. 16, arrived in Taipei at 1250 p.m. Sunday, announced Major-General Wang Miao, military spokesman for the Ministry of National Defense of the Republic of China.

In a statement Sunday, Wang said the Korean Government decided to send the freedom-seeker to the Republic of China after a cautious inquiry about the wishes of Wu himself. The decision was made in accordance with the humanitarian spirit, Wang added.

Wang pointed out that Wu, 25, is a native of Chinhua County, Chekiang Province.

Wu told the people receiving him at the airport that he had long planned to seek freedom chiefly because he hates the communist tyranny and the widespread corruption of the Red cadres which brought about the persecution and the poor living conditions of the people on the China mainland.

In the statement, Wang also expressed the heartfelt thanks of the Republic of China toward the Korean Government for respecting human rights and for the security measures taken and good care accorded to the Chinese freedom-seeker during his stay in Seoul.

Holds Press Conference

OW011003 Taipei CNA in English 0938 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] Taipei, Nov. 1 (CNA) -- Wu Jung-Ken, a former Chinese Communist air force pilot, Sunday described the communist system as the worst one in the world, under which, he said there is no law, no human rights and only suppression.

Wu, 25, told a press conference at the hall of the Executive Yuan shortly after his arrival here from South Korea Sunday night that Chinese compatriots on the Chinese mainland in general hate communism and are longing for free and democratic way of life.

"If they have chance, they will all flee to the Republic of China which is under the rule of the three principles of the people," he said.

Wu said he was very excited to see the Republic of China when he arrived at the Chiang Kai-shek International Airport shortly after mid-day. He said he was happy he arrived on the late president's birthday, Sunday.

In an emotional moment at the news conference, Wu was joined by Fan Yuan-yen, another Chinese Communist pilot who defected to the Republic of China on July 7, 1977. Tears flashed in Wu's eyes when Fan embraced him.

Fan pointed out that Wu has grown up under the "red flag," but he still disapproved of communism and liked democracy. That means the Peiping regime is facing the danger of collapse.

James Soong, director general of the Government Information Office, said at the closing of the press conference that Wu's return to the free motherland has demonstrated to the world:

-- The communist ideology and system are widely rejected by people on the mainland. If any chance should offer itself, these people will certainly rise up en mass against the abhored system.

-- The achievements of the Republic of China Government in carrying out the three principles of the people have deeply impressed mainland people, convincing them that only the three principles can save China and that the only hope of all Chinese people lies in Taiwan.

The hard fact of one defection after another tells overseas Chinese that the status quo on the Chinese mainland just cannot be tolerated by any Chinese who really cares about the future of China. Whatever disguise the Chinese Communists may assume, the overseas Chinese will not be blinded.

-- The world should now be aware that the Peiping regime is not one that has the people's support, nor is it stable. The Chinese people surely will make their wise choice when the time comes. We hope that no one will take the "Chiense Communists" for "China." To China what belongs to China, and to Chicoms what belongs to Chicoms. Only with this knowledge in mind, can any government make the right China policy that will shun making a historical mistake.

AFP Report

OW311451 Hong Kong AFP in English 1435 GMT 31 Oct 82

[Text] Taipei, Oct. 31 (AFP) -- Chinese Communist air force pilot Wu Jung-ken said after arriving here today from South Korea that he defected to Taiwan because he disapproved of communism.

Meeting the press six hours after he came here from Seoul, the 25-year-old pilot said Chinese Communism was the worst system in the world, under which there is neither law nor human rights and only repression.

He said that once he found out there was no future in communist-run China, he decided to flee to Taiwan and had planned his defection a year ago.

Mr Wu, who flew a Chinese air force MIG-19 reconnaissance jet to South Korea on October 16, told newsmen here he did not come to Taiwan for any cash award.

According to a standing government offer, he is entitled to 4,000 taels (ounces) of gold, worth over two million U.S. dollars, for defecting, but Mr Wu said he was not aware of such a bonus.

Reports from Seoul indicated the South Korean Government had decided to retain Mr Wu's aircraft for return to China. A military spokesman here said Mr Wu would be "properly rewarded," even without the MIG-19 aircraft.

Mr Wu said his father, whose name was withheld, was a secretary of the Communist Party branch at a railway maintenance yard in Jinhua, Zhejiang Province of southern China and that he himself had been a party member but had renounced membership in South Korea.

He said he hoped communist authorities would not implicate his family in his defection, which, he said, he had decided alone. Mr Wu has one sister and two brothers, aside from his parents.

Another former Chinese Communist air force pilot, who defected to Taiwan in 1977, Fan Yuan-yen, joined Mr Wu at his press conference to say Mr Wu had been "born and raised up under the red flag."

Mr Wu's defection, said Mr Fan, now a full colonel in the Nationalist Chinese air force, "indicated that communism is not popular and is not needed in China."

Mr Wu flew here from Seoul accompanied by two ranking officers of the Nationalist Defense Ministry. Their plane went via Japan apparently to avoid possible Chinese Communist interception. After his arrival at the Taoyuan International Air Terminal, he went to a nearby air force base where he was warmly welcomed by the officers and men, a military spokesman said.

Mr Wu said he would ask to enlist in the Nationalist Chinese air force, "because that's the only trade I have so far learned." He is the seventh Chinese Communist pilot to defect to Taiwan since 1950. Two others were killed while attempting to defect.

To Receive Cash Award

OW291437 Taipei CNA in English 1412 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Taipei, Oct 29 (CNA) -- The government will give cash awards to freedom-seeker pilot Wu Jung-ken based on the related regulations, who recently flew a MIG-19 jetfighter from mainland China to South Korea, Gen Wang Miao, spokesman for the Ministry of National Defense, said Friday.

General Wang said that Wu's flight to freedom is due to his hatred of the corruption and oppression of the Peiping regime. "He didn't know that the government will give him cash awards. And the sum of awards has not been decided yet," General Wang noted.

The government will also help Wu settle into a job according to his own wishes, General Wang said.

PRC OPERA SINGER DEFECTS TO TAIWAN VIA TOKYO

OW291419 Taipei CNA in English 1402 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Taipei, Oct 29 (CNA) -- A leading Peking Opera actress in Red China defected to Taipei from Tokyo Friday, bringing her 14-year-old son and 11-year-old daughter.

Chang Chih-yun, whose real name is Chu Lien-hua, and her children are now staying with a sister in Taipei.

The 49-year-old actress, who drew a monthly salary of 175 yuan (about U.S. dollars 103), which is princely by mainland standards, began her stage career in her childhood.

Later on she took lessons from Yen Hui-chu, a famed Peking Opera actress who learned her trade from the legendary Mei Lan-fang.

Both teacher and pppil were very popular figures in the entertainment world when the Cultural Revolution began.

Unable to stand the cruelty of the Red Guards, Yen committed suicide. Chang Chih-yun, who had just delivered a baby, was also subjected to the same Red Guard cruelty. She was forced to live in a public toilet and once attempted to commit suicide.

Last April, Peiping sent Chang Chih-yun and two of her children to Tokyo. Her mission was to persuade her brother-in-law, Wang Ching-jen, to return to the mainland.

Wang, a Chinese community leader in Yokohama, is known for his anti-communist stand.

Once in Japan, however, the actress decided to come to Taiwan with her children. With Wang's help, the three of them flew to Taipei aboard a Malaysian Airline System passenger plane at noon-time Friday.

Chang Chih-yun is the third Peking Opera actress to defect from mainland China. The two earlier arrivals were Li Hsiang-feng and Chang Yu-fan, who came here in 1958.

Meets Press 30 Oct

OW211417 Taipei CNA in English 1356 GMT 31 Oct 82

[Text] Taipei, Oct 30 (CNA) -- Freedom-seeker Peking Opera actress Chang Chih-yun told her son Sun Li-fang, "I want you to stand at the frontline [words indistinct] counter-attack against the communists on the mainland."

The fourteen-year-old Li-fang and his eleven-year-old sister Wu-feng Saturday accompanied their mother, who defected to the Republic of China Friday from Japan, to call at the Free China Relief Association and also to meet the press.

Chang said she brought the two children with her in getting rid of the communist-rule on the mainland mainly because she hoped they would be able to lead a better life in a free land. She left her husband and two other children on the mainland, and now she prays that the Peiping regime would not persecute them because of her defection. "All I can do now is to bring up the two with me in a proper manner," she said with tears in her eyes, "and pray for the rest of my family."

Chang, whose real name is Chu Lien-hua, was a disciple of the famed Peking Opera actress Yen Ehui-chu, who learned her trade directly from the legendary Meilan-Fang. During Saturday's press conference, she sang a small piece of opera lyrics. The performance drew high praise from the famous local opera star, Li Tung-chun.

SPOKESMAN CALLS USSR-PRC TALKS 'DIPLOMATIC PLOY'

OW291435 Taipei CNA in English 1406 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Taipei, Oct 29 (CNA) -- The Peiping regime is trying to use its talks with the Soviet Union as a diplomatic ploy against the United States, Liu Ta-jen, spokesman for the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, said Friday. Speaking at a news conference held at the Government Information Office, Liu said that both Red China and the Soviet Union are exploiting the talks in an attempt to blackmail the United States and gain interests for themselves. He called on the Free World to discern the tricks of negotiation between Peiping and Moscow, adding that the two communist regimes are also trying to use the talks to raise their own status in the Third World.

Liu then revealed that the Boston office of the Coordination Council for North American Affairs was set up a few days ago to serve the needs of overseas Chinese and American people on various affairs in the northeast area of the United States.

COUNCIL'S WORK ON HANDLING U.S. TIES REPORTED

OW281425 Taipei CNA in English 1402 GMT 28 Oct 28

[Text] Taipei, Oct 28 (CNA) -- The Coordination Council for North American Affairs [CCNAA] has managed matters between the Republic of China and the United States in accordance with the instructions of President Chiang Ching-kuo, CCNAA Chairman Raymond S.H. Hoo said Thursday.

The council will continue handling its business in that direction, Hoo said as he was reporting to a closed session of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Legislative Yuan. The council's tasks are to carry out, manage and promote all matters between the two countries. They cover the areas of politics, economy, trade, investments, culture and education. It has done its best to gradually normalize the two countries' relations, he said.

Since its establishment, the council has held several meetings and completed some agreements. They include conferences on economics and trade, and science and technology cooperation, a 5-year grain agreement and an air transport agreement. Hoo also answered interpellations from six legislators during the meeting.

DEFENSE MINISTER DISCUSSES DEFENSE PLANS

OW280557 Taipei International Service in English 0100 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Minister of National Defense Sung Chang-chih said Wednesday at the National Defense Committee of the Legislative Yuan that the current goals of his ministry are to set up an independent national defense system, cultivate specialists in science and technology, and to accelerate the development of sophisticated weapons so that the Republic of China will have enough power to enforce and maintain the security of Taiwan, Kinmen, Matsu and the Pescadores. Minister Sung said the ROC has diversified the sources of supply of weapons while developing independently its own weapons to continuously upgrade the fighting prowess of the ROC's men in uniform.

TAIWAN-JAPAN TRADE TALKS BEGIN IN TAIPEI

OW281051 Taipei CNA in English 0954 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Taipei, Oct 28 (CNA) -- The current 2-day Sino-Japanese economic and trade conference will pave the way for better ties in both economic and trade fields between the Republic of China and Japan, according to Dr Chang Yen-Tien, chairman of the Association of East Asian Relations (AEAR).

During the opening remarks at the start of the 2-day conference in Taipei this morning, Dr Chang said the results of this conference will also have a bearing on the Chinese Government decision about whether or not to lift the ban on some 700 Japanese consumer products in the near future.

The 2-day conference is being attended by more than 40 delegates of the two countries. The Japanese delegation is led by Horikoshi Teizo, chairman of the Interchange Association of Japan.

Dr Chang told the Japanese delegates that the Chinese party hopes the meeting will produce specific measures aimed at improving the trade imbalance between the two countries.

Last year, Dr Chang said, Taiwan's trade deficit with Japan hit a record U.S. dollars 3.45 billion, up from U.S. dollars 3.18 billion in 1980.

He added that he hoped that the Japanese would provide assistance to sales of their agricultural and industrial products in Japan.

Speaking at the same occasion, Teizo said the two-way trade between Japan and Taiwan showed a considerable decline. Japan's exports to Taiwan were down while its imports from this country were up. He projected Taiwan's trade deficit with Japan will drop considerably this year.

However, he blamed the decline in the two-way trade to the worldwide economic recession. "This is not a good phenomenon," he commented.

He said he hoped that the current meeting will lay a good foundation for wider trade volume between the two countries in the coming future.

The meeting will discuss both trade and economic problems and the participating delegates will try to find solutions to the existing problems.

Trade Talks Continue

OW291039 Taipei CNA in English 0954 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Taipei, Oct 29 (CNA) -- The Japanese delegation to the ROC-Japan trade talks being held in Taipei agreed in principle Thursday to remove non-tariff restrictions on the import of pumpkin and watermelons from Taiwan and to simplify the application procedures for ROC industrial firms who want to receive the "T" mark, vital to being able to sell in the Japanese market.

These were the major results of the first of two days of talks, in which more than 40 delegates from the two countries are taking part. Yesterday's meeting concentrated on trade and investment.

The Japanese side also said they would help manufacturers here conduct market surveys to find out which of their goods have the best market potential in Japan and to assist in arranging the schedule of a mission here due in Japan early next month, aimed at attracting more Japanese investment in the ROC. The Japanese also agreed to pass on to their manufacturers the information provided by the ROC side on investment opportunities in strategic industries here.

But, on other topics, the Japanese participants were not so forthcoming. They failed to agree to an ROC proposal for removing non-tariff restrictions on the import of Taiwan tomatoes, cucumbers, egg plants, and muskmelons. They also said they were not authorized to agree to any tariff reductions onTaiwan goods, noting that was a matter for the Japanese Government.

The ROC side also called on Japan to send buying missions here for the purchase of goods that have long-term market potential in that country.

Today, the second and final day of the meeting, the main topic will be technical cooperation between companies from the two countries. The session is due to end at noon.

Conference Closes 29 Oct

OW300002 Taipei CNA in English 1438 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Excerpt] Taipei, Oct 29 (CNA) -- The seventh Sino-Japanese economic and trade conference closed in Taipei at noon Friday after one-and-a-half days of discussions.

Chang Yen-Tien, chairman of the East Asia Relations Association, and Teizo Horikoshi, chairman of the Japan Interchange Association, spoke at the closing ceremony.

They expressed their belief that the conference would lead to a better Sino-Japanese trade development and a firmer cooperative foundation for upleveling substantive relations between the two countries in the future.

Chang, leader of a 21-member Chinese delegation, and Horikoshi, who headed an 18-member Japanese delegation to the conference, will sign the agreements arrived at during the conference in a ceremony to be held at the meeting room of the East Asia relations Association Saturday morning.

The Friday meeting centered on technical cooperation.

Both sides agreed to strengthen scientific and technological cooperation and intensify visits by experts, the exchange of scientific information and sponsorship of science and technology seminars by both sides.

The Japanese side agreed to dispatch retired technicians here to help this country improve the quality of its products.

In addition, the Asian and Pacific Council for Science and Technology of the Republic of China has decided to enhance cooperative relations with the East Asian Science and Technology Association in Japan.

NUCLEAR ELECTRICAL POWER TO BE EMPHASIZED

OW280333 Taipei CNA in English 0246 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Taipei, Oct 27 (CNA) -- Taiwan Power Company will place its emphasis on the use of nuclear power for fear of another energy crisis that may take place in the future.

L. K. Chen, chairman of the company, made the announcement in a Wednesday press conference, quoting the International Energy Agency as reporting recently that an energy crisis may happen between 1985 and 1990.

To secure the supply of uranium used as source for nuclear power, the company has already imported uranium from several countries, he said.

He concluded that he sees the role of nuclear power as the indispensable ingredient not only to help supply the nation with electricity when the island is short of oil and coal, but also to stabilize the price of electricity.

CANADIAN MP ON IMPROVED RELATIONS WITH TAIWAN

OW180522 Taipei International Service in English 0100 GMT 17 Oct 82

[Text] According to Canadian Parliamentarian (Elmer McKay), there is a good possibility that Sino-Canadian relations can be improved, following a framework not unlike that pursued between Washington and Taipei. (McKay), who led a 30-member good-will mission from Canada for an 8-day visit during the national day celebrations in the Republic of China, spoke with great optimism after meeting with Coordination Council for North American Affairs officials in Taipei.

PREMIER SUN GREETS HAITIAN DELEGATION 30 OCT

OW301423 Taipei CNA in English 1402 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Taipei, Oct. 30 (CNA) — Premier Sun Yun-hsuan Saturday received three top Haitian officials who are Dr. Roger Lafontant, minister of defense and interior; Claude Weil, minister of planning; and Jacques Simeon, minister of industry and commerce at the Executive Yuan building.

After extending warm welcome to them, the premier held talks with them on the strengthening of relations between the two countries. Also present at the meeting were Vice Interior Minister Hsu Hsin-chih and Haitian Ambassador Raymond Perodin.

PAPER DECRIES LEGISLATOR'S PEACE FORMULAS

OW281335 Taipei CHUNG KUO SHIH PAO in Chinese 16 Oct 82 p 2

[Editorial: "Our Basic National Policy Brooks No Distortion -- A Comment on Legislator Fei Hsi-ping's Interpellation"]

[Text] During the Legislative Yuan's general inquiries addressed to the Executive Yuan yesterday, Legislator Fei Hsi-ping proposed "three principles for peace talks" and a "six-point formula for reunification" as a "countermeasure against the Chinese Communist united front scheme of peace talks." We have laws that guarantee the freedom of legislators to give straightforward remonstrations during the Legislative Yuan's discussions on government policies. Nevertheless, the interpellation and proposals made by Legislator Fei Hsi-ping negated the basic policy of the state. Not only that, they were filled with illusive imaginations that could affect the world's clear view of the facts and the feelings of our countrymen. The consequences would be very serious if such statements are not clarified. On the basis of the intuitive knowledge of the people working in the public opinion field and out of our responsibility to speak up honestly, we would like to present our views about Legislator Fei's ideas.

First, let us discuss the "three principles for peace talks." As everyone in the country knows, the position we have always held is not to make any contact whatsoever with the Chinese Communists, much less holding peace talks with them. Therefore, the possibility of peace talks is totally negated. The reason for this attitude is because the Chinese Communists are cunning and treacherous. For them, peace talks are but a strategic maneuver used at the time when they cannot get what they want by the use of force. Peace talks are used by the Chinese Communists as a trap which caused untold losses to us while the mainland was still under our control.

Even Legislator Fei himself has a deep understanding of the Chinese Communists' scheme of peace talks. In his interpellation he noted that "the Communist Party of China is carrying out its united front plot in the form of peace talks and has come up with a nine-point proposal for peaceful reunification that is honey-mouthed and dagger-hearted." But Legislator Fei also contradicted himself by proposing his peace talk principles.

We must know that the reason the Chinese Communists have resorted to every means in carrying out their united front work against us is precisely for the purpose of making us agree to holding peace talks with them. Once we waver in our will, once we sit down for talks with them, we will find ourselves in their trap. Then the people at home will feel unstable at heart and the world will see it as proof that we have forsaken our position. How could we allow the historical tragedy of the 1930's to repeat itself?

In presenting his three-point principle for peace talks, Legislator Fei expressed his view that the sovereignty of a state belongs to all the people of that state, that democratic politics must be thoroughly practiced in full earnest if China is to be reunified and that the interests of the state are above those of a party. All these points are well made. But let us think: Given the communist doctrine, the things the Chinese Communists did in the past and the "four fundamental principles" which they now uphold, could the Communist Party be expected to practice the principles proposed by Legislator Party? If it is impossible for the Chinese Communists to practice these principles -- nor is it practical to expect them to do so -- is it not a case of wishful thinking and deceiving himself as well as others when Legislator Fei advocated the adoption of these principles as the basis of peace talks?

Now let us turn to the "six-point reunification formula" offered by Legislator Fei. China's reunification is the unanimous wish of all of its people. It is also the sacred mission of the Chinese people of the present generation. However, there must be one purpose for reunification. That is, make sure the country will achieve modernization on the basis of genuine democracy. This calls for efforts by all of our people and their clear understanding of the purpose before it can be gradually realized. This is not to be attained by befuddling the public with a never-to-be-honored check written merely on the strength of one's illusions. A study of the six conditions for reunification proposed by Legislator Fei shows us that they essentially run counter to communism. It is entirely impractical to explain these conditions for the Communist Party to hear because it would be like asking a tiger for its skin.

Most shocking was the fact that Legislator Fei went so far as to include in his formulas a call for the reorganization of the army. It is common knowledge that the Chinese Communists have a slogan that "political power grows out of the barrel of a gun." It was precisely on the foundation of the army that the Chinese Communists founded their regime. Moreover, they are still strengthening their rule on the strength of their army and attempting to expand their influence with it in Southeast Asia.

How could we expect them to give up their army? It is also a far-fetched analogy to try to place the so-called Chinese Communist Liberation Army on a par with our national army. No one can deny that it is because of a solid national defense that we have been able to remain rock firm, prevent intrusions by the Chinese Communists and maintain a society of prosperous development over the past 30 years.

A solid national defense depends entirely on the presence of a modern army loyal to the country. It is particularly noteworthy that in the past few years the Chinese Communists have openly made it known in the world that they have not renounced the use of force to liberate Taiwan and have done their utmost to resort to threats or promises of gain in an attempt to cut off outside assistance for us. On the other hand, they have been looking everywhere to procure weapons, conducting missile launching tests and actively making preparations for an invasion of Taiwan. It is indeed unwise for Legislator Fei to ignore the whole situation at this crucial juncture, alleging that the national army is the party's army and advocating its reorganization.

In short, we are in a very difficult situation today. The war in the Taiwan Straits may break out at any moment. The most important thing at the moment is for the people throughout the country to unite as one and think first of national survival. We must proceed from the basis of national stability to seek to supervise and encourage the government to follow an open-minded policy, broaden the scope of the people's participation in politics and promote the practive of democratic politics. We must make sure we can remain toweringly strong and make great strides. It would be to the good of the nation and the people if everyone could do away with any wishful thoughts of establishing contacts with the Chinese Communists and any mentality that disrupts harmony and unity.

ECONOMIC NEWS ON STATE ENTERPRISES' LOSSES

OW261001 Taipei ECONOMIC NEWS in English 16 Oct 82 p 2

[Article by King Pu "State Enterprises Face Heavy Losses -- and the Wrath of Chao Yao-Tung"]

[Text] Ever since taking over as minister of economic affairs late last year, Chao Yao-tung has been very much distressed by the poor management and heavy losses of many of the ROC's state-owned enterprises and has been casting about for ways to put those corporate houses in order.

Minister Chao is by no means the first to find fault with these poorly run organizations; most of the nation's government-run firms -- except for those in the fields of transportation, communications, and utilities -- have been severely criticized for the past three decades. The situation is especially critical for the 14 manufacturing enterprises under the administration of the Ministry of Economic Affairs (MOEA), which have a total paid-in capital of U.S. $2,776 million.

The criticism reached a crescendo this summer when the Control Yuan's Ministry of Audit released figures showing that eight of the firms had losses totaling U.S. $104 million in the first half of fiscal 1982 (ended in Dec 1981). The losses mounted to U.S. 150 million for the first three quarters of the last fiscal year (that is, up to the end of March) -- an amount equivalent to about a quarter of the nation's annual personal income tax collections. These heavy losses dragged total profits of the state-run enterprises down by 50 percent, to U.S. $405 million, for the first three quarters.

The heaviest loss for the three quarters was incurred by the Taiwan Aluminum Corps, which dropped U.S. $42 million. China Shipbuilding lost U.S. $35 million; the Taiwan Metal Mining Co (which has paid-in capital of only U.S. $35 million) lost U.S. $32.5 million; and four other firms -- China Phosphate Industries Corp, China Petrochemical Development Corp, Chung-Tai Chemical Industries Corp, and Taiwan Alkali Co -- lost between U.S. $12.5 million and U.S. $25 million each.

The reasons for this deplorable performance are various, but one of the most important ones is the inability to separate ownership and management. Put another way, neither the presidents or boards of directors of these companies have full authority over their operations; the government can interviene in management at any time. Some flagrant examples:

To help the faltering shipbuilding company, the MOEA instructed the Chinese Petroleum Corps to buy a 210,000-ton tanker from it at a price of U.S. $50 million -- despite protests from Chinese Petroleum that the spot price for such ships on the world market was only U.S. $25 million at the time.

To help maintain an adequate supply of industrial raw materials and to bring ROC-U.S. trade more into balance, the Taiwan Machinery Manufacturing Corp [TMMC] was instructed in 1978 to purchase 2,000 tons of tin from the United States. But since TMMC uses only 200 tons of tin a year, this resulted in excess inventory and annual interest payments of up to U.S. $100,000.

To boost sales of the Qua Tung Automotive Corp, the government has instructed many of its enterprises to buy Hua Tung's heavy trucks -- despite the fact that they are 70 to 90 percent more expensive than imported models.

The government has ruled that all purchases of materials by state enterprises must be accomplished by open bid through the Central Trust of China. The result: Goods with cheap prices but low quality win the bids.

With the exception of the China Steel Corp and the China Shipbuilding Corp -- both of which were originally planned as private enterprises -- all employees of state corporations are civil servants and cannot easily be fired, even if they are incompetent.

Many high officials of state enterprises are political appointees. As a result of this practice, the Taiwan Sugar Corp has 22 directors and supervisors as well as 31 advisers; China Shipbuilding has 21 directors and supervisors; and Chinese Petroleum has 38 advisers. These personnel are mostly superfluous, and their salaries are an unnecessary financial burden.

In state-run enterprises in Western countries, by contrast, ownership and management are separated; while the government retains ownership, boards of directors control management. Government has the right to replace chairmen and presidents if they are running their companies badly. Except for that, government cannot interfere in management.

Unfavorable Policy Decisions

Unfavorable policy decisions also damage the performance of state enterprises. At the Taiwan Aluminum Corp, for instance, 250 of the firm's 284 potlines have been closed down because of slumping sales and high electricity costs. This has reduced annual production of aluminum from 88,000 tons to 20,000 tons or less, and, experts estimate, this move alone will cause the company to lose more than U.S. $12.5 million annually.

When the Taiwan Metal Mining Co planned an expansion of its copper refining plant, the cost was set at U.S. $37.5 million and the return on investment at a high 25.5 percent. But after the expansion began, the cost soared to U.S. $87.5 million and return on investment plummeted to 0.25 percent, the result of poor planning and bad estimates.

The failure of the Hua Tung Automotive Corp provides another vivid example of poor planning. The government initially instructed the Taiwan Machinery Manufacturing Corp to set up the company as a joint investment with General Motors of the United States, largely in consideration of defense needs. But the present economic affairs minister overturned that decision, leaving an unhappy choice to take a U.S. $40 million loss if the company is closed down immediately, or a U.S. $35 million loss if the remaining production run of 1.000 heavy trucks are manufactured and sold.

Also, because of government interference in management, and the higher salaries and faster promotions available in private enterprises, employees of state-run enterprises generally have a very low productivity rate and their executives care little about their business.

Laments an executive of Taiwan Machinery to the ECONOMIC NEWS, "Why should I worry about my company's business? It won't be closed down in any case; and however hard I work, my salary won't be increased or reduced. So I just go my own way."

According to statistics released by the MOEA, the 14 state-run enterprises, with total assets of U.S. $12.8 billion, made only U.S. $9.2 billion in revenues and U.S. $420 million in pretax profits in 1981. The nation's top 500 private enterprises, by contrast, with total assets of U.S. $12.6 billion, had total revenues of U.S. $15 billion and pretax profits of U.S. $725 million in the same year.

Excess Inventories

Some of the problems are caused by excess inventories. As Minister Chao has pointed out, many officials of state-run enterprises have engineering backgrounds and little knowledge of cost, so that they tend to purchase more materials than they need.

According to Ministry of Audit figures, released on Sep 15, state enterprises have U.S. $4.2 million tied up in excess stocks and scrap -- the result, said the ministry, of failure to manage and use materials efficiently.

The Taiwan Machinery Manufacturing Corp had the most excess inventory, U.S. $550,000 worth. The Taiwan Fertilizer Co came in second with U.S. $270,000, and China Shipbuilding was third with U.S. $190,000.

China Shipbuilding led the field in scrap material, with U.S. $1.2 million worth; Taiwan Power followed with U.S. $720,000, and then came Taiwan Sugar with U.S. $290,000.

Experts agree that to save the government enterprises, the first necessity is to separate ownership and management. K.L. Chin, executive director of the Commission of National Corporations of the MOEA, says that in his nearly 40 years of experience, he has never seen an advanced democratic country that has failed to give full management autonomy to its state enterprises.

"At present," Chin comments, "there are about 21 regulations that put restrictions on the management of government enterprises. If any improvement is to be made, these regulations should be removed first of all to give boards of directors a free hand in managing their own businesses. Restricting management by boards of directors is something like tying the hands of a swimmer and throwing him into a pool to participate in a race. The outcome is obvious."

Chin says that there is little possibility, however, that management can be made completely free of government interference. "The entire Executive Yuan (cabinet) agrees that companies should have full management in their own hands," he reports, "but this will be very hard to accomplish because the rights of four Yuans are involved, including those of the Executive Yuan. The Examination Yuan has the right to test all applicants for government jobs, the Control Yuan has the right to audit their finances, and the Legislative Yuan has the right to control and examine their budget. None wants to give up its rights."

The government has already taken steps to rectify some of the state enterprise problems the Taiwan Alkali Co was abolished in June and the Chung-tai Chemical Industries Corp was merged with the China PETROCHEMICAL Development Corp in July. According to Chin, the MOEA is also considering abolishing the China Phosphate Industries Corp.

These first two moves, according to the MOEA, reduces government employment by 1,123 people and saves an annual U.S. $57 million in salaries.

The MOEA has also instructed that some high-cost refining operations, such as those for aluminum, bronze, and stainless steel, be halted except in cases of absolute necessity.

Another step is revision of the "regulations concerning management of state-run enterprises". The Executive Yuan has approved a draft revision and sent it to the Legislative Yuan for deliberation. Some proposed changes: strengthening of management by boards of directors; switching of employment from a civil service to a private system; and the turning of employment decisions over to boards of directors.

The MOEA has also been considering the opening of some state enterprises to private investment and operation. All of the government companies, except for the BES Engineering Corp, the China Steel Corp, and the late Taiwan Alkali Co, enjoy monopolies in their fields. Without competition, the critics say, there can be no improvement.

The government has been loath to turn its enterprises over to private interests because of national defense considerations and the close connection of those enterprises to the basic livelihood of the citizens. Lately, though, there has been more of an open mind in this respect. Minister Chao has said that private investment and management will be welcomed in all of the government's manufacturing enterprises, with the exception of China Steel, Chinese Petroleum, Taiwan Power, and Taiwan Sugar.

These four enterprises, says Chao, will be retained by the government because of their relations to national defense and to the livelihood of farmers.

It is doubtful that private entrepreneurs would rush to invest in these government companies even if such an opportunity were offered, because it will be politically difficult for the government to stay completely out of their management, and because they are upstream industries requiring huge investments and slow returns on capital. These enterprises are also highly subject to the impact of recession and of economic policy.

The devaluation of the new Taiwan dollar, for instance, means huge losses for the Chinese Petroleum Corps in importing oil. With domestic demand for steel plate slumping because of the recession, China Steel also faces inevitable losses. Taiwan Machinery, which was already doing poorly, faces further losses from its ill-fated investment in Hua Tung.

Many observers predict that of the MOEA's remaining 13 enterprises only Taiwan Power will escape red in this year.

Defense Considerations

But most of the state enterprises are not operated on the basis of the profit motive alone, and national defense considerations loom large.

Despite huge losses and Minister Chao's reservations about its continued existence, Taiwan Aluminum still plans to build an aluminum alloy plant costing U.S. $88.9 million. Since this plant will be of help to the national defense industry, the national defense foundation is providing a U.S. $67.5 million interest-free loan to help finance it.

State enterprises sometimes have to accept losses, instead of raising prices in line with increased costs, because of the government's price stability policies.

In order to keep offering farmers cheap fertilizer, for instance, Taiwan Fertilizer once went seven years without a price adjustment. And the government ordered state firms to keep their prices steady during the 1973-74 oil crisis. This helped to stabilize commodity prices, but it cost the companies involved U.S. $120 million.

With Minister Chao Yao-tung holding the nation's economic reins, efforts are finally being made to rationalize the operations of the trouble-plagued state enterprises. But the problems are so deeply ingrained, and so mixed up in politics and vested interests, that even Chao will need almost superhuman wisdom, energy, and perseverance to bring about any thoroughgoing improvement.

DAILY REPORT

China

Vol I No 212 2 November 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

Military Activity Said To Increase in W. Pacific A 1
West Blamed for Shifting Economic Crisis A 2

UNITED STATES

U.S. Reaction to Brezhnev's Speech Examined B 1
[RENMIN RIBAO 31 Oct]
U.S. Defense Secretary Begins Pacific Tour B 2
State Councillor Bo Yibo Meets U.S. Guests B 2

SOVIET UNION

AFP: PRC Officials on Discussions With USSR C 1
RENMIN RIBAO: Soviet Delegate's 'Self-Ridicule' C 1
[2 Nov]
USSR-PRC Rift Said To Hold Apart Two Mongolias C 2
[THE DAILY TELEGRAPH 1 Nov]
USSR Bombers Said To Exercise Over Sea of Japan C 3

NORTHEAST ASIA

Bo Yibo Meets Japanese Friendship Delegation D 1
Bo Yibo Meets President of Nippon Steel D 1
Ulanhu Meets Japan's Nagasaki Governor D 1
Vulnerability of Japanese Economy Viewed D 1

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

Further Reaction to UN Vote on Kampuchea E 1
RENMIN RIBAO 31 Oct Article E 1
VODK Commentary Cited E 1
Thai Official's Comments E 2
VPA Move of Chemical Weapons Reported E 2
Xi Zhongxun Meets Hong Kong Delegation E 3
RENMIN RIBAO on Hong Kong Container Port, Future E 3
[2 Nov]

SOUTH ASIA

Vice Premier Wan Li Meets Nepalese Minister F 1
Bangladesh Administrator Meets Islamic Group F 1

WESTERN EUROPE

SHIJIE ZHISHI on History of Sino-UK Relations [16 Sep] G 1
Further Reports on PCF Delegation's Trip G 4
Stopover in Beijing G 4
Marchais on DPRK Relations G 4
Marchais: Visit Successful G 5
Ulanhu Meets French Bank Chairman 1 Nov G 5
Bo Yibo Meets With FRG Delegation 30 Oct G 5
Christian Group Concludes Finland Visit G 5

EASTERN EUROPE

Sports Exchange Protocol Signed With SFRY H 1
Bo Yibo Meets Bulgarian Cooperation Delegation H 1

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

RENMIN RIBAO Castigates Israeli Officials [30 Oct] I 1
Sino-Iraqi Economic Cooperation Meeting Held I 1
Deng Liqun Meets Senegalese Visitor 9 Oct I 1
Wan Li Meets Algerian Provincial Governors I 2
Li Shuzheng Concludes Tanzania Trip, Heads Home I 2

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

HONGQI on People's War, Defense Modernization [2 Nov] K 1
Use of Shipbased Helicopters Deemed Successful K 1
Editorial on Importance of Energy Conservation [RENMIN RIBAO 30 Oct] K 2
RENMIN RIBAO Urges Halt to Forest Destruction [28 Oct] K 4
Central Organs To Train Cadres in Rotation K 5
RENMIN RIBAO Article on Mao Zedong Thought [19 Oct] K 9
Vice Minister Outlines Capital Construction Goal K 14
Consolidating Enterprise Leaderships Stressed K 15
Yuan Baohua on Large Enterprise Consolidation K 16
Deng Liqun Addresses Workers' Education Meeting K 17
Deng Liqun Attends National Library Celebration K 17
Deng Yingchao Hails Publishing Firm Anniversary [RENMIN RIBAO 29 Oct] K 19
Yang Jingren Attends Zhejiang United Front Forum K 19
Yang Shangkun, Others Watch Dance Performance K 20
Optical Fiber Communications Conference Ends K 20
Coastal Urban Forum Held in Tianjin 25 Oct K 20
Customhouses Said Successful in Smuggling Work K 21
Peng Dehuai Biography Group Visits Gansu K 22
Rural Transportation Conference Closes in Shanxi K 22
Sustained Development of Family Planning Urged K 23
Ba Yi Radio Says PLA Command Cadres Being Purged K 23
Ba Yi Radio Reports Problems Not Solved in PLA K 24
RENMIN RIBAO Carries HONGQI Table of Contents [30 Oct] K 25

PRC REGIONAL AFFAIRS

NORTH REGION

Hebei Simplifies Party, Government Organizations R 1
Nei Monggol's Zhou Hui Speaks on Commodities R 1
Shanxi's Hou Shilian Stresses Party Capabilities R 2
Yang Shangkun Visits Tianjin Water Project R 3

NORTHEAST REGION

Heilongjiang's Yang Yichen Attends CPC Meeting S 1
Jilin's Qiang Xiaochu Urges Unity With CPC S 1
Jilin Work Conference on Militia Training Ends S 3
Jilin's Qiang Xiaochu Receives Orphans 27 Oct S 3
Liaoning's Guo Feng at CPC Committee Plenum S 3

NORTHWEST REGION

Fang Yi Visits Commune Family in Gansu Province T 1
Feng Jixin Attends Close of Gansu CYL Congress T 1
Lanzhou PLA's Xiao Hua Serves in Lanzhou Shop T 2
Gansu's Feng Jixin Sends Oda Death Condolence T 2
Ningxia's Li Xuezhi Addresses Economic Meeting T 2
Li Xuezhi at Ningxia Military District Congress T 3
[NINGXIA RIBAO 8 Oct]
Ningxia's Li Xuezhi on Quadrupling Output T 3
Liang Buting Watches Cultural Show in Xining T 4
Qinghai's Liang Buting Comments on Intellectuals T 4
Qinghai's Zhang Guosheng on Structural Reform T 5
Shaanxi's Ma Wenrui on Hu Congress Speech T 6
Shaanxi Governor on Implementing Congress Spirit T 6
Shaanxi People's Congress Committee Meets T 7
Shaanxi's Ma Wenrui on Farmland Construction T 8
Shaanxi's Ma Wenrui Calls for Learning From Hero T 9
Shaanxi County Holds Memorial for Luo Jianfu T 9
Urumqi's Tan Youlin's Work Report to PLA CPC T 10
Xinjiang's Wang Enmao Inspects PLA Warehouse T 11
Xinjiang's Wang Enmao Stresses System Reforms T 12
Wang Enmao Says Farewell to Ex-Soldiers T 12
Wang Enmao Inspects Xinjiang Prefectures T 13
Briefs: Shaanxi Employment Work Conference T 13

TAIWAN

Western Pacific Security Conference Opens V 1
President Chiang Meets Haitian Ministers 1 Nov V 2
Briefs: Malaysian Investment Mission; Computer Terminals Produced; Laser Research Project; Fishery Agreement With India V 2

HONG KONG MEDIA ON CHINA

Hong Kong Press Reports on Hong Kong's Future W 1
Official's 'Assurance' W 1
[SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST 30 Oct]
Jia Shi Remarks [WEN WEI PO 30 Oct] W 1
Xi Zhongxun Cited W 2
[SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST 2 Nov]
TA KUNG PAO Column [1 Nov] W 3
Paper Views U.S. Attitude Toward KMT, CPC W 5
[SHING TAO JIH PAO 27 Oct]
MING PAO on CPC Economic Reforms [20 Oct] W 6

MILITARY ACTIVITY SAID TO INCREASE IN W. PACIFIC

OW311956 Beijing XINHUA in English 1918 GMT 31 Oct 82

[Text] Tokyo, October 31 (XINHUA Correspondent Luo Weilong) -- Intensified military rivalry and contention between the United States and the Soviet Union this year are marked by a series of naval exercises by both sides since last spring in the western Pacific and the Sea of Japan.

Japanese press reports quote government sources as saying recently that in the spring this year, the Soviet Navy with destroyers of the Pacific fleet as its main stay, sailed eastward along the Aleutian Islands into areas near enough to pose a threat to the west coast of the United States. This was followed by large-scale U.S. Navy manoeuvres over the vast sea areas of the whole of northern Pacific and the Sea of Japan, involving three contingents of the U.S. Pacific fleet. The first contingent mainly composed of guided-missile-launching frigates set off from the San Diego naval base in California State held exercises in waters of the Aleutian Islands and the Chishima Islands. The contingent then joined a Japan-U.S. antisubmarine exercise from August 21 to 25 after entering into the Sea of Japan via the Soya Strait and the Tsugaru Strait. Meanwhile, the second contingent of landing ships left its base in Okinawa carrying Marines to the Sea of Japan and held exercises in waters near the Soya Strait with some other warships which had already reached there. The third contingent formed by the 7th fleet's aircraft carrier, the "Midway", and the Pacific fleet's nuclear aircraft carrier, the "Enterprise", also entered the Sea of Japan after they met off the Aleutian Islands at the end of September. The presence of the "Enterprise" in the Sea of Japan after an absence of 13 years is seen as a counter move against the intensified Soviet military buildup in the Far East.

During the U.S. Naval exercises involving altogether 13 U.S. major warships, over 130 Soviet warplanes including "Backfire" strategic bombers and nuclear submarines of the Soviet Pacific fleet followed and simulatedly attacked the U.S. warships. The U.S. fleet on the other hand took the Soviet planes and warships involved in the surveillance of the U.S. exercises as its imaginary enemy for counter-attack exercises.

The Soviet military deployment in the Far East including the Chishima Islands has been steadily strengthened. According to the Japanese Defense Agency, the Soviet Backfire bombers, which have an endurance of 8,050 kilometers and an effective operation radius covering most part of the west Pacific, are estimated to number about 50, representing one fourth or one third of all Soviet bombers in the area.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union has built a new submarine base on the Chishima Islands and deployed attack submarines there. As the new base is convenient for supply, it facilitates the entry of the Soviet submarines into the Pacific.

Japanese Government sources said as for the Soviet Pacific fleet, the base "is advantageous to its defense and attack," thus creating greater threat to Japan and the United States on sea.

According to Japanese reports, since May 1981, the U.S. Government, in face of the intensified Soviet contention, has repeatedly asked Japan to strengthen its antisubmarine and air defense ability to cooperate with the United States in coping with the Soviet threat. In late July this year, the Japanese Government approved the 1983-1987 military expansion program, which allocates about 4,500 billion yen for the development of warships and aircraft.

WEST BLAMED FOR SHIFTING ECONOMIC CRISIS

OW301954 Beijing XINHUA in English 1831 GMT 30 Oct 82

["Commentary: Facing Challenge of Shifting of Economic Crisis by the West -- by XINHUA Correspondent Tang Tianri" -- XINHUA headline]

[Text] Beijing, October 30 (XINHUA) -- A report by the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development said Third World countries are facing the most serious economic difficulties since the great depression of the 1930's.

The growth rate of their gross national products has slowed down to the lowest point in the last 20 years, unemployment is at an all-time high and their total foreign debt is 629 billion dollars, according to the report.

Many factors have constituted their economic difficulties, but apart from the countries' political, economic and social differences, the main reason is they are facing the serious challenge of shifting of the economic crisis by the West.

Western countries have adopted policies to shift their own troubles onto others, such as lowering the prices of raw materials, limiting imports, supporting protectionism, increasing interest rates and cutting aid for development. The declining prices of the raw materials have affected most of the Third World countries, because at present most of these nations' earnings from foreign exchange depends on their exports of these goods.

Third World countries had a 35.9 billion dollar surplus of international payments in 1980, but had a deficit of 11.5 billion dollars in 1981 because of declining prices of primary products and cuts in exports. It is estimated that the deficit will rise to 62.5 billion dollars this year. Last year, for example, Mexico's foreign exchange earnings declined by 2.5 billion dollars.

The West has set up several hundred kinds of tariff and nontariff trade barriers to exclude the Third World's manufactured or semi-finished goods -- especially textiles and garments -- from its markets. This has caused the bankruptcy of many Third World factories and enterprises. Chile, for instance, registered 433 business bankruptcies last year and 533 failures during the first three quarters of this year. In 1981, the GNP growth rate of manufactured goods exporting countries in the Third World plunged to -0.2 percent.

Taking advantage of the oil glut for the last few years, the West has driven down oil prices. From 1980 to 1981, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) witnessed a drop in their current account surplus from 115 billion dollars to 71 billion dollars. From 1978 to 1980, interest paid to the West doubled to 31 billion dollars. In 1981, the sum increased by 60 percent, to 48 billion dollars.

Financial assistance of Western countries has failed to reach the proportion the developed nations had promised. Since 1981, the United States, Britain and Japan have continuously cut down such assistance. Aid from United Nations multilateral agencies also has been reduced. One-third of the adults and 60 percent of the children in the most underdeveloped nations suffer from malnutrition.

All the facts show that the West's shifting of its economic crisis to the Third World has serious consequences which not only involve economics but also spread to social and political domains. The situation in many developing countries is one of unrest; the crime rate is increasing, strikes and demonstrations have been held one after another and military coups often occur.

U.S. REACTION TO BREZHNEV'S SPEECH EXAMINED

HK011055 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 31 Oct 82 p 6

["Newsletter From America" by RENMIN RIBAO reporter Yuan Xianlu [5913 0341 4389]: "A New Round in the Arms Race, Another Clarion Call"]

[Text] On 27 October, at a conference of Soviet Army and Navy leaders, Brezhnev asserted that the Soviet Union would continue to build up its armaments and would not lag behind in the development of military technology. Weinberger immediately declared at a press conference at the Pentagon on 28 October that the United States would step up its military programme and maintain its leading position in advanced weapons. The two superpowers are entering a new round in the arms race, and another clarion call is once again being blown simultaneously in Moscow and Washington.

Public opinion in the United States commonly holds that Brezhnev's speech is the toughest by the Soviet Union towards the United States since Reagan took office. In his speech, Brezhnev criticized the United States for pursuing a foreign policy of "adventuristic, reckless and flagrant selfishness," by expanding armaments to an unprecedented scale and leading the world into the danger of nuclear war. He asserted that not only words but military strength should be relied on to counter the U.S. menace. Military technology at present changes with each passing day; the Soviet Union would not accept second place in the arms race but would make great efforts. Quite a few Americans say that Reagan has always maintained a strong attitude toward the Soviet Union. As soon as he came to power, he criticized Soviet leaders for "sparing no efforts in committing crimes, lying and cheating" for the purpose of expansion. But in the past 20 months or so, although Soviet leaders have frequently attacked the Reagan administration, they have centered on "detente" and "disarmament." This time, Brezhnev scarcely mentioned "detente" or the arms limitation talks between the Soviet Union and the United States in Geneva. It is quite obvious that the Soviet Union is adopting a tone completely different from its previous one.

Why has there been such a change? According to a report in THE NEW YORK TIMES on 29 October, experts in Soviet affairs both inside and outside the U.S. Government all hold that this speech by Brezhnev is an important policy document which indicates the Soviet Union's long-term plan for further military expansion and war preparation, and their determination to surpass the United States in the arms race. This is because the various disarmament proposals put forward time and again by the Soviet Union were aimed at frustrating the schemes of the United States for amassing armaments and placing medium-range missiles in Western Europe. But the Reagan administration did not change its plan in response to this, and the situation in Western Europe was not at all favorable for the Soviet Union to carry out its plot. Therefore, Moscow has decided to change its tactics and oppose the United States by developing armaments.

Other American people have also pointed out that Brezhnev's speech had the intention of hindering the U.S. buildup of armaments. At present, there is a growing desire in the United States to freeze nuclear weapons. Recently, a number of influential church leaders adopted a resolution calling for a halt to experimenting, producing and disposing all nuclear weapons. Nine states are to conduct referenda on the question of freezing nuclear weapons and the U.S. midterm elections are coming very soon. The purpose of Moscow's change to a tough attitude is to influence public opinion in the United States and weaken congressional support for Reagan's military policy.

These two analyses do not contradict each other. Accelerating their miltiary expansion and at the same time creating difficulties for the opposing side is just like killing two birds with one stone.

Faced with such circumstances, it seems that Reagan's attitude is to take advantage of the uncompromising stand of the Soviet Union to create public support for his policy of increasing armaments. Last year, President Reagan drew up a plan for the expenditure of $1,400 billion for building up armaments over the next 5 years. But due to the economic recession and huge financial deficits, there was strong objection from the public. Even in Congress, more and more congressmen called for a reduction in armaments. After Brezhnev's speech, Weinberger immediately stressed that the Soviet Union had challenged the United States to fight and that it was therefore necessary to improve their first-strike capability. This proved that Reagan's plan to increase armaments was correct and must be supported. He also brought out many graphs to show that the nuclear strength of the Soviet Union surpassed that of the United States, and that the freezing of nuclear weapons would only weaken the nuclear deterrent capability of the United States in preventing war, and make the Soviet Union unwilling to hold arms limitation talks. At the same time, some American experts publicly predict that military expenditure in the Soviet Union will increase on a large scale in the years to come.

So with the excuse of each being threatened by the other, the two superpowers, Moscow and Washington, both claim that they were forced into military expansion and war preparation. This was the situation when the two sides held disarmament talks in Geneva. An article in THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR considered this situation to have highly ironic overtones. This is of course a normal thing in relations between the two superpowers, because they have never ceased their struggle for military superiority. The so-called disarmament talks are merely a means used by each side to strengthen itself and weaken the other.

U.S. DEFENSE SECRETARY BEGINS PACIFIC TOUR

OW301840 Beijing XINHUA in English 1640 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 30 (XINHUA) — U.S. Defence Secretary Caspar Weinberger on his trip to five Pacific nations said today that his tour is designed to "emphasize the importance" the United States places on the region.

During his stopover in Hawaii, Weinberger also said he will discuss with leaders of the five countries on what the United States perceives as the threat posed by a Soviet Union arms buildup, according to reports reaching here. He said: "I think it is important that everybody realize the nature and extent of this (Soviet arms) buildup."

Weinberger will be carrying what a Pentagon official termed a "double-barreled message": To reassure the allies of continued U.S. interest in the Pacific despite Washington's preoccupation with Europe and the Middle East and to encourage them to do more for the common defense.

The defense minister left Washington yesterday on an 11-day visit to Singapore, Thailand, Indonesia, Australia and New Zealand. This is his second trip to the Pacific region this year. He traveled to Japan, South Korea and the Philippines in April.

STATE COUNCILLOR BO YIBO MEETS U.S. GUESTS

OW301855 Beijing XINHUA in English 1515 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 30 (XINHUA) -- Chinese State Councillor Bo Yibo met here this afternoon with a delegation from the Aspen Institute for Humanistic Studies of the United States led by William Kieschnick, trustee of the institute and president of the Atlantic Richfield Oil Co., U.S.A. Hao Deqing, president of the Chinese People's Institute of Foreign Affairs, was present.

AFP: PRC OFFICIALS ON DISCUSSIONS WITH USSR

OW011850 Hong Kong AFP in English 1838 GMT 1 Nov 82

[By Charles-Antoine de Nerciat]

[Text] Beijing, Nov. 1 (AFP) -- China considers Vietnam's intervention in Cambodia the most "urgent" Soviet threat to China's security, Chinese officials told correspondents here today in a commentary on the first Sino-Soviet exploratory talks on mutual relations.

The officials refused to go into details on the six meetings here last month between Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Leonid Ilichev and his Chinese opposite number, Qian Qichen. The talks marked the resumption of a dialogue broken off for three years. But they did say that the action of Moscow's main ally in Asia, Vietnam, in putting an estimated 150,000 to 200,000 troops into Cambodia to defend a Hanoi-installed regime against Beijing-backed resistance movements constitutes "the current most urgent question" blocking improved relations between Moscow and Beijing, which have been at odds for 20 years.

Even while the talks were going on, leading Chinese officials several times stated that Sino-Soviet relations could not show any marked improvement as long as:

A) Vietnam was intervening in Cambodia.

B) More than 1,000,000 Soviet troops were massed on the Sino-Soviet frontier and in Outer Mongolia.

C) The Soviet Army was intervening in Afghanistan.

The Chinese officials said today there had been no new development on those points. "We do not see any change in the Soviet threat," said one ranking official.

"The most pressing issue now," he added, "is to compel Vietnam to withdraw from Cambodia because there is fighting going on there, whereas there is calm on the Sino-Soviet and Sino-Mongolian borders.

The official said the Soviet Union would not abandon its "hegemonist" policy in the foreseeable future, but this did not mean the Russians "may not be forced to make changes on specific problems." He reiterated that the three aforementioned problems must be solved before there could be a normalisation of Moscow-Beijing relations, but said they did not have to be settled simultaneously.

The Sino-Soviet talks, which China broke off in January 1980 after Soviet troops entered Afghanistan, are due to be held alternately in Beijing and Moscow. Beijing diplomats, citing Chinese sources, say that the first round of talks were characterised by "very steadfast" stands on both sides.

RENMIN RIBAO: SOVIET DELEGATE'S 'SELF-RIDICULE'

HK020842 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 2 Nov 82 p 6

["International Jottings" by Feng Xiong [1409 7106]: "Self-Ridicule By 'Ingenious Remarks'"]

[Text] Last Friday, when the UN Sixth Committee was discussing the problem of nonuse of force in international relations, a delegate said: "The international situation, which has continued to become tense, has disturbed most of the delegations.

"The militarist powers have not only resorted to force to threaten other countries, but have also directly used force to compel other countries and people to accept their rule." He called on all countries to "conclude world treaty on nonuse of force" and regarded this as a reliable guarantee for the security of the people of various countries.

At first hearing, we thought that these remarks were uttered by a delegate from a peace-loving country which exemplarily observes the norms of international relations. However, to our surprise, the speaker was the Soviet delegate (Vladimir Petrovskiy).

When 100,000 Soviet troops are using force to deal with the Afghan people and the Vietnamese, who are supported by the Soviet Union, are slaughtering the Kampuchean people, (Petrovskiy) posed as a person of high morals to utter such "ingenuous remarks" at an international forum; was this not a self-ridicule?

USSR-PRC RIFT SAID TO HOLD APART TWO MONGOLIAS

PM021003 London THE DAILY TELEGRAPH in English 1 Nov 82 p 5

[Graham Earnshaw dispatch: "Sino-Soviet Rift Holds Apart the Two Mongolias"]

[Excerpt] Ulan Tuge, Inner Mongolia -- The two Mongolias, one a Soviet satellite, the other a region of China, are as far away as ever from being reunited after 760 years of division. Both China and the Soviet Union maintain huge military forces along the border about 120 miles north of Ulan Tuge, and the Chinese are very much aware that the area is the most likely route for any Russian strike into the Chinese heartland.

Visitors are forbidden to take photographs of the rolling grasslands between Ulan Tuge and the capital of Inner Mongolia, Hohhot, apparently through the fear that these could be used as military intelligence.

The whole border area, extending back over 100 miles, is considered a military zone, and even local people who are not residents are not allowed to enter it without permission. On the road north from Hohhot to the bleak farming commune of Ulan Tuge there is ample evidence of the presence of the Chinese People's Liberation Army.

Hohhot is reported to have one of the most extensive underground tunnel networks of any city in China for use as air-raid shelters and as a means of evacuating people to the countryside.

The tunnels, which in other Chinese cities are now shown off to tourists with considerable pride, are in Hohhot strictly off-limits.

The Mongolian border has been practically sealed for over 20 years as a result of the bitter Sino-Soviet dispute with almost no contacts even between family members.

But one sign of the hesitant thaw in relations between Moscow and Beijing is a slight easing of restrictions in such contacts.

One senior official in Hohhot told me that the exchange of letters between Mongols on either side of the border had resumed to a limited extent earlier this year. He said he knew of four Mongolian families who had received letters from relatives in Outer Mongolia.

The closing of the border must have split up many Mongolian families who are by traditions nomadic herders wandering the grassland steppe at will.

On the Chinese side of the border at least nearly all the herdsmen have been settled down in permanent locations, presumably to make control easier.

Most of the world's Mongols live on the Chinese side of the line: 3,500,000 in Inner Mongolia, compared with 1,500,000 in the People's Republic of Mongolia (Outer Mongolia). But an official said there was no desire amongst those in Inner Mongolia to become part of the Mongolian state next door.

"There is not one Mongol here who would want to join up with Mongolia," said the official a Mongol named Siqinbeilige, who spent 40 years in the Communist Chinese Army and can hardly speak Mongolian any more.

"Mongols and Hans (Chinese) are now all equal under the leadership of the Chinese Communist Party," he added. "We are using communist ideas to liberate them."

USSR BOMBERS SAID TO EXERCISE OVER SEA OF JAPAN

OW012001 Beijing XINHUA in English 1509 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] Tokyo, November 1 (XINHUA) -- Soviet bombers have recently carried out an exercise in the Japan Sea with the United States as the imaginary enemy, reported SANKEI SHIMBUN today.

Quoting a Japanese military source, the nationwide circulation newspaper said that 11 Soviet Backfire bombers encountered Japanese jet fighters in the Japan Sea off Wajima, and turned toward Vladivostok (Ahishenwai) where they launched fierce attack on the Soviet Navy's 36,000-ton aircraft carrier Minsk, an imaginary enemy.

The military source said the Backfire bombers' exercise indicates that the Soviet Air Force composed of such bombers has better combatting and commanding ability than what had been believed.

BO YIBO MEETS JAPANESE FRIENDSHIP DELEGATION

OW251530 Beijing XINHUA in English 1519 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 27 (XINHUA) -- Chinese State Councillor Bo Yibo met here this afternoon with a friendship delegation from Shizuoka Prefecture of Japan.

Leader of the delegation is Kezaburo Yamamoto, governor of the prefecture, and deputy leader Kazuo Ihara, chairman of the prefectural assembly.

Shizuoka Prefecture forged friendly ties with Zhejiang Province in east China April this year.

The delegation is on a tour of China at the invitation of Li Fengping, governor of Zhejiang Province.

BO YIBO MEETS PRESIDENT OF NIPPON STEEL

OW271512 Beijing XINHUA in English 1507 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 27 (XINHUA) -- Bo Yibo, state councillor, met here this afternoon with Yutaka Takeda, president of Nippon Steel Corporation, and his party. They had a friendly talk on strengthening cooperation between the corporation and China in the steel and oil industries.

Li Dongyan, minister of metallurgical industry, was present.

ULANHU MEETS JAPAN'S NAGASAKI GOVERNOR

OW290843 Beijing XINHUA in English 0744 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 29 (XINHUA) -- Ulanhu, vice-chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress, met with Isamu Takada, governor of Nagasaki Prefecture, Japan, Mrs. Takada and their party here this morning.

VULNERABILITY OF JAPANESE ECONOMY VIEWED

OW291900 Beijing XINHUA in English 1832 GMT 29 Oct 82

["Roundup: Yen's Sharp Depreciation Reveals Vulnerability of Japanese Economy by XINHUA Correspondent Liu Wenyu" -- XINHUA headline]

[Text] Tokyo, October 29 (XINHUA) -- The Japanese yen which has been on the decline since the beginning of this year fell sharply over the past few days. The Tokyo exchange market on October 26 registered yen's parity as 277.15 against the U.S. dollar, a record low since June, 1977.

Judging from the exchange rate of 217.8 yen to the dollar early this year, the Japanese currency was in fact devalued 25 percent in 10 months.

It is believed that the depreciation of the yen was caused mainly by the U.S. policy of high interest rates, which led to the massive outflow of Japanese capital to the United States. The long-term January-August account in Japan's international payments fell short by 14.6 billion dollars.

The slackening of the Japanese economy was another reason for the yen's depreciation. Owing to the economic recession in the Western world, Japanese export kept falling from last autumn, with the second quarter of the year registering a sharper drop than in the United States and West Germany. It is estimated that the total export this year will be six percent lower than that of last year, a fact never known since the early 50's.

Along with the fall of exports, Japan's industrial and mining production has also shrunk by large margins and the unemployment rate has gone up. The economic recession in the West has revealed fully the vulnerability of the Japanese economy which is highly dependent on foreign trade.

Japan's worsening economic performance also manifested itself in financial difficulties. While declaring the Japanese economy to be "in a state of emergency" on September 16 this year, Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki said: "Japan's finance is now facing unprecedented difficulties." The shortfall of revenue was 2,000 billion Japanese yen in 1981. It is expected to reach 6,000 billion this year and 7,000 billion in 1983. To offset these deficits, the Finance Ministry has decided to set a record in the floating of national bonds this year and to freeze wage increase for government employees. Under these circumstances, the Finance Ministry believes, the growth rate of the economy this year is expected to reach three percent at best.

The recent political turmoil in Japan exerted an adverse effect on the yen. Since October 12 when Prime Minister Suzuki announced his pullout from candidacy for the party presidency, the jockeying for the top seat so intensified that no decisions were made as planned on major economic issues such as the supplementary budget for 1982.

The frailness of Japan's economy led to the depreciation of the yen, which in turn cast an ill effect on the economy.

The depreciation of the yen could have reactivated Japan's exportation but for the economic depression in the West. The exportation declined rapidly as a result of the intensified trade conflicts between Japan on the one hand and the United States and West European countries on the other.

The depreciation of the yen brought about a rise in import prices which in a chain reaction caused the prices of domestic consumer goods and wholesale prices to rise too.

Haruo Maekawa, governor of the Bank of Japan, told the press Thursday that the depreciation of the yen will eat into the profits of the enterprises, especially those producing raw materials, and will also have an ill effect on processing sectors such as fabric and chemical industries.

Commenting on the declining yen, the mass media here have called for a serious consideration by the government of its currency policy. The government, however, is finding itself in a difficult position. Any attempt to bolster the yen by raising interest rates would increase burdens on the industries and further aggravate the slump. On the other hand, stimulation of the economy by lowering interest rates would make the yen slide further downhill.

FURTHER REACTION TO UN VOTE ON KAMPUCHEA

RENMIN RIBAO 31 Oct Article

HK010647 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 31 Oct 82 p 6

["International Jottings" by Li Ming [7812 2494]: "The Fox and the Grape"]

[Text] Aesop wrote a fable about a fox who wants to eat the grapes on a grapevine, but says the grapes are sour when it finds it cannot reach them. Strangely enough, this fable is a portrayal of the Vietnamese authorities today.

At the 37th session of the UN General Assembly, 90 countries voted to support the retention of Democratic Kampuchea's legitimate seat in the United Nations. To this, Nguyen Co Thach, the Vietnamese minister of foreign affairs, said merely that "for Vietnam, this cannot be regarded as a failure." Nguyen Co Thach seemed to be saying that it was of no consequence to Vietnam that it failed to get Kampuchea's seat in the United Nations.

Does Kampuchea's seat really mean nothing to the Vietnamese authorities? No. Like the fox in the fable, they have been drooling with envy for this sweet "grape" for a long time. They know well that depriving Democratic Kampuchea of its seat in the United Nations and giving the seat to their puppet regime in Phnom Penh would make the international community actually recognize the legitimacy of Vietnam's invasion of Kampuchea. For years, the Vietnamese authorities have tried in vain by every possible means to get this "grape." Even on the eve of this UN General Assembly, Nguyen Co Thach ran all over the place trying to squeeze Democratic Kampuchea out of the United Nations. At the plenary session of the UN General Assembly, Vietnam put forward an "amendment" aimed at depriving Democratic Kampuchea of its seat. Despite all the Vietnamese authorities' schemes and tricks, the number of countries supporting Democratic Kampuchea was greater this year than last year. The Vietnamese authorities' dream of eating up the grape -- grabbing the seat of Democratic Kampuchea -- once more failed to materialize.

One failure follows another and each is more serious than the last. Nguyen Co Thach tries to look undisturbed, but this, in the end, cannot conceal the fox's great disappointment.

VODK Commentary Cited

OW301233 Beijing XINHUA in English 1217 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 30 (XINHUA) -- Radio Democratic Kampuchea says in a commentary today the UN General Assembly's adoption of a resolution calling on Vietnam to withdraw its troops from Kampuchea "means another great victory for the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea in the United Nations."

"This has again proved true that the international community resolutely opposes the Vietnamese invasion of Kampuchea and will never accept the Vietnamese occupation of Kampuchea as a fait accompli," the radio continued.

The radio says through a three-day discussion, the current session of the UN General Assembly adopted the resolution by a vote of 105 in favor and 23 against.

The radio calls this "an event of major political importance which shows more and more countries demand that Vietnam withdraw its troops from Kampuchea completely and unconditionally, so as to restore independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity to Kampuchea, respect their right of self-determination. They also demand that foreign countries pledge not to intervene in the internal affairs of Kampuchea."

The radio says this is "powerful support for the just struggle to resist Vietnamese aggression for national salvation waged by the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea. It is also another frustration for the Vietnamese expansionists."

The radio says the Kampuchean patriotic army and civilians will never let the international society down as a result of the support they have had from the current session of the UN General Assembly.

The radio expresses the resolve of the Kampuchean people to fight through to the end in the face of all difficulties till all Vietnamese troops are withdrawn from Kampuchea.

Thai Official's Comments

OW311556 Beijing XINHUA in English 1506 GMT 31 Oct 82

[Text] Bangkok, October 31 (XINHUA) -- Thai Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila told reporters yesterday an international meeting on the Kampuchean problem must be held to seek a settlement of the issue.

He said Thailand wishes to consult countries interested in the Kampuchean problem on setting a date for the international meeting.

Thai newspaper TONG HUA YID PAO today called on the justice-upholding countries in the world to try all means to force Vietnam to withdraw its troops from Kampuchea.

A commentary of the newspaper described the adoption by the current session of the U.N. General Assembly of a resolution calling for withdrawal of all Vietnam's troops from Kampuchea as "another ignominious defeat" for Hanoi, but it warned that Vietnam will not take its defeat lying down and it is bound to play diplomatic tricks in an attempt to resist the U.N. resolution.

The commentary said pressure must be brought to bear on Vietnam to make it pay dearly for its action in Kampuchea and force it to end its military invasion of Kampuchea in accordance with the U.N. resolution.

VPA MOVE OF CHEMICAL WEAPONS REPORTED

OW290813 Beijing XINHUA in English 0746 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Bangkok, October 29 (XINHUA) -- Vietnamese troops in Kampuchea have moved several truckloads of chemical weapons to their base near the Kampuchean-Thai border, today's BANGKOK POST quoted a senior Thai military source as saying yesterday.

Major General Piboon Panuwat, commander of Thailand's Second Army Division in charge of the eastern border, said the weapons could be used against the Kampuchean resistance forces in the planned dry season offensive. However, he said that the Thai Army is still unable to identify the types of chemical weapons already brought in.

His disclosure coincided with a visit by a United Nations team of experts to the refugee camps along the Thai-Kampuchean border yesterday to investigate the use of toxic chemicals by Vietnamese troops in Kampuchea and Laos.

Piboon said Vietnam has prepared a special combat unit solely comprising soldiers from North Vietnam at its army installations in Sisophon, about 30 kilometers from the border.

Meanwhile, Democratic Kampuchean sources also told the BANGKOK POST that since the beginning of the month at least 10 truckloads of unidentified chemicals have been sent from a major Vietnamese stronghold in Sisophon to a Vietnamese base near the strategic Highway Five at Ban Nimit.

XI ZHONGXUN MEETS HONG KONG DELEGATION

OW012037 Beijing XINHUA in English 1614 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 1 (XINHUA) -- Xi Zhongxun, vice-chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress, met here today with a delegation from the Hong Kong Trade Development Council led by its chairman, Sir Y.K. Kan.

Speaking to the delegation, Xi said the visit organized by the Hong Kong council indicated that trade between Hong Kong and the mainland would develop steadily. Development of economic cooperation would be beneficial to the stability and prosperity of Hong Kong, he said, and also helpful to promoting the four modernizations of the country.

He briefed the leaders of the development council on the country's economic construction after the 12th National Congress of the C.P.C., and reaffirmed China's policy of opening to the world and enlivening the domestic economy.

The delegation arrived in Beijing October 28 at the invitation of the China Council for the Promotion of International Trade (CCPIT). Wang Yaoting, chairman of the CCPIT hosted a banquet in their honor. During its stay in Beijing, the delegation met with a number of government agencies and departments. It will leave Beijing tomorrow for a tour of Shanghai and Guangzhou.

RENMIN RIBAO ON HONG KONG CONTAINER PORT, FUTURE

HK010612 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 31 Oct 82 p 4

[Report by reporter Zhou Yizhi: "World's Biggest Container Terminal Under Construction in Hong Kong"]

[Text] The world's biggest modern container terminal is now under construction in Hong Kong. The opening ceremony of this project was held on 28 October. After the completion of this project, the congestion in Hong Kong's Kwai Chong container dock will be relieved and this will greatly improve the efficiency of freight transport. This project also takes the lead in helping container port facilities maintain Hong Kong's prosperity into the 21st century.

This six-story terminal is designed to have a floor space of 260,000 square meters and will reach a height of 61 meters. Each story will be installed with vehicle-moving facilities and the ground floor will have the newest overhead extending transport system. The container grounds will hold 1,800 containers. The first phase of this project is scheduled to be finished in 1983 and the entire project will be completed in 1986. The cost of construction is estimated about 1 billion Hong Kong dollars.

According to some economists here, the building of this terminal shows that some Hong Kong industrialists and businessmen looking into the future are optimistic about Hong Kong's trading development prospects. Whatever results Sino-Britain talks will bring, so long as the Chinese Government is determined to maintain Hong Kong's free trading environment, Hong Kong will always be an international port, and will continue to perform all of its existing functions. In this case, the opportunity to make money in Hong Kong will still be more favorable than in other countries in Southeast Asia.

The new container terminal is being developed by the Asian Container Company Limited -- a joint venture formed by the Hong Kong Far East Development Group and the Sea-Land Associated Transport Corporation of the United States.

At the opening ceremony, Yau Dakgan, chairman of the Far East group, said that he had "profound confidence in Hong Kong's future." Yuan Geng, deputy director of board of the China Merchants Steam Navigation Company Ltd, told a reporter that China had attached great importance to Hong Kong as an international port and that people should not feel pessimistic about Hong Kong's future.

VICE PREMIER WAN LI MEETS NEPALESE MINISTER

OW011245 Beijing XINHUA in English 1231 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 1 (XINHUA) -- Vice-Premier Wan Li met with Balaram Ghartinagar, Nepalese minister of industry, commerce and supplies, in the Great Hall of the People here today.

They expressed satisfaction at the development of Sino-Nepalese relations of friendship and cooperation and hoped that such relations will be further strengthened. Ghartinagar also outlined a ministerial solidarity meeting among developing countries for Nepal's industrial developments which is to be convened later this month in Nepal. Wan Li expressed support for the meeting.

Present at today's meeting were Chinese Vice-Minister of Foreign Economic Relations and Trade Lu Xuejian and Nepalese Ambassador to China Shumshere Jung Bahadur Rana Guna.

Minister Ghartinagar and his party arrived here October 30.

BANGLADESH ADMINISTRATOR MEETS ISLAMIC GROUP

OW230248 Beijing XINHUA in English 0232 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Dhaka, October 22 (XINHUA) -- Bangladesh chief martial law administrator Hussain Mohammad Ershad today received the Chinese Islamic delegation now on a friendship visit here.

Ershad told the Chinese visitors, China is the best friend of Bangladesh. The delegation's visit will further strengthen the friendship between the two peoples, in particular the Muslims of the two countries.

The five-member Chinese Islamic delegation is led by Abdurahim Latib, secretary-general of the Standing Committee of the People's Congress of Vinjiang Uighur Autonomous Region.

SHIJIE ZHISHI ON HISTORY OF SINO-UK RELATIONS

HK020341 Beijing SHIJIE ZHISHI in Chinese No 18, 16 Sep 82 pp 14, 15

[Article by Zhou Wen [0719 2429]: "China and Britain"]

[Text] Historical Complications

China and Britain are far apart from each other; one is in the east and one is in the west. However, as early as the 15th and 16th centuries, Britain tried three times to send navigators to probe a sea path from northwest Europe to China, and once, even brought along a letter signed personally by Queen Elizabeth I to the Ming Dynasty king, requesting the development of "trade between the two countries and mutual supply." Due to various factors, all the above-mentioned efforts by Britain failed. Today, the copy of that letter is displayed in the British museum as proof of the efforts made by Britain in establishing Sino-British relations.

From then until 1793, when British special envoy Lord George Macartney arrived in China and was greeted by Emperor Qianlong at his Chengde summer resort, this was the first official contact between China and Britain and Sino-British trade subsequently developed. According to statistics, a total of 70 British commercial ships arrived in China in 1832, ranking first among other foreign commercial ships. However, the British merchants' opium trade in China also developed simultaneously.

In 1839, Lin Zexu prohibited trade in opium. In 1840, Britain launched an opium war, invaded China and forced the Qing government to sign the first unequal treaty, the "Treaty of Nanjing", in comtemporary Chinese history. Since then, China gradually declined and became a semicolonial and semifuedal country. China suffered from British suppression for a considerable period. This was a period in the history of the Chinese nation in which the state suffered from innumerable calamities and was also a period in which there were complications and misfortune in Sino-British relations.

After the founding of New China, on 6 January 1950, Britain declared its recognition of our country. Shortly after that, the two countries began talks on establishing diplomatic relations. However, these were interrupted as a result of the outbreak of war in Korea. On 17 June 1954, during the Geneva Conference, China and Britain agreed to exchange charges d'affaires, thus establishing distinct semidiplomatic relations. Such relations were maintained for 18 years and were not promoted. On 13 March 1972, China and Britain signed a joint communique on exchanging ambassadors. Britain "recognized the stand of the Chinese Government concerning the status of Taiwan as a province of the PRC," withdrew its consulate in Danshui, Taiwan and changed her attitude toward the question of our country taking a seat in the United Nations. Since then, China and Britain have established official diplomatic relations and the history of Sino-British relations has turned a new page.

Friendship Between the People

It is as natural for people to meet and depart as for the moon to vary its shape. Although there are bound to be changes in Sino-British relations, the Chinese and British people have always been friendly and exchanges and cooperation between them have always been fruitful. During approximately the second century, the European continent began to know China because of its silk and the name of China was later spread to the British people beyond the English Channel. The great British writer Shakespeare mentioned China in his works. From the 17th centuray onward, China and Britain commenced direct trade. More Chinese silk, porcelain, lacquerware, and tea were imported to British markets and these products became more popular with the British people. All this inspired the British people to daydream about the China's culture: China is an ancient civilized country with oriental characteristics, the land is vast, its people are industrious, the country is rich, "everyone wears silk clothes and gold and silver are found everywhere...."

British scholar Robert Hook submitted a report in 1686 to the British Royal Society, saying that it was necessary to better understand China and "create a new field of study..."

Until recent times, science, technology and culture developed so rapidly in Britain that China began to learn from her. Two outstanding figures in the learning of British science and culture were Yan Fu and Lin Shu. Yan Fu went to Britain to study in 1877 and engaged in translating bourgeois political, economic and philosophical works such as works of Darwin, Huxley and Adam Smith. Later, he became a representative figure of the Reformist Party. Lin Shu was a famous writer and translator in the late Qing Dynasty. During his lifetime, he translated approximately 100 English works including "Henry the IV" and "Tales of Shakespeare" by Shakespeare, "David Copperfield" and "The Old Curiosity Shop" by Charles Dickens, "Robinson Crusoe" by Daniel Defoe and "Ivanhoe" by Sir Walter Scott. These well-known works have exerted a great influence on the development of our country's literature and art. On the other hand, British Sinologists also translated certain classical Chinese works, such as "The Four Books," "The Five Classics," "Thirteen Articles by Sun Zi." This also helped the British people to understand China.

The escape of Dr Sun Yat-sen in London in 1896 was a splendid moment to remember in the friendship between the Chinese and British peoples. Dr. Sun Yat-sen fled to England when the Guangzhou uprising failed. Unfortunately, Dr. Sun Yat-sen was trapped in the Chinese Embassy by the agents of the Qing ambassador in England and was locked in a small room. They planned to smuggle Sun Yat-sen back to China, to "sentence" or to poison him and then transport his corpse back to China. Just at this critical moment, a British cleaning worker in the Qing embassy picked up a letter asking for help written by Sun Yat-sen addressed to his teacher (Kantley) and promptly handed the letter to (Kantley). After receiving the letter, (Kantley) made every effort to help and finally gained the support of London press circles. When the incident was revealed in the newspaper, the whole of London was shocked and thousands of British citizens petitioned the Qing ambassador. Dr. Sun Yat-sen was finally released as a result of this great social pressure.

In the 20-odd years since the founding of New China, despite a slow development in Sino-British relations, exchanges between the people have developed greatly. In the initial stage of the liberation, when the Western capitalist countries imposed an embargo on China, some medium and small British companies actively developed trade with China by overcoming various obstacles. In 1957, Britain was the first Western European country to lift the embargo on China, and in the ensuing 10 years, Sino-British trade was always at the top of China's trade with other foreign countries. In 1954, the former British Prime Minister Attlee led a Labor Party delegation to visit China. In 1960 and 1961, General Montgomery visited China twice. These British guests were all met and received by Chairman Mao and Premier Zhou.

In addition, British writer and reporter Felix Green, Han Suyin and others have paid numerous visits to China. They have written books, given speeches, produced television series and films to extensively introduce New China. All this has aroused positive reactions among English people, Europeans and Americans, thus making contributions to the understanding and friendship between the Chinese people, the English people and people all over the world. Certain English experts have worked for a long time in certain departments in our country, making direct efforts toward the Chinese revolution and construction and maintaining profound friendship with the Chinese people.

A New Page

It has been 10 years since China and Britain officially established diplomatic relations in 1972. During these 10 years and with the hard efforts of both countries, relations between the two countries have developed. First, there have been more mutual visits of government officials. In the 18 years preceding this decade, only the British trade minister had visited China and for China's part only the vice foreign trade minister had visited Britain.

But during the 10 years since the two countries established diplomatic relations, the Chinese foreign minister, foreign trade minister and the British foreign minister and trade minister have each paid two visits to the other country. Simultaneously, Chinese and British figures at and above ministerial level in charge of science and technology, education, industry, culture, sports, public health, press and military affairs and various delegations have paid mutual visits. In 1974, the Chinese Government invited former British Prime Minister Heath to visit China. It was during the period of his office that China and Britain established official diplomatic relations. For this reason, the Chinese Government and people will not forget his contributions and have sent to the British people a pair of pandas through Mr Heath. The British Government, moreover, reflected their gratitude to us by sending a white rhinoceros and other precious animals. From this time forward, Mr Heath has paid frequent visits to China and has become a familiar guest.

In 1977, the present British prime minister, Mrs Thatcher, visited China as leader of the opposition party. In addition, former British Prime Ministers MacMillan and Callaghan have each paid visits to China, building up fruitful relations with the Chinese people.

There was an upsurge in cultural and art exchanges in 1973. The Shanghai acrobatic troupe left a very good impression on the British people when it visited England. Later, the unearthed cultural relics were exhibited in London. The large number of spectators were amazed to see the imaginately and meticulously carved bronze horses and jade clothes sewn with gold threads. Britain has sent the first-class London Philharmonic Orchestra to visit China. Since then, Chinese and British cultural, sports and arts delegations have exchanged frequent visits, enriching the spiritual life of the people of the two countries.

We have also witnessed new exchanges in the field of scientific and technological education. Several hundred Chinese students are studying various subjects in Britain, while dozens of British students are pursuing their studies in China. The teaching of the English language is presently undergoing an unprecedented upsurge in China. Britain has already sponsored two large-scale comprehensive industrial exhibitions and a few specific small-scale ones in China. Meanwhile, China has also sent various investigation groups to Britain. Among these exchanges in the field of science and technology, what should not be neglected are the efforts of Doctor Joseph Needham, professor of Britain's Cambridge University. His monumental work, "The Science and Civilization of China," which encompasses several million words, is a systematic study of the general development of science and technology, and the shaping and development of the philosophy of science of China. It has summarized the achievements of ancient China in such fields as mathematics, astronomy, geography, mechanics, civil engineering, water conservancy, navigation, printing, chemistry and so on.

This book shows the world that China had led the world in the field of science and technology in premodern times. As a British scholar, Dr Joseph Needham has shown a kind of academic spirit, which is ever worthy of respect and emulation, by engaging in the painstaking studies of the history of China's science and technology.

The development of political relationships and exchanges in the field of science and technology will inevitably push ahead development of trade between the two countries. According to statistics, the volume of trade between China and Britain was only a little more than $70 million in 1950; it increased to $180 million or more in 1960; and boomed to nearly $500 million in 1970 and to about $1 billion in 1980.

Moreover, cultural, scientific and technological organizations, universities and different circles of the two countries have also established friendly ties and enjoyed fruitful intercourses. Some Chinese and British cities are even planning to become "friendly cities."

In recent years, we began to see contacts between the leaders of the Chinese and British Governments. Vice Premier Wang Zhen and Premier Hua Guofeng visited Britain in 1978 and 1979 respectively. The British prime minister, Mrs Margaret Thatcher, paid her visit to China in mid-September this year. These visits marked a new level attained in the development of Sino-British relations.

Having undergone changes over several centuries, Sino-British relations have now been greatly consolidated like a small seedling growing into a huge tree. And, in particular, in the last decade, these relations have become closer and closer, and are benefitting both the Chinese and British peoples. To be sure, having different social systems and different historical experiences, China and Britain are still facing historical issues between them. However, if only both sides can follow the five principles of peaceful coexistence, more constructive results will surely be yielded in the effort to strengthen Sino-British relations.

FURTHER REPORTS ON PCF DELEGATION'S TRIP

Stopover in Beijing

OW292014 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1649 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, 29 Oct (XINHUA) — On the afternoon of 29 October the delegation of the Central Committee of the French Communist Party [PCF] headed by Secretary General Georges Marchais stopped over in Beijing on the way home at the end of a visit to the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

Qian Liren and Feng Xuan, deputy director and adviser, respectively, of the International Liaison Department of the CPC Central Committee, welcomed and bid farewell to the delegation at the airport. Also at the airport were Chon Myong-su, DPRK ambassador to China, and Charles Malo, French ambassador to China.

Marchais on DPRK Relations

OW301315 Beijing XINHUA in English 1202 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Pyongyang, October 30 (XINHUA) -- Georges Marchais, general secretary of the French Communist Party, has urged the French Government to recognize the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and establish diplomatic relations with it, NODONG SINMUN reported today.

Marchais, who is leading a delegation of his party on a visit to this country, made the appeal in a statement issued here on October 28.

The statement said that the French Communist Party delegation and the Korean Workers Party delegation shared the view that the relationship between the two parties is based on complete independence, equal rights, mutual respect and noninterference. Therefore, the differences and divergence of views between them should not become an obstacle to their joint actions for a common goal.

The statement expressed support for the proposal put forth by the northern part of Korea to achieve Korea's reunification through a confederal system. The statement denounced the U.S. for its opposition to this proposal. France should establish diplomatic relations with Korea at an early date.

The recognition of Korea by France will be a realistic and just action and also an encouragement and gesture of friendship to the Korean people longing for the reunification of their motherland, the statement said. The statement urged the French Government to demand the withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Korea.

Marchais: Visit Successful

OW301908 Beijing XINHUA in English 1638 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Paris, October 30 (XINHUA) -- Georges Marchais, general secretary of the French Communist Party, today called his visits to China and Korea a "great success."

Upon his return from a combined two-week stay in the two countries, Marchais said he was very satisfied with his time in China during which he had extensive talks with Chinese leaders and had common views on major issues with them.

Marchais said the French and Chinese Communist Parties had affirmed extensive cooperation programs. He was expecting a visit to France by Chinese Communist Party representatives at their convenience, he added.

Marchais said he was delighted to see the achievements made by China and Korea in their respective socialist construction.

ULANHU MEETS FRENCH BANK CHAIRMAN 1 NOV

OW011250 Beijing XINHUA in English 1242 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 1 (XINHUA) -- Ulanhu, vice-chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress, met here this afternoon with Georges Plescoff, chairman of Banque Indosuez of France, and his party.

Ulanhu congratulated the French bankers on the opening of the Beijing representative office of Banque Indosuez. He described this as a symbol of the development of the economic and trade relations between China and France. He expressed the hope that the financial circles of the two countries would enhance their cooperation and exchanges.

In the evening, Mr. Plescoff presided over the opening ceremony of the Beijing representative office of Banque Indosuez.

BO YIBO MEETS WITH FRG DELEGATION 30 OCT

OW301834 Beijing XINHUA in English 1517 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 30 (xinhua) -- Chinese State Councillor Bo Yibo met here this afternoon with a delegation from the Friedrich Ebert Foundation of the Federal Republic of Germany led by its vice-president, Heinz Juhn. The meeting was followed by a dinner hosted by Bo Yibo in honor of the guests.

CHRISTIAN GROUP CONCLUDES FINLAND VISIT

OW302028 Beijing XINHUA in English 1851 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Helsinki, October 30 (XINHUA) -- A Chinese Christian delegation led by Bishop Ding Guangxun left here for Sweden this afternoon after a five-day visit to Finland.

During its stay here, the delegation visited churches in Helsinki and Turku. Bishops of Chinese and Finnish churches exchanged information on the activities, structure and bodies of the churches in China and Finland.

Ding Guangxun and other members of the delegation also gave lectures on "Chinese Church Today", "Missionary Dimension of Chinese Church", and "Life of Chinese Church."

The Chinese Christian delegation arrived in Finland on October 26.

SPORTS EXCHANGE PROTOCOL SIGNED WITH SFRY

OW012005 Beijing XINHUA in English 1505 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 1 (XINHUA) -- The 1983 Chinese-Yugoslav protocol for sports exchange was signed here this afternoon.

Li Menghua, minister of the Chinese Physical Culture and Sports Commission, and Petar Bucu, head of the Yugoslav sports delegation and president of the Yugoslav Physical Culture Federation, signed the protocol on behalf of their respective governments.

According to the protocol, China will send in 1983 chess and figure skating teams, a sports delegation and a sports press group to Yugoslavia, while Yugoslavia will send a women's basketball team, a parachuting team to China and send a water polo referee to give lectures in China.

The protocol also said: "The both sides agree to send sports experts to the other country in accordance with their needs and the possibilities."

Present on the occasion were Lu Jindong, vice-minister of the Chinese Physical Culture and Sports Commission; Song Zhong, secretary-general of the Chinese Olympic Committee; and Radoslav Maksimovic, councellor of the Yugoslav Embassy here.

The delegation will leave tomorrow for the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

BO YIBO MEETS BULGARIAN COOPERATION DELEGATION

OW291540 Beijing XINHUA in English 1527 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 29 (XINHUA) -- A protocol on exchange of industrial experts was signed today at the close of the 20th meeting of the China-Bulgaria Scientific and Technical Cooperation Committee. Under the agreement, Bulgaria will send experts to study production and design of porcelain products, cotton textiles, printing and jacquard weave. China will send experts to study raising high-yield vegetables, plate-glass production research and environmental protection by the building materials industry.

Bo Yibo told the guests there are broad prospects for development of cooperation between the two countries in the fields of science, technology, culture and trade.

"To expand cooperation in these fields is in the interests of the two peoples," he said.

Xiao Peng, chairman of the Chinese group the Sino-Bulgarian Scientific and Technical Cooperation Committee and vice-minister of agriculture, animal husbandry and fishery, and Georgi Vutev, chairman of the Bulgarian group and vice-minister of foreign trade, signed the document.

Bulgarian Ambassador to China Nayden Belchev was also present.

RENMIN RIBAO CASTIGATES ISRAELI OFFICIALS

HK020632 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 30 Oct 82 p 6

["International Jottings" by Cang Lide [0221 4539 1795]: "Let's See How Sharon 'Deals With' Himself"]

[Text] On 19 September, the very next day after the massacre in West Beirut, Lebanon, Begin blusteringly declared that it was "utterly groundless and unreasonable" to lay the blame for the massacre on the Israeli Government. Later, Sharon, Israeli minister of national defense, swore again and again that Israeli troops had "nothing to do with" the massacre.

However, a few days ago, Sharon finally confessed before the Judiciary Committee in charge of investigating the West Beirut massacre that it was he who personally authorized the Lebanese right-wing militia to enter the Sabra and Shatila Palestinian refugee camps, and that this action led to the massacre. Sharon also admitted that his action was based on a decision adopted by the Israeli Cabinet three months ago. This confession fully proved that the arch-criminals who deliberately fabricated the massacre and brought about this horrifying tragedy were in fact none other than Begin, Sharon and their ilk.

More than a month ago, when the Association of Family Members of Israeli War Victims was urging the government to investigate the massacre, Sharon gave his definite assurance that "if mistakes really have been made, we will find them out and deal with them seriously." Good: Since Sharon has now personally confessed that he and Begin bear ultimate responsibility for the massacre in West Beirut, let us wait and see how he is going to "deal seriously with" the murderers.

SINO-IRAQI ECONOMIC COOPERATION MEETING HELD

OW251612 Beijing XINHUA in English 1558 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Text] Baghdad, October 24 (XINHUA) -- Both Iraq and China agreed that their economic and technical cooperation had made headway satisfactorily since Iraqi First Deputy Prime Minister Yasin Ramadan visited China 15 months ago.

This view was expressed at the first meeting of the permanent committee of Sino-Iraqi economic and technical cooperation. The meeting, held after the arrival of a Chinese Government delegation on October 19, was attended by Li Ke, representative of China's economic and trade minister, and Kamal ad-Din, under-secretary of the Iraqi Ministry of Works and Housing.

The two sides today signed a summary of talks which calls for further cooperation in the fields of construction, agriculture and light industry.

The Chinese delegation will tour projects in various parts of Iraq which involve Chinese workers and technicians.

DENG LIQUN MEETS SENEGALESE VISITOR 9 OCT

OW092209 Beijing XINHUA in English 1501 GMT 9 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 9 (XINHUA) -- Deng Liqun, member of the Secretariat of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of China, met here this afternoon with Bara Diouf, member of the Political Bureau of the Socialist Party Central Committee of Senegal, and president of the newspaper THE SUN.

Deng outlined the simplification of the administrative structure in the party and government central organs, introduced how the veteran and new cadres are working together and new ones succeeding old ones, and he briefed the Senegalese guest on the open-door policy China is adhering to.

Both Deng Liqun and Diouf said they hope for further development of friendly relations between the two countries and friendship between the two peoples.

Present on the occasion were Zeng Tao, executive chairman of the All-China Journalists' Association, and Mamadou Seyni Mbengue, Senegalese ambassador to China.

Diouf arrived here October 7 at the invitation of the All-China Journalists' Association. Wu Xueqian and Qian Qichen, vice-ministers of foreign affairs, and Li Shuzheng, deputy head of the International Liaison Department of the C.P.C. Central Committee, met with him previously.

WAN LI MEETS ALGERIAN PROVINCIAL GOVERNORS

OW301616 Beijing XINHUA in English 1506 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 30 (XINHUA) -- Chinese Vice-Premier Wan Li met here today with a study group of provincial governors of Algeria led by Daho Ould Kablia, secretary-general of the Ministry of the Interior.

The Algerians came here for a study tour as guests of the Chinese Ministry of Foreign Economic Relations and Trade. During their stay in China, they will discuss possibilities of expanding economic and technological cooperation between the two countries.

LI SHUZHENG CONCLUDES TANZANIA TRIP, HEADS HOME

OW311252 Beijing XINHUA in English 1228 GMT 31 Oct 82

[Text] Dar es Salaam, October 31 (XINHUA) -- Li Shuzheng, alternate member of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of China, left here this morning for home after attending the 11-day congress of the ruling Revolutionary Party of Tanzania.

Li Shuzheng read a congratulatory message from the CPC Central Committee to the congress amid rousing cheers on October 23. At the closing session yesterday she handed a message from General Secretary of CPC Central Committee Hu Yaobang to Julius Nyerere to congratulate him on his re-election as chairman of the party.

Chairman Nyerere, who is also president of the republic, received the Chinese delegate at his private residence.

Rashidi Mfaume Kawawa, chairman of the standing committee on party affairs and Daudi Mwakawago, party chief executive secretary, held a banquet in honour of the CPC delegate.

During her stay in Tanzania, Li Shuzheng also visited factories and other socio-economic units and had contacts with party activists both in the mainland and Zanzibar.

HONGQI ON PEOPLE'S WAR, DEFENSE MODERNIZATION

OW020832 Beijing XINHUA in English 0814 GMT 2 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 2 (XINHUA) -- The latest issue of the theoretical journal RED FLAG endorses Mao Zedong's concept of a "people's war" for the 4.2 million officers and men of the Chinese People's Liberation Army, while urging the forces' modernization.

"The anti-aggressive war to come would be a people's war under modern conditions," the magazine says. "Mao Zedong's great thought on people's warfare is still an important magic weapon for defeating the enemy."

A future war, the journal says, will be characterized by its three-dimensional military conduct. Thus, the P.L.A. must be turned into a powerful force, which, under modern conditions, can organize the different services and arms to fight in coordination. Every effort should be made to improve the army's organization, equipment, strategy, tactics and cadre training.

The P.L.A. is in the process of readjustment, consolidation and restructuring. Guided by the policy of fewer but better troops, it is giving more stress on the interaction of different branches and arms and on training in this field.

The article entitled "A Reliable Guarantee for Socialist Construction" says building such an army is the most important thing in modernization of China's national defense.

Referring to the relations between economic development and national defense, the article quotes Hu Yaobang, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Chinese Communist Party, as saying "strengthening our national defense on the basis of vigorous economic development". [as received]

The article says building national defense and preparations for an anti-aggressive war are indispensable in drawing up plans for the development of industry, transportation, science and education.

The article encourages the army to improve its equipment while making full use of what it already has, and reinforcing its determination to win battles with it.

The P.L.A. was established in 1927 and had only a single service until 1949, when the People's Republic of China was founded. In the 33 intervening years, the army was expanded to three services with various arms.

"We have devised and produced our own atomic and hydrogen bombs, long-range guided missiles and other sophisticated strategic weapons for self-defense", the article says.

However, it says, by and large, the military equipment of the Chinese army is still backward because of the state of the nation's economy. China can only realize the modernization of national defense step by step.

The article stresses the importance of weapons, but says political and human factors are still decisive in a modern war. Morale, combat will and the spirit of scrifice play an extremely important role in the outcome of a war.

The P.L.A. has enhanced its military capability and political consciousness by instilling its ranks with socialist ethics and improving its training, the article says.

USE OF SHIPBASED HELICOPTERS DEEMED SUCCESSFUL

OW020738 Beijing XINHUA in English 0708 GMT 2 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 2 (XINHUA) -- The successful taking off and landing of shipbased helicopters has been pronounced progress in the modernization of the air force arm of the navy of the Chinese People's Liberation Army, according to military sources. [sentence as received]

The helicopters were used in China's recent carrier rocket launching test. When the rocket splashed down, shipbased helicopters arrived upon the spot promptly so surveyers could take pictures.

The first group of helicopter pilots finished their training course with excellent marks. They required only half of the average number of training hours of foreign pilots.

EDITORIAL ON IMPORTANCE OF ENERGY CONSERVATION

HK010157 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 30 Oct 82 p 1

[Editorial: "Put Energy Conservation in a Priority Position"]

[Text] In his report delivered at the 12th CPC Congress, Comrade Hu Yaobang pointed out: "Energy shortages and the strain on transportation are major checks on China's economic development at present. Growth in energy production has slowed down somewhat in the last few years, while waste remains extremely serious." He also added: "To ensure a fair rate of growth in the national economy, it is imperative to step up the exploitation of energy resources, and economize drastically on energy consumption." This is a glorious and strenuous task for the industrial and communication fronts.

Over the past 2 years, industrial and communication fronts throughout the country have conscientiously implemented the guiding principle issued by the CPC Central Committee on paying equal attention to exploitation and conservation in solving the energy problem. They have recently put energy conservation in a priority position and have achieved remarkable results in this respect. From 1980 to the first half of this year, more than 64 million tons of standard coal were saved. However, due to our country's irrational economic and product structures, the low level of the energy processing industry and backward technological facilities, in addition to poor management of energy conservation, a great quantity of energy has been wasted. To further energy conservation work and do everything possible to economize on energy consumption is one of the most practical and effective ways of solving the present problem of the strain on energy.

Conscientiously solving the problem of energy is one of the strategic links in economic development in the coming 20 years. From a long-term viewpoint, the state should strengthen energy exploitation and construction and concentrate necessary efforts and regard energy as the key link of construction. However, due to the fact that energy exploitation is restricted by exploitation conditions, construction period and transportation, energy production will not be increased by a big margin in the near future. According to an analysis made by the departments concerned, during the period of the Sixth 5-Year Plan, the annual growth rate of the national economy will be 4 percent but energy production can only increase by about 1.5 percent. We should rely on conservation to solve energy problems. To economize drastically on energy consumption has become a strategic problem which has an overall influence over the development of the national economy. Therefore, in a certain sense, energy conservation means growth rate. As long as we do well in conserving energy, we will ensure the development of the national economy. If we fail to do well in energy conservation work and serious waste occurs in places, the progress of the four modernizations will be hampered.

At present, our country has great potential for energy conservation. The amount of national income produced by unit energy consumption is lower than in many other advanced industrial countries in the world. Furthermore, we have not yet attained the best record produced in our country's history in this respect. During the period of the First 5-Year Plan, national income created as a result of consuming one ton of energy was 1,089 yuan, but in 1981 the amount dropped to 651 yuan, a decrease of nearly 50 percent compared with the period of the First 5-Year Plan. If our national energy utilization ratio increases by 1 percent, we can save tens of thousands of tons of coal every year. Over the past 2 years, more than 64 million tons of coal have been saved throughout the country. We have scored this success mainly by restructuring our industry and products.

With regard to the improvement of management and administrative and technological reforms, we should continue to exert great efforts because energy conservation work in this respect has just started.

To drastically economize on energy consumption, we should, first of all, strengthen management. In recent years most enterprises have paid attention to scientific management work aimed at energy conservation. However, because the level of enterprise management in our country is low, our spadework has been weak and a scientific management system for energy conservation has not been established. The problem of "eating out of a big pot" with regard to energy consumption has not been completely solved. Therefore, we should strengthen scientific management and spadework for energy conservation and do a conscientious job in balancing the energy conservation of enterprises. We should speed up the work of installing the "three meters" (electricity meter, gas meter and water meter) for civil use. We should abandon the method of collecting fees at a fixed rate. Instead, we should adopt the method of collecting fees according to the amount of energy consumed. We should set advanced and rational energy consumption quotas and strictly implement the system of planned supply, setting output quotas based on fixed amounts of energy consumption and charging additional fees if more energy has been consumed than originally planned. As in doing the work of exercising control over grain rations, we should gradually do a good job in managing energy supply and utilization. With regard to the working procedures of heat treatment, casting, electroplating, forging, oxygen making and others in some industrial cities, they should be carried out in designated areas in accordance with the principle of extensive coordination between specialized departments. Processing centers should be established in order to conserve energy.

We should carry out technical reforms with our main efforts placed on the key link of energy conservation. In the future, to reduce energy consumption, we should mainly rely on the progress of science and technology. Over the past 2 years, we have carried our technical reforms with regard to some obsolete boilers, pumps, blowers and so forth and have achieved marked results in this respect. After renewing and reforming the facilities of boilers alone, in 1980 and 1981 we reduced coal consumption by more than 1 million tons. Technical reform is an effective way of reducing energy consumption by a big margin. We should grasp this work firmly. Some localities have failed to adopt effective measures to carry out technical reform aimed at energy conservation and they have not yet made sufficient progress. The role of some technical reforms for energy conservation has not yet been brought into full play. Some localities have diverted the funds earmarked for energy conservation to other purposes. Various localities should firmly grasp the work of formulating practical plans, in the light of the actual conditions of local trades, services and enterprises, to invest existing funds in the projects which need a short time for completion and which can produce rapid and effective results so that the effect of technical reforms can be seen as quickly as possible. We should conscientiously popularize and employ effective and new technology and skills for energy conservation in order to enhance the energy utilization ratio.

Correct implementation of the reward policy for energy conservation is an important measure in arousing the enthusiasm of enterprises for conserving energy. The present methods of rewarding energy conservation and energy supply as well as distribution are not beneficial to arousing the enthusiasm of enterprises. Under the present system, units which adopt advanced methods for energy conservation and need a smaller supply of energy receive only a small reward. As a result, some enterprises are not willing to pay attention to energy conservation. In the future, we should distribute fuel based on output quotas and encourage enterprises to adopt the responsibility system and allow them to retain surplus energy for their own use. We should encourage the advanced and criticize the backward. Of course, we should realize that those enterprises which consume less energy can still tap their potential and that they should make still further progress. Those enterprises which consume large amounts of energy should make greater efforts to reduce energy consumption.

Much can be accomplished in energy conservation work in our country. As long as we pay close attention to problems arising in the process of conserving energy, strengthen management of energy conservation, rely on scientific and technical progress and further reduce unit energy consumption of products, we can surely enhance the utilization ratio of energy in our country. The fourth national "energy conservation month" will start soon. We should further mobilize the masses and rely on them to do well in inspecting and making public appraisal of energy conservation. In so doing, we will be able to advance energy conservation work to a new and higher stage.

RENMIN RIBAO URGES HALT TO FOREST DESTRUCTION

HK010939 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 28 Oct p 1

[Editorial: "The Responsibility for Halting the Destruction of Forests Lies With the Leadership"]

[Text] In the "Emergency Directive on Stopping the Destructive Felling of Trees", the CPC Central Committee and State Council sternly point out that the key to halting the destruction of forests lies in leadership, and "instructing party committees and people's governments of counties with forest areas to take responsibility for supervising the enforcement of forestry protection laws and regulations." They also say that failure to stop those who break the law and destroy forests constitutes dereliction of duty on the part of county party secretaries and county magistrates, who will be held responsible for their ineffective leadership by the party committee and government at the next level up. Therefore, leading party and government organs at various levels must resolutely implement this emergency directive, take immediate and effective measures to halt the destructive felling of trees within a stated time, and vigorously and speedily deal with all cases of forest destruction according to law.

Since the issuance of the "Emergency Circular Calling a Firm Halt to the Destructive Felling of Trees" by the State Council in December 1980, the situation has to a certain extent improved in our country, but this evil practice has still not yet been checked and recently has been gradually spreading. In some places, large areas of state-owned forests were seized and destroyed; tens of thousands of mu of collective-owned wooded land were divided up or all their trees felled; and some protective belts of trees and forests in some environmental protection areas were broken up. Some people even flagrantly robbed timber being processed, and cases of forest guards and patrolmen being beaten up occurred very frequently. Such a grave situation of anarchism and disregard of state laws should be immediately stopped.

The reasons for the failure to stop the destructive felling of trees in some places are many. But the primary one is the failure to eliminate the baneful influence of anarchism from the 10 years of internal disorder. On the pretext that certain problems concerning forestry management systems and policies have not yet been solved, that the contradiction between timber demand and supply is becoming bigger and that the masses of people living in the hills should become affluent as quickly as possible, some people say that the destructive felling of trees in unavoidable and even reasonable. Such ideas and viewpoints are absolutely wrong. The protection of forest areas and the development of forestry are the starting point and end result of our forestry policies. Some problems do exist in current forestry work and they demand solutions. We should actively create conditions to tackle these problems in a prepared and systematic way, but we should in no way connive at destructive tree felling using the pretext of imperfections in the forestry management system and certain problems concerning concrete policies. This runs absolutely contrary to the party's forestry policies and goes against the fundamental interests of the masses and state. Our leading party and government organs and all cadres who work for the interests of the masses of people should by no means concern themselves simply with the immediate interests of the masses and disregard long-term and fundamental issues. In helping the masses to increase their prosperity as soon as possible we must guide and educate them to do so through their own labor, but never by means of encroaching on, stealing or plundering state property.

We must keep a sober mind on such questions of principle so that we will be able to carry out thoroughly and correctly our party's principles and policies.

At present, leading cadres in many places lack an understanding of the seriousness of destructive tree felling. Some of them turn a deaf ear to the matter or stand aside without taking it seriously; some tolerate evil by turning big problems into small ones and small problems into no problem at all; some are indecisive about taking action and adopting effective measures; and some drag out important cases of destroying forests and even shield or connive with lawbreakers. The leadership in such a situation is in fact directly or indirectly aiding the development of such evil practices. The emergency directive of the CPC Central Committee and State Council points out that wherever the evil practice of destructive tree felling is not checked, this constitutes dereliction of duty on the part of the leaders there who will be held responsible for ineffective leadership. This is the crucial point of the issue. Party and government leaders at various levels must, in close coordination with public security organs, procuratorial organs and people's courts, seriously take responsibility for conducting an earnest study of the problems concerning destructive tree felling in the areas under their jurisdiction, and resolutely adopt effective measures to halt this evil practice. In handling important cases of destroying forests, those who violate the law, whether they are ordinary people or cadres, must be dealt with seriously. It is necessary to order all those guilty to compensate for the forests they have destroyed, to impose fines on them, or to mete out punishment in accordance with the degree of the destruction and with the law. None of those who violate discipline and law should be allowed to get off scott-free. Heavy blows must be inflicted on their ringleaders. Heavy punishments must also be imposed on forestry workers who steal what is entrusted to their care. Failure to act in accordance with law is tolerance of crime. We must resolutely protect the strictness of state laws. We must make the job of stopping the evil practice of destructive tree felling into a regular one. The broad masses of party members and cadres must be educated to implement earnestly the party's forestry principles and policies and to lead the masses to observe discipline and laws by their own exemplary behavior, thus waging a resolute struggle against all practices of destroying forests.

Stopping destructive tree felling and striking blows at the criminal activities of destroying forests reflects the vital interests and common aspirations of the broad masses. The emergency directive of the CPC Central Committee and State Council about stopping the destructive felling of trees must be extensively and thoroughly propagated and explained in all localities of the country so as to make it known to every household and every individual. Furthermore, it is necessary to arouse the vast numbers of cadres and masses, under the guidance of the spirit of the 12th party congress, to do their part in protecting forests and developing forestry.

CENTRAL ORGANS TO TRAIN CADRES IN ROTATION

OW140614 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 0704 GMT 13 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, 13 Oct (XINHUA) -- The CPC Central Committee and the State Council on 3 October made a decision on education for cadres of the central party and government organs. It stipulates that from now on all cadres of the central party and government organs should be trained in rotation. It calls on the central party and government organs to carry out education for cadres constantly, to regularize and institutionalize the training and strive to raise the political and vocational level of the cadres remarkably in 3 or 5 years to meet the needs of socialist modernization.

The decision says: Since the shift in the stress of work of the whole party to socialist modernization, the central authorities have repeatedly pointed out that it is necessary to reform the leading bodies and the cadre system, strengthen education and training for cadres and insure that the ranks of cadres become more revolutionary, younger in average age, better educated and professionally more competent systematically in order to meet the new situation. The reform of the central party and government organs includes the cutting down and merger of overlapped organizations, reorganization of leading bodies, reductions in staff and in particular the retirement of veteran cadres to abolish the de facto life tenure of leading cadres. The leading bodies have begun to improve since a large number of over-aged comrades were relieved of front line posts and many outstanding and energetic young and middle-aged cadres, who possess both political integrity and ability, were promoted to leading posts at various levels. This is a good beginning. At present, we should lose no time in training cadres, carry out education for cadres constantly, regularize and institutionalize this education and strive to raise remarkably the political and vocational level of cadres of the central party and government organs in 3 or 5 years.

The decision says: Cadres are a decisive factor, once the political line is determined. [Mao quote] The general task of our party in the new historical period is to unite the people of all nationalities in working hard and self-reliantly to achieve, step by step, modernization of our industry, agriculture, national defence and science and technology and to make China a culturally advanced and highly democratic, socialist country. The quality of the ranks of the cadres and whether the cadres can meet the demands of the general task or not have a bearing on the success or failure of our socialist cause and on the prosperity or decline of our party and our country. Therefore, a large-scale, well-planned training of cadres to improve their quality and prepare large numbers of specialized personnel for socialist modernization meets the needs of the modernization program and the urgent demand to carry forward the cause, forge ahead into the future and guarantee the continuity of our party's line. It is of great strategic significance.

Recalling our party's tradition of attaching importance to the training of cadres, the decision points out: The great majority of backbone leading cadres and key staff members working on various fronts are those who were trained by our party during the revolutionary war or right after the founding of the People's Republic.

The decision points out: The training of cadres was gradually weakened and cadres painstakingly studying vocational knowledge were oppressed after the late 1950's, due to a faulty guiding ideology of our party. Particularly during the 10 years of domestic turmoil, both education for cadres and education for the people suffered grave devastation, which obstructed the learning of the people, from old persons to children. As a result, the theoretical knowledge and vocational level of the ranks of cadres as a whole is currently far from meeting work requirements. This is a very profound historical lesson. Now we should not delay the important task of training cadres any longer.

The decision says: Since recent reform, the central party and government organs have begun to eliminate overstaffing and set higher demands for the cadres' work efficiency and quality. At the same time, the personnel reeducation has created conditions and possibilities for large-scale training of cadres. Organizational reform and improvement in the quality of ranks of cadres are two important links in the efforts to overcome bureaucracy and improve working efficiency and economic results. The leading cadres at all levels of the central party and government organs should make firm determination and great efforts to overcome difficulties, immediately proceed to plan and organize education for the cadres and turn the central party and government organs into highly efficient policy-making and management organs and into big schools for training outstanding construction personnel.

The decision points out: The fundamental task of cadres' education is to enhance all cadres' Marxist theoretical knowledge, vocational level, scientific and cultural level and their leading and management ability and to turn them into qualified party and government functionaries who uphold the socialist road and possess the necessary vocational knowledge.

The decision demands: All cadres of the central party and government organs should study the basic theories of Marxism-Leninism and Mao Zedong Thought and the party's line, principles and policies. The cadres holding leading posts at and above the department or section level and the cadres working as staff members of ideological departments should study Marxist philosophy, political economy, scientific socialism, modern Chinese history and the history of the Chinese revolution in a more systematic way. In study we should emphasize adherence to the principle of integrating theory with practice, overcome dogmatism and pragmatism, make the cadres understand the Marxist stand, viewpoint and method and raise their own consciousness of the implementation of the party's line, principles and policies.

The decision says: In view of the present situation among the ranks of cadres, we need particularly to attach importance to vocational training in order to raise the cadres' vocational level. The cadres of the central party and government organs handle various types of work at various levels, but they have one thing in common, that is, they all work in leading organs. Therefore, they need to have basic and common vocational knowledge including economics, management, law, scientific leadership and working methods. They must seriously learn this knowledge which provides for the indispensable basic skills for doing work well in the central party and government organs. The cadres of the various professions at various levels should learn various specialized knowledge according to their respective specific needs in addition to learning the basic and common vocational knowledge.

The decision stipulates: In the central party and government organs, the incumbent cadres under 40 with an educational level below that of a junior middle school graduate must raise their educational level to above junior middle school in 2 or 3 years by taking makeup lessons. The incumbent cadres with an educational level above junior middle school and without specialized knowledge should raise their educational level to that of secondary technical school or college in 3 or 5 years. From now on, cadres transferred to the central party and government organs must have a minimum educational and vocational level of senior middle school or secondary technical school. Army cadres who do not meet this requirement must be trained and pass examinations before they are transferred to the central organs.

The decision says: The central authorities maintain that after 5 years or so of efforts, all cadres of the central party and government organs should attain an educational and vocational level at or above that of a senior middle school or secondary technical school graduate; the number of cadres of college or higher educational level will considerably increase every year; the cadres of college or higher educational level will account for a larger proportion in leading bodies at the ministry and commission level and at the department and bureau level. In this way, all the ranks of cadres will noticeably become more revolutionized, younger, better educated and professionally more competent, and the work in the central organs will take on a new look.

The decision says: In order to make the cadres' education a constant effort and to institutionalize and regularize it, the central authorities deem it necessary to stipulate the following policies and rules:

1. The cadres' education should be included in the national education plan. It is necessary to have a long-term and an annual plan for the training of cadres. The department of educational administration and other departments should include the cadres' education in their operational plans and management systems.

2. From now on, all cadres of the central party and government organs should be trained in rotation. In general, every cadre should temporarily leave his job every 3 years to study for 6 months, and this should become a rule. To study periodically while temporarily leaving one's job is a cadre's duty as well as his right. Some cadres who need longer training may arrange to take two or three 6-month absences from office together in order to take part in the training.

3. The cadres' training should be related to their assignment. From now on, appointments or promotions of cadres must take into account their educational background, academic performance, work experience and job performance as important foundations. For this reason, it is necessary to establish rules for evaluating and examining the cadres' study. Their study performance should be entered into their personnel record. Those who have completed the required courses with passing marks earn corresponding schooling records. A cadre who is outstanding in study and can apply his learning in actual work should enjoy higher priority in promotion than others even if their other qualifications are about the same.

4. In the period when a cadre leaves his job temporarily for study, he should receive the same wages, material and other benefits, including pay raises, as other cadres on the job do. The unit to which the cadre belongs is to be responsible for working out a solution in this regard.

5. As for young cadres who have received college education or above but lack experience in working in basic units, arrangements should be made in a planned way for them to gain experience in practical work at the frontline.

The decision says: The task of training cadres is arduous, the scale of such training is large and subjects are numerous, whereas the existing organizations, teachers and facilities for the education of cadres are very limited. In view of these facts, therefore, it is necessary to adopt concrete measures and various forms, to make use of all avaliable resources and to use socialized methods in both a scattered and a concentrated way for this purpose. All central party and government departments and commissions should conduct surveys of their cadres' educational, professional and theoretical levels to acquaint themselves with the real situation so that they will be able to train them in separate groups according to their actual conditions and different professional requirements. Various central party and government departments and commissions should make some of their buildings available for opening day classes for the professional and theoretical training of cadres with a junior middle school education or above, and this should be the main form to be adopted in this regard. Existing party and cadre schools should bring their role into full play in opening 1-year and 2-year cadre training classes and 6-month classes for advanced studies. Institutions of higher learning and technical secondary schools under the Ministry of Education and other ministries and commissions should give full play to their role in opening 2-year and 3-year special training courses or shorter training classes which should enroll younger cadres for training. Some institutions of higher learning may also admit a small number of young cadres as regular undergraduates. Continuation schools to be run separately or jointly by various departments and commissions should be mainly responsible for giving makeup cultural lessons for cadres whose educational level is lower than that of a junior middle school graduate, and they may be released from their work for such lessons or take such lessons in their spare time. As for cadres with a college education or higher, they should mainly improve themselves in work according to their professional requirements and leave their jobs for self-study for 6 months or go to institutions of higher learning or research units for advanced studies for a short period of time to acquire new knowledge.

The decision points out: After instituting a system under which cadres leave their jobs for study for 6 months every 3 years, it is still necessary to strengthen leadership over study by cadres on the job. It is necessary to encourage cadres to engage in self-study or to take spare-time correspondence, radio or television cources or to attend various types of schools.

The decision points out: Strengthening party leadership over the education of cadres is the key to improving their qualities. Ministries and commissions should be mainly responsible for the training of cadres in central party and government organs. To make overall planning for and coordinate work in the education of cadres in central party and government organs and to study and work out principles and policies for the education of cadres, it has been decided to set up a group for the education of cadres in central party and government organs by the Organization and Propaganda Departments of the Party Central Committee, the Ministry of Labor and Personnel and the Ministry of Education to do day-to-day work in this regard. This group is also to be responsible for inspecting and directing work in the education of cadres throughout the country.

RENMIN RIBAO ARTICLE ON MAO ZEDONG THOUGHT

HK220915 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 19 Oct 82 p 5

[Article by Wu Jiang [0702 3068]: "Uphold and Develop Mao Zedong Thought"]

[Text] The 12th CPC Congress which concluded victoriously not long ago is of great historical significance. The significance is felt in many respects, one of which is that the guiding position of Mao Zedong Thought was once again affirmed in the meeting and views were extremely important.

Mao Zedong Thought was acknowledged as the party's guiding thought at the Seventh CPC Congress. Relying on Mao Zedong Thought to find out the laws of democratic revolution, we won victory in the revolutionary wars and founded the People's Republic of China. A socialist power with 1 billion people has stood up in the world. Mao Zedong Thought has educated a whole generation. Subsequently, we suffered serious setbacks due to our deviation from the correct road of Mao Zedong Thought. However, in removing internal disorder, in bringing order out of chaos and in correcting mistakes, it is still necessary to rely on the generation which has been educated by Mao Zedong Thought, particularly the veteran revolutionaries who have contributed their wisdom to Mao Zedong Thought. When we say bringing order out of chaos, we mean we must restore the true colors of Mao Zedong Thought and bring the whole party onto the correct road of Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong Thought. The essence of the historical resolution which summed up the experiences of more than 30 years is none other than upholding and developing Mao Zedong Thought. It is also explicitly stipulated in the new party constitution, which was approved by the 12th CPC Congress, that the CPC takes Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong Thought as its guide in action and a scientific definition of Mao Zedong Thought was arrived at. The report of the CPC Central Committee has emphatically elaborated on the matter. Undoubtedly, just as the establishment of Mao Zedong Thought at the 7th CPC Congress guided the revolution toward victory, the upholding and development of Mao Zedong Thought at the 12th CPC Congress will also guide the socialist construction for modernization toward victory.

In recent years, people have been pondering a question: Whether Mao Zedong Thought and Marxism-Leninism are the same thing or not? If they are the same thing, why do we not just call it Marxism-Leninism without mentioning Mao Zedong Thought? This question must be answered, for it is not only a theoretical question, but also an important political question.

What is Mao Zedong Thought? The general program of the new party constitution puts it clearly: Mao Zedong Thought is the integration of the universal truth of Marxism-Leninism with the concrete practice of the Chinese revolution, as well as the application and development of Marxism-Leninism in China. It is the theoretical principle and summarized experience of the Chinese revolution and construction which have been proved by practice. Therefore, we can say Mao Zedong Thought is the developed Marxism which has been integrated with the concrete practice of the Chinese revolution. Mao Zedong Thought itself is Marxism and it is the expression, application and development of Marxism in China.

Comrades describe Mao Zedong Thought as the exuberant branches and leaves fostered in China by the big tree of Marxism-Leninsim. Comrade Mao Zedong once said: "Marxism-Leninism is a big tree and we are but some leaves." This is indeed correct. All in all, we absolutely cannot treat Mao Zedong Thought as a doctrine divorced from Marxism. There is no Mao Zedong Thought which deviates from Marxism. We cannot call anything Mao Zedong Thought if it deviates from the course of Marxism and is devoid of the contents of Marxism. It is due to the deviation from the course of Mao Zedong Thought that Comrade Mao Zedong himself made mistakes in his late years. If we lump together Mao Zedong Thought and the mistakes made by Comrade Mao Zedong in his late years, it is tantamount to the negation of Mao Zedong Thought.

Since Mao Zedong Thought itself is Marxism, can we just call it Marxism without mentioning Mao Zedong Thought? Our party has always treated Marxism as its guide in action and has always upheld the truth of Marxism. However, it is not at all difficult to talk about Marxism in abstract terms; what is more difficult is to make Marxism concrete and applicable to different countries and closely integrate it with the practice of various countries. Whether in the past or at present, people wishing to genuinely and concretely resolve China's problems with Marxism must not deviate from the road of integrating the universal truth of Marxism with the concrete practice of the Chinese revolution. After numerous hardships and difficulties, countless bloodshed and sacrifices and repeated victories and failures, a road has finally been found, that is, the road of Mao Zedong Thought. Mao Zedong Thought not only has made Marxism realized in China, achieving great victories, but also has developed Marxism under China's historical conditions. This is an objective historical fact which no one can deny.

China's dogmatists simply do not acknowledge that Marxism-Leninism is the correct theoretical principle and summarized experience put forth by China's Marxists headed by Comrade Mao Zedong on the Chinese revolution. They hold that Marxism only stems from cities in foreign countries and only "peasant guerrillaism" could be produced in China's rural areas. Around the time of the Yanan rectification movement, after criticizing dogmatism and eradicating blind faith in foreign experience at the 7th CPC Congress, various theroetical principles of Mao Zedong Thought were systematically put forward and the party's Marxist level raised rapidly. The history of the establishment and development of Mao Zedong Thought was one whereby Marxism took root, grew and developed victoriously in China. This is the simple truth which has been proved in practice.

We all know that in a speech delivered in 1919, Lenin emphatically pointed out: The people of various oriental countries were facing a task which the communists in the world had not met with, that is, to apply the general theory and practice skillfully to backward countries where the dominant masses were peasants. Mao Zedong Thought was none other than the method, road and eventually the result of the application of the general theory and practice of Marxism under China's circumstances. In China, the banner of Mao Zedong Thought is the banner of communism. We would like to remind those people who are determined to learn communism: In China, if one deviates from or looks down upon the theoretical principles and practical methods of Mao Zedong Thought, it will be difficult for one to understand the general theory and practice communism. To say the least, one will take a roundabout course.

The essence of Mao Zedong Thought is the recognition that the truth of Marxism must not be divorced from revolutionary practice in various countries, but must proceed from the concrete practice in various countries; otherwise, the truth of Marxism will become impractical empty talk. Therefore, whether carrying out revolution or construction, Marxists in all countries must proceed from their own reality. We may learn from the experience of foreign countires and take them for reference, but cannot copy them without any change; for we will not meet success by just copying others' experience.

That is why Comrade Deng Xiaoping emphatically pointed out in his opening speech: In carrying out construction for modernization, we must "integrate the universal truth of Marxism with the concrete practice of our country, take our own road and build socialism with Chinese characteristics. This is the basic conclusion after we have summed up protracted historical experiences." As our party was able to open up a unique road with Chinese characteristics in the period of democratic revolution without precedent in the history of the world's proletarian revolution, we will certainly be able to open up a road of building socialism with Chinese characteristics in practice provided we implement the spirit of Mao Zedong Thought, In this sense, the 12th CPC Congres may well be considered as a meeting for determining, mapping out and opening up the grand project.

Why do we say that maintaining independence and keeping the initiative in our own hands is a basic point of Mao Zedong Thought? The basic point of Mao Zedong Thought is evidently derived from the principle that the universal truth of Marxism must be integrated with the concrete practice of each country. Things must be done according to different conditions in various countries and by everyone's own efforts. Our demand on ourselves is to "take our own road" and not to copy others' patterns; likewise, we must respect others by allowing them to "take their own road," and never impose on them. Since we have achieved victories in revolution by integrating the universal truth of Marxism with the concrete practice of our own country, we have no reason to demand that other countries carry out revolution and construction according to our pattern. In dealing with foreign countries, we must respect the parties and people of various countries and let them find out roads, probe experiences and recognize laws. It should never be allowed for a party or country to give orders to other parties or countries, do everything on behalf of them and unscrupulously blame them. There have been many lessons of unscrupulous interference in China's revolution. We do not issue orders to others and neither do we allow ourselves to be ordered around. This is the principle of maintaining independence and keeping the initiative in our own hands of Mao Zedong Thought. The 12th CPC Congress has specifically elaborated this principle, which is of great historical and international significance. We have noticed that some foreigners have vilified Mao Zedong Thought by labeling it as "big-nation chauvinism" and have willfully stood truth on its head. Conversely, Mao Zedong Thought is absolutely incompatible with hegemonism. As a matter of fact, Mao Zedong Thought has grown and developed in the struggle against big-nation chauvinism, the doctrine of control by big powers, and the doctrine of foreign patterns and dogmatism. A declaration is guaranteed by Mao Zedong Thought, the guiding thought of the Chinese people, that China will never seek hegemony.

The general program of the new party constitution also explicitly points out: The Chinese Communists headed by Comrade Mao Zedong have integrated the universal truth of Marxism with the concrete practice of the Chinese revolution and established Mao Zedong Thought. That is to say, Mao Zedong Thought is the crystallization of the collective wisdom of the CPC. The report of the CPC Central Committee added the following explanation: "The experience of the party's 60-year history has revealed to us that the reason why the party was able to lead the Chinese people in achieving one victory after another lies in the integration of the universal truth of Marxism with the concrete practice of the Chinese revolution. The greatest historical merit Comrade Mao Zedong and other veteran revolutionaries have attained is that they have successfully realized the integration." With his distinguished talent, Comrade Mao Zedong has become the principal representative for realizing the integration of, establishing of and explaining of Mao Zedong Thought. Therefore, it is absolutely justified and fair that the thought is named after Comrade Mao Zedong. However, Mao Zedong Thought does not belong to Comrade Mao Zedong personally. In other words, Mao Zedong Thought should in no way be considered as his individual thought only. At a preparatory meeting of the 7th CPC Congress, Comrade Mao Zedong made remarks on "Resolutions on Some Historical Problems," saying: "The resolution has imputed all merits to me and I would like to make some comments on it. It would be more acceptable to put me as a representative. If there is me only, there would be no Communist Party of China."

These words are also applicable to Mao Zedong Thought. No doubt, it was impossible to establish Mao Zedong Thought without a genius. However, no genius would make it and achieve success without collective wisdom and the creation of the masses. Once Mao Zedong Thought, a scientific truth, was established, it objectively possessed specific contents, independent of any individual's ideological alteration. Although Comrade Mao Zedong, who has made great contributions to scientific truth, made mistakes in his later years, Mao Zedong Thought itself has not lost any of its brilliance. In other words, it is absolutely impossible to deny the truth of Mao Zedong Thought due to the mistakes made by Comrade Mao Zedong in his later years. Likewise, although Comrade Mao Zedong no longer exists in the world personally, due to collective efforts, and particularly to the excellent contributions made by the veteran proletarian revolutionaries who are still alive, Mao Zedong Thought has developed under the new historical conditions. Here, I would like to raise the following three points:

First, on the one hand, Mao Zedong Thought must be adhered to and it is absolutely wrong to doubt, waver, or think that Mao Zedong Thought is out of date. On the other hand, Mao Zedong Thought must develop, or more precisely, stress should particularly be laid on its development. Time is forging ahead. We must continuously find out the objective laws in carrying out socialist construction in a big country such as China which was economically and culturally backward in the past. This is the new task we are facing. Since Mao Zedong Thought was established on the basis of the integration of the universal truth of Marxism with the concrete practice of the Chinese revolution, it is all the more natural to further perfect and develop the integration under the new historical conditions. (Provided we are faithful to Marxism and are determined to realize it, the historical process of the integration will never end.) It is wrong not to develop and to be complacement and conservative. As a matter of fact, since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, we have summed up both positive and negative experiences in socialist construction, vigorously pushed forward the new course of integration and made remarkable achievements. Now, we have a better understanding of the laws of socialist development than at any time in the past. As long as we seriously study the 12th CPC Congress documents, we can see it clearly. In his opening speech, Comrade Deng Xiaoping concisely expounded the historical position of the 12th CPC Congress, summarized the basic experiences and laws of the Chinese revolution and the construction for modernization, set forth the three great tasks in the 1980's and the four jobs which must be firmly grasped, prominently showed his mature tactics in applying Mao Zedong Thought and pointed out the direction for developing Mao Zedong Thought. The report made by Comrade Hu Yaobang on behalf of the Central Committee has further enriched and perfected the program and various guiding principles and policies put forward since the third plenary session for realizing the construction of modernization. The above-mentioned integration has been upgraded to a new level in such fields as the description of strategic targets, main points and steps in economic construction, the exposition of building socialist spiritual civilization, the elaboration on the policy of maintaining independence and keeping initiative in our own hands, the theory on class struggle in the new era, the theory on party construction in the new era and the collaboration with and replacement of the new and old leading cadres of the party. There is an important passage at the conclusion of the report, which is worth quoting. It goes like this: "In the new historical period, it is one of the most creative undertakings in the history of mankind to build China, with its backward economic and cultural base, into a modernized socialist power. Many problems involved in it were not, and could not have been, raised or solved by Marxists in the past. In such an undertaking, ideological and political deviations of one kind or another or deviations in concrete work may occur within our ranks. This is not strange, nor can it be avoided entirel What is important is that the whole party, particularly party committees at all levels, must uphold the four basic principles, adhere to the correct line followed since the 3d Pleanry Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee and oppose both the 'left' tendency of trying to revert to the erroneous theories and policies which prevailed during and before the 'Great Cultural Revolution' and the right tendency of bourgeois liberalization as reflected in distrust or rejection of the four basic principles.

"We must resolutely take over and learn to use the stand, viewpoint and method of Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong Thought, acquire a deeper understanding of the actual work in all fields, make systematic investigations and studies, and be good at conducting appropriate criticism and education and waging necessary struggles against wrong tendencies. Provided we persist in doing this, we can certainly accumulate new experience, break new ground in theory and carry forward Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong Thought under new historical conditions and in great new fields of practice."

Second, while explaining and studying Mao Zedong Thought, we cannot deviate from the overall historical situation of our party and our country. We must study Mao Zedong Thought through the historical development of the party. In other words, we must study the historical process of the integration of the universal truth of Marxism with the concrete practice of the Chinese revolution and its experience. Particularly at crucial historical moments and turning points, we must skillfully compare, research and sum up both positive and negative experiences. Meanwhile, we cannot deviate from the investigation and research into present reality. New problems which have emerged one after another need to be solved. Even those problems which seemed to be solved in the past need to be solved again. For example, we raised and began solving in the 1950's the problem of integrating the collectivization of agriculture, a general formula of Marxism-Leninism, with the reality in China's rural areas, but even now in the 1980's it remains a vital problem. It is thus clear that the process of the integration is a protracted, tortuous and even repeated one, requiring continuous search and progress through practice. The appearance of various forms of responsibility system in agricultural production has opened up a new road for integration. In this field, we should use the stand, viewpoint and method of Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong Thought to solve many practical problems and do much hard work in theoretical research. No new achievements will be contributed spontaneously if we deviate from practical application and study.

Third, we cannot deviate from the study and research of the works of the veteran proletarian revolutionaries other than those of Comrade Mao Zedong either. On studying Marxism, Lenin once said: "In order to correctly evaluate Marx's views, it is absolutely necessary to be familiar with his closest comrade in arms and friend Engels' works. Without understanding all works of Engels, it is impossible to understand and completely explain Marxism." ("Collected Works of Lenin" vol 21, p 72) Likewise, if we want to completely understand Mao Zedong Thought and its stand, viewpoint and method, we must not only study the works of Marx, Lenin and Mao Zedong, but also must be familiar with the works of those veteran proletarian revolutionaries who have pioneered our great cause together with Comrade Mao Zedong. Generally speaking, these works have fairly concretely and profoundly expressed the successful integration of the universal truth of Marxism with China's concrete reality in certain specific fields, such as the field of economic construction, the field of united front work and the field of party building. In recent years, the speeches and articles of these veteran revolutionaries have played an extremely important role in restoring the true colors of Mao Zedong Thought and in explaining the genuine content of Mao Zedong Thought. Due to the efforts made by the personnel engaging in document compilation work in our country, we have gradually come to possess study materials in this field. Now we are to study and research the process of integration in various fields in a much wider scope.

The work in the coming 5, 10 and 20 years is extremely important. We are living in a new era of historical development. We have already entered the stage of building the new world from that of breaking up the old one. However, the old world is still encircling and influencing us. The voyage of construction for modernization is filled with terrifying waves and the task is indeed very hard and difficult. Nevertheless, provided we persist in the four basic principles, uphold and develop Mao Zedong Thought, firmly apply the stand, viewpoint and method of Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong Thought and seriously find out the law of development in socialist society, the law of economic construction and the laws in all fields, it may well be anticipated that all difficulties can be overcome, serious setbacks can be avoided and new miracles can be achieved. Posterity will evaluate the 12th CPC Congress just as we did the 7th CPC Congress.

VICE MINISTER OUTLINES CAPITAL CONSTRUCTION GOALS

OW020129 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1300 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, 1 Nov (XINHUA) -- All workers on the capital construction front throughout the country must give full play to the fine tradition of waging arduous struggle and being brave and skillful fighters, further launch an emulation drive to learn from and catch up with the advanced, and work hard with concerted efforts and make fresh contributions to fulfilling the magnificent goal of China's economic construction. This is what Vice Minister of the State Economic Commission Peng Min said in his report, delivered at the national meeting to commend representatives of advanced construction enterprises, collectives and individuals today.

Peng Min said: For the past 30 and more years, the broad masses of workers on the capital construction front throughout the country have written many magnificent epics with their own hands on the vast land of the motherland. Not long after the founding of the New China, they successively finished 156 major projects. In the remote and uninhabited great northern wilderness, they have relied on their own efforts in exploiting the Daqing oilfield. In the high mountain ridges in southwest China, they have successfully built the Panzhihua iron and steel base area and the Liupanshui coal base area. On the torrential Huang He and Chang Jiang, they have built the Liujiaxia hydraulic power station and Gezhouba water conservancy project. On China's plateau areas, where terrains are complicated and weather is often very bad, they have cut into mountains and put up bridges and succeeded in repairing and building the Baoji-Chengdu, Chengdu-Kunming, Xiangfan-Chongqing and south Xinjiang railways. In northeast and southwest China, they have cut through brambles and thorns and planted new forests. On the long coastline of the motherland, they have built many deepwater berths for 10,000 ton vessels.

During the chaotic 10 years, we have resisted the pressure from the "gang of four" and completed many large modern enterprises, including 13 large chemical fertilizer plants, 4 large chemical works, 4 large power-generating stations and the 1.7-meter rolling mill of the Wuhan Iron and Steel Company. We have built many houses for the people in cities and towns throughout the country and added many facilities for the development of science, education, culture and public health.

We feel extremely proud and glorious when we recall our past achievements.

Peng Min said: The 12th national party congress calls for efforts to quadruple China's annual gross value in industrial and agricultural production before the turn of this century. In order to achieve this goal, we must engage in capital construction on a large scale, either in the first decade, aimed at achieving vigorous economic development. As the main force in capital construction, the construction workers will shoulder extremely glorious but arduous tasks. In the course of construction, we must try a thousand and one ways to shorten the construction period and improve economic results in making investments. Large and medium-sized projects undertaken from now on will be completed in 5 years instead of the previous 8 years, except for a few exceedingly large ones. A new coal mine designed to produce up to 1 million tons annually will be completed in 5 years, and a mine designed to produce 2 to 3 million tons of coal annually will be completed in 6 or 7 years. A medium-sized thermal powerplant must be built in 3 years, and a large thermal powerplant in 5 years. Large and medium-sized cement factories, textile mills, paper mills and machine-building factories must be completed in 2 to 3 years. Construction projects, either productive or nonproductive, must meet the standards set by the state. We must try to achieve the goal of making all industrial projects successfully go into operation at first trial.

Peng Min pointed out: All construction enterprises must follow the examples set by the No 2 Handan Municipal Construction Company, the No 6 Beijing Municipal Company, the No 4 Engineering Company under the Ministry of Petroleum Industry and other outstanding state-run engineering enterprises in pushing the campaign of completing all projects with superlative performances to a new high level.

In building projects for civil or industrial purposes, in building large or small projects or in building general or complex projects, all enterprises must stress top quality. To build top-quality projects, they must set high and strict demands on themselves and not build projects only to make up numbers. Top-quality projects must not become a mere formality and must be checked and accepted according to high standards. Enterprises in charge of construction must unswervingly practice the economic responsibility system and keep improving it. At the same time, they should make quick technological progress and extensively adopt advanced methods, technology, machinery and tools for construction in order to lay a new technological foundation for construction and production.

Peng Min stressed: The key to successfully fulfilling new construction tasks lies in successfully building up the ranks of workers and staff members. Since nationwide liberation, our construction workers force has grown from a small and weak force into a big and strong one of nearly 10 million. This force, with a fine tradition of devotedly serving the people, bearing hardships and standing hard work, is capable of building modern projects requiring complicated techniques. All enterprises in charge of construction should further carry forward this fine tradition, step up communist education of their workers and staff members, foster the communist attitude towards labor among them and enable them to have the militant style of daring to fulfill formidable tasks. They should organize workers and staff members to study culture, science, technology and management, strive to build the ranks of construction workers into a mighty, highly disciplined force with advanced ideas, proficient skills and the style of being able to pass the stiffest tests and work hard to attain our country's grand goal in economic construction.

CONSOLIDATING ENTERPRISE LEADERSHIPS STRESSED

OW261031 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1425 GMT 20 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, 20 Oct (XINHUA) -- In a speech at a meeting today of departments under the State Council on enterprise reorganization, Zeng Zhi [2582 1807], deputy director of the Organization Department of the CPC Central Committee, pointed out: The various departments, provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions must firmly grasp the reorganization and building of leading bodies of enterprises in a practical way; their leading members must personally take part in organizing the departments concerned to work in close coordination so that the leading bodies of major enterprises can be consolidated before the end of this year.

Zeng Zhi said: With regard to most enterprises, the salient problems that still remain rather commonly in the leading bodies of enterprises at present are the aging and overstaffing of personnel and their lack of specialized technical and management and administrative knowledge; the progress in solving these problems has been slow.

According to statistics, of the 300 enterprises listed by 18 departments recently as the first group to be reorganized, nearly 32 percent of the leading bodies have been reorganized; 28 percent have submitted reorganization plans; and at present 40 percent of the enterprises still have not come up with reorganization plans. This is chiefly due to the fact that the leaderships are afraid to face hardships and are not determined enough. Since the reorganization of the leading bodies of enterprises is an urgent and important task that has to be accomplished, leading cadres at all levels must tackle it as a vital task; organization departments on the other hand must rank the reorganization of the leading bodies of enterprises as one of their important tasks.

In reorganizing the leading bodies of enterprises, it is necessary not only to select young and middle-aged technical personnel of good standing but also to promote to leading positions at all levels a number of personnel who are good in management and administration. Adequate provisions should be made for old cadres who step down so that they can continue to play a role. In the course of reorganizing enterprises, steps must be taken to ensure effective division of work between the party and the administration; a party committee secretary should do the party work well and should not take on too much administrative work; he should strengthen the party committee and administrative setup and make them perfect.

Zeng Zhi emphasized that not a single person of the following categories should remain in the leading bodies. They are: the three types of persons who prevailed during the "Great Cultural Revolution," persons who oppose the central line since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee and persons of all descriptions who violated law and discipline.

Zeng Zhi added: Whether a leading body in an enterprise is properly reorganized should in the end be measured in the light of actual prevailing conditions; we should see whether or not the enterprise's appearance has changed, its economic results have improved and a new situation has been created. However, as for reorganization at the present stage, its effect can be measured and examined by the following four criteria: 1) the number and age limit of personnel in the leading bodies the meet requirements prescribed in the relevant central documents issued this year and in the joint circular of five departments including the State Economic Commission and the Organization Department of the CPC Central Committee, the phenomena of having an excessive number of old personnel and overstaffing have been eliminated, and the personnel are small in number but highly trained; 2) members of the leading bodies possess the cultural level and specialized knowledge necessary to cope with the needs of the four modernizations, the organizational structure has become more rational and specialization more complete; 3) a plant manager responsibility system under the leadership of the party committee and a party committee setup have been established to clearly define the division of work between the party and the administration; 4) the leading bodies are full of vigor and vitality, united and militant, truly becoming the guides and men of action in leading workers and staff in socialist construction, and the workers are happier.

YUAN BAOHUA ON LARGE ENTERPRISE CONSOLIDATION

OW221331 Beijing Domestic Service in Mandarin 2230 GMT 20 Oct 82

[Text] Addressing the 6th regular meeting attended by representatives of departments of the State Council on 20 October to discuss consolidation of enterprises, Yuan Baohua, vice minister in charge of the State Economic Commission and head of the national enterprise consolidation leading group, stressed that, to increase economic results and speed the pace of economic construction, special attention must be directed at improving large enterprises, which are vital to the national economy.

He said: Improving large enterprises so that their management, technical level and economic results are at the forefront of national economic development is of strategic significance for attaining the grand objectives put forward by the 12th CPC National Congress, creating a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization, achieving a fundamental improvement in our country's financial and economic situation and quadrupling the gross industrial and agricultural output value by the end of this century.

Yuan Baohua continued: Paying special attention to large enterprises is an important aspect in improving our economic work, in consolidating our enterprises, in enhancing technical transformation and in restructuring the administrative system.

He pointed out that paying special attention to large enterprises means improving their leadership, management and technical level so that expected economic results can be attained.

He said: Improvement in large enterprises lies in three requirements. First, large enterprises must be consolidated. This means that they must have competent leading groups, especially competent secretaries and factory directors. Outstanding and knowledgeable cadres, capable of opening up a new situation, must be chosen within the enterprises, from enterprises of the same trade or throughout the country and appointed to be secretaries and directors of large enterprises.

Secondly, the Capital Iron and Steel Company's experience of perfecting the system of economic responsibility must continue to be popularized.

Thirdly, large enterprises' development plans must be effectively enforced.

DENG LIQUN ADDRESSES WORKERS' EDUCATION MEETING

OW291141 Beijing Xinhua Domestic Service in Chinese 1442 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Excerpts] Beijing, 23 Oct (XINHUA) -- At a meeting with all the representatives attending a forum on supplementary cultural and technical education for young and middle-aged staff and workers on the afternoon of 22 October, Deng Liqun, secretary of the CPC Central Committee's Secretariat, said that workers' education is a strategically important and very promising task. He expressed the hope that all comrades connected with this work will remain at their respective work posts and consider making workers' education successful their life career.

Deng Liqun said: To strengthen the task of workers' education and the contingent of educators, we plan to enlist a number of teaching enthusiasts from among ministers, bureau and department directors and other cadres who have retired but are still quite healthy, to take part in this task. We may assign them specific work or ask them to be our advisers. We may also ask them to conduct investigation and study, compile teaching materials, give lectures or sum up their experiences. By so doing we will continuously expand and consolidate the contingent of teachers in workers' education.

Yuan Baohua, chairman of the national administration committee on workers' education, presided over and addressed the forum. He said that workers' education is a continuous task. The focus of this task at present continues to satisfactorily implement the "Decision on Strengthening the Task of Workers' Education" issued by the CPC Central Committee and the State Council in 1981 and to pay great attention to these four aspects: ideology, planning, organization and measures.

The forum was jointly sponsored by the national administration committee on workers' education, the Ministry of Education, the Ministry of Labor and Personnel, the All-China Federation of Trade Unions and the CYL Central Committee. It was held in Beijing from 16 to 22 October. Over 100 representatives from some provinces and municipalities, related ministries and commissions and basic-level mines, factories and enterprises summed up and exchanged their experiences and discussed the "opinions on some questions concerning the task of supplementary cultural and technical education for young and middle-aged staff and workers."

DENG LIQUN ATTENDS NATIONAL LIBRARY CELEBRATION

OW240100 Beijing XINHUA in English 1203 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 23 (XINHUA) -- The National Library of China is celebrating its 70th anniversary at a ceremony here today.

Addressing the ceremony, Deng Liqun, secretary ofthe Secretariat and head of the Propaganda Department of the Chinese Communist Party Central Committee called on the staff to make full use of its existing facilities and contribute more to the development of library work.

Zhu Muzhi, minister of culture, said that library work is a hallmark of a country's level of material and spiritual civilization, especially the quality of the latter. "It is essential to focus our efforts to build this library into one with an abundant collection of books and modern facilities to serve socialist development," he said.

The ceremony was attended by 180 guests.

According to Tan Xiangjin, deputy director of the library, it is to be the central repository of books, the national center for cataloguing and international exchange and the center for research in library science.

The unified classification of books in China worked out by the National Library in 1980 has been already adopted by most of the libraries in the country. A catalogue of rare editions is now being compiled.

Around 60 percent of the eleven million books in its stacks are in Chinese. This includes 60,000 volumes in the languages of 24 of China's minority nationalities. Foreign publications are available in 115 languages, mostly English, Russian, Japanese, French and German. It has exchange arrangements with 2,000 institutions in 120 countries and regions. Since 1949 every publishing house in China has sent the library three copies of every new book published.

The National Library has 16 reading rooms, both general and specialized, such as one for scientists to read literature in their fields in Chinese and foreign languages. Something like 2,000 people a day -- mostly scientists, college students and self-educated youth -- use the reading rooms daily. In 1949, the library only catered to 100 readers a day. Today, not only Beijing people, but anyone in the country, can borrow books from the National Library through their local libraries. The library staff of 950 includes 59 people each with more than 30 years of experience, and three with half a century's work.

Rare editions in the library come to 280,000 volumes, including a fifth century Buddhist scroll, a 12th century wood-block collection of Buddhist scriptures and more than 200 volumes of a hand-written copy of the Yong-Le encyclopedia of the Ming Dynasty (1368-1644). It also has a collection of 30,000 inscribed tortoise shells and animal bones that date back 3,000 years.

Among its special services are telephone and mail replies to inquiries, information about deposits of iron, copper and gold in China that were taken from old regional records for the benefit of industrial departments and assistance to specialists such as Cao Yu in writing his historical play "Wang Zhaojun" set in the first century B.C. and the British scientist Joseph Needham in his monumental work "Science and Civilization in China."

Plans for the future include re-housing the National Library in the western suburbs of Beijing, enlarging its floor space to 140,000 square meters and providing reading rooms for 3,000 people at a time. Book selection, cataloguing and circulation will be done by computer and there will be micro-film storage and reading facilities.

The National Library's predecessor was the Metropolitan Library of Peking established at the end of the Qing Dynasty and formally opened after the 1911 revolution. The origins of the collection go back to part of the imperial library of the Southern Song Dynasty (1127-1279) and the imperial library of the Ming Dynasty (1368-1644).

DENG YINGCHAO HAILS PUBLISHING FIRM ANNIVERSARY

HK010809 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 29 Oct 82 p 4

["Deng Yingchao's Message of Greeting to the Joint Publishing Company"]

[Text] Owing to reasons of health, I cannot attend your commemoration party, but can only write a few words to extend my regards.

The three publishing houses made contributions to the revolutionary cause of publication during the war of resistance against Japan and the war of liberation. Since the birth of New China, the Joint Publishing Company has continued to work hard at the job of publication.

I cordially wish the comrades in the Joint Publishing Company even greater contributions and successes in the building of a high degree of socialist spiritual civilization, inspired by the spirit of the 12th party congress.

Deng Yingchao
27 Oct 82

YANG JINGREN ATTENDS ZHEJIANG UNITED FRONT FORUM

OW011215 Hangzhou Zhejiang Provincial Service in Mandarin 1030 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Yang Jingren, director of the United Front Work Department of the CPC Central Committee and minister in charge of the State Nationalities Affairs Commission, who is currently conducting investigation and study in Zhejiang, participated in a forum on the morning of 28 and 29 October at the provincial CPPCC conference room to discuss implementation of the guidelines of the 12th CPC National Congress and opening up a new situation in united front work under the new situation. The forum was attended by personnel of various democratic parties, responsible persons of the provincial federation of industrialists and businessmen, well-known nonparty personages and representatives of religious circles and nationalities. Present at the forum were responsible persons of various democratic parties, the provincial federation of industrialists and businessmen and noted personages from all circles Tang Yuanbing, He Zhibin, Li Maozhi, Pan Denglian, (Li Tianzhu), (Qian Zuen), (Zeng Jiming), (Zeng Yuanxi) and (Xin Kong), who presented reports on the progress made in their respective units since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee and on the implemenatation of the documents of the 12th CPC National Congress. They also put forth suggestions on further carrying out united front work.

Comrade Yang Jingren said: The central task of all united front work departments at all levels and of our friends of all circles outside the party is to study earnestly the documents of the 12th CPC National Congress and understand the spiritual essence of these documents. This has an important bearing on whether or not we can open up a new situation in united front work. Yang Jingren said: The key to implementing united front work and creating a new situation for furthering this work lies in the elimination of "leftist" ideas. It is hoped that the united front work departments at all levels will further eliminate the influence of "leftist" ideas, thoroughly conduct investigation and study, strengthen inspection and supervision and implement the united front work policy in earnest according to the CPC Central Committee instructions.

Yang Jingren said: The principle of long-term coexistence and mutual supervision between the party and nonparty organizations would consistently be upheld and implemented in all fields of work. It is hoped that our friends of the democratic parties will continue to develop this glorious tradition of working in cooperation from now on, report on the current situation, put forth views and suggestions for our work, help the party and government in implementing the united front work policy and consolidate and develop the patriotic united front so as to make contributions toward the reunification of the motherland and the realization of the four modernizations.

YANG SHANGKUN, OTHERS WATCH DANCE PERFORMANCE

OW020816 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1514 GMT 31 Oct 82

[Excerpt] Beijing, 31 Oct (XINHUA) -- China's noted dancer Zhao Qing gave a very successful performance at the Tianqiao Theater in Beijing this evening. Zhao Qing, who has performed Chinese folk dances for 31 years and has continued to search for new forms of dance art, said: "I wish to express my feeling for life in the form of dance and pass on beauty to the audience."

Comrades Yang Shangkun, Zhao Yang, Zhu Muzhi and He Jingzhi watched tonight's performance.

OPTICAL FIBER COMMUNICATIONS CONFERENCE ENDS

OW011001 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1615 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Wuhan, 30 Oct (XINHUA) -- A national conference on technology and planning in optical fiber communications ended in Wuhan today. Some 90 experts and research personnel from various localities across the nation carried out serious discussions on how to make further progress in the study and utilization of optical fiber communications technology to transform China's backward telecommunications.

The experts pointed out that to advance China's optical fiber communications technology from the experimental stage to that of application, it is necessary to take the whole country into account and promote division of labor and cooperation in tackling key problems. Only by doing so can we overcome the disadvantages of having a scaarcity of funds and backward technology.

According to the plans formulated at the conference, optical fiber communications technology will be widely popularlized and used in China in the late 1980's, and it will become a major means of trunk line communications in China by the end of this century.

Optical fiber communications is a new technology developed in the last 10 years and more. The advantages of optical fiber communications over conventional means are larger communications capacity, tighter communications security, longer relaying distance and greater savings in the use of nonferrous metallic materials and energy. In the United States, Britain and Japan, optical fiber communications technology has already been applied to urban telephone systems. It was in the early 1970's that China began to study this new technology. Thanks to the efforts of scientific and technological personnel, China's optical fiber communications technology has reached that of the advanced nations in the mid-1970's.

COASTAL URBAN FORUM HELD IN TIANJIN 25 OCT

OW302112 Beijing XINHUA in English 1240 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Tianjin, October 28 (XINHUA) -- An urban economic forum, bringing together representatives from eight of China's major coastal cities, opened here on Tuesday.

Attending the forum are more than 100 theoretical workers and representatives from research and planning institutes and industrial finance and trade, and import and export departments in Beijing, Tianjin, Dalian, Qingdao, Shanghai, Guagzhou, Xiamen and Shenzhen. Ninety-one papers, reports and studies have been presented at the gathering.

The overall purpose of the 7-day discussion is to exchange views, carry out research on economic theory and study development in the coastal cities.

The discussion is focusing on the following problems:

-- The position and role of the coastal cities in China's modernization.

-- How coastal cities can best utilize international and domestic resources and markets, absorb foreign investment and import techniques.

-- How coastal cities can stimulate economic contacts and cooperation with enterprises in the nation's interior and establish viable commercial networks.

-- How coastal cities can maximize application of scientific technology and scientific educational centers.

-- How to further improve facilities of the ports and harbors, communications, posts and telecommunications, trade and banking in the coastal cities.

The discussion is sponsored by the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences, the Tianjin Federation of Philosophy and Social Science, and the Economic Institue of the Dalian City Planning Committee.

CUSTOMHOUSES SAID SUCCESSFUL IN SMUGGLING WORK

OW311152 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 0155 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, 30 Oct 82, (XINHUA) -- It was disclosed at the national conference on customhouses' antismuggling work that Chinese customhouses have achieveded significant success in rebuffing smuggling in the past 2 years. The meeting, which is now in session in Beijing, reports that from the second half of 1980 through the first half of 1982, customhouses in various localitites tracked down over 51,000 smuggling cases, in which smuggled goods valued at more than 159 million yuan were involved.

Today, the large-scale smuggling activities along the coastal areas of southeast China have been basically checked, the markets in which smuggled goods were sold openly have been basically eliminated, and the phenomenon in which large amounts of smuggled goods were sold and purchased by some enterprises and establishments has been basically halted. More cadres and people have become active in rejecting and reporting the criminal elements engaged in smuggling and in trading smuggled goods. Certain smugglers, pressed by the situation, have surrendered to the authorities concerned and have been magnanimously handled by them.

The party Central Committee and the State Council have been attaching great attention to rebuffing the crimes of smuggling and trading in smuggled goods. Many meetings have been held and relevant laws and regulations have been enacted in this regard. At the 22d meeting of the 5th NPC Standing Committee held last March, the provisions in our country's "law of criminal procedures' regarding the penalties for smugglers were revised and supplemented. It has now been stipulated that criminals guilty of serious and major smuggling offenses can be given life imprisonment or even the death sentence. During the past 2 years and more, Chinese customs officers have firmly implemented the party's and the state's policies and regulations and have carried out a brave and resourceful struggle against all types of smugglers. During the struggle, they have worked honestly in performing their official duties and have rejected the lure of gain.

The national conference on the antismuggling work of customhouses maintains that, while the customhouses must give the greatest convenience to legitimate trade, they must realize that smugglers both at home and abroad will not stop their criminal activities, and because the smugglers' tricks will be even craftier and better concealed, customhouses must heighten their vigilance.

At present, the customs officers have stepped up studying the documents of the 12th CPC National Congress, summing up their experiences and studying new countermeasures in order to intensify their antismuggling struggle under the new situation.

PENG DEHUAI BIOGRAPHY GROUP VISITS GANSU

HK300534 Lanzhou Gansu Provincial Service in Mandarin 1125 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] A party of eight persons including Peng Dehuai's widow Pu Anxiu and (Wang Yan), director of the Peng Dehuai biographical group and former director of Commander Peng's office, collected materials on Peng Dehuai's revolutionary activities in Gansu from 14 to 28 October. While in Lanzhou, they visited places where Commander Peng fought and lived in the past and met old fighters and comrades who fought with him all over the country. Du Yide, Xiao Hua, Feng Jixin, Wang Shitai, Wang Bingxiang and other leading comrades cordially received Pu Anxiu and all the members of the Peng Dehuai biographical group.

RURAL TRANSPORTATION CONFERENCE CLOSES IN SHANXI

OW012035 Beijing XINHUA in English 1558 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] Taiyuan, November 1 (XINHUA) -- Chinese peasants have built annually an average of 20,000 kilometers of rural roads in the past few years, according to a national conference that closed today in Changzhi, Shanxi Province.

The roads promote the flow of goods and materials between city and country and enliven the rural economy.

By the end of 1981, the conference was told, roads linking various counties and people's communes totalled 604,000 kilometers in length.

Now, bus service is available in more than 2,000 of China's counties, with the exception of out-of-the-way Medog County in Tibet and Derong County in Sichuan Province. Buses also serve more than 90 percent of the country's people's communes and 80 percent of the production brigades, delegates said.

While inspecting in August 1981 Jindongnan Prefecture in southeastern Shanxi, rich in coal and farm and native products, Hu Yaobang, then chairman of the Central Committee of the Chinese Communist Party, pointed out: "Highway construction is the best way to transport from the prefecture. Construction of more roads will help in the transporting of local mountain and native products."

He said: "Construction of roads available for handcarts is a prequisite for the development of the local economy."

From autumn last to the end of August this year, the prefecture built 85 roads totaling 1,004 kilometers long. The prefecture now has 5,519 kilometers of roads, 17.4 times that of the early 1950s.

The prefecture expects to ship 13 million tons of coal in 1982, including seven million tons by roads. Trucks also transport farm produce and native products, including walnuts, pears, apples and persimmons.

"Though progress has been made in rural road construction, the number still falls short of the need in rural economic development. To date, bus service is not available to 4,000 people's communes and 140,000 production brigades," an official of the Ministry of Communications told the delegates.

The conference urged local authorities to build more rural roads before next spring, particularly for those communes and brigades not accessible by roads.

SUSTAINED DEVELOPMENT OF FAMILY PLANNING URGED

OW010923 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1229 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Report by XINHUA correspondent Zhan Xiang]

[Excerpts] Beijing, 28 Oct (XINHUA) -- A responsible person of the State Family Planning Commission said today that data obtained by the census shows that China's present population growth rate is still quite high and that we are faced with the tendency that our population may again increase.

He said: The population question concerns social and economic development as a whole. For the principles and policies of our four modernizations drive to really produce good results, we must keep our population under control. The 12th party congress clearly stated that family planning is a basic policy of our state and that we must do our utmost to keep our population within 1.2 billion by the end of this century. This means that on the basis of our present population of 1.03 billion, we must keep the average net annual population growth under 11 million for the next 18 years.

The responsible person continued: In 1981, the country's birthrate was 2.091 percent, and the natural growth rate was 1.455 percent. This shows that the total number of births is now at its peak. Family planning workers in all areas must keep abreast of the developing situation and must not slacken their efforts.

He emphatically pointed out: Laws should also be enacted on family planning. It is necessary to enact laws and regulations more suited to the actual conditions to guarantee sustained development of family planning work.

BA YI RADIO SAYS PLA COMMAND CADRES BEING PURGED

OW020530 (Clandestine) Ba Yi Radio in Mandarin to China 1325 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] The slogan of achieving stability and unity has been explicitly put forward since as early as the resolution of the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee. The resolution pointed out the decision to launch no political movement or seize on others' faults, put labels on people or use the big stick. However, some persons, proceeding from personal interest, are continuing to use despicable means to harm others. Particularly since the end of the 12th CPC National Congress, some central leaders have again begun to transfer army leaders and purge army cadres. Moreover, they again treat army cadres with the tricks of those political movements, such as labeling people and using the big stick. They even use various excuses to remove army cadres from military command. What upsets the army cadres the most is that they are wantonly accused of being so-called remnants of the Lin Biao clique.

Some persons even said threateningly: The remnants of the Lin Biao-Jiang Qing counter-revolutionary clique still exist. They hold certain leading posts, oppose the party's correct line and boycott the central authorities' correct decisions. We must wage resolute struggles against them.

This shows that they disregard historic facts, continue to equate Lin Biao with the gang of four and continue to use the Lin Biao case, which was fabricated by the gang of four, to strike at, push out and eliminate leading army cadres at various levels. Some persons even attempt to label Defense Minister Comrade Geng Biao as (?Lin Biao's follower). They spread rumors that Geng Biao and Lin Biao had been good friends since they were in the Whampoa Military Academy, Geng was later Lin's subordinate in the 115th Division, and so on. Based on these rumors, they conclude that Geng Biao has been deeply affected by Lin Biao's pernicious influence and he has connections with Lin Biao's remnant force. They are using these dirty tricks to strike at Comrade Geng Biao in order to push him out of the army. They also attempt to label many other army leaders as Lin Biao's sworn followers.

All those who took part in the three support's and two military's tasks [support industry, support agriculture, and support the broad masses of the left; military control and military training -- tasks given to the PLA during the Cultural Revolution] -- are likely to be accused at any time of being the remnants of the Lin Biao counterrevolutionary clique and of opposing the correct line adopted since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee.

In short, the tricks of seizing on others' faults, labeling people and using the big stick are being used against the army cadres who are disliked by certain persons. No doubt, this practice grossly violates the guidelines of the resolutions adopted by the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee and subsequent meetings including the 12th CPC National Congress. The central leading organs elected by the 12th CPC National Congress should not ignore this phenomenon.

BA YI RADIO REPORTS PROBLEMS NOT SOLVED IN PLA

OW011003 (Clandestine) Ba Yi Radio in Mandarin to China 1325 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] In the course of studying the documents of the 12th CPC National Congress among PLA units and military organizations the broad masses of commanders and fighters have raised many realistic questions. They are annoyed by the fact that the Central Committee still is prejudiced toward the army, makes no serious efforts to solve its problems and wantonly attacks army cadres. They are disappointed that Comrade Deng Xiaoping's opening speech, Comrade Hu Yaobang's report and all group discussions that followed touched very little on the question of army building, other realistic problems facing army units and requiring solution without delay and the question of livelihood of the broad masses of commanders and fighters. In the light of all this, the 12th CPC National Congress cannot be compared with the 8th CPC National Congress in any way.

People of the older generaton still remember how at the Eighth CPC National Congress Comrade Peng Dehuai, in his report, described in full detail the army building tasks, the principle of the party leading the army, the army's political work and the cadres' building tasks. All the questions raised by Old Commander Peng were discussed warmly and seriously by the delegates to the Eighth CPC National Congress and facts show that their views played an important role in army building. At the 12th CPC National Congress, however, because they were restricted by the so-called guiding principles, delegates and even Geng Biao, Yang Dezhi, Yang Yong, Xiao Ke, Wu Kehua and other key PLA leaders were unable to fully discuss the many serious problems now facing the army.

After the Eighth CPC National Congress, a lively situation emerged in the army as the broad masses of commanders and fighters enthusiastically studied and discussed the congress documents, including Old Commander Peng's speech. The current tasks of the army were clearly understood. Throughout the ranks, the army went all out to revolutionize and modernize the army. On the other hand, the situation after the 12th CPC National Congress was quite different. Most regrettable was that the 12th CPC National Congress failed to define a specific principle for army building or a concrete plan for modernizing national defense. It did solve problems of deep concern to the whole army, the Lin Biao issue, the problem of correct party leadership over the army, the question of policy toward army cadres regarding their retirement and demobilization and so forth.

Furthermore, a new purge started after the 12th CPC National Congress aimed at the General Political Department and the navy. Transfers of leading persons in the various service branches and military regions will soon be carried out in a manner whereby "those who submit will prosper; those who resist shall perish." The little trick played in the case of Geng Biao's transfer cannot but arouse the people's indignation.

Early this year, a certain person wanted to make Comrade Wei Guoqing minister of national defense. Later, for his own convenience, he also named Comrades Zhang Aiping and Qin Qiwei as candidates for minister of national defense. Obviously such a way of doing things has a most deterimental effect on the morale of the commanders and fighters and on the stability and unity in the army leadership. In short, instead of diminishing, the problems in the army have increased in number since the 12th CPC National Congress.

RENMIN RIBAO CARRIES HONGQI TABLE OF CONTENTS

HK020615 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 30 Oct 82 p 7

[Table of contents of HONGQI No 21, 1982, published in 1 Nov]

[Text] Speech by Hu Yaobang: "Uphold the Concept of One Dividing Into Two; Attain a Still Higher Goal"

Article by Shi Youxin: "Carry on the Study of the 12th CPC Congress Documents in a Deep-Going Way"

Article by Zheng Hui: "Party Building and the Program of Creating a New Situation in All Fields"

Article by Lu Zhichao: "The Basic Policy of Attaining a High Level of Socialist Democracy"

Article by Shao Huaze: "A Reliable Guarantee for Socialist Construction"

Article by Qi Wen: "Correctly Understand Our Country's Independent Foreign Policy"

Excerpts of speeches made at forum on studying the 12th CPC Congress documents:

Wang Men: "Raise the Ideological Level of Literary and Artistic Works and of Writers and Artists"

Wu Zuqiang: "Grasp the Building of Socialist Spiritual Civilization With the Same Vigor and Determination as in Grasping the Building of Material Civilization"

Liu Shaotang: "Build Socialist Literature With Communist Thinking as Its Core"

Chen Guangzhong: "Films Should Aim at Fostering Beauty of People's Minds"

Yu Shuzhen: "When Giving Performances, Actors Should Pay Attention to Social Effect"

Jiang Kun: "Bring Healthy Literature and Art to the People"

Chen Haosu: "A Glorious Mission of the CYL"

Zhang Liqun: "In Fostering New Socialists, It Is Imperative To Persist With Communist Education"

Article by Yang Yichen: "Take the Road of Coordinated Development in Agriculture, Industry and Commerce"

Article by HONGQI editorial office for theoretical education: "How To Study the Sixth Part of the Report to the 12th CPC National Congress"

Article by Zhao Qi: "Why Do We Say That It Is Possible To Quadruple the Gross Annual Value of Industrial and Agricultural Production by the End of This Century?"

Article by Xu Ke: "Why Is It That Peasant Incomes Should No Longer Be Increased Mainly by Raising the Prices of Farm Produce?"

Article by Wu Hong: "How Should We Understand the Notion That the Socialist Character of Spiritual Civilization Is Determined by Ideological Education?"

Article by Li Ming: "A Discussion on 'Governing the Country by Doing Nothing Against Nature'"

HEBEI SIMPLIFIES PARTY, GOVERNMENT ORGANIZATIONS

OW011039 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 0031 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Shijiazhuang, 28 Oct (XINHUA) -- To simplify administration, reduce the number of overlapping departments and bring into full play the functions and role of each unit, the Hebei Provincial CPC Committee and the provincial government recently decided to abolish 54 temporary organizations. The decision is backed and supported by a vast number of cadres.

This is another reform step taken by the provincial party committee and provincial government after an appropriate division of labor. The temporary organizations that were abolished are 10 leading organs under the provincial party committee including the foreign affairs work leading group and the endemic diseases prevention and control leading group, and 44 government organizations, including the provincial family planning leading group, the provincial student enrollment commission, the provincial economic diversification leading group and their staff offices. The work of these organizations has been taken over by relevant leading comrades and functional departments.

The general offices of the provincial party committee and provincial government have issued a circular to the prefectural, municipal and county party committees and governments, as well as departments directly under the provincial party committee and provincial government, calling on the provincial departments in charge to take up the work after the abolition of the temporary organizations and other departments concerned to actively support and cooperate to ensure success. As a rule, no temporary organizations should be set up from now on.

NEI MONGGOL'S ZHOU HUI SPEAKS ON COMMODITIES

SK290327 Hohhot Nei Monggol Regional Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] According to our sources, Zhou Hui, first secretary of the Nei Monggol Autonomous Regional CPC Committee, recently pointed out that, in creating a new situation of daily commodity circulation among rural and pastoral areas, the first stress should be laid chiefly on doing a good job in purchase and sales this year and trying in every possible way to pay cash in procuring extra farm and sideline products, such as grains, oil-bearing seeds, sugar beets and meat, from peasants and herdsmen. With cash in hand, peasants and herdsmen can buy all the much needed daily commodities for their livelihood and production at any time. The second stress should be laid on gradually establishing or perfecting managerial methods suitable to the new situation created in the period since the enactment of responsibility systems by carrying out some renovations.

The statement of Comrade Zhou Hui was advanced at the recent meeting sponsored by the regional CPC committee with the participation of secretaries from various league and municipal CPC committees. On the basis of extensively relaying and disseminating the 12th CPC Congress documents in the former period, the meeting was aimed at making further efforts to mobilize the people to study, publicize and implement the 12th CPC Congress guidelines and discussing issues on how to create a new situation of work in conjunction with concentrating on major work arrangements for the first half of 1983.

Comrade Zhou Hui stated: In financial and trade circles over the past few years, there have been more and more new problems emerging in the production field, particularly among rural and pastoral areas. Difficulties in purchase and sales are fairly common. Peasants and herdsmen of various nationalities have raised more and more urgent demands that these difficulties be overcome. While making an inspection tour in the former period among eastern leagues and municipalities in the region, Comrade Hu Yaobang referred to these difficulties wherever he went. He also mentioned issues on commodity exchanges between urban and rural areas and on encouraging individuals to be daily commodity retailers and assigning households to oversee business transactions.

Therefore, leading personnel at all levels and comrades on the financial and trade front, while studying and implementing the 12th CPC Congress guidelines, should earnestly master Comrade Hu Yaobang's instructions, vigorously conduct investigations and studies and engage in pilot work so as to create a new situation of daily commodity circulation in rural and pastoral areas as soon as possible.

SHANXI'S HOU SHILIAN STRESSES PARTY CAPABILITIES

HK250340 Taiyuan SHANXI RIBAO in Chinese 9 Oct 82 p 1

[Report: "Speaking at an Enlarged Meeting of the Provincial CPPCC, Comrade Huo Shilian Stresses That the Party Organizations in Shanxi, With Their Glorious Traditions, Are Certainly Capable of Leading the Four Modernizations Drive Well"]

[Text] On 6 October Shanxi Provincial CPC Committee First Secretary Comrade Huo Shilian met the CPPCC members, responsible persons of democratic parties and well-known figures of all circles attending the 28th enlarged standing committee meeting of the provincial CPPCC and made an important speech on problems of concern to everyone in studying the 12th party congress documents.

Comrade Huo Shilian said: The central task of the 12th party congress is to mobilize the people of the whole country to create a new situation in socialist modernization and accomplish the great goal of quadrupling the total value of industrial and agricultural output by the end of the century. The key to accomplishing this goal lies in party leadership and in whether there can be a fundamental turn for the better in party work style. The party in Shanxi has a foundation and a long history; it has glorious traditions. During the war years, most parts of Shanxi were revolutionary bases, and large numbers of party cadres emerged amid the struggle after arduous steeling and severe tests. The party organizations in Shanxi have made major contributions to revolution. There were many upheavals in Shanxi during the 10 years of turmoil, and its party organizations suffered heavy damage. In the past 2 years, the Shanxi Provincial CPC Committee has resolutely implemented the spirit of the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee and worked according to the central line, principles and policies, with the result that very great changes have taken place in the province's situation. First, we have corrected the "leftist" error of learning from Dazhai in agriculture, thus freeing the rural cadres and masses from their spiritual fetters; and, secondly, we have done a good job in putting things to rights after carrying out investigatory work, and corrected a large number of miscarriages of justice. This has greatly mobilized the masses' enthusiasm for working hard at the four modernizations.

Comrade Huo Shulian the introduced the excellent situation in the province. He said: This has been another bumper year for agriculture in Shanxi, thanks to correct party policies, favorable weather and the hard work of the masses. Output may equal the previous record. As a result of readjustment, industrial production has started to rise from its decline since the second half of last year, increasing each month. Financial revenue work is also relatively good. He pointed out: Although the situation in the province's industrial and agricultural production is very good, we must also realize that there are still very great potentials for increasing production, since our cultural and scientific knowledge is insufficient and our management standards low.

After introducing to everyone the recent work arrangements made by the provincial CPC committee, Comrade Huo Shilian emphasized: The key to whether we can successfully lead socialist modernization lies in whether we can bring about a fundamental turn for the better in party work style. He expressed sincere hope that nonparty comrades would help the party to rectify its work style. The united front was one of the three magic weapons during the democratic revolution period. The united front is still very important for us today in socialist construction. After all, there are only a few CPC members among the masses, and if we fail to closely rely on the broad masses and patriotic democratic figures, it will be impossible to accomplish the four modernizations. Although some comrades are not party members, they play a backbone role in work.

In the new historical period, we must do a good job in united front work, and the CPC and the democratic parties must treat each other with absolute sincerity, show utter devotion to each other, and work together to build China into a country with strong economy and spiritual civilization.

Comrade Huo Shilian pointed out in conclusion: I hope that the comrades will criticize any shortcomings or errors in the work of the provincial CPC committee and government. I also hope the comrades will put forward any food suggestions they have. So long as we unite as one, it is fully possible to achieve the great goal of quadrupling.

After Comrade Huo Shilian had spoken, the participants in the meeting held lively discussions. Comrade Zhu Weihua, secretary of the provincial CPC committee and vice chairman of the provincial CPPCC, delivered a summation. He said: We are now in the springtime of united front work. This is a new period of great tasks and great prospects for intellectuals and fightersof all circles. I hope everyone will be the party's "friends who give forthright admonition" and that they and the party will show utter devotion to each other, share weal and woe and work together to build out our country. All present at the 6 October meeting were provincial CPPCC Vice Chairman An Zhifan, Tao Jian, Ling Daqi, Li Shunda, and Wang Dingnan; Feng Shutao, vice chairman of the provincial people's congress standing committee and chairman of the provincial democratic league; and Pan Ruizheng, chairman of the provincial committee of the KMT revolutionary committee.

YANG SHANGKUN VISITS TIANJIN WATER PROJECT

SK280928 Tianjin City Service in Mandarian 0030 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Excerpts] According to TIANJIN RIBAO, in the company of Qin Jiwei, alternate member of the CPC Central Committee Political Bureau and commander of the Beijing PLO units, Yang Shangkun, member of the CPC Central Committee Political Bureau and permanent vice chairman of the military commission of the party Central Committee, made a special trip to the work site of the key Luanhe water-diversion project on 27 October to visit commanders and fighters of a certain PLA unit stationed in Tianjin and a certain PLA railway unit. Also accompanying Comrade Yang Shangkun were Fu Chongbi, political commissar of the Beijing PLA units, Yan Tongmao, deputy commander; Chen Bin, chairman of the Science, Technology and Industry Commission for National Defence, and Zou Jiahua, vice chairman. Li Ruihuan, secretary of the Tianjin Municipal CPC Committee, acting municipal mayor and commander of the Luanhe water-diversion project headquarters, made a special trip to the work site to welcome them.

During his inspection tour, Comrade Yang Shangkun expressed satisfaction with the PLA units' progress, work quality, safety facilities and frugality, cordially received their leading cadres and gave important directives. He said: I have made a special trip here today to visit all of you. I am happy to see that you have done a good job and have greatly prefulfilled your tasks and that the quality of work is excellent. First of all, I extend greetings to all of you. He said: Not long ago, our party held its 12th congress and set forth a fighting objective for achieving a quadruple increase. Can we achieve a quadruple increase? Some people lack confidence in this. The best explanation is to invite those who are skeptical of achieving a quadruple increase to visit the work site. Your work achievements can answer this. We absolutely can achieve a quadruple increase.

Comrade Li Ruihuan said: Comrade Yang Shangkun and other leading comrades have made a special trip to the work site. This not only encourages the commanders and fighters working here but is also a great soucce of support for Tianjin Municipality. Comrade Yang Shangkun's directive is suitable not only to the Luanhe water-diversion project but also to all other work. I believe that so long as we have both revolutionary zeal and a scientific approach, we can surely achieve a quadruple increase.

Comrade Yang Shangkun also inspected the work site of the (Panjiatou) reservoir project.

HEILONGJIANG'S YANG YICHEN ATTENDS CPC MEETING

SK220024 Harbin Heilongjiang Provincial Service in Mandarin 2200 GMT 20 Sep 82

[Text] On 20 September the Heilongjiang Provincial CPC Committee convened an enlarged standing committee meeting. Yang Yichen, first secretary of the provincial CPC committee, and Chen Lei, Chen Junsheng and Li Jianbai, secretaries of the provincial CPC committee, conveyed and explained the guidelines of the 12th party congress to standing committee members.

At the discussions, standing committee members reviewed the history of our party and discussed the historic significance of the congress. They said: The 12th party congress has a profound significance in the history of our party. The seventh party congress unified the ideology of our party and inspired its spirit to win victories in the war of resistance against Japan and in the war of liberation. The 12th party congress summed up both positive and negative experience of our country's revolution and construction and will certainly create a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization.

Standing committee members continued: The third plenum of the party Central Committee fundamentally smashed the serioues fetters of the longstanding left mistakes, corrected the guiding ideology of our party and defined anew the Marxist ideological line, resulting in the third historic change. We should never underestimate the historic role of the third plenum. If we say that the Zunyi meeting enabled the party to take the broad road, we should believe that after the historic change, our party will increasingly develop in the future and the situation will become better and better, though there is a great difference in historical conditions.

Participants dicussed ways to study the documents of the congress. Comrade Yang Yichen, first secretary of the provincial CPC committee, put forward three demands: 1) We should seriously study the documents of the congress in order to fully understand the spirit and essence of the documents by ourselves but should not wait for others' instructions. 2) We should attend to plans. Bearing in mind the actual situation, all departments must devise ways and reliable measures to put forward the target and measures of quadrupling the annual industrial and agricultural production value. 3) Attention should be placed on the current tasks. From now on, all party members and cadres should actually set themselves examples in studying and implementing the guidelines of the 12th party congress.

JILIN'S QIANG XIAOCHU URGES UNITY WITH CPC

SK221139 Changchun Jilin Provincial Service in Mandarin 2200 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Text] On 22 October JILIN RIBAO carries on its front page an article by Comrade Qiang Xiaochu entitled "Acting in Unison Politically With the CPC Central Committee is the Guarantee for Creating a New Situation of Socialist Modernization."

The article states: The 12th CPC Congress has profound historic significance and practical and immediate importance. In scientifically summing up both positive and negative experience gained in history, the opening speech and report at the 12th CPC Congress put forward the task of creating a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization and displayed a grand and heartening blueprint. This is where the desire of our party and the people lies. Under the leadership of the CPC Central Committee, we must believe in the new situation and task and display the revolutionary spirit and hardworking principle in fulfilling the glorious historic task. We must do a great quantity of work in all fields. But the most important rule among hundreds of thousands of ones for a Communist and a party cadre is to march forward in political unison with the party Central Committee.

It is the basic principle for all Communists and all party organizations and an important guarantee for the study of the guidelines of the 12th party congress with a view to creating a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization.

The article states: Only by acting in unison can the entire party achieve success in revolution. Being a party which leads a big country with a population of 1 billion, the CPC cannot do without either high-level democracy or high-level centralism on the basis of high-level democracy. Only by earnestly and thoroughly implementing the party's democratic centralism can we faithfully abide by the CPC Central Committee's correct instructions in politics, ideology, organization and action.

The article states: Owing to a failure in thorougly eliminating the anarchistic influences of the Great Cultural Revolution, in which there were neither organizations nor discipline, various exploiting class ideas still corrode the people. Problems of impurity in ideology, work style and organization within the party have not been totally dealt with. Some persons in our party and our revolutionary ranks who have been deeply influenced by leftist thinking still have meager understanding of the party's line, principles and policies set forth in the period since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee. Some even adopt suspicious, passive and antagonistic attitudes toward these principles and policies. Most of them have problems in understanding, and few of them, with ulterior motives, obstinately maintain erroneous things applied in the period before the third plenary session and even before the Cultural Revolution. Of course, they cannot act in unison in politics with the CPC Central Committee, and they run counter to the principles and policies. Though they are few in number, they have a certain capacity for maneuver. Therefore, in acting in unison in politics with the CPC Central Committee, it is necessary to eliminate various forms of interference and wage necessary struggles against them.

The article points out: Acting in unison in politics with the CPC Central Committee is not an abstract term and empty slogan but should be practically carried out with concrete deeds. In the current sense, efforts should be made to earnestly study and profoundly master the 12th CPC Congress guidelines, implement to the letter the combat outline set forth by the 12th CPC Congress and uphold the party's line in politics, ideology and organization.

The article states: In acting in unison politically with the CPC Central Committee, it is necessary not only to resolutely support the central authorities in ideology, but also to absolutely abide by the unified command of the central authorities in organization and action, and resolutely implement the decisions and instructions issued by the central authorities. Under no circumstance should we say yes and mean no, or overtly agree but covertly oppose. Efforts should be made to follow the organizational principles of the new party constitution, such as individuals abide by organizations, the minority abides by majority, lower organizations abide by higher organizations and all party organizations and members abide by the CPC National Congress and the CPC Central Committee. By no means should we indulge in factionalism and set up mountain strongholds, or indulge in the despicable acts of forming groups by taking advantage of powerful higher-ups and displaying the fraternal spirit of gangs. Resolute efforts should be made to oppose the trend of extreme democracy and the undisciplined and liberalist acts of refusing to implement the party's line, principles and policies because they are not in conformity with personal interests, resulting in complaints and passive resistance. All words and deeds of every party member and revolutionary cadre cannot run counter to the party's regulations and rules.

In conclusion, Comrade Qiang Xiaochu's article states: Acting in unison politically with the CPC Central Committee should not be regarded as a task to be fulfilled only by personnel in charge of party work but should be regarded as a political and organizational principle commonly followed by personnel in charge of political, economic, cultural and educational, and scientific and technical work. History has shown that our revolutionary cause is flourishing and invicinble only when the entire party has acted in unison in politics, ideology and action with the CPC Central Committee. On the contrary, our revolutionary cause will suffer from losses or failure when localities across the country act independently and defiantly, make decisions for themselves and go their own way.

Therefore, acting in unison in politics with the CPC Central Committee is the vital guarantee for carrying forward the excellent situation, successfully implementing the 12th CPC Congress guidelines, making further progress in achieving the two civilizations and creating a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization.

JILIN WORK CONFERENCE ON MILITIA TRAINING ENDS

SK301305 Changchun Jilin Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] The provincial work conference on militia training held by the provincial military district concluded in Changchun today. The conference analyzed the situation of militia training of the province over the years, summed up and exchanged experiences in training militiamen, determined some standing problems in training militiamen and discussed ways to create a new situation of militia training in 1983. Thirteen departments including departments of Yanji, Yitong and (Kuancheng) Districts in Changchun Municipality delivered briefs on their experiences in training militiamen. A military skill demonstration was held by six excellent military instructors from various PLA units stationed in the province.

The conference held: The situation of militia training in the province from 1982 has been good. By the end of September, the province had overfulfilled its annual mission of militia training.

The conference called on all militiamen of the province to make contributions to the realization of the general fighting objective of quadrupling the annual industrial and agricultural output value, to the three fundamental turns for the better and to putting the militia work on a solid basis organizationally, politically and militarily.

JILIN'S QIANG XIAOCHU RECEIVES ORPHANS 27 OCT

SK010559 Changchun Jilin Provincial Service in Mandarin 2200 GMT 31 Oct 82

[Excerpt] In April Qiang Xiaochu, first secretary of the provincial CPC committee, received a letter from three brothers and sisters -- (Yang Yurong, Yang Yuqiou and Yang Yulin) -- at the (Fenghua) colliery.

Qiang Xiaochu learned that while the gang of four was on a rampage, they became orphans at a mine. After that, they were brought up by (Sun Jingsheng), a veteran party member and armyman transferred to civilian work. Qiang Xiaochu personally wrote an ebullient letter to encourage them, from which they learned a profound lesson.

Recently (Yang Yulin) joined the CYL and the PLA to be a glorious soldier in response to the party's call. On 27 October, with grateful feelings, the three orphans reported to the provincial CPC committee on their ideological progress and problems, the progress of their study and their working conditions. Comrade Qiang Xiaochu received them.

LIAONING'S GUO FENG AT CPC COMMITTEE PLENUM

SK290616 Shenyang Liaoning Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Excerpts] The sixth enlarged session of the fifth provincial CPC committee set forth six tasks for the coming winter and spring period: 1) efforts should be made to organize party members and the masses to study the documents of the 12th party congress; 2) attention should be paid to economic work; 3) results should be achieved in restructuring organizations and building leading bodies; 4) the preparatory work for party consolidation should be done well; 5) the building of socialist spritual civilization should be further pushed forward; 6) a proper arrangement for the well-being of the people should be made.

The session called on the party members and people of the province to take the guidelines of the 12th party congress as guidance to open further a new situation for Liaoning Province and to work hard to realize the grand objective and all the tasks set forth at the 12th party congress.

The session was held in Shenyang on 22-28 October. On behalf of the provincial CPC committee, Li Huang, permanent secretary of the provincial CPC committee, delivered a report entitled "Thoroughly Study and Implement the Guidelines of the 12th Party Congress and Earnestly Attain Good Achievements in the Work of the Coming Winter and Spring." Guo Feng, first secretary of the provincial CPC committee, spoke at the session. Xu Shaofu, secretary of the provincial CPC committee, made a closing speech.

All the participants insisted on the style of study of integrating theory with practice and bringing democracy into full play. They had a lively discussion on how to further study and implement the guidelines of the 12th party congress, on what Liaoning should do while the whole nation quadruples its output targets and on various forms of work. In order to develop the work of the coming winter and spring, we should have a unified understanding of the guidelines of the documents of the 12th party congress and lay a correct ideological basis.

The session put stress on firmly grasping the economic work. The session pointed out: This year the economic situation of the province is very good, but attention should be paid to some unfavorable factors. In the coming winter and spring, we will meet some difficult questions. The party committees at all levels should make efforts to arouse the cadres and people's political enthusiasm, arousing it by study of the documents of the 12th party congress, to develop the production and work. The broad masses of cadres and the people should work hard in order to conquer difficulties in a unified way. In rural areas, efforts should be made to train cadres during the coming winter and spring period.

In line with the guidelines of the 12th party congress, we should attend to summing up, improving, developing and upgrading production responsibility systems. In the previous period, our minds were not free enough, so we did not give free rein to implementing the responsibility system of signing contracts with households for specialized production and, in particular, the system of letting households assume full responsibility for farm work. The masses' enthusiasm was obstructed to a certain extent and could not be brought into full play.

In the previous period, the agricultural production responsibility system was taken as a "three-dependence" team by which poverty could not be overcome because of incomplete understanding. The agricultural production responsibility system is a measure by which we can not only overcome poverty but can also step up to prosperity. Both poor teams and rich ones should conduct it and teams engaged in field crops and paddy crops may also implement it. We should further emancipate our minds with regard to the system of signing contracts with households for specialized production and the system of letting households assume full responsibility for farm work; especially the system of letting households assume full responsibility for farm work.

We should concentrate our efforts on diversified economy on the premise of attending to grain production. The key to success in developing the diversified economy lies in doing a good job in responsibility system enactment. Efforts should be made to make overall arrangements for peasants, leave proper leeway for them, sign contracts with them, assign specialized work and set up a network among different production teams. The system of signing contracts with individuals or households for specialized production should be stressed. Great attention should be paid to developing those households engaged in specialized production and key production so as to achieve the requirements of ideological followup, technical support and convenient transportation.

The industrial and communications fronts and the capital constructions fronts should further tap the potentiality among enterprises and try every possible means to improve economic results. We should ensure a three-percent increase and strive to obtain a four-percent increase in the 1982 industrial output plans. We should continue to conduct enterprise consolidation and conscientiously popularize the economic responsibility system to further raise economic results.

Energy resources will be in short supply in the coming winter and spring. All trades and professions should smash self-absorbed thinking and try every means possible to conserve energy while achieving a steady increase in output. The session pointed out: At present, the five-stress and four-beauty campaign has brought us a concrete situation for conducting education in communist ideology and morality and revolutionary disciplines.

FANG YI VISITS COMMUNE FAMILY IN GANSU PROVINCE

SK031035 Lanzhou Gansu Provincial Service in Mandarin 1125 GMT 2 Oct 82

[Text] According to GANSU RIBAO, accompanied by Provincial Governor Li Dengying, Fang Yi, member of the Political Bureau of the CPC Central Committee and member of the State Council, on 30 September inspected (Shuangwan) Commune in Jinchang Municipality and visited commune members of (Chenjiagou) brigade. In (Shuangwan) Commune, each person has produced 1,000 jin of wheat on average this year. Per capita, each can market more than one ton of beets to the state. On the edge of a beetfield, Comrade Feng Yi asked a cadre of the commune about the growth of beets. Owing to the amount of sunshine and big differences in temperature, the Hexi corridor is suitable for growing beets. The yield of beets and the rate of sugar composition are high. Comrade Fang Yi paid great attention to the beet production of this commune.

While in (Chenjiagou) brigade, Comrade Fang Yi visited the family of (Wang Miankui), a commune member. On seeing the television antenna put up in the yard, Comrade Fang Yi said with smile: I never expected that families here would have television sets. (Wang Miankui), who is 61 years old, happily met the guests and engaged in small talk with them. There are three generations with 15 family members in Wang's family. Per capita, the family has been distributed over 800 jin of wheat this year, including the wheat harvested from their private plots. The elder Wang said that his family's grain was relatively less than others. The family has also bred 17 head of sheep and 5 pigs. They have radios and a sewing machine. Fang Yi asked the elder Wang whether his family fixed farm output quotas on a household basis. (Wang Miankui) answered the system would be implemented immediately. Fang Yi asked again: What on earth do you think about the system of fixing farm quotas on a household basis? (Wang Miankui) answered: I think it is good. Fang Yi said: The situation will be better when this system is implemented.

FENG JIXIN ATTENDS CLOSE OF GANSU CYL CONGRESS

HK220202 Lanzhou Gansu Provincial Service in Mandarin 1125 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Excerpts] The Sixth Gansu Provincial CYL Congress concluded on 21 October. CPC Central Committee alternate member Hu Jintao was elected secretary of the provincial CYL committee. During the congress the spirit of the 12th party congress was conveyed and the congress documents were seriously studied. The participants discussed and approved the work report "Hold Aloft the Banner of Communism and Strive To Create a New Situation in the Province's CYL Work," discussed and approved a resolution on implementing the 12th party congress spirit, and elected 6th Gansu Provincial CYL Committee and delegates to attend the 11th National CYL Congress.

The sixth provincial CYL committee elected by the congress has 53 members and 14 alternate members. There are seven standing committee members. (Miao Xia), (Kong Zhaofang) and (Wang Tongzhi) were elected deputy secretaries of the committee.

Responsible comrades of Gansu Province, the Lanzhou PLA units and Gansu Military District Feng Jixin, Du Yide, Wang Bingxiang, Liu Bing, Guo Hongchao, Li Bin, He Jianshan and Lan Tianmin attended the closing ceremony.

Comrade Feng Jixin made a speech. He put forward three hopes regarding CYL work: 1) The CYL should be built into a school for studying and attaining communism; 2) The CYL should become a shock force in creating a new situation in socialist modernization; 3) The whole party should attach importance to and care about CYL work.

LANZHOU PLA'S XIAO HUA SERVES IN LANZHOU SHOP

HK240327 Lanzhou Gansu Provincial Service in Mandarin 1125 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Summary] Xiao Hua, first political commissar of the Lanzhou PLA units and secretary of the Gansu Provincial CPC Committee, Deputy Secretary Guo Hongchao and Vice Governor Li Qiyang served behind the counter at various shops in Lanzhou on 23 October. They worked with the shop assistants in preparing the shops for opening time and in serving customers.

GANSU'S FENG JIXIN SENDS ODA DEATH CONDOLENCE

HK220215 Lanzhou Gansu Provincial Service in Mandarin 1125 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Text] Mr Oda, vice chairman of the Japan-China Friendship Association and chairman of the Akita Prefecture Japan-China Friendship Delegation died of cancer on 5 October, at the age of 76. Mr Oda was a firm friend of the Chinese people. He engaged for a long time in undertakings to promote friendship between the Chinese and Japanese peoples. In recent years he made important contributions in promoting and developing friendly ties between Akita Prefecture and City and Gansu Province and Lanzhou Municipality. Gansu provincial leaders Feng Jixin, Li Dengying, Ge Shiying, and Xu Feiqing; (Gu Qingchun), vice chairman of the provincial association for friendly ties with foreign countries; and Lanzhou Mayor Wu Xiuliang sent cables of condolence on the death of Mr Oda.

NINGXIA'S LI XUEZHI ADDRESSES ECONOMIC MEETING

OW010813 Beijing Domestic Service in Mandarin 1200 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] The Ningxia Hui Autonomous Regional CPC Committee recently held an enlarged meeting to discuss questions on what should be done during the coming winter and spring periods in order to make the rural economy prosper as soon as possible, how to boldly let the peasants engage in economic diversification and become well off through their own labor, and how to promote production in industrial and communications departments to raise their economic results, increase their income and turn their losing tide to show profits. The meeting also urged the various other professions and trades to promote similar discussions according to their actual conditions.

At the conclusion of the enlarged meeting, Li Xuezhi, first secretary of the regional CPC committee, said that the morale and work styles of party committees at all levels decide whether a new situation can be brought into existence.

Touching on the question of laying a good foundation to quadruple the region's economy, Li Xuezhi said that Ningxia is endowed with rich natural resources and great potentials for economic development. The Hetao Plain known as the Southern Chang Jiang Valley of the Great Wall region has over 3 million mu of farmland. The region's barren lands suitable for farming average 3.5 mu per capita. Its semibarren grasslands average approximately 10 mu per capita. Thus, Ningxia has great potentials for developing agriculture, animal husbandry and sideline occupational production. Ningxia also has rich coal and water resources which constitute favorable conditions for developing energy industries and industries that consume a lot of energy. In addition, Ningxia's coal, electric power, chemical, machinery, light and textile industries are built on a considerably firm technological foundation.

Li Xuezhi said: Although Ningxia is located in a frontier region with a backward economy, the objective of quadrupling its economic output is attainable if its hardworking spirit can be integrated with the scientific approach of seeking truth from facts and if it strives to rely on its own efforts and hard work to raise its economic results.

LI XUEZHI AT NINGXIA MILITARY DISTRICT CONGRESS

HK250503 Yinchuan NINGXIA RIBAO in Chinese 8 Oct 82 p 1

[Report: "Ningxia Military District Convenes Congress of Progressives in Building Socialist Spiritual Civilization"]

[Excerpts] A Ningxia Military District congress of progressive units and individuals in building socialist spiritual civilization solemnly opened in the military district hall on 7 October.

Li Xuezhi, first secretary of the Ningxia Hui Regional CPC Committee and first political commissar of Ningxia Military District, spoke at the congress. Miltiary District Commander Chen Ruyi delivered a speech of greetings. Second Political Commissar Qi Anchang conveyed the spirit of the 12th party congress. Regional federation of trade unions Vice Chairman Yu Da delivered a speech of greetings on behalf of the region's workers.

Comrade Li Xuezhi extended warm greetings in his speech on behalf of the regional CPC committee, people's congress standing committee, government and CPPCC. He hoped that the representatives would seriously study and implement the 12th party congress spirit, and work hard in their various posts to score still mroe outstanding achievements and make still greater contributions in building a high degree of material and spiritual civilization and building a modernized, regularized and revolutionized army.

Other responsible comrades of the party, government and army in Ningxia and Yinchuan present at the congress were Wang Jinzhang, Ma Sizhong, Zhang Junxian, Lin Shan and Feng Mao.

NINGXIA'S LI XUEZHI ON QUADRUPLING OUTPUT

OW231104 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 0114 GMT 19 Oct 82

[Text] Yinchuan, 19 Oct (XINHUA) -- After inspecting the study of the 12th party congress' documents in some units, Li Xuezhi, first secretary of the Ningxia Hui Autonomous Regional CPC Committee, said: In studying and implementing the guidelines laid down by the 12th party congress, attention should be paid to adhering to the party's ideological line and thoroughly studying and correctly implementing these guidelines.

After the conclusion of the 12th party congress Li Xuezhi inspected the study of the congress' documents and implementation of its guidelines in some localities. During the inspection, he discovered that a few factories and rural communes blindly proposed to quadruple the production of their products or grain crops without thoroughly studying the congress' documents or making a thorough investigation and analysis. In view of the study style of not seeking to understand things thoroughly, Li Xuezhi emphatically pointed out at various meetings: Running through the 12th party congress' documents is the party's ideological line characterized by proceeding from reality in truth from facts and testing and developing truth through practice. In studying and implementing the 12th party congress' guidelines, we must adhere to the party's ideological line and concentrate on carefully reading the congress' documents and having a thorough grasp of their essence. People in all units should first gain a preliminary understanding of these documents and then deepen their study of them. It would be very difficult for us to map out a practical and effective plan to make progress if we failed to thoroughly understand the essence of these documents, to probe into the whys and wherefores, to make a serious investigation and study of Ningxia's past and present conditions and to analyze the trend of development.

Li Xuezhi pointed out: In considering how to attain the strategic objective of "quadrupling the gross annual value of industrial and agricultural production" set by the 12th party congress, all localities and units should understand its basic meaning and pay attention to proceeding from their own actual conditions and should not mechanically copy anything without making an analysis of it. This strategic objective is a requirement for the country as a whole. When it is implemented in an area, trade or unit, the situation may be quite different. Some units may be able to do more than quadruple the gross annual value of their production while others may not be able to do so. The growth rate of those units which produce products in short supply is getting higher and higher, while those units which turn out products in excess may not need to quadruple their production and may even have to suspend their production and convert to producing other products. This calls for a revolutionary spirit and scientific approach. Every possible effort should be made to fulfill targets that can and should be attained through hard work. We should not force ourselves to fulfill targets that cannot be attained even through hard work or that need not be attained. We can no longer "do things in a massive and unplanned way" and "demand uniformity in everything."

He also said: To realize this strategic objective, all areas and units should start doing some practical, painstaking and meticulous work to lay a foundation, properly solve problems left over from history in the first 10 years and create conditions for vigorous economic development in the second 10 years. If we only engage in empty talk about quadrupling our output, we are bound to issue confused orders and move up and down without any results.

Li Xuezhi called for cadres at various levels and numerous party members to understand the internal relations between the other militant tasks set by the 12th party congress while making efforts to carry them out and to dialectically analyze and deal with those internal relations according to the party's ideological line. Otherwise, they will opt to go to extremes and have one-sided views. When people have one-sided views, they may return to the beaten track along which "leftist" mistakes were committed before and during the "Cultural Revolution."

LIANG BUTING WATCHES CULTURAL SHOW IN XINING

HK010224 Xining Qinghai Provincial Service in Mandarin 2330 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Summary] The visiting Liaoning song and dance troupe gave its first performance in Xining on 30 October. Leading comrades of the province Liang Buting, Zhang Guosheng, Zhao Haifeng, Song Lin and Ma Wanli attended and were photographed together with the troupe.

QINGHAI'S LIANG BUTING COMMENTS ON INTELLECTUALS

HK290257 Xining Qinghai Provincial Service in Mandarin 2330 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] According to QINGHAI RIBAO, provincial CPC Committee First Secretary Liang Buting recently pointed out: Further improving work concerning intellectuals is an important aspect of implementing the 12th party congress spirit in our province. Liang Buting gave this view in a comment on some material.

In his comment, Liang Buting said: This draft is being circulated by the organization department to the party groups of all departments and bureaus and to prefectual and municipal CPC committees. They should also read it and discuss it in connection with reality. They should check on whether they still have any miscarriages of justice that have not yet been corrected, on whether any new miscarriages of justice have occurred, on whether there is any leftist prejudice in dealing with cadres, especially intellectuals and specialists, and on whether the policy on them has been implemented properly, and if not, why not. They should also discuss how to do a good job in work concerning intellectuals in the future, how to avoid an abnormal outflow and so on. I think this is an important aspect of implementing the 12th party congress spirit in our province.

The provinvial CPC committee's organization department has already circulated Comrade Liang Buting's comments to all prefectural, municipal and country CPC committees and the party groups and committees of all provincial CPC committee departments and provincial units. The department has demanded that the comrades of party groups and committees of all units further check on the implementation of the party's cadre policy, and especially its policy of intellectuals, in accordance with Comrade Liang Buting's comments. They must solve problems that should have been solved but have not been.

QINGHAI'S ZHANG GUOSHENG ON STRUCTURAL REFORM

HK310643 Xining Qinghai Provincial Service in Mandarin 2330 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Excerpt] The Qinghai Provincial CPC Committee and government held a mobilization rally of the provincial party and government organs on 30 October for reforming the administrative structure. Cadres at and above office level in these organs attended the rally. Comrade Liang Buting presided and spoke.

Comrade Zhang Guosheng made a mobilization speech. He said: Reforming the administrative structure is an important aspect of implementing the 12th party congress spirit and a major task now facing us. Qinghai's provincial-level leading organs are duplicated, there are too many levels, and their arrangement is very irrational. The cadre establishment grows larger all the time. The phenomenon of overstaffing is more or less universal. All this causes the serious consequences of lack of integration, disputes over trifles, and an ever-deteriorating bureaucratic atmosphere. The work of the organ is less and less able to meet the needs of socialist modernization. It can be said that the reform of the administrative structure now in progress is the organizational preparation for accomplishing the four modernizations and a planned and measured transoformation of the superstructure. By making a success of this reform we will be better able to implement the party's line, principles and policies, more effectively push the reforms of the economic systems and so on, speed up the progress of the four modernizations and accomplish the general task put forward by the 12th party congress.

Comrade Zhang Guosheng spoke on the four princples for carrying out the current reform of the administrative structure:

1. The arrangement of the organs must be based on the needs of work and help to overcome bureaucratism and improve office efficiency. We can only employ people if there is something for them to do; we must certainly not create jobs to accommodate people.

2. The new leadership groups must be keen and capable. It is necessary to go on making them revolutionized, younger, better educated and more specialized.

3. We must promote cadres with ability and political integrity who are in the prime of life to leadership posts. Every leadership group must have one or two relatively young comrades with specialized knowledge who can get things going. We must also pay attention to assigning minority-nationality cadres.

4. The establishment must be changed. In the new establishment it is necessary appropriately to increase the proportion of professional personnel and reduce the numbers of administrators.

Comrade Zhang Quosheng said: In reforming the administrative structure, we must follow the principle of separating enterprises, administration, and undertakings and draw clear demarcation lines between the political power organs and the organizations of enterprises and undertakings. We must change the situation of lack of separation of party and government, multiheaded leadership in economic work, bringing in reinforcements to hold the pass, and decentralized management. We must change the situation of excessive holding of duplicate or meaningless posts by leading cadres.

SHAANXI'S MA WENRUI ON HU CONGRESS SPEECH

HK200410 Xian Shaanxi Provincial Service in Mandarin 0500 GMT 19 Oct 82

[Text] In order to implement the spirit of the 12th party congress and to convey, study and implement the spirit of the speech made by Comrade Hu Yaobang before leading cadres of provincial organs in Xian not long ago, the provincial CPC committee held a meeting of secretaries of prefectural and municipal party committees in Xian from 6-15 October. Attendants were secretaries of all prefectural and municipal committees and a section of leaders of organs and units directly subordinate to the provincial authorities, totalling more than 50 people. Ma Wenrui, first secretary of the provincial CPC committee, presided over this meeting. Participants, guided by the spirit of the 12th party congress, seriously studied Comrade Hu Yaobang's speech. They unanimously held: Comrade Hu Yaobang's speech fully affirmed the achievements of our province's work and put forth his ardent expectations of us. Comrade Hu Yaobang demanded of us that our minds be further emancipated and that reform be carried out in a more courageous way. His words are completely applicable to the actual conditions of our work and thinking and greatly inspire us to emancipate our minds, courageously carry out reform, strive for the best and forge ahead.

In accordance with Comrade Hu Yaobang's demand of achieving the grand objective of attianing slightly more than quadruple the output value of industry and agriculture by the end of this century, comrades attending the meeting drew up programs and measures for the province and their localities in connection with realities.

Comrades repeatedly said: To emancipate our minds and to realize the objective of quadrupling output value, we must act according to Comrade Hu Yaobang's instruction about the following four principles: Stress should not be laid merely on making the state rich, but the peasants should also be made rich; stress should not be laid merely on grain production, but diversification must be also emphasized; stress should not be laid only on existing industry, but great efforts should also be made to develop energy and transportation; and we should not stay at the current level of planning, management, science and technology, but we should energetically raise our level and create new and higher productivity.

Comrades said: These principles help us to emancipate our minds and point the way to enlivening the economy and realizing the objective of quadrupling output value. Through study and discussion, comrades attending the meeting have deepened their understanding and heightened their confidence and have clearer understanding about the orientation of advance and the objective of the struggles.

Leading comrades of the provincial CPC committee Yu Mingtao, Zhang Ze, Jiang Yi, Yan Kelun, Chen Yuanfang, Zhang Fanghai, Xie Huaide, Bai Wenhua and Lu Jianren also made speeches at the meeting. They unanimously said: We must resolutely implement the spirit of Comrade Hu Yaobang's speech, follow the guidance of the spirit of the 12th party congress and strive to make more contributions to the realization of the objective of attaining slightly more than quadruple the output value by the end of this century in our province. Comrade Ma Wenrui made a concluding speech at the end of the meeting.

SHAANXI GOVERNOR ON IMPLEMENTING CONGRESS SPIRIT

HK291151 Xian Shaanxi Provincial Service in Mandarin 0500 GMT 27 Sep 82

[Excerpts] Shaanxi Provincial Governor Yu Mingtao, who is also a secretary of the provincial CPC committee and was a delegate to the 12th CPC National Congress, conveyed the spirit of the 12th party congress at a conference on publicizing and studying the congress documents sponsored by the Propaganda Department of the provincial CPC committee. He particularly conveyed Comrade Hu Yaobang's ardent expectations of this province.

Hu Yaobang was quoted as saying: In the course of modernization and the building of the two civilizations, we should pay attention to two special points; that is, we should further emancipate our minds and be more courageous in carrying out reforms. Under the correct leadership of the CPC Central Committee, as long as we work out more effective measures and properly carry out reforms, it is possible to fulfill the task of quadrupling output value within 20 years. It is even possible to overfulfill this task a bit.

Comrade Yu Mingtao said: In accordance with the strategic objective for economic construction set forth at the 12th party congress and the concrete conditions of Shaanxi Province, the general objective of our province for the period between now and the end of this century is to quadruple the gross annual value of industrial and agricultural production in our province, that is, to achieve a gross annual value of 62 billion yuan by the end of this century.

He said: In order to fulfill this arduous task, we should pay attention to the following questions:

1. Further enliven the economy.

2. Correctly handle the relationship between grain production and diversification.

3. Give full play to the role of existing industrial enterprises and try to achieve better economic results.

4. Energetically develop textile and other light industries and further rationalize the industrial structure.

5. Do a good job in capital construction with stress on energy and transport.

6. On the basis of upholding the principle of taking the planned economy as primary and regulation by market mechanism as supplementary, give full play to the leading role of state-run industry and actively develop collective enterprises.

7. Open broader financial resources and do a good job in increasing income and limiting expenditures.

8. Further implement the policy toward intellectuals and take concrete steps to solve difficulties confronted by middle-aged intellectuals.

SHAANXI PEOPLE'S CONGRESS COMMITTEE MEETS

HK300421 Xian Shaanxi Provincial Service in Mandarin 1130 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] The 17th meeting of the Fifth Shaanxi Provincial People's Congress Standing Committee was convened in Xian on 27 October. From 27 October to the morning of 28 October, the meeting seriously studied and discussed the 12th party congress documents, Comrade Hu Yaobang's speech at the 1st Plenary Session of the 12th CPC Central Committee, and his speech at the gathering of leading provincial cadres convened by the provincial CPC committee.

A full session was held on the afternoon of 28 October. Vice Governor Bai Jinian gave a report on agricultural questions. (Wang Dengjie), deputy director of the provincial water conservation and electric power bureau, reported on the province's water conservation work. (Wang Langtao), deputy director of the provincial zoning committee, reported on investigations of the province's agricultural resources and on agricultural zoning.

Chang Lifu, vice chairman of the provincial people's congress standing committee, presided. Vice Chairmen Hu Bingyun, Yang Wenhai, Zhang Yichen, Sun Zuobin, Lin Yinru, Liu Haibin, Hou Zonglian, Yuan Zhengting, Zhang Hanwu, Dong Xueyuan, Shi Feng, Xiong Yingdong and Liu Lizhen attended the meeting.

(Feng Yitai), vice president of the provincial higher people's court; (Wang Guozhen), deputy provincial procurator; and responsible persons of provincial government departments and of some county, municipal and district people's congress standing committees attended as observers. The meeting continued panel discussions on 29 October.

SHAANXI'S MA WENRUI ON FARMLAND CONSTRUCTION

HK260720 Xian Shaanxi Provincial Service in Mandarin 1130 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Excerpts] According to a SHAANXI RIBAO report, Mr Wenrui, first secretary of the Shaanxi Provincial CPC Committee, while inspecting Liquan Country's irrigated area capital construction work on autumn and winter farmland yesterday, stressed that in developing agricultural production, we must rely first on policy and then on science. We must also do a good job of farmland capital construction. We must stress proceeding from reality in making plans. We must strengthen organizational leadership and energetically try to create a new situation in agricultural production.

Accompanied by (Su Zhi), secretary of the Xianyang Prefectural CPC Committee, and (Zhang Weiyue), assistant director of the administrative office, and other comrades, Comrade Ma Wenrui; Xie Huaide, secretary of the provincial CPC committee; and (Su Chengju), member of the standing committee of the provincial CPC committee [words indistinct] inspected Hongwei, Chengguan, Zhaoshen, Fengshu, Jiandong, Yanxia, Yizhanggu, Jitu and other communes's farmland capital construction sites. While making an inspection, they listened to a briefing by (Li Shiyuan), secretary of the CPC Committee of Liquan County.

The main aim of Liquan County's autumn and winter farmland capital construction this year is to properly link up production tools and strengthen the irrigation responsibility system. At present, 440 farmland irrigation projects of various kinds have been launched throughout the county, involving more than 55,000 workers. After studying the progress of various projects, Comrade Ma Wenrui and other comrades of the CPC provincial committee affirmed the practice of this county. Comrade Ma Wenrui said that the approach adopted by Liquan County is commendable. In calling an on-the-spot meeting on the irrigated area's farmland capital construction and afforestation, the prefectual CPC committee and the administrative office should seriously sum up and popularize this county's experiences. This should also be done by various other areas.

While on the inspection trip, Comrade Ma Wenrui listened to briefings by chief responsible persons of the Xianyang Prefectual CPC Committee and the administrative office.

Inspired by the spirit of the 12th CPC National Congress, Xianyang Prefecture has energetically tried to promote agricultural production. It has called two on-the-spot prefecturewide meetings on autumn and winter farmland capital construction work. Comrade Ma Wenrui praised the successful experiences of Sianyang Prefecture. He stressed that Xianyang Prefecture attached importance to investigation and research, took different conditions into consideration [words indistinct] made early plans, planted seeds early, and strengthened leadership. Thus, marked achievements were scored. The comrades of the two prefectures of Baoji and Weinan should come here for an inspection.

Comrade Ma Wenrui also said that the various parts of the irrigated area must perfect the irrigation responsibility system. If such work is not done well, the agricultural production responsibility system cannot be considered perfect. Especially since the mass responsibility system for work [words indistinct] was introduced, the masses have shown great concern over this problem. We must first take care of this matter in a proper and solid manner. This is also an important part of unified planning.

SHAANXI'S MA WENRUI CALLS FOR LEARNING FROM HERO

HK210408 Xian Shaanxi Provincial Service in Mandarin 1130 GMT 20 Oct 82

[Summary] Shaanxi Provincial CPC Committee First Secretary Ma Wenrui spoke at a forum on publicizing the fine deeds of Zhang Hua on 18 October. He said: "Zhang Hua was a Lei Feng-style person. His moving deeds embodied lofty communist spirit. We must publicize this progressive typical example in depth and conduct vivid education in communist ideology for the people, youths and juveniles throughout the province."

Present at the forum were Bai Wenhua, deputy secretary of the provincial CPC committee, and responsible comrades of the Military Medical University No 4 and of Shaanxi provincial propaganda units.

Ma Wenrui said: The heroism of Zhang Hua in sacrificing himself for others has set a brilliant example for us. GUANGMING RIBAO has already carried serialized reports on his deeds. The provincial press and radio must continue to carry out propaganda work well and not relax their efforts. He said: "The 12th party congress has set the building of socialist spiritual civilization as a strategic task. The party Central Committee is resolved to achieve a fundamental turn for the better in party style and social mood in the next 5 years. Our propaganda work must strive to make contributions in these respects. There has now been very great progress in social mood, but there are still many problems. There are not many youths and juveniles as progressive and highly aware as Zhang Hua; the number of particularly backward ones is also very small. The great majority are in a middling situation; they demand to advance. We must precisely publicize with great fanfare progressive typical examples who shine with the brilliance of communist ideology, so as to stimulate those in the middle to turn progressive and the backward ones to catch up."

SHAANXI COUNTY HOLDS MEMORIAL FOR LUO JIANFU

HK251140 Beijing GONGREN RIBAO in Chinese 17 Oct 82 p 1

[Report: "Meeting Held in Shaanxi's Lintong County To Posthumously Honor Luo Jianfu, Microelectronics Expert"]

[Text] A meeting on learning from Luo Jianfu and to posthumously confer on him the title of outstanding Communist Party member and special model worker was held on the morning of 16 October in Shaanxi's Lintong County, where Luo Jianfu worked during his lifetime. More than 1,200 experts, technicians and workers who attended the meeting were filled with a feeling of great reverence.

The meeting was sponsored by the provincial CPC committee and the government and Ministry of Space Industry. Chen Yuanfang, secretary of the provincial CPC committee; Li Xue, vice minister of the Ministry of Space Industry; and Liu Geng, vice governor of the province attended the meeting. Addressing the meeting, Vice Minister Li Xue said that during his whole life, Comrade Luo Jianfu always stuck to the lofty ideal of communism, undertook the specific practice of communism, never flinched from difficulties, was never afraid before the jaws of death when ill and really gave his all, until his heart stopped beating, for the cause of the party and people. His deeds serve to refute the so-called idle dream of communism and prove that the communist ideology and practice have always existed in our daily life. We should learn from his inflexible faith in communism, his spirit of sacrificing his life for the socialist undertaking, and his lofty morality of utter devotion to others without any thought of himself. Li Xue urged all party members, in particular cadres of party members of the aviation department, to take the lead in study, rectify party style and strengthen party spirit by attaining marked achievements in this respect. He called on all personnel of the aviation department to fulfill all tasks posed by the 12th CPC Congress and to create a new situation in the aviation industry by following the example of Luo Jianfu.

Finally, Chen Yuanfang read the decision of the provincial CPC committee on learning from Luo Jianfu and then addressed the meeting.

URUMQI'S TAN YOULIN'S WORK REPORT TO PLA CPC

HK260532 Urumqi Xinjiang Regional Service in Mandarin 1650 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Text] In his work report to the 6th CPC congress of the Urumqi PLA units, Comrade Tan Youlin pointed out that as the CPC committees at all levels of the Urumqi PLA units have resolutely carried out the line, guiding principles and policies laid down by the party since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, and have tried their best, both in terms of guiding ideology and actual work to correct things which had been thrown into disorder, the mental attitude of the PLA units has been profoundly changed and great successes have been achieved in various work. Now, the PLA units are striding toward the goal of revolutionization, modernization and regularization.

According to Tan Youlin, the hallmark of the profound change in the mental attitude of the PLA units and the significant successes in various major tasks are as follows:

1) The PLA units have resolutely carried out the line, guiding principles and policies laid down by the party, have reached a common understanding and unity of action based on the line, guiding principles and policies laid down at the 3d plenary session and the resolution adopted by the 6th Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, and have shifted their focal point of work to preparations against work centering around education and training. Both the political consciousness and understanding of policies by the PLA units have been remarkably enhanced, and the leadership of party committees at all levels over ideological work has also been strengthened.

2) Since the PLA units have launched the drive to build socialist spiritual civilization, of which communism is the core, and have quickened the pace of its program of revolutionization, modernization and regularization; and, since the CPC committee of the Urumqi PLA units and all CPC committees at lower levels have promoted the work of building socialist spiritual civilization as the fundamental ideological work for the units, and extensively and thoroughly launched the drive to enhance socialist spiritual civilization which is characterized by the four have's, three stresses and two fear not's, a healthy atmosphere is now prevailing in the army; new people, new things and new habits are taking shape; and a large number of advanced units and advanced individuals in building spiritual civilization are emerging.

3) Since the PLA units have strengthened party building work, party style has been significantly improved. Since the third plenary session, the CPC committee of the Urumqi PLA units and all CPC committees at lower levels have concentrated their attention on the implementation of the guiding principles, have repeatedly recognized party committees at and above the regimental level and party branches at the grassroots level, and have emphatically solved the problem of keeping pace with the political line of the party's central authorities, the problem of enforcing democratic centralism and strengthening collective leadership, and the problem of opposing privileges, overcoming bureaucracy, individualism and liberalism, and redressing unhealthy trends. Through the rectification of party style and party discipline and the strengthening of party education, they have redressed to varying degree various unhealthy trends and are recovering our party's fine traditions and style. Thus, the role of the party as the force at core, the role of party branches as a powerful fighting force, and the role of party members as pioneers and models have been remarkably strengthened.

4) Since the Urumqi PLA units have conscientiously enforced the assessment and training system for cadres, great success has been achieved in the building of the contingent of leading cadres.

5) Since the PLA units have conscientiously implemented the strategic principle of active defense and have further carried out various tasks in preparation against war, the military and political quality of the units and the ability of various arms of the services to fight in coordination have been further improved.

6) The Urumqi PLA units have given full play to the glorious tradition of supporting the government and cherishing the people, and have thus further strengthened the unity between the army and the government, between the army and the people and between different nationalities. The Urumqi PLA units' CPC committee and all the CPC committees at lower levels placed the improvement of the relationship between the army and the government and between the army and the people and the strengthening of the unity between different nationalities on the important agenda after the third plenary session and have since devoted much effort to this field. According to an incomplete survey, since 1979, the Urumqi PLA units have devoted 2.47 million work days and sent more than 98,700 trucks to help the people in production; planted 6.2 million trees; given medical treatment to 1.37 million people; and sent more than 54,000 people and 119 airplanes to assist in disasters. In this way they have vigorously supported socialist construction in the region and effectively improved the relationship between the army and the government and between the army and the people, and have thus created a new situation in the unity between the army and the government, between the army and the people and between different nationalities.

Tan Youlin said: In reviewing our work since the third plenary session, we must affirm that our achievements are the main aspect of our work. However, we must also be aware that some problems still remain. We must conscientiously implement the spirit of the 12th CPC Congress, try our best to keep our thinking, style and work in line with the demand of the new period, enhance our revolutionary vigor, make every effort and thus make greater contributions to the struggle to create a new situation in the building of Urumqi PLA units.

XINJIANG'S WANG ENMAO INSPECTS PLA WAREHOUSE

HK260811 Urumqi Xinjiang Regional Service in Mandarin 1650 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Summary] "On the afternoon of 22 October, Commander Xiao Quanfu, First Political Commissar Wang Enmao, Political Commissar Tan Youlin, and other leading comrades of the Urumqi PLA units inspected a certain communications equipment warehouse of the Urumqi PLA units. They encouraged the commanders and fighters of this unit to further conscientiously study and implement the spirit of the 12th CPC Congress, continue to do a good job in operating, managing and using the warehouse, and make greater contributions in creating a new situation in the building of the army."

In recent years this unit has achieved great success in enhancing the regularization standard and the scientific management of the warehouse. Being proficient in their own professional work, every member of the unit can efficiently and accurately carry out his work, even in the dark.

"During the inspection, Xiao Quanfu, Wang Enmao, Tan Youlin and other comrades inquired about the general circumstances of the warehouse in detail; had a look at the automatically-controlled monitoring counter installed by the unit itself; witnessed the delivery of materials in the dark; and saw mechanical loading and unloading performances, the extinguishing of fire in collaboration with the masses, and the formation performance by the commanders and the fighters." They encouraged the commanders and fighters of the unit to make further efforts to build the warehouse into a model unit of the Urumqi PLA command.

XINJIANG'S WANG ENMAO STRESSES SYSTEM REFORMS

HK280346 Urumqi Xinjiang Regional Service in Mandarin 1300 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] While inspecting work in Karamai, Altay, Tacheng, Bortala and Yili Prefectures and Municipalities in the first 10 days of October, Xinjiang Regional CPC Committee First Secretary Wang Enmao stressed: In order to implement the 12th party congress spirit and ensure the smooth progress of socialist economic construction work, we must get a thoroughly good grasp of reforming the systems and streamlining the administrative structure.

Comrade Wang Enmao said: Comrade Hu Yaobang mentioned at the 1st plenary session of the 12th Central Committee that reforms of the administrative structure in the provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions and in the prefectures and municipalities should be carried out sooner rather than later. The party organizations at all levels should hasten to study the questions of reforming the systems and streamlining the administrative structure. In the course of this work, we must follow the party policy and select and promote middle-aged and young cadres in the prime of life who possess ability and political integrity, resolutely implement the line, principles and policies since the 3d plenary session of the 11th Central Committee, and have good development prospects. We must promote them to leadership posts and make the cadre force revolutionized, younger, better educated and more professional. Certain old comrades who are unsuited to heavy duties on account of age and infirmity will retire to the second line. We must make very good arrangements for them.

Comrade Wang Enmao said: The three categories of people in the cadre force, that is, people who during the Great Cultural Revolution followed Lin Biao, Jiang Qing and company and rose to power through rebelling, people with gravely factionalist thinking, and elements who took part in beating, smashing and looting, must be purged from the leadership groups. Not a single one can be retained. People of these three categories cannot be promoted when we are promoting cadres. People of two other categories must also be purged from the leadership groups. One category consists of people who oppose the Central Committee's line, principles and policies since the 3d plenary session of the 11th Central Committee, and the other consists of people who have seriously violated law and discipline in the economic and other fields. We cannot promote these people either when we promote cadres. In this way we can ensure that our cadres will be loyal to the party, the state, the people and the socialist cause, and will faithfully carry out the line, principles and policies since the third plenary session, and we will thus have a reliable guarantee for creating a new situation in socialist modernization. The party organizations at all levels must get a thoroughly good grasp of this work, regarding it as a great strategic measure.

WANG ENMAO SAYS FAREWELL TO EX-SOLDIERS

HK250207 Urumqi Xinjiang Regional Service in Mandarin 1300 GMT 24 Oct 82

[Summary] On 22 October Wang Enmao, first secretary of the Xinjiang Regional CPC Committee and first political commissar of the Urumqi PLA units; Xiao Quanfu, commander of the Urumqi PLA units and other leading comrades including Wei Youzhu and Wang Fuzhi went to Urumqi railroad station to bid farewell to several thousand demobilized soldiers. "Comrade Wang Enmao demanded that the demobilized fighters maintain the honor of the revolutionary fighters and be standard-bearers of spiritual civilization."

WANG ENMAO INSPECTS XINJIANG PREFECTURES

HK220236 Urumqi Xinjiang Regional Service in Mandarin 1300 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Excerpt] According to XINJIANG RIBAO, regional CPC Committee First Secretary Wang Enmao inspected the conveyance, study, and implementation of the 12th party congress spirit in a number of prefectures and municipalities in northern Xinjiang from 5 to 20 October. He stressed: The central task in implementing the 12th party congress spirit and creating a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization is to concentrate forces to promote economic construction work and promote accelerated development of the local economy.

As soon as the regional CPC committee's meeting of cadres of three levels to convey and study the 12th party congress spirit concluded, Comrade Wang Enmao went to 15 counties and municipalities in Karamai, Altai, Tacheng, Bortala and Yili Prefectures, and also visited some Xinjiang production and construction corps regimental farms there, to inspect the conveyance and study of the 12th party congress documents, the implementation of the congress spirit, and the situation in current local work. He was accompanied by Amudong Niyazi, member of the regional CPC committee standing committee and vice chairman of the regional government. During his inspection, Comrade Wang Enmao helped the local comrades to get a clear idea of the guiding principles for production and construction in close connection with the local conditions.

Some counties, communes and livestock farms in Altai, Tacheng, Bortala and Yili Prefectures possess extensive pastures, and the local herdsmen of all nationalities have long engaged in livestock raising. There are very good conditions for this. Comrade Wang Enmao said: These places should take full advantage of this superior feature and implement the principle of concentrating on developing livestock raising. At the same time they should also develop agriculture, forestry, fisheries and sideline occupations, and do well in integrating all these undertakings. On the basis they should develop industry, culture, education, public health and other undertakings. The key to achieving great development of production in all aspects lies in solving the water problem.

BRIEFS

SHAANXI EMPLOYMENT WORK CONFERENCE -- From 14-20 October, the Shaanxi Provincial People's Government held a conference in Xian on employment work. Vice Governor Liu Geng attended. Vice Governor (Zhang Bin) gave a summing-up speech. The conference summed up experiences in employment and analyzed the province's employment situation since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee. The conference also looked into the views on doing well in employment. Since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, the province has arranged jobs for some 612,000 people and basically solved the employment problem of rusticated educated young people. The province has also on the whole made arrangements for the 1980 PRC graduates of junior and senior middle schools who meet the requirements for arrangement of jobs. According to statistics, on the average, 2 and 1/2 persons of each urban household got jobs in 1981 and the number of urban residents who became employed in 1981 was 6 percent more than in 1980. The per capita monthly average income of a household of workers in the first half of 1982 was 36.14 yuan, 12.67 yuan more than in 1978. [Xian Shaanxi Provincial Service in Mandarin 1130 GMT 22 Oct 82 HK]

WESTERN PACIFIC SECURITY CONFERENCE OPENS

OW020331 Taipei CNA in English 0306 GMT 2 Nov 82

[Text] Taipei, Nov. 2 (CNA) -- Former President Yen Chia-kan said Monday the best way to solve the chaotic world situation is to obliterate communism and to establish regional systems of security and cooperation.

He made the remarks at the opening of a three-day conference on security cooperation in the western Pacific held in Taipei.

Yen said the current disturbances of the world are mainly caused by communist expansion and the strategic confusion of the Free World in failing to cope with the strategy of the communist bloc.

"The Free World has often mistaken the internal struggle of the communist bloc for internal split. It therefore has entertained such wishful thinking as 'pitting one communist nation against another' or 'associating with one communist country against another.'"

He added that the Free World also often misbelieved that peace can be ensured by modestly satisfying the appetite of the communist bloc, and that it has cherished the hope for' restraining the communist bloc through treaties and commitments, giving rise to the ideas of detente, appeasement, and substitution of negotiation for confrontation.

"We believe there are two ways for solving the chaotic situation: first, to obliterate communism for the sake of enduring peace, and second, to establish regional systems of security and cooperation for promoting prosperity and development," Yen said.

The conference is sponsored by the Society for Strategic Studies, ROC, and the National Information Center, Inc., U.S.A. with the assistance of the Tokyo-based Japanese Center for Strategic Studies, the Heritage Foundation, U.S.A., and the Institute for Foreign Policy Analysis, U.S.A.

The opening ceremony was presided over by Gen. Wego Chiang, a well-known strategist and commander-in-chief of the combined service forces. The 170-odd delegates and observers are from the United States, Japan, West Germany, Ganada, Belgium, the Philippines, the Republic of Korea, Thailand, Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore, Australia, Hong Kong, and the host Republic of China.

In the morning session, Japanese upper house member Masao Horie and Korean National Assemblyman Pak Kyong-sok presented papers on security problems and perspectives in Northeast Asia. Dr. Chiang King-yuh (ROC) -- served as chairman of the session, and the discussants were Lloyd Vasey (U.S.A.), Michael O'Connor and (Australia), and Dr. B.A. Hamzah (Malaysia).

Both Masao Horie and Pak Kyong-sok shared the view that the growing Soviet military power in the Far East is the most serious threat to the security of Northeast Asia.

They also said the free nations in the area should rely more on themselves for regional defense because the U.S. 7th Fleet's presence as the deterrent and striking power will problably be reduced as a result of the U.S. global strategy to transfer some forces from the Far East to the Middle East.

The importance of the Republic of China's strategic position is stressed by the two speakers. "The ROC occupies an extremely important position from the viewpoint of Japan's defense policy. Thus, we must postively appreciate the importance of the ROC, together with that of the Republic of Korea," said Horie, while Pak noted that "the ROC is of great geopolitical importance as it links Northeast Asia and Southeast Asia."

The afternoon session. chaired by Dr. Frank Trager (U.S.) centered on security problems in Southeast Asia. Three reports were delivered by Prof. Surin Pitsuwan (Thailand), Prof. Lim Joo Jock (Singapore), and Konja Vathakanon (Thailand). The discussants were Shigeto Nagano (Japan), Dr. B.A. Hamzah (Malaysia), and Dr. Chu Chen-hua (ROC).

Prof. Lim said in his report that maintenance of a dialogue and communication with Hanoi by ASEAN countries is important, adding that the experiences and resources from Northeast Asian countries -- Japan, the ROC, and the ROK -- are likely to play a significant role in the development of ASEAN countries.

On Thursday, the participants will hear reports and exchange views on China mainland situation, the Soviet challenge in East Asia, and new weaponry development applying to Asia.

PRESIDENT CHIANG MEETS HAITIAN MINISTERS 1 NOV

OW011425 Taipei CNA in English 1358 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] Taipei, Nov 1 (CNA) -- President Chiang Ching-kuo Monday received three Haitian ministers at the presidential office.

They are Dr. Roger Lafontant, minister of defense and interior; Claude Weil, minister of planning; and Jacques Simeon, minister of industry and commerce.

President Chiang extended his warm welcome for their visit to this country. The president expressed the hope that their visit will further advance the friendly cooperation between the two countries in the future.

Minister Lafontant presented a personal letter from Haitian President Jean-Claude Duvalier to President Chiang. In the letter, the Haitian president thanks the Chinese Government for the assistance it has given Haiti. President Chiang asked the ministers to convey his regards to their president.

Ma Chi-chuang, presidential secretary-general, Foreign Minister Chu Fu-sung and Haitian Amb. Raymond Perodin were also present at the meeting.

BRIEFS

MALAYSIAN INVESTMENT MISSION -- Taipei, Sept 30 (CNA): A Malaysian investment and trade mission, headed by Huang Chuo-Chi, arrived here Wednesday for a five-day visit. The 18-member mission called at the Small-Medium Scale Industries Administration, the Board of Foreign Trade, and the Employment and Vocational Training Administration. On Thursday, the Mission will visit the Chinese National Association of Industry and Commerce to discuss such items as food, construction materials, machinery and hardwares. Members of the mission will also call at the China External Trade Development Council and the Importer and Exporter Association of Taipei. The mission will leave here for home Oct. 3 [Text], [Taipei CNA in English 0326 GMT 30 Sep 82 OW]

COMPUTER TERMINALS PRODUCED -- Taipei, Sept. 30 (CNA): After only two years in production, a local firm has produced a computer terminal of high enough standard to be sold in the United States. The firm is QFE Products Ltd., and the product time division multiplexer terminals, model number TDM-1223. The firm purchased the technology for U.S. $50,000 in 1980 from the General Data Communication (GDC) Inc. of the United States, who also agreed to train some of QFE's technicians. It has turned out a total of 35 terminals up to now at U.S. $10,000 (nt $400,000) a set. Because the product has met the quality standards set by GDC, it is now to be sold in the U.S. as well as in Malaysia, with the approval of the U.S. firm. [Text] [Taipei CNA in English 0954 GMT 30 Sep 82 OW]

LASER RESEARCH PROJECT -- Taipei, Oct 1 (CNA): National Central University is collaborating with the University of Arizona, Tucson, Az., the United States in research on mode locking ND: glass laser, an advanced laser project that will develop applications that will bring advances in high-temperature electronics, semi-conductors, and plasma. According to Dr. Leung Chung-yee, a physicist at NCU, work being done on the mode locking ND: glass laser is still the research stage in the industrially advanced countries. If the research is conducted successfully in Taiwan, it will accordingly help the long-range development of high technology here. [Text] [Taipei CNA in English 0238 GMT 2 Oct 82 OW]

FISHERY AGREEMENT WITH INDIA -- A nongovernmental agreement on fishery cooperation has been reached between the Republic of China and India. This means that another fishing ground is added for Kaoshiung's boats. Fishing circle in Kaoshiung indicates that the agreement permits ROC's fishing boats to operate within India's 200 nautical-mile economic zone and to call at 5 Indian ports. [Taipei CHING CHI JIH PAO in Chinese 28 Sep 82 p 11 OW]

HONG KONG PRESS REPORTS ON HONG KONG'S FUTURE

Official's 'Assurance'

HK300052 Hong Kong SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST in English 30 Oct 82 p 1

[Excerpt] The first director of the NEW CHINA NEWS AGENCY in Hong Kong, Mr Wang Kuang, yesterday "assured" many property tycoons that the status quo of the territory would be maintained for at least 15 years, although he avoided the issue of the 1997 lease on the New Territories.

Mr Wang, however, did not say he was making the "statement" on instructions from Beijing.

The NCNA chief gave the "assurance" at a meeting with developers at the Furama Hotel on Thursday evening.

The meeting was requested by the real estate people who sought a clarification from the NCNA on the current uncertain situation shrouding Hong Kong.

The second director, Mr Li Jusheng, and Chinese officials also attended the meeting.

Mr Wang turned down a request to make a public statement to ease the "current tension" in Hong Kong saying he was "not ready."

He also refused to comment when asked what steps China would take if Britain -- under a Labour government -- decided to throw in the towel over Hong Kong.

Developers are concerned over the protracted secret negotiations through diplomatic channels as the delay affects many of them.

They said there is already a slowdown in buyers despite the downtrend of prices for all premises -- residential, commercial and industrial.

However, costs fuelled by inflation are going up and, together with interests on payments and loans, may force developers to sell at below cost.

Developers also claimed that about 4,000 businessmen have applied to transfer their capital to start new enterprises in Singapore and Bangkok.

Some of them are even seeking residency there for their families and senior personnel.

Among the developers present at yesterday's meeting were the president of the Real Estate Developers' Association, Mr Henry Fok; Mr Li Ka-shing of Cheung Kong Holdings; Mr Woo Hon-Fai of Lee Hing Development; Mr Fong Yung-wah of Hip Shing Hong; Mr Lee Shau-kee of Henderson Land and Mr Cecil Chao of Wah Kwong Properties.

Jia Shi Remarks

HK300222 Hong Kong WEN WEI PO in Chinese 30 Oct 82 p 1

[Dispatch from correspondent Cheng Hsiang: "Beijing Hopes for Long Period of Stability in Hong Kong"]

[Excerpts] Beijing, 29 Oct — Jia Shi, vice minister of foreign economic relations and trade, spoke today to a Hong Kong Trade Development Council delegation visiting Beijing. He said: "We sincerely hope for a long period of stability and prosperity in Hong Kong. The Hong Kong area receives one-quarter of China's total exports and is a major market for China's foreign trade. In terms of China's trade volume, Hong Kong comes third, being outranked only by Japan and the United States. For this reason, we will continue to develop economic and trade relations with the Hong Kong area. I think you, too, hope that Hong Kong's prosperity and stability will continue with ceaseless economic development."

Y.K. Kan replied to this: "I believe we will certainly be able to continue our cooperation."

Qin Wencai, general manager of the China Offshore Oil General Company, said to the visitors: In the process of exploiting the South China Sea oilfield, despite the fact that the logistics bases have been established in China, Hong Kong, with its relatively advanced capital construction, has bright prospects in various logistics services. Granted equal quality and prices, China will give priority to considering cooperation with Hong Kong. This was an important piece of news the Trade Development Council received on its first day in Beijing.

Jia Shi told the delegation: China's foreign trade will undergo relatively great development in the future. This is because: 1) China's economic development is becoming stable and the growth of industrial and agricultural production is better than expected, thus providing more sources of export goods ; 2) China has decided to carry out technical reforms in enterprises producing export goods in order to improve these products and introduce new ones to replace old in order to meet the needs of international competition. This will result in improving the quality of goods and hence promote exports.

He said: China's export development will draw still more on assistance from Hong Kong, because at present China lacks sufficient ports while Hong Kong's port is advanced and has many international shipping links and well-developed telecommunications. It has also built up an international trading network. These factors make Hong Kong better able to provide services for China's rapid growth.

Jia Shi also said: In order to make still better use of the Hong Kong market, the PRC Government has decided to further redefine the operations of various Chinese units located in Hong Kong and Macao. These organs are frequently competing against each other. The State Council recently issued a circular on the reregistration of such organs, stating that those that do not meet the established conditions must be withdrawn from Hong Kong and Macao. When the work of realigning these organs is complete, a list will be openly published in order to alleviate the present confused situation.

At the request of the delegation, Qin Wencai gave a detailed account of the progress made in exploiting the South China Sea oilfield. He said: "There is plenty of scope for Hong Kong."

Xi Zhongxun Cited

HK020144 Hong Kong SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST in English 2 Nov 82 p 1

[By Steve Clark]

[Text] A plan should be worked out soon to safeguard the future of Hong Kong, a senior Chinese official told a visiting delegation of the Hong Kong Trade Development Council [TDC] in Beijing last night.

During a meeting with the TDC chairman, Sir Yuet-keung Kan, and delegation members, the vice chairman of the National People's Congress Standing Committee, Mr Xi Zhong Xun, reaffirmed the objective of maintaining the prosperity, stability and confidence of Hong Kong up to 1997 and beyond.

And, according to a TDC press release issued last night, the vice-chairman went on to say that a plan should be worked out in the next one to two years to achieve this aim.

After the meeting, Sir Y.K. said: "We were deeply honoured to meet Vice-Chairman Xi and greatly encouraged by his concern for the future of Hong Kong. I believe it was a fitting culmination to an extremely useful and productive series of talks and discussions with government ministries and agencies."

The meeting came as the top-level TDC delegation completed the Beijing leg of its 10-day China visit.

Today the delegation is due to fly to Shanghai for the next stage of its programme before moving on to Guangzhou.

During the delegation's four-day stay in Beijing, members were "constantly reassured of the importance the Chinese authorities attach to Hong Kong's stability and prosperity," Sir Y.K. said.

"And we were left in no doubt that Hong Kong has a valuable contribution to make in China's economic modernisation programme."

Sir Y.K. went on to say that "overall, it has been a memorable and important visit and I have been overwhelmed by the genuine spirit of goodwill and co-operation we have encountered at every turn.

"I believe we have achieved our primary aim which was to establish and consolidate channels of communication with state agencies here, so as to facilitate a further expansion of trade and business co-operation.

"We have also, at the same time, established a framework for exchanges of visits and regular liaison in the future.

"Specifically, our hosts here, the China Council for the Promotion of International Trade [CCPIT], were in full agreement with us on the great value to be gained by expanding and developing the existing excellent relationship between our two organisations.

"This is immensely significant and I am confident that, by working more closely together, the TDC and CCPIT can act as focal points of information and contact for the development of trade and business co-operation," said Sir Y.K.

In addition to developing closer relations with the CCPIT, the executive director of the TDC, Mr Len Dunning, issued an invitation to the director of the Department of Imports and Exports, Mr Dai Jie, to send two officials to Hong Kong for further discussions.

At the end of the official programme in Beijing, Sir Y.K. hosted a banquet in honour of the CCPIT chairman, Mr Wang Yaoting, at the Great Hall of the People.

The banquet was attended by around 130 guests, including the British ambassador to Beijing, Sir Percy Cradock, senior officials of Chinese Government ministries and agencies and members of the foreign diplomatic and business communities.

The government ministries and agencies consulted by the TDC delegation in Beijing were: CCPIT, China International Trust and Investment Corporation, Ministry of Foreign Economic Relations and Trade, China National Offshore Oil Corporation, Ministry of Textile Industry, State Economic Commission, Bureau of Travel and Tourism Administration, Bank of China, Ministry of Light Industries and the Foreign Investment Administration.

Ta Kung Pao Column

HK010456 Hong Kong TA KUNG PAO in Chinese 1 Nov 82 p 2

["Political Talk" column by Shih Chun-yu [2457 0689 3768]: "Unequal Treaties Should Not Be Extended in a Disguised Fashion"]

[Text] The Concepts of Concession and Ceding Territory Must Be Eliminated

In talking about the future of Hong Kong, the terms "concession" and "ceding territory" have been used repeatedly.

There is nothing incorrect about refering to these two terms in any historical narration. For these terms -- "concession" and "ceding terrtitory" -- can indeed be found in the three treaties between China and Britain which deal with Hong Kong.

However, it would be extremely incorrect to use these two concepts as grounds for regarding some areas as geographically different from other areas in holding talks about Hong Kong's future.

The Chinese authorities have time and again made it clear that the three treaties are all unequal. They cannot be accepted by the Chinese people and they will not bind the Chinese people.

The Chinese Government's consistent stand is that it will recover the entire Hong Kong area when the time is ripe.

Whig Government Signed the Treaty Despite the Opposition of the Tories

Since the exchange of opinions on Hong Kong's future and the decision to begin talks by the leaders of the Chinese and British Governments, the problem related to the three unequal treaties has suddenly cropped up. This is because in her first speech after her return to London, Mrs Thatcher, prime minister of the British Conservative Government, regarded these three treaties as being "valid" and still binding.

This newspaper has already reported that when a member of the British House of Lord's addressed an inquiry on this matter, he criticized Mrs Thatcher and said that she should not have mentioned "the most immoral treaties that our country imposed on China after the conclusion of the opium war -- the most immoral war that our country has ever fought."

There is another point worth noticing in his enquiry, that is, he pointed out that the Nanjing Treaty which Britain imposed on the Qing government of China was signed by the Whig government and was opposed by the Tories at that time.

This small incident has clearly shown that many British people have from the very beginning opposed these treaties which are called "unequal" treaties by the Chinese and "immoral" treaties by the British.

All Are Unequal Treaties

Since the British have adopted such an attitude, naturally, the Chinese people, as the decendents of Emperors Yan and Huang, should not recognize these three unequal treaties in the slightest degree.

The commentary published by the Reform Club here yesterday particularly noted this fact. It said that any place in the world today, all Chinese, "whether they are ideologically left or right," think that these three treaties are unequal. Zhou Weih-siong, a member of the Urban Council, also expressed the same view on another occasion.

The talks about the future of Hong Kong should not be based on these unequal treaties. This is of course a demand that China's sovereignty be respected.

Well-known Hong Kong personage Huang Meng-hua also mentioned this when he returned from Beijing. He said that his trip to Beijing gave him the impression that China's stand for recovering its sovereignty cannot be negotiated.

This being the case, any discussion about the extention or the disguised extention of the unequal treaties goes against the desire of the Chinese people and is certainly useless.

Fallacy About a "Union Between Taiwan and Hong Kong"

After Richard Nixon, former president of the United States, visited Beijing he discussed his impressions. He said that he personally envisaged the formation of a union of China, Taiwan and Hong Kong.

Perhaps those words refer to the nine-point proposal for the peaceful reunification of the motherland and is therefore a transitional proposal. However, it would be worthwhile to discuss at some future point if the word union is appropriate.

Yesterday, a Hong Kong newspaper commentary distorted Nixon's words and changed them to envisaging a union between Taiwan and Hong Kong. This is obviously quite absurd.

We can say that the problem related to the future of Hong Kong is a grand review in which all kinds of moods and attitudes will be displayed. However, judging by the current trend, the view on the recovery of sovereignty and the adoption of various appropriate measures to maintain Hong Kong's stability and prosperity will be generally accepted.

PAPER VIEWS U.S. ATTITUDE TOWARD KMT, CPC

HK010229 Hong Kong SHING TAO JIH PAO in Chinese 27 Oct 82 p 2

[Editorial: "Reagan's Attitude Toward the KMT and CPC"]

[Text] When two persons are at odds, some people think that the only sensible way to deal with them is to ingratiate oneself with both of them. However, such an act will frequently not produce the desired effect, because both persons are offended. This is also the case in handling international relations.

When U.S. President Reagan ran for the presidency he promised that he would recognize the Republic of China. But, after his electoral success he failed to keep his promise. While maintaining diplomatic relations with the CPC, he sells weapons to Taiwan so that the latter can maintain a defense capability and avoid being attacked and occupied by the CPC. As a result, Beijing has recently strengthened its attacks on the United States:

1. It accuses the United States of selling weapons to Taiwan;

2. It accuses the United States of granting political asylum to Hu Nuo, a tennis player who defected for freedom;

3. It accuses senior U.S. officials of attending a reception held by the Republic of China in Washington to celebtate the double-tenth festival and of implementing the policy of "one China and one Taiwan."

Recently, when CPC strongman Deng Xiaoping met some foreign guests, he said directly that the United States is not reliable. RENMIN RIBAO, which used to employ the term "hegemonist" only for the Soviet Union, has now pinned the label on the United States as well.

In spite of the fact that the CPC calls the Soviet Union "hegemonist," it is holding talks with the Soviet Union in order to improve relations between the two countries. However, with regard to the United States, the CPC has only shouted abuse. It has not taken any action aimed at improving Sino-U.S. relations. The CPC does not even wear a smile on its face with respect to the United States. The reason why the CPC established diplomatic relations with the United States was that it was on bad terms with the Soviet Union. In addition, Beijing intended to disrupt relations between Washington and Taibei. Although no progress has been made so far in the Sino-Soviet talks, the CPC has at least changed its position on holding talks with the Soviet Union. The United States had intended to ingratiate itself with the CPC. However, what it has got in exchange is criticism as an unreliable guy and a "hegemonist."

With regard to Taibei, President Chiang Ching-kuo has accused the Reagan administration of reducing arms sales to Taiwan so that Taiwan is placed in an inferior position. He said that such an act is actually encouraging the CPC to attack Taiwan.

Solzhenitsyn, a Soviet anticommunist writer who is now visiting Taiwan, has also sincerely advised the Republic of China not to rely on the United States. He was a winner of the Nobel Prize for Literature and was granted political asylum by the United States. He knows the world situation very well and understands clearly what the United States, the Soviet Union and the CPC are doing. His sincere advice is in accord with Taibei's official criticism of the United States.

Although the United States has realized the strategic importance of Taiwan in the Western Pacific -- an unsinkable aircraft carrier -- when the CPC resorts to force in order to unify Taiwan, will be United States take action to stop it? This is indeed in grave doubt.

On 12 October, the CPC launched a rocket from a nuclear-powered submarine on the eastern coast to the sea area to the north of Taiwan. Everyone knows that by launching this rocket the CPC was making a show of force. In other words, it might resort to force to deal with Taiwan. Taibei's official criticism that the United States is encouraging the CPC to use force to attack Taiwan is not an exaggeration intended merely to frighten its people.

As we see it, following its defeat in the war in Indochina, the United States no longer has the courage to send troops to foreign countries. In the war to defend Vietnam, the United States wasted in vain innumerable human, material and financial resources. It was eventually forced to withdraw from the country in grief.

The Americans have not conscientiously reviewed this lesson. Actually, the defeat in the war in Indochina was not due to strategy. Rather, it was because of political restrictions. In other words, the United States used strategic weapons as tactical weapons. In a word, at that time the United States lacked a political strategy of resolving to win the war. The Vietcong saw through this weakness. Therefore, they did not worry and marched to the south and captured Saigon in one fell swoop.

In view of the above-mentioned facts, if the CPC really attacks Taiwan, the U.S. Seventh Fleet will not stop it. Therefore, according to the "Taiwan Relations Act," the United States should continue to supply Taiwan with the most advanced weapons so that it will have the capability of self-defense, unless the United States no longer rates Taiwan's strategic importance very highly.

Actually, the stability of Taiwan is closely connected with the stability of all Southeast Asia. If Taiwan were no longer in the bosom of the Free World, South Korea and Okinawa might feel that "without the lips, the teeth will feel cold." It might not even be easy to protect the Philippines in the south even though the United States has the Subic and Clarke naval bases in that country.

On 12 October, the CPC launched a rocket which fell to the north of Taiwan and thus to the west of Okinawa. When Okinawa is threatened, the metropolitan territory of Japan is thoroughly exposed. If the United States sells the most advanced weapons to Taiwan so that it has the capability of self-defense, the stability of Korea, Japan and the Philippines will also be maintained. The U.S. Government is not so stupid as to neglect this point.

In a word, the U.S. Government intends to ingratiate itself with both the KMT and CPC. However, the results may run counter to its wishes. An old Cantonese saying goes: "Following the brother might offend the sister-in-law." This is a common saying and also a truth. President Reagan should balance the gains and losses created by his attitude toward the KMT and CPC and adopt the most appropriate measures in the interests of the United States.

MING PAO ON CPC ECONOMIC SYSTEM REFORMS

HK200517 Hong Kong MING PAO in Chinese 20 Oct 82 p 6

[Special dispatch from Beijing: "Argument Between Centralized and Decentralized Powers on How To Reform Economic Systems"]

[Text] The CPC is currently readjusting and reorganizing China's industrial enterprises. As always, they run experiments first and then popularize them and probe feasible methods of reforming the economic system in the course of reorganization.

By reform of the economic system we primarily mean reform of the economic management system. This problem has provoked an argument between the "vertical" management of centralized power from the upper to the lower levels and the "horizontal" management of local decentralized power of each doing things in their own way.

Since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, the theoretical and practical economic workers have engaged in studying this problem. Their principal opinions can be divided into the following four categories:

The first opinion holds that in a socialist economy it is necessary to carry out "vertical" management from the upper to the lower levels according to the departmental principle. At present, centralization is insufficient, while the proportion of financial and material resources controlled by the localities is excessive. This not only weakens the unified planned economy but also causes a lot of waste. On the one hand, the productive force of advanced areas cannot be fully exerted, while on the other, a large number of enterprises that lag begind in construction techniques in the backward areas contend for energy resources and raw materials with the enterprises that have advanced techniques.

The second opinion holds that the "vertical" management system from the upper to the lower levels with each department as the main unit easily gives rise to the phenomenon of industry and commerce being run solely by the government. At present, the powers of the localities are too limited, the enterprises and financial income transferred to lower levels is only in name, the real power is controlled by the central responsible departments and the plans drawn up are not scientific. This state of affairs easily causes the phenomenon of "excessive unification, monopolization, rigidity and weakness."

The third opinion holds that whether it is "vertical" management by centralized power or "horizontal" management by local decentralized power, in both cases management is exercised according to the administrative system and enterprises are regarded as subsidiary bodies of the administrative structure.

The results of managing the economy according to administrative methods are: 1) duplication in distribution and blind development; 2) natural and energy resources are not comprehensively utilized; and 3) the level of cooperation between specialized departments is low, thus hindering the progress of science and technology and obstructing the development of productive force. The fundamental solution for the economic management system is that we must not be bound by the conventions of "vertical" and "horizontal" management, adopt economic methods to manage the economy, regard enterprises as economic units opposed to independence and bring the role of enterprises into full play.

The fourth opinion holds that at present the problem is that the center has not managed the matters it ought. This has led, for instance, to problems of overall balance, distribution and planning, and direction of major policies in economy and technology. The localities also have not handled matters as they ought, for instance, in urban construction and agriculture. Beginning now, reform should be concretely analyzed and dealt with in different ways. We must try to achieve an organic combination of centralization with decentralization, "vertical" management with "horizontal" management and economic methods with administrative methods.

FBIS DAILY REPORT CONTENTS

China

Vol I No 213 3 November 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

UN Envoy Calls for Nuclear Arms Reduction A 1
Seminar on Socioeconomic Indicators Opens A 1
Workshop on Chinese Medicine Opens in Beijing A 2

UNITED STATES

Shultz Comments on U.S.-Soviet Relations B 1
Author Herman Wouk Meets Writers in Beijing B 1
Briefs: Container Ship to U.S. B 1

NORTHEAST ASIA

Japan Refuses Visas to Soviet Electronics Group D 1
Yu Qiuli Meets Japanese Economic Study Group D 1
New Defense Minister Named in Mongolia D 1

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

VODK Reports DK Victories Over SRV Forces E 1
SRV Reportedly Stepping Up Border Operations E 1
SRV Foreign Minister's Comments Called 'Insult' E 2
[RENMIN RIBAO 3 Nov]

SOUTH ASIA

Huang Hua Meets New Bangladesh Ambassador F 1
RENMIN RIBAO Lauds Indian-Pakistani Talks F 1

WESTERN EUROPE

'Current Events' Program Views PRC-FRG Relations G 1
Zhu Muzhi Attends Turkish Envoy's Reception G 2
Health Minister Meets Turkish Deputy Premier G 2
Christian Delegation Meets Swedish King G 2

EASTERN EUROPE

Guangdong's Ren Zhongyi Meets Romanian Envoy H 1
GDR Textile Machinery Exhibit Opens in Shanghai H 1

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

Light Industry Minister Departs for Iraq I 1
Ends Visit I 1
Zhu Xuefan Meets PDRY Friendship Delegation I 1
Ni Zhifu Meets Rwandan Delegation in Beijing I 1
Ni Zhifu Meets Mozambique Delegation 19 Oct I 1
Ni Zhifu Meets Namibian Union Delegation I 2
Bo Yibo Meets Visiting Zimbabwe Journalists I 2
Reports on PRC Delegation's Visit to Somalia I 2
Qian Zhengying at Anniversary I 2
Award Presented to Minister I 3
Zhu Liang Fetes Congo Labor Party Delegation I 3

WESTERN HEMISPHERE

CHINA DAILY on PRC-Latin American Trade [29 Oct] J 1
Huang Hua Meets Chilean Vice Foreign Minister J 2

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Ma Hong Articles on Economic Construction K 1
RENMIN RIBAO 28 Oct K 1
RENMIN RIBAO 29 Oct K 5
RENMIN RIBAO on Need for Good Market Forecasting [29 Oct] K 9
RENMIN RIBAO on CPC Pursuing General Task [28 Oct] K 10
Central State Party Committee Meets 29 Oct K 13
Deng Liqun Addresses Workers' Education Meeting K 15
Advanced Railway Workers Meet in Beijing K 16
PLA Navy Commander Visits Cadres at Sanatorium K 16
Zhao Cangbi Discusses Spiritual Civilization K 17
Lu Dong on New Capital Construction Situation K 17
Bo Yibo Addresses Energy Saving Meeting K 18
Introducing Technology From Abroad Explained K 19
Family Planning Propaganda Work Conference Held K 20

PRC REGIONAL AFFAIRS

EAST REGION

Xiang Nan Attends Fujian Tree-Planting Meeting O 1
Fujian's Xiang Nan Reports on NPC DPRK Visit O 1
KMT Spy Cases Uncovered in Fujian Province O 1
Xu Jiatun Addresses Jiangsu Party Meeting [XINHUA RIBAO 29 Sep] O 2
Jiangxi's Bai Dongcai at Economic Crime Meeting O 4
Shandong's Bai Rubing at Party Plenary Session O 5
Chen Guodong Attends Shanghai Awards Meeting O 6
Shanghai's Chen Guodong Lauds Thrifty Households O 7
Li Fengping Attends Zhejiang Commendation Meeting O 7

CENTRAL-SOUTH REGION

Wang Zhen Addresses Guangzhou PLA Cadres [NANFANG RIBAO 2 Nov] P 1
Wang Zhen Attends Guangzhou Cultural Show 1 Nov P 2
Guangdong's Ren Zhongyi on Hitting Economic Crime P 3
Guangdong's Liu Tianfu on Congress Documents P 3
Liu Tianfu at Banquet for Taiwan Compatriots P 4
Guangdong Team To Investigate Rebel Official P 4
NANFANG RIBAO Urges Purge [15 Oct] P 5
Guangxi Opens Army-People Solidarity Congress P 6
Liu Jie Addresses Henan Tree-Planting Gathering P 6

SOUTHWEST REGION

Chi Biqing Attends Guizhou Procuratorial Meeting Q 1
Guizhou's Chi Biqing on Minority Nationality Work Q 1
Tan Qilong Addresses Sichuan CYL Congress Q 3
Sichuan Leaders Explain 12th Congress Documents Q 4
Sichuan Holds Militia Reorganization Gathering Q 4
Sichuan Militia Reorganization Gathering Ends Q 5
Xizang's Yin Fatang on Spiritual Civilization Q 6
Xizang's Yin Fatang Publicizes Congress Spirit Q 6
An Pingsheng Attends Yunnan Economic Forum Q 7

HONG KONG MEDIA ON CHINA

Delegation Reassured on Hong Kong's Future W 1
[WEN WEI PO 3 Nov]
TA KUNG PAO Views Sino-Soviet Relations [2 Nov] W 1
CHENG MING on Deng's Support for Ye Jianying [1 Nov] W 3
WEN WEI PO on Changes in Guangzhou PLA Personnel [3 Nov] W 4

UN ENVOY CALLS FOR NUCLEAR ARMS REDUCTION

OW030356 Beijing in Russian to the USSR 1800 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Liang Yufan, representative of the PRC delegation, pointed out on 29 October during general debates at the 37th session of the UN General Assembly that the Soviet Union and the United States as two major nuclear states possess the largest nuclear arsenals. Therefore, if we are to speak about a nuclear disarmament, then it is perfectly fair and valid to demand that the Soviet Union and the United States be the first to sharply reduce their nuclear arms.

Liang Yufan noted that in the name of struggle for world hegemony the great superpowers, supported by their unprecedentedly huge military powers, have developed a worldwide struggle. As a result the international situation is becoming increasingly uneasy and the danger of a world war is growing all the time.

Essentially it is absolutely impossible to achieve a shift in disarmament without struggling against the superpowers' hegemonic policy.

In conclusion Liang Yufan noted that China is a Third World country and under no circumstances will it participate in the arms race and in the superpowers' skirmish. We demand that the Soviet Union and the United States be the first to reduce nuclear arms. But it does not mean that we will not be reducing our nuclear arms. Our proposals clearly indicate that if they stop testing, perfecting and producing and sharply cut nuclear arms then we in turn will adopt the corresponding obligations.

SEMINAR ON SOCIOECONOMIC INDICATORS OPENS

OW011236 Beijing XINHUA in English 1220 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 1 (XINHUA) -- A seminar on socio-economic indicators and their application opened here this morning at the Great Hall of the People.

The two-week-long meeting is sponsored by the Econometric and Techno-Economic Institute of the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences and the division for socio-economic analysis of UNESCO.

Six foreign specialists have been invited to lecture at the seminar. They are Solomon Marcus of Romania, Carlos Malmann of Argentina, Ian Miles of England, Stephen Yeh and Denis Johnston of the United States and Musha Koji of Japan.

Eighty Chinese researchers, teachers and statisticians are attending the seminar which is the first cooperative effort in the social sciences between China and UNESCO.

Liu Guoguang, vice-president of the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences, said establishing a system of socio-economic indicators was extremely important in order to follow socio-economic developments and correctly map the strategy for economic development in China's modernization drive.

Erwin S. Solomon, director of the division for socio-economic analysis of UNESCO, and Yang Bozhen, vice-chairman of the Chinese National Commission for UNESCO, also spoke at the ceremony. They urged continuing cooperation of this kind in the future.

China and the UNESCO division will draft a cooperative plan during the seminar.

WORKSHOP ON CHINESE MEDICINE OPENS IN BEIJING

OW021243 Beijing XINHUA in English 1222 GMT 2 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 2 (XINHUA) -- An international workshop on traditional Chinese medicine, focusing on application in the Third World, opened here today.

Sponsored by the United Nations Industrial Development Organization (UNIDO) and the State Pharmaceutical Administration of China, the workshop is aimed at exchanging information on the derivation and usage of traditional medical science among developing countries to promote greater use of local natural resources in these countries. The workshop participants also want to produce drugs which are high in quality and inexpensive.

D.G.A. Butaev, director, division of industrial operations for UNIDO, said in his address that "China is a leader both in its possession of a wealth of information on traditionally herbal medicine, as well as in the evolution of a modern methodology towards production of pharmaceuticals." He added that he thought other countries can use China's experience for reference.

Attending today's opening ceremony were pharmaceutical experts, researchers and government officials from Bangladesh, Chile, Egypt, Guyana, Kenya, Malaysia, Nepal, Pakistan, the Philippines, Sri Lanka, Tanzania, Thailand, Turkey and Zambia as well as Chinese pharmaceutical experts and professors. Participants from other countries are scheduled to arrive in Beijing later. Also present were officials from United Nations organizations.

Through lectures and visits to China's traditional drug factories, participants at the workshop will be exposed to the history of Chinese materia medica, basic concepts of Chinese traditional medicine, clinical application of traditional and herbal drugs, and modern research on Chinese traditional and herbal drugs.

The first lecture, an introduction to Chinese materia medica, was given by Professor Shen Jiaxiang of the State Pharmaceutical Administration this afternoon.

He said that Chinese traditional medicine dating back to thousands of years include herbal drugs and remedies from minority areas. Like Western medicines they are all derived from plant, animals and minerals, with plant-derived drugs accounting for more than 80 percent. In the first century, China published its first classical book on materia medica named "Shen-nong's Herbal", in which, 365 kinds of drugs were listed -- some of them are still in use. Between 657 and 659, [as received] China edited and published its first pharmacopeia.

Professor Shen said that the development of Chinese traditional medicine theory has been closely associated with diagnosis and treatment in clinical practices. This is the important factor: The theory of Chinese medicine, handed down from the ancient times, has been continuously developed.

Today, he said, the barefoot doctors in China often cure peasants and lighten their medical expenses through planting, or gathering and making Chinese herbal medicine, which play a very important role in medicine in rural areas.

The workshop is scheduled to end on November 14.

SHULTZ COMMENTS ON U.S.-SOVIET RELATIONS

OW021211 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1536 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, 1 Nov (XINHUA) -- According to reports from Washington, U.S. Secretary of State Shultz said yesterday that any Soviet leader must recognize that the United States is determined to strengthen and maintain its strength militarily, economically, morally and politically.

In a statement made to a reporter of the weekly U.S. NEWS AND WORLD REPORT, Shultz said that the development of U.S.-Soviet relations depends on Soviet conduct in military strength, aggression, human values and so forth, and that at present Soviet threat to foreign territories "remains enormous".

Shultz said that the military growth of the Soviet Union in the past 10 years is the most important question, which is the reason that the Reagan administration wants to tighten restriction on loans to the Soviet Union and on trade with it. He indicated that the Reagan administration plans to revise U.S. trade policies to prevent technological assistance to the Soviet Union or financial aid to its economy.

Western news agencies regard Shultz' remarks as a response of the United States to the tough talks recently made by Soviet leaders on U.S.-Soviet relations.

AUTHOR HERMAN WOUK MEETS WRITERS IN BEIJING

OW012023 Beijing XINHUA in English 1531 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 1 (XINHUA) -- Liu Baiyu, vice-chairman, and two leaders Zhu Ziqi, executive secretary, of the Chinese Writers' Association and Chinese writers of military literature met today with Herman Wouk, author of "Winds of War."

The American novelist's "Winds of War" and "War Remembrance" have been translated into Chinese and widely acclaimed by Chinese readers.

Liu Baiyu told Wouk that "we have both fought against fascists on the common battlefield, you on the sea, and we on the land." He said that he liked Wouk's works.

Wouk said that despite the great difference between the cultures of the two countries, war is something unfortunate and understood by both nations. He said he will never forget that the Chinese people fought longer than any other people in the world.

The writers exchanged views on literature with military themes.

After the interview the Chinese Writers' Association gave a dinner in honor of Wouk and his wife Betty Sarah Wouk. The novelist arrived October 28 at the invitation of the Chinese Writers' Association for a three-week visit. He will make a tour of Chinese cities.

BRIEFS

CONTAINER SHIP TO U.S. -- Shanghai, Nov 1 (XINHUA) -- China's largest container ship left Shanghai Sunday for the eastern and southern parts of the United States on its maiden voyage. The 20,000-ton ship, "Fenhe," which can carry 1,152 20-foot standard-sized containers, will berth at the American ports of Long Beach, New York, Charleston and Houston. Chinese cargoes for the eastern and southern parts of the United States used to be shipped to the west coast of that country and then transported by train. The container ship will make two voyages a month. [Text] [Beijing XINHUA in English 1201 GMT 1 Nov 82 OW]

JAPAN REFUSES VISAS TO SOVIET ELECTRONICS GROUP

OW020754 Beijing XINHUA in English 0732 GMT 2 Nov 82

[Text] Tokyo, November 2 (XINHUA) -- The Japanese Foreign Affairs Ministry has refused to grant entry visa to a Soviet vice-minister allegedly for fear of possible leaks of top secrets.

Last July, Kolesnikov, first vice-minister of electronics industry, and five Soviet scientists made known to three Japanese electronics companies their wish to visit some videotape recorder factories in Japan in September. The Japanese companies agreed to receive them and in early September applied to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs for entry visas on behalf of the Soviets.

However, shortly before Kolesnikov's group set out for the planned visit, the Japanese Foreign Ministry informed the three Japanese companies of its refusal to grant entry visas.

YU QIULI MEETS JAPANESE ECONOMIC STUDY GROUP

OW271403 Beijing XINHUA in English 1201 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 27 (XINHUA) -- Yu Qiuli, Chinese state councillor, met here today with an economic study group from Japan led by Takeshi Inoue, director general of the Japan-China Economy and Trade Association.

Yu praised the Japan-China Economy and Trade Association for its contribution to the development of friendship and economic cooperation between the two countries. He said that to realize China's strategic objectives of economic construction, there will be more development in economic and technical cooperation between China and Japan.

Inoue said: "China has gained remarkable results from its economic readjustment in recent years. China's plan for economic development has set a clear objective for our cooperation."

"This time, we will make a study tour of east China for the purpose of finding out ways of further cooperation with China," he said.

NEW DEFENSE MINISTER NAMED IN MONGOLIA

OW030827 Beijing XINHUA in English 0738 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, November 2 (XINHUA) -- Lieutenant General Jamsrangiyn Yendon has replaced General Jarantayn Abhia as the Mongolian minister of national defence, according to a recent decision made by the Presidium of the Great People's Hural.

The Central Committee of the Mongolian People's Revolutionary Party also decided to replace Lieutenant General Dondobyn Yendonduychir with Major General J. Baljinnyam as director of the Political Department of the People's Army.

The Council of Ministers also decided to promote Lieutenant General Jamsrangiyn Yendon to the rank of general and Major General J. Baljinnyam to that of lieutenant general.

VODK REPORTS DK VICTORIES OVER SRV FORCES

OW021215 Beijing XINHUA in English 1201 GMT 2 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 2 (XINHUA) -- Democratic Kampuchean troops launched attacks on Vietnamese occupation troops and liberated three villages, according to radio Democratic Kampuchea.

Vietnamese troops stationed in Siem Reap abandoned two strongholds on October 3 and 6 after they had been encircled by the Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas for a long time. Vietnamese troops in Battambang Province, under pressure of incessant attacks by the Democratic Kampuchean troops, withdrew from a village south of the No. 5 highway.

On October 8, a Vietnamese battalion on a military operation in Siem Reap Province was ambushed by Kampuchean fighters, leaving behind 17 dead and eight wounded.

The radio said from October 2 to 23, the Democratic Kampuchean troops and guerrillas launched 10 surprise attacks on the Vietnamese troops in seven provinces including Battambang, Kampot, Koh Kong and Preah Vihear. During these attacks, about 170 enemy troops were wiped out, a truck and five boats damaged and an assortment of weapons captured by the Democratic Kampuchean troops and guerrillas.

SRV REPORTEDLY STEPPING UP BORDER OPERATION

OW021747 Beijing XINHUA in English 1620 GMT 2 Nov 82

["Hanoi Prepares New Adventures in Kampuchea -- by Correspondent Li Yongming" -- XINHUA headline]

[Text] Beijing, November 2 (XINHUA) -- Of late the Hanoi authorities sent over 20,000 additional troops to Kampuchea as reinforcements and its troops along the Kampuchean-Thai border have reached seven divisions in strength.

These maneuvers came after an "important strategic meeting" attended by officers of the aggressive Vietnamese troops in Phnom Penh not long ago. They presage a new adventure by the Vietnamese aggressors.

Meanwhile, the Vietnamese authorities also moved large numbers of tanks, armored personnel carriers and artillery pieces as well as sophisticated military equipment for their troops in west Kampuchea adjacent to Thailand. In the last rainy season, Vietnamese troops built highroads, bridges, logistic depots and airstrips in the region.

All this indicates that Vietnam is intensifying military efforts against the resistance forces along the Thai-Kampuchean border.

This comes logical considering the fact that the Kampuchean coalition government of three resistance factions, which was formed last June, has won increasing international support and its U.N. credentials have been accepted by an overwhelming majority of U.N. members at the 37th General Assembly.

It would probably arouse greater doubts if Vietnamese invaders refrained from taking fresh actions under these circumstances. And people are watching how Hanoi is going to act in its new adventures in Kampuchea.

Meanwhile, people have also noticed that a Soviet military-political delegation, which had just toured Vietnam, ended a visit to Kampuchea today -- the eve of a dry-season Vietnamese offensive.

SRV FOREIGN MINISTER'S COMMENTS CALLED 'INSULT'

HK030942 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 3 Nov 82 p 6

[Article by reporters Wang Rongjiu [3769 2837 0036] and Yang Qun [2799 5028] "Nguyen Co Thach's Ah Q [personification of national pride] Spirit"]

[Text] Bangkok, 1 Nov -- During a stopover in Bangkok after concluding a visit to Indonesia, Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach answered questions raised by reporters. He regarded Vietnam's crushing defeat at the UN General Assembly in trying to deprive Democratic Kampuchea of its legitimate seat in the United Nations as a "minor matter." He did not dare say why the Vietnamese authorities exerted such great efforts to carry out these activities. However, he compared the restoration of China's legitimate seat in the United Nations with the Vietnamese efforts to inject their puppet into this world organization. These were two matters of completely different natures.

Nguyen Co Thach's remarks were not only a great insult to the Chinese people, but also a challenge to the peace-loving and justice-holding countries which exerted great efforts for the restoration of China's legitimate seat in the United Nations. It is just as public opinion here has pointed out: What Nguyen Co Thach said was no more than the lamentations of a loser and the self-betrayal of the psychological weakness of the Vietnamese authorities.

Apart from continuing to peddle the old wares that "China is dangerous," this time Nguyen Co Thach was compelled to admit, in begging for aid, that Vietnam had encountered many difficulties. However, in an effort to look imposing, he slapped his face until it was swollen, saying that no strings should be attached to the aid. He added that "we will not barter away independence because of aid." It was simply ridiculous that such remarks were uttered by Nguyen Co Thach. Newspapers in Thailand pointed out that the reason why Vietnam could stay in Kampuchea was because "the Russians provide them with uniforms and money." The Soviet Union does not give its money to the Vietnamese for nothing. Their money is paid in exchange for the independence and sovereignty of Vietnam. Recently, it was reported that 12 Soviet warships have been permanently stationed in Camranh Bay and that Soviet nuclear submarines also pay "regular visits" to Camranh Bay. Where is the independence of the Vietnamese authorities?

During his 1-day stay in Bangkok, Nguyen Co Thach repeatedly said that he wished to meet Thai Foreign Minister Sitthi. However when he learned that Foreign Minister Sitthi did not intend to meet him, he found an excuse to console himself, saying: "If Foreign Minister Sitthi is too busy, we may meet next time." A Thai reporter said teasingly: "It seems that Nguyen Co Thach will not blush with shame for the refusal, because he is already accustomed to it."

HUANG HUA MEETS NEW BANGLADESH AMBASSADOR

OW021311 Beijing XINHUA in English 1258 GMT 2 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 2 (XINHUA) -- State Councillor and Minister of Foreign Affairs Huang Hua met and had a friendly talk here today with new Bangladesh Ambassador to China C.M. Murshed.

RENMIN RIBAO LAUDS INDIAN-PAKISTANI TALKS

OW030825 Beijing XINHUA in English 0732 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 3 (XINHUA) -- A PEOPLE'S DAILY commentary today hails the talks between the leaders of Pakistan and India as a heartening development in the relations between the two countries. The commentary reads:

Pakistani President Ziaul Haq, on his Southeast Asian tour, had talks with Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi in New Delhi on November 1. For the first time in ten years the two leaders met to hold substantial talks on bilateral, regional and global issues.

Both sides are satisfied with the outcome of the talks. President Ziaul said the talks "pave the way for better relations between us." Indira Gandhi said "we had very useful and fruitful talks." This shows that Indian-Pakistan relations have made encouraging progress. This is heartening news.

India and Pakistan, linked with each other by mountains and rivers, are two most influential countries in the south Asian subcontinent. Harmony between the two countries not only conforms to the vital interests of the two peoples, but also conduces to peace and stability in the south Asian region.

Since the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, the statesmen of both countries have come to realize the importance of an early normalization of bilateral relations because they see that the invasion has seriously threatened their two countries and all south Asia. Last year Indian and Pakistani officials began to hold talks on bilateral relations. These talks, though exploratory in nature, have deepened mutual understanding. It is expected that the talks between President Ziaul Haq and Prime Minister Indira Gandhi will create more favorable conditions for the speedy improvement of relations.

Better Indian-Pakistani relations are not only desired by the two peoples but also required for developments in south Asia and the whole world. One or two rounds of talks of course cannot offer a solution for all differences. But relations can be expected to improve so long as the two countries seek common ground in good faith while reserving their differences.

'CURRENT EVENTS' PROGRAM VIEWS PRC-FRG RELATIONS

OW120830 Beijing Domestic Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 11 Oct 82

[Talk from the "International Current Events" program: "A Review of the Friendly Relations Between China and the FRG Over the Past Decade"]

[Excerpts] Today 10 years ago, 11 October 1972, China and the Federal Republic of Germany established diplomatic relations. Ten years later, today, a day worth commemorating, Karl Carstens, president of the FRG, arrived in China on a state visit. The Chinese people wish to extend him a warm welcome.

Since the establishment of diplomatic relations between them a decade ago, China and the FRG have scored gratifying achievements in their friendly contracts and cooperation in the political, economic, education and cultural fields, thanks to the common efforts of both sides. This period has also witnessed a continuous increase in personnel exchanges between the two countries.

The development of relations between China and West Germany has been underscored by the rapid growth of their economic and trade ties. Two-way trade between them increased to $2.34 billion in 1981, 7.5 times the 1972 figure of $270 million. West Germany today is China's third-ranked partner in trade, leading all other European countries in trade with China. In a trade payment agreement signed between the two countries in 1973 each country granted the other most-favored-nation status. Following the conclusion of a maritime protocol in 1975, which is of great significance in developing bilateral trade, China and West Germany signed an economic cooperation agreement in 1979.

Acknowledging China as a developing country, West Germany began providing us with technical consultative services. The two countries are seeking new ways of creating conditions for further promoting their economic cooperation. Exchanges and cooperation in the fields of science and technology, culture, education and sports have also grown between the two countries.

China and West Germany are different so far as their social systems, ideology and conditions are concerned. However, they have been able to develop their friendship and promote relations of cooperation. What has made them to be able to do so?

First, there is no conflict of fundamental interest between the two countries, nor problems left over from history. Although German imperialism invaded China and fascist Germany supported the Japanese imperialists' armed aggression against China, these are of the past and constitute no obstacles to developing relations between the two countries. Moreover, the Chinese Government and people strictly distinguish the handful of German imperialists and fascist elements from the broad masses of the German people.

Second, the people of both China and West Germany want to safeguard world peace and defend their independence, sovereignty and security. They oppose foreign intervention, control and bullying. China's prosperity and stability is in conformity with the interests of West Germany. China supports the unity of West Germany and other West European countries and welcomes them to play a more active role in the international arena.

Third, economically both China and West Germany can and must help supply each other's needs in efforts to promote cooperation between them. Although it possesses full-fledged industry, West Germany lacks natural resources. China, although rich in natural resources, needs to import advanced technologies and scientific management knowledge. The two countries can, and need to learn from each others' strong points to offset their weaknesses and supplement each other. Both sides wish to further develop economic and technical cooperation.

Several days prior to his departure for a state visit to China, President Karl Carstens of the FRG told XINHUA that the establishment of diplomatic relations between the FRG and China had opened a new chapter in the relations between the two countries. He pointed out that contacts between China and the FRG in politics, economics and culture have increased daily and that he saw positive and gratifying developments in every field. He said that his forthcoming visit to China would have a great significance in strengthening the relations between the two countries, adding that it is very important for West Germany to have a chance to become familiar with China's viewpoints through direct dialogue.

As we recall the past and look forward to the future, we are convinced that the current visit by President Carstens will further develop the friendly relations and cooperation between China and the FRG on the existing bases.

ZHU MUZHI ATTENDS TURKISH ENVOY'S RECEPTION

OW290853 Beijing XINHUA in English 0745 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 29 (XINHUA) -- Turkish Ambassador to China Necdet Tezel and Mrs. Tezel gave a reception here this morning celebrating the 59th anniversary of the Republic of Turkey.

Zhu Muzhi, China's minister of culture, He Ying, adviser to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and diplomatic envoys of various countries were among the guests present on the occasion.

HEALTH MINISTER MEETS TURKISH DEPUTY PREMIER

OW291602 Beijing XINHUA in English 1536 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Ankara, October 28 (XINHUA) -- Turkish Deputy Prime Minister Zeyyat Baykara told the visiting Chinese Minister of Public Health Cui Yueli that he wishes that cooperation between the two countries in medical and health services will be furthered.

Baykara received the Chinese delegation led by Cui in the name of the Turkish prime minister who has been away from the capital.

Cui Yueli, who came here on October 24, has held discussions with his Turkish counterpart Kaya Kilicturgay on the promotion of bilateral cooperation in medical and health affairs.

He has also called on the Turkish foreign minister who entertained the Chinese delegation to a lunch and expressed satisfaction at the developing relations between the two countries.

The Chinese minister will leave for home on November 1 after attending the Turkey's National Day celebrations in Istanbul tomorrow.

CHRISTIAN DELEGATION MEETS SWEDISH KING

OW012045 Beijing XINHUA in English 1840 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] Stockholm, November 1 (XINHUA) -- King Carl XVI Gustaf of Sweden received and had a cordial conversation with a three-man Chinese Christian delegation at his palace today.

The delegation headed by Bishop Ding Quang Xun, president of the Chinese Christian Association, arrived here on October 30 at the invitation of the Swedish church.

Since its arrival, the delegation had met a number of Swedish religious figures and participated in some religious activities. The delegation is expected to leave here for Britain on November 3.

GUANDONG'S REN ZHONGYI MEETS ROMANIAN ENVOY

HK030128 Guangzhou Guandgdong Provincial Service in Mandarin 2350 GMT 2 Nov 82

[Text] Guangdong Provincial CPC Committee First Secretary Ren Zhongyi met Romanian Ambassador to the PRC Dumitrescu and his wife, who are visiting Guangdong, at the Zhudao Hotel in Guangzhou on 2 November. After the reception, Comrade Ren Zhongyi gave a banquet for the Romanian comrades.

GDR TEXTILE MACHINERY EXHIBIT OPENS IN SHANGHAI

OW112015 Beijing XINHUA in English 1831 GMT 11 Oct 82

[Text] Shanghai, October 11 (XINHUA) -- A weeklong textile machines exhibition of the German Democratic Republic opened today in the Shanghai exhibition hall at a ceremony attended by more than 200.

Xin Yuanxi, city vice-mayor, cut the ribbon to open the exhibition.

Dr. Thalemann, vice-minister for machine tools and processing machines, who made a special trip for the opening, and Sun Gengduo, director of the Shanghai branch of the China Council for the Promotion of International Trade, spoke at the ceremony.

They expressed confidence the exhibition would help mutual understanding and friendship and further develop economic and trade ties and technical cooperation.

Among these attending the ceremony was Rolf Berthold, GDR ambassador to China.

After the ceremony, guests and hosts toured the exhibition and watched the operation of industrial sewing machines.

During the week, technical personnel of the two countries will hold conferences and exchanges.

LIGHT INDUSTRY MINISTER DEPARTS FOR IRAQ

OW260826 Beijing XINHUA in English 0732 GMT 26 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 26 (XINHUA) -- Chinese Minister of Light Industry Yang Bo left here today for Iraq to attend the opening ceremony of the 19th Baghdad international fair. He was invited by Hasan 'Ali al-Amiri, Iraqi minister of trade.

Ends Visit

OW030803 Beijing XINYUA in English 0715 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Text] Baghdad, November 2 (XINHUA) -- Chinese Minister of Light Industry Yang Bo has discussed with Iraqi leaders the means to strengthen cooperation in various fields between China and Iraq.

The discussion took place during Yang Bo's one-week visit to Iraq to attend the Baghdad international fair at the invitation of the Iraqi Ministry of Trade.

During the visit which ended today, Yang Bo was received by Iraqi President Saddam Hussayn and had friendly conversations with First Deputy Premier Taha Yasin Ramadan and Minister of Trade Hasan 'Ali. Yang Bo left here today.

ZHU XUEFAN MEETS PDRY FRIENDSHIP DELEGATION

OW151950 Beijing XINHUA in English 1502 GMT 15 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 15 (XINHUA) -- Zhu Xuefan, vice-chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress, met here this afternoon with a delegation from the Friendship Association with Foreign Countries of the People's Democratic Republic of Yemen led by Mansoor Abdulla Matlah.

Yasin Ahmad Salih, ambassador of Democratic Yemen, was present on the occasion.

The delegation arrived here yesterday after visits to Nanjing, Shanghai and Hangzhou in east China.

NI ZHIFU MEETS RWANDAN DELEGATION IN BEIJING

OW221239 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1347 GMT 20 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, 20 Oct (XINHUA) -- Ni Zhifu, chairman of the All-China Federation of Trade Unions, met the delegation of the National Revolutionary Movement for the development of Rwanda led by (Edward Kalamela), Central Committee member and director of the presidential palace, at the Great Hall of the People this afternoon and had cordial conversation with the guests.

The delegation has been invited to a good-will tour and survey of trade union work in China. It arrived in Beijing on 18 October.

NI ZHIFU MEETS MOZAMBIQUE DELEGATION 19 OCT

OW191345 Beijing XINHUA in English 1315 GMT 19 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 19 (XINHUA) -- Ni Zhifu, president of the All-China Federation of Trade Unions, met here this morning with a delegation from the Mozambique National Commission for the Establishment of Production Councils led by its Deputy General Secretary Eugenio Simao.

They had a friendly conversation on the furtherance of the friendly relations between the workers and trade unions of the two countries. The delegation arrived here yesterday at the invitation of the All-China Federation of Trade Unions.

NI ZHIFU MEETS NAMIBIAN UNION DELEGATION

OW191324 Beijing XINHUA in English 1253 GMT 19 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 19 (XINHUA) -- Ni Zhifu, president of the All-China Federation of Trade Unions, met here this afternoon with a trade union delegation from Namibia led by Pejavi Muniaro, deputy secretary of the National Union of Namibia Workers.

On behalf of the federation and Chinese workers, Ni Zhifu expressed resolute support for the Namibian workers and people in their just struggle to oppose the colonial rule in South Africa and win national independence.

The delegation arrived here yesterday on a friendship visit to China at the invitation of the All-China Federation of Trade Unions.

BO YIBO MEETS VISITING ZIMBABWE JOURNALISTS

OW151727 Beijing XINHUA in English 1641 GMT 15 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 15 (XINHUA) -- Chinese State Councillor Bo Yibo met this evening in the Great Hall of the People here a journalists delegation from Zimbabwe led by Comrade Ndlohvu, assistant director of the Ministry of Information. They had a cordial conversation.

Present were Lu Liang, member of the Secretariat of the All-China Journalists' Association, and Gabriel Phineas, Zimbabwe ambassador to China.

REPORTS ON PRC DELEGATION'S VISIT TO SOMALIA

Qian Zhengying at Anniversary

OW220805 Beijing XINHUA in English 0711 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Mogadishu, October 21 (XINHUA) -- Somali President Mohamed Siad Barre said today that there is instability in the world at present due to political tensions, economic difficulties and colonialism.

He made the statement here today on the occasion of the 13th anniversary of the Oct. 21 revolution. Some 50,000 people from all walks of life took part in the celebration.

Also present on the occasion were First Vice-President and Minister of Defense Lt. General Mohamed Ali Samatar and other top government officials as well as foreign delegations including the Chinese delegation headed by Qian Zhengying, minister of water conservancy and power.

The president said: "There is no doubt that perpetual tensions and dangerous confrontations in Afghanistan, Kampuchea, Poland, Lebanon, the Gulf, the Horn of Africa are rooted in the strategic designs of certain of the big powers, on whose shoulders squarely rests the responsibility of safeguarding general world security. Among these powers is the USSR which has opted for an expansionist and autocratic policy."

He said that the issue of the Horn of Africa has been complicated by Russia.

He called on Ethiopia "to heed the peace overtures we are making to it and to resolve its differences with us through a negotiated settlement." "We do believe that the differences between Somalia and Ethiopia cannot be settled by war and that it is not in the interest of either of them," he added.

Referring to the Middle East problem, the president said that "the peace proposals of the U.S. President on the Middle East contain good parts that can be of benefit in solving the problem in this area."

Siad Barre also condemned Israel's invasion and violent intervention in Lebanon and massacre of Palestinian refugees including innocent children, women and old people.

Turning to the African issue, he said that it is "imperative for the African leaders and people to contain the splitting activities of the elements who are sowing the seeds of discord among African states to exploit our disunity for their selfish ends."

He also spoke about the economic difficulties and the measures adopted by the government to better the economic situation at home. This evening, President Siad Barre hosted a grand reception here to observe the great day of the people.

Award Presented to Minister

OW241628 Beijing XINHUA in English 1610 GMT 24 Oct 82

[Text] Mogadishu, October 24 (XINHUA) -- Somali President Mohamed Siad Barre yesterday presented a gold medal to the Chinese Minister of Water Conservancy and Power Qian Zhengying.

This is a first gold medal the Somali Government has presented to a foreigner.

The awarding was made at an inauguration ceremony for a hydraulic power station and main canal of the Fanole project, which was built under China's help.

The president also awarded silver and bronze medals to 45 Chinese and Somali experts and technical personnel and issued 141 certificates of merit for their outstanding contributions to the construction of the project.

The Somali president spoke highly of the profound friendly relations between the two countries and peoples and stressed the great importance of the Fanole project to the development of the national economy.

In her speech at the ceremony Qian Zhengying said that the gold medal presented by the Somali president is an expression of the profound sentiment of the president, the Somali Government and people towards the Chinese Government and people and it, as well, symbolizes the relations of friendship and cooperation between the two countries for many years.

The Fanole water project is the largest agricultural project in Somalia. After its completion, the project would be able to water more than 40,000 hectares of farmland. At present, there are about 370 Chinese experts working on this project.

After the ceremony, President Siad Barre cut ribbon for the inauguration of the hydraulic power station and main canal amidst cheers and applause. Accompanied by Minister Qian Zhengying, President Siad visited all parts of the project. He expressed his satisfaction with the project.

ZHU LIANG FETES CONGO LABOR PARTY DELEGATION

OW222143 Beijing XINHUA in English 1607 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 22 (XINHUA) -- Zhu Liang, deputy head of the International Liaison Department of the Central Committee of the Chinese Communist Party, dined today with a five-member group of vacationing Congolese party cadres led by Bouhouayi Dominique, member of the Central Committee of the Congolese Labor Party and permanent secretary of the Central Control Commission.

The Congolese guests arrived yesterday at the invitation of the International Liaison Department of the C.P.C. Central Committee.

CHINA DAILY ON PRC-LATIN AMERICAN TRADE

HK290334 Beijing CHINA DAILY in English 29 Oct 82 p 2

[Special to CHINA DAILY]

[Text] Trade between China and Latin America can be traced back to the 16th century, when Chinese silk and porcelain were shipped through the Philippines to Mexico and Peru. Since then, there have been ups and downs on the road of trade expansion.

By the time of the founding of the People's Republic of China, trade links with Latin American countries had become so weak that only Chile, Brazil and Uruguay remained as trading partners and trade turnover was anything but substantial.

China's average annual imports from Latin America in the 1950's were not more than U.S. $3 million, while her exports were an even more miserable $100,000. Since the low points of the 1950's, trade has grown meteorically.

By 1980, total trade was worth about $1.3 billion, and this rose still further last year to $1.5 billion.

Trade has consistently remained in Latin America's favour, with imports to China amounting to $870 million last year and Chinese exports amounting to $630 million.

The gap has been closing quite fast, however, and may in the years ahead at last come into approximate balance.

It was not until the 1970's that China had a real breakthrough in economic relations and trade with Latin America.

Commercial offices were established in Mexico, Chile, Argentina, Peru, Guyana, Jamaica, Barbados, Trinidad and Tobago, Surinam, Venezuela, Cuba and Brazil.

Governmental trade agrements were concluded with Chile, Peru, Mexico, Jamaica, Argentina, Brazil and Ecuador.

Import and export commodities were diversified as trade contacts became more frequent.

China is now an important buyer not only of Latin American traditional products like cotton, sugar, wheat, copper, tin and zinc, but also of manufactured goods such as rolled steel, petrochemical products, polyester fibres and paper pulp.

For China's exports to Latin Ameirca, paraffin, crude oil, pharmaceuticals, machinery and electric products have been added to her commodities list.

China's two main trading partners are Brazil and Cuba which together account for over 40 percent of the total trade in the region. China's best market by a large margin is Brazil, which alone accounts for 47 percent of China's exports. Main export items are rice, cans, cotton cloth, medicine, garments and resin oil. Brazil and Cuba also lead the field as suppliers to the Chinese market.

Brazil, which accounts for 31 percent of China's imports, mainly supplies steel, paper pulp, chemical fibres and cocoa beans. Cuba, which accounts for about one-fifth of imports mainly supplies sugar.

Since the beginning of the 1980's there has been new growth of economic relations and trade. Diplomatic relations were established and commercial offices set up in 1980 with Ecuador and Colombia.

There are still problems to be solved, such as late delivery due to long distance of transport and strict restrictions on some of China's industrial goods by certain Latin American countries but prospects for trade expansion are very bright. As Third World developing countries we share common interests in developing trade on the basis of equality and mutual advantage.

CHINA'S TRADE WITH LATIN AMERICA

Unit: million dollars

	China's Exports		China's Imports		Trade Balance
	1980	1981	1980	1981	1980	1981
Chile	19	32.7	121	52.7	-102	-20
Cuba	93	66.1	127	163.4	-34	-97.3
Argentina	30	20.8	159	99.2	-129	-78.4
Peru	11	8.2	104	66.6	-93	-58.4
Mexico	23	30.2	80	118.2	-57	-88
Brazil	246	294.5	63	100.4	+183	+194.1
Others	65	177.5	189	269.5	-124	-92
Total	487	630	843	870	-356	-240

Exchange rate US$1 - 1.99 yuan

#Source: Statistics Bureau Yearbook and Ministry of Foreign Economic Relations and Trade

HUANG HUA MEETS CHILEAN VICE FOREIGN MINISTER

OW021309 Beijing XINHUA in English 1257 GMT 2 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 2 (XINHUA) -- State Councillor and Minister of Foreign Affairs Huang Hua met and had a friendly conversation here today with Sergio Covarrubias, Chilean first vice-minister of foreign affairs.

Chilean Ambassador to China Benjamin Opazo was present.

Earlier today Covarrubias and Chinese Vice Minister of Foreign Economic Relations and Trade Zheng Tuobin opened the fifth meeting of the Sino-Chilean Mixed Commission of Trade.

MA HONG ARTICLES ON ECONOMIC CONSTRUCTION

RENMIN RIBAO 28 Oct

HK291050 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 28 Oct 82 p 5

[Article by Ma Hong [7456 3163]: "On Steps To Achieve the Strategic Objectives" -- part one]

[Text] In his report to the 12th party congress, Comrade Hu Yaobang pointed out: The general objective of China's economic construction for the two decades between 1981 and the end of this century is, while steadily working for more and better economic results, to quadruple the gross annual value of industrial and agricultural production -- from 710 billion yuan in 1980 to about 2,800 billion yuan in the year 2000. This is a grand strategic objective. Defining this strategic objective has extremely far-reaching significance and plays an extremely important part in guiding China's middle- and long-term economic development, boosting the morale of the whole nation in building socialism, and deciding the orientation of the whole party and nation in economic work.

In the development of the economy since the founding of the PRC, gross output value increased from 82.7 billion yuan in 1952 to 749 billion yuan in 1981, showing an increase of 8.5 times calculating by constant prices. Though some imprecise factors may be included in these figures, we can say that in general during the past 29 years, our annual output value on the average doubled every 10 years. This result was achieved despite many setbacks. If none of those setbacks, twists and turns had occurred, we might have achieved much better results and much faster growth rates. In the future we will no longer suffer any setbacks. Thus, viewed from both historical experiences and present conditions, as long as the people of the whole country work with one heart and one mind in a realistic manner under the leadership of the party Central Committee, and the superiority of our socialist system is brought further into play, we will certainly manage to attain the grand objective of quadrupling our annual output value within 20 years.

In order to achieve the grand strategic objective decided by the party Central Committee, it is necessary to firmly grasp the fundamental areas of agriculture, energy, transportation, education and science, and to treat these as strategic priorities in the long-term development of the national economy. In our strategic planning we need to take the following two steps: in the first decade, we should aim at laying solid foundations, accumulating strength and creating the necessary conditions for the further development of the national economy; and in the second decade, we will usher in a new period of vigorous economic development on the established foundations. Here, I would like to make an analysis of the question of why we should take two steps to achieve the strategic objective of developing the national economy.

The objective of quadrupling the gross output value of industry and agriculture in the two decades from 1980 to the year 2000 means achieving an average annual growth rate of 7.2 percent. But this in no way means that from now on the gross industrial and agricultural output value must increase at a yearly rate of 7.2 percent. We should start from the actual conditions of our country and develop the economy in the first decade at a comparatively low rate. During the first decade the growth rate in the first 5 years should still be lower than that in the latter 5 so as to continue economic readjustment, further resolve problems left over by history and lay a solid, necessary foundation for the future development of the national economy. Only in this way can we achieve an average annual growth rate of over 7.2 percent in the second decade and create a situation in which the national economy will grow steadily in these two decades. According to the current draft of the Sixth 5-Year Plan, the annual growth rate of gross industrial and agricultural output value will be only 4 percent and efforts are required to achieve 5 percent (in fact, it is possible to overfulfill this target). Estimated on this basis, the annual growth rate in the Seventh 5-Year Plan will be close to 7 percent, and the growth rate in the Eighth and Ninth 5-Year Plans will be over 8 percent. In this way, we shall achieve the strategic objective of quadrupling the gross output value of industry and agriculture by the end of this century.

Why should the growth rate in the first decade be lower than that in the second decade? Why not the other way round?

The relatively low growth rate of the economy in the Sixth and even the Seventh 5-Year Plan periods is determined by a series of objective conditions and the tasks which must be fulfilled. From now on, we need to take 5 years or even longer to fulfill the arduous tasks set by the policy of readjusting, restructuring, consolidating and improving the national economy. We must work hard to readjust the national economic structure, reorganize existing enterprises, carry out technical transformation in key enterprises and strengthen certain vital sectors of the national economy such as energy, transportation and agriculture. Under these circumstances, the growth rate of the national economy will inevitably be slow. If the economy is required to develop at an inordinately high rate at the present stage, the long-term development of the national economy will be unfavorably influenced.

The readjustment of the national economic structure is an arduous task of primary importance. After a few years of readjustment to the national economy, the ratios between industry and agriculture and between heavy and light industries have made initial improvements. Currently, the major problem with regard to the economic structure is that the internal structures of heavy industry, light industry and agriculture are still not entirely rational. Previously, the major problem concerning heavy industry was that the service section of heavy industry itself and of capital construction was excessively large and correspondingly the service section of agriculture, light industry and exports was too small. At present, the readjustment task for heavy industry is mainly to continue to correct the direction of its service and expand its scope of services, that is, to readjust the composition of its produce. For example, now we can produce over 35 million tons of steel annually and can even produce steel products used to make artificial satellites and intercontinental ballistic missiles, but, ironically, we cannot perfectly produce the enamel plates used to make washbasins and flat springs used to make washing machines. This indicates that China's heavy industry is not incapable of solving problems of this kind but does not make enough effort to deal with these matters. Similar cases can also be found in the machine-building and chemical industries.

Light industry has developed considerably in recent years. Most of its products are already sufficient to satisfy the needs of social consumption. But with respect to the variety and quality of products, it is still far from meeting the people's demands. Many brand name products are in short supply while quite a few products are stockpiled. These problems can be solved only by readjusting the internal structure of light industry. With regard to agricultural production, we have yet to fully rationalize the distribution of the planting of grain and cash crops in accordance with the characteristics of natural regional divisions throughout the country and with the principle of improving the ecological balance in the long term. As for the production and utilization of chemical fertilizers, phosphate and potash fertilizers account for too small a proportion and cannot meet the demand for crop nutrients. At present there are still vast areas of hilly land, forests, beaches, lakes and ponds, and grasslands yet to be exploited and utilized in a rational manner. The irrationality in the internal structure of agriculture also needs to be resolved in a planned way. The change in production structures must be accompanied by changes in all sorts of material factors and technical conditions for production. Changes in these aspects demand a whole series of different types of work, so readjustment will take a certain span of time.

The reorganization of enterprises is another arduous and important task at present. Since the downfall of the "gang of four," and especially since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, we have several times carried out reorganization of enterprises and have achieved considerable results. But at present, there still exist in many enterprises several serious problems, such as disorderly management, overstaffing, slack attitudes toward work and slack labor discipline, poor product quality, high consumption, and cases of violating financial discipline. In particular, problems of slackness, weakness, overstaffing and aging still exist in some leading groups of enterprises.

If this state of affairs is not corrected and improved, it will be impossible to achieve a prosperous situation in enterprises and difficult to carry out the correct strategies, principles and policies. Therefore, the central authorities decided to take 3 years or even longer for the thorough reorganization and comprehensive rectification of enterprises. Only thus can we effectively tap the potential of the enterprises, overcome serious waste and achieve better economic results. At present, 90 percent of our state revenue is produced by state-run enterprises. Only through overall reorganization and good management of these enterprises can they constantly increase their tax and profit contributions to the state by improving economic results, enabling the state to expand its financial resources, overcome the current financial difficulties and fundamentally solve their financial deficit problem. China now has nearly 400,000 industrial and communications enterprises. There is a huge amount of work to do in reorganizing these enterprises. It is necessary to carry out this task by stages and in groups; this will take a considerable length of time.

China's economy is now no longer in its previous state of "poverty and blankness." Rather, it has developed a fairly large setup and has built considerable material and technological foundations. In view of this situation, while our future economic development must, of course, include certain essential construction projects, in general it will not mainly depend on the building of new enterprises -- or "extensive development." Rather, our economy will develop in an "intensive" way, that is, a considerable proportion of our funds and materials will be used to carry out technical transformation in existing enterprises so as to bring their potential capacity into full play. This method will lead to better economic results and higher growth rates. In order to carry out technical transformation in existing enterprises in a methodical way, we must settle a large number of complicated questions, such as the orientation of technology development, the exploitation of technology, technical strength, the raising of funds, the distribution of materials, the overall balance and the management of programs. If certain conditions do not exist, we have to create them step by step. For example, only when the machine-building enterprises have carried out transformation can the conditions be created for transforming certain large-scale equipment. Given the current economic strength of our nation, it is impossible to carry out technical transformation in all enterprises simultaneously. Rather, this needs to be conducted by stages and in groups in a planned way. In the course of technical transformation, those enterprises which produce products urgently needed by society and which need less money but get quicker results should be given precedence. But it should be realized that the whole course of technical transformation in an enterprise needs a certain amount of time, and the technical transformation of a whole area or the entire national economy takes a much longer time.

At present, energy is the key factor in the development of our national economy. During the Sixth 5-Year Plan period, we will maintain our oil output at the level of roughly 100 million tons. Because of various limitations such as distribution of funds, the scale of the projects under construction, and production capacity, it is impossible for us to greatly increase our coal output over the next few years. The estimated annual rate of increase in our energy resources in the period of the Sixth 5-Year Plan will be about 1 percent. In such circumstances, if we set too high a target for the speed of development of our industrial and agricultural production, we will not be able to guarantee our supplies of energy. If we strive to achieve a speed beyond the limit allowed by our energy resources, we will again bring about the imbalance between production and capacity and between production and deposits which we have just overcome by readjustment. This is what we must avoid. Moreover, if there is a shortage of energy supplies, our existing and newly developed production capacities will be forced to become idle. As a result, the development of our national economy will be slower instead of quicker, and moreover, we will suffer losses.

Transportation is another key factor that restricts the speed of the development of our national economy. The current energy shortage is to a great extent linked with the shortage of transportation facilities. Seventy percent of our primary energy resources comes from coal. The freight volume of coal in our country is very big and the chief means of transportation is the railway. However, many sections of our railways are bottlenecks which restrict our freight volume. As a result, there is, on the one hand, a shortage of coal supplies, and on the other hand, nearly 10 million tons of coal lying in stockpiles because of the shortage of transportation facilities. In the Sixth 5-Year Plan period we should do our best to develop energy production and transportation. However, because the state has only a limited amount of funds, there cannot be too large an investment in this field. Moreover, because projects of energy production and transportation development take a relatively long time to complete, the main weak areas in our national economy -- energy and transportation -- can only be strengthened step by step. We will strive to gradually make these two areas meet the demands of the development of our national economy over a period covering approximately the next two 5-year plans.

Because of the above-mentioned reasons, the rate of development in the Sixth 5-Year Plan period cannot be very high. The target for the rate of development has been set at 4 percent and we will strive to achieve a rate of 5 percent. This target is suited to our current national conditions. Whether we can achieve a higher rate of development than the target in this period depends on how our whole party and nation do their work. We have two means of making breakthroughs in energy supplies. One way is to raise our energy production, and there is a practical possibility of increasing energy output by 1 percent every year. The other is to conserve energy. We need to save 3 or more percent of energy every year. Judging by the present conditions, it is more feasible and practical to conserve energy than to increase its production. Our country's energy consumption is about the same as that of Japan, calculated in units of standard coal, but Japan's GNP is 300 percent greater than ours. Although there are many incomparable factors in the two countries, this figure gives a rough indication of the excessive waste in our country's energy consumption. It is entirely practical and feasible for us to speed up our national economic development through conservation of energy. During the past 3 years, we have made great achievements in conserving energy. This is mainly because we have readjusted the structure of our industry, appropriately reducing the proportion of heavy industrial production and raising that of light industrial production. According to the current level of energy consumption in our light and heavy industries, the energy needed for a 1 percent increase in our heavy industry production can be used to increase our light industry production by 4 percent. In the process of readjustment over the past few years, we have properly reduced the speed of heavy industry development so as to conserve energy to be used to ensure the constant and relatively fast development of our light industry. In the future, with the gradual speeding up of production in heavy industry, there will be less and less room for adjusting energy supplies by changing the proportion between the light and heavy industries. However, we can still save a considerable amount of energy by continuing to close, suspend the production of, merge and shift the production of some of our enterprises, such as small ironworks and small chemical fertilizer plants, which consume excessive amounts of energy, produce products of poor quality and suffer heavy financial losses.

Apart from the continuous readjustment of the economic structure, including both the industrial and product structures, what we should regard as the most important ways to conserve energy in the future are the following. One way is to raise our level of administration and management and improve our standard of management. In the production of many of our enterprises, there is excessive waste of coal, oil, natural gas, electricity, steam and water, serious evaporation and leakage of energy resources and poor utilization of waste heat, gas or water. This provides us with great potential energy to utilize. If all our enterprises strengthen their administration and management in all areas of production, it is entirely possible for enterprises with small potential to reduce their energy consumption by 1-3 percent and enterprises with great potential to reduce it by about 5 percent or even more than 10 percent.

The other way is to develop in a planned manner the technology for the conservation of energy, giving priority to certain major enterprises. Besides poor management, one of the important reasons why many enterprises consume an excessive amount of energy in their production process is their backward techniques, equipment and technological conditions for production. In order to reduce energy consumption in the production processes of these enterprises, we must improve their techniques and equipment through technical improvements. For example, if we replace the 850 water injection pumps that are now being used in the Daqing oilfield with the new-type pumps produced by the Shenyang pump factory, we will be able to save 200 million kilowatt hours of electricity every year. The money we will save in electricity consumption in a year will more than compensate for the cost of these new pumps.

At the same time we will increase state revenue. As long as all our enterprises make efforts to find more ways to improve techniques for conserving energy, they will be able to radically reduce their energy consumption.

Here, we must especially emphasize that in the future we will rely on technological improvement not only to conserve energy, but also to achieve the task of quadrupling our annual industrial and agricultural output value. We cannot achieve this with old equipment, old technology, old techniques and old products. This is what we must make clear both in our minds and in our work. If the equipment and techniques in our existing enterprises remain unchanged and their consumption of energy and raw material remains at its present level, it will be impossible to achieve this goal. It is estimated that at least half of the realization of the quadrupling depends on the strength of technical progress. At present our country's techniques are roughly at the same level as that of economically developed countries in late 1950's and early 1960's. We should conscientiously strive to achieve the popularization in the main in our industrial and mining enterprises at the end of this century of the advanced techniques of production that were widely adopted in economically developed countries in the 1970's and 1980's and that were suited to the needs of our country. By so doing, we will be sure to quadruple our output value. At the same time, we will gradually realize the four modernizations in the course of quadrupling our industrial and agricultural output value. It is unimaginable to maintain most of the existing enterprises unchanged and at the same time to try to realize modernization by establishing a few modern enterprises. In the Sixth 5-Year Plan period, we should adopt vigorous measures to do a good job of carrying out the technical renovation in our existing enterprises, focusing on some major ones. In the Seventh 5-Year Plan period, we will continue to do this work.

RENMIN RIBAO 29 Oct

HK291316 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 29 Oct 82 p 5

[Article by Ma Hong [7456 3163]: "On Steps To Achieve Strategic Objective" -- part two]

[Text] According to an analysis of the objective conditions and tasks, it is impossible to achieve a considerably high economic growth rate in the Sixth 5-Year Plan period. But efforts should still be made to achieve a certain rate. The economic growth rate which we must maintain is 4 percent and 5 percent is what we will strive to attain, as we have mentioned above. Without such a rate in the Sixth 5-Year Plan period, we cannot create good conditions for future development; moreover, we will even not be able to maintain the current consumption practices of the people and the current rate of construction. It should be pointed out that when we consider the growth rate, we should not merely look at the percentage of the increase in each year's production; rather, we should at the same time look at the real economic results under a certain rate. What we should seek is a real and sound rate but not a false rate. When conditions are available to raise the growth rate, but we fail to increase production, economic development will certainly suffer losses.

But if we blindly seek high growth rates in output value, thus causing the overstocking of products and the decline of product quality and even causing a serious shortage of energy and raw materials, economic development will also suffer. When a conflict occurs between the growth rate and economic results, the growth rate must be subordinated to the improvement of economic results. What we should strive to attain is a rate with real economic results. Without linking growth rates with real economic results when handling economic affairs, we suffered greatly in the past. We should never forget this lesson.

Though we did not arrange for a high growth rate in industrial and agricultural production in the Sixth 5-Year Plan, we must still strive to achieve better economic results. In this period we will strive to keep a balance or an approximate balance between the growth rate in national income and the growth rate in industrial and agricultural production. This is a rather arduous task. In the period from 1950 to 1980, the average annual growth rate of industrial and agricultural output value in China was 9.4 percent, and the growth rate of national income was 7.3 percent, showing a difference of 2.1 percent. When we strive to balance these two growth rates in the Sixth 5-Year Plan period, this means that we have to create more wealth with the same amount of inanimate and animate labor. In this sense, the industrial and agricultural production growth rate of 4 or 5 percent in this period will achieve much better economic results as compared with the same rate in the past. Thus we will provide society with far more end products than ever before while maintaining the same growth rate in industrial and agricultural output value, and the people will gain more real benefits, the national strength will increase and the economy will be more stable. Conversely, if we do not pay attention to economic results, the growth rate in output value will lose its significance. In his report to the 12th CPC National Congress, Comrade Hu Yaobang stressed that we must focus all economic work on the attainment of better economic results in the Sixth 5-Year Plan period. The whole party and the whole nation should thoroughly understand this point.

Judging by the historical experiences of our country, through making efforts, we can make the rate of increase in our national income approach or even equal the rate of increase in our total industrial and agricultural output value. This was achieved in some years of the 1962-65 period when we were readjusting our national economy. At that time, we carried out the policy of "readjustment, consolidation, filling the gaps and improvement" and resolutely closed, suspended the production of, merged and shifted the production of enterprises that suffered losses and had poor economic returns, and thus quickly raised the economic effect. What we could not achieve in the past can be achieved now since conditions are better. Raising the rate of increase in our national income and making it reach nearly the same level of the rate of increase in our industrial and agricultural production will facilitate the continuous readjustment of the proportional relationship between accumulation and consumption. When the total industrial and agricultural output value reaches a certain level, the relatively great rate of increase in our national income will result in a relatively great increment of its amount. At that time, even if we reduce the rate of accumulation by a small extent, the absolute amount of accumulation will not necessarily be reduced and even may increase when compared with a rate of increase in national income which is relatively small. Therefore, when we more quickly raise our national income, we will be able to appropriately raise the people's standard of living while maintaining a certain scale of our capital construction.

In the Sixth 5-Year Plan period, because we focus our strength on readjusting our economic structure, reorganizing our enterprises, carrying out technical renovation in our key enterprises and doing our best to strengthen our weak sectors in our fundamental facilities such as energy and transportation, we will be able to lay a sound foundation for the relatively quick development of the economy in the Seventh 5-Year Plan period.

In the Seventh 5-Year Plan period, along with the development of offshore oil exploitation and land oilfields, our oil production will constantly increase. The production of coal will also steadily increase. This is due to our great efforts to ensure investment in coal production in the capital construction in the Sixth 5-Year Plan period and also due to our paying attention to focusing our strength on exploiting the coal bases in Shanxi and other places where there are fine conditions for effectively developing coal production with relatively small investment. At the same time, our specialists and the representatives of the staff and workers who have practical experiences have collectively discussed the matter and are of the opinion that in the past it took about 8 years to build a coal mine with a capacity of 1, 2 or 3 million tons, but in the future we will be thoroughly able to shorten the time needed. In developing our opencut coal mines, if we can adopt the policy of building the mine while producing coal, we will also increase the speed of the construction of the mines. After we have done the above-mentioned work, our coal production situation will be improved when we begin the Seventh 5-Year Plan. Output will increase in Shanxi coal mines, the Yanzhou coal mine in Shandong, the Huainan coal mine and Huaibei coal mine in Anhui, the Pingdingshan coal mine in Henan, the Shuicheng coal mine in Guizhou and the coal mines in Nei Monggol, Liaoning and other areas. Along with the development of coal production, our railway construction will develop in a corresponding manner. Now the railway linking Changzhi in Shanxi and Handan in Hebei has already been completed and opened to traffic. The Yanzhou-Shiqiu railway is under construction. The project to electrify the Taiyuan-Shijiazhuang railway is already complete and the project to electrify the Datong-Qinhuandao railway is under construction. Some other railway lines will also be improved and some new lines will be built. Most of these projects will bring about economic results in the Seventh 5-Year Plan period. We are also speeding up the construction of hydroelectric powerplants. There are, moreover, some other fundamental facilities that will bring about some benefits in the Seventh 5-Year Plan period through our tremendous efforts in the Sixth 5-Year Plan period. Moreover, the construction of the major projects that introduced foreign technology and in which construction was suspended 2 years ago is resumed and continued. Most of these projects will be completed and go into operation at the end of the Sixth 5-Year Plan or the beginning of the Seventh 5-Year Plan. It is expected that as long as we do our work well and make progress step by step, the rate of economic increase in the Seventh 5-Year Plan period will surely be greater than in the Sixth 5-Year Plan period.

Through hard struggle in the periods of the Sixth and Seventh 5-Year Plans, the economic structure of our country will become rational, the technical renovation in our enterprises will make great progress and the reform of our economic structure will be carried out step by step in a planned manner. Furthermore, a series of major capital construction projects in energy, transportation and other sectors will be completed and will go into operation one by one. Our education, science and technical undertakings will also greatly develop and a large number of talented personnel who are both Red and expert will vigorously grow up. Thus we will be completely able to lay a strong foundation for the overall high tide of our national economy in the 1990's. We will be able to make the rate of increase in our total industrial and agricultural output value and in our national income remarkably greater than that in the 1980's and ensure the realization of the goal of quadrupling our annual total industrial and agricultural output value by the end of this century.

Of course, to quadruple the total national industrial and agricultural output value does not mean that all departments, localities and enterprises must quadruple their output or that the output of all products must be quadrupled. As a matter of fact, the speed of development in the next 20 years will vary from department to department. For example, the growth rate of the total agricultural output value will differ from that of the total industrial output value. In the industrial field, the production of petrochemical and electronics industries as well as of the machinery industry, which is important to technological reform, will be more swiftly increased than the average growth rate. The production of some new industrial departments in this field will be increased by more than 1,000 or several thousand percent.

However, with regard to the output of some productions, it is impossible or in some cases unnecessary that they be quadrupled. Why do various products in various departments have different growth rates? Because, with the development of productive forces and science and technology, the production and the needs of the masses as well as the economic structure in the next 20 years will also be greatly changed. In order to suit these changes and establish a rational economic structure, it is necessary to arrange different growth rates for different products in different departments. If demands are made that outputs of all products in all departments are to be quadrupled without giving consideration to unique differences, not only will the present problems in the industrial and product structure remain unsolved, but it will also give rise to new irrational structures and disproportion, and will result in the destruction of the overall balance and a drop in economic returns. To prevent all this, we must adhere to the principle of taking the whole country into account, and on the basis of scientific calculation, realistically work out a plan for the development of various major products in various departments. We must give consideration to the overall balance and ensure that the national economy is developed in a proportionate and planned way. We must not practice uniformity on the question of the growth rate in various departments, enterprises and localities as well as the growth rate of various products.

Some people are apprehensive that the bigger the production base is, the lower the speed of development will be. However, our present tentative plan is to achieve a lower rate of development in the first decade and a higher rate in the next. Thus, according to the above-mentioned viewpoint, we shall not be able to attain our aim in quadrupling output. Experiences have proved that this viewpoint lacks an all-round and historical basis and thus has its limitations. Under certain conditions, the base certainly has a bearing on the speed of development, because the bigger the base is, the quantity comprised in every percentage of increase will also be bigger. However, we must also see that when the base becomes bigger, the material and technological basis has also expanded and the national income has increased. This means that not only will the accumulation be increased, but also the rate of accumulation will be raised. Thus, if other conditions are unchanged, the growth rate can be raised. Besides, there is a more important factor which should also be taken into consideration. That is, what form of expanded reproduction shall we adopt. If the form of expanded reproduction by extension is adopted, which chiefly relies on the newly established productive capability and original technology, then, when the base has reached a certain level, the rate will be reduced (just as has happened in some countries). However, if the form of expanded reproduction by intension is adopted, which chiefly relies on the constant improvement of the technology of the present enterprises and the increase of economic returns step by step, when the base becomes bigger, the rate will also increase. The history of economic development in some countries after World War II has fully proved this. Since science and technology development was speeded up after World War II and these countries chiefly adopted the form of expanded reproduction by "intension," that is, adopted the method of technological reform, their rate of economic development was much faster than before the war. In the next two decades, it is necessary and possible for us to chiefly adopt the form of expanded reproduction by "intension" and forcefully carry out technological reform. This is an important condition for speeding up development when the base increases. So the viewpoint which holds that when the base increases, the rate will naturally be reduced, is a one-sided viewpoint. At present, we have both objective and subjective conditions for quadrupling the output value. The magnificent plan drawn up by the 12th CPC National Congress will certainly become a glorious reality in the future.

RENMIN RIBAO ON NEED FOR GOOD MARKET FORECASTING

HK020915 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 29 Oct 92 p 2

[Commentator's article: "Market Forecasting Viewed in the Light of a Factory's Fortunes"]

[Text] The fact that the No 2 Tianjin microelectronic motor factory was brought out of the red and is now on the road to prosperity tells us that market forecasting is of great importance to the development of the economy. Market forecasting means extensive investigation of market conditions and comprehensive study of matters concerning production, circulation and consumption. It means predicting changes in social needs in a given period of time, thus providing an objective basis for formulating economic plans and properly handling operations. During the Spring and Autumn Period in our country there already existed such business language as "sell the ship in expectation of drought; sell the cart in expectation of floods" and "be good at predicting changes so that we can benefit by buying what others want to sell or selling what others want to buy" (see "Historical Records: Chapter on Value of Goods"). This shows that businessmen in ancient times were already conscious of the need to watch for changes in social demands. Capitalist enterprises in particular used large amounts of human, financial and material resources and various scientific and technical means to make market forecasts. Is it also necessary for a socialist economy to make market forecasts? The answer is positive.

There are thousands of kinds of products in society, all interlocking and mutually dependent. The extent of their mutual needs is proportionate. Such proportionate relations change according to changes in various factors. The proportionate development of all products is an objective demand of socialized mass production. Going against such a demand will inevitably interfere with the smooth progress of the whole process of social reproduction. Therefore, we must make accurate forecasts and organize production and supply based on social needs.

For a long time now, we have suffered due to inadequate study of social needs. Regardless of whether or not their products are suited for the market, many enterprises have continued to turn out the same products blindly year after year and commercial departments undertake to procure what is produced. "Industrial undertakings are happy, while their commercial counterparts are worried. Stocks pile up in warehouses, and financial income figures are falsified." Such is the situation. Regardless of the social demand for their products, some trades have blindly expanded their production capacity. Production facilities which cost a tremendous amount of money in investment are often left unused. Facts show that the more goods produced in isolation from social needs the greater the social waste involved. In future, we must create a new situation in increasing economic returns. The key to improved economic returns is the organization of production and supply based on social needs. Because the readjustment of productive forces, an increase or decrease in production, changes in variety, and the trial or actual manufacture of new products all take a certain period of time, to achieve good economic results, a knowledge only of current social needs is inadequate. We must also investigate social needs for a period of time in the future. For this very reason, close cooperation between industrial and commercial undertakings and joint efforts in making market forecasts are obviously highly necessary.

Some comrades consider that since we have state plans, market forecasts are not so important. Such a view is one-sided. Our past performance in planning was marked by both successes and mistakes. Experiences and lessons learned from successes and mistakes boil down to one rule. This is that plans must be brought in line with economic laws and cannot be subjective and dogmatic or formulated in isolation. To avoid or reduce mistakes, we must acquaint ourselves with the reality of immediate and long-term social needs. We must base planning on reliable forecasts. In addition, we must also provide the masses of peasants with prompt market information and guide them in developing a commercial economy and producing more and better agricultural and subsidiary products to meet social needs.

Under socialist conditions, factors that can be controlled in the national economy are relatively plentiful. Given common interests between enterprises and also plans, statistics, commerce, banking, financial management and other sources of information, our market forecasts, compared with their capitalist counterparts, enjoy particularly favorable conditions. The problem is that the departments concerned must pay great attention to fully exploiting the superior features of the socialist system in an efficient and realistic manner. At present, various areas, enterprises and economic departments are beginning to pay attention to market investigations and studies. This is a gratifying phenomenon. On this basis, we must gradually form a national network of economic information and establish a national economic forecasting center, promptly collecting and disseminating economic information, organically linking the microcosmic forecasts of various units with the macrocosmic forecasts of the national forecasting center, basing the latter on the former and guiding the former with the latter.

RENMIN RIBAO ON CPC PURSUING GENERAL TASK

HK020950 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 28 Oct 82 p 3

[Article by Wen Si [3306 1835]: "How To Understand the General Task of the Party at the Present Stage"]

[Text] The "general program" of the new party constitution stipulates that "the general task of the CPC at the present stage is to lead the people of all nationalities in working hard and self-reliantly to achieve, step by step, the modernization of our industry, agriculture, national defense and science and technology and to make China a culturally advanced and highly democratic socialist country."

This general task was formulated at the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee and was reaffirmed and perfected by the 12th CPC National Congress. It embraces the following three basic aspects:

First, the formulation of the general task symbolizes that the focus of our party's work has been shifted from "taking class struggle as they key link" to socialist economic construction.

Why should we do this?

In theory, the ultimate aim of our party is the realization of the communist social system. According to historical materialism, any new social system is not a product of man's will, but is, first of all, an inevitable result of the development of the productive forces. Therefore, in all socialist revolutions, after the proletariat has seized political power and the tasks of the socialist transformation of the private ownership of the means of production are completed, "the most important and fundamental interests lie in the increase of the quantity of products and the raise of social productive forces by a big margin." ("Selected Works of Lenin," vol 4, p 586)

In practice, the Chinese revolution led by the CPC has entered a new historical period. The first step of the Chinese revolution was establishing the alliance of the workers and peasants and seizing national political power, chiefly by armed struggle and by encircling cities from the rural areas so as to blaze a trail, a new path for building socialism of the Chinese style. The second step was establishing an initial socialist system based on the public ownership system, after realizing the socialist transformation of the private ownership of the means of production in a relatively smooth manner and basically eliminating the exploiting classes under the political power characterized by the people's democratic dictatorship. The third step was, beginning from 1956, entering a new period of all-round and large-scale socialist construction. During this period, although class struggle still existsed in our country, the principal contradiction was no longer the contradiction between the proletariat and the bourgeoisie, but the contradiction between the increasing material and cultural needs of the people and the backward social productive forces. So, the party's eigth national congress stipulated that the fundamental task of the party was protecting and developing productive forces under the new production relations.

Unfortunately, owing to various reasons, the correct line and policies have not been steadily and systematically implemented. On the contrary, after 1947, and especially after 1962, a theory was advanced which held that the contradiction between the proletariat and the bourgeoisie was the principal contradiction in our society. It categorically asserted that in the entire historical period of socialism, the bourgeoisie would continue to exist and would not stop attempts to restore capitalism, and that this was a root cause for the emergence of revisionism within the party. This theory brought about the decade of internal disorder which made our socialist cause suffer great setbacks and losses. After the downfall of the Jiang Qing counterrevolutionary clique, the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, which was held in 1978, corrected various "leftist" errors before and during the "Great Cultural Revolution" in an all-round way, set to right things which had been thrown into disorder and resolutely made a decision to stop using the slogan of "taking class struggle as the key link," which does not suit the socialist society. It made a policy decision to shift the focus of the party's work to the construction of socialist modernization. Thus, it laid a theoretical and political foundation for the general task of the party in the new historical period and put forth a correct Marxist line which conforms to China's realities. The general task of the party at the present stage is a concrete expression of this correct line.

Second, the general task of the party at the present stage requires us to achieve three main objectives in the construction of socialism, the primary stage of communism.

This was decided after summing up both the successful and unsuccessful experiences in an all-round way on the basis of the correct resolutions adopted by the Eighth CPC National Congress and gaining a new understanding of and developing the theory of scientific socialism and the eighth congress resolutions. To put them concretely, these targets are:

1. "To achieve, step by step, the modernization of our industry, agriculture, national defense and science and technology," and to build our material civilization. The 12th CPC National Congress has more concretely pointed out that by the end of the 20th century, total industrial and agricultural output value will quadruple and the income of both the urban and rural people will double so that their material and cultural life will reach a level of well-off households. Although in comparison with the developed industrial countries, the per capita output value in this target is not at all high, it is really a magnificent plan for China, which is an economically backward country with a population of 1 billion. When this target is acheived, the total industrial and agricultural output value and total national income in China will be among the highest in the world, and the modernization drive in the entire national economy will make great progress.

The focus of the four modernizations is the economic construction of socialist modernization. As Comrade Deng Xiaoping pointed out in his opening speech at the 12th CPC National Congress when he talked about the three tasks for the Chinese people in the 1980's: "The core is economic construction. This is the foundation for solving both international and domestic problems." Only when the social productive forces in our country are greatly raised can the superiority of socialism be brought into full play, the material basis of the people's democratic dictatorship and national defense construction be continuously strengthened, the people's increasing needs in material and cultural life be gradually satisfied and the necessary material conditions be created to reduce the three great distinctions step by step. Furthermore, only when the targets of economic construction of the four modernizations are achieved can we make a step forward to the communist society in which all class differences, various major social distinctions and unequal things are eliminated.

2. To build a high degree of socialist spiritual civilization while building a high degree of material civilization. The 12th CPC National Congress regarded spiritual civilization as a characteristic of socialist society and a strategic policy in building socialism. This is an enormous development of scientific socialism.

Socialist spiritual civilization embraces two aspects, cultural construction and ideological construction. Both socialist material and spiritual civilizations rely on, promote and compliment each other. Socialist cultural construction, such as the development of science, education, culture, art, public health and physical culture and the raising of the scientific and cultural level, is a motive force in promoting the construction of the four modernizations. It is impossible to build socialism in an illiterate country. On the other hand, socialist ideological construction, such as the lofty ideal, morality and collectivism which take communist ideas as the core, the labor attitude of masters of new society, the pioneering spirit characterized by hard struggle, and the sense of law and discipline, is a necessary condition to ensure that socialism continuously advances toward the communist goal. Historical experiences show that if the building of spiritual civilization under the guidance of communist ideology is neglected, the people's understanding of socialism will not be complete. As a result, they will only pay attention to the pursuit of material gains and lose their ideals, targets, spiritual motivation and fighting will. They will be unable to resist the corrosive influence of various decadent ideas and will possibly take to evil ways of unhealthy development and corruption. This is why in the general task of the party, the building of a high degree of spiritual civilization and making our people a people with ideals, morality, culture and discipline are regarded as characteristics of socialism and is a strategic aim in building socialism.

3. Endeavor to build a high degree of socialist democracy and continuously reform and perfect the state political and leadership systems. The high degree of socialist democracy means a higher degree of democracy than that of the bourgeoisie or under new democracy. It covers a wide range in the political, economic and social fields. That is to say, socialist democracy must be extended to all spheres of life, political, economic, cultural and social; and it is necessary to extend democratic management to all enterprises and institutions and encourage self-management of community affairs by the masses at the grassroots level. Democracy should serve as a means by which the masses educate themselves. At the same time, democracy and dictatorship are related to each other. While greatly developing socialist democracy, it is necessary to exercise effective dictatorship over various hostile elements. We will never give freedom to those who endanger and try to undermine socialism.

Socialism is a common cause of the whole people. Only with a high level of socialist democracy will it be possible to develop all our undertakings in accordance with the will, interests and needs of the people, to enhance the people's sense of responsibility as masters and give full play to their initiative and enthusiasm. Therefore, a high level of democracy is also one of the basic characteristics of socialism and a target of our struggle.

Third, the general task of the party provides the basic method for achieving the above-mentioned goal, that is, to "lead the people of all nationalities to work hard on the basis of self-reliance."

Ours is a multinational country with vast territory, abundant resources and a large population. There are abundant material and manpower resources in our country. It is necessary to fully utilize these resources in building socialism. But in the final analysis, it is necessary to rely on the efforts of the people of all nationalities. The people are the creators of history and the motive force for the development of history. Therefore, the fundamental way of our party in building socialism is adopting every effective policy, and together with the workers, peasants and intellectuals of various nationalities as well as with various democratic parties, nonparty democratic personages and all other patriotic forces of various nationalities, developing and strengthening the broadest united front embracing all socialist laborers, and all patriots who support socialism or who support the reunification of the motherland, including our compatriots in Taiwan, Hong Kong and Macao and Chinese nationals residing abroad. In other words, it is necessary to rely on the masses of people in all nationalities and mobilize all positive factors to serve our socialist cause. This is a basic political condition to ensure that our revolutionary cause will advance from victory to victory.

"Self-reliance" means that we must chiefly rely on our own efforts in promoting socialist construction and find a road for building Chinese-style socialism which suits China's conditions. The revolutionary cause of the working class is an international cause. It needs the mutual support of the working class in various countries. Modern socialist economic construction cannot cut ties with the international economy either. Therefore, the party must correctly handle the relations between self-reliance and foreign aid or international economic exchanges. The 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee made a policy decision on opening the door and developing economic and technological exchanges with foreign countries on the principle of mutual benefit. The party's 12th national congress also advocated forcefully expanding our foreign trade and using as much as possible all the foreign investment that can be used in our construction. All this is aimed at strengthening our ability to promote self-reliance and promoting the development of the national economy. Thus, our policy must be fundamentally based on self-reliance. China will never develop itself by aggression and will never be a superpower and seek hegemonism. It will never live on begging and relying on other countries, or attach itself to any big power.

The success of socialist construction depends on the hard work of the people throughout the country. The fundamental aim of socialist production is gradually improving the material and cultural life of both the urban and rural people on the basis of the increase of production and social wealth. However, it is also necessary to constantly expand the accumulation of funds and reproduction along with the development of production. We must develop the spirit of hard struggle and correctly handle the relations between consumption and accumulation. It is not only necessary to prevent eating and sharing all, but also is necessary to save as much money as possible and strive to achieve a certain speed of development in production. This is the most fundamental and long-term interest of the people in our country. Just as Comrade Hu Yaobang said: "The fact that China entered upon socialism before developed capitalist countries is due to its specific historical conditions, to the correct leadership exercised by our party and the arduous struggles of the entire people. It represents a development in scientific socialism and is a credit to our party and the Chinese people. On the other hand, our socialist cause is bound to meet many difficulties arising from our economic and cultural backwardness. This in turn calls for more strenuous and protracted struggle."

In short, the general task of the party at the present stage is an inevitable step toward the lofty goal of communism under new historical conditions. Thus, every party member is required to always bear in mind two objectives: to struggle for the general task at the present stage and for communism. If one does not fight for the realization of the objective at the present stage, if one "slackens one's efforts, goes a bit slow in work and is not completely loyal to and enthusiastic about this objective, not ready to devote all his life to it," one is but an empty talker on communism. He cannot be regarded as a conscious and loyal communist and a good party member.

Our party has been tempered with setbacks and mistakes and has thus become more sober, firmer, more mature, realistic and more powerful. The party, the army and the people have a common strong desire to make our motherland flourish and develop our socialist cause. We are convinced that with the correct line of the party's 12th national congress and under the correct leadership of the CPC Central Committee, this new historical task can be successfully completed and our socialist cause can be pushed a step forward.

CENTRAL STATE PARTY COMMITTEE MEETS 29 OCT

OW022230 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1328 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Excerpts] Beijing, 30 Oct (XINHUA) -- The party committee of central state organs held a meeting yesterday for the various ministries and commissions to exchange their experiences in studying the documents of the 12th CPC National Congress, calling on all the ministries and commissions to continue to strengthen their leadership and deepen the study.

Judging from the situation reflected by the meeting, all the ministries and commissions of the central state organs have attached great importance to the work of organizing cadres, staff members and workers to study the documents of the 12th CPC National Congress. Immediately after the opening of the 12th CPC National Congress the party organizations and party committees of the various ministries and commissions began to organize the entire party members, cadres, staff members and workers to study Comrade Deng Xiaoping's opening speech and excerpts of Comrade Hu Yaobang's report. In mid-September, in compliance with the central authorities demands, the ministries and commissions made all-round arrangements for the study of the documents of the 12th CPC National Congress.

At the meeting, comrades from the Ministry of Water Conservancy and Power, the Ministry of Culture, the Ministry of Machine Building and the Ministry of Foreign Economic Relations and Trade introduced their study situation and experiences. Wang Zheng, deputy secretary of the party committee of central state organs, spoke at the meeting. From what they introduced, it can be noted that there are three obvious characteristics:

-- Leading cadres at all levels, especially comrades of the party organizations and party committees of the various ministries and commission, have personally led the study and have taken the lead in joining the study, thus bringing about a fine common practice of conscientious study among all the upper- and lower-level units and personnel. Since the closing of the 12th CPC National Congress, the principal leading comrades of the various ministries and commissions have all regarded the work of organizing the study of the documents of the 12th CPC National Congress well as a matter of prime importance. They have joined the delegates to the 12th CPC National Congress in conveying the guidelines of the congress, mobilized and arranged the study and also actively taken part in the study and conscientiously led the study.

-- Conscientiously understanding the guidelines of the documents and establishing a fine study practice in close connection with reality.

Many cadres, staff members and workers expressed their opinions that the party's fine style of study by intergrating theory with practice and making criticism and self-cricitism was reactivated during this study.

-- Succeeding in raising the understanding and laying and ideological foundation for creating a new situation. Through the present stage of study, cadres, staff members and workers have generally deepened their understanding of the historic significance of the 12th CPC National Congress and acquired a relatively comprehensive understanding of the general task for the party and the general target and strategic principles for our country's economic construction as put forward by the 12th CPC National Congress, thus strengthening their confidence and energy in their work.

To further deepen the study of the various ministries and commissions, the party committee of central state organs put forward three demands for them:

1. Continue to strengthen the leadership over the study, further raise the understanding of the great significance of the documents of the 12th CPC National Congress and deepen the study. Principal leading cadres of the various units should all continue to personally lead the study and use the guidelines of the documents of the 12th CPC National Congress to unify the understanding of the cadres, staff members and workers so as to truly succeed in keeping political accord with the central authorities. All ministries and commissions should continue to tightly grasp the study and never let go, strengthen the supervision and inspection and prevent complacency and slackening sentiments.

2. Clearly define the demand for in-depth study and grasp the key issues and study and understand them thoroughly.

3. All units should examine and sum up the study in the previous stage, find out the shortcomings and put forward the demand and arrangements for in-depth study for their respective units.

DENG LIQUN ADDRESSES WORKERS' EDUCATION MEETING

[Excerpts published on page K 17 of 2 November DAILY REPORT]

OW291141 Beijing Xinhua Domestic Service in Chinese 1442 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, 23 Oct (XINHUA) -- At a meeting with all the representatives attending a forum on supplementary cultural and technical education for young and middle-aged staff and workers on the afternoon of 22 October, Deng Liqun, secretary of the CPC Central Committee's Secretariat, said that workers' education is a strategically important and very promising task. He expressed the hope that all comrades connected with this work will remain at their respective work posts and consider making workers' education successful their life career.

Deng Liqun pointed out: In the past year or so, China has made tremendous achievements in workers' education. We will make still greater achievements if we continue the present efforts. He said: In order to fulfill the strategic plan put forward by the 12th party national congress, we must rely on the efforts to raise the political, ideological, cultural and technological level of incumbent workers and cadres and to do a good job in workers' education. The leading cadres at all levels must fully understand the great significance of workers' education and indeed attach importance to and strengthen the leadership over the workers' education.

Deng Liqun said: To strengthen the task of workers' education and the contingent of educators, we plan to enlist a number of teaching enthusiasts from among ministers, bureau and department directors and other cadres who have retired but are still quite healthy to take part in this task. We may assign them specific work or ask them to be our advisers. We may also ask them to conduct investigation and study, compile teaching materials, give lectures or sum up their experiences. By so doing we will continuously expand and consolidate the contingent of teachers in workers' education.

Yuan Baohua, chairman of the national administration committee on workers' education, presided over and addressed the forum. He said that workers' education is a continuous task. The focus of this task at present continues to be to satisfactorily implement the "Decision on Strengthening the Task of Workers' Education" issued by the CPC Central Committee and the State Council in 1981 and to pay great attention to these four aspects: ideology, planning, organization and measures.

If we do a good job in giving makeup cultural and technical lessons to the young workers, they will play an inestimably great role in accomplishing the grand strategic objective put forward by the 12th party national congress.

Yuan Baohua added: The leading comrade of the State Council has instructed that from now on the national administration committee on workers' education will also take the responsibility for doing a good job in training workers. All localities should strengthen the workers' education. The workers' educators should work hard, step up investigations and studies and plan well. The workers' education organizations in various localities should coordinate efforts, divide areas of responsibility and strive to create a new situation of workers' education.

The forum was jointly sponsored by the national administration committee on workers' education, the Ministry of Education, the Ministry of Labor and Personnel, the All-China Federation of Trade Unions and the CYL Central Committee. It was held in Beijing from 16 to 22 October. Over 100 representatives from some provinces and municipalities, related ministries and commissions and basic-level mines, factories and enterprises summed up and exchanged their experiences and discussed the "opinions on some questions concerning the task of supplementary cultural and technical education for young and middle-aged staff and workers."

ADVANCED RAILWAY WORKERS MEET IN BEIJING

OW030547 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1425 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Excerpts] Beijing, 1 Nov (XINHUA) -- Outstanding workers from various departments of China's railways gathered in Beijing today to attend the national meeting of representatives of advanced railway workers. They are meeting to discuss matters of vital importance in connection with how to create a new situation in railway transportation and give full play to their pioneer role in the national economy.

Present at the meeting are 803 representatives, of whom 448 are model workers and 355 are representatives of advanced collectives. Wang Zhijie, chairman of the All-China Federation of Railroad Workers' Unions, delivered the opening speech.

He said: The primary tasks of the meeting are to study and implement the guidelines of the 12th CPC National Congress, sum up and exchange working experiences, commend the advanced, mobilize the broad masses of railway workers and their dependents to launch the advanced producers' movement on a still larger scale and strive to create a new situation in railway transportation.

Li Senmao, vice minister of railways, pointed out in his speech: Since the founding of the People's Republic, China has made great developments in railway transportation. However, the development still cannot keep pace with the increasing industrial and agricultural production and the improving living standard of the people. The shortage of cargo and passenger transportation has become a problem of national concern. The 12th CPC National Congress has taken transportation as one of the strategic priorities in economic development. All our railway workers and staff must enthusiastically and quitly immerse themselves in hard work to accelerate the development of railway transportation.

On how to rapidly create a new situation of railway transportation, he set four demands for the representatives present and for all railroad workers and staff:

1. To thoroughly study the documents of the 12th CPC National Congress and take action to contribute to the accomplishment of the grand objective put forward by the party congress.

2. To engage in creative labor at one's workpost to enhance railway transportation capability, to run more trains and carry more cargo and passengers safely and on schedule.

3. To strive to improve management and stress the enhancement of economic results in railway transportation.

4. To do a good job in building socialist spiritual civilization and carry out the "people's railways for the people" activities in a deepgoing and sustained way.

The participants at today's meeting included the responsible persons of the Ministry of Railways, the State Economic Commission, the All-China Federation of Trade Unions and the PLA Railway Engineer Corps.

PLA NAVY COMMANDER VISITS CADRES AT SANATORIUM

OW021059 Beijing Domestic Service in Mandarin 0900 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] PLA Navy Commander Liu Huaqing and Political Commissar Li Yaowen recently visited a naval base of the North Sea Fleet and called on the cadres who are now recuperating at a naval sanatorium in Dalian. They exchanged views with the cadres on the study of the 12th CPC National Congress documents.

Comrade Liu Huaqing praised the old cadres who have left the frontline leading posts for facilitating reform of the cadre system and streamlining of the various organizations. The cadres happily replied that they were delighted to see more middle-aged and young cadres promoted to their former leading posts. (Li Yuewu), a veteran naval officer since the founding of New China, pledged to write his memoirs despite his advanced age. He hoped that his memoirs will contribute to the modernization of the navy.

ZHAO CANGBI DISCUSSES SPIRITUAL CIVILIZATION

OW311238 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 0030 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, 30 Oct (XINHUA) -- The Ministry of Public Security recently held a forum in Beijing among political department directors of the Public Security Bureaus of Beijing, Tianjin, Shanghai, Liaoning, Hebei, Shandong, Jiangsu, Gansu, Guangdong and Sichuan to discuss how to intensify the "five stresses and four beauties" activities. After studying the documents of the 12th CPC National Congress, the meeting called on public security organs in all places to conscientiously follow the spirit of the 12th congress and push to a new level the efforts to build socialist spiritual civilization.

Minister Zhao Cangbi attended and addressed the forum. He pointed out: The political work in public security organs for quite a long time to come will be making great efforts to organize cadres and policemen to study well the documents of the 12th congress and thoroughly grasp their essence. While studying the 12th congress documents, they should be organized to study the "Resolution on Certain Questions in the History of Our Party Since the Founding of the People's Republic of China" and study dialectical and historical materialism. Such problems as cadres' and policemen's communist ideas, their confidence in communism and their revolutionary outlook on life should be solved through these studies. This is a fundamental task in building the contingent of public security workers.

Vice Minister of Public Security Wang Wentong made a summing up speech. He said: In answering the call of the party Central Committee to launch "five stresses and four beauties" activities, public security organs in all places have done a great deal of work over the past 2 years. In particular, after the "All-People Civility and Courtesy Month" in March of this year, they have further expanded and intensified the "five stresses and four beauties" activities. A great number of heroes, models and advanced workers with beauty of mind and lofty moral standards have emerged. They include Lei Feng-type people's policeman Shao Yuqiao, Ouyang Hai-type policewoman Zhou Yi, model in cherishing the people Li Junchai, exemplary public security bureau director Shen Jian and so on and so forth. There have also been a great number of advanced units in promoting spiritual civilization. The masses of cadres and policemen have been doing their jobs with the revolutionary spirit generated by the "five stresses and four beauties" activities, thereby strengthening public security work in all fields and effecting achange for the better in social order.

Regarding the question of stepping up public security organs' efforts to promote socialist spiritual civilization in the current winter and next year, Wang Wentong said: The most important task is to organize all cadres and policemen to study well the 12th congress documents, strengthen leadership over the efforts to promote spiritual civilization, effectively improve discipline enforcement and work style, further cement the relations with the masses of people, keep to and carry forward the good experience already gained, maintain well peace and social order, protect the people's democratic rights, strike at the enemy's subversive activities, strive to create a new situation in public security work and endeavor to ensure the smooth procedure of the campaign for socialist spiritual and material civilization.

LU DONG ON NEW CAPITAL CONSTRUCTION SITUATION

OW302206 Beijing XINHUA in English 1303 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 29 (XINHUA) -- China's investment in capital construction by the end of this century will be at least double that made in the 32 years 1949-1981, according to Lu Dong, vice-minister of the State Economic Commission.

He was addressing a national meeting to commend representatives of advanced construction enterprises, collectives and individuals that opened here today.

He called on Chinese workers to bring about a new construction situation, which will result in shorter construction periods, better quality, less investment and better effectiveness.

Lu Dong told more than 500 delegates to the meeting: "By the year 2000, China will have built quite a number of key projects that will have great impact on the development of the national economy and transform with new equipment many existing enterprises. As a result, China's economic and national defense strength will grow substantially."

"In the first ten years, we must concentrate on construction of the energy industry, transportation and other infrastructure facilities. In the next decade, we shall build more big projects and effect technical transformation of more existing enterprises," the vice-minister said.

Lu Dong quoted Premier Zhao Ziyang's remarks at a national science awarding conference tht closed here October 25: "The invigoration of China's economy depends on progress in science and technology and this will be a guiding principle for China's economic work."

He called on capital construction design institutes and workers to apply new technology, equipment, materials and products to new and expanded factories, mines and production equipment.

Over the past 30 years and more, the vice-minister said, China has spent 740,000 million yuan on capital construction, forming 530,000 million yuan of fixed assets, completed more than 3,600 large and medium-sized projects, several hundred thousand small projects and 750 million square meters of workers' housing.

During the meeting, advanced construction enterprises and collectives will be named and outstanding individuals will be given the title of model workers.

BO YIBO ADDRESSES ENERGY SAVING MEETING

OW030624 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1634 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Excerpts] Beijing, 29 Oct (XINHUA) -- The State Economic Commission held a telephone meeting today, calling for workers and staff members throughout the country to carry out "fourth energy-saving month" activities in November as a major measure to carry out the 12th party congress' policy decision and to greatly push energy-saving work forward.

In his speech at the telephone meeting, State Councillor Bo Yibo said: Tremendous achievements have been made in carrying out "energy-saving month" activities over the past few years. It appears that holding "energy-saving month" activities is a good method. This "energy-saving month" is the first one since the 12th party congress, and its significance is different from that in the past. Making great efforts to save energy is an important guarantee for quadrupling the gross annual value of industrial and agriculture production. Half of the energy needed to attain the goal of "quadrupling the gross annual value of industrial and agriculture production" will come from the development of energy resources, and the other half from economizing on energy.

Bo Yibo emphatically pointed out: In saving energy, it is necessary to stress technical transformation and technological progress, in addition to the strengthening of management. Without advanced equipment it will hardly be possible to considerably reduce energy consumption. Therefore, vigorous efforts must be made to do a good job in scientific research, designing and manufacturing in order to save energy. The forces in these three fields should be organized to make some breakthroughs in 2 or 3 years.

Vice Chairman Yuan Baohua of the State Economic Commission also addressed the meeting. He set the following requirements for the "fourth energy saving month" acitivities:

1. It is necessary to mobilize the masses to profoundly study the documents of the 12th party congress in order to have a clearer understanding of the significance of saving energy for the development of the national economy, to firmly adopt the strategic concept of long-term energy saving and to lay an ideological basis for saving energy.

2. It is necessary to seriously check on the implementation of the instructions and measures for energy saving, the fulfillment of this year's plan for energy saving, the building and improvement of energy-saving organizations and energy-saving management and the basic work of various enterprises.

3. It is necessary to do a good job in appraising "energy-saving month" activities and commending those who excel in this regard.

4. On the basis of "energy-saving month" activities, it is necessary to work out plans, targets and implementation measures for saving energy next year.

The State Council decided in October 1979 to designate November of every year as "energy-saving month."

Vice Chairman Lu Dong of the State Economic Commission presided over the telephone meeting.

INTRODUCING TECHNOLOGY FROM ABROAD EXPLAINED

HK010311 Beijing ZHONGGUO XINWEN SHE in Chinese 0115 GMT 31 Oct 82

["Ma Yi Says China's Imports of Technology Will Not Hamper the International Market" -- ZHONGGUO XINWEN SHE headline]

[Text] Beijing, 31 October (ZHONGGUO XINWEN SHE) -- Ma Yi, vice minister in charge of the State Economic Commission, said to this reporter today that China's import of advanced technology will not have any impact on the world market and that China will not thus become a rival competitor.

During the past few years, China has implemented a policy of opening up to the outside world and has imported some advanced technology from abroad in order to put an end to China's technical backwardness and strengthen the foundation for its international trade and economic cooperation. However, some foreign friends are somewhat concerned that China's import of advanced technology will turn her into a rival competitor to them. With regard to this, Ma Yi said that there is no need to worry.

Concerning this problem, Ma Yi made the following points:

1. At present, China has introduced some advanced technology, but this is only a beginning. China has 380,000 industrial enterprises, most of which need technical renovation in order to raise their production capacity.

2. Some people say that there is no need for China to import the most advanced technology and that what China needs is only to import some practical technology. Naturally, we should select some practical technology to use, but this does not mean that we do not need the most advanced technology. If in trade talks, the other party refuses even to talk about the newest technology with China, this would, in fact, constitute a technical blockade.

3. Our importing of some advanced technology now will only promote technical exchange and development. Even though we now import some of the presently most advanced technology, because of the incessant development of technology, the even more advanced technology that will be developed in the future will still have its market.

4. We cannot deny that our importing of technology will finally lead to commercial consequences and give rise to trade activities. This should certainly be viewed from the commercial angle, but in carrying out commercial activities, our country will continue to place stress on friendship. Commercial activities are by no means our only activities or those to which we always give first priority. Only by paying attention to friendship and providing convenience to one another can we facilitate our mutual cooperation and enable our commercial activities to develop.

It is reported that China will carry out technical renovation in its enterprises in a planned and organized manner and this will become an important field for the development of its cooperation with the outside world.

FAMILY PLANNING PROPAGANDA WORK CONFERENCE HELD

OW030457 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1403 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, 1 Nov (XINHUA) -- A national family planning propaganda work conference opened in Beijing 1 November. The conference will discuss, in particular, how to achieve the goal set by the party Central Committee to keep China's population under 1,200 million until the end of this century and how to conduct propaganda and education on family planning. It will also map out arrangements for launching the first family planning propaganda month in the country from 1 January 1983 until the Spring Festival.

Qian Xinzhong, vice chairman of the State Family Planning Commission, and Zeng Delin, deputy director of the CPC Central Committee's Propaganda Department, attended and spoke at the conference.

Qian Xinzhong emphatically pointed out: Family planning is a national policy and must be resolutely carried over a long period. He said: Our country is facing a new peak in population growth rate. If we fail to strictly control growth and readjust the relationship between population growth and material production, we will face greater difficulties in socialist construction. Therefore, it is necessary to pay close attention to the work of family planning. Only by maintaining the annual net increase in population by around 10 million in the next 18 years can we achieve the fighting goal of limiting the population under 1,200 million before the end of this century.

He pointed out: The key areas in family planning are in the countryside. Effective ideological and education work among the peasants is the central link for propaganda work on family planning.

Zeng Delin pointed out: It is necessary to regard family planning propaganda work as an important part in publicizing the guidelines of the 12th CPC National Congress. The upcoming national family planning propaganda month is a concrete measure to implement the congress guidelines.

He said: Family planning is an important component of socialist spiritual civilization with Chinese characteristics. Its central task is to use communist ideals, conviction and morality to educate the broad masses of people and help them overcome the old traditional concept and fully understand that family planning is a national affair concerning the future of communism. He pointed out: It is necessary to permeate communist education with propaganda work on family planning.

Attending the conference are responsible persons of party committee propaganda departments and departments in charge of family planning in all provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions and representatives from the Public Health, Culture, Education and Civil Affairs Ministries, the PLA, All-China Women's Federation, All-China Federation of Trade Unions, CYL Central Committee and other departments concerned, totaling some 120.

XIANG NAN ATTENDS FUJIAN TREE-PLANTING MEETING

OW030625 Fuzhou Fujian Provincial Service in Mandarin 1120 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Excerpts] The 4-day provincial meeting on commending young shock workers in tree-planting came to a victorious close on 31 October. Comrade Xiang Nan addressed the closing session. At the meeting, the provincial CYL committee and the provincial department of agriculture made arrangements for unfolding deepgoing tree-planting campaigns among youth and children in the future.

The leading cadres of the provincial CPC committee, the provincial people's congress standing committee, the provincial government and the provincial CPPCC committee attended the closing session. They included Comrades Xiang Nan, Wu Hongxiang, (Zhang Yimin) and Hou Linzhou. Also present at the closing session were the responsible comrades of the provincial CYL committee, the provincial department of agriculture and the provincial trade union council.

FUJIAN'S XIANG NAN REPORTS ON NPC DPRK VISIT

OW311035 Fuzhou Fujian Provincial Service in Mandarin 1120 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] The standing committee of the Fujian Provincial People's Congress, the provincial people's government and the standing committee of the Fuzhou Municipal People's Congress jointly held a report meeting at the provincial gymnasium this afternoon.

At the meeting, Xiang Nan, first secretary of the provincial party committee and chairman of the standing committee of the provincial people's congress, made a report on the NPC delegation's visit to the DPRK, and Ma Xingyuan, secretary of the provincial party committee and governor of the province, delivered a report on the Fujian provincial friendship delegation's visit to Nagasaki County, Japan.

Hearing the reports at the meeting were more than 6,000 persons, including leading comrades of the provincial party committee, the standing committee of the provincial people's congress, the Fuzhou PLA units, the provincial people's government, the provincial CPPCC committee and the standing committee of the Fuzhou Municipal People's Congress; deputies to the provincial people's congress and members of the provincial CPPCC committee in Fuzhou; and comrades of provincial and municipal government offices, people's organizations, PLA units, schools, enterprises and institutions.

KMT SPY CASES UNCOVERED IN FUJIAN PROVINCE

OW010814 Beijing XINHUA in English 0800 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 1 (XINHUA) -- Public security bureaus in Fujian Province have this year uncovered several Kuomintang spy cases with the help of the people, the PEOPLE'S DAILY reports today.

These spies were either sent by Kuomintang special agents organizations in Taiwan to the mainland on sabotage missions or recruited on the mainland.

In July 1981 a spy boat, "Yuema No. 11," of the Taiwan intelligence bureau recruited Lin Qianming and Hu Guochao in the course of a smuggling operation. Lin and Hu hail from the Huangqi People's Commune of Lianjinag County. Lin was sent to Taiwan in August 1981 for special training and later returned to the county.

At the directives of the Kuomintang spy organization, Lin Wianming and his group carried out various espionage activities, including forging banknotes and certificates, corrupting cadres and workers, recruiting spies, establishing liaison stations, and collecting and dispatching information.

After careful investigations, public security organizations arrested Lin and uncovered two other spy cases.

Dai Qingda and Lin Chunjin, also spies, have surrendered to public security organizations. They will be treated with leniency in accordance with the government policies.

XU JIATUN ADDRESSES JIANGSU PARTY MEETING

OW121120 Nanjing XINHUA RIBAO in Chinese 29 Sep 82 p 1

[Excerpts of Xu Jiatun's speech at a meeting of prefectural, municipal and county party secretaries of Jiangsu Province -- date and place not given]

[Excerpts] The 12th CPC National Congress was held at an important time when our party had completed the difficult task of setting its guiding ideology to rights and we had won major successes in setting right our practical work on all fronts, thereby effecting a great and historic change. It opened a new page in the history of our party and our country and established a new and important milestone. It will have a far-reaching influence on the future of our party and our country.

Comrade Xiaoping pointed out in his opening speech: "A review of the party's history will show this congress to have been the most important meeting since the seventh national congress." Comrade Xiaoping's analysis conforms to historical reality and is very profound and correct.

The documents of the 12th CPC National Congress are substantial in content; they sum up the historic change during the past 6 years and contain correct guiding principles and policies concerning the building of material and spiritual civilization. Only if we seriously study and profoundly understand them can we correctly implement them. The most profound impression and understanding I have of the congress can be summed up in the following five points:

1. The 12th CPC National Congress Upheld and Developed Marxism-Leninism and Mao Zedong Thought

Our successes in setting things to rights since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee laid the ideological, political and organizational foundation for the convocation of the 12th CPC National Congress. The 12th party congress further improved the line, principles and policies adopted since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee and made them more practical. Therefore, the 12th party national congress showed that our party has entered a new stage and attained a new level in solving practical problems in socialist modernization on the basis of the scientific tenets of Marxism-Leninism and Mao Zedong Thought. It also showed that our party has further enriched and developed Marxism-Leninism and Mao Zedong Thought. We should learn from the scientific attitude of the party Central Committee in persistently seeking truth from facts, opposing dogmatism, upholding the mass line, opposing the personality cult, and daring and knowing how to uphold and develop Marxism-Leninism and Mao Zedong Thought in practice. We should seriously implement the guidelines of the congress documents and do all work well.

2. The 12th CPC National Congress Charted a Correct Course for Building Socialism With Chinese Characteristics

In his opening speech, Comrade Xiaoping explicitly said: "Blaze a path of our own and build socialism with Chinese characteristics."

In his report, Comrade Yaobang expounded and elaborated more comprehensively on the basic orientation and main points of the socialist road with Chinese characteristics, thereby outlining a new blueprint.

Blazing a path of our own and building socialism with Chinese characteristics is the guiding ideology permeating all the documents of the 12th CPC National Congress. It is also an important principle in carrying out our socialist modernization from now on. In study, we must profoundly understand and grasp this principle and take it as the fundamental guidance in our work.

3. The 12th CPC National Congress Held Aloft the Banner of Communist and Guided Us To Go Deeper Into the Practice of Communism

Building socialist spiritual civilization with communist ideology at its core is a great strategic plan put forward by the 12th CPC National Congress. We must first demand that the CPC and CYL members firm up their faith in communism, display communist spirit, strive to work for the well-being of the people and struggle to realize communism. At the same time, we should strengthen education in communist ideals and morality among the broad masses of people.

Carrying out communist propaganda and education and advocating communist spirit absolutely does not mean that we should change our present social system and policies. At the present stage, we must in our economic and social life persist in the principle of "to each according to his work" as well as in other socialist policies. We should never repeat the mistakes of blowing a "communist wind" and practicing "egalitarianism and indiscriminate transfer of resources." Our communist propaganda and education are designed precisely to guarantee the correct implementation of existing principles and policies. We must combine the undertaking of socialist material modernization with the training of new socialist persons.

4. The 12th CPC National Congress Inherited and Carried Forward the Marxist Style of Work

The 12th CPC National Congress inherited and developed the Marxist style of work fostered since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee. The congress emphasized the principle of upholding democratic centralism and collective leadership. It called for further display of democracy within and outside the party and relying on collective wisdom to exercise correct leadership. It emphasized the principle of seeking truth from facts and proceeding from reality in doing everything. We must follow the example of the party Central Committee and implement the guidelines of the 12th party national congress to make great improvement in our style of work and meet the demand of creating a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization.

5. The 12th CPC National Congress Showed the Great Unity of the Whole Party and the People of Various Nationalities Throughout the Country

The 12th party national congress showed the unity of the whole party and the unity among the people throughout the country. The 12th party national congress, like the 7th party national congress, was truly a meeting of unity and victory.

In the central leading organs elected by the 12th party national congress, some proletarian revolutionaries of the older generation continue to hold principal leading posts. At the same time, a number of middle-aged and young cadres with both political integrity and ability have been selected to strengthen the central leadership. As a result, the central leading organs will continue to exercise a strong Marxist leadership and lead the whole party and the people of various nationalities throughout the country in making new accomplishments by creating a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization. We must closely rally around the party Cental Committee and persist in identifying ourselves politically with the party Central Committee.

At the same time, the leading cadres at all levels should take the lead in implementing the new party constitution, firmly do a good job in consolidating the party organizations, normalize inner-party political life, gradually build the party committees at all levels into united and harmonious leading collectives, build our party into a united and militant proletarian vanguard organization and turn our society into a new-type socialist society of stability and civility.

JIANGXI'S BAI DONGCAI AT ECONOMIC CRIME MEETING

OW181135 Nanchang Jiangxi Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 16 Oct 82

[Excerpts] The Jiangxi Provincial CPC Committee called a meeting of party members and responsible cadres of organs directly under the province. The meeting, held on the morning of 14 October, was also attended by responsible comrades of inspection teams sent by the provincial party committee to various prefectures and municipalities.

The meeting made new arrangements for deepening the struggle against serious criminal economic activities in the province. It called on party organizations at various levels throughout the province to conscientiously implement the guidelines laid down by the 12th party congress, to enhance their understanding of such criminal activities and to strengthen their leadership in this regard. Taking a serious and realistic attitude, they should concentrate on the investigation and handling of major or serious cases in order to deepen this struggle and to make new achievements in this regard.

(Wang Chi), deputy secretary of the provincial discipline inspection commission, presided over the meeting.

Addressing the meeting were Bai Dongcai, first secretary of the provincial party committee; Di Sheng, deputy secretary of the provincial party committee; and (Wang Chi), deputy secretary of the provincial discipline inspection commission.

The meeting held: The struggle against serious criminal economic activities has been deepening step by step in the province over the past few months. The provincial party committee and the party committees at various levels in the province have been conscientiously implementing the party Central Committee's relevant instructions responsible persons of the party committees have concerned themselves with criminal economic activities and the forces responsible for investigating and handling such cases have been strengthened. As a result, clues to many cases have been found and a number of major or serious cases have been investigated. Thus, new progress and remarkable achievements have been made in the struggle.

However, development of the struggle is still uneven and the investigation and handling of major or serious cases have not progressed quickly enough. The main reasons for this are: Leading comrades of some units and localities still lack a clear understanding of the importance of the struggle and thus are not firmly determined to carry it out. Particularly when the struggle meets with some obstruction and interference, they often hesitate to take any decisive actions. To deepen the struggle throughout the province, it is now necessary to do the following things well:

1. It is necessary to conscientiously study the documents of the 12th party congress and to make large numbers of party members and cadres have a clearer understanding of the importance of the struggle against serious criminal economic activities.

2. It is necessary to continuously concentrate on the investigation and handling of major or serious cases. The stress of this struggle should be put on the investigation and handling of major or serious cases. Properly investigating and handling such cases will be an important indication that achievements are made in the struggle.

3. It is necessary to continue to strengthen the forces responsible for investigating and handling criminal economic cases so that they will fulfill their duties effectively and do a good job in investigating andhandling major or serious cases.

4. It is necessary to further strength party leadership over the struggle. Principal responsible comrades of party committees should personally take part in investigating and handling major or serious cases. The party committees at various levels should resolutely overcome obstruction and interference in the struggle. Those who obstruct the investigation and handling of major or serious cases should be criticized and educated, and disciplinary measures should be taken against them when necessary. Weak and lax leading bodies, whose members are seriously factionalist in their thinking, should be resolutely reorganized.

5. It is necessary to implement the party's policies to the letter, to persistently act in the spirit of seeking truth from facts, to strictly distinguish between the two different types of contradictions and to make clear distinction between crime and innocence. It is strictly forbidden to obtain confessions by compulsion and to give them credence.

SHANDONG'S BAI RUBING AT PARTY PLENARY SESSION

SK251211 Jinan Shandong Provincial Service in Mandarin 2300 GMT 24 Oct 82

[Excerpts] The Ninth Plenary Session of the Third Shandong Provincial CPC Committee was held in Jinan on 15-24 October. Sai Rubing, first secretary of the provincial CPC committee, presided over and addressed the session. Su Yiran, secretary of the provincial CPC committee and provincial governor, spoke on behalf of the provincial CPC committee standing committee. Comrade Su Yiran touched on six issues: 1) Study and publicize in depth the documents of the 12th party congress; 2) Strive to fulfill the grand objective of economic construction; 3) Build a socialist spiritual civilization with communist ideas as its core; 4) Firmly grasp the restructuring or organizations; 5) Strengthen party building and prepare for party rectification in an all-round manner; and 6) Do a good job in the current economic work by taking the guidelines of the 12th party congress as a motivating force.

The session held that our province has initially whipped up an upsurge in studying and publicizing the congress documents and has scored noticeable achievements. What we should do at present is to deeply study, publicize and implement the congress guidelines, to correctly understand and master the essence of the documents and to enhance understanding and unify thinking to implement the guiding princples, policies and tasks stipulated at the 12th CPC congress in all our work.

The session noted: The documents of the 12th party congress are guiding principles and banners that lead us to achieve socialist modernization. These documents not only strongly aim at practical issues but also have a profound theoretical nature. To genuinely master them and to turn them into conscious action of the whole party will be a protracted and arduous task. To equip our comrades to meet the needs of the historic mission of creating a new situation, efforts must be made to carry out large-scale activity to thoroughly study these documents in order to achieve a leap in terms of ideology and understanding and to achieve a new breakthrough in work. A thorough study of documents will directly affect the unity of the party's ideology and action and the prospects for the four modernizations. Therefore, we must fully understand the great significance of this study campaign and realistically grasp it as a matter of prime importance.

The session held that the grand objective set forth at the 12th party congress on developing the economy accords with the desire of the people of the whole country and the country's capabilities. To quadruple the province's annual industrial and agricultural output value by the end of 2000 will absolutely be possible through strenous efforts. After conscientiously analyzing the economic development situation, the favorable conditions and the difficulties ahead, the session pointed out: So long as we firmly act in accordance with the congress guidelines and fully arouse the enthusiasm of the broad masses of people, we will surely achieve the grand objective defined for economic construction.

We have great confidence in this and all feelings of doubt and hardship and all ideas of considering all things as hard to accomplish are groundless and incorrect.

The session held that, while building a high level of material civilization, we must also strive to build a high level of socialist spiritual civilization. This is a matter of strategy in building socialism and it affects the success and failure of socialism. The most important task in implementing the guidelines of the 12th party congress is to do a good job in building the socialist spiritual civilization. We must deeply understand its great significance and strive to enhance the people's consciousness in building the spiritual civilization.

The session noted: In building socialist spiritual civilization we must regard communist ideas as its core, and in the course of actively promoting communist ideas, we must unswervingly implement all existing party policies. Only by doing so can we have an orientation and a focus for carrying out the work ahead and for better mobilizing millions of people to carry out undertakings with a high level of political zeal.

The session pointed out: Socialist spiritual civilization includes ideological and cultural construction, with communist ideas as its guide. We must conduct in-depth education on communist ideals and ethics, on revolutionary discipline, and on cultural and scientific and technological knowledge, actively carry out activities on five stresses and four beauties and on creating advanced units in civility and courtesy. We must also exert efforts to improve sanitation, social order and service manners and strive to foster through practice a new generation that has ideals, morality and culture and a sense of observing discipline so as to ensure a great change in the outlook of society.

The session noted: The current restructuring of organizations has become a task that brooks no delay. We must act in accordance with the arrangements made by the central authorities, take the restructuring of central party and government organs as our examples and be successful in restructuring provincial, prefectural, municipal and county organs.

The session called on party organizations at all levels, from now on, to organize the broad masses of party members to study the new party constitution well, to do a good job in the pilot work of party rectification, consolidate grassroots party organizations, strengthen party building and make good preparations for party rectification in all fields.

The session pointed out: To create a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization we must look ahead and keep a foothold on the present situation - do solid work in industrial and agricultural production and financial and trade work during the winter-spring period by taking the congress guidelines as source of motivation, comprehensively fulfill this year's national economic plan and create conditions for winning new success in next year's economic construction.

Attending this enlarged plenary session were party members and alternate members of the provincial CPC committee, party-member vice chairmen of the provincial people's congress standing committee, party-member deputy governors of the provincial government, party-member vice chairmen of the provincial CPPCC committe, various prefectural, municipal and county party committee secretaries, party committee secretaries of various large enterprises and establishments and principal responsible comrades of provincial-level departments, committees, offices and bureaus as well responsible comrades of institutions of higher learning.

CHEN GUODONG ATTENDS SHANGHAI AWARDS MEETING

OW260328 Shanghai City Service in Mandarin 1130 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] The Shanghai suburban conference on diversified undertakings held a meritorious awards meeting on the afternoon of 22 October.

Present at the meeting were Chen Guodong, first secretary of the Shanghai municipal party committee; and Hu Lijiao, second secretary of the municipal party committee. They issued certificates of merit to representatives of 25 outstanding production teams and 17 families who earned more than 10,000 yuan each. They also pinned red flowers on the chests of the representatives and posed for a group picture with them. On behalf of the municipal party committee, Hu Lijiao warmly praised the cadres and commune members in the suburban areas for their contributions to the improvement of the supply of nonstaple foods to the urban area. He hoped for emergence of still more outstanding production teams and 10,000-yuan families. Vice Mayors Chen Zonglie and Pei Xianbai also addressed the meeting.

SHANGHAI'S CHEN GUODONG LAUDS THRIFTY HOUSEHOLDS

OW291427 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 0047 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Excerpts] Shanghai, 27 Oct (XINHUA) -- At the Shanghai suburban area diversified economic work meeting, 10,000-Yuan Households," which had become rich through labor, were commended by the Shanghai Municipal Agricultural Commission and the Shanghai Municipal People's Government's finance and trade office. Chen Guodong, first secretary of the Shanghai municipal party committee, Hu Lijiao, second secretary of the municipal party committee, and Chen Zonglie, vice mayor of Shanghai Municipality, conferred certificates of merit on the "10,000-yuan households" and congratulated them for the good results they have achieved in developing agricultural production.

According to preliminary stastistics, 30 peasant households in the entire suburban areas have scored such achievements.

LI FENGPING ATTENDS ZHEJIANG COMMENDATION MEETING

OW311157 Hangzhou Zhejiang Provincial Service in Mandarin 1030 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] A provincial meeting to commend advanced collectives and individuals in supporting the army and giving preferential treatment to families of armymen and martyrs and those in supporting the government and cherishing the people came to a close in Hangzhou this morning. (Xi Chaolong), standing committee member of the provincial party committee, presided over the closing ceremony.

Presenting awards to 384 advanced collectives and individuals were Li Fengping, secretary of the provincial party committee and governor of the province, (Zhang Zhaowan), standing committee member of the provincial party committee and vice governor of the province, (Kang Mingcai), commander of the provincial military district, and Meng Keming, deputy political commissar of the provincial military district.

Those attending the meeting unanimously adopted a written proposal. The proposal calls on all workers, peasants, intellectuals, families of martyrs and armymen, disabled, demobilized and retired soldiers, PLA units stationed in Zhejiang, frontier guards, firefighters, people's police and militiamen to conscientiously study and implement the guidelines laid down by the 12th party congress, conduct more extensive activities to support the army and give preferential treatment to families of armymen and martyrs, support the government and cherish the people, further strengthen army-government and army-people unity and vigorously build a socialist spiritual civilization.

In his speech at the closing ceremony, Commander (Kang Mingcai) of the provincial military district expressed the hope that those attending the meeting would treasure their honor, guard against arrogance and rashness, make bigger contributions to the state in order to bring about a new situation in supporting the army and giving preferential treatment to families of armymen and martyrs, support the government and cherish the people in the province.

WANG ZHEN ADDRESSES GUANGZHOU PLA CADRFS

HK030822 Guangzhou NANFANG RIBAO in Chinese 2 Nov 82 pp 1, 3

[Report: "Wang Zhen Receives Cadres at and Above Divisional Level of the Guangzhou PLA Units"]

[Text] Wang Zhen, member of the Political Bureau of the CPC Central Committee, received cadres at and above the divisional level of the Guangzhou PLA units in Guangzhou on the afternoon of 1 November. He encouraged the units to study and implement in depth the 12th party congress spirit, further eliminate the influence of the "leftist" ideology, do a good job in cooperation between new and old and replacement of old by new in the leadership groups, and strive to create a new situation in building the units.

Comrade Wang Zhen said, over the past few years, under the CPC committee, the Guangzhou PLA units have earnestly implemented the line, principles and policies formulated after the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee and consciously adhered to what the party Central Committee required ideologically and politically. Meanwhile, they have done a lot of work and also achieved great success in implementing the party's policies, border defense, military training, political work, building socialist spiritual civilization and developing rear service.

Comrade Wang Zhen spoke on the great significance of reforming the leadership system and the structure of the party and state and of streamlining and reorganizing the PLA units. On the question of cooperation between new and old and replacement of old by new in the leadership groups, Comrade Wang Zhen said: Old cadres are the precious treasures of our party and army. They have made important contributions over a long period of revolutionary struggle and socialist construction. However, for reasons of age and health, some comrades are no longer able to continue undertaking arduous leadership work. For the sake of the revolutionary cause, these old comrades are viewing the situation as a whole and voluntarily retiring to the second or third line, and are also actively cultivating and recommending middle-aged and young cadres with political integrity and ability to take over their work. Their spirit of consciously and gladly subordinating themselves to the arrangement of work by the higher organizations and their willingness to be subject to being transferred to any type of work by the party fully shows their breadth of vision and lofty revolutionary morality and is also highly commendable. Comrade Wang Zhen expressed the hope that the old comrades retiring to the second or third line would enthusiastically support the comrades assuming new leading posts and help them to do their work well. He also said: We must clearly see the good qualities of middle-aged and young cadres and believe that they will soon be able to prove equal to their leading work by adjusting their practical work. We must encourage them to be bold in doing their work and creating new things and new situations. When some shortcomings or mistakes appear in their work, we must help them to seriously sum up their experience and to continuously make improvements in their practical work.

Comrade Wang Zhen said: The new leadership groups must be bold in creating new things, do their work in a thoroughly sound way and strive to create a new situation in work in the PLA units. It is necessary to continue to study in depth the spirit of the 12th party congress documents. Through study, it is necessary to further eliminate the pernicious influence of erroneous "leftist" ideology and truly keep with what the party Central Committee requires ideologically and politically. It is necessary to uphold the party's principle of democratic centralism and strengthen the collective leadership of party committees. Major and important problems must be decided through collective discussion by the party committee. It is necessary to persist in the party's principles to cement internal unity. Comrades must be frank and above board with each other, learn from each other to make up for each other's deficiencies and actively develop criticism and self-criticism. It is necessary to cultivate a good work style, that is, to understand in depth the spirit and essence of all directives from the central authorities and the Central Military Commission and adopt measures to implement them in line with the practical situation in the PLA units.

It is never encouraged to copy and convey these directives word for word. Each must take responsibility for the work assigned. It is necesssary to go down to the grassroots of military units to conduct investigations and study and seriously sum up experiences. It is also necessary to emancipate the mind and be bold in creating new things so as to bring subjective initiative into full play and accmplish all tasks of all work.

Comrade Wang Zhen pointed out: In selecting cadres and assigning leadership groups, we must unswervingly follow the party's cadre line of appointing people on their merits and the criterion of political integrity and ability. We should, on the one hand, be bold and quick in promoting young and middle-aged cadres, and, on the other hand, we should strictly insist on the political criteria. Not one of the "five categories of persons" pointed out by the party Central Committee is allowed into the leadership groups. Those who are already in the groups must be resolutely dismissed so as to ensure virtual political firmness and organizational purity in the leadership groups. It is necessary to eradicate the decadent concept of appointing people to posts according to seniority, and actively and boldly promote and employ young cadres. We must promote as early as possible to the leadership groups at and above the regimental level outstanding young and middle-aged cadres who have been training in colleges and academies, as well as cadres who have an educational level at or above senior secondary schools, have been steeled in the army for 20 or 30 years and possess relatively strong organization and leadership abilities. We must make the leadership groups at various levels keen witted, able and efficient. We must do well in cadres' education and training. The rotational training of cadres is an important strategic measure. It is necessary to make use of all existing conditions and mobilize all comrades who are able to study to participate in rotational training. In the course of training, it is necessary to study Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong Thought, modern science and culture and knowledge of modern military technology. Only by making a success of this work will it be possible to progressively enhance the quality of the ranks of cadres and make them qualified for the work of modernization.

Zhu Yunqian, member of the CPC Central Committee and deputy director of the PLA General Political Department, was present at the reception.

Also present at the reception were Zhan Caifang and Peng Jiaqing, members of the Central Advisory Commission of the CPC, and former leading comrades of the Guangzhou PLA units and of their leading organs, including Huang Ronghai, Ye Jianmin, Jiang Lindong, Deng Yifan, Yang Shugen, Yan Deming, Chen Haihan, Xiao Yuanli, Zhuang Tian, Lai Chunfeng and Zhu Ying.

Also present were Ren Zhongyi, first secretary of the Guangdong Provincial CPC Committee; Liang Lingguang, secretary of the provincial CPC committee and first secretary of the Guangzhou Municipal CPC Committee; Wang De, secretary of the provincial CPC committee; and Xu Shijie, secretary of the Guangzhou Municipal CPC Committee.

Also present at the reception were You Taizhong, commander of the Guangzhou PLA units; Wang Meng, political commissar of the units; Xu Fangchun, Zhu Yuehua and Zhang Xudeng, deputy commanders of the units; Dan Yinzhang and Lu Weiru, deputy political commissars of the units; Liu Cunzhi, headquarters chief-of-staff of the Guangzhou PLA units; Chen Jide, head of the political department of the Guangzhou PLA units; Wang Hai, commander of the air force of the Guangzhou PLA units; and Ren Qiu, political commissar of the air force units. Comrades You Taizhong and Wang Meng also spoke at the reception.

WANG ZHEN ATTENDS GUANGZHOU CULTURAL SHOW 1 NOV

HK020155 Guangzhou Guangdong Provincial Service in Mandarin 2350 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] The second Yunnan Provincial Beijing Opera troupe, headed by the well-known actor and Yunnan Beijing Opera Theater director (Guan Shushuang), gave its first performance of "Zie Yaohuan" in the Guangzhou Friencship Theater on the evening of 1 November.

Present were Central Committee Political Bureau member Wang Zhen; PLA General Political Department Deputy Director Zhu Yunqian; Guangzhou PLA units Commander You Taizhong and Political Commissar Wang Meng; and responsible comrades of Guangdong Provin and Guangzhou Municipality Ren Zhongyi, Liang Lingguang and Wang De.

GUANGDONG'S REN ZHONGYI ON HITTING ECONOMIC CRIME

HK290154 Guangzhou Guangdong Provincial Service in Mandarin 1000 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Excerpts] The Guangdong Provincial CPC Committee recently convened a provincial conference on hitting at serious economic crime. After affirming the initial successes of the province in launching the struggle against serious economic crime in the past 9 months, provincial CPC committee First Secretary Ren Zhongyi pointed out in his speech at the meeting: The future tasks remain very arduous and we must by no means relax. We must make still greater efforts and advance from victory to victory. Following the 12th party congress, our understanding of the importance of this struggle should be raised to a new plane. The 12th party congress treated the struggle against criminal activities in the economic and other fields in sabotaging socialism as a major guarantee for upholding the socialist road and accomplishing socialist modernization. As the class struggle will still exist for a long time to a certain extent in Chinese society, the struggle against serious economic crime will also be a protracted one. As Guangdong is opening up still more to the outside world, the province will be the first to be affected by the corrosion of capitalist ideology. This struggle is thus all the more serious in our province. Our tasks will also be more arduous. We must therefore firmly and consciously unfold this struggle in a sustained way. It is essential that we get a tight grasp of it.

On how to further promote this struggle in the future, Comrade Ren Zhongyi stressed three points:

1. The party committees must attach importance to the struggle. Those that failed to attach sufficient importance in the previous stage must enhance understanding and truly see its importance. The principal leading comrades of the party committees must personally tackle the struggle, and the party committees must regularly discuss it. At present we must in particular concentrate forces to get on with investigating and verifying the facts in major and important cases. Where such cases have already been basically investigated, it is necessary to reach conclusions on them and avoid prolonging the matter. This winter and next spring it is necessary to complete investigation and handling of all major and important cases now in hand.

He said: All cases of economic crime, no matter who is involved and how high his position, must be seriously and impartially investigated. In particular, there must be even less shielding and protection in cases involving leading cadres.

2. We must further strengthen the case-handling force.

3. We must seriously implement the policies and pay attention to work methods.

Comrade Ren Zhongyi also pointed out: Hitting at serious economic crime is a major anti-corruption struggle. Preventing party members from degenerating under corrosion by capitalist ideology has become an important topic in strengthening party building in the ruling party. The party organizations at all levels must strengthen regular education in party spirit and discipline for the party members and strengthen the party's discipline inspection work.

GUANGDONG'S LIU TIANFU ON CONGRESS DOCUMENTS

HK210313 Guangzhou Guangdong Provincial Service in Mandarin 2350 GMT 20 Oct 82

[Excerpts] The Guangdong Provincial CPC Committee held a meeting to publicize and explain the 12th party congress documents in the Zhongshan Memorial Hall, Guangzhou, on the afternoon of 20 October.

Provincial CPC committee Secretary and Governor Liu Tianfu delivered a guidance report on the historic turning point and the great new tasks. Nearly 5,000 people were present, including cadres at and above section level in the provincial organs, and cadres of the provincial military district and Guangzhou municipal organs.

In his report Comrade Liu Tianfu gave a full exposition on how the party has completed the task of bringing order out of chaos in guiding ideology since the smash of the Jiang Qing counterrevolutionary clique and especially since the 3d plenary session of the 11th Central Committee, and on the great victories gained on all fronts.

Comrade Liu Tianfu stressed: We must grasp the building of socialist material civilization with one hand and the building of socialist spiritual civilization with the other. We must both strengthen communist ideological education and also maintain the socialist policies for the current stage, including the policy of distribution according to work. He demanded that the party members, cadres and masses throughout the province further brace their revolutionary spirit and work hard to fulfill the party's general task for the new historical period.

LIU TIANFU AT BANQUET FOR TAIWAN COMPATRIOTS

OW261235 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1310 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Excerpt] Guangzhou, 22 Oct (XINHUA) -- The China export commodities trade fair held a banquet for Taiwan compatriots and representatives of Chinese nationals residing in Japan at the Orient Guesthouse in Guangzhou on 21 October. The invited guests are currently attending the autumn trade fair in Guangzhou.

Liu Tianfu, director of the China export commodities trade fair and governor of Guangdong Province, toasted the guests at the banquet. He extended his warmest welcome to the Taiwan compatriots and the representatives of Chinese nationals from Japan, and expressed the hope that they will contribute to the sacred mission of realizing the return of Taiwan to the motherland.

Huang Wenqin, vice president of the Tokyo Overseas Chinese Association, spoke at the banquet. He said: More and more Taiwan compatriots have expressed their wish to return to the motherland to visit and trade and to meet their relatives. No force can deter the trend for the reunification of the motherland. We must make fresh contributions for the realization of the four modernizations, for the return of Taiwan and for the reunification of the motherland.

Attending the banquet were Wang Pinqing, deputy director of the China export commodities trade fair and representative of the minister of foreign economic relations and trade; Zeng Dingshi, deputy director of the trade fair and vice governor of Guangdong Province; Xue Yan, deputy director of the trade fair and chairman of the Guangzhou Municipal CPPCC Committee; Yi Meihou, vice chairman of the All-China Federation of Returned Overseas Chinese and vice chairman of the Guangdong Provincial People's Congress Standing Committee' and deputy directors of the trade fair Guan Xiangsheng, Zuo Ming, Yan Yijun and Zheng Shaokang.

Li Chen, director of the Guangzhou branch of the Taiwan Democratic Self-Government League and chairman of the Taiwan Compatriots Association in Guangdong Province, also attended the banquet.

GUANGDONG TEAM TO INVESTIGATE 'REBEL' OFFICIAL

HK240324 Guangzhou Guangdong Provincial Service in Mandarin 2350 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Text] The concerned departments of Zhanjiang Prefectural CPC Committee and commissioner's office organized a work team on 22 October to investigate and deal with the problem of Tang Gengchen, former vice chairman of the Zhanjiang Customs Revolutionary Committee.

The principal responsible comrade of the Zhanjiang Prefectural CPC Committee held: Tang Gengchen has already caused serious consequences by making great trouble in the customs. It is not now a question of reassigning him or still less of making him a section chief or deputy plant manager; it is a question of enforcing severe party discipline on him.

In view of other mistakes made by Tang Gengchen during the Cultural Revolution, the prefectural CPC committee has organized the departments concerned to form a work group to investiate and will then deal with the matter seriously according to the nature of his mistakes and his attitude toward them.

NANFANG RIBAO Urges Purge

HK160323 Guangzhou Guangdong Provincial Service in Mandarin 2350 GMT 15 Oct 82

[Text] The 16 October NANFANG RIBAO front-pages a letter from (Cheng Wen), a Zhanjiang prefectural organs cadre, exposing how Tang Gengchen, former vice chairman of the Zhanjiang Customs Revolutionary Committee, a man who rose to power through rebelling, is frequently making trouble and causing great disruption in the Zhangjiang customs. The masses appeal: People who rise to power through rebelling cannot be allowed to go on making trouble.

The letter says: Tang Gengchen was formerly a cadre of the security office of the Maoming Petroleum Company. During the 10 years of internal chaos, he personally set to work to force confessions from people and compile sham material, punished the principal leading comrades of the Maoming Municipal CPC Committee, and rose to the position of director of the security group of the Maoming Petroleum Company Revolutionary Committee. Not long after, he was also promoted to the post of standing committee member of the company revolutionary committee and vice chairman of the revolutionary committee of the company's prospecting command. After Tang Gengchen was transferred to the post of vice chairman of the Zhanjiang Customs Revolutionary Committee in 1974, he convened a special meeting of rebels in order to seize power and incited factionalism. Moreover, he frequently attacked comrades who boycotted his factionalist activities. He would punish some one day and others the next day, causing great trouble in the customs.

In November 1980 the Zhangjiang Customs Revolutionary Committee was abolished and the official party system was revived. The Zhanjiang Prefectural CPC Committee's Organization Department did not appoint Tang Gengchen to a post. For nearly 3 years now the organization departments has arranged many job assignments for him, but he has consistently refused to accept them. He has frequently created great uproar by abusing the customs leadership and the work personnel. Each time he abuses them, the affair lasts for many minutes and even several hours. The customs leadership are therefore placed in a difficult position.

The masses have repeatedly reported the trouble making of Tang Gengchen. In the past few years the upper-level leading departments have frequently sent people to investigate the situation, but they have never dealt with the matter at all. Why is the leadership concerned unable to deal severely with Tang Gengchen, a person whose head sprouts horns and body spikes, and who continues even today to cause great trouble in the customs? In his speech at the 12th party congress, Comrade Chen Yun repeatedly stressed that the persons of three categories must be resolutely purged from the leadership groups. This reflects the demands of the masses. We cannot go on indulging a person like Tang Gengchen any more.

On receiving this letter, the NANFANG RIBAO editorial board dispatched a reporter to visit responsible comrades of the Guangdong customs suboffice, the Zhanjiang Prefectural CPC Committee's Discipline Inspection Committee and organization department, and the prefectural external economic affairs committee and other leading organs. He also went to Maoming Petroleum Company and Zhanjiang customs to get to know the situation from comrades familiar with the problem of Tang Gengchen.

The material submitted from various quarters showed that the situation reported in the letter was basically in accord with reality.

NANFANG RIBAO carries a short commentary, stating: The exposure of the Tang Gengchen problem shows that the principle put forward by the 12th party congress that people of three categories -- those who followed Lin Biao, Jiang Qing and company and rose to power through rebelling during the Cultural Revolution, those with gravely factionalist thinking, and those who engaged in beating, smashing and looting -- must be resolutely purged from the leadership groups is completely correct. It must be resolutely implemented.

GUANGXI OPENS ARMY-PEOPLE SOLIDARITY CONGRESS

HK260337 Nanning Guangxi Regional Service in Mandarin 1130 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Summary] A congress of progressive representatives of dependents of martyrs and armymen, disabled servicemen, and ex-servicemen and of progressive units in supporting the army, giving preferential treatment to its dependents, supporting the government and cherishing the people opened in Nanning on 25 October. The congress has been convened by the regional people's government and military district. Present at the opening were leading comrades of the party, government and army in the autonomous region including Liu Chonggui, Zhou Guangchun, Xiao Han, Liu Yisheng, Guo Zhifu, Chen An, Shi Qingsheng, Gan Ku, and (Shi Jin). Also present were leading comrades of the Ministry of Civil Affairs, the Mass Work Department of the PLA General Political Department, and the Guangzhou PLA units (Chen Yuting), (Wang Keqing) and Huang Ronghai. The congress is being attended by 1,120 representatives.

Shi Qingsheng, vice chairman of the regional people's government, delivered the opening speech. He said: The tasks of this gathering are to seriously study the 12th party congress documents, commend the progressives, and sum up and exchange experiences. He pointed out: "Guangxi is located on the Sino-Vietnamese border. Making a success of this congress will be of great significance for mobilizing those eligible for preferential treatment to work hard to fulfill the combat tasks put forward by the 12th party congress, creating a new situation in supporting the army and giving preferential treatment to its dependents, strengthening army-government and army-people unity and consolidating national defense."

LIU JIE ADDRESSES HENAN TREE-PLANTING GATHERING

HK010337 Zhengzhou Henan Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Summary] The Henan provincial gathering to commend young tree planters was held in Zhengzhou from 25-28 October. Liu Jie, first secretary of the provincial CPC committee, Zhang Shude, secretary of the provincial CPC committee and Cui Guanghua, provincial vice governor, attended the gathering. Liu Jie made an important speech at the meeting. He said: "Forestry has a great bearing on the building of socialist material and spiritual civilization. For the quadrupling in the agricultural field in particular, forestry is a fundamental guarantee and a type of basic work. Therefore, developing forestry is a strategic measure of lasting importance." He also said: "The area covered by forests in our province only for accounts 12.97 percent at present. We will increase it to 30 percent by the end of this century. We should have this ambition. Though the work of developing forestry is very arduous, so long as we work hard and exert great efforts, this objective is certainly achievable." The gathering also adopted a letter of proposal to all young people in Henan on promoting the tree-planting drive.

CHI BIQING ATTENDS GUIZHOU PROCURATORIAL MEETING

HK240355 Guiyang Guizhou Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Summary] A Guizhou provincial procuratorial work meeting concluded on 22 October after 10 days in session. The meeting conveyed and implemented the spirit of the national political and legal work conference and discussed and decided on measures for implementing it. The meeting demanded that procuratorial organs and cadres and policemen throughout the province seriously study the 12th party congress documents and strive for a fundamental turn for the better in social mood and social order.

The meeting held: The province has scored great success this year in hitting at serious economic crime and tidying up social order, and there has been a notable turn for the better. "However, we must realize that the development of work is uneven. Some places, departments and units have not seriously launched the struggle against major economic crimes. In some places progress has been very slow in investigating and dealing with important cases. In some places the cases have not been handled well or properly."

The meeting stressed: "To ensure that procuratorial work can better serve economic construction, we must concentrate efforts on severely punishing criminals who do serious economic damage. Hence, the procuratorial organs at all levels and the whole body of cadres and policemen must further enhance understanding of the importance of hitting at serious economic crime." They must get a vigorous grasp of investigating and handling major and important cases. "In handling cases, they must do a good job in thoroughly investigating the problems, no matter who is involved and how high his position, and resolutely handle the cases according to law and with severity and speed."

"It is necessary to correctly understand and implement the party policy, and strictly distinguish between what is crime and what is not, between mistakes in work and lawbreaking and crime, between unhealthy trends in economic work and economic crimes, and between smuggling and peddling contraband, indulging in bribery and corruption, speculation and swindling on the one hand, and problems resulting from imperfection of certain systems and methods in the policy on opening up to the world and enlivening the domestic economy on the other."

The meeting pointed out: "In order to achieve a fundamental turn for the better in social order and ensure the smooth progress of socialist modernization, we must continue to enhance understanding of the importance of tidying up social order and resolutely hit with severity and speed, according to the law, at murderers, robbers, rapists, arsonists, bombers and other elements who commit serious crime. We must deal vigorous blows at the arrogance of the counterrevolutionaries, hit at the ringleaders and key members of criminal gangs, and hit at fugitives and instigators. We must deal severely with cases of sabotaging planned parenthood." The procuratorates should also take part in the work of solving the crime problem in a comprehensive way and help promote the spiritual civilization drive. They must also carry out reforms of their ranks and administrative structures.

Chi Biqing, Li Tinggui, Zhang Yuhuan and Wu Shi, responsible comrades of the Guizhou Provincial CPC Committee, spoke during the meeting.

GUIZHOUS'S CHI BIQING ON MINORITY NATIONALITY WORK

HK291130 Guiyang Guizhou Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] GUIZHOU RIBAO today publishes the text of a statement made by Comrade Chi Biqing, member of the CPC Central Committee and first secretary of the Guizhou Provincial CPC Committee, during an interview with reporters from MINZU TUANJIE.

In talking about the significance of doing a good job in work on minority nationalities in Guizhou, a multinational province, Comrade Chi Biqing said: The 12th party congress stressed the importance of doing work on minority nationalities. In his political report, Comrade Hu Yaobang pointed out that further developing the socialist relations of equality, unity and mutual assistance among all our nationalities constitutes an important aspect of the building of socialist democracy in our country. It is also stated in the general program of the party constitution adopted at the 12th party congress: The Communist Party of China upholds and promotes relations of equality, unity and mutual assistance among all nationalities in the country, persists in the policy of regional autonomy of minority nationalities, aids the areas inhabited by minority nationalities in their economic and cultural development and actively trains and promotes cadres from among the minority nationalities.

There are nine minority nationalities in Guizhou. It is a multinational province within a limited area where different nationalities live together. It has 6.69 million minority nationality people, accounting for 23.5 percent of Guizhou's population. Guizhou ranks fourth among the provinces on the number of minority nationality people in its boundary. Among these minority nationality people, 36.3 percent are exercising regional autonomy. At present, there are three autonomous prefectures in Guizhou -- Giandongnan Autonomous Prefecture of the Miao and Dong nationalities, Quinnan Autonomous Prefecture of the Bouyei and Miao nationalities and Qianxinan Autonomous Prefecture of the Bouyei and Miao nationalites -- and six autonomous counties, covering a total area of 88,000 square kilometers, accounting for 50.8 percent of the total area of the province.

After the party's third plenary session, the provincial CPC committee realized that work on nationalities was extremely important work of the party. It regarded eliminating leftist mistakes in work on nationalities as an important part of the overall elimination of erroneous leftist guiding ideology, seriously summed up historical experience, stressed the implementation of policies for minority nationalities, paid attention to their peculiarities and promoted unity among them. In light of my experience gained since I came to work in Guizhou, I feel that the party congress' guiding ideology concerning work on minority nationalities is entirely correct and it is quite necessary to stress unity among nationalities. Without unity among nationalities, there will be no political stability, nor will there be economic prosperity or development.

In talking about the situation of implementing policies for minority nationalities, Chi Biqing said: You have further implemented the policy for regional autonomy of minority nationalities in Guizhou. With the approval of the state Council, the Qianxinan Autonomous Prefecture of the Bouyei and Miao nationalities and Guanling Autonomous County of the Bouyei and Miao nationalities were set up in the first half of this year. Through election, all responsible members of the standing committees of the people's congresses and governments of all autonomous prefectures and counties are cadres from minority nationalities which are exercising autonomy. New ideas of further improving and developing regional autonomy of minority nationalities have been put forward. The provincial CPC committee attaches much importance to training, electing and promoting cadres from the minority nationalities. By the end of October 1980, there were 63,482 cadres from the minority nationalities throughout the province, accounting for 14.76 percent of the total number of cadres of the province.

Through reeducation on policies for minority nationalities, their equal rights, practices and customs are respected almost in all localities. Practices, customs and national recreational activities which were banned and changed through coercive measures during the Great Cultural Revolution have been restored and rapidly developed. Relations among various nationalities have been improved and enthusiasm in building socialism of the people of various nationalities has been aroused.

In answering questions from the reporters, Comrade Chi Biqing also gave a detailed account on the tremendous changes in the economy, culture, education and health work in areas inhabited by minority nationality people in Guizhou and on measures taken by the provincial CPC committee to develop agriculture there.

Comrade Chi Biqing told the reporters about the provincial CPC committee's plan for future work on minority nationalities. He said: From now on we should grasp firmly the work of building material civilization in areas inhabited by minority nationalities. We must first build up our courage and faith in shaking off poverty. With necessary state assistance, we must develop with great efforts the economy of areas inhabited by minority nationalities. At the same time, we must do a good job in building socialist spiritual civilization and promote the development of relations of equality, unity and mutual assistance among various nationalities. The most important and crucial work in building socialist material and spiritual civilization in areas inhabited by minority nationalities is to improve party work style, consolidate party organizations and improve and strengthen party leadership. The people of various nationalities in Guizhou are very hard-working people. So long as we improve the party's work style and strengthen leadership, we will certainly make new achievements.

TAN QILONG ADDRESSES SICHUAN CYL CONGRESS

HK220337 Chengdu Sichuan Provincial Service in Mandarin 2300 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Excerpts] Sichuan Provincial CPC Committee First Secretary Tan Qilong made a speech at the seventh provincial CYL congress on 21 October, entitled: "The CYL Must Become a Heroic Shock Force in Creating a New Situation in All Fields of Socialist Modernization." He demanded that CYL members and young people throughout the province brace their spirits, have firm confidence, take big strides under the guidance of the 12th party congress spirit, develop the excellent situation, and strive to achieve 3 fundamental turns fot the better in 5 years and forge ahead toward the great goal of building a powerful socialist state.

He said: You are a generation spanning two centuries. You must not only achieve the great goal for the end of the 20th century but must also continue to play a backbone role in the 21st century and hand over the relay baton of communism to the next generation. This is your honor and pride. I fully believe that this generation of young people will certainly not disappoint the people's commission, and will certainly be able to spontaneously shoulder your great historic role. You will work in concert and act as a heroic shock force in creating a new situation in all fields.

Comrade Tan Qilong gave three views and hopes on the question of how to play the role of shock force:

1. Establish firm faith in communism and far-reaching revolutionary ideals. It is first necessary to study the 12th party congress documents and bring your thinking into line with them. You must firmly believe in our great party and the party's leadership core, that communism is sure to triumph, and in the socialist road with China's own characteristics on which we have already embarked and strengthen confidence and resolve to attain the great goal.

2. Establish communist ideals and work hard to study cultural and scientific knowledge.

3. Work hard and boldly shoulder heavy burdens, score outstanding achievements in ordinary posts, and contribute to the four modernizations.

In conclusion Comrade Tan Qilong demanded that the party organizations throughout the province regard strengthening leadership over the CYL as an important task. They should care for the CYL politically, guide it ideologically, support it in work, and provide the organizational guarantee, so as to create conditions for youth work in every aspect.

SICHUAN LEADERS EXPLAIN 12TH CONGRESS DOCUMENTS

HK020232 Chengdu Sichuan Provincial Service in Mandarin 2300 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Summary] Since the beginning of October, party and government leaders at all levels in Sichuan have gone among the masses to publicize and explain the 12th party congress documents. By 20 October responsible comrades of the provincial CPC committee Tan Qilong, Lu Dadong, Yang Rudai, Yang Chao, Liu Xiyao, Yang Xizong and Nie Ronggui had delivered reports or taken part in forums on 43 occasions in the provincial organs, industrial, communications, finance and trade units, rural areas, and science, education and culture departments. Comrade Wang Qian has also undertaken these activities in Chongqing. Responsible comrades of the provincial organs and prefectures and counties have also given numerous lectures and reports. In addition the province has trained 350,000 backbone elements for publicity and explanation of the documents. People throughout the province have listened to these reports with great enthusiasm, and have boosted their confidence and resolve in achieving the quadrupling target.

SICHUAN HOLDS MILITIA REORGANIZATION GATHERING

HK260233 Chengdu Sichuan Provincial Service in Mandarin 2300 GMT 25 Oct 82

[Excerpts] A Sichuan provincial gathering to sum up and present awards for militia reorganization work, convened by the provincial CPC committee, government and military district, opened at the military district halls 25 October. Present were responsible comrades of the provincial CPC committee, the Chengdu PLA units, the provincial people's congress standing committee, government, CPPCC and military district, including Tan Qilong, You Taizhong, Wei Jie, Wang Chenghan, Xu Mengxia, Du Xinyuan, Tian Bao, He Haoju, Ren Baige, Nie Ronggui, Qin Chuanhou, Gu Zhibiao, Peng Dixian, Qiao Zhimin, Guan Xuesi, Li Wenqing, Ru Fuyi, Wang Dongbao, Zhao Wenjin, Jiahan, Niu Ji, Hu Yongchang and Song Kaiyuan. Comrade (Meng Ting) of the PLA General Staff Department work group attended to give guidance.

Attending the gathering are principal responsible comrades of all prefectural, municipal and county CPC committees and governments, military subdistricts, garrisons and people's armed forces departments, together with representatives of progressive collectives and individuals who have done well in militia building in districts, communes, factories and mines, totaling more than 800 persons. Zhao Wenjin, deputy commander of the Chengdu PLA units and commander of Sichuan Military District, presided.

He Haoju, secretary of the provincial CPC committee and vice governor, delivered the opening speech. He said: This is a gathering to sum up implementation of the party Central Committee document on readjusting the militia organizations. It is also a fathering to commend and learn from the progressives. Sichuan has scored very great success in militia readjustment in the past 2 years, and large numbers of progressive collectives and individuals in militia work have emerged.

Comrade He Haoju said: This is an oath-taking gathering to mobilize and organize the militia to study the 12th party congress documents and create a new situation in militia work. As a result of this gathering, the province's militia will study the 12th party congress documents in still greater depth, apply the congress spirit to guide their thinking and action, fully play their shock role in industrial and agricultural production, and raise militia work to a new level.

Chengdu PLA Units Deputy Commander Wang Chenghan made a speech on behalf of the CPC committee of the units. He extended warm greetings to the gathering. He said: You must carry forward the achievements, resolutely implement the central authorities' instructions on continuing to strengthen militia work, organize the militia to study the 12th party congress documents in depth, firmly establish the idea of being prepared to fight and do a good job in combat-readiness work centered on mobilizing military manpower resources.

The provincial military district and the military subdistricts must truly devote their main efforts to promoting militia building, improve their work style, do a good job in investigation and study, and be sure to discover, sum up and popularize experiences in running militia work well in the new situation. In peacetime, it is necessary to bring into full play the role of the militia in building the two civilizations. In wartime, we must ensure that there will be a continual flow of thousands of militiamen joining the army and the battle. Thus Sichuan Province will truly become a reliable strategic rear area of the motherland.

SICHUAN MILITIA REORGANIZATION GATHERING ENDS

HK300311 Chengdu Sichuan Provincial Service in Mandarin 2300 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Summary] The Sichuan provincial gathering to sum up and present awards for readjusting militia organizations concluded on 29 October. Comrade (Meng Ping), director of the mobilization department of the PLA General Staff Department, spoke during the meeting. Sichuan Military District Political Commissar Hu Yongchang delivered a summation report. Tan Qilong, first secretary of the provincial CPC committee and first political commissar of Sichuan Military District, made an important speech.

Comrade Tan Qilong put forward the following demands on future militia work in the province:

"1. Seriously study the 12th party congress documents, further understand the importance of militia work and get a clear idea on the orientation for militia building.

"2. The militiamen of the whole province must make still greater contributions in creating a new situation in all fields.

"3. Carry forward the fine tradition of party control over the armed forces and tangibly strengthen leadership over militia work."

Present at the closing ceremony were responsible comrades of the provincial CPC committee, the Chengdu PLA units, the provincial people's congress standing committee, government, CPPCC and military district Tan Qilong, Wang Chenghan, Yang Rudai, Xu Mengxia, Du Xinyuan, Tian Bao, Ren Baige, Nie Ronggui, Qin Chuanhou, Gu Zhibiao, Li Zhongyi, Peng Dixian, Qiao Zhimin, Guan Xuesi, Yuan Shouqing, Niu Ji, (Yang Zengtong), Hu Yongchang and Song Kaiyuan.

The participants in the gathering issued a letter of proposal to all militiamen in the province. The letter made the following points:

"1. Hold aloft the banner of communism, have strong faith in communism, uphold the four basic principles, maintain political unity with the Central Committee, assiduously study Marxisc-Leninist works and Mao Zedong's works, and apply the spirit of the 12th party congress to unify our thinking and action.

"2. Actively take part in the socialist modernization drive. It is necessary to closely integrate accomplishing the communist ideal with doing a good job of one's own work." The militia should work in industrial and agricultural production, fully play their leading and backbone role, and contribute toward accomplishing the target of quadrupling total production value by the end of the century.

"3. Actively take part in building socialist spiritual civilization.

"4. Actively undertake combat-readiness duties, preserve social order and protect production.

"5. Actively take part in militia activities. It is necessary to do well in studying politics and military affairs, take good care of weapons and equipment, train hard in skills for killing the enemy, and continually improve our military and political qualities."

XIZANG'S YIN FATANG ON SPIRITUAL CIVILIZATION

HK280410 Lhasa Xizang Regional Service in Mandarin 0000 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Recently, Yin Fatang, regional CPC committee secretary, put forward three demands for building socialist spiritual civilization in Nagqu Prefecture. Comrade Yin Fatang said: First of all, we must educate the vast numbers of party members and cadres to cherish a great communist ideal. At present, some comrades' sense of communism is becoming less sharp and they lack the responsibilities of the revolutionary cause, merely thinking of holding their official positions without the slightest consideration of performing their duties. Party organizations at all levels must, in view of the present ideological conditions of party members and cadres, use various means to conduct education in communism so as to make them cherish a great communist goal, rigorously perform their own duties and consciously do their little bit to build communism. Second, great efforts should be made to improve the educational cause. Comrade Yin Fatang pointed out: There are many problems in education in Nagqu Prefecture. In the process of readjustment, the relationship between popularizing and upgrading has not been properly handled. Generally, the number of children of school age entering school is dropping. The number of illiterate persons is increasing. Comrade Yin Fatang continued: In an area filled with illiterate persons, it is impossible to build a high degree of material civilization and socialist spiritual civilization. This problem deserves the serious attention of party organizations and people's governments at all levels. Third, Comrade Yin Fatang raised the demand that it is necessary to correctly handle the religious problem, which is very important all over the region. Failure to handle it correctly might have a destructive influence on the building of material civilization and socialist spiritual civilization. Yin Fatang hoped that while building socialist spiritual civilization the comrades in Nagqu would proceed from local reality instead of copying others indiscriminately and, centering on communist ideology, purposely carry out the work.

XIZANG'S YIN FATANG PUBLICIZES CONGRESS SPIRIT

HK011251 Lhasa Xizang Regional in Mandarin 1130 GMT 31 Oct 82

[Summary] A Xizang Regional CPC Committee work group led by Yin Fatang, first secretary of Xizang Regional CPC Committee, recently went to eight counties of the Nagqu Prefecture to publicize and implement the 12th party congress spirit and to extend warm regards to cadres and the masses of various nationalities on various fronts who have worked for a long time in areas where it is extremely cold and oxygen is scarce.

After publicizing the 12th party congress spirit and making investigations in Nagqu, Biru, Baqen, Sogxian and other counties, comrades of the work group drove westward on 14 October to Shuanghu Ombu Office which is over 5,000 meters above sea level and where conditions are hardest, to do the same job among cadres and the masses and extend regards to them. They also discussed with them practical measures for attaining the goal put forward by the 12th party congress.

During the visit, Comrade Yin Fatang said: "The conditions here are hardest. It is hard on you. On behalf of the regional CPC committee and the regional people's government, I extend to you our warmest regards." After seeing a commune household which has changed from a poor household to a rich one since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, he felt very happy and said: "In developing animal husbandry, we must rely first on policies and second on science. According to geological features, the main target of development for a period of time to come is not to increase the number of livestock but to seize upon scientific breeding and make it important.

"We must improve quality of livestock, increase livestock products and increase the percentage of commodities. We must make great efforts to tap existing production potential."

Members of the work group led by Yin Fatang publicized the 12th party congress spirit among cadres, workers and herdsmen of various nationalities. "They also discussed with them practical measures for making contributions to quadrupling the national total industrial and agricultural output value in 20 years' time. Yin Fatang said: The goal of quadrupling the output value is based on scientific grounds. It is realistic and possible to attain. However we cannot attain this goal without making great efforts. The realization of this goal requires from us a great deal of solid work and arduous efforts. The people of various nationalities in Nagqu Prefecture expressed their determination to study and implement well the 12th party congress spirit, struggle hard with one heart and one mind, have lofty ambitions, aim high and make new contributions to attaining the magnificent goal put forth by the 12th party congress and to build a united, prosperous new Xizang with a highly-developed civilization."

AN PINGSHENG ATTENDS YUNNAN ECONOMIC FORUM

HK300652 Kunming Yunnan Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Excerpts] On 27 October the Yunnan Provincial CPC Committee invited a number of experts and scholars in Kunming science and technology circles to discuss the question of relying on science and technology to revive the province's economy and achieve the strategic goal of quadrupling.

(Sun Fang), president of the provincial agroscience institute and a senior agriculturalist, and (Chen Kensheng), honorary president of the institute and a research fellow, said: In order to quadruple agriculture, on the basis of promoting grain production we must open up more opportunities and vigorously develop diversification. Rice accounts for half the province's grain output. We must work hard to increase production in medium- and low-yield fields. We must also take advantage of the province's natural conditions and expand the sown area of dry land grain, under the premise of avoiding damaging the mountain forests.

(Liu Wei), a senior engineer of the provincial communications department who has made great contributions to fuel conservation, said: Communications and transport is a weak link in Yunnan. It is necessary to improve the state of the roads and the vehicles and further popularize technology in modifying vehicles to conserve fuel.

Provincial CPC committee First Secretary An Pingsheng, Second Secretary Li Qiming, Deputy Secretary Gao Zhiguo and Vice Governor Ma Wendong attended the meeting and chatted and exchanged views with the comrades. Comrade An Pingsheng made a speech. He said: How is our province to go about fulfilling the national target of quadrupling total annual industrial and agricultural output value by the end of the century? We must particularly rely on progress in science and technology. Yunnan has a poor foundation and cannot follow the old road. We must rely on new technology, equipment, crafts, materials and products. We must gradually shift production onto a new technological basis. The key lies in the modernization of science and technology. If we rely on progress in science and technology, the target of quadrupling can certainly be accomplished.

He pointed out: We must study in depth the 12th party congress documents and the speech of Premier Zhao Ziyang at the national science and technology award rally. I hope that experts and scholars in science and technology circles will work hard with the people of the whole province, put forward schemes and methods and make a success of the province's economic construction.

DELEGATION REASSURED ON HONG KONG'S FUTURE

HK030046 Hong Kong WEN WEI PO in Chinese 3 Nov 82 p 1

[Text] Beijing, 2 Nov (ZHONGGUO XINWEN SHE) -- The Hong Kong Trade Development Council delegation headed by Y.K.Kan concluded its activities in Beijing today and left for Shanghai.

During its visit to Beijing, the delegation had broad contacts with various economic departments and obtained large quantities of materials. The delegation felt that there are great potentials for economic cooperation and trade development between Hong Kong and the interior of China and the prospects for such development are excellent. They expressed confidence in Hong Kong's future stability and prosperity.

Their major impressions can be summed up as follows:

1. China desires to maintain Hong Kong's stability and prosperity.

2. China desires to continue to expand trade relations and import and export business with Hong Kong.

3. China invites Hong Kong investors to invest in the interior and promote various types of economic cooperation. Such investors will enjoy favored treatment.

China is preparing to offer Hong Kong investors a choice of various light industry, textile, foodstuff and other industrial projects. The banks, trading organizations and other departments will provide cooperation in order to create a relatively good investment climate and opportunities.

When receiving the delegation yesterday, NPC Standing Committee Vice Chairman Xi Zhongxun spoke on the following questions: After regaining sovereignty over Hong Kong, China guarantees that none of Hong Kong's systems will be changed and assures the legitimate interests of foreigners and Chinese in Hong Kong. All government decrees put into effect will be designed to ensure Hong Kong's stability and prosperity. They should therefore be confident of Hong Kong's future.

Y.K. Kan said: The thing that has given us greater happiness on this trip is that we have heard that China guarantees to maintain Hong Kong's stability and prosperity.

After visiting Shanghai, thedelegation will go on toGuangzhou before returning to Hong Kong.

TA KUNG PAO VIEWS SINO-SOVIET RELATIONS

HK021005 Hong Kong TA KUNG PAO in Chinese 2 Nov 82 p 2

["Political Talk" column by Shih Chun-yu: "How To Bring About a Healthy Development of Sino-Soviet Relations"]

[Text] Ambassador to the Soviet Union Yang Shouzheng Attends Reception

The first round of Sino-Soviet talks between deputy foreign ministers has come to an end. Mr Leonid Ilichev, the Soviet deputy foreign minister, has returned home from Beijing.

Whether or not a second round of talks will be held, and if so when, have not yet been revealed. But it is commonly inferred that Qian Qichen, the Chinese deputy foreign minister, is likely to go to Moscow for a second round of talks before the end of the year.

The Sino-Soviet Friendship Association recently held a reception in Moscow. Chinese Ambassador Yang Shouzheng and other principal officials of the Chinese Embassy in the Soviet Union attneded. This was the first such event in many years and so attracted great attention.

Next Sunday will be the 65th anniversary of the October Revolution. When the time comes, the activities that will take place in the capitals of the two countries and the officials who take part in such activities will become a topic of conversation.

The Main Subject Was Vietnam's Invasion of Kampuchea

What was actually discussed in the first round of Sino-Soviet talks in Beijing? This has not yet been revealed by either side.

China has pointed out in the past that there are three problems hindering the improvement of Sino-Soviet relations. First, the Soviet troops amassed along the Sino-Soviet border (including its troops in Mongolia) are threatening China. Second, the wanton Soviet invasion of Afghanistan is creating disturbances in western Asian areas close to China's border. And third, Soviet support for Vietnam's aggression in Kampuchea is undermining peace in Indochina and threatening Southeast Asia.

A foreign news agency reported yesterday that of the three problems, the issue of Kampuchea was the one primarily discussed in the first round of talks between the two countries.

Things are quite clear now. The situation in Kampuchea is becoming more favorable for the Democratic Kampuchean Government and the Kampuchean people. If the Soviet Union refuses to come to its senses and continues to back Vietnam's outrages there, it is doomed to serious failure.

Vietnam's Two Crushing Defeats in the United Nations

The three anti-Vietnamese forces in Kampuchea formed a coalition government in the summer of this year. This development has foiled Vietnam's cunning scheme of bringing the Heng Samrin clique in Phnom Penh into the United Nations. A veto was used against the proposal by the Vietnamese delegate to refuse to recognize the representative of the Democratic Kampuchean Government. This was Vietnam's first big defeat in the current UN session.

The General Assembly then passed a motion by the ASEAN countries -- by an overwhelming majority of over 100 to 23 votes -- once again urging Vietnam to withdraw its invading troops from Kampuchea. This was Vietnam's second big defeat in the current UN session.

Soviet support for Vietnam's aggression in Kampuchea constitutes part of its armed encirclement of China. Deeds are much more important than words. Now it is time to see how the Soviet Union will prove the sincerity of its wish to improve relations with China.

Viewing the Soviet Proposal Using the Dialectical Method of One Dividing Into Two

China has already taken note of the recent changes in Soviet foreign policy but holds that such changes are still not sufficient.

This viewpoint was expressed recently by Chinese delegate Liang Yufan when he made his remarks on the nuclear disarmament issue in the First Committee of the UN General Assembly. Liang Yufan pointed out in particular that: "It has been noted that the Soviet Union recently promised it would not be the first to use nuclear weapons. It made this declaration at the second special disarmament session of the UN General Assembly. Compared with the previous stand of the Soviet Union of refusing to commit itself on this issue, this is a change." Liang Yufan also pointed out, however, that this promise failed to include commitments not to use or threaten to use nuclear weapons against non-nuclear countries.

It was Brezhnev who first made such a promise on the part of the Soviet Union but at that time China did not make known its position on the issue. Now the Chinese delegate has analyzed the Soviet promise using the dialectical concept of one dividing into two. This is also something new.

CHENG MING ON DENG'S SUPPORT FOR YE JIANYING

HK030352 Hong Kong CHENG MING in Chinese No 61, 1 Nov 82 p 12

[Article by Li Ching: "Why Did Ye Jianying Not Retire to the Second Line?"]

[Text] A Statement Relayed Within the Party

Before the 12th CPC National Congress, it was generally expected that Ye Jianying would join the Central Advisory Commission. But after the congress, Marshal Ye remained a member of the Central Committee, the Political Bureau and the Standing Committee of the Political Bureau and continued to "bend his back to the task until his dying day." Why did he not retire to the second line?

When relaying the results of the congress, the party central organs offered one reason why Marshal Ye did not retire. It was said: "Comrade Ye Jianying will not retreat to the second line, because many comrades in the central leadership have asked him to remain in power." But who actually persuaded Marshal Ye to stay in the leadership?

It was said that Marshal Ye made a request to retire 3 years ago. It was Deng Xiaoping who first came out publicly to persuade him to remain in power. Besides other facts, this can be proved by Document No 6 issued this year by the CPC Central Committee. The document carries a portion of Deng Xiaoping's statement:

"Comrade Ye Jianying is a revolutionary of the older generation. He has prestige, qualifications and a record of service. Though already at a venerable age, he is still full of the fighting will to carry on the revolution. He is one of the indispensible principal leaders of China."

Deng Invited Ye To Remain in the Political Bureau

Before the 12th CPC National Congress, Deng Xiaoping used every means to persuade Ye Jianying to remain in the Political Bureau and its Standing Committee.

Therefore, the affair is very clear. Outwardly, Ye Jianying wanted to retire. But, in fact, Deng Xiaoping did not let him retire.

Why does Deng Xiaoping show such esteem and admiration for Ye Jianying?

Who are those "many comrades in the central leadership" asking Ye to remain in power, apart from Deng Xiaoping? Hu Yaobang, of course, is one of them. And there are other members of the Political Bureau. But a friend of mine in Beijing, who has relations with the military, told me that quite a few high-level cadres in the military support Ye Jianying's "continuing the revolution." They do not want him to retire. Of these military heads, some are in the central leadership, while others certainly are not included. We can examine the name list of the new Central Committee and see that some commanders of military regions were not elected to it.

A Group of People in the Army Support Marshal Ye

Why has a group of old cadres in the army not agreed to Ye Jianying's retirement? There are two important reasons:

1. They have good feeling for Ye Jianying. In their eyes, Ye Jianying is loyal to Mao Zedong. As people in Beijing generally believe, Ye Jianying is somewhat like Zhou Enlai and is unswerving in his loyalty to Mao Zedong, even to a degree of blindness. But people in the army who harbor good feelings for Mao Zedong do not think in this way.

In addition, they believe that Ye Jianying has made important contributions to the revolution and has rendered outstanding service in the struggle to overthrow the "gang of four" and bring the Cultural Revolution to an end. In that palace coup, though it was Unit 8341 led by Wang Dongzing that directly arrested Jiang Qing and her company, the person who deliberately planned this action was Ye Jianying. Hua Guofeng once said: Marshal Ye's wonderful foresight in planning allowed us to round up the whole gang in one fell swoop." This description was not wrong. Many people in the army believe that Marshal Ye rendered the most important service in the struggle to overthrow the gang of four. For this reason, they show greater respect for him.

2. Some elderly cadres in the army should also retire for reasons of age and health. But in order to keep power in their hands (because one can have everything if one has the power), they refuse to retire or take a job as an adviser. If in the central leadership, particularly in the political bureau and its Standing Committee, all people who should retire would retire, these elderly cadres in the army would have no excuse for remaining in power. Therefore, they hope Ye Jianying will remain in a leadership post and function as their example. Then they can justly persist in their continuation of the revolution "until their dying days."

Deng Xiaoping was aware of this state of affairs and in particular the intentions and purposes of some elderly cadres in the army who supported Ye Jianying's continuation of the revolution. Deng did not want to clash over this problem with these people. And because of this, coupled with other factors, he was bent on keeping Ye Jianying in power.

After the conclusion of the 12th CPC National Congress, Ye Jianying did not enter the Central Advisory Commission. Because Deng Xiaoping has publicly supported Ye Jianying, many old cadres in the army show satisfaction with Deng's practice. They also feel relaxed and their minds are at ease.

Seek "Rehabilitation" for Ye Xuanping

Over a period, many newspaper and magazines have reported that Ye Jianying's son, Ye Xuanping, has committed economic crimes. An old friend working in the judicial department once announced Ye Xuanping's "rehabilitation" to this writer. He said: The overseas media have made a mistake. Ye Xuanping is engaged in natural science work. He is an honest man, has never committed crimes and was elected an alternate member of the CPC Central Committee at the 12th CPC Congress.

"Then, are there any members in Marshal Ye's family who have done indecent things?"

Because there are many rumors about the Marshal and his family circulating in Beijing and Guangzhou, this writer cannot be free from doubts.

The friend said with a smile after a pause: "You can guess for yourself. News reports should not put Zhang's hat on Li's head, nor should they put Zhang's hat on his brother's head. Is that right? The person who commits crimes is your brother, but people say that he is your son. Are you glad to hear that?"

At first hearing, I was bit confused by what he said. But after turning it over in my mind, I at last realized something.

WEN WEI PO ON CHANGES IN GUANGZHOU PLA PERSONNEL

HK030836 Hong Kong WEN WEI PO in Chinese 3 Nov 82 p 3

["Random Talk on the News" by Chao Tung: "Adjustments in PLA Guangzhou Military Region"]

[Text] You Taizhong, previous commander of the Chengdu PLA Military Region, has been transferred to the Guangzhou Military PLA Region to replace Wu Kehua.

Wu Kehua was elected as a member of the Central Advisory Commission of the CPC at the 12th CPC Congress, together with Xu Shiyou and Geng Biao.

Campaigning up and down the country, the three veterans made splendid achievements during the war years. In order to fulfill the replacement of the old by the new and make the leading body of the PLA units younger and more professional, they have now been transferred become members of the Central Advisory Commission.

The Guangzhou PLA military region is one of the military regions which has done a good job in mobilizing and placing veteran cadres after they have retired or are on convalescence leave. Since 1981, hundreds of senior leading cadres have retired from their posts in the military region, thus starting the streamlining of organizations a little earlier than the State Council did.

Wang Zhen, member of the CPC Central Committee Political Bureau, has come to Guangzhou to meet cadres at and above the divisional level. Previous leading persons of the Guangzhou PLA Military Region -- including Huang Ronghai, Ye Jianmin, Jiang Lindong, Deng Yifan, Yang Shugeng, Chen Haihan, Xiao Yuanli, Lai Chunfeng and Chu Ying -- have been replaced by new persons.

Who will be the commander of the Chengdu PLA Military Region after You Taizhong is transferred to Guangzhou? As the commanders of the Lanzhou PLA Military Region and Nanjiang Military Region were not elected as members of the CPC Central Committee, will there be any personnel adjustments in both military regions?

As indicated by the speeches delivered by leaders of the CPC Central Committee, the PLA is carrying out adjustments, rectification and reformation. Personnel adjustment is certainly included in the adjustment work. As organizational reform, personnel streamlining and replacement of the old by the new are being carried out on various fronts in the country. They should also be carried out in the PLA without exception. The smooth progress of the adjustments and reformation are evidence of the steady advance in China's political situation along the line of the third plenary session as well as a necessary step taken by the CPC to create a new situation of construction for the four modernizations in the wake of the 12th CPC Congress.

If the PLA wants to modernize itself, implement the streamlining policy, reduce the leading tiers, strengthen the combination of various services of the army and meet the requirements of triphibious warfare in modern times, it is all the more necessary to adopt measures and make readjustments to solve the existing problems of army generals getting older, the military knowledge of army cadres becoming outmoded, and the leading organs of the army growing less simplified. These readjustments are healthy and immensely beneficial to the consolidation of China'a national defense and prolonged stability in China's political situation. Such a reform will certainly be applauded by those who wish the country to become powerful.

As long as the Chinese army becomes powerful, superpowers will find it difficult to violate China's sovereignty and enemies will also find it difficult to invade China.

FBIS DAILY REPORT CONTENTS

China

Vol I No 214 4 November 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

Huang Hua Meets Cameroon, Brazil Envoys A 1
New World Information Order Called for at UN A 1

UNITED STATES

Democrats Score Gains in U.S. Midterm Elections B 1

NORTHEAST ASIA

Economic, Trade Group Returns From DPRK D 1
DPRK, Libya Sign Friendship Treaty 2 Nov D 1
Briefs: Japanese Color TV Project D 1

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

Reportage on U.S. Defense Secretary's Asian Trip E 1
Thailand, Singapore Visits E 1
Indicates ASEAN Support E 1
Talks With Thai Leader E 2
Arrival in Indonesia E 2
Soviet Military Delegation Visits Vietnam E 2

SOUTH ASIA

Ziaul Haq Meeting With Indira Gandhi Discussed F 1
[RENMIN RIBAO 3 Nov]

WESTERN EUROPE

Zhao, UK Trade Group Discuss Economic Ties G 1
Queen Elizabeth II Delivers Policy Speech G 1
RENMIN RIBAO Examines Spanish Election Result G 2
[30 Oct]
Briefs: FRG Trade Union Delegation G 3

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

Lebanese President, U.S. Envoy Continue Talks I 1
Xi Zhongxun Meets Zimbabwe Youth Delegation I 1
Reports on Benin Delegation's PRC Visit I 1
Received by Hu Qili I 1
PRC Leaders at Embassy I 2
Public Health Delegation Visits Kuwait I 2

WESTERN HEMISPHERE

RENMIN RIBAO Discusses Latin America's Debts [29 Oct] J 1
Colombian Senator Feted in Shanghai 18 Oct J 2

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Commentator Urges Peasants To Work, Become Rich [RENMIN RIBAO 2 Nov] K 1
Article on Relying on Masses To Change CPC Style [RENMIN RIBAO 3 Nov] K 2
RENMIN RIBAO on Communists Observing Laws [1 Nov] K 2
RENMIN RIBAO: Improve Intellectuals' Livelihood [2 Nov] K 5
Commentator Stresses Work of College Students [RENMIN RIBAO 2 Nov] K 6
Education Ministry Circular on Graduate Studies K 7
Wang Zhaoguo Elected CYL First Secretary 4 Nov K 8
PLA's Wang Zhan Stresses Cultural Education [RENMIN RIBAO 2 Nov] K 8
Wan Li Stresses Need for Construction Quality K 9
Official on How To Perfect Responsibility System K 9
Economic Responsibility System Promoted K 11
Continued Economic Growth for Jan-Sep Reported K 12
Pan Yao Views Rural Economic Diversification K 13
Chengdu Hosts National Meeting on Contraceptives K 14
State Council Issues Circular on Census Work K 15
National Conference on Drama Opens in Xian K 15

PRC REGIONAL AFFAIRS

NORTHEAST REGION

Heilongjiang's Yan Yichen Speaks on Economy S 1
JILIN RIBAO on Implementing Responsibility System [28 Oct] S 4
Li Desheng Aids in Shenyang Cleanup Work S 5
Briefs: Heilongjiang Dairy Cattle S 5

NORTHWEST REGION

XINHUA: Region To Achieve Development Goal T 1
Fang Yi at Gansu Conference on Resources T 1
Gansu's Feng Jixin on Province's Prospects T 2
Li Xuezhi at Ningxia 12th Congress Study Class [NINGXIA RIBAO 21 Oct] T 3
Qinghai Government Outlines Structural Reforms T 5
Qinghai CPC Committee Holds Plenary Session T 6
Shaanxi's Ma Wenrui Addresses People's Congress T 7
Xinjiang's Wang Enmao at Inauguration Ceremony T 8
Briefs: Xinjiang Nationalities Meeting T 8

PRC MEDIA ON TAIWAN AFFAIRS

GUANGBO JIEMU BAO on Broadcasts to Taiwan [18 Sep] U 1

TAIWAN

PRC Pilot Defector Calls on Taiwan Personages V 1
Urges Others To Defect V 1
ROK Envoy on Fate of PRC MIG-19 Flown to Seoul V 2
Economic Planning Council Reports 1981 Exports V 2

HUANG HUA MEETS CAMEROON, BRAZIL ENVOYS

OW031250 Beijing XINHUA in English 1237 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 3 (XINHUA) -- State Councillor and Foreign Minister Huang Hua met here today on separate occasions with John Nkengong Monie, new ambassador of the United Republic of Cameroon to China, and Italo Zappa, new ambassador of the Federative Republic of Brazil to China.

NEW WORLD INFORMATION ORDER CALLED FOR AT UN

OW300310 Beijing XINHUA in English 0244 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] United Nations, October 29 (XINHUA) -- Third World countries called for establishing a new world information and communication order at the U.N. special political committee meeting.

During the Oct. 22-29 debate of the committee on questions relating to information, Chinese representative Xie Qimei said: The present imbalance between the developed and developing countries in the field of communications was inequitable and was created by a history of imperialist domination.

To close the gap between the North and South, he stressed, it was necessary to establish a new and equitable information order based on the establishment of a new world economic order.

He urged the U.N. Department of Public Information to take action to correct the imbalance in information and communication which was reflected in the working languages of the United Nations.

Representative of the Philippines Luis Moreno-Salcedo complained that the free flow of information had enabled mass media monopolies to dominate the international flow of news, often to the detriment of developing countries, who found themselves vulnerable to the unrelenting one-way traffic of ideas and values.

Representative of Pakistan Zain Noorani said the media of the developed countries did not fully understand the developing countries' urge to exercise their sovereign right to change things to suit their objective conditions and the genius of their people. As a result, their reports were sketchy, their interpretations were faulty and their conclusions were wrong.

Representative of Malaysia S. Subramaniam said news distortion was one problem that should be urgently overcome. Quite often, for example, the media in developed countries stated that the new international economic order was aimed at massive transfer of money and technical know-how from the rich to the poor countries. If facts could not be truthfully stated, how could reports and interpretations of events be fair or realistic? he asked.

Representative of Zambia Maimbo stressed the domination of the electronic media by developed countries should be deplored and corrected. It was disconcerting that some sectors of the mass media in the developed countries focused more, "with remarkable exaggeration", on negative events in the Third World, he added.

Representative of Mexico Oscar Gonzalez said the developing countries were still struggling against vestiges of cultural colonialism. They wanted to control the flow of information which came across their borders.

DEMOCRATS SCORE GAINS IN U.S. MIDTERM ELECTIONS

OW031846 Beijing XINHUA in English 1831 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Text] Washington, November 3 (XINHUA) -- The Democrats have scored significant gains in the House, widening their majority by two dozen seats in Tuesday's U.S. midterm election while Republicans have maintained their control of the Senate.

The election involved all 435 House seats, one-third or 33 Senate seats and 36 of the 50 governorships. While counting is still going on, the Democrats hold a 241-to-192 edge in the House with two vacancies. The Republicans have a 54-to-46 edge in the Senate, and the Democrats have captured 7 new governorships, holding 27 governorships altogether.

According to the latest returns this morning, the Democrats now hold 265 seats in the House and Republicans 166 seats, with two seats yet to be decided. In the Seante, the Republicans keep their 54 seats, with 46 seats going to the Democrats. The trend for governorships will be 36 for Democrats and 14 for Republicans. The economy was the dominant issue in this election. The two parties' candidates all over the country were bogged down in heated debates in the past few months over various economic problems. The Republicans were on the defensive and Democrats on the offensive, although the latter did not produce any alternative policy.

Throughout his first year in office, Republican President Reagan promised to reduce inflation and unemployment simultaneously. He insisted that the three-year 25 percent tax cut he had projected would spark a job-creating boom, while deep cuts in social-spending programs and the tight money policy would whittle down inflation. Although inflation now has come down temporarily, the recession which started July last year has pushed the unemployment rate to the post-war record of 10.1 percent in September, with 11.3 million people out of work.

It is widely held that the combination of Reagan's incompatible policies probably has made the recession longer and deeper than it used to be. Today's election was therefore taken as a referendum on Reagan and his handling of the economy. During the campaign, President Reagan and his supporters contended that these economic problems were inherited and that the Republican administration has taken "bold and decisive actions" to solve them and wanted to "stay the course".

The Democrats maintained that the policies adopted by the administration and supported by the Republicans in Congress are responsible for the depth of the recession. If those policies are continued, the Democrats argued, the nation will face an "economy disaster." They believed that "America needs a change." It was reported that campaigns for 435 House seats and 33 Senate posts this year had cost more than 300 million dollars, making it the most expensive congressional election in history. The total costs of the campaigns were up 25 percent from the roughly 240 million dollars spent two years ago, and 200 million dollars were spent in 1978, the last midterm election year.

Observers here held that with the midterm election being over, President Reagan faces the most difficult years of his Presidency, especially in dealing with the widened Democratic-controlled House. The U.S. NEWS AND WORLD REPORT commented: "A troubled economy, foreign hot spots, uneasy alliances, a balky congress...there are no shortages of postelection problems for the President."

ECONOMIC, TRADE GROUP RETURNS FROM DPRK

OW031231 Beijing XINHUA in English 1214 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 3 (XINHUA) -- A Chinese Government economic and trade delegation led by Chen Muhua, alternate member of the Political Bureau of the Chinese Communist Party Central Committee, state councillor and minister of foreign economic relations and trade, returned here by train this morning after a visit to the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

Meeting them at the station were Kang Shien, state councillor; Zheng Tuobin, vice-minister of foreign economic relations and trade; and Chon Myong-su, Korean ambassador to China.

DPRK, LIBYA SIGN FRIENDSHIP TREATY 2 NOV

OW031744 Beijing XINHUA in English 1504 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Text] Pyongyang, November 3 (XINHUA) -- Korean leader Kim Il-song and Libyan leader Colonel Mu'ammar al-Qadhdhafi signed a treaty of alliance for bilateral cooperation and friendship here yesterday, reported the Korean newspaper NODONG SINMUN.

Signed on the same day by the two leaders was also an agreement on concrete cooperation measures in the fields of economy, science and technology, and culture. The agreement said trade between the two countries will be greatly promoted.

According to the reports, the two governments agreed on the formation of a joint Korean-Libyan transportation company on November 1.

Winding up his five-day visit here, the Libyan leader left Korea yesterday. Seeing him off at the airport were Korean leaders Kim Il-song, O Chin-u and Pak Song-chol.

BRIEFS

JAPANESE COLOR TV PROJECT -- Nanjing, 14 Oct (XINHUA) -- An imported project for assembling and processing integrated circuits for color televisions was completed and officially put into production at the Jiangnan radio equipment plant in Jiangsu's Wuxi Municipality on 14 October. Present at the ceremony were some 240 representatives from both the Chinese and Japanese sides. Among those who made speeches at the ceremony were Wang Bingshi, vice governor of Jiangsu Province; Jiang Zemin, vice minister of electronics industry; and Teruyuki Nishijima, vice president of the Toshiba company of Japan. This imported project, which was started in May 1980, is one of the major projects in our country. If all the integrated circuits produced at this plant are used for assembling color televisions, some 5 million color television sets could be assembled every year. When all the products are used for both color and black and white televisions, 1 million sets of the former and 7 million sets of the latter can be assembled every year. [Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1615 GMT 14 Oct 82 OW]

REPORTAGE ON U.S. DEFENSE SECRETARY'S ASIAN TRIP

Thailand, Singapore Visits

BK031616 Beijing in Cambodian to Kampuchea 1030 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Text] On 2 November Weinberger, U.S. defense secretary, promised in Bangkok that military aid to Thailand would be increased in order to resist the increased Soviet threat to the Asia-Pacific region.

On the morning of 2 November, he flew from Singapore to Bangkok to pay a 2-day visit to Thailand. Thailand is the second of five countries he will be visiting in the Asia-Pacific area. After hosting a 2-hour lunch for Weinberger, Thai Prime Minsiter Prem Tinsulanon told reporters that they had discussed the situation in Southeast Asia. He stated that Weinberger told him that the United States has decided to increase Thailand's credit in 1982 so it can buy military materiel from the United States.

Weinberger visited Singapore from 31 October to 2 November. During this visit, he held talks with Singaporean leaders. A U.S. official stated that the two parties discussed the issue of the increased Soviet threat through Vietnam to Southeast Asia. Weinberger guaranteed to Singapore that the United States will continue to respect and implement the Manila Treaty for the defense of Southeast Asian countries.

Indicates ASEAN Support

OW031236 Beijing XINHUA in English 1200 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Text] Bangkok, November 3 (XINHUA) -- U.S. Defence Secretary Caspar Weinberger told reporters here today that the United States has reassured Thailand it will honor the "Manila Pact" and give "necessary support" to the ASEAN countries.

Weinberger said that during his stay here, he and Thai Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon had discussed the danger of Soviet threat and the threat that might arise from the Vietnamese dry-season offensive in Kampuchea and along the Thai-Kampuchean border.

The U.S. defense secretary said the United States attaches "extreme importance to the Indian Ocean and we want to keep sufficient strength to maintain the basic positions there."

He said the Soviet Union "certainly are taking steps at various parts around the Pacific to improve its military position as it did around the world." The United States will also increase its strength in the area in fact of the increasing Soviet Navy activities, he added.

Weinberger arrived here from Singapore yesterday for a two-day official visit as part of his five-nation tour, which will also take him to Indonesia, Australia and New Zealand. He also held talks with Thai Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila and military leaders.

Speaking at a dinner given by the Thai foreign minister last night, Weinberger said: "We will not reward Vietnamese aggression of any kind. Furthermore, I can assure you that the United States will continue to stand by Thailand."

"Today the Governments of Thailand and the United States are joined in a diplomatic endeavour to restore complete sovereignty and independence to another Southeast Asian nation -- Cambodia (Kampuchea) -- occupied by Vietnam," he added. Weinberger left for Indonesia this morning.

Talks With Thai Leader

OW031754 Beijing XINHUA in English 1506 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Text] Bangkok, November 3 (XINHUA) -- Thai Supreme Commander Gen Saiyut Koetphon said today that Thailand and the United States will strengthen their military cooperation in face of the current Indochinese situation.

Addressing a press conference this morning, Saiyut said the cooperation will strengthen Thailand's self-defence and allow it to cope with breaking events. Such cooperation, he said, will not affect either side in the making of military plans. Thailand needs U.S. help only in military equipment.

Thai Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon discussed yesterday Thai-U.S. military cooperation with visiting U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger who flew in from Singapore for a two-day stop on his 11-day, five-nation Asian and Pacific tour.

Talking about the Soviet presence in Southeast Asia, Mr. Saiyut said Thailand is very much concerned about the Soviet manoeuvres in this region in view of the Vietnamese invasion of Kampuchea.

Arrival in Indonesia

OW031812 Beijing XINHUA in English 1646 3 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 3 (XINHUA) -- United States Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger arrived in Jakarta from Bangkok today on the third leg of his tour of five Asian and Pacific nations, according to reports from Jakarta.

He held separate talks with Indonesian President Suharto and Defense Minister Mohammad Yusuf on possible U.S. military aid to Indonesia and the general situation in Southeast Asia.

It was reported that Indonesian and U.S. experts are already cooperating in a survey of the Makassar and Lombok Straits and Indonesia is buying three U.S. maritime surveillance aircraft.

Weinberger visited Singapore from Oct. 31 to Nov. 2 on the first leg of his 11-day Asia-Pacific tour. During his 36-hour stay in Singapore, he held talks with Singapore Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew and Defense Minister Goh Chok Tong respectively.

During his 24-hour visit to Thailand, the second leg of his tour, Weinberger had a working lunch with Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon, who also is Thailand's defense minister.

After a three-day stay in Jakarta, Weinberger will visit Australia and New Zealand.

SOVIET MILITARY DELEGATION VISITS VIETNAM

OW011256 Beijing XINHUA in English 1238 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 1 (XINHUA) -- A delegation of the political leadership of the Soviet Army and Navy led by Lieutenant General B.P. Utkin visited Vietnam between October 26 and 30, according to a report from Hanoi.

According to the Vietnam news agency, the Soviet delegation visited several Vietnam army units stationed in Vietnam's northern frontline.

Vietnamese Minister for National Defense Van Tien Dung met the Soviet delegation. He said that the Vietnamese and Soviet armies "have always been friends and comrades in their common struggle." Utkin said that this visit would further strengthen "the traditional militant unity and brotherly friendship" between the Soviet and Vietnamese armies.

ZIAUL HAQ MEETING WITH INDIRA GANDI DISCUSSED

HK031153 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 3 Nov 82 p 6

["Short" commentary: "A Gratifying Development"]

[Text] On 1 November, when Pakistan's President Ziaul Haq made a stopover in New Delhi en route to Southeast Asia, he met with Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi. This was the first substantive talk for 10 years to be held by leaders of the two countries on their bilateral relations and problems of regional and global significance.

Both sides were satisfied with the results of the talks. President Ziaul Haq said that the talks would "pave the way for better relations between India and Pakistan." Prime Minister Gandhi maintained that "the talks are beneficial and have yielded great results." This shows that Indian-Pakistani relations have made encouraging progress; this is gratifying.

India and Pakistan are linked by common mountains and rivers. They are the most influential countries in the south Asian subcontinent. That the two countries live in harmony not only accords with the fundamental interests of the peoples of the two countries, but is also beneficial to the peace and stability of the south Asian region. Since the Soviet armed invasion of Afghanistan, both Indian and Pakistani politicians have become conscious of the severe threat this invasion poses to their own countries and the entire south Asian region, and realized the importance of the early normalization of Indian-Pakistani relations. In the last few years, officials from both countries have held several talks. Although these were only exploratory talks, they deepened their mutual understanding. It is hoped that the recent meeting between President Ziaul Haq and Prime Minister Gandhi will create beneficial conditions for speeding up the improvement of Indian-Pakistani relations.

The improvement of Indian-Pakistani relations is not only a common desire of the peoples of India and Pakistan, but also a necessity for the improvement of the present situation in south Asia and the world. Of course, the differences between the two countries cannot be completely ironed out just by holding one or two talks. However, as long as both sides show their good faith and seek common ground while minimizing differences, further improvement of Indian-Pakistani relations can be expected.

ZHAO, UK TRADE GROUP DISCUSS ECONOMIC TIES

OW031620 Beijing XINHUA in English 1549 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 3 (XINHUA) -- Premier Zhao Ziyang said here today that China attaches great importance to developing its trade and economic and technological cooperation with the European Economic Community of which Britain is one of the members.

Meeting a delegation of the Sino-British Trade Council, he said China's policy of opening to the world has remained unchanged, as has her policy of strengthening the economic relations with West European countries.

The Chinese premier said China's economy this year is obviously heading toward a turn for the better. Judging from figures now at hand, the rate of increase of the country's industrial production will be higher than originally expected, and China has planned and launched new construction projects.

He said that China and West European countries have much to do in their cooperation. "We hope that a new situation will emerge in economic and technological cooperation between China and Britain and other West European countries," he said.

On the energy exploitation program in southwest China, Zhao said: "China welcomes foreign enterprises' cooperation. In addition to the exploitation of coal resources, we can also combine the exploitation of hydroelectric and non-ferrous metals resources."

Zhao said China and Britain may try new cooperative ways, for example, in the producing of some equipment. In his conversation with Lord Nelson, leader of the delegation and president of the Sino-British Trade Council, and other British guests, Zhao thanked them for their efforts made in the past years for the development of Sino-British trade.

Lord Nelson said that they wished the volume of trade between the two countries would increase through common efforts. Some British entrepreneurs are very much interested in participating in exploiting energy resources in southwest China, offshore oil exploration and the construction of the planned nuclear power station in Guangdong, he said.

Present on the occasion were Wang Yaoting, chairman of the China Council for the Promotion of International Trade, and British Ambassador to China Sir Percy Cradock.

The delegation of the Sino-British Trade Council arrived here October 31 at the invitation of the China Council for the Promotion of International Trade. The delegation consists of high officials of major British enterprises in coal, petroleum, electricity and other energy resources.

In the past few days, the British guests have called on Chinese counterpart organizations to find out about energy exploitation and utilization in China and discussed cooperative items in these fields.

QUEEN ELIZABETH II DELIVERS POLICY SPEECH

OW031900 Beijing XINHUA in English 1847 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Text] London, November 3 (XINHUA) -- Queen Elizabeth the Second declared here today that the British Government "will continue to seek an improvement in East-West relations."

In her policy speech at the beginning ceremony of the 1982-1983 session of the British Parliament, the queen said Britain will work for balanced and verifiable measures of arms control. It strongly support both the United States proposal for significant reductions in nuclear forces and the other Western proposals on conventional forces, she added.

On the Falkland (Malvinas) Islands, the queen said that an appropriate defence force will be maintained there, and at a later stage the British Government will consider, in consultation with the islanders, their future political development and security.

She reaffirmed Britain's strong commitment to the European Community.

Britain will also work towards just and lasting solutions to other international problems, in particular the problems in the Middle East, Namibia and Kampuchea, she said.

On domestic issues, the queen stated that the Conservative government will maintain the monetary and fiscal policies. Its economic and other policies will be determined by the need to secure a sustainable growth in output, and thus a lasting reduction in the numbers of people out of work. This will require the achievement of a continuing fall in the rate of inflation, she added.

According to her speech, the government will take measures to permit private investment in telecommunications, shipbuilding and some other industries.

The queen also stressed that the government will continue to support the work of the services for the prevention of crime and the maintenance of law and order.

RENMIN RIBAO EXAMINES SPANISH ELECTION RESULT

HK310257 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 30 Oct 82 p 7

[Article by Zhang Qihua [1728 0796 5478]: "Spanish Socialist Workers Party Comes to Power"]

[Text] The results of the Spanish general election of 28 October are already known. The Socialist Workers Party won a great victory, gaining 198 seats, an overall majority in the 350-seat Congress, while the Union of the Democratic Center, which had been the governing party, was trounced. As a result, Felipe Gonzalaz becomes prime minister of Spain's first Socialist Party government since the Civil War. In the political arena of Western Europe, the Spanish Socialist Workers Party is yet another socialist party to take power following the election victories of the Socialists in France and the Pan-Hellenic Socialist Movement in Greece.

This election was fiercely contested. Since King Juan Carlos approved a decree on 27 August dissolving Congress and bringing forward the elections, the more than 10 parties and competing alliances and the several thousand candidates they selected have been locked in a tense tussle, which has mainly been waged between the "left" and rightwing parties. During the election campaign, there was a series of terrorist activities in society, and certain people in the armed forces attempted to plot a military coup and conspired to foil and sabotage the elections. The Socialist Workers Party's victory was not easily won.

The Socialist Workers Party was founded in 1879. It joined the Popular Front government during the 1930's and has consistently been the largest opposition party since political parties were legalized following Franco's death in 1975. It amassed formidable strength in the elections of 1977 and 1979 and also in local elections. It even scored a resounding victory over the ruling party in the elections in Andalusia this year.

Under the leadership of its general secretary, Felipe Gonzalez, the Socialist Workers Party's organization has been relatively well consolidated and it has also gained powerful trade union support. Gonzalez himself also has considerable influence in the Socialist International. The party was consistently leading easily in the opinion polls taken during the election campaign.

Of the other parties contesting the election, the Union of the Democratic Center, which had been in power, was split into numerous factions, and it was never able to recover from its setback after the government crisis. As a result, the voters lost confidence in it. The Conservative Popular Alliance made great headway and scored big gains in the election, but in the end it could not match the Socialist Workers Party. As the Spanish Communist Party has not yet accomplished much, while the centrist and conservative parties are unable to unite, a victory for the Socialist Workers Party became "the trend of the times."

Another important reason for the Socialist Workers Party's triumph was that it "readjusted its strategy" in good time and formulated an election platform "to gain the people's favor." The Spanish economy has been stagnant in recent years. In June this year, the army of unemployed exceeded 2 million, while the annual inflation rate has reached 15 percent and the country's foreign debts total $27 billion.

In view of this, in its election platform the Socialist Workers Party gave priority to "struggling against the economic crisis so as to deal with the awful unemployment problem," and it also clearly advanced the slogan of finding jobs for 800,000 in 4 years. The platform also proposed methods of solving problems such as social inequalities, terrorist activities, incompetent administration and so on. In order to placate the big financial circles, the Socialist Worekrs Party also continually revised its "reform" plans, and announced several times that it would not carry out nationalization and would respect the market economy and protect competition. It also pledged still more support for medium and small enterprises. These measures obviously played an important part in attracting voters of various sectors.

This election was a development of the Spanish political situation of recent years and the result of the extensive demands for speeding up the process of democratization. However, some sectors of public opinion hold that the emergence of a "leftwing" Socialist Workers Party government may sharpen the contradictions between "left" and right political forces. The question of how the new government will handle relations with the army is a very sensitive issue. At the same time, the knotty maladies of the economic recession cannot but be a tremendous burden on the new government.

In foreign policy, the Socialist Workers Party is agreeable to joining the EC. In the past it consistently opposed Spanish membership in NATO, and now it is advocating "gaining more decisionmaking powers" in NATO and "not first undertaking military commitments." It has also declared that the question of whether or not to remain in NATO will be settled by a referendum. There may also be fresh argument on the question of U.S. military bases.

Since Spain occupies an important strategic position, people are naturally concerned over how the new government will pursue its domestic and foreign policies.

BRIEFS

FRG TRADE UNION DELEGATION -- Beijing, November 2 (XINHUA) -- Wang Chonglun, vice-president of the All-China Federation of Trade Unions, met with and feted a delegation of the Railwaymen Trade Union from the Federal Republic of Germany led by its President Ernst Haar here this evening. The delegation arrived here Nov. 1 for a friendly visit at the invitation of the federation of the Railway Workers' Trade Unions of China. [Text] (Hanoi XINHUA in English 1509 GMT 2 Nov 82 OW)

LEBANESE PRESIDENT, U.S. ENVOY CONTINUE TALKS

OW031804 Beijing XINHUA in English 1637 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Text] Beirut, November 3 (XINHUA) -- President Amin al-Jumayyil and U.S. special envoy Morris Draper continued their discussion today to open the Lebanese-Israeli negotiations on the withdrawal of Israeli forces from Lebanon.

For the past few days, Draper has shuttled between Israel and Lebanon to discuss ways of opening negotiations between the two countries. This is the third time he has been in Beirut.

At first, the Lebanese Government was opposed to holding direct talks with Israel and just wanted the talks to be held with the participation of the United States through the commission of the Lebanese-Israeli truce agreement formed in 1948. But Israel insisted that since the commission is no more in existance, a new contacting commission should be set up to deal with political and military affairs.

Now, Lebanon has accepted the Israeli suggestion and agreed to hold direct talks in border areas through such a new commission. Israel, however, insists that both send high ranking officials to lead it and hold talks alternately in Beirut and Jerusalem, in an apparent bid to cover the talks with political and diplomatic color.

Yesterday Draper said he is "optimistic" after talking with the Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhaq Shamir and said the talks "are making progress". Shamir told Draper of Israel's opposition to the participation in the multinational peacekeeping forces by those who have no diplomatic ties with Israel. Draper noted that his country would select other European countries friendly to Israel to join the peacekeeping forces.

XI ZHONGXUN MEETS ZIMBABWE YOUTH DELEGATION

OW021615 Beijing XINHUA in English 1503 GMT 2 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 2 (XINHUA) -- Xi Zhongxun, member of the Political Bureau of the Chinese Communist Party Central Committee, and vice-chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress, met here this afternoon with a youth delegation from Zimbabwe headed by E.K. Kadungure, youth secretary of the Zimbabwe African National Union (Patriotic Front) and minister of youth, sports and recreation.

Xi Zhongxun briefed the Zimbabwean guests on Chinese revolution and the four modernizations.

Present on the occasion were Liu Weiming, acting chairman of the All-China Youth Federation, and Gabriel Phineas, Zimbabwean ambassador to China.

REPORTS ON BENIN DELEGATION'S PRC VISIT

Received by Hu Qili

OW261224 Beijing XINHUA in English 1200 GMT 26 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 26 (XINHUA) -- Hu Qili, member of the Secretariat of the Chinese Communist Party Central Committee, met here this morning with a delegation from the People's Revolutionary Party of Benin led by Alavo Jean Didier, member of the Beninese party Central Committee.

In course of their cordial and friendly conversation, Didier said that the Chinese people had achieved tremendous successes by self-reliance in building their country. "This has made a deep impression on us," he said.

Hu said that after summing up the experiences and lessons of the past few years, policies and principles had been worked out suitable to China's conditions. That was why good results were achieved, he added.

Both expressed the hope that the Chinese Communist Party and the People's Revolutionary Party of Benin would further strengthen their links, exchange experiences and learn from each other.

Present on the occasion were Zhu Liang, deputy head of the International Liaison Department of the C.P.C. Central Committee, and Cosme Deguenon, Beninese ambassador to China.

The Benin delegation arrived in Beijing October 14, after touring the Chinese cities of Changzhou, Wuxi and Shanghai.

PRC Leaders at Embassy

OW271109 Beijing XINHUA in English 0804 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 27 (XINHUA) -- Luo Qingchang, member and deputy secretary general of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress, Gong Dafei, vice-minister of foreign affairs, and Zhu Liang, deputy head of the International Liaison Department of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of China, this morning went to the Benin Embassy here to express their condolences on the passing away of Adjo Boco Ignace, member of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Benin People's Revolutionary Party and chairman of the permanent committee of the Benin National Revolutionary Assembly.

They observed silence before the portrait of Adjo Boco Ignace. A wreath was presented by the N.P.C. Standing Committee.

PUBLIC HEALTH DELEGATION VISITS KUWAIT

OW241540 Beijing XINHUA in English 1520 GMT 24 Oct 82

[Text] Kuwait, October 24 (XINHUA) -- The Chinese public health delegation led by Minister of Public Health Cui Yueli ended its one-week visit to Kuwait today.

During the visit, the main members of the delegation were received by Amir Sheikh Jabir al-Ahmad as-Sabah and Crown Prince and Prime Minister Sheikh Sa'd al-'Abdallah as-Salim as-Sabah on October 19 and 20 respectively. The two Kuwaiti leaders praised China's foreign policy and expressed the hope to strengthen cooperation with China in various fields.

Minister Cui Yueli had talks with Kuwaiti Minister of Public Health 'Abd ar-Rahman 'Abdallah al-'Awadi. They agreed that the two countries would increase medical cooperation especially in the fields of traditional medical sciences and microsurgery.

In the past week, the Chinese delegation visited a number of medical units and well-being facilities of Kuwait.

RENMIN RIBAO DISCUSSES LATIN AMERICA'S DEBTS

HK010822 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 29 Oct 82 p 7

[Article by Xu Yaoming [1776 5069 2494] and Zhu Manting [2612 3341 1656]: "Why Latin American Countries Have Such Great Foreign Debts"]

[Text] The countries of Latin America have fallen into serious economic crisis since last year, and foreign debt has become a more and more conspicuous problem there. According to reports, at present these countries owe a total of $290 billion, and this figure is expected to break through the $300 billion mark by the end of this year.

Heavy foreign debt is a universal problem among the countries of Latin America. From the Rio Grande in the north to Tierra del Fuego in the south, every country, large or small, whether it exports or imports oil, is carrying a heavy burden of debt and is in very great difficulty. Another feature of foreign debt in Latin America is that most of the debts are owed to just a few countries. According to statistics of New York banking circles, 6 of the 13 countries in the world that owe more than $10 billion are in Latin America. Brazil's debt is $87 billion, Mexico's $81 billion, Argentina's $36.6 billion and Venezuela's $35.5 billion. Even more serious, more and more Latin American countries lack the means to repay their debts. Following the foreign debt crisis in Mexico which caused turmoil in international financial circles in September, Argentina, Venezuela and other countries have put forward requests to delay debt repayments they cannot meet on time, or to change short-term loans into long-term ones. Exhaustion of foreign exchange has occurred in Ecuador, Bolivia, Costa Rica, the Dominican Republic, Nicaragua, Guatemala and Cuba.

The financial difficulties of Latin American countries have intensified their social contradictions and also posed a threat to the Western currency and financial system. Should certain debtor countries go bankrupt, the banks concerned in the United States and Western Europe will suffer heavy losses and some of them might even be in danger of collapsing. More and more people in the West are very worried about this.

The dramatic increase in Latin America's foreign debts began in the mid-1970's. In 1975 the total foreign debts of the region totalled no more than $67 billion, but they have shown a net increase of over $200 billion in the past 5 or 6 years. The main reason for this is that, in order to shift the economic crisis onto others, the United States and other leading Western economic powers have instituted a policy of exporting capital and imposing high interest rates, and have also adopted trade protectionist measures.

Latin America is a traditional market for the export of capital by monopoly groups in the United States and elsewhere in the West. There are abundant natural and manpower resources there, and there are great development potentials; however, the economic foundation is weak, and the region is short of the investment needed for development. In particular, in recent years, under the impact of the economic recession in the West, the Latin American countries have suffered serious inflation, their domestic reserves are insufficient, and their investment has been limited. In order to develop their economy, many countries have taken in large sums in foreign investment, while the United States and other Western countries in a state of "stagflation" have seized the chance to step up their export of capital to Latin America. During this time, a new feature of the export of capital to the region by the United States and other Western economic powers is that export of capital in the form of loans has greatly exceeded that in the form of direct investment.

Previously, private investment in Latin America represented the main form of export of monopoly capital to that region.

As the Latin American countries have continually strengthened control over foreign investment in order to protect their national interests, the monopoly groups in the West have resorted more and more to the method of making loans. In 1980 foreign capital loans to Latin America were double the amount of direct foreign investment. Secondly, private credits have exceeded official loans. In 1979, loans borrowed by Latin American countries from private banks accounted for about 75 percent of foreign investment provided that year. The increase in private credits has forced even harsher terms on the Latin American countries both in repayment periods and in interest, and they have had to pay a still higher price. This is a major cause of the soaring foreign debts in Latin America in recent years.

Another cause of the dramatic increase in Latin America's foreign debts is the high-interest policy in Western countries. According to World Bank figures, interest on debts paid by the developing countries doubled between 1978 and 1980, and it increased by almost 60 percent more in 1981. The amount paid by Latin American countries in capital and interest in 1980 accounted for 45 percent of their total export volume. This caused a serious deterioration in their international revenue and expenditures. Due to long periods of colonialist rule and imperialist plunder, the economic structure of the Latin American countries is extremely irrational, and raw materials and primary products account for a major portion of their export trade. Under the impact of the Western economic recession in recent years, there has been a dramatic fall in raw materials prices on the international market, causing heavy losses to the Latin American countries. According to a report issued by the IMF at the beginning of this year, world raw materials prices fell by an average 15 percent last year. There have been further falls this year in the prices of sugar, cocoa, coffee, silver, tin, oil and other raw materials. In addition the Western countries have instituted a trade protectionist policy and restricted imports. The result of all this has been a huge deficit in the Latin American countries' foreign trade.

At present many Latin American countries have adopted emergency measures to deal with the difficult economic situation, including cutting back their budgets and public expenditures, strengthening foreign exchange controls, encouraging exports, restricting imports and so on.

During the general debate in the UN General Assembly this year, the Latin American countries unanimously pointed out that protectionism and the steep fall of raw materials prices had disrupted the export economy of developing countries. They strongly demanded reform of the current unfair international economic structure.

COLOMBIAN SENATOR FETED IN SHANGHAI 18 OCT

OW200544 Shanghai City Service in Mandarin 2300 GMT 18 Oct 82

[Text] Yang Di, vice mayor of Shanghai, met and feted Alvaro Gomez, leader of the Colombian Conservative Party and a senator, and his wife on the evening of 18 October.

COMMENTATOR URGES PEASANTS TO WORK, BECOME RICH

HK031124 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 2 Nov 82 p 1

[Commentator's article: "Let Peasants Work Hard and With Pride To Become Rich"]

[Text] As soon as the party adopted a flexible rural policy, a gratifying scene emerged in the vast countryside: Those who love their work and are good at management and those who are proficient in a particular trade can display their talents to the full. They have emancipated their minds, which were long fettered by "leftist" ideas. They have become more intelligent and industrious. The social wealth created by them has doubled and redoubled. This is the living reality in socialist China's countryside following the adoption of the production responsibility system.

"Will the policy change?"

"Will a label be put on us if we are far too better-off than others?"

Today, some peasants have not yet completely dispelled their worries about the party's current policy. This is not strange at all because this is the aftermath of the prolonged prevalence of the "leftist" errors. Comrade Hu Yaobang announced in his report to the 12th CPC National Congress: In no case must we rashly change the party's rural policy against the will of the masses, still less must we backtrack. These words were so resounding and struck root so deeply in the hearts of the peasants that even "Song, the grape grower" of the Zhaogezhuang production brigade of Gaomi County in Shandong eventually disclosed the "secret" of how he became rich. This shows that publicizing the guidelines of the 12th CPC National Congress extensively and deeply in the countryside is an important task for the whole party. Once these guidelines are known to every household, it will definitely be possible to rouse better the enthusiasm of the 800 million peasants and make them set their minds at ease and work hard and with pride to become rich.

The rural cadres are leaders and organizers of agricultural production. Their deeds are closely related to whether the peasants can set their minds at ease and work hard to become rich. First of all, it is necessary for cadres to give the peasants a free hand in order that the peasants may really set their minds at ease. Giving the peasants a free hand means giving them encouragement and support, in accordance with the party's policy, in all their work which is advantageous to the development of production. At present, the basic-level cadres in some localities do not understand and cannot adapt themselves to both the change from the practice of "sharing food from the same big pot" to the production responsibility system in the countryside and the readjustments of rural production relations. In short, their thinking has not been straightened out. Such cadres certainly cannot give the peasants a free hand and lead them in working hard to become rich. For this reason, it is highly necessary to reeducate the cadres at all levels during the slack farming season this winter and next spring, so that they will really learn to apply the Marxist stand, viewpoint and method in observing and analyzing problems and so that they will not be influenced by irresponsible opinions. Otherwise, how can they lead the masses in advancing along the course charted by the 12th CPC National Congress?

The story of how "Song, the grape grower" became rich through hard work, set his mind at ease and advanced vigorously along the road to prosperity, teaches us a big lesson, that is, we must apply the guidelines of the 12th CPC National Congress in achieving great unity in thinking among the cadres and peasants. In this way, the cadres will really give the peasants a free hand and lead them in becoming rich through hard work, the commune members will really set their minds at ease and work with all-out efforts, those who are good at management and proficient in a particular trade will play a still greater role in developing agricultural production, and all will join efforts to make further advances in the already very good situation in the countryside.

ARTICLE ON RELYING ON MASSES TO CHANGE CPC STYLE

HK040148 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 3 Nov 82 p 3

[Article by Quan Jian [0356 7003], deputy director of the Organization Department of the Beijing Municipal CPC Committee: "Be 'Competent People' in Daring To Rectify Party Style"]

[Text] Some comrades still doubt that we can stop the unhealthy trends existing in our party and that we can properly consolidate our party. If this question had been raised several years ago, it would have been difficult to show much proof to dispel people's worries.

However, since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, the situation has greatly changed. Viewed from the situation in Beijing Municipality, the municipal CPC committee has grasped six major things in rectifying party style and organizations since last year. They are: carrying out discussions on the question of "serving the people and being responsible to the people;" making major efforts to stop the unhealthy trend of extravagant eating and drinking and the practice of doing things through personal connections; leading groups at all levels summing up their work of the whole year in the spirit of carrying out criticism and self-criticism; reelecting cadres of grassroots party branches; and carrying out education on opposing the corrosive influence of capitalist ideas and upholding communist ideology. Remarkable results have been obtained in all the work mentioned above.

Facts have proved that so long as our party's responsible cadres do not sit idly by but work in the down-to-earth manner and persistently grasp the work of building the party we will certainly be able to effect a fundamental change for the better in party style in 5 years.

The work of rectifying party style accords with the will of the party and the people. The CPC Central Committee is very determined to carry it through. In light of the characteristics and needs of the new period, the new party constitution sets even stricter ideological, political and organizational demands on party members and cadres. It also upholds and improves party leadership by means which increase the fighting capacity of party organizations. Thus it has provided a reliable foundation for rectifying party style. We must see that although unhealthy trends exist within our party, purity is the mainstream and the latter is the guiding force of our party. At present, there are over 30,000 grassroots party branches and 650,000 party members in Beijing. The great majority of party leading cadres and party members are good and are striving to do a good job in rectifying party style. If we rely on the broad masses of party members and people, we will certainly be able to effect a fundamental change for the better in party style.

RENMIN RIBAO ON COMMUNISTS OBSERVING LAWS

HK031158 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 1 Nov 82 p 3

[Article by Zhang Youyu [1728 0645 3342]: "A Party Member Must Set an Example in Observing Laws"]

[Text] The new "CPC constitution" adopted at the 12th party congress states that consciously observing state laws is the duty of all party members. In his report to the 12th party congress, Comrade Hu Yaobang stressed: "In particular, party members should be educated and urged to take the lead in observing the constitution and laws." At present, our party is going through a new historical period. It is faced with the new situation of creating new prospects in all fields in socialist modernization and is shouldering the great task of leading the people in building socialist material and spiritual civilization. In order to fulfill this task, we must develop socialist democracy and simplify the socialist legal system. Without the guarantee and support of socialist democracy and the socialist legal system, the building of the socialist material and spiritual civilization will fall through. Therefore, each citizen is required to understand laws and observe them and, in particular, each party member is required to set an example in observing laws.

Viewed from our country's situation at present, the laws in our country are, first of all, a guarantee for socialist democracy. The building of a highly developed socialist democracy must be closely linked with the building of the socialist legal system so that socialist democracy will be systematized and legalized and so that the laws will fully guarantee that all state power belongs to the people and the people will be able to exercise their rights as masters of the country according to laws. Second, the laws in our country are tools for class struggle. In our country, after the exploiting classes have been eliminated as such, class struggle is no longer the principal contradiction in our country's society. However, class struggle will still exist within a certain scope for a long time and it may also intensify under certain conditions. At present, there are still a handful of hostile elements who are bent on carrying out activities in every field to undermine and overthrow the socialist system. It is necessary to use these tools -- the laws -- in waging struggle against and punishing these hostile elements. Moreover, the laws in our country are an important guarantee for socialist construction. In order to ensure that socialist construction will be carried out in an orderly way in our country, great efforts are being made in building the legal system, particularly in formulating some economic rules and regulations which are urgently needed. This is very necessary for our country's socialist construction. All this shows that the formulation of our country's laws is based on the fundamental interests of the people of the whole country, and the necessity of observing them is determined by the fundamental interests of the people of the whole country.

The new party constitution stipulates that "the party must conduct its activities within the limits permitted by the constitution and the laws of the state." This is a principle of great importance. Similar to other political parties and social organizations, party organizations regard the constitution as the fundamental guiding principle for their activities and have the duty to safeguard the sanctity of the constitution and guarantee its enforcement. All party members must observe the constitution and laws and, like other citizens, they are equal before the law and must not have any special rights in addition to the rights provided for by the constitution and laws. In his report to the 12th party congress, Comrade Hu Yaobang said: "It is impermissible for any party organization or member, from the Central Committee down to the grassroots, to act in contravention of the constitution and laws." This means that all party organizations and members, without exception, must observe the laws. Our party is a ruling party and the constitution and laws are formulated by organs of state power under the leadership of the party. How can the ruling party expect other political parties, social organizations, enterprises, institutions and the broad masses of the people to observe the constitution and laws if it does not observe them itself; how can members of the ruling party expect nonparty people to observe the constitution and laws if they do not observe them themselves?

It must be pointed out that party members must not only observe the laws as ordinary people do, but must take the lead in doing so and set an example to others in this respect. The CPC is a revolutionary party, the vanguard of the Chinese working class, the loyal representative of the interests of the Chinese people and the leading force at the core of the socialist cause of China. In leading the people to carry out and fulfill the task of socialist modernization smoothly, the party has to depend on the vanguard and exemplary role played by its members in all their work and social life, including observing the laws, in addition to depending on correct measures taken in political, ideological, organizational and propaganda work and in its line, principles and policies.

Practice has proved that social order is better, work is done more satisfactorily and production is developed faster in places where party members, and party leading cadres in particular, take the lead and play an exemplary role in observing the laws and in bravely struggling against crimes. On the other hand, social order is relatively poor, crimes are more, work is not properly done and production does not make any progress in places where party members, and party leading cadres in particular, do not behave righteously, violate laws and discipline and even have degenerated. Therefore, it is very important to educate and urge party members to take the lead in observing the laws.

In order to help party members take the lead in observing the laws, we must carry out repeated propaganda and education on the legal system among the broad masses of party members, in particular among party cadres at all levels, so that they will acquire systematic knowledge about laws. At present, we cannot say that party members and cadres have a good knowledge about laws. Many of them even know nothing about laws at all. Of course, these comrades are not able to observe the constitution and laws. Much less are they able to play a vanguard and exemplary role in this respect. Therefore, it is necessary to regard education on the legal system as an important part of the party's propaganda and education work, and party schools at all levels should offer courses concerning the constitution and laws. It is an important policy of the CPC Central Committee to make the ranks of cadres more revolutionary, younger in average age, better educated and more professionally competent. Legal knowledge is necessary for cadres in any department, profession or trade. A cadre without knowledge of the law is not well educated.

One of the requirements for a qualified party member is whether he takes the lead in observing laws. Our party is shouldering responsibilities of historic importance in the magnificent undertaking of socialist modernization. The new historical period has set even stricter demands on party members. Each party member must truly meet the requirements stipulated in the party constitution and seriously fulfill his duties as a party member. Observing laws is one of the important duties. The party constitution stipulates that party members must "consciously observe party discipline and the laws of the state." If a party member does not take the lead in observing laws and does not set an example in this respect, he is not a fully qualified party member and is not worthy of the title of a vanguard fighter of the working class. The Central Committee has decided to spend 3 years on overall rectification of the party's work style and organizations by stages and in groups beginning from the second half of next year. This is something of the greatest importance. Through consolidating the party, we must earnestly correct various unhealthy trends, remove the phenomena of party organizations and party members violating laws and effect a fundamental change for the better in the party's work style.

Resolutely safeguarding party discipline and the laws of the state is an important responsibility of each party organization. We must solemnly educate or punish party members who have violated party discipline or the laws of the state and must turn a blind eye to them. Those who should be criticized must be duly criticized, and those who should be punished must be duly punished. With regard to party members who have violated party discipline, we must criticize, educate and even take disciplinary measures against them in accordance with the nature and seriousness of their respective cases and in the spirit of learning from past mistakes to avoid future ones and curing the sickness to save the patient. Besides, we must not shield party members who have violated administrative discipline and the laws of the state. We must let them be punished like nonparty people administratively or according to criminal law. They should not be allowed to remain at large after being punished according to party discipline simply because they are party members. The party constitution stipulates: "Party members who violate the law and administrative discipline shall be subject to administrative disciplinary action or legal action instituted by administrative or judicial organs. Those who have seriously violated criminal law shall be expelled from the party." Some people think that after a party member has violated the law, he should only be punished according to party discipline and need not be subject to legal action. This view is very harmful. The laws of the state are formulated by the people under the party's leadership and they have the same binding force as that of party discipline for party members. The party constitution demands that party members observe party discipline as well as the laws of the state. Once a party member has violated the laws of the state, he has also violated party discipline. His being subject to administrative disciplinary action or punishment according to criminal law is in line with enforcing party discipline. We must never replace administrative disciplinary action or punishment according to criminal law with party disciplinary action.

This means that we must take party disciplinary measures against party members who have committed crimes and, at the same time, administrative or judicial organs must also punish them according to administrative discipline or laws. They must be duly tried and sentenced. Only in this way can we ensure equality of all citizens before the law, safeguard the authority of the socialist legal system and enjoy the trust of the people.

Some party members think that a party member only has to implement the party's principles and policies and that observing laws is not important. This view is entirely wrong because ithas set the party's principles and policies against the laws of the state. The party's principles and policies represent the will and interests of the people, and the laws of the state concretize the party's principles and policies and put them in words. Observing laws means implementing the party's principles and policies, and violating laws means sabotaging the party's principles and policies. We must never tolerate violation of the laws of the state under the pretext of implementing the party's principles and policies. Of course, laws are not something unchangeable. With changes in objective conditions, the party's principles and policies change and the laws of the state also need to be revised, amended and even abrogated. However, we must observe them as long as they have not been revised, amended or abrogated by organs of state power according to legal procedures.

The question at present is that there are quite a number of party members, including responsible cadres, who do not have a clear understanding of the importance of observing laws. The phenomenon of ignoring laws still exists and existing laws have not been fully enforced. We must be determined to change this situation. As a party member, in particular a party cadre, playing a vanguard and exemplary role in observing laws is the key to changing this situation.

RENMIN RIBAO: IMPROVE INTELLECTUAL'S LIVELIHOOD

HK040847 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 2 Nov 82 p 3

[Commentator's article: "Do Our Best To Help Intellectuals Relieve Themselves of 'Future Worries'"]

[Text] In this report from Fuzhou Municipality, we can see that the municipal CPC committee and government have tried their best to help the intellectuals working on the first front of teaching and scientific research to relieve themselves of "future worries." Accordingly, some "serious and longstanding problems" which puzzled the vast number of intellectuals and the leading comrades of institutes of higher learning have already been solved, and the solutions for some others have been found. As the latest in a series of pieces of good news which has recently kept pouring in from various places since the party's 12th congress, this news is really inspiring and enlightening.

Most intellectuals are concentrated in institutes of higher learning and other units such as scientific research centers, designing institutes and medical establishments. Their major tasks are to engage in teaching, scientific research, designing, medical service, and other activities according to the state plan, cultivate senior specialists of good character and scholarship for the country, and provide results of scientific research so as to serve the four modernizations. For a long period of time, these units have had to be involved in miscellaneous affairs to look after day-to-day matters, including food supply, childcare services, education and employment for the children of their staff and so on, which should really be undertaken by society. The solution to these problems which constantly arouse "future worries" is far beyond the capacity of the intellectuals, and involving them in these affairs will inevitably distract them from fulfilling their major tasks. Because of the numerous longstanding problems, the party and administrative leading comrades of these units are now facing heavier and heavier pressures and burdens.

The responsible comrades of the Fuzhou Municipal CPC Committee and government discovered the problems in this field when reviewing their work concerning intellectuals. They have neither shirked their duty nor tried to turn each teaching and scientific research unit into a "self-sufficient" "small society." Instead, they have tried hard to persuade and encourage the comrades of commercial, communications, postal and telecommunications, public security and other departments throughout the city to proceed from the overall situation, take up their own responsibility, make concerted efforts and vigorously take the initiative in providing institutes of higher learning with logistics services under the unified leadership of the municipal CPC committee and government. Their experience deserves popularization and emulation.

Back in the early period of the founding of the People's Republic, Comrade Chen Yun pointed out: "We must trust our technical personnel, ensure their basic material needs and free them from family burdens." In 1978, at the national conference on science, Comrade Deng Xiaoping, in his turn, pledged to be the "director of the logistics department" for scientists, and fully expressed the concern of the party and the state for the scientific and technological development and for intellectuals. In the last few years, in order to carry out the policy toward intellectuals and to ease and relieve their "future worries," the party's Central Committee, various local units and various departments have already made tremendous efforts. However, it must be acknowledged as well that some problems which can be solved through effort remain unsolved so far. We hope that more party and government leading comrades can follow the good example of the Fuzhou Municipal CPC Committee and government, exert unified leadership, make comprehensive arrangements, push the departments in charge of the functions concerned to take their own responsibility and make concerted efforts. We hope they can properly carry out the work concerning intellectuals, ease and relieve the "future worries" of intellectuals, especially middle-aged intellectuals, step by step and in a planned way, and then further find a way of gradually shifting on to society the duty of providing teaching, scientific research and other units with logistics service. In this way, the current nationwide review of thework concerning intellectuals is bound to achieve greater success.

COMMENTATOR STRESSES WORK OF COLLEGE STUDENTS

HK040325 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 2 Nov 82 p 1

[Commentator's article: "Everyone Should Strive To Become a Fine University Student in the New Period"]

[Text] During the past few months, a sonorous name and a lofty image -- Zhang Hua -- has been praised and the broad ranks of young comrades have been learning from him. The Fourth PLA Medical College where Zhang Hua studied before his death, then some of our higher education institutions and then all the higher education circles and all the PLA Logistic Departments all began to develop the activities of learning from Zhang Hua. This has fully proved that as an exemplary person, Zhang Hua attracts the great admiration of the youths of today.

What is the major spiritual wealth that Comrade Zhang Hua left us? It is the lofty ideal of communism, the noble socialist morality, the spirit of untiringly studying science and culture and the highly conscious sense of organization and discipline. This is the socialist spiritual civilization that the college students of the new period and our younger generation must possess. As was well said by Zhang Hua: "We should not only look like college students in our appearance, but it is more important for us to live up to the spiritual, moral and cultural standard of college students." In order to become qualified and excellent college students, we should learn from Comrade Zhang Hua and strive, in accordance with the demands raised by the 12th congress, to train ourselves into people with lofty ideals and morality, high cultural education and a strong sense of discipline.

Our college students are those youths who have received the largest amount of education and are relatively better educated. They constitute a reserve force for the creation of an overall new situation in our socialist modernization. The mental attitude of our college students will affect and determine, to a certain extent, the future features of our young generation and our state. Each of our college students should think about his historical duties and compare himself with Zhang Hua, the example. Thus the selfish view of "the value of life lies in the realization of one's indidivuality" must be eliminated and so should the mental attitude that regards admission into a higher education institution as the acquirement of an "iron bowl" with which someone can drift along without making any efforts.

EDUCATION MINISTRY CIRCULAR ON GRADUATE STUDIES

OW030735 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 0030 GMT 31 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, 31 Oct (XINHUA) -- The Education Ministry recently decided to enroll 14,000 post-graduates as candidates for master's degrees and another 1,000 post-graduates as probationers to study abroad in 1983. These enrollment tasks will be conducted simultaneously. In this connection, the ministry has issued a notice, urging the departments concerned in all localities to make all-round preparations for the post-graduate enrollment work in 1983.

The Education Ministry's "Notice Concerning the Enrollment of Post-Graduates as Candidates for Master's Degrees and Post-Graduates as Probationers To Study Abroad in 1983" says: Applications for enrollment must be filed between 10 and 14 December 1982 and examinations taken from 26 to 28 February 1983.

The "notice" points out: All applicants must adhere to the four fundamental principles, have a good moral character and health and the determination to study diligently for socialist modernization and scale new heights in science, abide by law and discipline, and be graduates of regular colleges or universities, or have the same educational level, and under 35 years of age (born after 1 September 1948). Applicants for post-graduate candidates for master's degrees who are graduating in 1983 must also have outstanding academic records.

Regular college students who are graduating in 1983 are not eligible for the application. Those who have completed the college credits or required courses with outstanding records and can graduate with a bachelor's degree in 1983 may file the application if recommended by the school they are attending.

An employee can file the application only with the approval from his employer. In filing the application form, an applicant can apply for only one subject (speciality) or for two institutions conducting similar research. The applicants will have to take a test in a foreign language designated by the enrolling unit, as well as in one speciality, whose title should be chosen at the time of application in the case that there is a choice of several subjects. An applicant who is now employed will be given 2 to 3 weeks time off with pay to prepare for the examinations upon receipt of the examination permit. Other applicants will not be given any time off.

The "notice" says: A few national key universities and research institutions will give the examinations for post-graduates as probationers to study abroad in 1983. The test subjects and questions should be the same as those given to the applicants for post-graduate candidates for master's degrees in these key universities and institutions. However, applicants for graduate study abroad will need higher scores in foreign language.

The "notice" stresses: All departments concerned must do good enrollment work in accordance with the principles of developing young people morally, intellectually and physically and of selecting the best in order to put quality above quantity. It is also necessary to display the party's fine tradition and style and oppose and resist the evil practices of favoritism and "going through the back door."

WANG ZHAOGUO ELECTED CYL FIRST SECRETARY 4 NOV

HK041102 Beijing ZHONGGUO XINWEN SHE in Chinese 0959 GMT 4 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, 4 Nov (ZHONGGUO XINWEN SHE) -- The 4th Plenary Session of the 10th CYL Central Committee, which is currently being held in Beijing, today elected 41-year-old Wang Zhaoguo first secretary of the CYL Central Committee.

Wang Zhaoguo's native place is Hebei's Fengren County. He graduated from the department of mechanics of Harbin Industrial University in 1966. When he worked at Hubei's No 2 motor vehicle plant, he was successively appointed the plant's CYL committee secretary, the plant's political department deputy director and the plant's deputy head. During his inspection tour in Hubei, CPC Central Committee Vice Chairman Deng Xiaoping specially praised his ability. Wang Zhaoguo was elected CPC Central Committee member at the 12th national party congress held in September this year.

PLA'S WANG ZHAN STRESSES CULTURAL EDUCATION

HK031206 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 2 Nov 82 p 1

[Report by Hu Cheng [5170 6134] and Sun Feng [1327 7685]: "Wang Zhan, Deputy Political Commissar of the Wuhan Military Region, Stresses Need for PLA Units To Attach Major Importance to Cultrual Construction"]

[Text] At a recent meeting of the CPC Committee of the Wuhan PLA units to study and implement the 12th congress documents, Wang Zhan, deputy political commissar of the units, stressed that the units should pay attention to cultural construction.

This year Wang Zhan went to the companies to investigate the situation and has collected some firsthand data. He said that in many of our army units people now pay relatively great attention only to ideological construction in building the socialist spiritual civilization and neglect cultural construction. The main reasons that have given rise to this are: 1) Some people fail to make clear the relationships between cultural study, the heightening of the ideological consciousness and the raising of the professional technical level. They think that without cultural education, a man can still be a hero; 2) The prejudice of discriminating against intellectuals and looking down upon cultural education that has been caused by the influence of "leftism" has not yet been eliminated. Some people are even proud that they are uneducated people. In evaluating soldiers in some companies, people even mock instead of praising those soldiers who devote all their spare time to cultural study. They satirically call those soldiers "university fanatics" or "people who seek fame." They never attach any importance to the typical people who have become talented through self-study; and 3) The methods of studying culture and the textbooks are not suited to the development of the troops or to the need of cadres and soldiers when they leave and look for other jobs.

Comrade Wang Zhan said that we should not fail to see that the two aspects of the construction of the socialist spiritual civilization -- culture and ideology -- interact. It is universally acknowledged that our troops are of excellent political quality and high ideological consciousness. However, this will never provide us with a ground for neglecting cultural education. In order to implement the spirit of the 12th party congress, we should further eliminate the influence of "leftism" and make our cadres and fighters actually realize that cultural study is one of the indispensable conditions for the revolutionalization, modernization and regularization of our army and is also an important measure for making our cadres revolutionary, better educated and professionally competent. We should proceed from reality and find through research the measures satisfactorily to carry out cultural education and make especially great efforts to explore for new ways to raise the educational level of our cadres.

WAN LI STRESSES NEED FOR CONSTRUCTION QUALITY

OW040457 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1456 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Excerpts] Beijing, 3 Nov (XINHUA) -- The national meeting of representatives of advanced construction enterprises, collectives and individuals today conferred the title of "national advanced construction enterprise" and "advanced collective of national construction enterprise" on 32 construction enterprises and 38 collectives respectively, it also conferred the honor title of "national capital construction model worker" on 61 advanced individuals and presented them with medals, citations and model worker certificates.

Wan Li, vice premier of the State Council; and Ni Zhifu, chairman of the All-China Federation of Trade Unions; attended today's award ceremony and spoke. Wan Li said: The broad masses of workers and staff members on the capital construction front have made tremendous contributions to the state and the people, and, on behalf of the CPC Central Committee and the State Council, I extend warm congratulations to you on your achievements. He said: In carrying out capital construction, we must emphasize not only speed but work quality. Capital construction projects, which have to last for generations, call for good quality above all else. We should abide by this principle. If the engineering quality is inferior, it will adversely affect production and utilization of projects. Therefore, we must, from survey and design to construction, adhere to high standards and impose strict demands. We should not accept poorly built projects; we should not let those construction units, whose construction quality has failed to meet the state standards over a long period, undertake construction assignments.

Wan Li said: The broad masses of workers and staff members on the capital construction front, who work in the open air year in and year out, are living a hard life as far as working and living conditions are concerned. Our leading members at all levels should be actively concerned with their livelihood and earnestly solve problems relating to housing, education and employment for their sons and daughters, and culture and recreation, so that the workers and staff members will keep up their good morale and make still greater contributions in building a material and spiritual civilization. Leading members at all levels should encourage and support the advanced; advanced units and model workers, on the other hand, should continue to study and improve themselves.

Ni Zhifu said: Our party and government have always attached importance to the glorious role played by model workers as a mainstay and a link. In order to fulfill the program of struggle drawn up by the 12th CPC National Congress, model workers must be models in studying and implementing the guidelines of the 12th CPC National Congress, vanguards in creating a new situation for socialist modernization and leaders in building socialist spiritual civilization.

Representatives attending today's meeting put forward a proposal to workers and staff members of construction enterprises throughout the country calling on them to do a good job in building socialist civilization, to launch activities to ensure all-round excellent projects and promote technical renovation, to develop an enthusiastic emulation to compare, learn from, catch up with, help and overtake others, and to make efforts in creating a new situation for capital construction which can be accomplished with less time, better quality, less investment and greater results.

OFFICIAL ON HOW TO PERFECT RESPONSIBILITY SYSTEM

OW032315 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1539 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, 23 Oct (XINHUA) -- A responsible person of the State Commission for Restructuring the Economic System pointed out today: To perfect the economic responsibility system in industrial enterprises, it is currently imperative to pay attention to solving four problems.

The responsible person spoke at a discussion meeting on the economic responsibility system in some provinces and municipalities. First he fully affirmed the remarkable results of various industrial enterprises in implementing the economic responsibility system. At the same time, he pointed out that, as the system has been implemented for only a short period, the development is uneven, and there are some problems in actual work remaining to be solved. Therefore, it is necessary to conscientiously sum up experiences and adopt effective measures to further improve the economic responsibility system.

First, it is necessary to handle the relationship between the leading role of the planned economy and the supplementary role of market regulations properly. In implementing the economic responsibility system, enterprises should strengthen planning, be responsible in fulfilling state plans and develop economic activities according to state plans. Fulfilling state plans in an all-round way is the primary economic responsibility of enterprises, and the precondition for enterprises to retain a percentage of the profit. Responsible departments at various levels should set strict demands and maintain strict checks in this regard. At the same time, it is also necessary to allow the enterprises to exercise their powers in planning, and not to control them too rigidly because of the stress on fulfilling state plans. Enterprises should have varying degrees of power in planning and a certain degree of power to market their own products. This power to market one's own products is a condition for bringing the regulatory role of the market into play under the guidance of state plans. Except for products specifically excluded by the state from marketing by enterprises, a certain percentage of all other products, including products purchased and marketed exclusively by the state, should be permitted to be marketed by the enterprises themselves.

Second, it is necessary to implement an economic responsibility system in enterprises, focused on raising economic results. 1) It is necessary to establish a system of responsibility for workshops, work shifts and teams, and individual workers and staff members. To implement such a responsibility system, it is necessary to proceed from the actual conditions and grasp the key links having a bearing on the economic results of each enterprise. 2) It is necessary to control the total amount of bonuses, to implement the principle of to each according to his work, and to overcome egalitarianism. It is necessary to divide bonuses into different grades according to differences in types of work, importance of jobs, working conditions and labor intensity, to implement the policy of rewarding the diligent workers and punishing the lazy ones.

Third, it is necessary to handle correctly the relationship between interests of the enterprises and those of the state. It is imperative to uphold the principle that the state should get the larger share of revenues. Meanwhile, efforts should be made to tap internal potentials to enable the enterprises and workers and staff members to earn more. The localities and departments should adopt different ways to distribute profits in different types of trades and enterprises, according to local conditions. The percentage of profits retained should be appropriately reduced for enterprises which are poorly managed and whose economic returns are low due to subjective causes. The percentage can be properly increased for enterprises which have strong leading bodies, are well managed and produce good economic results. At present, some enterprises are violating financial and economic discipline, withholding profits and freely boosting production costs. Resolute efforts should be made to rectify this practice.

Fourth, it is necessary to combine improvement of the economic responsibility system with technological advancement of the enterprises. At present, many enterprises are backward in technology and equipment, with high energy consumption, poor product quality and low economic returns, and are urgently in need of technological reform. We should encourage enterprises to use their limited funds for technical transformation and equipment upgrading and guide them to coordinate the use of funds scattered among individual enterprises, to properly concentrate these funds and use them for major technical transformation projects.

Industrial departments in various places should do a good job in drawing up technical transformation plans for the different trades and carry out technical transformation of trades and enterprises by stages and groups in a planned way and with priorities. It is also necessary to implement the policy of high quality and high price regarding new products.

ECONOMIC RESPONSIBILITY SYSTEM PROMOTED

OW032333 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1550 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, 23 Oct (XINHUA) -- According to the report of a XINHUA correspondent, the forum on the implementation of the economic responsibility system in some provincial and municipal industrial enterprises ended on 23 October. The reference material provided by this forum indicates that, for the past year and more, the economic responsibility system in various industrial enterprises in China has been vigorously promoted, with new contents and forms added. Particularly gratifying is the emergence of a typical example, such as the Shoudu Iron and Steel Company.

The economic responsibility system in industrial enterprises has been gradually developed, following the expansion of the enterprises' power of decisionmaking since the convocation of the 3rd Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee. It is a production management system aimed at raising social economic results under the guidance of the state plans and at closely integrating one's responsibility, authority and benefits. Now, more than 80 percent of the industrial enterprises in the country have implemented this economic responsibility system.

Since the beginning of this year, the State Economic Commission has sponsored four study classes to learn from the experience of the Shoudu Iron and Steel Company, and fostered a group of "seed factories" and key personnel. This has played a significant role in continuously improving and developing the economic responsibility system. After the emergence of the Shoudu Iron and Steel Company, another group of advanced departments and enterprises in implementing the economic responsibility system well has appeared. The representatives attending the forum on the implementation of the economic responsibility system in industrial enterprises believe that China has witnessed the following new developments in implementing the industrial economic responsibility system:

-- Persistently combining the enterprise's responsibility, authority and benefits, and placing its responsibility to the state above all. At first, the economic responsibility system is implemented with emphasis on the fulfillment of the enterprise's norm in turning over its profits to higher authorities. Some people said: It is a "system of payments plus rewards." Later on, the Shoudu Iron and Steel Company and other units said that we must, first of all, emphasize an enterprise's responsibility and that we must not give top priority to its authority and benefits. This should be the correct guiding ideology in implementing the economic responsibility system. Many factories have thus regarded their responsibilities to the state as the core of the economic responsibility system and determined their authority and benefits in proportion to their responsibilities. The larger their responsibilities are, the greater their authority and benefits will be. This has enhanced the sense of responsibility of the enterprises and workers in fulfilling the state plans and helping the state receive more revenues.

-- Implementing the economic responsibility system in all round manner and at all levels. Many enterprises have, item by item, broken down their economic responsibilities to the state, and ensured that each workshop, administrative or technical office, group or shift and individual fulfill its own responsibility. They have made efforts to regard an enterprise's responsibility as a norm and assess its achievements on the basis of available data. The responsibile bureaus and financial departments in some localities have made a comprehensive assessment of the enterprises' norms in production quantity and quality, energy and raw material consumption, production costs and profits.

This has played a significant role in helping an enterprise strenghen its basic work and improve its management. Since the beginning of this year, Wuxi Municipality in Jiangsu has made an overall assessment of the performances of the machine-building bureau and seven other bureaus in the city. If a bureau fails to fulfill a technical or economic norm, the share of the profits it can retain for its own use will be proportionally reduced.

-- Implementing flexibly and, in various forms, the policy of leaving a share of the profits with some enterprises. We must not demand uniformity in everything. In order to bring into full play the enthusiasm of all types of enterprises and correctly handle the relations between the state and the enterprises, some areas have adopted a different form in profit distribution on the basis of each enterprise's task in technical transformation and the market and production situation.

Some areas have adopted the form under which the financial department lets the responsible bureau retain a share of total profits, while the bureau holds the enterprises responsible for their profits. Good results have been attained by combining the two forms and making up each other's deficiencies.

-- Continuously expanding the scope in implementing the economic responsibility system. Some enterprises have helped not only the workers on the production line but also auxiliary workers, technicians, administrators and even leading cadres to implement the economic responsibility system, and gradually set up the standards for making assessments and meting out rewards and penalties. Weifang Municipality and some other localities in Shandong Province have begun to set up the economic responsibility system in various responsible bureaus and even at the municipal level. In this way, the people, both at the higher and lower level, can join their efforts in strengthening every link to improve economic results.

CONTINUED ECONOMIC GROWTH FOR JAN-SEP REPORTED

HK040840 Beijing ZHONGGUO XINWEN SHE in Chinese 1303 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, 3 Nov (ZHONGGUO XINWEN SHE) -- The whole economy of China has continued to develop in a steady and healthy manner in the first 9 months of this year. This is conspicuously manifested in: the continued growth of industrial and agricultural production, further expansion of commodity circulation, faster pickup of capital construction, balance of financial and credit revenue and expenditures and a basic stability of market prices. The situation has rarely been so good since the founding of New China.

Quoting from material supplied by the State Economic Commission, JINGJI CANKAO said today: Despite the rather serious natural disasters suffered by some areas, rural areas throughout the country have still obtained a relatively good harvest this year. The output of 243.1 billion jin in summer grain and early season rice represents an increase of 16 billion jin over last year's output, of which the increase in summer grain is 11.8 billion jin and the increase in early season rice is 4.2 billion jin. With the exception of a few provinces such as Liaoning, Jilin and Heilongjiang, which have reduced or equalled production, many areas will increase their autumn grain output. Total grain output for the whole year will surpass the highest historical level recorded in 1979 of 664.2 billion jin.

The area planted to cash crops this year was increased by about 20 million mu compared with last year, and the output of cotton, oil-bearing crops and cured tobacco has greatly increased, reaching the highest level since the founding of the People's Republic. Total cotton output has increased by more than 10 percent over the previous year.

The accumulative total of industrial output value from January to September reached 409.2 billion yuan. This represents an increase of 8.6 percent when compared with the corresponding period last year, and the net increase in output value is 32.6 billion yuan, in which the growth rate of 9.8 percent in heavy industry has surpassed the growth rate of 7.5 percent in light industry.

In heavy industrial production, the accumulative total and production level have already surpassed the highest recorded level of the corresponding period. In light industrial production, the output of some durable consumer goods such as bicycles, sewing machines, TV sets, tape recorders, household washing machines and refrigerators will continue to increase greatly. Production in the first 9 months of this year increased from 24 percent to 170 percent when compared with the corresponding period last year.

In capital construction, the accumulative total of the money invested in capital construction of units owned by the whole people from January to September reached 30.4 billion yuan, or 80 percent of the target for the whole year assigned by the state at the beginning of the year. This represents an increase of 6.3 billion yuan and a growth of 26.1 percent when compared with the corresponding period last year.

The general financial revenue and expenditure condition is good. Revenues and expenditures have produced a surplus balance of 2.24 billion yuan. Savings and deposits have greatly increased, and the savings and deposits of urban and rural people reached 62.8 billion yuan by the end of September. This shows an increase of 10.42 billion yuan since the beginning of the year.

As a result of an abundance of commodity sources and adequate supply, market management has been strengthened. Since this year, the general index of market prices (including state list prices, negotiated prices and country fair trading prices) has basically maintained the price level evident at the closing of last year.

PAN YAO VIEWS RURAL ECONOMIC DIVERSIFICATION

OW300628 Beijing XINHUA in English 1610 GMT 26 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, October 26 (XINHUA) -- Pan Yao, vice-minister of commerce, today outlined four areas of improved cooperation between supply and marketing cooperatives and peasants in diversifying China's rural economy.

He was speaking at a three-week national conference on commerical work that opened last week in Beijing.

He said the peasants have asked three things of the cooperatives. The first is market information, the second is instruction in new production techniques and access to breeding stocks and fine seed strains, and the third is the prompt purchase and sales of their products, ensuring them a reasonable income.

To meet these demands, Pan Yao said, the commerical organizations must do four things.

First, they must establish a system for controlling economic information about agricultural and sideline products so as to supply timely information to peasants and guide their production.

Second, they must train agrotechnicians and bring scientific research units under the Ministry of Commerce into the agricultural field to popularize science and technology. He said a science and technology association in Lianxian County in Guangdong Province last year lectured to 10,000 peasants while the provincial federation of supply and marketing cooperatives in Hebei now circulates 180,000 copies of a popular science journal.

Third, the supply and marketing cooperatives should provide funds to collectives and individuals for their sideline production. The cooperatives, since 1964, have issued more than 500 million yuan to rural people's communes and production brigades.

Fourth, they must form joint ventures with peasants for sideline production.

Sichuan Province's Dazhu County supply and marketing cooperative has established joint ventures both in distribution and production, first with collectives, then with individuals. The projects have been started with more than 250 production teams, 99 percent of those in the county, and more than 360 families for production or oranges, mushrooms and draught cattle.

Jiangsu Province's Dongtai County supply and marketing cooperative, between 1981 and the first half of 1982, established joint ventures with 108 production teams. The projects have an investment of 523,000 yuan, 77.4 percent put up by the cooperative. Production value this year may be 1.48 million yuan with a profit of more than 600,000 yuan, Pan Yao said.

Practice has proved, the vice-minister said, such ventures are an effective guide to planning agriculture and improvement of relations between peasants and commercial organizations.

The vice-minister said total receipts nationwide from crops other than grain, and sideline occupations were 92,200 million yuan, 53.6 percent of the total value of agricutural products, an increase of 31.1 percent from 1978.

CHENGDU HOSTS NATIONAL MEETING ON CONTRACEPTIVES

HK020244 Chengdu Sichuan Provincial Service in Mandarin 2300 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] A National conference on contraceptive drugs and devices opened in Chengdu on 1 November. Some 160 persons are attending the meeting, including responsible comrades of provincial, municipal and autonomous regional planned parenthood departments, pharmaceuticals management departments, and contraceptive drug and device production and purchasing units, together with comrades of State Council departments and commissions concerned. (Ji Zongquan), vice chairman of the State Family Planning Commission, and Li Xiaodong, deputy director of the State Pharmaceutical Administration, attended and spoke.

On behalf of the provincial government, (Zhou Hang), deputy director of the Sichuan Provincial Culture and Education Office, extended greetings to all the representatives.

Guided by the 12th party congress spirit, this meeting will further implement the central authorities' instructions on planned parenthood work and look into improving the quality of contraceptive drugs and devices and the standard of their management. It will sum up the production, supply and issue of these drugs and devices in the past year, exchange experiences, arrange the plans for next year, sign contracts, analyse the new conditions and problems now emerging, and discuss and study how to improve further the work in the future, the better to meet the needs of unfolding planned parenthood.

The conference has been jointly convened by the State Family Planning Commission, the State Pharmaceutical Administration and the Ministry of Chemical Industry.

STATE COUNCIL ISSUES CIRCULAR ON CENSUS WORK

OW301138 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 0010 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Excerpts] Beijing, 28 Oct (XINHUA) -- The State Council recently issued a circular calling for a good job in completing the latest phase work of the third national census.

The circular noted that the registration and manual tabulation phase in the work of the third national census has been successfully completed. The State Statistical Bureau has released the "Communique on Major Population Figures in the 1982 Census."

The State Council went on to note in the circular that the publication of the communique does not mean the census work has been concluded. There are still many items in the registration form to be tabulated, including age, profession, number of workers, situation of those not holding jobs, marital status, births, and so on. The cross reference groupings [jiao cha fen zu 0074 0643 0433 4309] of the various items and the computation of the basic, analytical data have yet to be done. All of these will have to be completed in the next phase by computer. Therefore, all provincial, municipal and autonomous regional people's governments must continue to strengthen their leadership to ensure a high quality, timely completion of the latter phase of census work.

In conclusion, the circular said that, since the latter phase work will be carried out mainly at the provincial level, it is necessary to practically strengthen the power of the provincial level census taking organizations. Operational strength should be augmented to the authorized extent if there is any shortage in a provincial level census office or an electronic computer center.

NATIONAL CONFERENCE ON DRAMA OPENS IN XIAN

OW031310 Beijing XINHUA in English 1218 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Text] Xian, November 3 (XINHUA) -- A national conference called to discuss problems and future plans for the Chinese theater, sponsored by the Ministry of Culture, opened here yesterday with over 80 prominent dramatists, critics and cultural department directors participating.

We Xue, leader of the ministry's art commission, said the theater had made important contributions during the past four years to the country's efforts to bring about historic changes.

"It is because our dramatists have the courage to deal with such questions raised by the times and the people," he said. "Whether our theater lives up to the expectations of the country's modernization drive depends on its capacity to help build socialist civilization.

Lu Peng, adviser to the ministry's art bureau, told the meeting that in 1981, 4,000 full length plays and short plays had been produced, but there is still room for improvement in quality.

Among topics scheduled to be discussed are: the correct handling of ideological tendencies; emancipation of the mind and prevention of bourgeois liberalization; the necessity for leaders of cultural departments to understand the law of creative art and to faithfully carry out party's policy on literature and art.

The relationship between the real and the ideal, personal love and devotion to socialism, box office and social effect, theoretic study and participation in the life and activities of the masses will also be discussed.

HEILONGJIANG'S YANG YICHEN SPEAKS ON ECONOMY

SK011252 Harbin Heilongjiang Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] At the Sixth Enlarged Plenary Session of the Fourth Heilongjiang Provincial CPC Committee, Comrade Yang Yichen, first secretary of the provincial CPC committee, pointed out: While discussing and working out plans for economic construction, we should conscientiously sum up experiences and seek new ways. Comrade Yang Yichen said: Since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, various localities have proceeded from their reality and implemented a series of principles and policies put forward by the CPC Central Committee. As a result, they have created new situations in agriculture, industry, commerce and scientific technology and accumulated many new experiences which will be continually put into practice and perfected in the future. He said: Our province's agriculture has just entered the new stage of a modernized large-scale agriculture in which agriculture, industry and commerce are comprehensively managed, with grain as a key link and with agriculture, forestry, animal husbandry, sideline occupations and fishery developing in an all-round way. To achieve success in this regard, we have paid special attention to the following issues over the past few years.

1. Mechanization of agriculture. Most areas in the province have basically implemented mechanization of agriculture, thus effectively resolving the province's major contradiction between a small population and a vast territory. Large numbers of laborers have been liberated from farm work step by step and placed in forestry, animal husbandry, sideline occupations, fishery and industry. In the future, the emphasis of field mechanization should be put on complete sets of equipment, expansion of mechanized farming and improvement of mechanization results. In the meantime, we should gradually use mechanical equipment to develop field management and production, comprehensively raise the level of agricultural mechanization and release even more of the labor force to develop a diversified economy so as to make agriculture develop in depth and scope. Keshan County has established a modernized large-scale agriculture proceeding from mechanization. Hailun County has conducted comprehensive scientific experiments by means of combining mechanical measures with construction measures, thus promoting the overall development of agriculture. For instance, Keshan farm has relied on mechanization to change farming methods, thus reaping bumper harvests in all crops for many years running. These experiences should be popularized throughout the province.

2. The development of the responsibility system in agricultural production. Our province has laid a fairly good foundation for the responsibility system in agricultural production and this should be further stabilized and perfected. How should we perfect the responsibility system? The answer is: The responsibility system should suit the needs of large-scale agriculture, which is centered on mechanization. Referring to the process of field work, it is suitable to institute the responsibilty systems of giving remuneration according to output for contracts signed with specialized groups. In developing forestry, animal husbandry, sideline occupations, fishery and a diversified economy, it is suitable to extensively popularize the responsibility system of signing contracts for specialized production and assigning payments in accordance with output. In short, the division of labor, the division of work, the signing of contracts for specialized production and the working out of payments in accordance with production output are major forms of the responsibility system which should be extensively popularized throughout the province. In the impoverished areas where the mechanization level is low and in remote border mountainous areas, the responsibility systems of fixing farm output quotas on a household basis and letting peasant households assume full responsibility for most of the farm work should be instituted, and leadership should be strengthened over them. With such responsibility systems we can handle well both the major and minor affairs, integrate the major with the minor, properly arrange the unified distribution, exploit all favorable conditions, bring out the best in each other, advance toward the goal of specialization and socialization and achieve still better economic results day by day.

3. The principle of vigorously developing a diversified economy, but under no circumstances neglecting grain production should be firmly implemented. Many advanced communes and brigades in the province have become prosperous through the development of a diversified economy.

How can (Xinshizi) brigade in Gannan County change from an impoverished unit to a well-to-do unit whose per capita income reaches 1,000 yuan? Why dare it put forward the plan of prefulfilling the goal of quadrupling their agricultural output value 10 years ahead of schedule and the plan of increasing their per capita income to 3,000 yuan by 1990? The reason is they have a solid foundation of a diversified economy and the superiority of unified management. The experiences of these advanced units have a universal significance in our province. We should continue to readjust step by step the rural economic structure in line with the goal of increasing by 700 percent the output of grain, soybean, potato and other cash crops and the output value of the diversified economy. We should give full play to the superiority of rich natural resources and mechanization. The large numbers of laborers released from farm work should be utilized to develop forestry, animal husbandry, sideline occupations, fishery, commune- and brigade-run enterprises and a diversified economy. All localities should build diversified economic bases imbued with their own local features and produce their own special and quality products. Commune- and brigade-run enterprises should achieve the fighting goal of increasing the output value by 700 percent by the end of this century. They should establish a multiple-producing system in which agriculture, industry and commerce are developed in coordination and varied management forms and methods coexist. Meanwhile, in this system, small towns and cities and commune- and brigade-run enterprises should be regarded as a major and central part.

4. Construction of water conservancy works. In the past year, the Sanjiang Plain was afflicted by serious waterlogging and this year most areas in the province have been affected by a serious drought. This has caused heavy losses for our province. The occurrence of waterlogging and drought indicates that our province can prevent neither the one nor the other. Therefore, we must adhere to the principle of paying equal attention to drought and waterlogging and tackling problems comprehensively, integrate construction with cultivation, make efforts to improve basic conditions for agriculture, promote ecological balance and gradually give rise to a benign cycle of agricultural production.

In industry, our province must firmly implement the principle of readjusting, restruct reorganizing, and upgrading, successfully streamlining, reorganizing, and merging the existing enterprises, eliminating the man-made separated situation among various localities and units and development toward the orientation of socialized large-scale production. Readjustment should be first carried out at each enterprise and then at each trade and profession. Next year boiler, trailer washing machine and 24 other trades should first be readjusted. Meanwhile, a public appraisal of the quality of different products should be conducted, with good-quality products being selected and those poor quality abandoned. Integarted companies and plants of various kinds should be organized to develop specialized production. At present, over 40 percent of enterprises covered by the state budget are being run at a loss. These enterprises should be readjusted and restructured one after another and measures to change deficits to profits should be implemented at each enterprise. Those enterprises which cannot stop losses should be resolutely closed down or transferred to other units. In developing industry, our province should rely on the existing enterprises, expand reproduction based on the inner forces and carry out technical innovations at existing enterprises in a planned manner. In the period of the Sixth 5-Year Plan, we should amass the funds to first restructure the 95 key enterprises. Other enterprises should also restructure with their own funds. All enterprises should carry out technical innovations. In particular, we should mobilize the masses to engage in small technical renovations.

In carrying out technical innovations, enterprises should concentrate on improving product quality, increasing the variety of products and enhancing the competitive capacity of products. The major method of achieving this end is carrying out technical renovations. Some important technical renovations should be brought about with a definite time through political intervention and in line with the unified arrangements. We should intensify the scientific management of enterprises and unceasingly sum up experiences in this regard. In the meantime, the reform of managerial systems should be carried out persistently.

We should continue to sum up and perfect the system of assuming full responsibility for financial affairs, the system of expanding enterprises' autonomy, the partial profit retention system, the system of retaining a portion of profits gained from reducing losses and other economic responsibility systems of various kinds.

We should mobilize the initiative of localities, departments, enterprises, workers, staff members and the masses in seeking new methods for reformations. The superiority of the urban collective economy should be brought into play. From now on, industrial enterprises run by big and medium-sized cities, counties, collectives in small cities and towns and run by communes and brigades should rationally share out in the work and cooperate with one another so as to make all these enterprises develop in concert. Meanwhile, still greater attention should be paid to the development of industry run by counties, communes and brigades. Urban industrial enterprises should vigorously support communes and brigades in running the processing industry for farm and sideline produce, local and special products, and should not run them by themselves in cities. As for the precision processing industry, which is suitable for big and medium-sized cities, communes and brigades should not develop it arbitrarily and blindly. As for items suitable for joint urban andrural enterprises, the two sides should consult with one another to organize and build combines of various kinds. In addition, in the coming few years we should give consideration and support to industry run by border areas.

The Jiamusi Municipal CPC Committee, in its premise of economic construction, has emanicipated ideology, broken with improper conventions, given full play to the role of city industry and combined urban industry with rural industry to make them develop in coordination so as to quadruple its industrial output value in both urban and rural areas. All localities should pay attention to the experiences of Jiamusi Municipality and all big and medium-sized cities should learn from these experiences and adopt measures to combine urban with rural industry.

In commercial work, efforts should be made to promote production, guide production and ensure the supply of commodities. We should pay equal attention to production and circulation, promote both production and circulation and strive to unite them. We should also reform the system of economic administration and the managerial methods, establish various forms of economic systems, open up many circulation channels and institute simplified commodity circulation systems. In reforming the systems of supply and marketing cooperatives, the experiences of Hailun and Zhaodong Counties in our province and those of Dazu County in Sichuan Province should be popularized. We should make supply and marketing cooperatives become both commercial departments of the state and trade organizations of the peasants so as to integrate the state's interests with the people's and give play to the role of organizing the rural economy.

To achieve the goal of quadrupling the total industrial and agricultural output value, we must mainly rely on the improvement of scientific technology. The plenary session has adopted a decision on strengthening scientific and technical work. [Passage indistinct] We should bring into full play the role of scientific technology through ways of combining scientific research with production and linking scientific research and teaching with popularization. Various scientific research organs and scientific and technical personnel should be organized to master the important theories on enterprise technical renovations in the fields of agriculture, tree-planting, light industry and food industry which have an important bearing on the whole situation of the national economy. They should also cooperate with one another to solve major scientific and technological problems. They should carry out technical transformations and strive to popularize and apply scientific techniques to production as soon as possible. While exercising leadership in industry and agriculture, leading organs at all levels should strengthen their leadership over scientific and technical work. While making important policies on economic technology, economic technological specialists should be invited to provide scientific proofs. It is necessary to continually eliminate the erroneous idea of discriminating against intellectuals and implement the party's policy towards intellectuals. Various industrial and mining enterprises should learn from the Acheng electrical appliance plant, give full play to the role of scientists and technicians and solve practical problems on work and livelihood for them. In short, both natural science and social science should be developed for fulfilling the quadruple goal.

JILIN RIBAO ON IMPLEMENTING RESPONSIBILITY SYSTEM

SK280725 Changchun Jilin Provincial Service in Mandarin 2200 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] On 28 October JILIN RIBAO printed an editorial: "Perfect the Responsibility System in Agricultural Production in Deference to the Masses' Wishes." The editorial states: The reports of the 12th national party congress fully confirmed the tremendous role of the implementation of the production responsibility system in liberating the productive forces. The reports also explicitly demand that we sum up the masses' experience of practice and further perfect the responsibility system in deference to their wishes. This is a strategic measure and guarantee for creating a new situation in socialist agriculture.

The editorial notes: Deferring to the masses means respecting their practice. In line with the policy adopted at the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, the broad masses of peasants in the rural areas of our province have in the past 3 years practiced the production responsibility system in its various forms, including the system of contracting work tasks to individual households. Practice has shown that the system of contracting work tasks to individual households has tremendous vitality.

Influenced by longstanding, erroneous leftist ideas, some comrades are accustomed to the practice of doing things in a massive and unplanned way and of eating out of the same big pot. Facing the emergence of the production responsibility system and particularly the system of contracting work tasks to individual households, some people sigh with regret: After 30 years of painstaking work, things have, overnight, fallen back to where they were before liberation. This is exactly a manifestation of conservative thinking. We must note that the chronic leftist mistakes in the past do not represent correct socialist methods. They had, in effect, only made the peasants endure untold sufferings from egalitarianism, constrained their enthusiasm and impeded the development of productio to a serious extent. The masses eagerly demanded an end to the practice of doing things in a massive and unplanned way and of eating out of the same big pot. The broad mass of peasants, through comparison and differentiation in practice, have firmly chosen the production responsibility system, which is suitable to their realities. Such a development is simply natural and conforms to the popular will. This is the general trend of events.

The editorial states: Some comrades have misgivings and misunderstandings about the nature of the production responsibility system of contracting work tasks to individual households, erroneously regarding it as unsocialist. As a result, they balk at advocating and implementing it boldly and with zeal. Such an attitude is wrong. The system of contracting work tasks to individual households is socialist in nature, too. This has been proven by practice and was pointed out in the central documents in unequivocal terms. After the system of contracting work tasks to individual households is implemented, collective labor is replaced by disperse, independent labor. Some comrades have faulted this dispersed, independent labor as individual farming. This is a misunderstanding. They have mixed up labor pattern and production relations, which are two different concepts. According to Marxist theories, both independent and coordinated labor, including primitive cooperation and division of labor, which come under the category of coordinated labor, are labor patterns, not production relations. Collective management has not fallen into disuse after the system of contracting work tasks to individual households was implemented. On the contrary, in localities where the system is being implemented well, the level of collective management has risen.

The editorial states: There are, of course, many forms of the production responsibility system which are based on remuneration according to output. We must not arbitrarily implement one of them to the neglect of the others. In guiding the peasants to improve and perfect the production responsibility system, we must, first and foremost, defer to the wishes and demands of the masses in real earnestness. We should help the peasants solve problems cropping up in the implementation of this system to make it sounder and bring its superiority into fuller play. We must not look on with folded arms while making frivolous remarks and finding fault with it.

Nor should we take a passive, wait-and-see attitude, abstain from guiding this work, wash our hands of the business and let things take their thing own course. Nor should we wrangle with the masses and deny their legitimate and reasonable demands and revert to the practice of doing things in a massive and unplanned way and of eating out of the same big pot.

In conclusion, the editorial states: To further improve the production responsibility system, we must attend to the following three problems well at the moment: 1) Make earnest efforts to supervise well the signing of work task contracts. The contents of contracts must be comprehensive, reasonable and legal and resolute efforts should be made to ensure that the contract obligations are honored. 2) Take specific steps to work out definite requirements to protect the collective property. 3) The cadres' remuneration should be set at a reasonable level. Production teams practicing the system of contracting work tasks to individual households still need cadres. The number of cadres needed should be decided by taking intoconsideration the burden of the masses and the work load. The level of cadres' remuneration should be decided on the basis of work load after consultations with the masses.

LI DESHENG AIDS IN SHENYANG CLEANUP WORK

SK310434 Shenyang Liaoning Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] According to our sources, the leading organs under the Shenyang PLA units dispatched over 4,000 commanders and fighters this afternoon to enthusiastically engage in the activities of environmental sanitation in barracks areas and to take the lead in sweeping away garbage, maintaining good order and improving service quality.

Joining in the labor together with the organs' cadres, fighters, staff and workers in the yardof the Shenyang Army Servicemen's Club were leading comrades of the Shenyang PLA units, including Li Desheng, commander of the Shenyang PLA units, Liu Zhenhua, political commissar of the Shenyang PLA units, Jiang Yonghui, Yuan Jun and Zhao Xianshun, deputy commanders of the Shenyang PLA units, (Cheng Demin), deputy political commissar of the Shenyang PLA units, Zou Yan, adviser to the Shenyang PLA units, and Ma Ying, director of the political department under the Shenyang PLA units. Also attending the work were Liao Hansheng, former first political commissar of the Shenyang PLA units, and Xie Zhenhua, political commissar of the Kunming PLA units.

While doing the work, leading comrades of the Shneyang PLA units had cordial conversations with commanders and fighters. Comrade Li Desheng stated: Such industrious activity in conducting environmental sanitation is very necessary. What we should regard as the most important work is to maintain environmental sanitation every day. He told all participants that the PLA units should set an example and play a leading role in the campaign of "five stresses" and "four beauties" and in building a socialist spiritual civilization.

BRIEFS

HEILONGJIANG DAIRY CATTLE -- Since the beginning of 1982, Heilongjiang Province has made rapid progress in raising dairy cattle. Now the number of milk cows in stock is 125,000 head. According to statistics compiled at the end of June 1982, 15,000 households in the province have specialized in raising dairy cattle and 47,000 milk cows have been raised by individuals, a 22-fold increase over 1978. By the end of June, the province had procured 80,000 tons of fresh milk, up 38 percent over the corresponding 1981 period. The number of daily product processing plants increased from 30 in 1978 to the present 49 and their daily processing capacity increased from 300 tons to 900 tons. Now dairy cattle raising bases have been built in Harbin, Daqing, Qiqihar and Anda Municipalities and in Dorbod Mongol Autonomous County, Zhaodong County and Shuangcheng County. In addition, the province has over 100,000 head of black-and-white milk cows, accounting for one fourth of China's total. [Harbin Heilongjiang Provincial Service in Mandarin 2200 GMT 28 Oct 82 SK]

XINHUA: REGION TO ACHIEVE DEVELOPMENT GOAL

OW021237 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 0136 GMT 31 Oct 82

[Excerpts] Yinchuan, 31 Oct (XINHUA) -- At a recent symposium on the economy of the three provinces and two autonomous regions of northwest China, the specialists and scholars held that the northwest region can surely achieve the strategic objective of quadrupling its gross annual industrial and agricultural output value by the end of this century.

The economic theorist said that they were optimistic about achieving the strategic objective because:

1. In the past 31 years the gross industrial and agricultural output value of the northwest region grew by 7.5 percent annually. The region will be able to achieve the strategic objective provided that its industrial and agricultural output value continues to increase at or above 7.4 percent annually.

2. In 1981 the region's fixed industrial assets exceeded 41 billion yuan. In view of investments in the region in the past 2 years, it is possible that fixed industrial assets in the region will increase by 2.5 to 3 billion yuan annually. By the year 2000, the region's fixed industrial assets will reach 90 to 100 billion yuan. By then, if the output value produced by every 100 yuan of fixed assets can exceed the average national level -- producing 120 to 130 yuan in output value -- the average industrial growth will reach 8.3 percent. With improvements in the training of qualified personnel and in scientific and technological research, the output value produced by every 100 yuan of fixed assets will be further enhanced.

3. In 1981 the average per capita arable and irrigated land in the region was 2.65 mu and 1.1 mu respectively. This far exceeded the average national level. Besides, the arable and irrigated land in the region will be greatly expanded in the future. The region still have large tracts of barren mountains and waste land suitable for growing trees, for pastures and for developing animal husbandry and a diversified economy. The speed of agricultural development in the region can surely be accelerated provided we promote a diversified economy while grasping grain production and provided we pay attention to insuring the ecological balance while building water conservancy works.

FANG YI AT GANSU CONFERENCE ON RESOURCES

SK030900 Lanzhou Gansu Provincial Service in Mandarin 1125 GMT 2 Oct 82

[Text] According to GANSU RIBAO, the State Scientific and Technological Commission, the Ministry of Metallurgical Industry and the Gansu Provincial People's Government jointly sponsored the fifth scientific research work conference on comprehensively utilizing (Jingchuan's) natural resources from 24 to 29 September at the (Jingchuan) Nonferrous Metal Company. The conference stressed the necessity of firmly implementing the guidelines of the 12th CPC National Congress and striving to fulfill the strategic goal of doubling the production of (Jingchuan) Company by 1985 and quadrupling the production by around 1990.

Participating in the conference were 147 representatives from 58 units concerned across the country including scientific research, designing, production and construction units and universities and colleges. Fang Yi, member of the CPC Central Committee Political Bureau and member of the State Council, attended the conference and delivered an important speech.

The conference set a high value on the achievements scored by the (Jingchuan) Company in integrating scientific technology with economic development. In the past few years, noticeable changes have taken place in the (Jingchuan) Company and its scientific technology, economy and public welfare have developed in a coordinated manner. From 1978 to 1981, the annual output of nickel increased at an average rate of 11.9 percent, the total output value increased at an average rate of 13.7 percent and profits increased by 20.9 percent on average. In the field of scientific research, 40 scientific research achievements were scored, 19 of them have been applied to production and 2 of them were discussed and well received at relevant symposiums sponsored in the United States, West Germany, Japan and France. In the past 3 years, the (Jingchuan) company gained 20 million yuan of profits after applying scientific research achievements to production.

The fifth scientific research work conference on comprehensively utilizing (Jingchuan's) natural resources warmly discussed the fighting goal set forth by Comrade Fang Yi on quadrupling the company's production 10 years ahead of time. The participants of the conference maintained: The (Jingchuan) nickel base has favorable conditions for continued development. The major basic problems have already been solved.

In the field of technology, there is certainty of success in the second stage of continued construction. The conference discussed the issues of relevant key scientific research items, funds, materials, power and water supply and construction capacity and made some tentative plans and arrangements. The conference also made concrete arrangements for the 1983 key scientific research items and production.

GANSU'S FENG JIXIN ON PROVINCE'S PROSPECTS

HK040557 Langzhou Gansu Provincial Service in Mandarin 0420 GMT 4 Nov 82

[Text] On 2 November Comrade Feng Jixin made a speech at a meeting of provincial units to report on progress in studying the 12th party congress documents. He stressed: We must carry out in greater depth study and implementation of the 12th party congress spirit and strive to create a new situation in work in Gansu.

Comrade Feng Jixin's speech was in three parts: 1) Establish confidence in the triumph of communism, unswervingly trust the correct leadership of the Central Committee and establish confidence in quadrupling and resolution to create a new situation; 2) Further emancipate the mind, broaden the vision, and take big strides in creating a new situation; 3) To create a new situation, it is necessary to have a new work style of going deep into reality, conducting investigation and study, fearing no difficulty and being bold in carrying out reforms.

Speaking on further emancipating the mind, broadening the vision and taking big strides in creating a new situation, Comrade Feng Jixin said: It is a fact that there are rather a lot of difficulties in our province. However, we must not unduly belittle ourselves. We must see the difficulties and, still more, perceive the favorable conditions, make full use of our strong points and avoid the weak ones and take full advantage of our superior features. Comrade Feng Jixin listed five superior features of the province:

1. There are ample resources. Already 61 minerals have been found and reserves of nickel, copper, lead and zinc are relatively large. The province's nickel reserves account for 67.7 percent of the national total. The province's land resources are even more abundant. The total area is 450,000 square kilometers, or 680 million mu. The total farmland area is 53 million mu and over 5 million mu of land can be reclaimed for farming in Hexi alone. Over 200 million mu of pastures and grasslands can be used. This is one of the motherland's 10 great pastoral areas. The province also has very abundant water conservation resources. There is the natural reservoir of the Qilian Mountains, the Huang He, one of the country's greatest rivers, and also the Bailong Jiang, a tributary of the Chang Jiang. There is ample sunshine and relatively abundant heat resources. Solar radiation is strong. This is beneficial for the photosynthesis of agricultural crops.

2. There are ample energy sources. Exploitable hydropower resources could produce 12 million kilovolts. So far only 2 million kilovolts of this have been exploited. The province has 200 million tons of oil reserves and over 6 billion tons of coal.

3. The province has many bare mountains, slopes and ravines which receive very little rain and cover vast areas. This appears to be a bad feature of the province. However, if we can proceed from reality and carry out comprehensive treatment in stages, basing our efforts on reality and local conditions, this bad feature can be turned into a good one.

4. Since we have instituted the agricultural production systems of assigning land to the households in exchange for fixed levies or fixing output quotas for each household, the peasant socialist enthusiasm has been greatly mobilized. More and more households with doubled output or the ability to deliver 10,000 jin of grain to the state have emerged. There are great potentials in agriculture.

5. As a result of initial readjustment, industry is following a smoother path, output value is picking up and economic returns have also improved. In particular, the potentials in enterprises under the four main systems -- electric power, the petrochemical industry, nonferrous metals, and machine building -- have not yet been brought into full play.

Feng Jixin said: We have so many favorable conditions; in action we have the correct leadership of the Central Committee and the correct line, principles and policies formulated for us by the central authorities. So long as we base our efforts on reality and do our work in a thoroughly sound way, given the hard work of the whole party and the people of the whole province, it is certain that our future growth rate will speed up.

LI XUEZHI AT NINGXIA 12TH CONGRESS STUDY CLASS

HK030707 Yinchuan NINGXIA RIBAO in Chinese 21 Oct 82 p 1

[Report: "Regional Party Committee's Study Class on 12th Party Congress Spirit Concludes; Comrade Li Xuezhi Speaks at Closing Ceremony"]

[Text] The study class on the 12th party congress spirit held from 26 September to 19 October by the regional party committee ended successfully on the morning of 19 October.

The participants numbered 137, including leading cadres from various departments of the regional party, secretaries, and directors of propaganda departments from various localities, cities and counties (districts). The participants showed great political zeal in their study and discussion of the 12th party congress papers such as Comrade Deng Xiaoping's opening address, Comrade Hu Yaobang's report, the new party constitution and the speeches by comrades Ye Jianying and Chen Yun.

When the study class begin, all the participants listened to Comrade Li Xuezhi's report on the 12th party congress spirit and on the aims of organizing a study class. Guidance lectures, such as Comrade Ma Xin's lecture on economic construction, Comrade Hei Boli's lecture on party construction, Comrade Shen Xiaozeng's lecture on constructing socialist culture and Comrade Ma Qingnian's lecture on democracy and the legal system, were given to the class. The participants took their study seriously and aired their opinions enthusiastically. They scored remarkable results by steering self-study, self-education and the study of the 12th party congress papers. Through their study, the participants' education standard was raised, their perspective widened, their thinking united, their orientation confirmed, their confidence strengthened and their fighting will aroused. It was agreed that the study class was timely and would strongly motivate the region to study and realize the 12th party congress spirit.

Leading comrades of the regional party committee such as Li Xuezhi, Shen Xiaozeng and Chen Jingbo attended the closing ceremony presided over by Comrade Zhang Yuan, director of the propaganda department of the regional party committee.

Comrade Li Xuezhi delivered his speech at the closing ceremony. He carefully summarized what the participants had learnt in the study class: 1) They came to realize the historical value and far-reaching significance of the 12th party congress. Their consciousness of the need to act in the spirit of the congress was heightened. They expressed their strong belief that the Central Committee is the leading core of our undertaking, that the cause of communism will surely succeed, that we are right in taking a socialist road with distinctive Chinese features, and that the overall mission and broad outline proposed by our party during the new historical age can be fulfilled. 2) They clarified the strategic targets, focal points and measures for economic construction in our modernization program. They are determined to dedicate themselves heart and soul to achieve socialist modernization. They all believe that it is everyone's responsibility to strengthen China. The strategic target for economic construction set at the 12th party congress was not rash, nor was it a reflection of right-deviationist conservatism, but it was set in accordance with our situation. It was scientific, positive and reliable and could be achieved through positive efforts. 3) They came to know the importance of building up a high degree of socialist civilization. They all wanted to take part in promoting its construction. They all realized that it was necessary to strengthen communist-oriented cultural construction before a new situation in socialist cultural construction could be created. Each person should relate his own job to the great communist goal. He should try his best to be a socialist of ideals, moral integrity, culture and discipline. 4) They gained a better understanding of the role of constructing a high level of socialist democracy in the two cultural constructions. They are committed to working hard toward the construction of a high level of socialist democracy. The comrades believe that the development of a socialist relationship of equality, unity and mutual aid between the nationalities should be emphasized in the course of constructing socialist democracy so that various nationalities within the region can enjoy mutual respect and trust and work together to contribute to the creation of a new situation in the modernization program. 5) They realized the importance of strengthening the party's construction during the new historical age. They will try their best to be qualified communists. Many comrades mentioned that one of the major aspects of the party's construction was to make comrades revolutionary, young, educated and professional. The way to do this is for leading cadres of various levels to liberate their thinking and have the courage to foster and promote thousands of young and middle-aged comrades of caliber and moral integrity to responsible positions. However, nobody belonging to the "five types of people" should be promoted. They should be dismissed even if they have been promoted. The successful implementation of the four modernizations can be ensured only when leadership at all levels is established. 6) They strenuously support the three committees elected by the 12th party congress. They share the belief that the new central leading organizations will guarantee the fulfillment of the party's lines, guiding principles and policies. They stated that they would strengthen their revolutionary spirit and contribute to the fulfillment of the overall goal during the new historical age.

In his speech, Comrade Li Xuezhi explained the theory of the realization of communism, the construction of a socialism with distinctive Chinese features, the support and development of Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong Thought expressed at the 12th party congress, the strengthening and improvement of party leadership, and the support of the party's ideology and lines. He also shared his experience and study of the significance of keeping in political harmony with the central government and of rectifying ideology and political line.

Comrade Li Xuezhi expressed his concrete views on how to study and propagate the 12th congress documents. He stressed that party committees at all levels should give the 12th congress papers their serious consideration. After this study class, departments at district level, all localities, cities and counties should organize study classes on the 12th congress papers. An examination on the study session should be taken by literate party members at the end of such classes. Members whose understanding is relatively poor should be given extra classes. Meanwhile, the training of reporters and propagandists should be continued so that a publicity team of definite quality can be formed.

We should pay close attention to the training of party members in villages this winter and next spring. Communist ideological education should be stressed during the study and propagation of the 12th congress papers. At present, the study and publicity of the construction of socialist culture should be specially organized so that the socialist culture expounded in the 12th congress papers can be engraved on people's minds, and all the families of various nationalities within the region can gain a deep understanding of it. As a result, the activities of the "five stresses and four beauties" can be developed more extensively within the reigon and work on all strategic fronts can be pushed forward.

QINGHAI GOVERNMENT OUTLINES STRUCTURAL REFORMS

HK300351 Xining Qinghai Provincial Service in Mandarin 2330 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] The Qinghai Provincial People's Congress Standing Committee's 20th meeting has approved in principle the provincial government's scheme for reforming the administrative structure.

The scheme points out: In reforming the government administative structure, it is necessary to center the considerations on streamlining the leadership system and improving efficiency, changing the situation of excessive duplication of duties among leading provincial cadres, reducing to a minimum the overlapping of party and government leadership duties, and paying attention to assigning specialized technical cadres and minority-nationality cadres.

Hence, the number of vice governors is to be reduced from 13 to 5. Following the streamlining, the governor, vice governors and secretary general will comprise a government standing committee [zhengfu changweihui], which will be the provincial government's organ for routine leadership work. Under the auspices of the provincial governor, this organ will exercise leadership over all the main work items within the jurisdiction of the provincial government.

The current 46 departments, bureaus, committees and offices of the provincial government are to be reduced to 29. These 29 will include 24 of the existing organs, which will be retained, and the other 5 will be amalgamations of existing organs. Four of the existing organs will be abolished, three will be turned into enterprises and five will be downgraded from departments to second-rank bureaus. The four organs to be abolished are the provincial government's inspection office, the provincial agricultural and animal husbandry committee, the provincial finance and trade office and the provincial culture and education office. An old cadre management bureau is to be established as a second-rank bureau under the control of the provincial labor and personnel department.

After the streamlining, the total establishment of the provincial government organs will be 2,100 persons. This represents a reduction of 35.9 percent from the current establishment of 3,400 and a reduction of 31.9 percent from the current actual figure of 3,200 personnel.

The scheme sets relatively high demands on the leadership groups at all levels. After the reforms, the leadership groups of departments should, in general, consist of one director and two deputies. Those departments and bureaus that handle a lot of work can have three deputies. In general, their age should not exceed 60. Offices [chu] should each have one director and one deputy. Bearing in mind the current state of the cadres and the requirement for a process to be undergone in the replacement work, the age of certain leading cadres whose health is relatively good can be a bit higher where the work requires their presence and the upper levels have given approval. They can be regarded as a transition for a certain time. Certain leading cadres in poor health can also retire to the second line ahead of time.

The provincial people's government holds: Reform of the administrative structure is a revolution. It is a revolution against overstaffed offices and bureaucracy. It is therefore essential to act with great resolve. At the same time, it is necessary to carry out thorough and meticulous ideological and organizational work.

QINGHAI CPC COMMITTEE HOLDS PLENARY SESSION

HK190233 Xining Qinghai Provincial Service in Mandarin 2330 GMT 18 Oct 82

[Excerpts] The 5th Qinghai Provincial CPC Committee held its 10th Enlarged Plenary Session from 5 to 18 October to study and implement the spirit of the 12th party congress. The session also made arrangements for current work and demanded that party organizations at all levels, guided by the 12th party congress spirit, unify their thinking, strengthen confidence, brace their revolutionary spirit and actively lead the party members and the cadres and masses of all nationalities to take practical action to greet the new high tide in socialist modernization. Over 200 persons attended the meeting. They included members of the provincial CPC committee, principal responsible persons of party committees and groups of provincial organs and units and of all prefectures, municipalities and counties.

The session first spent 10 days studying Comrade Deng Xiaoping's opening speech, Comrade Hu Yaobang's report and the new party constitution.

Many comrades said in group discussions: The 12th party congress has scientifically summed up the experiences of history and defined the strategic plans, principles, and policies for building the two civilizations in the new period. It has fully reflected the people's will and desires. So long as the whole party and the people of the whole country, guided by the spirit of the 12th party congress, unify their thinking, strengthen confidence, work hard and strive to create a new situation in all work, we will certainly be able to attain the vast strategic goal laid down by the 12th party congress, and our party, state and nation will become still more prosperous and developed.

The participants showed great concern over the question of economic quadrupling and initially analyzed the province's subjective and objective conditions for attaining this stratetic goal in economic construction. The strategic goal for economic development put forward by the 12th party congress was carefully considered first and has an objective basis. We have the conditions and the guarantee for attaining this goal. The participants held: Qinghai has a poor foundation compared with fraternal provinces, and we face more difficulties and a more arduous task in attaining the new economic strategic goal. However, our potentials are also very great and there also are quite a number of favorable conditions. So long as we act according to the province's conditions, do well in bringing our superior features into play, take advantage of our strong points and avoid the weak ones and work hard it is also possible for Qinghai, with its weak foundation, to achieve economic quadrupling.

The participants initially probed issues of agriculture and animal husbandry, pastoral area economic and social development, the development of local industry and exploitation of resources, and education, science and talent and put forward a number of positive proposals. They resolved, after this session, to study, publicize and implement in depth the 12th party congress spirit and make contributions to creating a new situation in all fields of modernization.

During the session, Comrades Liang Buting and Zhang Guosheng spoke on studying, publicizing and implementing the 12th party congress spirit. Comrade Zhao Haifeng spoke on a number of major work tasks in the coming winter and spring. Comrade Song Lin spoke on some conceptions regarding economic development plans for the province.

On work in the coming winter and spring, the session stressed: On the basis of doing a really good job in studying, publicizing and implementing the 12th party congress spirit, we must make preparations for reforming the administrative structure in the provincial organs and for all-round party rectification, build socialist spiritual civilization, hit at serious economic crimes, fulfill and overfulfill all the economic plans for the year and prepare for next years' production.

The session pointed out: To victoriously attain the new strategic goal, we must focus our vision on the long term, pay attention to the present, stress both heroic ambitions and a scientific approach, make both long-term plans and short-term arrangements, take concrete steps and specific action and carry out our present work in a thoroughly sound and effective way. Leading comrades at all levels must clearly understand the situation, brace their revolutionary spirit and tangibly improve their ideological and work style. Guided by the 12th party congress spirit they must go into urgent action to organize and lead the cadres and masses to work to create a new situation in work in their own departments and areas and to make new contributions.

SHAANXI'S MA WENRUI ADDRESSES PEOPLE'S CONGRESS

HK021510 Xian Shaanxi Provincial Service in Mandarin 1130 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] The 17th meeting of the Standing Committee of the 5th Shaanxi Provincial People's Congress ended yesterday afternoon. It examined and adopted regulations to supplement the Shaanxi provincial tentative rules for planned parenthood and the resolution on discontinuing the implementation of the Shaanxi provincial tentative measures for penalizing pollution. It also approved appointments and dismissals. The meeting decided to appoint 13 vice governors of Shaanxi Province.

Ma Wenrui, first secretary of the Shaanxi Provincial CPC Committee and chairman of the provincial people's congress, presided over and addressed yesterday's meeting. He said that Comrade Hu Yaobang called on us to be a bit more emancipated in our thinking and a bit bolder in making reforms. What is said has a special object in mind. It is entirely compatible with our province's realities in regard to thinking and work. It should be taken as our guiding ideology in upholding the spirit of the 12th CPC National Congress and accomplishing various tasks put forth at the congress. Some of our comrades still lack confidence in quadrupling output. There are worries of one kind or another. We must go deeper into the world of reality to arouse people's thinking. The aim is to raise people's awareness, strengthen their confidence and bolster their spirits so that they can think of ways and means to revive the economy and devote their efforts to the realization of the goal of quadrupling output.

Comrade Ma Wenrui stressed that we must continue to seriously organize cadres and people to study properly the documents of the 12th CPC National Congress in a penetrating manner, unify thinking,raise awareness and grasp the ideological weapon for creating a new situation in all fields of endeavor. We must consciously and firmly maintain political unity with the CPC Central Committee. This is a fundamental guarantee for the proper handling of various tasks and for the realization of the party's great goal. We must take this work as a matter of top importance at present and devote efforts to its proper performance. We must realistically pay proper attention to economic work and strive to fulfill this year's plans for production and construction. Meanwhile, we must continue to make proper preparations for production in various fields so that we can get off to a good start at the beginning of next year.

Comrade Ma Wenrui said in conclusion that to make a new start in our province's entire work, we must not only emancipate thinking, raise awareness, strengthen confidence and arouse our spirits, but we must also improve our work style and our methods. In this way we can surely create a new situation continuously pushing forward the building of socialist material and spiritual civilization and enlivening our province's economy.

Chang Lifu, Hu Bingyun, Yang Wenhai, Zhang Yichen, Sun Zuobin, Lin Yinru, Liu Haibin, Hou Zonglian, Yuan Zhengting, Zhang Hanwu, Dong Sueyuan, Shi Feng and Liu Lizhen, vice chairmen of the standing committee of the provincial people's congress, attended the meeting.

Bai Jinian, vice governor of the province; (Feng Yupei), vice president of the provincial higher people's court; (Wang Guozhen), deputy chief procurator of the provincial people's procuratorate; responsible persons of the relevant departments of the provincial people's government; and responsible persons of the standing committees of the people's congresses of certain municipalities, counties and prefectures attended the meeting as observers. Also invited to the meeting as observers were the members of the standing committees of some bureaus under the provincial CPPCC in Xian.

XINJIANG'S WANG ENMAO AT INAUGURATION CEREMONY

HK030618 Urumqi Xinjiang Regional Service in Mandarin 1300 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] According to our own reporter, an inauguration ceremony for the central laboratory of the Xinjiang Academy of Agricultural Sciences was solemnly held today in Urumqi. Attending the inauguration ceremony were Wang Enmao, Gu Jingsheng, Tomur Dawamat, (Tiena Buer), Amudun Niyaz, (Yang Huansheng), Simayi Yashengnuofu, Ba Dai and Hederbai, responsible comrades of Xinjing autonomous regional party and government organizations and the Xinjiang production and construction corps. Also attending the inauguration ceremony were He Kang, vice minister of the State Planning Commission and vice minister of the Ministry of Agriculture, Animal Husbandry and Fishery; (He Changqing), adviser to the State Nationalities Affairs Commission; and representatives, experts and professors from the State Economic Commission, the State Scientific and Technological Commission, the Chinese Academy of Agricultural Sciences, the Ministry of Machine Building Industry, the Ministry of Foreign Economic Relations and Trade, Beijing Agricultural University and Northwest (Xibei) Agricultural College; and representatives, experts and professors from departments of agricultural sciences and education departments in Guangdong, Jiangsu, Hubei, Shaanxi, Qinghai, Nei Monggol, Gansu, Sichuan and Xinjiang.

Among those invited to attend the inauguration ceremony were (Daosi Luofu), commercial representative at the Yugoslav Embassy in China and (Nilan Zuojianla), a Yugoslav expert.

This morning, Wang Enmao and He Kang cut the ribbon at the opening of the central laboratory. Prior to cutting the ribbon, Wang Enmao and Gu Jingsheng cordially met with representatives from the State Council's departments concerned and from fraternal provinces and municipalities and expressed thanks for the energetic support they gave to Xinjiang.

Tomur Dawamat, He Kang and (He Changqing) spoke at this afternoon's meeting. In his speech, He Kang said: Xinjiang is a frontier region of our great motherland and is also a region where minority nationalities live in compact communities. Developing and building Xinjiang are of important significance. He hoped that scientific research workers engaged in agriculture and animal husbandry will work with all their heart and all their might for Tianshan Mountain [Xinjiang], will strike root in the frontier region and will make new contributions to opening up new prospects for the frontier region's agriculture and animal husbandry.

Tomur Dawamat hoped that the Xinjiang Academy of Agricultural Sciences will strengthen leadership over the central laboratory, will do well in running and using the central laboratory, will successfully train and select technical personnel of various nationalities, will formulate a strict management system and strict management regulations, and, while guaranteeing key scientific research projects for promoting agriculture and animal husbandry, will expand the range of services to economic construction in Xinjiang.

BRIEFS

XINJIANG NATIONALITIES MEETING -- The Xinjiang Regional CPC Committee and regional government decided to hold a regional meeting on commending progressives in promoting unity of nationalities on 10 November in Urumqi. This will be the region's first meeting of this kind for more than 30 years. The regional CPC committee and government demanded all localities and units in this region do a good job in making preparations for this meeting. [Urumqi Xinjiang Regional Service in Mandarin 1650 GMT 26 Oct 82 HK]

GUANGBO JIEMU BAO ON BROADCASTS TO TAIWAN

HK021328 Beijing GUANGBO JIEMU BAO in Chinese 18 Sep 82 p 1

[Article by Xiao Han [2556 0698]: "Invisible Bridge Over the Air Across the Strait"]

[Text] A compatriot in Taiwan was deeply moved when he heard the voices of his relatives in his home village on the mainland during a program for Taiwan broadcast by the Central People's Radio. After he succeeded in coming back to the mainland, using every means to do so, he wrote a letter to the Central Radio and praised its programs for Taiwan, describing them as an invisible bridge over the air across the Strait.

The programs broadcast to Taiwan by the Central People's Radio started on 15 August 1954. The daily broadcast time has increased from 2 hours in the early days to 20 hours now. It has been decided that the Central People's Radio will broadcast a second set of programs beginning 1 October 1982. If we add up the two sets of programs, the total daily broadcast time will be 37 hours.

Over the past 28 years, the broadcasts to Taiwan have repeatedly explained the principles and policy of our party and government toward the Taiwan problem, reported new achievements in construction on the mainland and transmitted messages from relatives and friends on the mainland to the Taiwan compatriots. These programs have thus played a major role in maintaining emotional bonds between compatriots on both sides of the strait.

Because of the many years of separation, the Taiwan compatriots are eager to know about the situation on the mainland. They break through one barrier after another set by the Taiwan authorities to listen to the broadcasts from the mainland. Some listen late at night. Others listen in suburban areas, while still others listen when they are traveling. Some Taiwan compatriots who came back to the mainland and settled down have told the comrades working in the Taiwan-oriented broadcast section of the Central People's Radio: "I am your loyal listener. You have said what the Taiwan compatriots want to say and have told them what they want to know." A Mr. Zhao, who arrived in Beijing just a few months ago, said: "I have listened to your broadcasts for over 20 years." He also said that he knew all the news about the successful explosion of China's atomic bomb, the completion of the Changjiang bridge, the successful launching of a rocket toward the Pacific Ocean and the building of the Gezhouba dam from Beijings's broadcasts to Taiwan.

Since 1979, the Taiwan-oriented broadcast has carried the "Letter to the Taiwan Compatriots" by the NPC Standing Committee, the nine-point suggestion on reunification between the mainland and Taiwan by Chairman Ye Jianying, Comrade Hu Yaobang's speech at the meeting held to commemorate the 70th anniversary of the 1911 revolution and, recently, Liao Chengzhi's letter to Mr. Jiang Jingguo.

These important documents aroused strong reprecussions among the Taiwan compatriots. Peaceful reunification has become a hot topic of discussion among them. As we know, more and more people in Taiwan are starting to listen to the mainland's broadcast designed for Taiwan. Some people even listen to the broadcast together with their close friends and relatives and discuss the reunification problem. A Taiwan compatriot who returned to his home village in Anhui Province last year said: "Long ago I had the idea of returning home but I was still a bit worried. But after hearing the nine-point suggestion by Chairman Ye on your broadcast, all my misgivings disappeared and I found the courage to return to the mainland."

Quite a few listeners have risked their personal safety and sent letters to the radio through roundabout ways. Their letters speak of their feelings after listening to the broadcast and their new knowledge of the mainland. Among those who have written are workers, seamen, businessmen, young students, university professors, painters, retired soldiers, housewives and monks.

One listener said in his letter: "When we heard the 'Letter to the Taiwan Compatriots,' hope sparkled in our minds, especially when I heard that 'the artificial separation should no longer continue.' I could not hold back my excited tears."

A seaman who has listened to the mainland broadcast for a long time, using the opportunities presented in sailing at sea, said in his letter: "As long as the ship sails within hearing range, I will definitely tune to the broadcast from our motherland and listen carefully. I know that the motherland has entered a new period of striving for the four modernizations and I feel extremely excited. I hope we can see a stronger motherland in the near future." He also said that he had talked with many people and all of them completely agreed with the suggestion of restoring trade, mail and communications between the mainland and Taiwan put forward by the motherland. This seaman often told the situation on the mainland, which he learned from the broadcast, to his relavtives and friends. In his letter he also conveyed their requests and suggestions.

It is for the purpose of presenting the real situation on the mainland in a more comprehensive way that the Central People's Radio has added the second set of programs broadcast to Taiwan. At the same time, this will make it more convenient for the Taiwan compatriots to listen. The newly added second set of programs will primarily be broadcast in the Minnan and Kejia dialects. The first set of programs will be completely broadcast in Mandarin.

In addition to the Taiwan-oriented broadcast by the Central People's Radio, other radios specializing in broadcasting to Taiwan are the Radio of the Fujian Forefront and the Xiamen Broadcast Station. Provincial people's radios in Fujian, Jiangsu and other costal provinces also broadcast programs designed for Taiwan.

PRC PILOT DEFECTOR CALLS ON TAIWAN PERSONAGES

OW031205 Taipei CNA in English 0938 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Text] Taipei, Nov. 3 (CNA) -- Freedom-seeking pilot Wu Jung-ken accompanied by Lt. Gen Tang, chief of the Political Warfare Department under the Chinese Air Force Command, Tuesday morning paid a courtesy call on Dr Ku Cheng-kang, president of Free China Relief Association and honorary president of the World Anti-Communist League.

Dr Ku bid hearty welcome to Wu and highly praised the freedom-seeker's brave action in defecting the Peiping regime. Dr Ku also presented a cash prize of NT dollars 50,000 (U.S. $1,250) and gifts to Wu in recognition of his anti-communist determination.

In return, Wu paid tribute to Dr Ku for his deeds in the anti-communist cause. "Many compatriots on the China mainland know Dr Ku Cheng-kang as a world anti-communist leader," Wu said. The young pilot told Dr Ku that his 25 years of life on the China mainland made him think that "the communist system is the worst in the world." Since my childhood I have learned about the abuses of power and corruptions of Communist Party cadres," Wu declared. Under the communist-rule, China's prospects will be dim, Wu added.

The majority of mainland youths have lost faith in communism and long for the free and democratic life their compatriots on Taiwan have had, Wu said. In the past few years many young people on the mainland who have taken concrete actions against communist rule fled the mainland. Although most of them have failed, this anti-communist spirit will raise a vigorous anti-communist wave on the mainland in the near future, Wu pointed out. He predicted more defections against the Peiping regime will occur soon.

In the meeting with Dr Ku, Wu reiterated his willingness to join efforts and dedicate his life to China's reunification under the three principles of the people initiated by Dr Sun Yat-sen, founding father of the Republic of China.

Afterwards, Wu Jung-ken proceeded to visit the Ministry of National Defense where he received a warm reception by Minister Soong Chang-chih. Minister Soong highly praised Wu's defection and cited him as a young anti-communist hero.

Gen Hou Pei-tsun, chief of the General Staff, also received Wu Jung-ken Tuesday morning at his office. At the reception Gen Hou conveyed to Wu President Chiang Ching-kuo's regards.

Urges Others To Defect

OW040331 Taipei CNA in English 0307 GMT 4 Nov 82

[Text] Taipei, Nov. 4 (CNA) -- Wu Jung-ken, a Chinese Communist air force pilot who flew a MIG-19 to South Korea and then returned to the free motherland, Wednesday urged his fellow pilots to follow his suit in seeking freedom.

In a broadcast speech through the air force broadcasting station (Voice of Chinese Air Force), Wu told his former colleagues on the Chinese mainland that all they have to do is to follow his route, and with full speed forward, they will reach the free and democratic bastion of national recovery.

Accompanied by Major General Lu, deputy director of the Political Warfare Department of the Chinese Air Force, Wu entered the station in the afternoon and was interviewed by Miss Lu Chao-ti, the "Air Force Rose."

In the broadcast, Wu told Communist Chinese air force pilots about his defection and the warm welcome accorded him in the motherland and the prosperity and happy life on the free bastion. He also told them about the life of his predecessors, including those of Fan Yuan-yen and many others. Finally, Wu proudly told his former colleagues that he will struggle for the reunification of China through the three principles of the people.

ROK ENVOY ON FATE OF PRC MIG-19 FLOWN TO SEOUL

OW031509 Taipiei CNA in English 1404 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Text] Taipei, Nov 3 (CNA) -- The Korean Government has not yet decided what to do about the MIG-19 flown to an airbase near Seoul by Wu Jung-ken on October 16, Korean Ambassador Kim Chong-kon said yesterday.

In an interview with a local TV station, the ambassador denied speculations that Seoul has decided (?to return the aircraft) to Peking.

Ambassador Kim said the Korean Government needs time to handle the delicate matter and, at the same time, to study the plane with a view to better understanding its capabilities.

Peking reportedly has supplied North Korea 40 MIG-19's this year.

When the Korean Government announced its decision to send Wu to Taipei, according to his wish, it said the MIG-19 would be handled according to international practice.

ECONOMIC PLANNING COUNCIL REPORTS 1981 EXPORTS

OW030341 Taipei CNA in English 0323 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Text] Taipei, Nov 3 (CNA) -- The nation's exports enjoyed a continuous growth in value but limited profits during last year, the Council for Economic Planning and Development under the Executive Yuan indicated Tuesday.

The council attributed the low profits mainly to price cutting by traders in order to raise competitiveness of their products.

Exports in 1981 were valued at U.S. dollars 22.6 billion, a growth of 14.1 percent over the year before. In terms of volume, 1981's increase of 9.8 percent over 1980 was 0.8 percent lower than the gain in 1980 over the previous year. And export profits were 9 percent less than those of 1980.

Prolonged economic recession has caused local manufacturers to decrease orders for basic materials and machinery equipment. Traders sent those products such as cement, pulp and iron, which were originally destined for sale locally, off to export markets. That helped maintain the 1981 exports at a level close to that of the year before, but price cutting largely shrunk the profits, the council pointed out.

Except farming products, nonmetal minerals, chemicals, machinery and transportation equipment, exports of other products also failed to reach the targets set in the 1981 economic development plan, the council said.

By region, exports to Libya and South Africa recorded the biggest increases. The government should continue to spare no efforts in advancing mutual trade and economic relations with these countries, the council urged.

And as for Europe, the nation suffered a negative growth of 7.9 percent in exports. Those to Kuwait declined 15 percent, and sales to Saudi Arabida also decreased in 1981.

Imports grew 7.4 percent by reaching U.S. dollars 21.2 billion last year. The increase in real terms was only 1.2 terms, far behind the U.S. dollars 24.1 billion, 7 percent growth target originally set for 1981.

FBIS DAILY REPORT CONTENTS

China

Vol I No 215 5 November 1982

PRC INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

GENERAL

Ling Qing Addresses UNGA on Falklands Issue A 1
Resolution Adopted A 1

UNITED STATES

Reagan Administration Accused of Playing 'Tricks' B 1
[ZHONGGUO QINGNIAN BAO 30 Oct]
RENMIN RIBAO Reviews 'Serious' U.S. Unemployment B 1
[3 Nov]
U.S. Telecommunications Exhibit Opens in Beijing B 3

SOVIET UNION

USSR Anniversary Marked at Beijing Reception C 1
Heavy Soviet Purchases Push Up Silver Price C 1

NORTHEAST ASIA

Zhao Ziyang Meets DPRK Friendship Group 4 Nov D 1
Briefs: TV Japanese Language Teaching D 1

SOUTHEAST ASIA & PACIFIC

Prince Sihanouk Arrives in Beijing 4 Nov E 1
Welcomed by Zhao Ziyang E 1
Zhao Hosts Banquet E 2
Deng Hosts Birthday Banquet E 3

SOUTH ASIA

India, USSR Sign Oil Import Contract 4 Nov F 1
Indian Minister: Ziaul Haq Visit 'Significant' F 1
Briefs: Food Aid to Nepal F 1

WESTERN EUROPE

EEC Commission To Resume Butter Sales to USSR G 1
Reception Marks Italian Armed Forces Day G 1
Briefs: Technical Accord With UK G 1

MIDDLE EAST & AFRICA

U.S. Opposes Israeli West Bank Settlements I 1
GUANGMING RIBAO on Begin Government's Isolation I 1
[29 Oct]

WESTERN HEMISPHERE

Implications of Sino-Canadian Trade Gap Examined [RENMIN RIBAO 2 Nov] J 1
Wan Li Meets Chilean Finance, Trade Delegation J 2

PRC NATIONAL AFFAIRS

RENMIN RIBAO Commentator on Party Building [4 Nov] K 1
Constitutional Revision Committee Session Opens K 9
Editorial on Enterprise Restructuring Methods [RENMIN RIBAO 3 Nov] K 9
CHINA DAILY on Need To Fortify National Defense [5 Nov] K 11
CHINA DAILY on Jan-Sep Economic Growth [5 Nov] K 13
Development of Medium, Small Cities Viewed K 14
Circular Issued on Unity of Nationalities Campaign K 15
Increase in Quality of Higher Education Noted K 16
Machine-Building Industry Meeting Closes 31 Oct K 17
Coal Import-Export Meeting Closes 29 Oct K 17
Plan To Improve Coal Processing, Output Reported [CHINA DAILY 3 Nov] K 18
Economic Development of Seaports Urged K 19
PLA Leaders Visit Injured Beijing Policewoman K 19
Hu Qiaomu Backs Artificial Intelligence Research K 19
Deng Liqun Report Read at Materialism Meeting K 20
Correction to Family Planning Conference Held K 20

PRC REGIONAL AFFAIRS

EAST REGION

Fujian's Xiang Nan Meets Nagasaki Governor O 1
Jiangsu's Xu Jiatun Visits Outstanding Athletes O 1
Remnant Factional Forces Cause Trouble in Jiangsu [XINHUA RIBAO 20 Oct] O 1
PLA Holds Intellectual Work Forum in Nanjing [XINHUA RIBAO 23 Oct] O 3
Jiangxi Class on Congress Documents Opens O 3
Shandong's Bai Rubing at Table Tennis Event O 4
Liu Huaqing Inspects Shanghai Navy Units O 4
Hong Kong Man Arrested for Espionage in Shanghai O 4
Zhejiang's Tie Ying Attends Martial Art Ceremony [ZHEJIANG RIBAO 28 Oct] O 5
Briefs: Zhejiang TV Relay Stations O 5

CENTRAL-SOUTH REGION

Guangdong Vice Governor Meets Hong Kong Group P 1
Guangdong's Ren Zhongyi at Economic Crime Meeting P 1
Guangdong CPC Meeting on Economic Principles P 2
Guangxi Commends PLA Advanced Border Units P 3
Wuhan PLA Command Carries Out Maneuvers in Henan P 3
Henan's Liu Jie Attends Military Parade P 4
Henan's Liu Jie Speaks at Cadre Study Course P 5

SOUTHWEST REGION

Guizhou Discipline Inspection Leaders Meet Q 1
Sichuan Leaders Attend Commendation Ceremony Q 2
Banqen Erdini Arrives in Aba Prefecture, Sichuan Q 2
Sichuan PLA Meeting Views Slack Document Study Q 3
Yin Fatang Visits Xizang Middle School Teachers Q 3
Xizang Postpones People's Congress Session Q 4
Xizang's Yin Fatang at Buddhist Congress Q 4
Yunnan's An Pingsheng Inspects New Stoves Q 5
Kunming Court Sentences Lin, Jiang Followers Q 6
Kunming PLA Urges Communist Ideology Education Q 6
Yunnan Radio Relates Case of Huang Zhaoqi Q 6
Yunnan Party Plenary Session Opens 4 Nov Q 9

NORTH REGION

Hebei People's Congress Meeting Concludes R 1
Nei Monggol's Zhou Hui Speaks at Education Rally R 2
Nei Monggol PLA Leaders Publicize Documents R 2
Nei Monggol Commentary on Studying Documents R 3
Nei Monggol Deals With Corrupt Bureaucracy R 4
Fu Qili Inspects Tianjin Commercial Centers R 5

PRC MEDIA ON TAIWAN AFFAIRS

RENMIN RIBAO on Taiwan Family Settling in PRC [29 Oct] U 1
LIAOWANG Commentary on Taiwan Reunification U 2
[No 9, 20 Sep]

HONG KONG MEDIA ON CHINA

CHENG MING Examines Hong Kong Question W 1
[1 Nov]
MING PAO Discusses China's Economic Performance W 3
[1 Nov]
WEN WEI PO Examines PRC Sixth 5-Year Plan W 4
[3 Nov]
PRC Tightens Security on Drugs Into Hong Kong W 6
[HONG KONG STANDARD 3 Nov]
WEN WEI PO Reporter Meets Hubei's Chen Pixian W 8
[WEN WEI PO 2 Nov]
Jiang Qing Followers on Trial in Beijing W 9
[TA KUNG PAO 4 Nov]

LING QING ADDRESSES UNGA ON FALKLANDS ISSUE

OW041215 Beijing XINHUA in English 1204 GMT 4 Oct 82

[Text] United Nations, November 3 (XINHUA) -- China today expressed support for the Latin American draft resolution calling for negotiations between Britain and Argentina for solving their dispute over the Malvinas (Falkland) Islands.

Addressing today's plenary meeting of the General Assembly, Chinese Permanent Representative Ling Qing noted that the dispute between the two countries over the islands has remained unsolved, although the war ended with the re-occupation of the islands by British troops.

The Chinese delegation considers "entirely necessary and opportune" the current session's decision to place the Malvinas question on the agenda for deliberation in the plenary, he said.

On August 16, 1982, 20 Latin American foreign ministers wrote to the U.N. secretary-general requesting the 37th session of the General Assembly to include the issue in its agenda.

"The dispute over the Malvinas Islands reminds people that although the cause of national liberation has won great victories throughout the world in the post-war period, the process of decolonization has not yet been completed," Ling Qing stated.

The Argentine claim to sovereignty over the Malvinas Islands has given expression to Argentina's national aspirations over a hundred years and more ever since its independence. It has won the consistent sympathy and support of Third World countries, especially the non-aligned and Latin American countries, he said.

He recalled that the conferences of the Non-Aligned Movement and the Organization of American States (OAS) have adopted several resolutions in support of Argentina's claim to sovereignty over the islands.

"The Chinese Government and people have always firmly supported the Third World countries and people in their just struggle to safeguard state sovereignty and territorial integrity. We are of the view that Argentina's claim to sovereignty over the Malvinas Islands should be respected by the international community and that the relevant resolutions of the Non-Aligned Movement and of the OAS should be implemented," Ling Qing declared.

He described the Latin American draft resolution as "a new effort" by the Latin American countries to promote a peaceful, just and equitable settlement of the issue. The Chinese delegation appreciates and supports this effort, he said.

"We believe that their recommendations provide the correct course to settle this dispute which was left over from history, for they are not only in the interest of the peoples of both Argentina and the United Kingdom but are also helpful to the maintenance of peace in the south Atlantic and the world at large," Ling Qing concluded.

Resolution Adopted

OW050747 Beijing XINHUA in English 0726 GMT 5 Nov 82

[Text] United Nations, Nov 4 (XINHUA) -- The U.N. General Assembly adopted a resolution today asking Argentina and Britain to resume negotiations for a peaceful solution to the sovereignty dispute over the Malvinas (Falkland) Islands.

The resolution, co-sponsored by Argentina and 19 other Latin American countries, was carried by a vote of 90 to 12 with 52 abstentions. China and most Third World countries voted for it. The United Kingdom voted against it and a majority of West European countries abstained.

Under the resolution, the General Assembly requests the Governments of Argentina and Britain "to resume negotiations in order to find as soon as possible a peaceful solution to the sovereignty dispute relating to the question of the Falkland Islands (Malvinas)".

The assembly also requests the secretary-general to undertake a renewed mission of good offices between the parties to the dispute. It decides to include the Malvinas question in the provisional agenda of its 38th session.

The resolution implies that the Malvinas question is a colonial one by stating in its preamble that "the maintenance of colonial situations is incompatible with the United Nations ideal of universal peace."

It reaffirms "the need for the parties to take due account of the interests of the population of the Falkland Islands (Malvinas)" and the principles of "non-use of force or the threat of force in international relations and the peaceful settlements of international disputes."

British representative Sir John Thomson said in the vote explanation that his country would "resist any renewed Argentine pressure on the Falklands."

"The soverignty dispute", he declared, was a formula "designed to prejudge the issue and is therefore unacceptable to my government."

Thomson stressed that his government "will not abandon its responsibilities to ensure that the interests of the Falklanders are paramount and to respect their political aspirations."

The United States, which had supported Britain in the war against Argentina, voted for the resolution today. Explaining the vote, U.S. representative Kenneth Adelman said that his country had never taken a position on the question of sovereignty and did not do so now.

"In supporting this resolution," he added, "the United States affirms that this dispute, like all others, should be settled by discussion and never by force and that the fate of peoples should never be settled without due account being taken of their views, values, interests and rights."

REAGAN ADMINISTRATION ACCUSED OF PLAYING 'TRICKS'

HK041256 Beijing ZHONGGUO QINGNIAN BAO in Chinese 30 Oct 82 p 3

[Article by Zhou Hua [0719 5478]: "The Reagan Administration's Little Trick"]

[Text] Since the release of the Sino-U.S. joint communique, the people of the two countries are all expecting to see that obstacles to their relationship will be removed so that Sino-U.S. relations can be developed on a sound basis.

However, reports from Washington show that the Reagan administration recently played a series of little tricks, violating the spirit of the joint communique. This has greatly disappointed those who are concerned with the development of Sino-U.S. relations. One of the most notable events occurred on 5 October. On that day, several senior government officials headed by William P. Clark, assistant to the U.S. President for national security affairs, attended a reception to mark the so-called "double tenth national day" given by Taiwan's "coordination committee for North American affairs" in Washington.

Such important U.S. senior officials attending such an activity no matter how "unofficial," constitutes an act of creating "two Chinas" and intervening in China's internal affairs. It was also disturbing that the United States attempted to upgrade its relations with Taiwan.

As a technique, this is an underhanded, deceptive, and shameful "little trick." Looking at the issue in essence, it is by no means a trifling matter, but a big event which could affect the relationship between the two countries since it goes against the promise made by the U.S. Government to carry out the policy of "one China" and respect China's sovereignty and territorial integrity. It has not been easy to develop Sino-U.S. relations to their present level. The Chinese people can in no way tolerate repeated occurrences of distorting the content of the joint communique and violating the agreement concerning the communique. The Chinese ambassador to the United States, Chai Zemin, has already lodged a strong protest about the matter to the U.S. Government. The U.S. Government should strictly keep its word in line with the Sino-U.S. joint communique and should no longer raise obstacles to the relationship between the two countries.

RENMIN RIBAO REVIEWS 'SERIOUS' U.S. UNEMPLOYMENT

HK040918 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 3 Nov 82 p 7

[Article by Li Jiade [2621 1357 1795]: "Frantic Waves of Unemployment in the United States"]

[Text] The unemployment issue is becoming more and more serious in the United States.

The U.S. unemployment rate stood at 7.4 percent when Reagan assumed office early last year. It went up to a high of 8.9 percent in August and September this year and soared to 10.1 percent in September, the highest in 42 years in the United States. The number of persons unemployed reached 11.3 million, not including the 1.6 million "hopeless laborers" who have not registered with the government (this means the people who have given up hope because of their failure to get jobs for quite a long time). In addition, about 6.6 million people are not adequately employed and are semi-unemployed. If all of these people are included, the unemployment rate will be close to 13 percent.

The unprecedented unemployment rate is due to the serious economic recession, which, in the view of many U.S. economists, is closely associated with Reagan's economic policy.

After coming to power, in order to curb inflation, Reagan has adopted a tight credit policy. As a result, the money market tightened and interest rates have been high, with the prime interest rate topping 20.5 percent on two occasions last year. All this has seriously hampered economic development. Currently, the interest rate has swiftly dropped compared with last year, with the prime interest rate of the three leading U.S. banks dropping to 12 percent. The decline in interest rates is closely connected with the increase of the money supply by the Federal Reserve Board and the repeated decline of the discount rate. It would be harmful to the Republicians in power if the U.S. mid-term election in November is carried out in a situation where high interest rates exist. It was precisely under the powerful pressure of the White House that the Federal Reserve Board increased the money supply and lowered the discount rate.

In the frantic wave of unemployment in the United States, those being hit hardest are still blue collar workers, blacks and young people. According to a responsible person of the U.S. Burear of Labor Statistics workers in the manufacturing industry have been reduced by 1.8 million, with the vast majority being workers in the automobile, iron and steel and machinery industries. The unemployment rate is close to 45 percent in the iron and steel industry and has increased to 20.8 percent in the automobile industry. In the past 3 months, on the average more than 25 percent of all construction workers were unemployed, whereas September's unemployment rate reached 13.8 percent in the manufacturing industry.

Usually, blacks are the first to be affected by every unemployment crisis. According to a disclosure by the U.S. Labor Department, the unemployment rate for blacks went up from 18.8 percent to 20.2 percent in September, a figure more than 100 percent higher than that of whites. The unemployment rate for youths stands at 23.7 percent. Service businesses were less affected by unemployment in the past, but more than 400,000 people have been fired from the business field since May this year. In September alone, 45,000 employees in retail shops were fired.

Another feature of the current unemployment issue is its widespread influence. With regard to trade services, unemployment is not only limited to the automobile, iron and steel and construction industries but has spread to the textile, paper pulp and paper manufacturing, oil drilling and refinery, mining and chemical industries. Concerning geographic areas, unemployment has turned up in some states which previously were not seriously affected by it. According to U.S. Labor Department statistics, of the 50 states in the United States, except for South Dakota and North Dakota, both of which have not had a rapid increase in unemployment, the remaining 48 states are experiencing an unemployment rate of over 10 percent, with Alabama and Michigan experiencing unemployment rates of more than 14 percent.

The sustained U.S. economic recession has made life terrible for thousands of thousands of Americans. According to reports in the U.S. magazine TIME, a responsible person of a blood donation center in St. Louis has disclosed a 10 percent increase in business, partly because housewives and semi-unemployed workers are selling their blood.

Another consequence of unemployment is general nervousness and various social problems. A sociologist at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore has disclosed, after 15 years' research, that with each 1-percent increase in the unemployment rate, the suicide rate increased accordingly by 4.1 percent. He also revealed that even those employed are also nervous as they feel their jobs and income are less secure.

At present, the unemployment issue is still developing and worsening. According to estimates, the unemployment rate might continue to rise.

Baley Bosworth, who worked for the Carter administration, contends that although the Federal Reserve Board has repeatedly reduced interest rates, there will be no economic recovery this year, and the unemployment rate, according to forecasts, will certainly reach 10.5 percent or even 11 percent. Many economists fear that the U.S. unemployment rate might break 11 percent. Even Reagan had to admit in his television speech on 13 October that the unemployment rate might rise in the United States.

U.S. TELECOMMUNICATIONS EXHIBIT OPENS IN BEIJING

OW041331 Beijing XINHUA in English 1246 GMT 4 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 4 (XINHUA) -- An eight-day U.S. telecommunications and electronics exhibition sponsored by the U.S. Clapp and Poliak International with the cooperation of the China Council for the Promotion of International Trade (C.C.P.I.T.) opened at the Beijing exhibition center here today.

More than 60 U.S. corporations, including the General Electric Company, the RCA Corporation and the Western Union International, are taking part in the exhibition.

On display are a variety of equipment such as telecommunication and satellite communication facilities, navigation equipment, electronic measuring instruments and computer systems.

During the exhibition, technical personnel from both China and the United States will meet in more than 20 symposiums and trade and industrial representatives will gather for business talks.

Among some 600 people attending the opening ceremony were U.S. Ambassador to China Arthur W. Hummel, Jr., Roger Sullivan, vice-president of the National Council for U.S.-China Trade, and Ted Krause, director of the exhibition group, and Wang Yaoting, chairman of the C.C.P.I.T. Zhu Gaofeng, vice-minister of posts and telecommunications, cut the ribbon to open the exhibition.

USSR ANNIVERSARY MARKED AT BEIJING RECEPTION

OW041532 Beijing XINHUA in English 1516 GMT 4 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 4 (XINHUA) -- The Chinese People's Association for Friendship With Foreign Countries and the Sino-Soviet Friendship Association gave a reception this evening to mark the 65th anniversary of the Great October Socialist Revolution.

Attending the reception were Peng Chong, vice-chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress, Qian Qichen, vice-minister of foreign affairs, and other Chinese leaders.

Wang Bingnan, president of the Chinese People's Association for Friendship With Foreign Countries, extended festival greetings to the Soviet people.

He said the Chinese amity organizations would, as always, do their part in enhancing the traditional friendship with the Soviet people.

In his speech, Soviet Ambassador to China I.S. Shcherbakov thanked the associations for the reception to mark the 65th anniversary of the October Revolution.

Artists in the Chinese capital sang Chinese and Soviet songs at the reception.

Diplomatic officials and their wives of the Soviet Embassy here were guests of honor at the reception.

HEAVY SOVIET PURCHASES PUSH UP SILVER PRICE

OW050743 Beijing XINHUA in English 0721 GMT 5 Nov 82

[Text] Geneva, November 4 (XINHUA) -- The silver price has risen to 10.50 U.S. dollars an ounce from its October low of under 8 dollars an ounce following substantial Soviet purchases of the metal in recent weeks, according to reports from Zurich.

It was estimated that the Soviet Union has recently bought as much as 10 million ounces of silver from the international market, mainly through Zurich, for immediate delivery. The Soviet move has triggered wild speculations. There are fears of a shortage in silver supplies at the international market.

Some silver dealers in Zurich speculated that the buying is out of strategic consideration and linked to the U.S. embargo on high-technology and defense-related goods. But others held that the Soviet action is a speculative plan to push up the prices of silver and gold and then sell them at higher prices.

ZHAO ZIYANG MEETS DPRK FRIENDSHIP GROUP 4 NOV

OW041524 Beijing XINHUA in English 1509 GMT 4 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 4 (XINHUA) -- Zhao Ziyang, member of the Standing Committee of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of China and premier of the State Council, met here this afternoon with the Pyongyang friendship delegation of Korea.

The delegation is led by Kim Man-kum, member of the Central Committee of Korean Workers' Party and chairman of the Pyongyang Municipal People's Committee, and An Jae-yun, secretary of the Pyongyang Municipal Committee of the Korean Workers' Party.

Zhao said he was very happy to have an opportunity to meet Korean friends from Pyongyang not long after President Kim Il-song's visit to China.

He said the relationship between the two parties and two countries of China and Korea has always been an unusual one. The exchange of visits by the leaders of the two countries have promoted such relations to a still higher stage. This is beneficial to the socialist construction of the two countries and is of great significance to peace in Asia and world peace as well, he said.

"We should make unremitting efforts to defend and develop such friendly relations between China and Korea," he said.

Recalling his visit to Korea last year, Zhao said Pyongyang City has won great achievements in construction. Many things are worth learning by Beijing. He said the current visit of the delegation would promote construction in the Chinese capital.

Kim Man-kum said during their stay in China, they have visited Beijing, Chengdu and Xian where they were accorded warm welcomes. "We have seen for ourselves that the Chinese people are working hard in implementing the principles and line of the C.P.C. 12th National Congress."

Through the current visit to China, he said, they have experienced the strong friendship ties between the people of Korea and China. "We are resolved to exert our efforts to strengthen such friendly relations between our two countries," he said.

Present at the meeting were Jiao Ruoyu, second secretary of the C.P.C. Beijing committee and mayor of Beijing; Wang Xiaoyi, member of the Standing Committee of the C.P.C. Beijing committee and vice-mayor of Beijing; and Chon Myong-su, ambassador of DPRK to China.

BRIEFS

TV JAPANESE LANGUAGE TEACHING -- Beijing, Oct 29 (XINHUA) -- Japan today decided to extend a grant to China for teaching Japanese by television in China. The instruments to this effect were exchanged at a ceremony here this morning. Wu Lengxi, minister of radio and television, attended the ceremony. Xu Chonghua, vice-minister of radio and television, and Yasur Katori, Japanese ambassador to China, signed the notes on behalf of their respective governments. [Text] [Beijing XINHUA in English 0743 GMT 29 Oct 82 OW]

PRINCE SIHANOUK ARRIVES IN BEIJING 4 NOV

BK041440 Beijing in Cambodian to Kampuchea 1030 GMT 4 Nov 82

[Text] On the afternoon of 4 November, Samdech Norodom Sihanouk, president of Democratic Kampuchea, arrived in Beijing by plane after attending the 37th session of the UN General Assembly. This is the first time that Samdech Sihanouk led a delegation to attend the UN General Assembly and achieved an important success since the birth of the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea. The people of China are very glad and warmly congratulate this success.

Today, to welcome the arrival of Samdech Sihanouk and wife, colored banners have been put out along important roads in Beijing; in front of Tienanmin Palace Chinese and Kampuchean flags wafted in the wind.

When the plane of the Chinese civil airline -- on which Samdech Sihanouk and his wife were aboard -- landed at Beijing International Airport, Mr Wu Xueqian, vice minister of foreign affairs; Mrs (Hua Liliang), wife of Mr Huang Hua, member of the State Council and minister of foreign affairs, welcomed the Samdech and his wife in the airport lounge. They shook hands and cordially chatted with one another.

Afterward, Mr Wu Xueqian and Mrs (Hua Liliang) escorted Samdech Sihanouk and his wife to the hotel for state guests.

Present at the airport to welcome the arrival were diplomats from Kampuchea, Malaysia, Thailand, Philippines, Korea, Guinea and France accredited to China.

Welcomed by Zhao Ziyang

OW041520 Beijing XINHUA in English 1504 GMT 4 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 4 (XINHUA) -- Democratic Kampuchean President Samdech Norodom Sihanouk and Madame Sihanouk arrived here by air this afternoon. Later, the Chinese Government gave a ceremonial welcome in the Great Hall of the People for President Sihanouk.

At the 37th United Nations General Assembly, Sihanouk and the delegation from the Democratic Kampuchea successfully defended the right of Democratic Kampuchea in the U.S., a victory for the Kampuchean people's struggle against Vietnamese aggression.

The flags of China and Democratic Kampuchea hung in the central hall of the Great Hall of the People for the welcoming ceremony this evening. Premier Zhao Ziyang greeted Samdech and Madame Sihanouk with hand-shakes upon their arrival at the hall, and Young Pioneers presented them with bouquets.

The ceremony began with the band playing the national anthems of Democratic Kampuchea and China. Sihanouk, in the company of Premier Zhao, reviewed an honor guard made up of men from the three services of the Chinese People's Liberation Army.

Present at the ceremony were: Huang Hua, state councillor and minister of foreign affairs, and his wife He Liliang; Wu Xueqian, vice-minister of foreign affairs; Han Nianlong, adviser to the Foreign Ministry; and Zhang Zhem, deputy chief of the P.L.A. General Staff.

Upon their arrival here this afternoon, Samdech and Madame Sihanouk were welcomed at the airport by Wu Xueqian. Also present were diplomatic envoys to China of Democratic Kampuchea, Malaysia, Thailand, the Philippines, the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Guinea and France.

Zhao Hosts Banquet

OW041656 Beijing XINHUA in English 1633 GMT 4 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 4 (XINHUA) -- Premier Zhao Ziyang today reiterated that the Chinese Government and people would continue to support the Kampuchean people in their struggle against the Vietnamese aggressors.

Zhao was speaking at a banquet he gave here this evening in honor of Samdech Norodom Sihanouk, president of Democratic Kampuchea, and Madame Sihanouk.

The banquet took place in the Great Hall of the People, where Zhao and Sihanouk delivered speeches.

In his speech, Zhao said: "After the formation of the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea, Samdech Norodom Sihanouk led a delegation himself to attend the General Assembly of the United Nations and achieved important success. Today, Samdech Sihanouk arrived here with glory."

Zhao praised Sihanouk as a "patriot respected by the Kampuchean people and a celebrated political activist in the world." He said, "the Samdech upholds justice and defies brutality. For many years, he has made unremitting efforts and remarkable contributions to safeguarding the independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity of Kampuchea, and in the struggle against imperialist, colonialist and hegemonist aggression and domination."

He said: "Recently, Samdech Sihanouk made an important speech in the U.N. General Assembly, denouncing the aggressors and voicing the aspiration for justice of the Kampuchean people, thus being saluted and commended by the representatives of the countries attending the session.

"Through the joint efforts of the Samdech, Vice-President Khieu Samphan and Prime Minister Son Sann, and with the sympathy and support of all those countries in love with peace and justice, the General Assembly of the United Nations has frustrated another sabotage of the Soviet Union and Vietnam, maintained Kampuchea's legitimate seat in the United Nations, and passed a resolution by an overwhelming majority, demanding Vietnam to withdraw its troops from Kampuchea.

"We admire the Samdech's resolute stand to oppose the Vietnamese aggressors. We support his patriotic action, and we heartily rejoice at the great success that the Samdech has obtained through diplomatic activities."

Zhao said: "In the past three years and more, the Kampuchean people have fought a bloody battle of resistance against the greedy and ferocious Vietnamese aggressors. They thus have made important contributions to defending Kampuchea's independence and national existence and to containing the aggression and expansion of hegemonists, big or small, and safeguarding peace and security in Southeast Asia. At present, the situation in Kampuchea is developing unfavorably for the Vietnamese aggressors."

He said: "We are convinced that provided that the Kampuchean people, under the leadership of the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea, enhance their unity and persist in struggle, they will win final victory in their resistance against Vietnam and build Kampuchea into an independent, peaceful, neutral and nonaligned country."

Zhao said: "The Chinese Government and people will, as always, firmly support the Kampuchean people in their just struggle against the Vietnamese aggressors until final victory is won."

In his speech, Sihanouk gave an account of the Democratic Kampuchean delegation's success at the United Nations General Assembly.

He said, compared with the previous three years, the number of U.N. member countries voting in favor of the Kampuchean people and the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea this year has greatly increased while the number of countries arguing in favor of the Vietnamese colonialists and expansionists has obviously decreased.

"In the United Nations, the influence of the small hegemonists of Vietnam and the big hegemonists of the Soviet Union has become smaller and smaller,"he said.

Sihanouk said: "This clearly shows that man upholds justice and will never tolerate Vietnam to take possession of Kampuchea without being punished and will never tolerate Vietnam and the Soviet Union to make use of territory of Kampuchea as a threat to peace, stability and security in Southeast Asia and other countries in our region."

Sihanouk said the historic victory of Democratic Kampuchea at the United Nations has greatly encouraged the Kampuchean people and patriotic forces and helped push the struggle against foreign invaders to a higher stage.

Sihanouk said: "We will never submit to the 'fait accompli' in Kampuchea engineered by Vietnam and the Soviet Union."

He said: "With the support of China, the ASEAN countries and other countries that love justice and uphold independence, the Kampuchean people will certainly win victory in their just struggle."

Present at the banquet were: Ngapoi Ngawang Jigme, vice-chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress; Huang Hua, state councillor and minister of foreign affairs, and his wife; and Qian Changzhou, vice-chairman of the National Committee of the Chinese People's Political Consultative Conference.

Among the guests were: In Tam, member of the Coordination Committee for Defense of the Democratic Kampuchean Coalition Government; Bour Hell, member of the Coordination Committee for Finance and Economy; Norodom Chakrapong, member of the Coordination Committee for Health and Social Affairs; and Ambassador to China Pech Cheang.

Prior to the banquet, Premier Zhao had a cordial conversation with Samdech and Mme Sihanouk and members of their party.

Deng Hosts Birthday Banquet

OW051123 Beijing Domestic Service in Mandarin 1000 GMT 5 Nov 82

[Text] Deng Xiaoping, chairman of the CPC Central Committee's Advisory Committee, at noon today gave a banquet at the special-flavored Sichuan restaurant to warmly celebrate the 60th birthday of Samdech Norodom Sihanouk, president of Democratic Kampuchea, and express his profound feelings for the old friend.

Before the banquet, Deng Xiaoping met with Samdech Sihanouk and his wife Princess Monique. He cordially told the Samdech: "Today I am mainly to congratulate you on your birthday."

Deng Xiaoping also introduced to the Samdech those who attended the banquet including Premier Zhao Ziyang, Vice Chairman Xi Zhongxun, Chief of the General Staff Yang Dezhi, Comrade Li Xiannian's wife Lin Jiamei, State Councillor and Foreign Minister Huang Hua, his wife He Lilian, and others.

At the beginning of the banquet, Deng Xiaoping was the first to propose a toast. He said: Samdech Sihanouk and we have been friends for several decades. We have always had the deepest admiration for the efforts the Samdech has long been making with fervant partiotism, great vigor and outstanding ability for the independence and survival of the Kampuchean nation. The Samdech is an outstanding patriot and brilliant political activist. Internationally, the Samdech is one of the initiators of the Nonaligned Movement. Recently the Samdech made a forceful and confident speech at the UN General Assembly session, which inspired the fighting will of patriotic Kampuchean soldiers and civilians and was warmly received by the representatives of an overwhelming majority of the countries attending the session. He has thus won wider sympathy and support and scored a great victory for the Kampuchean people's struggle against Vietnamese aggression. To this we express our deep admiration and sincere congratulations.

Deng Xiaoping said: The friendship between the Chinese and Kampuchean people goes back to ancient times. Our friendship with the Samdech has withstood the test of history. We ask the Samdech to believe that we will continue to support the just struggle waged by the Kampuchean people and the Samdech. We wish the Samdech to make still greater contributions to further strengthening the unity among the various patriotic Kampuchean forces, consolidating the coalition, ultimately driving the Vietnamese aggressors from their country and establishing an independent, peaceful, neutral and nonaligned Kampuchea.

In reply, Samdech Sihanouk expressed sincere gratitude for the consistent and firm support given by the Chinese Government and people for the Kampuchean people's just struggle and the deep feelings of friendship shown him personally. He said that he would continue to work for strengthening the friendly relations between the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea and the Chinese Government and the friendship between the two peoples. He said: Ten years ago, I spent my 50th birthday in Beijing. I have come again to the beautiful capital city of China, Beijing, on my 60th birthday. I am deeply moved by this banquet given for my birthday. When I once again take up a leading post of Kampuchea, the Kampuchean people's heroic struggle and China's sincere support have given me great courage.

The banquet was filled with a warm and friendly atmosphere from beginning to end.

Attending the banquet on invitation were In Tam, member of the Coordination Committee for Defense, Bour Hell, member of Coordination Committee for Finance and Economy, Norodom Chakrapong, member of the Coordination Committee for Health and Social Affairs, of the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea, and Ambassador of Democratic Kampuchea to China Pech Cheang.

INDIA, USSR SIGN OIL IMPORT CONTRACT 4 NOV

OW041928 Beijing XINHUA in English 1837 GMT 4 Nov 82

[Text] New Delhi, November 4 (XINHUA) -- India will import 2.25 million tonnes of kerosene and high speed diesel oil from the U.S.S.R. in 1983, according to a contract signed between the two countries here today. A separate contract for the import of 2.5 million tonnes of crude oil from the U.S.S.R is expected to be signed shortly.

With the two contracts, India will import 4.75 million tonnes of crude oil and petroleum products from the Soviet Union next year, costing a total of some 10 billion Indian rupees.

The Soviet Union is the biggest supplier of crude oil and oil products to India in the past few years. At present approximately 50 percent of India's imported oil products and 15 per cent of crude oil come from the Soviet Union.

INDIAN MINISTER: ZIAUL HAQ VISIT 'SIGNIFICANT'

OW041036 Beijing XINHUA in English 0820 GMT 4 Nov 82

[Text] New Delhi, November 4 (XINHUA) -- Indian External Affairs Minister P.N. Rao yesterday described Pakistan President Ziaul Haq's recent visit to India as "significant" though it was short and brief.

He said in Parliament that the visit showed the desire of the leaders of the two countries to maintain contact at the highest level.

Speaking of the decision to set up an Indo-Pakistan joint commission, he said both countries want normalisation and closer ties. The matter came up during talks between the two leaders and they decided in principle to set up the joint commission to oversee the efforts in that direction.

He is hopeful that the talks might pave the way for creating an atmosphere for the peaceful settlement of the Kashmir issue.

The officials of the two countries will meet on December 23 to work out details of the joint committee. Pakistan is keen that the proposed Indo-Pakistan joint commission be headed by the foreign ministers of the two countries THE STATESMAN reported today, because this would give the commission the necessary political clout it needs if it is to become an effective instrument for fostering cooperation between the two countries.

Pakistan is also likely to suggest that the commission be broken up into subcommissions with each of these assigned a specific area of operation. This would make the meetings of the commission more fruitful.

India is satisfied with President Ziaul's assurance that Pakistan desires a greater degree of interaction in the fields of trade across the border and a diversification of the pattern of co-operation between the two countries.

BRIEFS

FOOD AID TO NEPAL -- Beijing, Oct 28 (XINHUA) -- Chen Jie, deputy to the Ministry of Foreign Economic Relations and Trade, and Shumshere Jung Bahadur Rana Guna, Nepalese ambassador to China, today exchanged notes saying China will give 2,000 metric tons of maize to Nepal. [Text] [Beijing XINHUA in English 1515 GMT 28 Oct 82 OW]

EEC COMMISSION TO RESUME BUTTER SALES TO USSR

OW041918 Beijing XINHUA in English 1906 GMT 4 Nov 82

[Text] Brussels, November 4 (XINHUA) -- The EEC Commission has decided to resume the sales of subsidised butter to the Soviet Union and to offer a special subsidy on butter prices in the EEC countries over Christmas, the commission spokesman announced here today.

This decision was aimed at reducing the mounting surpluses of EEC butter stocks, the spokesman said.

The EEC butter production is expected to be 7 per cent higher than last year. Stocks of butter in the EEC are around 400,000 tonnes. EEC officials fear that any build-up in the EEC's stocks will depress world prices and make any disposal scheme more expensive. The rising surpluses will bring about pressures on the EEC farm budget next year, which is always at the center of dispute within the EEC.

The EEC imposed the embargo on butter sales to the Soviet Union in 1980 after the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan. It lifted all other farm trade sanctions at the same time as the United States did in the spring of last year, but has not needed to contemplate fresh butter sales until now.

Now the EEC Commission took the view that it is no longer necessary to exclude butter from the range of foodstuffs currently exported to the Soviet Union. However, Britain and West Germany have been long opposed to subsidised EEC butter sales to the Soviet Union, taking into consideration both political and economic aspects.

The European Consumers' Union Bureau also called on the EEC commission to stop butter sales to the Soviet Union. It held that the European consumers are asked to pay more and more for higher prices, and at the same time they are called upon, as taxpayers, to subsidise the exports of surpluses.

RECEPTION MARKS ITALIAN ARMED FORCES DAY

OW040827 Beijing XINHUA in English 0734 GMT 4 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 4 (XINHUA) -- Colonel Renzo Romano, military, naval and air attache of the Italian Embassy in Beijing, and Mrs. Romano gave a reception at the embassy here today to mark the Italian Armed Forces Day.

Among those present at the reception were Wu Xiuquan, deputy chief of the General Staff of the Chinese People's Liberation Army; Fan Ziyu, deputy director of the P.L.A. General Logistics Department; Yang Guoyu, deputy commander of the navy; and Wu Fushan, deputy commander of the air force.

BRIEFS

TECHNICAL ACCORD WITH UK -- Beijing, Oct 29 (XINHUA) -- A draft agreement on the feasibilities study for the development of a major coal mine in Shandong Province, east China, has been initialed between the China National Coal Development Corporation and the British Shell Coal International Ltd. The Jining No 2 coal mine covered by the agreement will be designed to produce 3 million tons a year. It will be equipped with up-to-date coal-cutting and coal-dressing equipment and use advanced technological processes and managerial methods. An agreement on the development of the mine will be officially signed before the end of this year. [Text] [Beijing XINHUA in English 1600 GMT 29 Oct 82 OW]

U.S. OPPOSES ISRAELI WEST BANK SETTLEMENTS

OW050751 Beijing XINHUA in English 0737 GMT 5 Nov 82

[Text] Washington, November 4 (XINHUA) -- The U.S. State Department today expressed its strong opposition to Israel's establishment of new settlements in the occupied West Bank.

"The United States regards this latest announcement of Israel's intention to begin work on additional settlements as most unwelcome," department spokesman Alan Romberg said at a press briefing.

A new Israeli settlement was dedicated in the West Bank Wednesday. The Israeli Government has requested 15 million dollars to be added to this year's budget for setting up new settlements and enlarging existing ones. Israel plans to settle 400,000 people by the end of the decade and 1 million more by the year 2000.

Romberg said: "Settlements activity raises questions about Israel's willingness to abide by the promise of (U.N.) Resolution 242 that territory will be exchanged for true peace."

Currently there are more than 100 settlements with 25,000 Jews in the West Bank captured by Israel from Jordan in the 1967 war. President Reagan in his Middle East peace initiative called for a freeze in settlement activity but Israel goes on with its attempt to annex the occupied territories.

GUANGMING RIBAO ON BEGIN GOVERNMENT'S ISOLATION

HK041158 Beijing GUANGMING RIBAO in Chinese 29 Oct 82 p 4

[Article by Xiao Liang [2556 5328]: "The Begin Administration Has Never Been So Isolated"]

[Text] With the connivance and support of the United States, the Begin administration forgot itself for a time, wantonly trampling on the sovereignty of Lebanon and savagely killing Palestinian civilians. They attempted to hold an early election in order to demonstrate their rising prestige and stable position. However, the wheel of history does not turn in accordance with Begin's wishes. Although the Begin government succeeded militarily for a time, politically and morally it is in a situation of unprecedented isolation. We can see this from the following aspects:

The withdrawal of the PLO from West Beirut does not mean that the struggle of the Palestinian people has come to an end, but that it has entered a new stage. At present, although the PLO is in a difficult situation, it still possesses substantial military strength. Meanwhile, the PLO's leading group remains unscathed and intact. They are concentrating on measures to strengthen internal unity and harmony with the Arab nations. They have stated their just and reasonable position on the solution to the Palestinian problem in the Fes conference and in a series of international activities. They have played an active role and won worldwide sympathy and support.

Since 1975, Lebanon has been in a situation of turmoil and division and the people are weary of such a situation. When president Amin al-Jumayyil took office, he put forward his stand calling for nationwide reconciliation, an end to war and violence, restoration of public security, withdrawal of all foreign troops from Lebanon and safeguards to their independent sovereignty and territorial integrity. He sympathized with the Palestinian people's demand for establishing their own state and opposed Israel holding on to Lebanese territory. He not only won the support of the various political forces within the country, but also the priase of the Arab countries and international public opinion.

This indicated that the situation in Lebanon has entered a new stage. Attempts by the Begin government to establish a puppet regime in Lebanon with close ties to Israel have fallen through.

The eight-point scheme proposed by Prince Fahd of Saudi Arabia for a peaceful solution to the Middle East problem formed the main agenda for the 12th summit conference of Arab countries held in Fes, Morocco, last November. But due to the divergence of views among the countries attending, the conference was adjourned after only 9 hours. The Saudi Arabian plan was shelved for over 9 months. Israel provoked war in Lebanon, the situation in the Middle East became dangerous, and the Fes conference reopened. Presided over by King Hassan II of Morocco, after 4 days of consultations and a final declaration, the 8-point plan for solving the Palestinian problem was put forward, constituting the Arab peace plan for the Middle East. This was the first scheme collectively drawn up by Arab countries for a realistic and reasonable solution to the Middle East problem since the 35 years of conflict with Israel. This historical change has far-reaching influence on the just settlement of the Middle East problem. The strengthening of unity among the Arab countries has brought immense pressure to bear on the Begin government, which still insists on aggression and expansion.

In launching the present war, the Begin clique suffered over 2,000 casualties and a loss of over US$3 billion, placing a heavy burden on the Israeli people. This aroused strong opposition, and 300,000 Israeli demonstrators converged on Tel Aviv demanding Begin's resignation. There has not been such a demonstration since 1948. A number of people in the Israeli ruling clique were also dissatisfied with Begin's actions and demanded an investigation into the massacre. This put the Begin clique in a predicament. The fact that there has been prolonged and daily increasing dissatisfaction and indignance in the Israeli Army particularly merits our attention.

Many of the military were bewildered by the war and the army's morale was at a low ebb. According to reports, 1,000 reserve soldiers signed and submitted a statement to the higher authorities to oppose their dispatch to Lebanon, and 260 officers demanded the resignation of the minister of defense, Sharon. With great anxiety, one of Begin's advisors said: "It is incredible that some officers object to carrying out orders." The development of the peace movement, and the divergence of views within the ruling clique, is shaking the Begin government's already fragile position.

Countries outside the Arab world have also strongly condemned the Israeli atrocities. At the 37th UN General Assembly, the Arab countries and many other nations took a reserved attitude toward the credentials of the Israeli representative attending the 37th UNGA.

"An unjust cause finds little support." Although the Begin government is running rampant in its efforts to realize the wild ambition of a "great Israel," the results run counter to their desire. They will find themselves in a more difficult situation, isolated on the international stage. If the Begin government continues to go against the historical trend, it deserves its punishment.

IMPLICATIONS OF SINO-CANADIAN TRADE GAP EXAMINED

HK040645 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 2 Nov 82 p 7

[Article by Qin Benli [2953 2609 4539] and Yu Ming [0060 2494]: "The Fragrant Smell of the Wine May Not Reach the End of the Long Alley -- First in a Series of Random Notes on a Visit to Canada"]

[Text] On your half-a-month journey in Canada, the present situation and development prospects of Sino-Canadian trade was always the most important topic of discussion when we met both officials of the Canadian Government and people in economic and trade circles.

The general impression left by what we saw and heard is that there exists a potential for Sino-Canadian trade, but great efforts are needed if we want to expand China's exports and narrow the present huge balance of trade unfavorable to China. Though this is due to the difficulties in the international trade caused by the worldwide economic recession in recent years, another reason we can find is that we know too little about the actual situation, including market conditions, in the outside world and we are still not going at doing business in the markets of the Western world.

Creating a new situation in exports requires a lot of learning. If we say that the law of value is a "big school," then entering the world market to participate in international competition can be counted as the toughest problem. In the course of solving this problem, we can gain not merely countable foreign exchange, but what is also of significance is that we can acquire some knowledge of the activities of the entire economy and gain some inspiration for reforming our management setup. In the course of making on-the-spot investigations in Canada, the above idea gradually grew firmly in our minds.

Foreign trade has always held a specially important position in Canada. At present, the export value in Canada amounts to 3/4 of the output value of its major projection sectors, and the imports of textile goods in per capita terms rank Canada first in the world. It has a population of over 20 million people and its gross volume of imports amounts to as much as over U.S. $70 billion. It is a pity that China's exports to Canada account for no more than $0.2 billion. It is really too small a proportion. But the balance of trade unfavorable to China amounts to $0.8 billion.

"The most serious problem facing Canada-China trade at present is a huge balance unfavorable to China," (McClausky), assistant deputy secretary of the Canadian Foreign Ministry, stressed when he met us, because this balance also affects Canadian businessmen's efforts to expand exports. This official, who is in charge of trade with the Asian-Pacific region, told us: "For a long time in my work, I have always concentrated on how to expand the sales of Canadian goods and services. Now I cannot but consider the problem of helping China to increase their exports."

When we visited a ranch in Saskatchewan Province, we found that there was a commodity catalogue in the rancher's house. This catalogue was from the (Hills) Department Store, which is the largest one in Canada with an annual turnover of 3 billion Canadian dollars. This company has a mail-order department. They regularly send commodity catalogues to their customers of all types throughout the country. The rancher told us: "I choose the necessary goods from this catalogue or from advertisements in the press and on television, then give a call to the relevant companies. The goods I need will be delivered before long and payment is also very convenient."

Economic development has changed people's patterns of consumption. Taking this rancher as an example, he has a family of 3 and hires 3 workers, handling 4,100 acres of land. Ordinarily he has no time to go shopping to buy a few articles.

What he can do is to make use of advertisements and catalogues and buy the goods he needs by speedy and convenient correspondence method.

This modern style of marketing characterized by intense commodity competition and consumption guidance given by advertisements has created big opportunities and freedom for consumers to select diverse goods. If a product is not given publicity through advertising, or no initiative is taken in its marketing, this virtually means that the product will not exist any longer.

Many Canadian businessmen say: Some Chinese goods are not bad in quality, but the Chinese do not know how to do business here, they pay little attention to advertising and publicity. (Frank Kenny), head of the Association of Canadian Manufacturing Enterprises, said: "Take procelain as an example. Japan, Ireland and the Philippines all export a great deal to Canada, the Japanese goods dominating. Recently, we bought a batch of China-made procelain and found that it was reasonable tin price and good in quality. If you can actively advertise your goods and do a good job in marketing them, your goods can find a place in the Canadian market. Chinese porcelain has a long history and reputation, but it seems to have been discovered as a "new land" by people recently." Another importer said: Chinese peanuts are the best in the world, Canadians always like to eat Chinese peanuts. But when they are eating them, many people do not really know that the peanuts are from China. When other people spare no expense to create brand names, China sometimes even does not advertise to give publicity to their existing name brand goods.

The saying that "the fragrant smell of wine can reach the end of a long alley" is no longer appropriate to the current international market. This idea will just hinder things. Now, no matter how fragrant the wine is and how good the goods are, if we want them to sell well, we can never sit leisurely at "the end of a long alley" and wait for customers' patronage.

WAN LI MEETS CHILEAN FINANCE, TRADE DELEGATION

OW041245 Beijing XINHUA in English 1235 GMT 4 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 4 (XINHUA) -- Vice-Premier Wan Li today told a Chilean official delegation that China and Chile should expand their bilateral trade and economic cooperation.

"The two peoples should also increase their exchanges," he said in a meeting with the delegation at the Great Hall of the People this afternoon.

The delegation has come to attend the fifth session of the Sino-Chilean Mixed Commission of Trade. The delegation leader is Sergio Covarrubias, Chilean first vice-minister of foreign affairs, and the deputy leader is Enrique Seguel, vice-minister of finance.

RENMIN RIBAO COMMENTATOR ON PARTY BUILDING

OW040356 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1212 GMT 3 Nov 82

[4 November RENMIN RIBAO commentator's article: "Strengthen Party Building; Strive for a Fundamental Turn for the Better in Party Style"]

[Text] Beijing, 3 Nov (XINHUA) -- The 12th CPC National Congress has put forward the grand tasks for creating a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization. We have all the necessary conditions for accomplishing these tasks. A decisive condition is the party leadership. Therefore, we must strengthen party building in the new period, strive for a fundamental turn for the better in party style and make efforts to build the party into a strong leading core for the cause of socialist modernization.

I. The Distinguishing Features and Significance of Party Building in the New Period

Our party's character of being the vanguard of the proletariat and its advanced nature are the primary reasons for its being able to take the historical responsibility of leading the revolution and construction in China and for its being a force at the core which liberated the Chinese people and enabling them to lead a new socialist life.

After the publication of the "Manifesto of the Communist Party," the founder of Marxism repeatedly pointed out: The proletariat is the most advanced class and a leading revolutionary force in the present society. The proletariat must set up its own fighting headquarters and form its own independent party in the course of revolutionary struggles. The party should be composed of outstanding elements of the working class with the highest political consciousness, be able to arm itself with a scientific communist world outlook and understand the objective law of social development and revolutionary movement. Fundamentally speaking, the Communist Party is of an advanced nature because it does not seek special interests for itself, it emphasizes and persistently upholds the overall interests of the working class and all the people at all times, and it always keeps to the communist orientation and represents the interests of an entire revolutionary movement in various stages of development when it leads the movement.

The Communist Party of China is precisely such a party. It was the product of the integration of Marxism with the Chinese workers' movement. The new democratic revolution in China was an integral part of the communist movement led by our party and was a necessary preparation for realizing socialism in China. Our party established its leading position in the cause of the people's revolution and led the new democratic revolution to a complete victory, thanks to its correct theories and policies and to the innumerable communists playing an exemplary role and displaying a spirit of sacrifice during the revolution. History proves that our party is the most advanced political organization in Chinese society. Its leading role and its invincible strength are primarily attributed to its advanced nature.

The winning of a nationwide victory in the new democratic revolution was immediately followed by the undertaking of socialist transformation and the establishment of a socialist system. The communist movement thus entered a new period -- a period for building a socialist society, which is the first phase of communism. To our party, the situation has brought about two important changes. One is that our party has freed itself from being oppressed and "encircled" and has become a party holding state power and a leading core for the entire socialist cause. In conventional words, it has become the ruling party. The other change is in our party's tasks. For a long period in the past, the central task of our party was leading the people in waging revolutionary class struggles to first overthrow the rule of reactionary classes and then wipe out the exploiting systems and exploiting classes. The party's present central task is leading the people to build a new society, undertake socialist modernization, develop the productive forces and enhance the standards of their cultural and material life.

This change has brought new characteristics to the task of party building and set forth fresh requirements for maintaining and heightening our party's progressive nature. They are manifested in the following two principal fields: First, acting in accordance with the conditions and circumstances brought forth by this change, our party must learn how to integrate the universal truth of Marxism-Leninism with the concrete practice of the country's socialist modernizations, master the law of socialist construction and be versed in professional knowledge in various fields so that it will be able to exercise leadership over construction. We say that the party has been a vanguard whose primary duty was to lead the people in waging revolutionary class struggle. Today it should be a vanguard whose primary duty is to lead the people to achieve socialist material and spiritual civilization and promote democracy. Second, as the ruling party in the country, the CPC should constantly remind every party member that he is an ordinary worker and instruct him constantly to guard against the danger of divorcing himself from the masses and never to forget the party's purpose of wholeheartedly serving the people. In exercising leadership over economic construction, our party should be soberly earnest in following the socialist orientation of this endeavor, never forget the goal of realizing communism and maintaining its communist purity.

History has proved that party building is closely linked to the party's political line. In his work "Introducing the Communist," Comrade Mao Zedong expounded this point fully and produced ample evidence. During the socialist period, party building is closely related to our party's understanding and handling of the question of economic construction and of class struggle and other social contradictions that still exist after the elimination of the system of exploitation.

The eighth party national congress correctly analyzed the principal contradictions in the country following the basic completion of socialist transformation and put forward the task of carrying out all-round socialist construction. These questions, however, were not thoroughly understood at that time and the task put forward was not persistently carried out. On the contrary, "left" mistakes were committed one after another with regard to class struggle and the question of economic construction, thereby paving the way for the decade of domestic turmoil known as the "Great Cultural Revolution." These mistakes seriously damaged the party's ideological line, its democratic life and its relations with the masses as well as the party's organizational discipline and work style.

On the other hand, the occurrences of these mistakes could not be separated from the ruling party's lack of correct and deep understanding of building itself up. The eighth party national congress put forward the question of party building and called for efforts to persist in the mass line, oppose bureaucracy, strengthen democratic centralism and collective leadership and oppose the personality cult. But there was no sufficient and profound understanding of these questions, nor were they solved in our institutions or in practice. Subsequently, quite a few mistakes were made in the party's ideological line and its organizational systems and the personality cult phenomenon grew increasingly evident, thus leading the inner party's political life to increasing abnormality. This development caused serious damage to the party's correct leadership over the cause of socialism and made the party impotent in thoroughly correcting the mistakes in class struggle and economic construction in good time.

The historical course of victory since the 3d plenary session of the 11th party Central Committee shows that our understanding of the law of socialist construction and our formulation of the line and program for achieving socialist modernization in all fields runs parallel to our efforts to strengthen party building and that they promote each other. If we had failed to formulate a correct ideological line of the party, to correctly sum up our historical experiences and to reform and improve the party's leading bodies and organizational systems according to the principles of democratic centralism, we could not have promptly and successfully effected such a great and historic change and directed our socialist modernization in all fields onto a correct path.

The entire history of the Chinese revolution and the history of our socialist construction in the past 20 years or so tells us that the success of revolution and construction led by the party hinges on party building which is closely related to the party's political line.

II. The Needs of Party Building in the New Period

The 12th party national congress drew up not only the tasks and principles for socialist modernization, but also the program, system and organizational principle for party building. In addition, it set out the requirements, principles and measures for strengthening party building in the new historical period. All this embodies the portions of the new party constitution and the report to the party congress concerning the party. In a word, the main purpose of all this is to adapt the ruling party's position to the tasks and characteristics of the new historical period and to further raise the party's consciousness and progressiveness, thereby improving party leadership.

On the one hand, upholding the leadership of the party means affirming its leading position in the political life of the state and in the cause of socialism and really following its leadership. On the other hand, speaking from the point of view of party building, upholding the leadership of the party means maintaining and upgrading its progressiveness and using it to educate, affect and guide the whole working class and the people throughout the country. To assume political, ideological or organizational leadership, the party must rely on its progressiveness. This is most essential in assuming leadership. In the cause of socialist modernization, the party itself must be correct. It must deal with the cause of construction with an earnest scientific approach. It must not only have a good understanding of general thories concerning, and the laws governing, socialist construction, but also be able to pool the wisdom of the masses in practice, explore the specific laws governing the building of socialist spiritual and material civilization and democratic politics and build socialism with Chinese characteristics. In this way, it can lead the masses to advance along the correct socialist path. The party itself must be highly efficient politically, culturally and scientifically so that it will be able to make the party members and cadres, not only believe strongly in communism and serve the people wholeheartedly, but also constantly elevate their educational and scientific level and master consummate knowledge for socialist construction.

Currently, special efforts must be made to overcome the wrong concept of despising education, science and culture and discriminating against intellectuals. It is necessary to make the ranks of cadres more revolutionary, younger in average age, better educated and more professionally competent. In this way they will be able to encourage and guide the masses around them by setting a good example. While the party itself must be strong, united and vigorous, its leading bodies and ranks of cadres must be able to strengthen the party continually through the succession of the new to the old, and its various organizations must be imbued with a vigorous, revolutionary creative spirit as well as a sense of organization and discipline. In this way the party will be able to unite and organize the people of all nationalities throughout the country to strive for the common objective. It was with this objective in mind that the 12th party national congress put forward the requirements for strengthening the party after considering the different circumstances. It is true that the party has committed mistakes, and there is no guarantee that it will not make mistakes in the future. However, the party dares to make open and sincere criticism of itself in the cause of communism and the interests of the people and is good at making progress by learning from its mistakes. This is one of the hallmarks of its progressiveness.

In short, the party cannot lead if it is not progressive. If the party organization of an area or a unit puts forward wrong views, if the understanding and actions of its party members and cadres lag behind those of the masses, and if the party organization is lax, the party's leadership there exists only in form, for no effective leadership actually exists in practice. There are some party members and cadres engaged in improper practices who have even become corrupted. There are also a small number of paralyzed and degenerated grassroots organizations. In fact, they have become captives to the decadent ideas of the bourgeoisie and other exploiting classes. How can there be genuine party leadership over the masses in those areas under these circumstances?

On strengthening party building and maintaining and elevating the party's progressiveness, the new party constitution and the report to the 12th party national congress stressed three basic requirements: a high degree of identical views in political and ideological matters, serving the people wholeheartedly and upholding democratic centralism. These requirements are not new. From the day the party was founded, we have embarked on party building according to them and, in the long years of struggle, have formed the characteristics and traditions embodying these requirements. In the present condition it has become our more urgent task to strengthen party building and restore the party's fine traditions according to these three requirements after suffering the consequences of the decade of domestic turmoil; moreover, the status of the party in power and the tasks for the new period have added new contents to these three requirements and further boosted the party's fine traditions.

A high degree of ideological and political unity of course denotes unity on the basis of a correct ideological and political line. History proves that, with an incorrect ideological and political line, it is impossible to achieve unity of the whole party. However, without the high degree of unity of the whole party on this basis, it is impossible to implement the correct line, and it is impossible for the party to have fighting power, even if we have the correct ideological and political line. Now we have every reason to say that we have had the correct ideological and political basis for achieving the unity of the whole party, but we are not saying that the demand for party building in this respect has been met, because of the following reasons:

1. We have had a correct ideological and political line in terms of the leadership of the party Central Committee and the party as a whole. However, it remains an arduous task to make all localities, primary party organizations and party members consciously accept, understand and implement it in their work. Our experiences in the new democratic revolution can prove this fact. It took us 10 years from the Zunyi meeting to the seventh party national congress to achieve a high degree of ideological and political unity of the whole party. Moreover, the unity was achieved with the help of a Marxist rectification movement conducted during that period. Today, some of our party organizations and party cadres still have not learned how to proceed from reality and consider the local situation to accomplish the line and tasks put forward by the Central Committee. They have the habit of mechanically conveying messages or going their own way according to partial experience and wrong knowlege. Therefore, they have not properly implemented the very good policies adopted by the party Central Committee. In addition, we should not underestimate such a situation -- some persons in our party still doubt the correct line pursued by the party Central Committee. Some persons with "left" mentality are reluctant to abandon, and still cling to, the wrong idea of "taking class struggle as the key link," and others, with a rightist mentality, appreciate and advocate the trend of thought of bourgeois liberalism. They often express doubt and dissatisfaction with the correct line over one question or another. The two tendencies objectively use and complement each other. This is one of the important expressions of the unhealthy tendencies in the party's current style. Therefore, to adhere to the correct line and achieve a high degree of ideological and political unity of the whole party requires an arduous ideological education and active ideological struggle.

2. The correct ideological and political line cannot solve problems once and for all, even if it has been formulated and implemented. The principles of proceeding from reality and of seeking truth from facts are a process in doing all work. To integrate the universal truth of Marxism with the realities of China, blaze a path of our own and build socialism with Chinese characteristics is also a process. Although the basic orientation and main points of this process have been clearly defined, we cannot say that we have already completely understood the law of China's socialist construction because we still need to continue our exploration for many concrete systems and measures. Moreover, with the continuation of practice, we must contantly improve and develop the line and policies concerning the undertaking of socialist modernization in all fields, prevent and overcome "left" and rightist erroneous tendencies and guarantee the continuity and stability of the existing correct line. Therefore, to keep and consolidate the high degree of ideological and political unity is also a constantly developing process.

To serve the people wholeheartedly is our party's consistent purpose. All the policies and practices of our party take the fundamental interests of the vast majority of people as their departure point and destination. Our party seeks the interests of the working class and all the people and seeks no special interests for itself. This is the fundamental reason why our party has strength. This is the fundamental reason why political parties seeking interests for a minority of persons, certain factions or themselves have successively been eliminated, while our party alone has won the people's widespread support and will forever remain vigorous before it finally completes its historical mission. Our problem is that, since our party became the party holding state power, it has been put under still more rigorous tests in this respect. Its status as the ruling party makes it possible for some of its members and cadres to become arrogant bureaucrats, divorced from the masses and use the power in their hands and various opportunities to seek personal interests and special privileges at the expense of the people and the government. Its status as the ruling party also attracts opportunists with bad motives who attempt to sneak into the party. This phenomenon will inevitably undermine the party's advanced nature, cause the danger of our party becoming divorced from the masses and even degenerating certain parts and some members of the party if we fail to prevent it from spreading before it is too late. Because our party organizations were destroyed during the 10 years of domestic turmoil, this phenomenon has already spread to a certain extent and become another important expression of the unhealthy tendencies in the current party style.

Therefore, it is imperative to set stricter demands on party members and cadres who are also party members and to stress that Communist Party members are at all times ordinary members of the working people. In addition to serving the people wholeheartedly, they should diligently study culture, science and professional knowledge so that they will be competent for the task of serving the people. They can have only more obligations than nonparty members and must not seek personal gain or privileges, although they are allowed legitimate personal benefits and job functions and powers. If they act otherwise, they cannot be party members. It is vitally important that this be made the central link and a strict line of demarcation in putting forward the question of party members' qualifications and in solving it in the course of practice. The correct solution of this question not only has a bearing on the relationship between the party and the people as well as on the party's prestige and leading role among the masses but also determines the party's ability to maintain its characteristics of being the vanguard of the proletariat.

As for persisting in the party's democratic centralism, the progressive nature and leading role of our party are not only manifested in the ideological and political fields but are also guaranteed in the organizational field. It is necessary to act in line with democratic centralism and to build the party into an entity that acts in unison. In the past, our party relied on its strict organizational nature and sense of discipline to lead the people in defeating enemies much more powerful than ourselves. It has become all the more necessary to persist in democratic centralism since the CPC became the ruling party leading socialist construction in the country. The complex and arduous task of construction has, on the one hand, called for developing inner-party democracy, bringing into play the enthusiasm and creativeness of all party members and cadres and -- on the basis of this -- promoting socialist democracy in the political life of the state. On the other hand, it has created the need for a high level of centralism on the basis of democracy and for a strict sense of organizational discipline to ensure the unity of the entire party in action and to guarantee the prompt and effective implementation of the party's decisions.

We should also understand that the status of the ruling party has brought with it still greater powers for our party leaders which can easily give rise to patriarchal behavior and the personality cult. When the inner-party political life is torpedoed, it will invariably create a phenomenon in which each goes his own way in a manner of liberalism without regard for discipline or for the party as an organization. This would damage the party's collective leadership and its unity in action.

We have summed up the lessons learned from our party's mistakes that led to the "Great Cultural Revoltuion." Such mistakes were committed in the ideological and political fields, but the most bitter lesson learned from it was the damage done to democratic centralism and the party's normal inner political ilife. Paying full attention to this fact and taking it as a lesson, the new party constitution has made supplementary and concrete stipulations on democratic centralism and party discipline. Now, from the party Central Committee to the many local pary organizations, political life has gradually become normal, and the principles of democratic centralism and collective leadership have also been implemented. However, the consequences and influence of the decade of domestic turmoil still remain among quite a number of party members, cadres and party organizations and are hindering the implementation of the correct line. This is also an important manifestation of the unhealthy style of the party these days. Therefore, it is necessary for us to strengthen democratic centralism and the party's organizational nature and sense of discipline in accordance with the requirements and stipulations spelled out in the new party constitution.

In a nutshell, the three basic requirements for strengthening party building as mentioned above were desigend to improve the political quality of thw whole party vigorously, enhance the party organizations' fighting power and persist in and improve party leadership over socialist construction.

III. The Struggle To Turn Party Style Fundamentally for the Better

The new historical period has set very high demands on party building. But seriously unhealthy party style exists in general. This is a sharp contradiction. Therefore, we must carry out party consolidation step bv step and in a planned way and work hard to effect a fundamental turn for the better in party style; this is a central link of party building in the next few years.

The 12th party national congress congress called for a fundamental turn for the better in the country's financial and economic situation, in the standards of social conduct and in party style. These are organically integrated with one another. This is especially so in effecting a fundamental turn for the better in party style and in the standards of social conduct which have a direct bearing and influence on each other. On the one hand, we should not say that unhealthy social conduct is the result of unhealthy party style. Many social evils are not caused by unhealthy party style. On the other hand, it is true that unhealthy party style does have a great bearing on the standards of social conduct. Only by overcoming the unhealthy practices in the party and consolidating the party can our party convince, educate and unite the masses of the people to correct the unhealthy practices in society and use revolutionary ideology and spirit to arouse the people's enthusiasm for construction so as to ensure the smooth development of socialist modernization and the fundamental turn for the better in the country's financial and economic situation. In this sense, the key to fulfilling the tasks set forth by the 12th party national congress is to effect a fundamental turn for the better in party style.

Party building, like any other work, must proceed from the realities. A correct analysis and appraisal of the present situation in the party and the unhealthy phenomena in our party style is the starting point for consolidating the party and bringing about a turn for the better in party style.

The report to the 12th party congres made a correct and incisive analysis of the present situation in the party: On the one hand, the main body of our party remains politically pure and strong despite the serious damage inflicted by the "Cultural Revolution," and after recovery and consolidation in the past few years, the situation in our party is now greatly improved. This is the dominant aspect. On the other hand, it is true that impurities in ideology, style and organization still exist within the party and that no fundamental turn for the better has as yet been made in our party style.

The report enumerated the various manifestations of the unhealthy tendencies in the party and sharply pointed out: "All these phenomena have greatly impaired our party's prestige. While we must not allow any exaggeration of this dark aspect of our party, we should not on any account be afraid to expose it." This analysis is scientific and conforms to the realities. We have only to look back objectively at the tremendous change brought about by the party and the state in all fields since the downfall of the Jiang Qing counterrevolutionary clique -- especially since the 3d plenary session of the 11th party Central Committee -- and we cannot but recognize that the main body of our party is politically pure and strong and that the party style has improved markedly in the past few years. Of course, if we similiarly objectively observe the realities around us, we must admit that there is indeed a dark aspect in the party. Investigations by many local and primary party organizations on the conditions of party members (including those who are cadres) also indicate that the great majority of party members are qualified or basically qualified; that a small number are not quite qualified or basically not qualified, but the overwhelming majority of them can become qualified party members after education; and that only a handful are absolutely not qualified or downright degenerates. This can also prove from one aspect the correctness of the analysis of the situation in the party given by the report.

In order to understand the report's scientific appraisal and to have a basis to effect a fundamental turn for the better in party style, we must also analyze in depth the cause of the emergence of unhealthy tendencies in the party and why they can surely be overcome.

First, the emergence of all kinds of unhealthy tendencies in the party has its historical and social causes. The party's healthy body is attacked by old ideas and old habits formed under the exploiting system and private ownership of the means of production -- as a person's healthy body is attacked by all kinds of germs in the environment. All our party members were not born advanced elements. Some of them had lived in the old society, and some had lived in the new society when it had just been born out of the old society. Unavoidably, they were still more or less under the influence of the old ideas when they joined the party, and unavoidably, they are still continuously subjected to the influence of old ideas and old habits. They must constantly and consciously remold themselves and pay attention to waging a struggle against these old influences, for only in this way can they maintain their progressiveness. If the active ideological struggle in the party is stopped and all kinds of unhealthy tendencies spread unchecked, the party will not be able to undertake the task of leading the revolution and will itself degenerate gradually till its doom. Therefore, the style of the party determines its very survival. And strengthening the party's own building, resisting attacks by all kinds of old ideas and overcoming the unhealthy tendencies are an indispensable part of the party's great historical task to transform the Chinese society.

In fact, the influence of the ideas and habits from the old system on the party and the unhealthy tendencies in the party have existed all along. In the past, it was exactly in the course of continuous struggles against them that the party had developed and grown. At present, unhealthy tendencies are spreading to a certain extent in the party because the evil consequences of the 10 years of domestic turmoil have not been completely eliminated. It is also a manifestation that the various ideas of the exploiting classes are again spreading and their corrosive effects are increasing under the new conditions. We should see that under present international and domestic conditions, the influence of ideas and habits form the old system will remain widespread for a long time to come. It is much more difficult to eliminate the negative effects of the decade of domestic turmoil on party style than to undo its material consequences. Therefore, we must fully understand that the struggle against the unhealthy tendencies will be arduous and protracted and must not lower our guard in the slightest degree.

But the situations and truths mentioned above can also show that the unhealthy tendencies in the party are illegal. They are absolutely incompatible with the party's proletarian progressive character, are what the party wants to transform and eliminate, and can entirely be overcome. First of all, our party is able to do this because it has no special interests of its own apart from the interests of the working class and the Chinese people. Although some party members and cadres, whose party spirit is impure, may take advantage of various opportunities in the party. As far as the party's purpose, its line, the leadership of the party Central Committee and the party as a whole are concerned, there is no need or reason whatsoever to conceal or protect the shortcomings, mistakes and unhealthy tendencie among the party's own ranks. On the contrary, in the interests of the class and the people, the party will certainly eliminate the dark aspect among its ranks with the greatest determination. This has been and will continue to be proven by history. Next, it is because our party has the most powerful weapon to wage the struggle against unhealthy tendencies among its own ranks; that is, the Marxist method of self-criticism. The Marxist scientific theory and the advanced stand of the proletarian determine that our party can grasp and apply the weapon of self-criticism. Lenin said: "All the extinct revolutionary political parties of the past became extinct because they were arrogant and conceited, failed to see where their strength lay and were afraid to admit their own weaknesses. But we will not become extinct because we are not afraid of admitting our own weaknesses and because we can learn to overcome our weaknesses." This is exactly how our party, by correctly using the weapon of self-criticism, has repeatedly overcome mistakes, dangers and difficulties and in the process recovered and grown stronger. After the 10 years of domestic turmoil, because the party not only has the Marxist courage to conduct self-criticism but the ability to do it historically and correctly, it has brought about a historic change and effected a marked turn for the better in party style. Similarly, by correctly using the weapons of self-criticism, we can certainly continue to eliminate the filth among our own ranks and bring about a fundamental turn for the better in our party style.

Since the emergence of the unhealthy tendencies in the party has its social and historical causes, we should see that our struggle against them will be arduous and long; because of the party's proletarian and progressive character and the weapon of self-criticism it possesses, we should see the inevitability of the unhealthy tendencies being overcome. This is the basic understanding and attitude we should have.

To achieve a fundamental turn for the better in our party style, the 12th party congress decided on an overall rectification of party style and consolidation of party organizations, which will proceed by stages and by groups over a period of 3 years beginning from the latter half of 1983. This is an important move to strengthen party building put forward on the basis of a correct analysis of the situation in the party. In a sense, the work our party has been doing in the past few years in uncovering the factional setup of Lin Biao and Jiang Qing, rectifying the ideological line, implementing the cadre policy, consolidating the leading bodies at various levels, implementing the guiding principles for inner-party political life and so forth, as well as the work to strike at serious crimes in the economic field which began this year, are all for consolidating the party -- or to put it in another way, all have party consolidation as part of their contents. However, all these cannot substitute a concentrated and overall rectification of party style and consolidation of party organizations, and without such a concentrated and overall rectification and consolidation, it is impossible to achieve a fundamental turn for the better in party style.

Party consolidation is a creation of our party, a form and method to strengthen party building that has been proven effective by history. Its basic contents include widespread and thoroughgoing Marxist ideological and political education, conscientious and responsible criticsm and self-criticism and serious and careful organizational cleansing.

Since the Yanan rectification campaign, our party has accumulated rich, successful experience in this area and formed a fine tradition. Of course, we have also learned profound lessons in periods of "left" mistakes. The proposed party consolidation will be an overall party consolidation after the destruction of the 10 years of domestic turmoil and the achievement of a historical change -- an overall party consolidation to be carried out when the party is faced with the great tasks in the new period. Therefore, it will certainly play a vitally important role and will be of far-reaching significance. We should pay attention to applying successful past experiences, draw lessons from past mistakes, inherit and carry forward the fine traditions formed since the Yanan rectification campaign and do this work well. In this way, we will certainly be able to achieve a fundamental turn for the better in party style and make the party a strong, leading core for the cause of socialist modernization.

CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION COMMITTEE SESSION OPENS

OW041858 Beijing XINHUA in English 1831 GMT 4 Nov 82

[Text] Beijing, November 4 (XINHUA) -- The draft of the revised constitution has been discussed by more than 80 percent of China's adults.

The announcement was made at a meeting of the Fourth Plenary Session of the National Constitutional Revision Committee, which opened here this afternoon. Peng Zhen, vice-chairman of the committee, presided over the meeting.

At the meeting, Peng said the draft of the revised constitution had taken 25 months from the soliciting of opinions, drafting, discussion, and revision to nationwide discussion. The plenary session will discuss the draft, and, if necessary, make revisions before submitting it to the Fifth Session of the Fifth National People's Congress for deliberation, he said.

Hu Sheng, deputy secretary-general of the National Constitutional Revision Committee, said that since the publicizing of the constitutional draft last April, people of all nationalities in the country have discussed the draft.

Ninety organizations under the Central Committee of the Chinese Communist Party, the State Council, the People's Liberation Army, the democratic parties and people's organizations have handed in their suggestions and recommendations on the draft to the committee. Overseas Chinese and compatriots in Hong Kong and Macao joined in the discussion and made suggestions, he said.

According to Hu, people said that the constitutional draft has summed up both positive and negative experiences of socialist revolution and socialist construction since 1949.

Hu said: "The constitutional draft conforms to the will of the people and suits present conditions in China. It embodies the line, principles and policies implemented since the Third Plenary Session of the 11th Central Committee of the Chinese Communist Party, represents the fundamental interests of the people of the whole country and conforms to the need of the socialist modernization in China."

EDITORIAL ON ENTERPRISE RESTRUCTURING METHODS

HK040957 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 3 Nov 82 p 1

[Editorial: "We Must Have the Courage To Tackle Tough Problems in Restructuring Enterprises"]

[Text] A very important link in realizing the grand objective set forth by the 12th party congress of quadrupling the gross annual value of industrial and agricultural production by the end of this century is the comprehensive restructuring of existing enterprises.

Restructuring enterprises in an all-round way is aimed at achieving an overall improvement in enterprise management. It involves work in various fields. Its basic principle is to expose and solve contradictions, particularly those major contradictions which seriously hamper the improvement of economic results in enterprises. Using the words of staff members and workers, we should tackle tough problems.

What are the tough problems? We should make a concrete analysis based on the actual situation in all enterprises. The problems that are fairly common at present concern leading bodies, labor organizations, the economic responsibility system, the confusion between staff and workers of collective enterprises within state enterprises, and those of the state enterprises themselves, and the phenomenon of egalitarianism with "everybody eating from the same big pot." The task of solving these problems often involves many aspects of enterprise management. It also involves all staff members, workers, leading organs and many administrative departments. Though it is in strict accordance with policies, it also faces great ideological barriers. However, so long as we succeed in making a breakthrough concerning these problems and gain some experience, we will be able to solve other problems fairly easily.

Some comrades dare not tackle tough problems. An important reason for this is that they are weak in spirit and are afraid of difficulties and of giving offence. Everybody knows that we are bound to meet with difficulties in our work. The overall restructuring of enterprises is a profound reform involving the guiding ideology of management, the system of organization and the system and methods of management. The difficulties to be faced and the obstructions from various sources will be relatively numerous. We should never flinch from difficulty or obstruction. Comrade Mao Zedong once said: "There are no difficulties facing the Communist Party because it can overcome all difficulties." We should have such determination and boldness of vision.

As a matter of fact, not all knotty problems are rough. Provided that we approach them seriously, they are not difficult to solve. In order to change the irrational situation in labor organization, the Heilongjiang No 1 Architectural Engineering Company decided to reduce the number of people on the second and third production lines, and all nonproductive personnel, in an effort to strengthen the personnel on the first line. Some of the personnel transferred to the first line were the sons, daughters, relatives or friends of leading cadres in the company at various levels, leading cadres at higher levels and various people with "connections." Therefore, from the very beginning, the decision met with obstruction from various people. Some made telephone calls, some sent brief informal notes, some paid visits to plead their case, and some put on pressure behind the scenes. A temporary workers was dismissed from a worksite. His father, who was in charge of water supply at a construction unit, took advantage of his functions and powers to stop supplying the worksite with water for 3 days. This action, however, failed to shake the determination of the company leaders. They made a few simple rules to be observed by all concerned and set an example by first mobilizing their children to go to the frontline of production where conditions were relatively hard, and by resolutely returning to their original units those who did not conform to the recruitment requirements. Spurred on by the examples of the company leaders, the enterprise broke through all kinds of obstacles and smoothly readjusted labor organizations, bringing about a new situation in the enterprise.

Take another example. Readjustment of the leading bodies in accordance with the requirements of making cadres more revolutionary, younger, better educated and more professionally competent is considered to be a very tough problem. However, recent experience gained in some big enterprises, such as the Anshan Iron and Steel Company, and the Datong and Pingdingshan mining bureaus, show that so long as the leading comrades in all provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions and in all industrial departemnts of the central authorities are resolute, it is likewise easy to solve the problem. In order to simplify the procedure of examining and approving cadres, the leading comrades of the Shanxi Provincial People's Government led the leading comrades of the relevant provincial departments and the Datong Municipal CPC Committee in going down to the Datong mining bureau to handle official business together.

It took them only 10 days, on the basis of investigation by the mining bureau CPC committee and the investigation group staying there, to gain firsthand experience, examine and approve 107 cadres at the bureau and mine levels. The number of cadres at the bureau level has been reduced from 13 to 9, their average age has been reduced from 55.2 to 49.3 and the proportion of cadres with university or college degrees has been increased from 31 to 56 percent.

When solving the tough problems that emerge in the course of restructuring enterprises, we should not only recognize the unfavorable factors but more importantly understand that restructuring enterprises is the urgent desire of the masses of cadres, staff and workers and an act which accords with the wishes of the people. The leading bodies in some enterprises are lax and weak and their members are not united. Moreover, being numerous and old, they fail to adapt themselves to the requirements of the four modernizations. Some enterprises have unwieldy organizations characterized by overstaffing and low labor productivity. The masses of cadres, staff members and workers wish to change this state of affairs speedily. So long as we are resolute, believe in and rely on the masses, step up political and ideological work and act strictly in accordance with the party's principles and policies, we will be able to solve any tough problems. Conversely, if we are plagued by all sorts of fears and are irresolute and hesitant, we will find it more difficult to solve problems because the obstacles will be greater.

In restructuring enterprises, as in other work, it is absolutely necessary to use exemplary cases. The leading comrades in charge of industry in various localities and departments should personally take a hand in the work and, on the basis of investigation and study, conscientiously solve difficult problems. If all provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions and all the industrial departments of the central authorities can use one or more advanced typical cases like the Heilongjiang No 1 Architectural Engineering Company, the work of restructuring enterprises will be able to forge ahead speedily.

There are 9,155 industrial enterprises throughout the country listed as the first batch to be restructured, 1,834 of which are large- and medium-scale key enterprises. The total output value of these key enterprises accounts for 42 percent of the total output value of industrial enterprises listed in the budget, with the profit supplied to the state accounting for 59 percent and tax accounting for 44 percent. Restructuring the first batch of enterprises, particularly the large- and medium-scale key enterprises among them, is of great significance in achieving a fundamental turn for the better in the state's economy and to the work of restructuring other enterprises. There are only 2 months of this year left. The time is short and the tasks are hard. It is absolutely necessary for us to brace ourselves, overcome obstructions and, by the end of this year, conscientiously solve a number of tough problems. It is particularly necessary to concentrate our energies on readjusting the leading bodies. The restructuring of enterprises relies primarily on the enterprises themselves. Only by establishing competent leading bodies will we gain the courage to tackle tough problems and promote the work of restructuring enterprises.

CHINA DAILY ON NEED TO FORTIFY NATIONAL DEFENSE

HK050111 Beijing CHINA DAILY in English 5 Nov 82 p 4

["Opinion" column]

[Text] China must modernize and strengthen its national defence so as to provide a dependable safeguard for its people in their all-out effort at building socialism, said a signed article in the latest issue of HONGQI (RED FLAG), organ of the CPC Central Committee. Highlights of the article follow:

To achieve China's defence goal, there is a need for a lasting, stable and united political situation internally and a peaceful environment internationally.

Comrade Deng Xiaoping pointed out early in 1980 that China's foreign policy is to seek a peaceful environment for realizing the four modernizations and that such a policy conforms to the interests of not only the Chinese people but also people all over the world.

Strengthening national defence is closely connected with striving for international peace. To realize aggression and expansion, hegemonists and reactionary forces aggravate their own strength. To counter their aggression, we must also unquestionably develop our strength. If our strength -- including economic, political and national defence strength -- has become powerful, aggressors will not dare make a move against us without careful thought. If, blinded by their lust for gain, they should invade us, we would be sure to defeat them.

Modernization

This is why we make modernization of national defence an organic part of the four modernizations. It is in our national interest as well as in the interest of safeguarding world peace. Building a powerful national defense is an important content and guarantee of our socialist modernization drive.

During the past 33 years, under the leadership of the party and with the concerted effort of the whole nation, we have achieved tremendous progress in our national defence construction. Our unitary army has developed into the combined armed forces of the army, the air force, the navy and other technical arms. Through our own effort, we have developed for self-defence atomic bombs, hydrogen bombs and long-range missiles.

These strategic weapons are an important deterrent to largescale imperialist invasion of our homeland. But, generally speaking, the weapons and equipment of our armed forces are still rather backward. This is mainly because they have been impeded by the development level of our national economy, and because national defence must develop gradually.

Thus we must handle correctly the relations between economic construction and national defence building. The general principle for this is, as pointed out by Hu Yaobang in his 12th party congress report: "To strengthen our national defence on the basis of vigorous economic development."

Spending

Thus, the speed and scale of our national defence spending must not surpass state financial and material capabilities, nor must such spending be detrimental to the progress of economic construction. Effective measures, such as streamlining the administration and practising strict economy, should be adopted so that limited financial and material resources can be put to the best possible use.

The armed forces must continually improve their weapons and equipment, and full use must be made of what we now have. So long as we adopt this correct line, our national defence building will make an assured steady progress.

Modernization of our armed forces calls for a large number of talented men in the military, political and logistical arenas. In the past war years, the party and Comrade Mao Zedong clearly pointed out that we must "learn warfare from warfare."

This correct policy made the whole party overcome its feeling of mystery toward military work and produced large numbers of faithful and brave talented officers and men. Conditions are different now, and officers capable of organizing and directing modern warfare must come from regular and strict training in normal times.

As required by their task, it is especially important that officers in the armed forces become more revolutionary, younger in average age, better educated and more professionally competent. The armed forces will take on a new look when their officers become younger and better trained.

Future War

Any future war against aggression will be a people's war under modern conditions. The great thought of Mao Zedong's people's war is still an important magic weapon for defeating the enemy. With the armed forces streamlined, the militia should be strengthened accordingly, and the reserve and mobilization systems improved. With their backing, our armed forces will swamp any future invaders in the boundless ocean of a people's war.

CHINA DAILY ON JAN-SEP ECONOMIC GROWTH

HK050131 Beijing CHINA DAILY in English 5 Nov 82 p 1

[Text] China's financial situation is turning for the better this year and the budget surplus in the first nine months was 2.44 billion yuan as a result of a bumper harvest and increased industrial production.

The total output of China's early rice and summer grain crops this year reached 121.55 million tonnes, an increase of eight million tonnes over last year, according to the State Economic Commission, ECONOMIC INFORMATION reported.

The output of summer grain crops grew by 5.9 million tonnes and that of early rice by 2.1 million tonnes. Autumn grain crops throughout most of China are expected to yield a better harvest than last year.

The total grain output this year will be higher than in 1979, the record year when 332.1 million tonnes of grain were gathered, the State Economic Commission revealed.

The area of cash crops increased by 1.33 million hectares over last year. The output of cotton, oil-bearing crops and tobacco all hit records, with that of cotton up more than 10 percent.

According to the Ministry of Economic Relations and Foreign Trade, during the first nine months of 1982, exports increased 10.4 percent over the same period of last year in real terms. Imports, however, dropped by 1.3 percent and were exceeded by exports.

The national finances in the first nine months resulted in a favourable balance of 2.44 billion yuan. The revenues in this period accounted for 74.8 percent of the year's budget showing an eight percent increase over the same period of last year. This was chiefly because taxes brought in an additional 4.4 billion yuan, an 11 percent increase.

However, the profits delivered by industrial enterprises to the state dropped by 1.4 percent while those by commercial enterprises dropped by 24.4 percent.

The banks received 1.895 billion yuan more cash then they paid out in the first nine months of the year, an increase of 589 million yuan over the same period of last year. By the end of September, the sum of deposits in the whole country reached 62.8 billion, showing an increase of 10.42 billion yuan over the beginning of this year.

Industry

Total industrial output in the first nine months of this year amounted to 409.2 billion yuan, which accounted for 76.8 percent of the annual plan and represented an increase of 8.6 percent over the same period of last year.

The net increase in industrial output value was 32.6 billion. The output of heavy industry grew 9.8 percent while that of light industry grew 7.5 percent in the first nine months.

In terms of light industry, the production of such durable goods as bikes, sewing machines, tape recorders, TV sets, washers and fridges increased in a range from 24 percent to 170 percent. Some goods which had long been in short supply are now plentiful.

However, because of quality and management problems, the production of certain light and textile industries has slowed.

Urban housing under construction by the end of September reached 109.71 million square metres, an increase of 18.2 percent over the same period of last year.

The newly increased capacities of major energy sources included 1.15 million tons of coal and 3.436 million tons of crude oil.

Meanwhile, commodity prices have remained basically the same as at the end of last year. After the prices of wines and cigarettes were raised in November last year, prices of some commodiites increased just 2 percent over the same period of last year.

DEVELOPMENT OF MEDIUM, SMALL CITIES VIEWED

HK020721 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 31 Oct 82 p 3

[Commentator's article: "Build Medium-Sized and Small Cities by Relying on Scientific and Technological Development"]

[Text] In recent years, particularly since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee, a number of medium-sized and small cities have appeared in China. The prosperity of these cities depends on advances in science and technology. The industry of these cities develops quickly and the economic results are high. According to statistical records, from 1978 to 1980, there was an average increase of 12 percent in the gross annual value of industrial production in more than 50 cities such as Xiangfan, Changzhou, Siping, Dandong and so on. Some cities managed to double the gross annual value of industrial and agricultural production in 3 years, some had a per capita value of production of more than 10,000 yuan. There were some cities which had a much greater speed in the growth of industrial profits tax than in the growth of the value of industrial production. The situation was excellent.

At present, there are more than 200 cities in China. Most of these cities are medium-sized and small cities (cities with urban populations of less than 1 million people). These cities are like the big cities in creating about one-third of the country's gross annual value of industrial production and industrial profits tax. In the past, at present or in the future, the big cities play the roles of economics centers and centers of science and technology. The successful construction of the big cities is very important. But there are many medium-sized and small cities which have great potentialities and wide areas of activities. They are the important bridges and links which connect the big cities with the rural areas. It is extremely meaningful to build the medium-sized and small cities well and further promote their roles.

To build the medium-sized and small cities well, it is necessary to rely on science and technology. The cities mentioned above relied on science and technology to achieve their good economic results and to establish and develop a great number of undertakings in superior local conditions. In this way, the structure of the local industrial production was adjusted, the pace of technical transforamtion in the enterprises was immensely quickened, many "famous brands" of products were created and foreign trade was expanded. According to the rough estimations of these cities, the value of industrial production which they created with the help of science and technology generally constituted 30 percent of the growth of total value of industrial production. In some cities, it even constituted over 50 percent. These facts repreatedly and forcefully demonstrate that science and technology are the key to the production force and to modernization.

Important problems in city building, such as urban construction, establishment of industry and arrangement of production, rational utilization of natural resources and energy resources, transportation and communication services construction, protection and management of the ecological environment, construction of the rural areas and agricultural production in the suburban areas, housing and other social welfare services for the citizens, construction of material civilization and so on, are very difficult to solve correctly and rationally without the help of science and technology.

In the medium-sized and small cities, it is necessary to have distinguishing features in scientific and technological work, pay attention to the word "flexibility," greatly promote technological transfer, actively support the construction of the rural areas and provide services for the local economic and social construction and the production and livelihood of the people in the rural and urban areas. The major emphasis of the scientific reserach work in the medium-sized and small cities should be placed on application and exploitation research with exploitation research as the mainstream. Special attention should be paid to research in the exploitation of the production technology. In this case, it is necessary to pay attention to the immediate and long-term aspects. The immediate aspect should be taken as the major aspect while the long-term aspect is also considered. It is necessary to pay attention to grasping the suitable advanced technology but we must not blindly pursue "high-grade, precision and advanced" technology.

On the whole, the medium-sized and small cities are weak in their technological power. It is necessary to be good at absorbing the results of scientific research and advanced technology both from foreign countries and internally, especially from the big cities, big enterprises, institutes of higher education, scientific research organs and the military industry units. Then, the results and technology are digested and applied. In transplanting our own advanced technology, it is necessary to build up a new socialist relationship of coordination and cooperation, respect other people's fruits of labor and be determinedly against the technical blockade under whatever pretext.

In the medium-sized and small cities, the scientific and technological power is distributed among the industry department, institutes of higher education, military industry units and organizations of scientific researches. It is necessary to establish combined organizations, develop joint research, carry out interflow of and cooperation in technological research experience and to provide enquiry services so that these forces are organized into fists. In this way, they can serve local scientific development.

The masses of scientific and technological personnel and scientific and technological departments at various levels in the medium-sized and small cities let us enthusiastically respond to the call of the 12th CPC National Congress, actively take part in the great practice of the socialist modernization, actively take part in the forefront of the agricultural and industrial production and make substantial contributions to the implementation of "quadrupling the gross annual value of agricultural and industrial production."

CIRCULAR ISSUED ON UNITY OF NATIONALITIES CAMPAIGN

OW010951 Beijing Domestic Service in Mandarin 0400 GMT 23 Oct 82

[Excerpts] The Ministry of Radio and Television and the State Nationalities Affairs Commission have jointly issued a circular to departments concerned in various localities across the nation.

The circular says, in order to implement the guidelines of the 12th CPC Congress, further propagate the party's policy toward nationalities, strengthen the unity of nationalities and open up new vistas in nationalities work, the State Nationalities Affairs Commission and the Ministry of Radio and Television have decided to jointly sponsor a nationwide campaign to solicit articles on the unity of nationalities.

The main contents of articles to be solicited are:

1. Deeds of model individuals and advanced units or examples displaying noble communist ideals and morality that reflect quality, mutual cooperation, unity, friendship and mutual respect and support among the various fraternal nationalities in their joint efforts to build a socialist material and spiritual civilization during the new period of opening up new vistas for socialist modernization.

2. Reports on major contributions made by people of various fraternal nationalities in the four modernizations as well as profound changes that have taken place in regions of various fraternal nationalities.

3. Reports featuring the various nationalities' outstanding culture and arts and their rich and colorful lives.

4. Short, incisive speeches or article in simple language that use the Marxist-Leninist viewpoint to analyze and reason out real life problems in nationality relations.

Noted figures will be invited to form an evaluation and selection committee with personnel from the State Nationalities Affairs Commission and the Ministry of Radio and Television as its major components to be responsible for leading and guiding the article-soliciting activities and for the evaluation and selection of articles.

Articles selected will be aired by the Central People's Broadcasting Station in its Han, Mongolian, Tibetan, Uygur, Kazakh, Korean and other language programs and will be carried by the ZHONGGUO GUANGBO DIANSHI YUEKAN [CHINESE RADIO AND TELEVISION MONTHLY] and the MINZU TUANJIE ZAZHI [NATIONALITIES UNITY JOURNAL] with remunerations for their authors.

A prize-awarding meeting will be held in Beijing in September next year. Authors in Beijing who take part in the article-soliciting campaign, personnel from units responsible for nationalities propaganda work and influential personages of various nationalities residing in Beijing will be invited to attend the meeting.

INCREASE IN QUALITY OF HIGHER EDUCATION NOTED

OW040531 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1213 GMT 2 Nov 82

[Excerpts] Beijing, 2 Nov (XINHUA) -- It is learned from the Ministry of Education that institutes for higher learning throughout the country have successfully fulfilled their 1982 admission plans by admitting a total of 355,000 new students.

According to an analysis by institutes for higher learning in various localities in summing up admission work, the quality of new students admitted this year has universally improved. This is due to the fact that the principle of conducting all-round examination in the light of moral, intellectual and physical training and of accepting applicants of excellent standing was upheld

1. The political quality is good. The number of three good students and fine student cadres increased noticeably among new students admitted by some of the key institutes.

2. The level of general knowledge is high. For example, new students admitted by Qinghua University scored an average of 483.4 points in the general examination; those who scored over 500 points totaled 30 percent.

3. The ratio of outstanding athletes among new students has increased.

4. The number of new students admitted this year by agricultural and forestry, water conservancy, mining, petroleum and geological institutes, based on the student's first preference, occupied the majority. The number of new students admitted, based on students' first preference, is as follows: Beijing Forestry Institute, 80 percent; Shandong Agricultural College, 92.5 percent; anf Fuxin Mining Institute, 75.4 percent.

5. The ratio of students from counties and townships and rural areas has increased noticeably. For example, 20 percent of the new students admitted by Beijing University came from the farm; 2 years ago, the number of new students from the farm was under 10 percent.

All this shows that the quality of middle school education in the rural areas is continually improving.

MACHINE-BUILDING INDUSTRY MEETING CLOSES 31 OCT

OW030427 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1145 GMT 31 Oct 82

[Excerpts] Beijing, 31 Oct (XINHUA) -- The national meeting on machine-building industrial planning came to a close on 31 October. The meeting pointed out that the machine-building industry should fully play its role as an equipment supply department and properly advance its development in order to produce advanced and practical technical equipment for various economic sectors years ahead of schedule.

For this reason, the meeting decided: In the next 10 years, the machine-building industry must make a fairly big breakthrough in improving the quality and increasing the variety of products. The quality of mechanical and electrical products must be raised to meet current international standards. In order to increase the variety of products, the machine-building industry must attain the same technological level as that of the developed industrial countries in the late 1970's and early 1980's. It must accelerate the upgrading of those products in great demand and strive to become capable of supplying advanced typical and practical technical equipment to various economic sectors before the 1990's.

There are over 10,000 machine-building industrial enterprises, with a total of some 70,000 machine tools, in China. However, our machine-building industry cannot satisfy the needs of various economic sectors and remains a conspicuous contradiction, because its products are poor in quality and small in variety and its technological level is low. Therefore, it must adopt new, advanced technology in order to fulfill its strategic tasks. It must rely on technical progress to improve the backward situation of its enterprises and produce products of good quality, great variety and high technological level.

The meeting studied some concrete measures for accelerating technical progress in the machine-building industry. The measures primarily include using economic means and administrative intervention to encourage enterprises to adopt new techniques, develop new products and gradually eliminate backward old products; application of general international quality standards on products developed after the beginning of 1983 in order to remarkably improve the quality of machinery products; making technical transformation of current enterprises and scientific institutes in connection with the production of major products urgently needed by the staff; paying attention to tackling technical problems and the development of energy saving products and complete sets of large equipment; properly importing some advanced and practical production technology and seriously assimilating it; and paying attention to intellectual development and expanding the contingent of scientists and technicians.

COAL IMPORT-EXPORT MEETING CLOSES 29 OCT

OW030101 Beijing Domestic Service in Mandarin 1200 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Text] The reporter of this station has learned from the national coal import-export work meeting, which closed in Beijing on 29 October, that in the near future, China will use foreign capital to build 16 large coal shafts in mining districts in Shanxi, Shandong, Anhui and Nei Monggol.

In recent years, the coal industrial front has made remarkable achievements in using foreign capital to develop coal mining and the import-export trade. So far, foreign capital has contributed to the production of several thousand tons of coal. The total volume of coal imports and exports is increasing year by year. The State Council recently decided that the coal industry should be the first to take action in connection with the reform of the foreign trade system. A China Coal Import-Export General Corporation has been established. Following the unified plans and policies of the state, the general corporation handles unified business in coal imports and exports and in using foreign capital, integrates industry with trade, combines imports with exports and coordinate production, supply and marketing. In this way, it has organically integrated the coal import-export trade, coal mining, the import of coal-mining technology and the use of foreign capital in the coal industry and enabled the flexible use of coal resources, the gradual increase of exports while the domestic need is guaranteed, and the setting up of export bases in localities with abundant coal resources and adequate transportation. This practice of using exports to support imports and imports to promote exports will help improve the backward situation in the coal industry, accelerate its development and promote international trade.

PLAN TO IMPROVE COAL PROCESSING, OUTPUT REPORTED

HK030205 Beijing CHINA DAILY in English 3 Nov 82 p 3

[Text] China plans to raise her level of coal processing and utilization in order to double her annual coal output of 600 million tons by the end of the century, according to Hao Fengyin, director of the Coal Processing and Utilization Bureau of the Ministry of Coal Industry.

Hao spoke at the newly inaugurated China Coal Processing and Utilization Association, which is composed of coal producers and consumers.

He said plans include:

-- Mechanized coal washing and processing.

-- Developing multi-purpose utilization of coal by-products. Greater use of coal refuse and gangue for chemicals and building materials. Mining areas are encouraged to produce more molded coal for home and industrial consumption and to build power plants fueled by coal of low caloric value.

-- Upgrading techniques for coal processing, rational utilization and revamping of existing processing plants.

-- Carrying out feasibility studies on coal gasification, liquefaction, coking and chemical extraction in the decade to come.

At present, Hao said, coal gasification experiments are being carried out in Shenyang, a heavy industrial city in northeast China, Taiyuan in Shanxi Province, the nation's leading coal producer, and Yantai in Shandong Province.

China is the world's third largest coal producer, at an annual 620 million tons, just behind the United States, at 805 million tons, and the Soviet Union at 704 million tons.

There are now 110 coal washing plants, with a total annual dressing capacity of 110 million tons. Though mechanized coal dressing was introduced in recent years, present capacity is still not commensurate with the gross national output.

By the end of 1981, the director said, China's coal departments had modernized 530 old boilers. A number of power plants fueled by low caloric value coal have gone into operation. The power plant at Yongrong mining administration in Sichuan Province reduced its costs by 40 percent while increasing output by 200 per cent after modernizing all its boilers.

Coal departments have established 451 kilns and cement plants using gangue, bone coal and coal refuse as raw materials, producing 1,500 million bricks and tiles and more than 500,000 tons of cement each year.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT OF SEAPORTS URGED

OW21753 Beijing XINHUA in English 1251 GMT 2 Nov 82

[Text] Tianjin, November 2 (XINHUA) -- Economists have proposed that economic bases be established in China's seaport cities to produce export commodities with raw materials from the country's interior.

This would help boost the economy and technology in the nation's interior and make better use of advanced equipment and the large technical force in seaport cities, they said at a coastal urban economic forum that closed here yesterday.

The economists also suggested that China's coastal cities seek to attract more foreign funds and import more raw materials and technology through such flexible forms as processing with supplied materials and samples, compensatory trade and establishment of Chinese-foreign joint ventures.

Foreign funds and technology should be used to upgrade existing enterprises, replace outdated equipment and develop sophisticated high-precision and quality products, they said.

The economists called for improving the harbors, transportation, posts and telecommunications, municipal works and housing in coastal cities, and providing banking, economic information and consulting services.

Attending the forum were more than 100 theoretical workers and representatives from research and planning institutes and industrial, finance and import and export departments in Beijing, Tianjin, Shanghai, Dalian, Qingdao, Guangzhou, Xiamen and Shenzhen.

PLA LEADERS VISIT INJURED BEIJING POLICEWOMAN

OW040145 Beijing Domestic Service in Mandarin 1200 GMT 2 Nov 82

[Text] On the morning of 2 November Chi Haotian, deputy chief of the PLA General Staff, and Yan Jinsheng, deputy director of the PLA General Political Department, visited (Zhou Yi), a civilian policewoman and retired armywoman who has been hospitalized in Beijing Hospital because of injuries received while trying to save another's life. The PLA leading comrades told Comrade (Zhou Yi): We are visiting you on behalf of the commanders and fighters of the whole army. Your heroic deeds are very moving. You are the pace setter in building socialist spiritual civilization. The commanders and fighters of the whole army and broad masses of retired armymen should learn from you. An excited Comrade (Zhou Yi) repeatedly thanked the PLA leaders for their kind concern and vowed to take good care of herself during her convalescence in order to return to work as soon as possible.

HU QIAOMU BACKS ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE RESEARCH

OW030525 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1323 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, 30 Oct (XINHUA) — The third national artificial intelligence forum of the China Artificial Intelligence Society was held in Beijing from 26 to 30 October. In his congratulatory message to the forum, Hu Qiaomu, member of the CPC Central Committee Political Bureau, said: "I support research in artificial intelligence, because it is a promising work of great significance in both theoretical and practical work. I hope work in this field will develop successfully in China."

Artifical intelligence is a new comprehensive, peripheral science. It involves research on the use of electronic computers and automated equipment to extend man's mental and motive abilities. Moreover, it is closely related to other branches of science, such as computer science, automation, phsychology, philology, the theory of control through mathematical logig, information theory, bionics and philosophy. This shows that natural sciences are bound to develop in integration with social sciences. Intensifying research in this field is very important to China's socialist modernization drive.

In recent years, natural and social science research units and some colleges and universities in China have begun to conduct step by step research on the theory and application of artificial intelligence and have explored its application in theorems vertification, medical diagnosis, experts' classification work and teaching with the aid of computers. Their achievements in this respect have drawn the attention of the party and the state. Institutes and personnel engaged in research in artifical intelligence have increased considerably. Internal and international academic exchanges between scientists in this field are increasing.

At the forum, more than 130 experts, professors and specialized personnel from various areas extensively discussed questions concerning expression of knowledge, the treatment of natural languages, the knowledge of science and the philisophy of artificial intelligence.

DENG LIQUN REPORT READ AT MATERIALISM MEETING

OW030546 Beijing Domestic Service in Mandarin 1200 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] The first annual meeting of the All-China Societv of Historical Materialism ended in Qingdao Minicipality on 30 October. A report by Deng Liqun, member of the CPC Central Committee's Secretariat and director of the CPC Central Committee's Propaganda Department, on studying the opening speech at the 12th CPC National Congress was read at the meeting.

Participants at the meeting enthusiastically discussed such questions as how to build a socialist spiritual civilization, how to recognize the characteristic of a socialist society and the laws of socialist construction, how to recognize the characteristic of class struggle at the present stage in China, as well as questions of productivity and relations of production encountered in the system of responsibility for agricultural production and the transformation of the economic system.

CORRECTION TO FAMILY PLANNING CONFERENCE HELD

A correction should be made to the the item entitled "Family Planning Propaganda Work Conference Held" found on page K 20 of the 3 November DAILY REPORT. Qian Xinzhong was incorrectly identified as vice chairman of the State Family Planning Commission. He is the chairman of that body.

FUJIAN'S XIANG NAN MEETS NAGASAKI GOVERNOR

HK 041108 Beijing ZHONGGUO XINWEN SHE in Chinese 0820 GMT 2 Nov 82

[Text] Fuzhou, 2 Nov (ZHONGGUO XINWEN SHE)-- At the invitation of the China-Japan Friendship Association and Fujian Province, Japan's Nagasaki Prefecture Governor Isamu Takada, his wife (Tsukasako) Takada and his four-member entourage arrived in Fuzhou on 31 October in the company of Sun Pinghua, vice president of the China-Japan Friendship Association. They were greeted at the airport by Fujian Provincial Governor Ma Xingyuan, the governor's wife and responsible persons of departments concerned. On the evening of that very day, the Fujian provincial government gave a banquet in honor of the guests.

A Fujian provincial friendship delegation led by Governor Ma Xingyuan recently visited Japan's Nagasaki Prefecture and established friendly ties between Fujian Province and Nagasaki Prefecture. Now Governor Isamu Takada and his entourage are visiting Fujian; when the guests and the host see each other, the hearts of both the guests and the host are especially warm.

Prior to holding the banquet, Fujian Provincial People's Congress Standing Committee Chairman Xiang Nan, Governor Ma Xingyuan and the governor's wife called on the guests at the guesthouse. Chairman Xiang Nan extended a warm welcome to Governor Isamu Takada and his entourage.

JIANGSU'S XU JIATUN VISITS OUTSTANDING ATHLETES

OW042325 Nanjing Jiangsu Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Excerpts] On the morning of 3 November, leading comrades of the provincial party committee and provincial government went to the Nanjing physical culture college to see the athletes and coaches of the province's outstanding sports teams currently receiving winter training.

Leading comrades of the provincial party committee and provincial government, Xu Jiatun, Liu Lin, Han Peixin and Gu Xiulian, happily viewed the training of outstanding athletes in 19 events. They paid a visit to the ball, shooting, boating, fencing, track and field, swimming, diving, weightlifting, bicycle, wrestling and (?chess) teams.

At the volleyball building, the coach introduced a new woman volleyball player, (Chen Shenglan), who is 14 years old and 184 centimeters tall. Comrade Xu Jiatun said Do a good job in training and produce a few more Sun Jinfang's [captain of PRC women s volleyball team]

REMNANT FACTIONAL FORCES CAUSE TROUBLE IN JIANGSU

OW031106 Nanjing XINHUA RIBAO in Chinese 20 Oct 82 p 2

[Report by XINHUA RIBAO correspondents Ye Bailing and Zhao Shaolong]

[Excerpts] In the spring of this year, a serious incident of obstructing judicial personnel from performing their duties occurred in Dongtai County. This was a serious trouble caused by a handful of persons who rose to prominence by "rebellion" and ganged up into a faction. Recently, the troublemakers were punished by law. The Dongtai County party committee issued a circular on the case, calling on all party members and cadres in the country to draw lessons from it, earnestly solve the problem of serious impurities in some grassroots leading bodies and resolutely remove the "five types of people" from leading posts at all levels.

The source of the trouble was Pan Changxiu, formerly party branch secretary of the Xinnan production brigade, Chengdong Commune, Dongtai County. Pan Changxiu rose to prominence by "rebellion" and usurped the leadership of the production brigade during the 10 years of domestic turmoil. He excluded those who disagreed with him, surrounded himself with trusted followers, formed a faction and committed all kinds of crimes. He unlawfully had many members of the production brigade tied, strung up, beaten and locked up. He engaged in graft and embezzlement, appropriated public funds and property at will and indulged in extravagant eating and drinking.

An investigation was conducted by the county people's procuratorate. On 5 August 1981 Pan Chqangxiu was arrested on charges of illegal detention and corruption. On 25 December 1981 the county people's court sentenced him to 1 year's imprisonment with a 2-year reprieve on the condition that he be placed under surveillance in a production team. On his release, on 27 December, certain persons from the Xinnan production brigade and the production team made a special trip to the county seat to greet him and accompanied him to a restaurant to eat and drink. When he returned to the production brigade, firecrackers were set off to greet his arrival. Lu Shigen, former deputy secretary of the Chengdong Commune party committee who made serious mistakes in the "Cultural Revolution" and current deputy director of the Dafeng County power supply bureau, and Fang Pengyan, deputy director of the people's armed forces department of the Chengdong Commune, even went to Pan's home by jeep to offer their sympathies. At home, Pan Changxiu absolutely refused surveillance. During the spring festival, he was invited out to many places and established contacts everywhere. Again blinded by the lust for gain, he committed a new crime by swindling more than 900 yuan in cash in the name of the collective.

In view of Pan's bad conduct in the reprieve period, the county judicial organ decided on 25 February this year to take him into custody and try him again. On that day, when county judicial and public security personnel arrived at the Xinnan production brigade to carry out their duties, a few persons there had the impudence to obstruct them. By their instigation, the prison van was surrounded, its windows were smashed, its rear door hinges were broken, its sides were torn up and its right front and rear tires were deflated. Nine judicial personnel were surrounded and attacked for more than 4 hours. As a result, Pan was not taken into custody on that day.

After the incident, the Yancheng prefectural party committee and Dongtai County party committee dispatched a work team to the Chengdong Commune and the team did a lot of work. The Pan Changxiu case was retired by the Dongtai County people's court, and Pan was given an 8-year prison sentence according to the law. The Dongtai County party committee decided to expel Pan Changxiu from the party and dismiss him from his post as party branch secretary.

Lu Shigen and Fang Pengyan sympathized with and supported the criminal Pan Changxiu and attempted to absolve him from guilt. They had a certain influence leading to the serious case of obstruction of law enforcement. Disciplinary actions have been taken against them by the party and government according to the gravity of their mistakes. The Dafeng County party committee decided to expel Lu Shigen from the party and recommended that he be removed from all administrative positions. The Chengdong Commune party committee, Dongtai County, decided to give Comrade Fang Pengyan a serious warning within the party, and the decision was reported to and approved by the county disciplinary inspection commission.

Recently, the Dongtai County party committee issued a circular to the whole county on the Pan Changxiu case and the serious incident of obstructing judicial personnel from carrying out their duties. The circular points out: The Xinnan production brigade incident was incited by remnant factional forces and a handful of criminals. Those who rose to prominence by following Lin Biao, Jiang Qing and company in "rebellion," who are seriously factionalist in their ideas and who have indulged in beating, smashing and looting will make trouble when they have an opportunity. These people are extremely dangerous. They are hidden trouble for the four modernizations. The leadership at various levels must have a clear understanding that it is necessary to firmly expose and seriously deal with their disruptive activities and to resolutely remove from leading posts at various levels these people and those who oppose the line followed by the party Central Committee since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee as well as those who have seriously violated law and discipline.

The circular also calls on the vast numbers of party members and cadres to further improve their work style, strengthen education on the legal system among the masses and bring about a further turn for the better in the standard of social conduct and social order.

PLA HOLDS INTELLECTUAL WORK FORUM IN NANJING

OW020846 Nanjing XINHUA RIBAO in Chinese 23 Oct 82 p 1

[Text] An intellectual work forum held by the communications department under the PLA General Staff Headquarters opened in Nanjing 21 October. The purpose of the forum is to review further implementation of the policies concerning the intellectuals and sum up and exchange experience in the work concerning the intellectuals in light of the guidelines of the 12th CPC National Congress.

Feng Zheng, director of the Political Department under the PLA General Staff Headquarters, spoke at the forum.

JIANGXI CLASS ON CONGRESS DOCUMENTS OPENS

OW021345 Nanchang Jiangxi Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Text] The first class for leading cadres of provincial offices to study the documents of the 12th CPC National Congress opened today. Present at the opening ceremony were Fu Yutian, secretary of the provincial party committee; Di Sheng, deputy secretary of the provincial party committee; Wang Zhaorong, standing committee member of the provincial party committee; and Yu Ling and (Liu Feng), deputy director of the propaganda department and deputy director of the organizational department of the provincial party committee, respectively: Some 340 cadres are attending the first class.

The provincial party committee has decided: From 1 November 1982 to the end of January 1983, three classes for leading cadres of provincial offices to study the 12th CPC National Congress documents will be held. The trainees will study Comrade Deng Xiaoping's opening speech to the 12th CPC National Congress as the general guidance and take Comrade Hu Yaobang's report "Create a New Situation in All Fields of Socialist Modernization" and the CPC Constitution as main subjects of study. They will also study works by Marx, Engels, Lenin, Stalin and Mao Zedong; selected important documents since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee; and selected works by Deng Xiaoping, articles by Chen Yun and other relevant materials.

Fu Yutian, secretary of the provincial party committee, addressed the opening ceremony. He expounded on the significance and objective of the classes to study the 12th CPC National Congress documents. He urged the trainees primarily to rely on self-study, do intensive reading and comprehensively, accurately and thoroughly understand the basic guidelines of the 12th CPC National Congress documents. He called on the trainees to enhance their understanding of the guiding principles for our party's struggle, raise their consciousness of communist ideology and further firm their belief in the basic theories of Marxism-Leninism and Mao Zedong Thought and in lofty communist ideals. He asked them to strengthen their trust in the party Central Committee, identify themselves politically to a high degree with the party Central Committee and further heighten their confidence in accomplishing the grand strategic objective and in achieving three fundamental turns for the better as put forward by the 12th CPC National Congress.

Secretary Fu Yutian also urged the trainees to suggest ways and means, in the course of study, for quadrupling total annual industrial and agricultural output value, consciously implement the principles and policies laid down by the 12th CPC National Congress and strive to create a new situation of socialist modernization in Jiangxi Province.

SHANDONG'S BAI RUBING AT TABLE TENNIS EVENT

SK040219 Jinan Shandong Provincial Service in Mandarin 2300 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Excerpts] After a 3-day contest and more than 300 games, the 1982 national table tennis event with the participation of the country's elite players concluded on the evening of 3 November. (Cai Zhenhua), an athlete from Jiangsu Province, won the championship in the men's singles and (Cheng Yinghua), an athlete from Sichuan Province, was the runner-up. (Wang Huiyang), an athlete from Liaoning Province, and (Duan Ning), an athlete from Hebei Province, were the last winners in the men's singles. (Gen Lijuan), an athlet from Hebei Province, won the championship of the women's singles and (Ni Xialian), an athlete from Shanghai Municipality, was the runner-up. (Tian Jing), an athlete from Sichuan Province, and (Xu Baoxiang), an athlete from Hebei Province, were the last winners in the women's singles.

Attending the finals held on the evening of 3 November were leading comrades of the Shandong Provincial CPC Committee, the provincial people's congress standing committee, the provincial people's government and the provincial CPPCC committee, including Bai Rubing, Qin Hezhen, Li Zichao, Xu Leijian, Liu Peng, Chen Lei, Wang Jiechen, Zhu Benzheng, Song Yimin, Liu Zhongqian, Ding Fangming, Li Sijing and Zhang Weicen, as well as leading comrades from the Jinan PLA units, including Fang Zheng. Li Zichao and Ding Fangming awarded prizes to all winners.

LIU HUAQING INSPECTS SHANGHAI NAVY UNITS

OW041423 Shanghai City Service in Mandarin 1130 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Text] According to a report by this station, Navy Commander Liu Huaqing, Navy Political Commissar Li Yaowen and East China Sea Fleet Deputy Commander (Han Zheng) today inspected navy organizations stationed in Shanghai and gave guidelines on their work. They called on the broad masses of commanders and fighters to deepen their study of the documents of the 12th CPC National Congress and struggle hard to speed up the creation of a new situation in the construction of the navy and the building of a modernized, regularized and revolutionized people's navy.

At a little after 7 am, Commander Liu Huaqing and Political Commissar Li Yaowen, accompanied by the leaders of the navy units stationed in Shanghai, inspected more than 600 cadres and fighters of the organizations, toured the units' projects and modern facilities and called on some retired and resigned veteran cadres of the navy units stationed in Shanghai.

Yesterday, Political Commissar Li Yaowen also went further among the units of the fleet where he held forums with the grassroots-level cadres, called on the sailors and investigated the situation in the units' study of the documents of the 12th CPC National Congress and their cooperation in the launching of a submarine-based carrier rocket as well as the fighters' spare-time cultural life.

HONG KONG MAN ARRESTED FOR ESPIONAGE IN SHANGHAI

OW311819 Shanghai City Service in Mandarin 2300 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Shanghai Municipal Public Security Bureau has recently cracked a case of a specially assigned spy and, with the approval of the procuratorate organ, spy (Jian Zhijun) has been arrested according to law, JIEFANG RIBAO reported.

This is one of the counterrevolutionary espionage cases the Shanghai Municipal public security organs have successively uncovered through investigation under the leadership of the party and with the assistance of the masses.

This fact shows that there are indeed hostile elements around who are conducting deliberate activities to subvert and overthrow the socialist system. We must maintain a high degree of alertness and wage a resolute struggle against all sorts of hostile elements and their conspiratorial activities.

It has been learned from public security organs that the cover of (Jian Zhijun), the spy, is principal of the (Marino) language center of Hong Kong and Kowloon and secretary general of the Association of Factories and Firms of Kowloon. From August 1978 to July 1982, he came to Shanghai on five occasions to conduct espionage activities under the instruction of secret service agencies and on the pretext of visiting relatives. On the one hand, he befriended relatives and close friends, giving banquets on many occasions at Shanghai's guesthouses and hotels; on the other hand, he recruited accomplices for conducting his counterrevolutionary activities.

In 1978 he came to Shanghai and lived in the house of (Jiang XX), chief nurse of a certain hospital and, through sexual enticement, made (Jiang XX) the first spy he enlisted in Shanghai. (Zhang XX), a party member cadre of a certain unit in Shanghai, who had been subjected to party disciplinary action and felt discontented, became acquainted with (Jiang Zhijun) through a third person's introduction. Overwhelmed by financial enticement and political instigation, he was eventually made an accomplice of (Jian Zhijun) and slid into the counterrevolutionary abyss to betray the party and the motherland.

The espionage activities of (Jian Zhijun) were on occasion exposed to some people who, either politically insensitive or eager for private gains, took an erroneous attitude of not reporting on the known activities of (Jian Zhijun), thus seriously departing from the correct stand. As early as the first time (Jian Zhijun) came to Shanghai, one of his relatives knew that he was spying but chose not to report to the party organization of his unit or the public security organ. Two CYL members who both knew that (Jian Zhijun) was a spy -- his niece and her boyfriend -- also kept silent. The two virtually covered up the spy's counterrevolutionary activities. This incident deserves great attention.

Spy (Jian Zhijun) has now fallen into the net of justice spread by the people and will be severely handled according to law. The persons involved will also be dealt with in the way they deserve.

ZHEJIANG'S TIE YING ATTENDS MARTIAL ART CEREMONY

OW050233 Hangzhou ZHEJIANG RIBAO in Chinese 28 Oct 82 p 1

[Excerpt] The closing ceremony for the 1982 national martial art exhibition tournament was held at the Zhejiang provincial stadium on the evening of 27 October. Tie Ying, Wang Jiayang, Li Chaolong, Shang Jingcai and other leading comrades of the Zhejiang Provincial CPC Committee and the responsible persons of the departments concerned attended the closing ceremony.

BRIEFS

ZHEJIANG TV RELAY STATIONS -- The Zhejiang provincial broadcasting affairs bureau held a meeting in Ningbo Municipality from 12 to 19 October to discuss the management and planning of the province's low-power TV relay stations. The province has high- and medium-power backbone TV relay stations of more than 1 KW using VHF channels 1 to 12, and has more than 300 TV relay stations of less than 50 watts. Fifty percent of Zhejiang's population can now watch the Zhejiang TV station's programs with good reception; 30 percent can watch the central TV station's programs with good reception. The meeting summed up and exchanged experience in the planning, construction and management of the province's low-power TV relay stations in the past 10 years. It also unified standards and requirements in TV planning and conducted a study on the TV planning work in the province. [Hangzhou Zhejiang Provincial Service in Mandarin 1030 GMT 1 Nov 82 OW]

GUANGDONG VICE GOVERNOR MEETS HONG KONG GROUP

HK050420 Beijing ZHONGGUO XINWEN SHE in Chinese 1451 GMT 4 Nov 82

["Guangdong Provincial Vice Governor Zeng Dingshi Meets Hong Kong Trade Development Council Delegation -- ZHONGGUO XINWEN SHE headline]

[Text] Guangzhou, 4 Nov (ZHONGGUO XINWEN SHE) -- Guangdong Provincial Vice Governor Zeng Dingshi tonight met with a delegation from the Hong Kong Trade Development Council (TDC) led by Y.K. Kan at Dongfang Guesthouse. Zeng Dingshi told the delegation: The industrial and agricultural situation in Guangdong this year has been gratifying; we have reaped a bumper agricultural harvest; both grain output and sugarcane output have topped their highest levels in history; and our total industrial output value has increased by about 8 percent compared with last year. These are foundations for developing trade cooperation between Guangdong and Hong Kong and between Guangdong and Macao. From now on we must further promote our bilateral friendly cooperation.

On the evening of that very day, the Guangdong branch of the China Council for Promotion of International Trade gave a welcome banquet in honor of the delegation.

The Hong Kong TDC delection arrived in Guangzhou today after concluding its visit to Beijing and Shanghai. Tomorrow the parties concerned in Guangdong Province will exchange views on Guangdong-Hong Kong and Guangdong-Macao trade relations with Y.K. Kan and his entourage.

GUANGDONG'S REN ZHONGYI AT ECONOMIC CRIME MEETING

HK280414 Guangzhou Guangdong Provincial Service in Mandarin 2350 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Text] The Guangdong Provincial CPC Committee convened a provincial conference on hitting at serious economic crime in Guangzhou from 20 to 26 October. The conference demanded: Guided by the 12th party congress spirit, we must strengthen leadership, guard against relaxation, make still greater efforts, advance from victory to victory, firmly and consciously launch a sustained struggle to hit at serious economic crime and strive for still greater victories.

The 80 participants included responsible comrades of prefectural and municipal CPC committees and discipline inspection committees, together with a number of responsible comrades of the provincial CPC committee and government organs. Li Jianzhen and Kou Qingyan, responsible comrades of the provincial CPC committee and government, attended the meeting, Provincial CPC committee First Secretary Ren Zhongyi made a speech. Comrade Kou Qingyan delivered a summation.

On the basis of analyzing the situation, affirming the achievements and summing up experiences, the meeting studied and arranged measures for further launching the struggle this winter and next spring in accordance with the 12th party congress spirit.

1. The party committees at all levels must seriously study and resolutely implement the 12th party congress spirit, further understand the great importance of launching this struggle and unswervingly carry out the struggle to the end.

2. We must further strengthen leadership over this struggle.

3. We must continue to concentrate forcces to investigate and handle major and important cases.

4. We must get a good grasp of handling cases, education and rectification and closely integrate the fight against economic crime with stepping up ideological education, straightening out the enterprises and improving management.

5. We must rectify the party work style in close connection with the struggle to hit at economic crime.

After affirming the initial successes of the province in launching this struggle in the past 9 months, Comrade Ren Zhongyi pointed out in his speech: The future tasks remain very arduous and we must by no means relax. We must firmly and consciously unfold this struggle in a sustained way and get a thoroughly good grasp of it.

GUANGDONG CPC MEETING ON ECONOMIC PRINCIPLES

HK290355 Guangzhou Guangdong Provincial Service in Mandarin 2350 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Text] Provincial CPC Committee Secretary Wang Quanguo delivered a report entitled "On the Question of Promoting an All-Round Upsurge in the Socialist Economy" at a report meeting on studying the 12th party congress documents held by the provincial CPC committee on 28 October. In his report Comrade Wang Quanguo focussed on the main points of the road for socialist economic construction with Chinese characteristics.

In brief, these points are as follows: 1) The work focus of the party and state must be firmly centered on economic construction; 2) In economic construction it is essential to proceed from the national condition, act according to our capabilities, work hard and accomplish the goal of socialist modernization by phases and stages; 3) In ownership system, institute the coexistence of various economic forms, taking state-owned economy as the dominant factor, all-people and collective ownership as the basis and a certain degree of individual economy as supplementary; 4) Make all-round arrangements for production, construction and the people's livelihood in accordance with the principle of feeding the people and carrying out construction; 5) Correctly handle the relations between agriculture, light industry and heavy industry in accordance with China's characteristics and establish an economic structure in which the two main production categories develop in a coordinated way; 6) Carry out measured technical reforms aiming at key points, bring into full play the role of the existing enterprises, and embark on a new road of developing production by mainly using internal factors; 7) Actively and steadily improve the economic management system and set up a highly efficient system suited to the national condition that can fully mobilize the initiative of all sectors; 8) Practice the policy of opening up to the world on the basis of upholding self-reliance, and expand external economic and technical exchanges in accordance with the principle of equality and mutual benefit; 9) Great importance must be attached to education, science and technology; 10) To carry out unified planning with due consideration for all concerned and fully mobilize the initiative of all sectors is the most important way to promote an all-round upsurge of socialist economy; 11) Practicing planned parenthood is a basic national strategy.

In his report Comrade Wang Quanguo also demanded that leaders at all levels further study the 12th party congress documents and lead the masses to work with redoubled confidence in creating a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization.

GUANGXI COMMENDS PLA ADVANCED BORDER UNITS

HK050205 Beijing ZHONGGUO XINWEN SHE in Chinese 0953 GMT 4 Nov 82

["Guangxi Commends PLA Frontier Units' Advanced Units, Fighters and Militiamen" -- ZHONGGUO XINWEN SHE headline]

[Text] Nanning, 4 Nov (ZHONGGUO XINWEN SHE) -- The Guangxi Zhuang Autonomous Region and the Guangxi Military District recently held a meeting to commend a number of units, fighters and militiamen who have performed brilliant exploits in promoting border defense, resisting the enemy and promoting frontier construction.

Since 1979, when China was forced to carry out a self-defensive counterattack against Vietnam, Guangxi's border counties and municipalities including Fangcheng, Ningming, Pingxian, Longzhou, Daxing and Napo, which border on Vietnam, have been under constant harassing attacks by Vietnamese troops. According to statistics completed by the Guangxi Military District, the Guangxi PLA border units and militiamen have beaten off more than 270 Vietnamese Army incursions and harassing attacks, both large and small, over the past 3 years. In March this year, when Fishing Boat 1813 and Fishing Boat 1811 of Dijiao Commune, Beihai Municipality, were catching fish in the sea, they were suddenly attacked from three sides by 14 boats of the Vietnamese secret service. While covering the evacuation of Fishing Boat 1811, militiamen on board Fishing Boat 1812 did all they could to launch a counterattack, and concentrated their firepower on counterattacking the enemy's commanding boat. After 13 minutes of fierce fighting, the enemy's commanding boat fled in panic. They also overcome the enemy boats' frontal interception and flank attack and returned victorious to their base. Over the past 3 years, militiamen of Longbang Commune in Jingxi County have beaten off 17 armed harassing attacks by Vietnamese troops. The commune has increased grain output every year with output in 1981 increasing by 2.68 million jin compared with 1980. Grain output during the first half of this year increased by 170,000 jin compared with the same period last year.

During the meeting to give commendations, responsible persons of the Guangxi Zhuang Autonomous Regional CPC Committee, the regional people's government, the regional people's congress and the Guangxi Militiary District awarded commendatory banners, certificates of merit and prizes to 32 advanced units and 16 cadres, fighters and militiamen under the PLA frontier units.

WUHAN PLA COMMAND CARRIES OUT MANEUVERS IN HENAN

HK030925 Zhengzhou Henan Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Summary] On 31 October a certain unit of the Wuhan PLA command carried our maneuvers in a certain place in west Henan.

"Leading comrades of the Wuhan PLA units and the Henan Provincial CPC Committee Zhang Caiqian, Yan Zheng, Liu Jie, (Wu Ruishan), Li Guangjun, (Wang Zhan), (Jiang Wannian), Zheng Zhishi and (Ye Jiaoxia) and responsible comrades of the leading organs of Wuhan PLA units and concerned departments of Henan Province, (Jiang Hanzhang), (Wang Chengmin), (Zhang Shicheng), (Zhang Zhukun) and (Li Shutian) watched the maneuvers. Also present were comrades of the Wuhan PLA conference of military training and local party, political and military leaders."

The present maneuvers are carried out under the inspiration of the spirit of the 12th CPC Congress. The unit undertaking the maneuvers was a unit that achieved meritorious military service. There were also other technical branches, such as artillery, engineer, antichemical corps and airborne units and other units of the air force. The present maneuvers use modern modes of operations to deal with aggressive enemies. There was ample preparation, resolute command and good organization throughout the maneuvers. The armed services participating in the maneuvers closely coordinated and engaged in a fierce battle with tactics of great mobility and fast speed. There was close coordination among the armed services participating in the maneuvers, and they employed the battle tactics of rapid mobility and speed.

The maneuvers fully manifested the characteristics of modern war and indicated that the People's Army is a mighty armed force that is well trained, capable of fighting tough battles and fully dependable.

"At the end of the maneuver, the commander in chief, Comrade Kong Jianli, expressed his feelings: The present maneuvers have been carried out under the inspiration of the spirit of the 12th CPC Congress and with the support of the party committees of various levels. The party has set high demands on the building of our army. In order to strengthen the revolutionization, modernization and regularization of our troops and create a new situation in the military field, we carried out the present joint army and air force maneuvers. Although they were large-scale maneuvers that set high demands and had a great deal of variety to them, everyone acted boldly. The commanders and fighters adhered to the guiding principle of Mao Zedong's military thought, conscientiously studying and comprehending the strategic principles and operational policy of the Central Military Commission. With the close cooperation of the various armed services, we achieved the expected results.

"Through these maneuvers, we gained experience in commanding and organizing attack in mobile warfare, military tactics, strike capability, tactical disposition, coordination of movements, political work and rear services. With our weak points in mind, we must conscientiously sum up experiences and strictly demand and train ourselves so that we can enhance the military quality of our commanders and fighters and create a new situation in the field of military construction."

HENAN'S LIU JIE ATTENDS MILITARY PARADE

HK040257 Zhengzhou Henan Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Summary] A certain unit of the Wuhan PLA units held a grand parade and march-past at a place in western Henan on 2 November, after successfully completing its military exercise. (Zhang Wannian), commander of the unit, reported to responsible comrades of the Wuhan PLA units and Henan Provincial CPC Committee Zhang Caiqian, Liu Jie and Yan Zheng that the parade was ready for inspection. The inspection then followed.

Comrade Zhang Caiqian made a speech. "On behalf of the CPC committee, leading comrades and the organs of the Wuhan PLA units, he extended warm congratulations to all commanders and fighters of the army and air force who had taken part in the exercise. He also sincerely thanked the Henan Provincial CPC Committee and the local government, which had provided great support for the exercise."

Comrade Liu Jie then spoke. He congratulated the unit on the success of its exercise and praised the qualities of the PLA.

A grand march-past followed the parade. Taking part were infantry, paratroopers, engineering troops and antichemical warfare troops. They were followed by artillery, tanks and armored cars.

Also attending the parade were leading comrades of the Wuhan PLA units Wu Ruishan, Li Guangjun, (Wang Zhan), and Zheng Zhishi; responsible comrades of the Wuhan PLA units leading organs Jiang Hanzhang, (Wang Cheetgtin), (Zhang Shicheng) and (Zhang Shukun); leading comrades of Henan Military District Shang Tan and Hu Shangli; and responsible comrades of the PLA units stationed in Henan. Participants in the Wuhan PLA units' conference on training, and local party, government and army leaders also watched the parade and march-past.

HENAN'S LIU JIE SPEAKS AT CADRE STUDY COURSE

HK031216 Zhengzhou Henan Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 2 Nov 82

[Excerpts] In implementing the spirit of the 12th congress, we should continuously heighten our cadres' revolutionary consciousness and steadfastness and bring them into political and ideological unity with the CPC Central Committe. This was put forward by Liu Jie, first secretary of the provincial CPC committee in his recent speech at the closing ceremony of the first provincial study class of leading cadres at and above the level of county CPC committee secretary.

The Henan Provincial CPC Committee places very much stress on leading cadres taking the lead in studying the 12th party congress documents when it organizes the study of the documents. During the past 2 months, a total of 170,000 party member cadres, including provincial, prefectural and county leading cadres, have joined the various levels of the 12th party congress document study classes.

Comrade Liu Jie said that by unity with the CPC Central Committee, we mean, first of all, ideological unity. In order to achieve this, we should strive to heighten our consciousness in implementing the party's principles and policies. The other is political unity. This means that we should adhere to the four basic principles, oppose the interference of leftism and rightism and heighten our steadfastness in implementing the party's principles and policies.

He said that in our study we should not only see the favorable and satisfactory aspects of the situation, but also carefully consider and find, in light of the spirit of the 12th party congress, the major problems in the areas and departments in which we are working and the key to the creation of the new situation. If we grasp the key problems and make breakthroughs in them, we will be able to achieve surprisingly good results. In this study class, people realized the progress Henan has made in all fields since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th CPC Central Committee and also saw that there are the vestiges of leftism in many fields and that many old conventions have not been broken. In studying the quadrupling task, some comrades failed to see the great potential that we can tap through developing science and technology or failed to pay sufficient attention to exploiting and developing our personnel resources. Having made a meticulous calculation, the leading comrades of some county committees have found that even the realization of the quadrupling target cannot raise the living standard in their counties to the level of being well-off because of the extremely low living standard at present. This has put before us a problem that objective reality compels us to explore and look for new fields of production and find new ways to develop production. This requires our leading cadres to further emancipate their minds so as to have a wider and loftier field of vision. Thus, they will be bold to reform and bold to blaze new trails and to break away from the fetters of the out-of-date patterns and conventions. The comrades on all fronts should eagerly seek the great new measures, like the establishment of the responsibility system in our rural areas.

Comrade Liu Jie said that the satisfactory reorganization of our leading groups is the most important organizational guarantee for the creation of a new situation. In selecting and promoting fine middle-aged and young cadres, our party committees at all levels should resolutely implement the significant guiding idea that was put forward by Comrade Chen Yun.

GUIZHOU DISCIPLINE INSPECTION LEADERS MEET

HK290702 Guiyang Guizhou Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 26 Oct 82

[Excerpts] According to our own reporter, a 7-day provincial meeting of secretaries of committees for discipline inspection at the prefectural and municipal levels held by the Guizhou Provincial CPC Committee ended today.

Through this meeting, the participating comrades got a clear understanding of the situation, further defined tasks, inspired enthusiasm and heightened their confidence in checking unhealthy tendencies. More than 60 people attended the meeting, including secretaries of committees for discipline inspection at the prefectural and municipal levels and responsible persons of discipline inspection groups under provincial departments, offices and committees. Attending and speaking at the meeting were Chen Xinggeng, deputy secretary of the provincial CPC committee and secretary of the Committee for Discipline Inspection under the provincial CPC committee; and Luo Ying, executive secretary of the provincial committee for discipline inspection. According to our own reporter, in his speech delivered on 25 October at the provincial meeting of secretaries of committees for discipline inspection at the prefectural and municipal levels, Chen Xinggeng, deputy secretary of the Guizhou Provincial CPC Committee and secretary of the committee for discipline inspection under the provincial CPC committee, discussed ways to achieve a truer party spirit. He stressed the necessity of proceeding from the following four aspects to enforce party discipline and enable our party spirit to take a great turn for the better.

1. Discipline inspection departments at all levels must take the initiative in cooperating with departments concerned to organize party members to study the documents of the 12th national party congress and the new constitution. They must strengthen the building of party spirit among party members and enable every party member to strive to become a qualified party member.

2. We must pay close attention to investigating and handling some glaring cases involving people who were in charge of recruiting workers, assigning work and transferring people from agricultural posts to industrial posts but took advantage of their position and power to hand out jobs to their relatives, sons and daughters, to take bribes, to practice favoritism or to commit irregularities.

3. We must resolutely check unhealthy trends regarding housing construction and the allotment of dwellings. We must seriously handle those people who are indifferent to the weal and woe of the masses, show no consideration for the party's influence, abuse their power, wantonly grab state and collective property, employ public land and manpower to build their private dwellings, practice fraud, deceive their superiors and delude their subordinates, and grab more than their share or forcibly occupy dwellings during the allotment of dwellings.

4. We must promptly investigate and handle cases involving people who violate financial and economic discipline, irresponsibly grant bonuses, make false reports on goods in stock and spend public funds on giving dinners or sending gifts in order to curry favor. We must also promptly handle other violations of the law and breaches of discipline.

According to our reporter, in his speech delivered on 25 October at the provincial meeting of secretaries of committees for discipline inspection at the prefectural and municipal levels, Chen Zinggeng noted: Discipline inspection departments at all levels must conscientiously study the documents of the 12th national party congress and the gist of the relevant instructions issued by the Central Commission for Discipline Inspection. We must inspire enthusiasm, heighten our confidence and continue to deepen the struggle to hit hard at serious economic crimes.

Chen Xinggeng said: This year, the development of our province's struggle to hit hard at serious economic crimes has been healthy and normal. Through this struggle, we have hit hard at a group of economic criminals engaged in graft and embezzlement, in offering and accepting bribes, in speculation and profiteering and in swindling activities; have saved a group of cadres who made serious mistakes in the economic field; and have enabled vast numbers of cadres and the broad masses of the people to receive a practical education in the struggle against corrosive influences. However, we must not lose sight of the fact that a slack mood has emerged in some areas and departments. Therefore, party committees and committees for discipline inspection must do well in carrying out the following three tasks:

1. We must conscientiously study the documents of the 12th national party congress and the gist of the relevant instructions issued by the central authorities, further deepen our understanding and inspire enthusiasm and unswervingly carry through to the end the struggle to hit hard at serious economic crimes.

2. We must concentrate our forces on promoting work in investigating, verifying and winding up serious and key cases.

3. We must strictly implement the party's policies and strike surely, accurately and relentlessly at criminals.

SICHUAN LEADERS ATTEND COMMENDATION CEREMONY

HK290222 Chengdu Sichuan Provincial Service in Mandarin 2300 GMT 28 Oct 82

[Summary] The provincial government and the Chengdu PLA units held a rally on 28 October to award titles of "models in cherishing the people" to the martyrs (Chen Taijiang) and (Deng Yihe) and "model in supporting the government" to (Wen Bangwen), who acted with great heroism when helping each other in a methane poisoning incident in Luzhou Municipality. The rally called on the army and people of the whole province to learn from them as practical action in building socialist spiritual civilization.

"Present at the rally were responsible comrades of the provincial CPC committee, people's congress standing committee, people's government and CPPCC, Chengdu Municipal CPC Committee and people's government Tan Qilong, Lu Dadong, Yang Rudai, Tian Bao, Nie Ronggui, Qin Chuanhou, Liu Yunbo, Ji Chunguang, Peng Dixian, Qiao Zhimin, Guan Xuesi, (Bai Yan), Li Xiangshan and Hu Maozhou. Also present were Chengdu PLA units Commander Wang Chenghan, Deputy Commanders Chen Mingyi, Yuan Shouqing and Zhang Zhili, Deputy Political Commissar Niu Ji, and Chief of Staff (Yang Zengtong)."

Commander Wang Chenghan read out the order of the Chengdu PLA units CPC Committee awarding the titles "models in cherishing the people" to (Chen Taijiang) and (Deng Yihe). Provincial CPC committee Second Secretary and Governor Lu Dadong read out the provincial government's order awarding the title "model in supporting the army" to (Wen Bangwen).

BANQEN ERDINI ARRIVES IN ABA PREFECTURE, SICHUAN

HK220339 Chengdu Sichuan Provincial Service in Mandarin 2300 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Summary] Having concluded his visit to Gannan Tibetan Autonomous Prefecture, Banqen Erdini, vice chairman of the NPC Standing Committee, arrived in Aba Tibetan Autonomous Prefecture, Sichuan, on 21 October. Liu Haiquan, vice governor; (Li Zhanlin), deputy director of the provincial CPC committee united front department; Zhaxi Zeren, chairman of the provincial nationalities committee; (A Deng), first secretary of the Aba Prefectural CPC Committee; (Ze Rong), chairman of the prefectural people's congress standing committee; (Dan Deng), secretary of the prefectural CPC committee; and other responsible comrades met him in (Chonger) Commune in Ruoergai County.

Liu Haiquan said to Banqen Erdini: "You have come to inspect our province just when we are implementing the spirit of the 12th party congress. This is a stimulus for work in the province's minority-nationality areas. I hope that you will give valuable opinions on work in the province during your inspection."

Banqen Erdini said to a Sichuan radio reporter: "My aim in making this visit is to promote further harmony in party, masses and cadre-masses relations, mobilize enthusiasm in all quarters, and stimulate the people of all nationalities to do still better in building the four modernizations under the guidance of the 12th party congress spirit."

During his visit Banqen will visit Ruoergai, Hongyuan, Aba, Maerkang and Maowen Counties.

SICHUAN PLA MEETING VIEWS SLACK DOCUMENT STUDY

HK220359 Chengdu Sichuan Provincial Service in Mandarin 2300 GMT 21 Oct 82

[Excerpts] Sichuan Military District held a telephone conference on the evening of 21 October, which demanded that all units and militia overcome slack tendencies, study the 12th party congress documents in greater depth and contribute to creating a new situation in all fields of socialist construction.

Song Kaiyuan, political commissar of the military district, spoke on behalf of the military district CPC committee. He said: In the previous stage the units and militia in the military district did well in studying the 12th party congress documents. The party committees at all levels grasped this work promptly and effectively. However, slack tendencies have also appeared among the PLA units and militia. They say that as they have read and discussed the documents, there is not much study left to be done.

Comrade Song Kaiyuan said: Slack tendencies affect the in-depth study of the 12th party congress documents. In order to overcome these tendencies, we must first enhance people's understanding of the importance of the 12th party congress. Second, we must correctly handle the relationship between studying the documents and the current tasks of recruitment, training, retirement and so on and truly place study in the primary position.

Comrade Song Kaiyuan said: In order to study the 12th party congress documents in depth, the party committees at all levels must check on the situation in study in the previous stage. Leaders at all levels must go down to the grassroots and help the cadres, fighters and militia to study the 12th party congress documents, personally give guidance lessons and answer the questions raised.

Study must be carried out in close connection with people's actual state of mind, with the emphasis on solving problems of confidence. By linking study to the tremendous changes in their own area and unit since the 3d plenary session of the 11th Central Committee, people should strengthen their confidence, brace their spirits and strive to fulfill the combat tasks put forward by the 12th party congress.

YIN FATANG VISITS XIZANG MIDDLE SCHOOL TEACHERS

HK040703 Lhasa Xizang Regional Service in Mandarin 1130 GMT 3 Nov 82

[Summary] Recently, when Yin Fatang, first secretary of the Xizang Regional CPC Committee, went to northern Xizang to convey the spirit of the 12th CPC National Congress, he made a special trip to the Nagqu middle school to visit the teachers who came from Liaoning Province to help Xizang develop education. He requested that the prefectural leaders show concern for the teachers work and daily life and help them solve their difficulties. He also urged the teachers to report their difficulties to the leaders so that they could be solved with the latter's help.

"Comrade Yin Fatang encouraged the teachers to make new contributions to education in Xizang. He said that one of the strategic stresses of economic development formulated by the 12th CPC National Congress is education and science. Since the cultural and educational level in Xizang is rather low, it needs support from various parts of the country. Now Liaoning and some other provinces and cities have sent a number of teachers to Xizang to help this region. They are all working in the norther part of Xizang, where conditions are very hard. We must learn from their spirit. We are very grateful for the support of Liaoning and other provinces and cities. We must do a good job in developing cultural and educational work in Xizang and fight to create a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization."

XIZANG POSTPONES PEOPLE'S CONGRESS SESSION

HK300601 Lhasa Xizang Regional Service in Mandarin 0000 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Summary from poor reception] The 15th meeting of the 3d Xizang Regional People's Congress Standing Committee concluded on 28 October. Present were committee Vice Chairman Hu Zonglin, Wang Yunxiang, and Duojiecaidan, and Secretary General Namgyal, together with 20 standing committee members. Over 50 persons attended as observers. The meeting adopted a resolution on postponing the first session of the fourth regional people's congress and discussed and adopted a resolution on delaying elections in communes, Xiang and townships in the region.

Regional CPC committee first secretary Yin Fatang spoke at the meeting. He said: "The work of the people's congresses becomes more important in the wake of the continuous development of socialist construction. I hope that the party committees at all levels will attach importance to the work of the congresses and also strengthen leadership over it. However, party leadership cannot take the place of people's congress work. Legislation is an important task of the regional people's congress. There is a difference between laws and policies and we cannot replace the law with party policy. We must let the people's congress standing committees at all levels fully play their role and local state power organs."

The resolution on postponing the first session of the fourth regional people's congress said: The term of office of the third regional people's congress expired last November and a session should be held this year. However, as the region covers a vast area and communications are poor, it is not easy to complete the preparatory work for convening a people's congress. The meeting therefore decided that the first session of the fourth regional people's congress will be postponed until April 1983. The municipalities and counties should make preparations for this session.

The resolution on delaying elections in communes, Xiang and townships in Xizang said that elections in these units will be delayed until the end of 1983.

XIZANG'S YIN FATANG AT BUDDHIST CONGRESS

HK030612 Lhasa Xizang Regional Service in Mandarin 1130 GMT 2 Nov 82

[Excerpts] After 10 days in session, the 4th congress of the Xizang branch of the Buddhist Association of China closed in Lhasa on 31 October. Pagbalha Geleg Namgya, vice president of the Buddhist Association of China and honorary president of the Xizang branch of the association; Jampel Tinley, president of the Xizang branch of the association; Shegqen Losang Gyancan, (Shejikansu Lunzhutankai), Samding Doje Pamo (female), Tudun Tangba and (Duojizha Jiangbailuosang), vice presidents of the branch; members of the branch's council; members of the branch's standing council and other delegates to the congress; 155 persons in all, attended the congress.

Yin Fatang, Zhang Xiangming, Yang Dongsheng, Jipu Pingouo Cideng, Zheng Ying and other responsible comrades of the regional CPC committee, the regional people's congress, the regional people's government, the regional CPPCC and the united front work department of the regional CPC committee attended the closing meeting.

Yin Fatang, first secretary of the regional CPC committee, spoke at the meeting. He extended to the congress the regional party committee's warm congratulations on its success. After making an overall review of and giving an overall account of the experiences and lessons of the region in implementing the policy related to freedom of religious belief, he said that the Buddhist association should help the party and the government in propagating and implementing the party's religious policy, act as a bridge between the party and the masses of religious believers, help the broad masses of religious believers and the persons in religious circles to continuously heighten their patriotic and socialist consciousness, organize religious activities, satisfactorily handle the relationships between religious activities and the work in other fields and thus make more and greater contributions in building a new united, rich and civilized Xizang.

During the congress, the delegates freely experessed their views and their satisfaction at the results of the work which the Buddhist circle has done over the past 19 years in helping the government to implement its religious policies and put forth many ideas and suggestions on the major issues in the Buddhist association's future work.

The congress examined and approved the work report and the constitution of the 3d standing council of the Xizang branch of the Buddhist Association of China. It elected a new council and leaders of the branch and approved the resolution of this congress.

(Bizhu Jiangbaigesang), vice president of the Xizang branch of the Buddhist Association of China, gave a closing speech. He hoped that when the delegates returned home they would conscientiously help the people's governments and relevant departments at all levels in the overall and correct implementation of the party's religious policy.

After the congress closed, Yin Fatang, Zhang Xiangming, Yang Dongsheng, Jipu Pingcuo Cideng, Zheng Ying and other regional CPC and government leading comrades received and took pictures with all the congress delegates.

The congress elected Pagbalha Geleg Namgyai as honorary president of the Xizang branch; Jampel Tinley as president; Shegqen Losang Gyancan, (Shejikansu Lunzhutankai), Samding Doje Pamo (female), Tudun Tangba, (Duojizha Jiangbailuosang); (Bizhu Jiangbaigesang), (Rezhen Danshengjinmei), (Tiemolin Sanjinqilie), (Dazha Dandengelie), (Jibagansu Lozangmenlong), (Lunding Gawa), (Dajia Duojizhandong) and (Gansu Pudeng Gijijianzhan) as vice presidents and (Tiemolin Sanjinqilie) as concurrent secretary general.

YUNNAN'S AN PINGSHENG INSPECTS NEW STOVES

HK230332 Kunming Yunnan Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 22 Oct 82

[Summary] The science and technical committee, economics committee and finance office of Wenshan Autonomous Prefecture recently organized a meeting to assess new-style stoves in Qiubei County, to popularize the new stoves and save energy. An assistant engineer in this county has successfully trial-produced various new stoves in recent years suited for use inoffices, organizations and people's homes. The heat efficiency of many of these stoves is good.

Yunnan Provincial CPC Committee First Secretary An Pingsheng viewed these stoves in the county and called for their vigorous popularization so as to save energy.

KUNMING COURT SENTENCES LIN, JIANG FOLLOWERS

HK310202 Kunming Yunnan Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Text] In accordance with Article 117 of the law of criminal procedure, the criminal court of the Kunming Municipal Intermediate People's Court publicly tried Huang Zhaoqi, Liu Yinnong, (Hu Yanguan) and (Tu Xiaolei), criminal followers of the Lin Biac and Jiang Qing counterrevolutionary cliques in Yunnan, from 18 to 29 April and issued its judgment on the latter date. The renegade Huang Zhaoqi was sentenced to 18 years imprisonment and 4 years deprivation of political rights. The renegade Liu Yinnong was sentenced to 17 years imprisonment and 4 years deprivation of political rights. The renegade (Hu Yanguan) was sentenced to 13 years imprisonment and 3 years deprivation of political rights. The renegade (Tu Xiaolei) was sentenced to 14 years imprisonment and 3 years deprivation of political rights.

In June and July, the Chuxiong Yi Autonomous Prefectural Intermediate People's Court and the Wenshan Zhuang-Miao Autonomous Prefectural Intermediate People's Court respectively tried and sentenced two other criminals of the Lin Biao and Jiang Qing counterrevolutionary cliques in Yunnan, (Liu Guangxin) and (He Lukuan). The renegade (Liu Guangxin) was sentenced to 12 years imprisonment and 3 years deprivation of political rights. The renegade (He Lukuan) was sentenced to 14 years imprisonment and 3 years deprivation of political rights.

KUNMING PLA URGES COMMUNIST IDEOLOGY EDUCATION

OW260359 Beijing XINHUA Domestic Service in Chinese 1405 GMT 20 Oct 82

[Excerpts] Kunming, 20 Oct (XINHUA) -- Following the guidelines of the 12th CPC National Congress, the just-concluded Kunming PLA units' congress of advanced units and individuals in building socialist spiritual civilization has studied further measures for building socialist spiritual civilization with communist ideology at the core. Comrades attending the congress all held that they should integrate revolutionary ideals with their respective specific jobs to still better accomplish the glorious task of defending the border.

The Kunming PLA units' congress of advanced units and individuals in building socialist spiritual civilization was held in Kunming from 12 to 19 October. Liu Zhijian, political commissar of Kunming PLA units, made a report entitled "Hold High the Banner of Communism and Devote Our Lives to Communism" and Zhang Zhixiu, commander of Kunming PLA units, made a report entitled "Conscientiously Study the Guidelines of the 12th CPC National Congress and Strive to Create a New Situation in Army Building."

YUNNAN RADIO RELATES CASE OF HUANG ZHAOQI

HK310422 Kunming Yunnan Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 30 Oct 82

["Sidelights" by station reporters on the trial of Huang Zhaoqi: "The Punishment of History"]

[Excerpts] People will certainly still remember a letter of proposal written by the young worker Ding Liang in Tiananmen Square in April 1976. He wrote in this letter: Bourgeois careerists and conspirators who depend on empty talk about communism have usurped a portion of party and state power. They will ultimately be swept by the people onto the rubbish heap of history, still wearing this beautiful coat of empty talk. That is precisely what has happened in history. Still wearing this beautiful coat of empty talk, Lin Biao met a violent death in the sand. Still wearing this beautiful coat of empty talk, Jiang Qing was sentenced to death by the Special Court of the Supreme People's Court, with the sentence suspended for 2 years.

Look at Huang Zhaoqi, the criminal follower of the Lin Biao and Jiang Qing counterrevolutionary cliques who was the mastermind of their conspiratorial activities in Yunnan. He, too, still wearing this beautiful coat of empty talk, has been sentenced to 18 years imprisonment by the criminal court of the Kunming Municipal Intermediate People's Court. Justice, the truth and the people are bound to triumph. This is scientific dialectics.

The Kunming Municipal People's Procuratorate charged Huang Zhaoqi with five counts: Taking part in a counterrevolutionary clique; overthrowing the government; counterrevolutionary propaganda; incitation; and plotting an armed rebellion. The core of his crimes was usurping party and state power. Together with Lin Biao, Jiang Qing and company, he sang the hackneyed tune "power, power, power is linked to life," went in for counterrevolutionary dirty dealings and committed towering crimes.

In March 1976 Huang Zhaoqi led his factional elements to burst into a meeting of prefectural CPC committee secretaries convened by the provincial CPC committee. This is an example of his moves. According to the evidence of his confederate (Zhang Kulin), during this meeting of prefectural CPC committee secretaries Huang Zhaoqi and company staged a large exercise in seizing power. They openly proposed that the provincial CPC committee must be reorganized and when their scheme failed, they attempted in vain to throw the provincial CPC committee into confusion with the criminal aim of seizing power amid chaos.

What happened was this: A few days before the meeting of prefectual CPC committee secretaries convened by the provincial CPC committee, Huang Zhaoqi and (Hu Yanguan), having analyzed one by one the state of the leading cadres of the provincial CPC committee, held a meeting with Liu Yinnong, (Shen Bingzhang), (Zhang Kuilin), (Shi Baojing) and (Tu Xiaolei) to work out a scheme for seizing power and formulate a reactionary guiding principle of "get close to some, beat some, pull some over, and disturb others" in order to split the provincial CPC committee. They also worked out methods for disrupting the meeting of prefectural CPC committee secretaries. During this provincial meeting, Huang Zhaoqi, Liu Yinnong, Chu Kejia and company openly pulled in backbone factional elements who had been dismissed, transferred or sent down in 1975 to burst into the meeting and conduct sabotage inside and outside it. On the first day of the meeting, (Shen Bingzhang) mounted the rostrum and seized the microphone while (Jin Yidan), (Shi Baojing) and others created an uproar below the rostrum. In this situation, Liu Yinnong, dizzy with success, wildly shouted: This is a fine way of doing things. We must see that the crux of this meeting is the question of the meeting's leadership. We must fight for this point. We must certainly not allow them to go ahead with the meeting according to plan. We must have people coming and going all the time and hold it like a Roman assembly.

These words of Liu Yinnong revealed the criminal aim of Huang Zhaoqi's gang of fierce counterrevolutionaries in sabotaging the meeting of prefectual CPC committee secretaries and showed how much hatred they had for our party.

During the meeting, Huang Zhaoqi and company conspired to send a telegram to the central authorities under the pretext of "reporting the situation" and placed the blame for the disruption of the meeting on the provincial CPC committee. In the telegram, Huang Zhaoqi used language dripping with hatred to maliciously attack Comrade Deng Xiaoping.

After the meeting, Huang Zhaoqi, (Tu Xiaolei) and others schemed together to form a plan for reorganizing the provincial CPC committee and drew up a list of names. They handed these to a reporter sent to Yunnan by the Jiang Qing counterrevolutionary clique. They attempted in vain to accomplish their conspiracy to usurp the provincial CPC committee leadership.

Disrupting the meeting of prefectual CPC committee secretaries and attempting in vain to seize power from the provincial CPC committee was just a small part of the crimes committee by Huang Zhaoqi. The trial proceedings showed that Huang Zhaoqi committed all kinds of crimes in that stormy year.

In June 1976 Huang Zhaoqi incited (Tu Xiaolei), (Liu Hao) and others to write reactionary documents such as "Yunnan Is at the Key Moment of Life and Death, Beware of the Genuine Zhao Yongfu, Seize Military Power" and "The Shocking May Mutiny," in which they slandered responsible comrades of Yunnan Military District Zhang Lixiong and Zhu Jiabi as closely cooperating with the three-point plan of the Chiang bandits and special agents.

In January 1968 Huang Zhaoqi presided over drawing up a report which slandered Chen Kang, Zhao Jianmin, Zhang Lixiong, Li Ming, Ding Rongchang, Zhu Jiabi, Xiong Kui, Wang Fei, He Deqing and (Xu Zhifen), responsible persons of the Kunming PLA units and the provincial CPC committee as bourgeois careerists, Trotskyites of the underground party, special enemy agents, alien class elements and denegerates. As a result these comrades were unjustifiably under a cloud for many years and were seriously tortured.

From January to June 1968 Huang Zhaoqi presided over the concocting of a so-called "Report on the State of the Cadres," which slandered provincial CPC committee secretaries and standing committee members and a large number of leading cadres in the departments and bureaus as renegades, special agents and diehard capitalist-roaders. The report named 147 people to be struck down and further screened. As a result, the responsible persons concerned of the provincial CPC committee tragically suffered oblivion and torture for many years.

From the beginning of 1967 to January 1969, Huang Zhaoqi, Liu Yinnong and company, together with Kang Sheng and Xie Fuzhi, leading criminals of the Lin Biao and Jiang Qing counter-revolutionary cliques, fabricated a shocking so-called "case of the special agent Zhao Jianmin," which had ramifications throughout the whole province. This was one of the most serious crimes committed by Huang Zhaoqi, Liu Yinnong and company.

At the beginning of 1967 Zhao Jianmin, secretary of the Yunnan Provincial CPC Committee Secretariat and an alternate member of the eighth Central Committee was in Beijing talking to Kang Sheng, who asked him his view of the Great Cultural Revolution. Zhao Jianmin demanded that the Central Committee convene the ninth party congress, or a meeting similar to the 1962 gathering of 7,000, as quickly as possible to discuss the issues of the Great Cultural Revolution. This was completely proper. But Kang Sheng secretly pinned on him the charges of opposing Chairman Mao, being hostile to the Great Cultural Revolution and having long been in cahoots with Liu Shaoqi. He also secretly instructed Huang Zhaoqqi and others to persecute Comrade Zhao Jianmin. Huang Zhaoqi and company sent a continuous stream of fabricated and slanderous volumes of so-called "material" on Zhao Jianmin to Kang Sheng and Xie Fuzhi.

On 21 January 1968, in the Beijing (Jingji) Guesthouse, Kang Sheng and Xie Fuzhi slandered Comrade Zhao Jianmin as a renegade carrying out the plans of the Yunnan special agents group. The source of this charge was the slanderous materials provided by Huang Zhaoqi, Liu Yinnong, (An Jixiang) and company.

After the establishment of the Yunnan and Kunming revolutionary committees, Huang Zhaoqi, Liu Yinnong and company schemed together and prepared a document entitled "Drawing the Demarcation Lines and Taking One's Position in the Ranks," which focussed on dismissing what they called "Zhao Jianmin and his ilk." This caused a vast calamity throughout the province. In this calamity, over 1.38 million cadres and masses were persecuted throughout the province. Of these, 17,000 were beaten or wounded to death and 61,000 were crippled by beatings, of which 15,000 false and trumped-up cases were concocted.

From 1974 to 1976, Huang Zhaoqi wrote five letters to Jiang Qing, Wang Hongwen and Yao Wengyuan and twice sent people to make contact with them at the point they had established in Qinghua University to hand over materials slandering leading cadres of the provincial CPC committee and take instructions from them. Conveying Jiang Qing's instructions, Wu Weiyi, a henchman of the Jiang Qing counterrevolutionary clique, said: You comrades from Yunnan (meaning Huang Zhaoqi and company) have very strong sense of struggle. You have supported us and the whole country.

He also said: After this movement, it will not be a question of patching things up and practicing reformism; a qualitative change and a flying leap must take place in the leadership groups at all levels, from the center down to the localities. He further said: Power seizures are not outdated. You must closely observe the capitalist-roaders. Huang Zhaoqi used this to create counterrevolutionary public opinion in a big way, maliciously slandering the Yunnan Provincial CPC Committee as a nest of poisonous snakes and wild beasts. He incited beating the home-going legion and carrying out a second power seizure.

After the party Central Committee had smashed the Jiang Qing counterrevolutionary clique, Huang Zhaoqi summoned Liu Yinnong and others to plot an armed rebellion. Huang Zhaoqi maliciously attacked the Central Committee's smashing of the Jiang Qing counterrevolutionary clique as a rightist coup and a revisionist restoration. He and Liu Yinnong and others plotted to launch an armed rebellion and to go to the mountains to fight guerrilla warfare. They plotted to seize radio stations and issue a so-called "letter to the people of the whole country," in a vain attempt to put up a last-ditch struggle.

Huang Zhaoqi admitted his serious crimes in the court. He showed a certain degree of regret for them. In accordance with the facts of his crimes and his attitude in admitting them, the court awarded him the proper punishment.

YUNNAN PARTY PLENARY SESSION OPENS 4 NOV

HK050303 Kunming Yunnan Provincial Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 4 Nov 82

[Excerpts] The Fifth Enlarged Plenary Session of the Third Yunnan Provincial CPC Committee solemnly opened in Kunming on 4 November. Attending the session are 69 members and 18 alternate members of the provincial CPC committee, secretaries of all prefectural, municipal and county CPC committees, responsible party-member cadres of the provincial people's congress standing committee, government and CPPCC and the principal responsible comrades of party committees and groups of the provincial organs, popular organizations and institutes of higher education, totalling 355 people.

Yunnan Provincial CPC Committee First Secretary An Pingsheng presided at the opening ceremony. He pointed out: The task of this enlarged plenary session is to study and implement the 12th party congress spirit and, in accordance with the great goal and the principles and policies stipulated by the 12th party congress and in connection with Yunnan reality, sum up experiences, study and formulate new construction guidelines for the province, make arrangements for the work tasks of 1983 and mobilize and organize the people of all nationalities in the province to create a new situation in socialist modernization.

Yunnan Provincial CPC Committee Secretary Liu Minghui then delivered a report conveying the spirit of the 12th party congress. The report was in six parts: 1) The proceedings at the congress; 2) The 12th party congress was the most important since the 7th party congress; 3) The correct program for creating a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization; 4) The correct program for party building in the new period; 5) Carrying out cooperation between new and old and replacement of old by new in the party's highest leadership stratum; 6) Strive to achieve the three fundamental turns for the better.

Comrade Liu Minghui also conveyed the spirit of the 1st Plenary Session of the 12th Central Committee and the 1st plenary sessions of the Central Advisory Commission and the Central Commission for Discipline Inspection.

HEBEI PEOPLE'S CONGRESS MEETING CONCLUDES

HK040344 Shijiazhuang Hebei Provincial Service in Mandarin 0400 GMT 29 Oct 82

[Summary] The 17th meeting of the Fifth Hebei Provincial People's Congress Standing Committee concluded on 28 October after 4 days in session. During the meeting Zhang Shuguang, executive secretary of the provincial CPC committee, conveyed the spirit of the 12th party congress documents in light of his own study experiences. In their discussion, the committee members unanimously held: "To study and appreciate the spirit of the 12th party congress documents, it is essential to break through the serious bindings of leftist ideology, otherwise it is impossible to truly appreciate and implement the line, principles and policies since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th Central Committee or the spirit of the 12th party congress documents. Hence, while studying and implementing the 12th party congress documents, we must restudy the important documents issued since the 3d Plenary Session of the 11th Central Committee and overcome the influence of leftist ideology in connection with Hebei realities, so as to lay a sound ideological foundation for creating a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization."

Huang Hua, vice chairman of the provincial people's congress standing committee, delivered an explanation of the committee's resolution on extending the term of the fifth provincial people's congress. The meeting passed the resolution. "The meeting decided that the term of the fifth provincial people's congress will be extended and that the first session of the sixth provincial people's congress will be convened in March 1983."

Executive Vice Governor Li Feng gave a report on handling the bills submitted by the third and fourth sessions of the fifth provincial people's congress. Ma Yaozhang, vice chairman of the provincial finance committee, delivered a report on implementing the State Council's decision on improving the circulation of industrial goods in the rural areas. Zhou Jifa, vice chairman of the provincial capital construction committee and director of the urban construction bureau, gave an explanation of the provincial regulations on urban construction.

The participants noted a number of problems in commercial work. They pointed out: "At present there are many problems in commerce. Some units display a very bad work style in handling this work. There are big stockpiles of commodities in the urban areas while the peasants encounter difficulties in selling agricultural and sideline products. Commodity quality is poor and there is little variety. In particular, there is a shortage of commodities suited for use by old people. There are too few sales points. The service attitude of certain commercial staff is bad and so on. These problems must be seriously investigated and studied and measures must be put forward for solving them properly."

The meeting decided to dismiss Xu Jiaxin from his status as deputy to the fifth NPC. It decided to appoint (Liu Gang) director of the provincial public security bureau and to relieve (Wang Wentong) of that post.

The meeting's resolution on extending the term of the Fifth Hebei Provincial People's Congress said: "The 5-year term of the Fifth Hebei Provincial People's Congress expires on 26 November 1982. In accordance with the PRC constitution and the organic law on local people's congresses and people's governments, the term should expire then. The fifth session of the fifth NPC, which is to be held this month, will adopt a new PRC constitution, and there will be new regulations on the elections, jurisdiction and so on of people's congresses and their standing committees. In view of this, it has been decided that the term of the Fifth Hebei Provincial People's Congress will be extended and the first session of the sixth provincial people's congress will be convened in March 1983."

The meeting's resolution on dismissing Xu Jiaxin from his status as deputy to the fifth NPC said: "Xu Jiaxin committed serious mistakes, causing grave consequences, during the Great Cultural Revolution. The cadres and masses strongly object to him.

"He is not fit to serve any longer as a deputy to the NPC. In accordance with Article 28 of the PRC organic law on local people's congresses and governments and Article 40 of the law on elections to the NPC and local people's congresses, and in light of the suggestions of the Seventh Tangshan Municipal People's Congress, it has been decided to dismiss Xu Jiaxin from his status as deputy to the Fifth NPC."

NEI MONGGOL'S ZHOU HUI SPEAKS AT EDUCATION RALLY

SK280401 Hohhot Nei Monggol Regional Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 27 Oct 82

[Excerpt] On 26 October Zhou Hui, first secretary of the regional CPC committee, made a speech at the regional rally of representatives of three-good students, excellent teachers and student cadres and advanced collectives of universities, secondary schools and teachers colleges.

He said: The kernel of the spiritual civilization is to foster and educate the people with communist ideology, to emulate Lie Feng and to create common practice of three-good students. At present, the practice of emulating Zhang Hua is widespread throughout the nation. The activities are important in the construction of spiritual civilization, through which we condect communication education among the younger generation.

Comrade Zhou Hui pointed out: Education and science were formulated as a prime strategic task in the new situation at the 12th party congress. This gave immense encouragement to the whole educational front. Comrades on the educational front will certainly live up to the expectation of the party. In line with the educational principles, we should train more qualified personnel with socialist consciousness and professional proficiency in order to realize the task of the party under the new situation. At the same time, we should build schools into important bases of socialist spiritual civilization. In order to fulfill those tasks, the party should take the lead in grasping the working spirit of all teacher cadres, workers and staff members.

Comrade Zhou Hui stressed in his speech: The younger generation should be relied upon to create a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization and to realize the strategic objective of the party in the new situation. Young people must have a thorough understanding of the historic task that they are undertaking. He urged students to work with a will to make the country strong and consistently persist in the four fundamental principles to strive for the study of Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong Thought. Students were also urged to develop real capabilities. They must be long on real ability as well as good ideology. If they are short on real ability, they will accomplish nothing. They will not be able to build China into a powerful, modern socialist state. We should build ourselves up to be strong, talented and ideologically well tutored. The relationship among moral, intellectual and physical education is dialectical. In this regard, metaphysics won't work, but dialectical materialism must be upheld.

NEI MONGGOL PLA LEADERS PUBLICIZE DOCUMENTS

SK030740 Hohhot Nei Monggol Regional Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 2 Nov 82

[Text] Some 640 leaders and office cadres at all levels of the Nei Monggol Regional Military District went to the PLA units stationed in the border areas and militia companies to publicize and explain the documents of the 12th party congress. To make this activity a success, the party committees and organs at all levels of the Nei Monggol Regional Military District have assigned most of the comrades to participate in the propaganda and document explanation work and left only a few comrades to take charge of routine work.

Cai Ying, commander of the regional military district, before giving document explanations at (Mafang), first held a forum of cadres to learn which knotty problems had arisen in the course of their study, then focused his explanation on these problems.

(Su Da), deputy political commissar of the regional military district, while giving explanations of documents at (Mafang), helped the PLA commanders and fighters to sum up experiences in launching activities on building socialist spiritual civilization. Leading cadres at all levels, while giving explanations to the border guards, also answered some questions raised by commanders and fighters.

NEI MONGGOL COMMENTARY ON STUDYING DOCUMENTS

SK021017 Hohhot Nei Monggol Regional Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 1 Nov 82

[Station commentary: "Profoundly Comprehend the Essence of the Guidelines and Documents of the 12th CPC Congress"]

[Text] The documents of the 12th CPC Congress are a powerful ideological weapon to unify the understanding of the people of various nationalities across the region and to make them strive for new victories with one heart and one mind. The regional CPC committee recently urged various localities to carry out the study of the congress documents in depth. This instruction is very important. We should conscientiously carry out the study of the congress documents so as to achieve success in this regard. To make the study develop in depth, to make people not be content with superficial understanding and a smattering of the congress documents, it is necessary to encourage the people to study assiduously and strive to profoundly comprehend and master the essence of the congress documents. To get a profound understanding of the essence of the congress documents, we must first clearly understand the historical background.

Comrade Deng Xiaoping pointed out in his opening speech at the 12th CPC Congress: This congress is the most important one since the 7th CPC Congress and is an important clue for clearly understanding the current situation. Through reviewing and comparing the historical facts of the four CPC congresses since the 7th CPC Congress, we can clearly see the great immediate significance and profound historic significance of the 12th CPC Congress. Like the 7th CPC Congress, which had spelled out the laws of democratic revolution, the 12th CPC Congress has summed up the basic experiences and laws of socialist construction over the past 30 years or so. The 12th CPC Congress will certainly lead socialist modernization to a success. A strong socialist country imbued with Chinese characteristics will certainly stand upright in the East. With such an understanding, our confidence will become more steadfast and our strength will become inexhaustible.

To get a profound understanding of the essence of the congress documents, we must thoroughly study the important theoretical issues expounded in the congress documents. The congress documents are the result of combining Marxism and Leninism with China's specific practices and are important development of Mao Zedong Thought under the new historical conditions. The documents are a great issue of both practice and theory for our country's present socialist construction. Only by thoroughly understanding the theory can we apply it to our practice and prevent ourselves from following past behavior blindly.

To master the essence of the congress documents, we should conscientiously study the Marxist stand, standpoint and methods expounded in the congress documents and implement the congress documents in line with the reality of each locality and unit. Some comrades in our region regarded the preceding period, in which the state instituted the responsibility systems of fixing output quotas base on households and contracting work tasks to individual households, as a retrogression. The reason why they have had such a wrong idea is they have failed to comprehend the Marxist stand, standpoint and method. While thoroughly studying the congress documents, we should sum up experiences, enhance our spirit and make proper ideological preparations for creating a new situation in all fields of socialist modernization.

NEI MONGGOL DEALS WITH CORRUPT BUREAUCRACY

SK020734 Hohhot Nei Monggol Regional Service in Mandarin 1100 GMT 30 Oct 82

[Excerpt] According to NEI MONGGOL RIBAO, the Ulanqab League CPC Committee has seriously dealt with the three big cases in Xinghe County and the leading body of the county CPC committee. The regional CPC committee recently circulated a notice on the incidents in Xinghe County, calling on party organizations at all levels to take the incidents as a warning, examine themselves against the incidents in light of their actual conditions and struggle against unhealthy tendencies and corrupt practices of all descriptions with the greatest determination.

From late April 1981 to early February 1982 three big incidents took place one after another in Xinghe County, killing and wounding 22 persons and causing an economic loss of nearly 200,000 yuan.

On 31 April and 1 May 1981 two criminals, seizing the opportunity when there was a holiday and no one on duty, entered the Xinghe County leather factory twice to commit crimes, causing the death of six of the factory's workers, the wounding of 10 workers and the explosion of a production boiler. The county CPC committee, however, failed to make a thorough investigation after the incident took place. Moreover, it designated the factory as an advanced enterprise and authorized the promotion of two flagrantly derelict cadres as director and deputy director of the factory.

On 9 November (Sheng-Dia-Zha-Bu), deputy head of Zinghe County, (Ba Yumin), deputy director of the county government office, and others absented themselves from their posts without leave to attend the wedding of [word indistinct]. At the wedding they quarreled with the guests on the bride's side. (Sheng-Dai-Zha-Bu) drew a pistol and fired warning shots. He killed (Ba) when the pistol went off accidently. The county CPC committee not only failed to make an investigation into the mistake of carrying a pistol without authorization, but posthumously admitted (Ba) as member of the Chinese Communist Party, set up a bier for him at the courtyard of the county CPC committee and played funeral music for 56 days.

On the night of 2 February 1982, a counterrevolutionary homicide and sabotage case occurred in the (Shiwanzi) Communique in which five persons were killed or wounded by explosions and great economic losses were incurred.

The Ulanqab League CPC Committee pointed out in its investigative report: It is due in great part to the unhealthy work style of the former Xinghe County CPC Committee which forfeited principles and alienated itself from the masses that the three big cases took place in Xinghe county. In personal affairs they violated the party's policy by preferring to assign jobs to people good at dishonest practices, dampening the enthusiasm of cadres of all nationalities. In recruiting workers they abused their offices to conceal recruiting quotas and to arrange jobs for their relatives and friends, straining the relations between cadres and the masses. In housing distribution they took the lead in seeking privileges and when cadres at the section level followed suit, stirred up a craze for seizing houses throughout the county. What is more serious is that they brazenly embezzled the state's housing construction funds and violated the state financial and economic discipline.

The unhealthy work style of the leading body of the Xinghe County CPC Committee and the existence of many serious, corrupt practices for a time checked healthy trends and perverse trends prevailed in the county. Good people were [words indistinct] and bad ones were swollen with arrogance. Many grassroots party organizations were paralysed or semi-paralyzed. Cases of theft and sabotage of state property and public facilities were reported frequently and criminal cases of all kinds took places in the rapid succession. Under these circumstances it is only normal that the three big cases took place in Xinghe County.

With the approval of the regional CPC committee, the Ulanqab League CPC Committee seriously dealt with the former leading body of the Xinghe County CPC Committee. (Zhao Shanbi), former secretary of the county CPC committee, was dismissed from his post and five other leading members of the county CPC committee were instructed to make [word indistinct] self-criticism. Persons directly responsible for the three big cases were also punished by party disciplinary measures and criminal sanctions in accordance with the seriousness of their mistakes. (Sheng-Diz-Zha-Bu), former deputy head of the county, was sentenced to 10 years in prison in accordance with law. These punishments were enthusiastically supported by people of all nationalities in the county.

The regional CPC committee approved and transmitted the report submitted by the Ulanqab League CPC Committee on its dealing with the three big cases and the leading body of the county CPC committee. The committee called on party organizations at all levels to take the problems in Xinghe County as warning and check themselves against these problems in light of the actual conditions in their localities, departments and units.

Problems like those in Xinghe County, once discovered, must be dealt with seriously. Violations of law and discipline and corrupt practices like those in Xinghe County must be checked. Loopholes in the management of weaponry and ammunition like those in Xinghe County must be resolutely plugged.

The regional CPC committee pointed out: The CPC Central Committee has emphasized on more than one occasion that owing to some factors at home and abroad class struggle will still exist on a limited scope for a long time. And under certain circumstances, it might intensify. Therefore, party organizations at all levels must overcome listlessness. Meanwhile, they must truly regard the problem of the party's work style as a matter of life and death for the party in power, consciously and persistently struggle against all kinds of unhealthy tendencies and corrupt practices and rectify the party's work style with the greatest determination to ensure the smooth implementation of the party's line, principles and policies.

HU QILI INSPECTS TIANJIN COMMERCIAL CENTERS

SK241052 Tianjin City Service in Mandarian 0030 GMT 24 Oct 82

[Excerpt] From 21 to 23 October Hu Qili, member of the CPC Central Committee Secretariat, inspected our municipality's work in developing collective commercial centers. He relayed the important comments which Comrades Hu Yaobang and Wan Li made recently on the article [wen] "Tianjin Shattered Tedious Fetters and Built 594 Collective Commercial Centers." Accompanying Hu Qili were responsible comrades of the general office of the CPC Central Committee and pertinent departments of the Ministry of Commerce.

On the morning of 22 October, Hu Qili listened to briefings made by leading comrades of the municipal CPC committee and government, including Li Ruinhuan, Tan Shaowen, Hao Tianyi and Lu Xuezheng, on Tianjin's work of developing collective commercial centers. After the briefings, Hu Qili said: We should be vigorous and resolute in creating a new situation. Tianjin's work of dismantling makeshift houses, solving water-supply problems and building commercial centers seemed very difficult and almost impossible at the beginning. However, the work has been promoted after Tianjin showed firm determination.

Dealing with work style, Hu Qili said: If leaders go to the frontline to work there, solicit opinions from various sources and respond realistically on the spot to avoid disputes and contradictions, many difficulties will be overcome and things which seemed impossible will be carried out. This is a good method.

He spoke highly of the municipality's principle of building collective commercial centers in an economic and reasonable manner which suits the needs of the people and makes their lives more convenient. He said: The most important thing is to make the people's lives more convenient. The starting point in doing everything is to consider and satisfy the growing needs in the people's material and cultural life.

RENMIN RIBAO ON TAIWAN FAMILY SETTLING IN PRC

HK020254 Beijing RENMIN RIBAO in Chinese 29 Oct 82 p 3

[Article by reporter Chen Rongshan [7115 2827 0005] and correspondent Guo Yintu [6753 6892 0960]: "Why Did They Come to the Mainland To Settle Down?"]

[Text] In Fuzhou we visited Mr and Mrs Cai Yaoting who returned from Taiwan a short time ago to settle down on the mainland. Cai Yaoting is 37 years old. A native of Kaohsiung, he formerly worked as a driver at the Meichihmei Electronics Company in Taiwan. His wife, Deng Guixiang, is 27 years old. A native of Taichung, she is a housewife. Why did this young couple, who were born and raised in Taiwan, come to the mainland to settle down?

Mr and Mrs Cai Yaoting said to us: "When we left Taiwan for a visit to Japan, we did not think of coming to the mainland. Later, when we visited China's pavilion at the Hakkaido international fair in Japan, we wanted to return and have a closer look. On 28 July we arrived in Shanghai and later visited Hangzhou and Beijing. What we saw and heard was greatly different from what the Taiwan authorities had publicized. We profoundly realized that the socialism being practiced on the mainland was fine and that it had a bright future and is full of promise. Therefore, we decided to settle down on the mainland.

"The Taiwan authorities said that 'the mainland is a dark hell.' 'The ordinary people have no freedom. Husband and wife cannot live together. Who will be one's husband or wife is determined by the commune. Free love is prohibited. However, we have seen entirely different things in various places. In Shanghai we saw many young couples engaging in free love. Parents and children live together and they are all in good spirits." They added: "The Taiwan authorities also said that the compatriots on the mainland 'do not have enough food and have to nibble at bark.' These were not the facts. In a Shanghai restaurant we met a couple. Each of them has a monthly salary of more than 50 yuan. We asked them: How is it possible for you to make ends meet with 100 yuan? They said: Why is it impossible? We do not have to pay when we see the doctor. We do not have to worry about housing. On Sundays we go out on a picnic or go to a restaurant to have something especially good to eat."

When talking about the difference between the mainland and Taiwan, the young couple said to us: There is a human touch on the mainland and peole are concerned about one another. In Taiwan the relationship between man and man is based on money. In Taiwan we are not allowed to say that the mainland is good. Otherwise, the authorities will get you in trouble. But here you can talk objectively about the situation in Taiwan. The construction of the mainland relies chiefly on the people themselves but Taiwan relies on foreign countries to get along. Taiwan has borrowed a lot of money, otherwise it would have gone bankrupt long ago. In Taiwan the government does not bother if a poor man goes begging. On the mainland, however, the people are cared for from their birth through old age and illness to death and their livelihood is guaranteed. The livelihood of senior officials in Taiwan is much better than the ordinary people but the livelihood of cadres and the ordinary people is about the same here. When citing these differences, the couple was filled with profound feelings for the socialist motherland.

Mrs Cai told us that they brought three children with them. The eldest and middle children studied at the Jingda primary school in Fuzhou. She said with feeling: "In Taiwan, one has to pay a tuition fee each term of more than 300 new Taiwan dollars for primary school education, several thousand dollars for junior school education and tens of thousands of dollars for senior middle school or university education. It is therefore difficult for ordinary families to have one or two well-educated children." As a housewife, Mrs Cai also told us about the income and expenditures of her family in Taiwan.

She said: "My husband had an average salary of about 20,000 dollars a month. Calculated on the intermediate standards of living, after paying more than 10,000 dollars on food and 5,000 dollars on rent, we had only a very small surplus. If we wanted to buy something else, we had to help others promote the sales of goods during our spare time."

Cai Yaoting and his family will settle down in Quanzhou. They said: The Chinese mainland is fine. Socialism is fine and we feel relieved to be able to settle down here.

LIAOWANG COMMENTARY ON TAIWAN REUNIFICATION

HK230650 Beijing LIAOWANG in Chinese No 9, 20 Sep 82 pp 14-15

[Commentator's article: "On the First Anniversary of the 'Nine-Point Policy'"]

[Text] It has been a year since NPC Chairman Ye Jianying's talk on Taiwans' peaceful return to the motherland to realize the peaceful reunification of the motherland, that is, since the "nine-point policy," was first published. The influence of this policy is spreading in depth and breadth like rushing waves and tides across Taiwan and all over our country and the world.

Despite the blockade that exists throughout Taiwan, most of the Taiwan people are still learning the contents of this "nine-point policy" and it will not take long for their whispers to develop into talking in public and even into loud clamoring:

-- The old people who came from the mainland must return to die in their homeland. What has become of the homeland, the places where these people were brought up, which they have not seen for decades? Their children -- the younger generation -- have only heard from their parents that their homeland is Fujian, Guangdong, Jiangsu, Sichuan... but they have never seen the places where their ancestors grew up and have longed for many years to see what the enchanting mainland of their motherland is really like.

-- Those who have relatives on the mainland want to be reunited with them. A narrow stretch of water has separated them from their relatives for more than 30 years. Now their hair has turned white and they cannot afford to wait any longer. What can make people pine more sadly than separation from relatives?

Those whose homeland is Taiwan want to "seek the roots of the relationship with the motherland." They are proud to be Chinese. But, when a Chinese no longer has the mainland as something he can rely upon, he feels himself "abandoned on an isolated island." People throughout the five continents of the world are enchanted by the magnificent Great Wall and the mighty Huanghe and Changjiang Rivers. As a Chinese, how can he not earnestly long for the day when he can enjoy the scenery of the mainland?

-- Taiwan industrialists and businessmen want to carry out trade with the mainland. Struggling under a situation that grows worse day by day, marked by the world economic crisis and incurably stubborn "stagflation," the very promising market on the mainland becomes extremely attractive. After all, people on both sides of the strait are Chinese and they can have confidence in one another when doing business.

-- The intellectuals in Taiwan hope that they will be able to use what they have learned and apply their talents in realizing the magnificent cause of modernization in their motherland. The mainland offers a vast field for them and the motherland's achievements in the scientific, technical, cultural and artistic fields fascinate them.

-- People in Taiwan's political circles are worrying about Taiwan's future. Persisting in maintaining a temporary peaceful situation on a small island and in rejecting the peace talks will make them lose the confidence of the people at home and the sympathy of people throughout the world. After all, this is not a policy which is good to hold for a long time.

In short, the peaceful reunification of the motherland is where the basic interests of the Chinese people, including the people on Taiwan lies. It is precisely in these interests and, in addition, after taking into account the realistic interests of the people of all strata in Taiwan, that this "nine-point policy" has been put forward. This is the very reason why this policy began spreading with the force of sweeping waves and tides as soon as it was put forward.

However, some people still have doubts about this policy. This is only natural.

The CPC stands for the people and represents the interests of the people in negotiating with the KMT. The history of the talks and cooperation between the two parties in the past is good evidence of this. It was true during the initial cooperation between the CPC and the KMT in the period of the great revolution and was also true during the second cooperation between the CPC and the KMT after the "Xian incident" in 1936. It was still in the interests of all the people that, after the victory of the war of resistance against Japan, the CPC proposed to the KMT that they continue to cooperate in order to build a new, peaceful and democratic China. When we put forward the current proposal for a third cooperation between the CPC and the KMT and for holding peaceful talks for the return of Taiwan to the motherland in order to realize the peaceful reunification of the motherland, we were acting even more vigorously in the interests of the people, and especially for the interests of the people of all strata in Taiwan.

Why Should the CPC Regard the KMT as a Partner To Hold Talks With?

On New Year's Day 1979, the NPC Standing Committee published its "Open Letter to Taiwan Compatriots" in which the major principle of solving the Taiwan problem by peaceful means was put forward clearly for the first time. Seeking to reunify the country by peaceful means and avoiding wars is beneficial to the country and the nation and has an even more important bearing on the vital interests of the people of Taiwan.

But, how can we achieve a peaceful solution to the Taiwan problem? How can we induce the people of various nationalities on Taiwan, who have long been separated from the motherland, to return safely to the embrace of the motherland? This can only be achieved through peaceful talks. Since we want to hold talks, we must have someone with whom to talk. That is why the first point of the nine-point policy is a proposal on holding talks between the CPC and the KMT on an equal footing.

Why have we proposed that the KMT authorities in Taiwan be the party with whom we will hold talks?

First, the separation of Taiwan from the motherland is the result of the civil war that was launched by the KMT authorities. That is why there is still confrontation between the two sides of the Taiwan strait. If we want to put an end to this confrontation and achieve peaceful reunification, we will have to hold talks with the KMT authorities.

Second, Taiwan is now under the rule of the KMT authorities and all the power there is in their hands. The KMT authorities have very strict control over the people in all the circles, the personnel in all institutions and the army in Taiwan. Given this situation, it is unrealistic for the people of Taiwan to bypass the KMT authorities and talk directly with the CPC.

Third, the KMT authorities have time and again stated that there is only one China and that they oppose the concept of "two Chinas." If only this expressed their sincere view and if only they would persist in holding this view, there would be a common basis for the third cooperation between the CPC and the KMT and a possibility for achieving the reunification of the country through talks.

We should also point out that in the organs of the present KMT authorities there are also some of Taiwan's local personalities. Along with the change in times and objective surroundings, the composition of the KMT has greatly changed: Of its 1.9 million members, 70 percent are Taiwan natives; of the 130 members of the Central Committee, one-fifth are Taiwan natives; of the alternate members of the Central Committee, more than one-third are Taiwan natives; and of the 27 members of the Central Committee Standing Committee, one-third are Taiwan natives. There are also many Taiwan natives who have been appointed to high-ranking military and administrative posts by the KMT and have become important members of the KMT. Therefore, it is on the basis of realistic considerations that we choose the KMT authorities as the party with whom we should hold talks.

Can the Two Social Systems Coexist After Peaceful Reunification?

The third and fourth points of the "Nine-Point Policy" stipulated: "After the reunification of the country, Taiwan can enjoy a high degree of autonomy as a special administrative zone and can retain its army. The central government will not interfere in Taiwan's local affairs." "Taiwan's existing social and economic system will not be changed, nor will its lifestyle or its economic and cultural relations with foreign countries. Ownership of private property, houses, land, and enterprises, the legitimate right of inheritence and foreign investment are inviolable."

All these clauses were put forward in view of both the present situation in Taiwan and the interests of the people of all strata in Taiwan. Taiwan's prolonged separation from the motherland has given rise to the sharp differences between the present social and economic system and lifestyle in Taiwan and those in the mainland. This is an objective reality. We Chinese Communists are materialists who always proceed from reality. Therefore, we have taken full consideration of and completely respect Taiwan's reality.

Some people may ask: How can two different social and economic systems be allowed to coexist in a unified country? This is not hard to understand. There have been and still are many such examples in the world. In most parts of a country the social and economic system has already developed to a certain stage. But, at the same time, there are still some areas where the original relatively backward social and economic system prevails. In our own history we can find an example of this. For example, during the 1950's socialist transformation had been completed in most parts of the country, but in a few areas populated by minority nationalities the backward social system remained unchanged. The transformations in those areas were carried out step by step in accordance with the desire and willingness of the people of all nationalities there. Even now, the policies we adopt in the areas of minority nationalities are still different from other areas at home in order to adapt to actual conditions there. Taiwan's realities, however, have their special nature. When the reunification of the motherland is finally achieved, Taiwan, as a special administrative zone, will continue to retain its existing socioeconomic system. There can be no doubt about this, whether viewed theoretically or viewed in terms of actual policies.

Negotiating With the Taiwan Authorities Is Identical to Preserving the Interests of the Taiwan People

The "Open Letter to the Taiwan Compatriots" clearly stated: "When solving the Taiwan problem we will respect the status quo of Taiwan and the views of people of all circles there and adopt rational and reasonable policies and methods to ensure that the Taiwan people will not suffer any loss."

The "nine-point policy" embodies throughout the intention to preserve the interests of Taiwan people of all strata. The first point's proposal on negotiating with the Taiwan authorities, as stated above, is also based on the interests of the Taiwan people.

The second point proposes that both sides provide facilities for opening up postal, commercial and transport links; visiting relatives; tourism; promoting academic, cultural and sports exchanges; and reaching relevant agreements on these matters. This proposal was made previously in the NPC Standing Committee's "Open Letter to Taiwan Compatriots." For more than 2 years this letter has evoked positive responses among the Taiwan compatriots and has made considerable headway.

The number of letters being written between the compatriots of the mainland and of Taiwan -- mailed from foreign locations -- is gradually increasing each year and now totals several hundred thousand. As a result many Taiwan compatriots from whom there had been no word for several decades have made contact with their relatives.

Trade exchanges between the mainland and Taiwan, carried out via foreign countries, are developing steadily. Mainland fuel and various indigenous products can now be bought in Taiwan, while Taiwan-made daily necessities can be bought on the mainland.

The number of Taiwan people coming to visit relatives or for tourism on the mainland -- either travelling via foreign countries or coming directly -- has continually increased over the past 2 years and there are also ever-growing contacts in foreign countries between mainland and Taiwan scholars, writers, seamen, sportsmen and so on. On more than one occasion they have taken part together in cultural and academic meetings and sporting contests and carried out cultural, academic and sports exchanges.

The desire of the mainland and Taiwan people now is that both sides will reach an agreement at an early date for opening direct postal, commercial and transport links and promoting exchanges of all kinds.

The fifth point states that representative Taiwan figures from all circles can hold leadership posts in national political organs and take part in running the state. This accords with the long-held desire of people of all strata on Taiwan. For so many years the Taiwan people have longed to escape their status as "second-class citizens" and openly and above-board serve as masters of the country. This desire can truly be attained after the reunification of the motherland. Even though the mainland and Taiwan are still cut off from each other, 22 Taiwan compatriots were elected as NPC deputies and 27 are members of the National CPPCC Committee.

The sixth and eighth points propose: "When Taiwan's local finances encounter difficulties, they can be supplemented by the central government in light of prevailing circumstances." "We invite Taiwan industrialists and businessmen to return to the motherland to invest and run various economic undertakings. Their legitimate rights and profits will be guaranteed." These two policies concerning economics offer hope, like the sight of a sail on a foggy sea, to Taiwan industrialists and businessmen and the people at large there who are feeling ever-greater pressure because of economic difficulties.

Effected by the gloom pervading the Western economy and the drying up of international markets, the Taiwan economy, which consists largely of processing industries, has slowed down in recent years. Its growth rate fell from 13.9 percent in 1978 to 5.5 percent last year and in the first half of this year it fell further to 3.5 percent. Due to the Taiwan economy's great reliance on foreign countries, there are all kinds of malaise that will prove hard to cure. Economic circles in Taiwan have expressed pessimism because of this.

In contrast, the economy on the mainland is steadily developing. The mainland of the motherland has abundant resources and manpower and also provides a vast market. Investment by Taiwan industrialists and businessmen returning to the mainland is advantageous for developing the mainland's economy and still more for helping Taiwan overcome its current economic difficulties. People will see that helping resolve Taiwan's financial difficulties with supplemental state funds is certainly not empty talk.

The seventh point proposes that those Taiwan people of all nationalities and circles who wish to return to the mainland to live will be assured proper arrangements, freedom from discrimination and the freedom to come and go as they please. This point is particularly supported by those Taiwan compatriots who long to see their home again. In recent years more and more Taiwan figures have been returning to live on the mainland, over 80 of them in Fujian Province alone. These compatriots have been warmly welcomed by the motherland's government and people. All have had proper arrangements made for them and they are enjoying the company of relatives of whom they had been dreaming for many years. As the feeling to return home grows stronger and the atmosphere on both sides of the strait continually eases, the numbers of Taiwan compatriots coming back to live on the motherland will continue to grow.

The practice of the past year has proven that the "nine-point policy" put forward by Standing Committee Chairman Ye fully accords with the supreme interest -- reunification of the motherland. So long as the compatriots everywhere strengthen unity and work together in thoroughly and soundly promoting the effort, the great cause of reunifying the great motherland is bound to succeed.

CHENG MING EXAMINES HONG KONG QUESTION

HK031010 Hong Kong CHENG MING in Chinese No. 61, 1 Nov 82 pp 16-17

[Article by Fei Ching-sheng [6316 0079 3932]: "New Information on the Hong Kong Question" -- capitalized passages published in boldface]

[Text] Even before Mrs Thatcher's departure from Beijing, someone had lost his temper and called her a "stinking woman." This British prime minister does not quite understand the trend of the times, but the Sino-British talks....

Since Mrs Thatcher's visit to Beijing, the people of Beijing have begun to talk about the Hong Kong question. Naturally, they are not like the people of Hong Kong, who daily talk about the question of Hong Kong.

WHO HAS THE UPPER HAND IN THE SINO-BRITISH TALKS?

What the people of Hong Kong are most concerned about is perhaps the outcome of the Sino-British talks. At present, even God probably does not know the answer to this question. Preliminary discussions have been initiated by both sides. But it will still take some time before official talks are held. In the official talks, both sides will bargain, and it will perhaps take an even longer time. It is difficult to predict what the specific outcome will be.

In the Sino-British talks, both sides should be on an equal footing. However, the Chinese side has the upper hand. In the first place, Hong Kong is Chinese territory, and although there have been historical factors which have given its rule to the British, such factors are, in the final analysis, unreasonable. In the second place, it is easier to achieve unity in policy decisions, principles and general and specific policies on dealing with the Hong Kong question inside Communist China than in Britain, where there will be a great deal of discussion and views given. In the third place, the initiative for any change in the future of Hong Kong will be in China's hands. Therefore, even if the talks are equitable, there is, nevertheless, the element of superiority.

This being the case, in order to appraise the outcome of the Sino-British talks, we should put stress on understanding the attitude of Communist China.

DENG XIAOPING'S "TIMETABLE"

A question the Hong Kong people are extremely concerned about is when Communist China will establish sovereignty over Hong Kong. The writer has discussed this question with several friends connected with foreign affairs and overseas Chinese affairs, hoping to find some clues. However, they said that of all the documents they have come into contact with, they have not seen one with a timetable for establishing sovereignty over Hong Kong, and some contain such rather sweeping terms as "at the appropriate time (or opportunity)" and "in the near future."

However, we also cannot completely say that the highest policymaker of Communist China has not made rough estimates and preparations. Actually Deng Xiaoping has already revealed the tentative plan of Communist China to the whole world. In his opening speech at the 12th party congress, Deng Xiaoping said that there are three major tasks in the 1980's. They are: "To intensify socialist modernization, to strive for reunification -- and particularly for the return of Taiwan to the motherland -- and to combat hegemonism and safeguard world peace." In the sentence "to strive for reunification -- and particularly for the return of Taiwan to the motherland," the words "and particularly for the return of Taiwan" means that there are also other areas beside Taiwan. These other areas naturally should include Hong Kong and Macao.

Does this mean that Communist China intends to take back Hong Kong within the 1980's? Yes. This is what it wants "to strive for." Deng Xiaoping has decided to accomplish these three major tasks in his lifetime. In order to understand the general and specific policies of Communist China regarding the Hong Kong question, we must bear in mind Deng Xiaoping's mental attitude. Otherwise, it will be as ineffective as scratching an itch from outside one's boot.

Another question the Hong Kong people are concerned about is when Communist China will establish sovereignty over Hong Kong and whether or not this city will be directly or indirectly administered by Communist China.

COMMUNIST CHINA'S INITIAL DEMANDS VERY LOW

According to a high-level report, Communist China's demands for the return of Taiwan were originally set very low. They mainly called for the replacing of the national flag of the Republic of China with the national flag of the People's Republic of China. Chiang Ching-kuo wants to be the vice chairman of the country? That is quite all right. Taiwan's former administrative setup and economic system will not to be touched in any way? That is also quite all right.

The Hong Kong question is not the same as the Taiwan question; therefore, the method of solving it is also somewhat different. According to reports, the original tentative plan was in the main also to replace the British Union Jack with the Chinese national flag, and other questions, mainly the question of management, can be settled through negotiations. According to a tentative plan made known by Hu Yaobang in an internal speech early this year, the leasing of Hong Kong to the British could also be considered.

Why did Communist China set such low demands? In the first place, China is maintaining a policy of promoting economic exchanges with foreign countries, and Hong Kong must not become a city or port like Guangzhou and Shanghai. In the second place, if China takes back Hong Kong and should Hong Kong become a liability, China will not be able to support it.

CONDITIONS HAVE CHANGED AND DEMANDS ARE RAISED

However, the development of events has caused the Chinese side to change or supplement its tentative plan. According to a friend close to foreign affairs work, prior to Mrs Thatcher's visit to China, the foreign ministries of both China and Britain had expressed their respective positions through the exchange of official notes. Britain had held that the three treaties concerning Hong Kong should still be observed. Communist China did not take umbrage at that time. However, during Mrs Thatcher's China visit, her attitude of resting her case on the legality of the three treaties, as disclosed by the British broadcasting media, caused resentment among the people in the Communist hierarchy. Later, when Mrs Thatcher maintained her original stand in talks with the Chinese leaders, and especially after her arrival in Hong Kong when Mrs Thatcher actually insisted publicly on the validity of the three treaties and described the continued domination of Hong Kong as an obligatory duty, the irritation of the people in Zhongnanhai was further aroused. Mrs Thatcher has indeed hurt the national self-respect of the Chinese people.

Some high-ranking cadres in Beijing had used rather rough language at that time to describe the "iron lady" as "the stinking woman," and vowed to "bombard" her out of power. The writer has met some people who normally are not kindly disposed toward Communist China. In discussing the Hong Kong question, they also expressed indignation over the colonialist stand maintained by Mrs Thatcher. So in this process, China was compelled to express an attitude. It has repeatedly stressed the need of establishing sovereignty over Hong Kong and, at the same time, criticized Mrs Thatcher for her stand. It was precisely at this time that the assertion of establishing both sovereignty and administrative power started to spread.

According to the latest information, a cadre concerned with the planning and handling of the Hong Kong question has suggested a two-step scenario: First, China would regain sovereignty over Hong Kong and then lease it to Britain, leaving everything as status quo ante with the exception that the city would have to fly the Chinese Five-Star Red Flag. Second, the Hong Kong Chinese would administer the city. During this two-step transitional period Hong Kong will be allowed to maintain its capitalist social system.

The writer considers that it is likely that Communist China might bring up the "two-step" proposal at the Sino-British talks. At the same time, he reckons that the first step may take place within the present decade. The flying of the Five-Star Red Flag will indicate that China has established sovereignty over Hong Kong. With the grand cause of reunification partially accomplished, China will then be ready to solve the Taiwan question as well as carry out the second step of the proposal.

FLATS CAN BE PURCHASED WHEN PROPERTY VALUES FALL SHARPLY

A friend who has connections with the higher level said: It is understandable for the people of Hong Kong to have no confidence in Communist China, because China has been constantly changing and reversing its policies for the last 30 years. However, Communist China hopes, by means of future practice, to make the Hong Kong people believe that Communist China will no longer be like before. This friend, who is on very familiar terms with the cadres working in the newly established special economic zones, also said: Some American businessmen are now in Shenzhen discussing the question of investments. They basically are not concerned about the future of Hong Kong in 1997. When I heard that, I smiled and asked:

"Is this propaganda talk?"

"No, this is a fact."

In conclusion, this friend also made a joke which might not be a joke. He said: "If you have any spare cash, you might as well buy a few flats when property values in Hong Kong fall sharply. After a while, you will become rich."

Readers, do you believe his words?

MING PAO DISCUSSES CHINA'S ECONOMIC PERFORMANCE

HK010749 Hong Kong MING PAO in Chinese 1 Nov 82 p 5

["Special Dispatch from Beijing": "Economic Returns Not Too Good"]

[Text] The CPC is stepping up the rectification of its enterprises, and striving to improve management and economic results. But due to the limitations of the economic setup, technology and equipment, coupled with deep-rooted ideas of holding "iron rice bowls" and "eating out of the same big pot" among cadres and workers, economic results from industrial production in the first half of this year were not satisfactory, nor are they likely to be in the second half.

This reporter learned that the State Economic Commission issued a "circular" not long ago saying: "The task of improving economic results in the second half of this year will be very arduous; we must never take it lightly. It is requested that all localities and enterprises make a serious analysis of economic activities in the first half, review the situation concerning their fulfillment of targets for improving economic results and discover what are their major problems.

"Effective measures should be taken to reduce inflated production rate targets and to reach those targets which have not been properly fulfilled. We should seek real and sound improvement and strive for actual results so as to achieve a more marked improvement in economic results of all kinds in the second 6 months."

The gross national industrial output value in the first half increased by 10.1 percent more than in the same period last year. The growth rates in all provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions were over 6 percent. Things in this respect have been much better. But it should be noted that the level of the first half of last year was fairly low.

The margin of improvement in some other economic areas was fairly small. For example, profits turned over to the state treasury only increased by 1.9 percent against those in the same period of last year, and expenditure only fell 0.3 percent. The situation in some fields was even worse than the same period of last year. For example, the profit per hundred yuanof output value and profits from sales fell respectively by 0.3 yuan and 0.7 yuan.

Production growth rates in many localities were still exaggerated to various extents. Some economic results in major fields still lagged behind the best records in history. The growth of profits turned over to the state treasury still lagged behind the growth of production and sales. Generally, quality and consumption standards did not achieve marked improvement -- nearly one-third of major products consumption quotas went up again and the quality of most products of the textile and metallurgical industries went down. Some consumer goods did not suit the demands of urban and rural consumers, resulting in more stockpiling of goods and even in big increases in production costs. In particular, the number of serious industrial accidents increased.

WEN WEI PO EXAMINES PRC SIXTH 5-YEAR PLAN

HK040431 Hong Kong WEN WEI PO in Chinese 3 Nov 82 p 1

[Special feature by Beijing correspondent Cheng Hsiang [4453 5046]: "A Look at Aspects of China's Sixth 5-Year Plan"]

[Text] Since the convening of the 12th CPC Congress, while studying documents of the congress, all trades and services in China have set their struggle goals in the light of their own practical conditions. In particular, they have planned the level which they resolve to attain and brought up problems which they intend to solve during the Sixth 5-Year Plan. After collecting all relevant data provided by various newspapers, it is not difficult for us to discern the broad outline of China's Sixth 5-Year Plan. Through this data the author of this article intends to give the readers a general picture of the Sixth 5-Year Plan presented to the fifth session of the fifth NPC for examination and approval.

The Goals and Tasks To Be Accomplished During the Period of the Sixth 5-Year Plan

China regards the general output value of industry and agriculture as a comprehensive index reflecting the development of the national economy. During the period of the Sixth 5-Year Plan, an average annual growth rate of general output value of industry and agriculture of 5.5 percent has been demanded. By 1985, the general output value of industry and agriculture is to attain the level of 930 billion yuan (renminbi, similarly hereinafter).

Agriculture: China will strive to increase its grain output from 320 million tons in 1980 to about 400 million tons in 1985, an average increase of 4.5 percent per year.

Energy: China does not set a high target for the production of such energy sources as coal and petroleum. During the period of the Sixth 5-Year Plan, their growth rate is to be about 3.5 percent. However, electric power should keep abreast with or exceed the development of industry. The annual increase rate of electric power is to be 7 percent.

Main Industries of Raw and Processed Materials: During the period of the Sixth 5-Year Plan, the growth rate of China's five main industries of raw and processed materials is not expected to be too high. The annual growth rate of steel, cement, chemical fertilizer, cotton yarn and paper is to be about 3.5 percent on average.

Engineering Industry: The engineering industry forms the largest proportion of China's general output value of industry. For a long time in the past, it accounted for 27 percent. Following economic readjustment over the past 2 years, the proportion dropped (25.8 percent in 1980 and 23.6 percent in 1981). However, the engineering industry is still the mainstay of industry. In view of this fact, during the period of the Sixth 5-Year Plan, the engineering industry is to grow. It is expected that its annual growth rate will be 5.67 percent, which is a bit faster than the growth rate of the general output value of industry and agriculture.

Light and Textile Industry: The proportion of this industry in the general output value of industry is second only to the engineering industry (the proportions in 1980 and 1981 were 18.5 and 20.8 percent respectively). The light and textile industry is an important link in our country's industry. During the period of the Sixth 5-Year Plan, it is expected that its output value will increase through enhancing economic returns. Therefore, the average annual growth of the past 3 years (readjustment period) is not likely to be maintained.

New Emerging Industries: Due to the fact that the new emerging industries such as electronics, telecommunications, nuclear energy, petrochemistry and new materials do not consume too much energy and that their output value is relatively high, it is expected that they will rapdily develop during the period of the Sixth 5-Year Plan.

Communications and Transportation: During the period of the Sixth 5-Year Plan, everything possible should be done to increase the volume of goods transported from 2.4 billion tons in 1980 to 3.5 billion tons by 1985, an average annual growth rate of 8 percent or so. The volume of rail freight will increase from 1.1 billion tons of 1980 to 1.3 billion tons of 1985, an average annual increase rate of 1980 to 3.7 percent. By 1985, the handling capacity of harbors will increase by 1 billion tons.

Foreign Trade and Tourism: During the period of the Sixth 5-Year Plan, the total volume of foreign trade is expected to increase from U.S.$38 billion of 1980 to U.S.$55 billion of 1985, an average annual increase of 7.4 percent. With regard to tourism, the number of beds in hotels will increase from 75,000 or so in 1982 to 100,000 by 1985. The number of tourists of foreign nationalities who travel in China at their own expense and are received by the International Travel Service will increase from 600,000 people in 1980 to 1 million people by 1985.

The above-quoted figures indicate future plans for the development and growth rate of various economic departments. With regard to macroeconomic fields, the following things will be done during the period of the Sixth 5-Year Plan:

1. During the period of the Sixth 5-Year Plan, a fundamental turn for the better will be effected in the state finance. Financial Minister Wang Bingqian made the following explanation at a national meeting on financial work held on 8 Ocotober: "The practice of effecting a fundamental turn for the better in finance should be demonstrated in consolidating and maintaining fundamental financial balance. On such a basis, after exerting efforts for a certain period of time, complete balance will be achieved. In the meantime, we should gradually increase financial reserves to accumulate strength for future vigorous economic development."

2. Technical reform should be carried out in the existing enterprises. According to a RENMIN RIBAO editorial published on 20 September, during the period of the Sixth 5-Year Plan, "technical reforms should be, first of all, carried out in respect of 30 categories of products, 100 factories, 300 coordinated plants and scientific research and design units and the whole engineering industry. This is the point of departure of technical reform and the project will be gradually expanded on this basis."

3. Consolidation work should be carried out in all state industrial enterprises. Yuan Baohua, deputy director of the State Economic Commission, published an article in RENMIN RIBAO of 27 September to publicize the information. The main contents of consolidation work include: 1) reorganizing leading bodies; 2) establishing economic responsibility system; 3) readjusting orientation of service; 4) strengthening labor discipline; 5) straightening out financial management of enterprises.

4. We should continue to reform the existing economic system. An article by Liu Guoguang, deputy director of the Academy of Social Sciences, published in RENMIN RIBAO of 6 September points out that during the period of the Sixth 5-Year Plan, the main task of reforming the existing system is to consolidate and improve the initial reform which has now been carried out and firmly grasp the work of formulating general plans so that during the period of the Seventh 5-Year Plan, an overall reform of economic system will be carried out.

The above data indicates the broad outline of China's economic development during the period of the Sixth 5-Year Plan.

PRC TIGHTENS SECURITY ON DRUGS INTO HONG KONG

HK030740 Hong Kong HONG KONG STANDARD in English 3 Nov 82 p 1

[By Karen Conrad]

[Text] China is to lower her bamboo curtain once again -- this time only for drug traffickers who are using her "open door" policy to smuggle heroin into Hong Kong.

The move follows a series of talks between local customs officials and their Chinese counterparts on drug trafficking techniques.

Local anti-drug agents have long suspected that traffickers were using China as a transit point for their illicit trade. And since they tightened their nets on couriers, traffickers were forced to look to China.

According to David H.Y. Tong, the divisional commander (Intelligence and Investigation) Customs Investigation Bureau, they informed the Chinese authorities about drug offences detected near the Hong Kong-side of the border and vice-versa.

"So far however, there hasn't been a really significant seizure at the points of entry from and to China," he added.

"In all cases where passengers on trains and ferries bound for China were found with narcotics, the quantities have been small and it was for their own use rather than trafficking," he said.

However, Mr Trong said, in a case last year, China "openly admitted" that the authorities arrested couriers bringing drugs into China from Thailand.

